Red Cross Disaster Chairman Appointed

Mrs. Jovita B. Aquilar has been elected as Disaster Chairman for the American Red Cross for Kinney County. Mrs. Aquilar is an R.N. and has been supervisor of nurses at several hospitals. Mrs. Aquilar requests the presence and the support of the people to form a Disaster Chapter. There will be a town meeting open to everyone at the City Hall, on May 11, 1981 at 7pm.

Red Cross chapters are frequently confronted by sudden catastrophes such as train, bus and ship wrecks; commercial transportation accidents involving fires or explosions or the potential release of dangerous fumes; airplane crashes; blizzards; dam breaks; flash flood, tornadoes; explosions or fires in industrial or commercial plants; hotel, theater, and nightclub fires; and fires affecting private residences. Such disasters may occur with little or no warning.

In such situations, the Red Cross provides immediate emergency services to evacuees, victims, and their families and emergency workers who are involved in the disaster and its aftermath. These services may include feeding, establishing first aid stations and supplementing available local health services, sheltering evacuees and victims, assisting at morgues, distributing clothing and cleanup supplies, providing emergency transportation, giving social services to the hospitalized and their families, securing provision of needed blood and blood products, handling disaster welfare inquiries, and as the situation stabilizes and families can return to their homes or move into alternate quarters, providing individual family assistance. When the disaster involves potential liability on the part of a company or property owner, emergency services are provided, their extent is related to what the company involved is prepared to do.

COMPTROLLER OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS BOB BULLOCK - COMPTROLLER

Austin, Tex. -- State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday said Houston city officials paid more than $280,000 in overdue state highway traffic fines and in return his office has released a $5.5 million city sales tax rebate check to the city.

Houston's sales tax check for April had been held up since last Thursday because the city was delinquent in turning in money that a Comptroller's audit showed the city collected for speeding fines between June 1975 and March 1980.

The city has paid the debt under protest, Bullock said, complaining of the validity of the statute that requires such payments.

"The city was irresponsible in letting this debt linger for more than eight months and even if they don't like the law, the bill shouldn't have been tucked away in a desk drawer to gather dust," Bullock said.

"I'll be glad to meet them in the courthouse but until a court of law changes the statute, I expect the city to pay its debts to the state on time," he said.

Bullock withheld the city's payment under a 1925 Texas Law that prohibits the Comptroller from making state payments to persons who owe the state debts.

STUDENT COUNCIL BLOOD DRIVE SLATED FOR BRACKETTVILLE

The Brackettville High School Student Council will sponsor their bi-annual community blood drive on Monday, April 27, 1981 at the High School Home Economics Cottage from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

All blood collected at this blood drive will help replace blood being used by patients in hospitals for such needs as surgery, injuries and kidney dialysis.

Community blood donations account for only 30% of our total transfusion needs. We need more Brackettville residents helping to meet these needs. Anyone between the ages of 17 and 66 in good health is eligible to donate.

You can help by saying "yes" when a student council representative calls or contact Kathy Bunjes, blood drive chairperson at 562-2491. Any group interested in further recruitment or in helping with donor recruitment may call Phyllis Stilwell or the South Texas Regional Blood Bank at 1-800-292-5534.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

A 23 year old Plainview man has been sentenced in the U.S. District Court in Lubbock, Texas for defrauding the Social Security Administration.

According to Miss Elvia F. Fuentes Manager of the Eagle Pass Social Security Office, David A. Brown pleaded guilty to two counts of giving false information to the Social Security Administration and concealing that he was no longer a full-time student in order to continue receiving social security benefits on the record of his deceased father.

Brown was sentenced to five years supervised probation and $1,000.00 fine on each of the two counts.

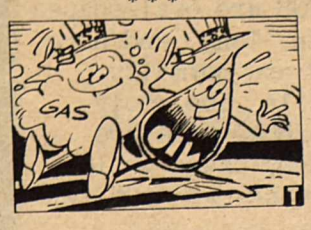

Miss Fuentes said that this conviction resulted from a joint investigation by agents of the U.S. Secret Service in Lubbock and Social Security Investigators in Dallas.

Americans are fast becoming expert conservers of energy. Comparing 1980 consumption to 1979, Americans used 6.5% less gasoline and 11.4% less heating oil.

***

That's important, because 38% of the oil the U.S. uses comes from overseas. This is a problem because America will depend on gas and oil for most of its energy for the rest of this century. Alternate energy sources hold great promise, and Gulf Oil is actively involved in several of them. But they won't be commercially viable for many years. That's why the first priority of Gulf Oil Corporation is the discovery and development of oil and natural gas resources within the United States.

Plants & Posies

By: JEANIE

If your houseplants are enjoying the spring on your patio or porch, be sure to check them often for bugs.
Most houseplant pest are very tiny.
Many times, you will see the results of bugs before you notice the pests!
Distortion of new growth, holes in leaves are common bug results.
APHIDS---APHIDS, OR PLANT LICE are sap-sucking insects. They are about 1/8 in. long, and may be green, brown, gray or yellow.They multiply rapidly and should be controlled immediately with a pesicide. Aphids are usually seen concentrated on new growth, causing distortion of leaves, stems and flowers.

MEALY BUGS--MEALY BUGS are oval-shaped bugs about 1/8 in. long, and have white body. They are normally found in leaf axils The wooly white nest these bugs make are easily notice. They cause yellow, withered leaves, and can severely damage a plant if left unchecked.

remove the bugs with a tooth-pick or by hand. Spray the plant with and appropriate insecticide and watch closely for reinfestation RED SPIDER MITES---Red spider mites are very tiny red or pink sap suckers;
very tiny red or pink sap suckers
They make a silky web on plant growth, which is easily noticed.
Leaves turn yellow, with black dots. These pests thrive when the air is hot and dry. Misting your plant is helpful to discourage spider mites. If mites do become a problem remove infested growth and spray with an appropriate insecticide.

With most houseplant pest, an insecticide application should be repeated 7-10 days after the initial spraying.
Always follow the directions carefully when using insecticides.

RANCHER'S ROUNDUP TO STRESS MANAGEMENT, NUTRITION

Del Rio, Tx. -- World Ranching Influences, Government Influences on the Ranching Industry and A Look Into the Future of Ranching are themes for three general sessions of the International Rancher's Roundup set for August 10-14 in Del Rio's Civic Center.

The broad-based conference, which includes two days of ranch tours, features daily concurrent sessions designed for those who ranch in airlands of North America. It is being organized by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Speakers for the programs are being selected from highly qualified professionals who will provide the most practical approach, according to Dr. Larry White, area range specialist in Uvalde, a co-chairman of the event.

"Ranch managers and landowners will learn key factors involved in intergrating the production of quality rangeland, harvesting quality animals and progressive product marketing from this country's best authorities," White says. "Other important issues affecting ranching that will be discussed include real estate values, taxation and subsurface mineral leases."

White emphasizes that ranchers will receive the latest technology oriented to better management of all domestic ranch animals, wildlife, range resources and ranch business. "Nutrition: The Key of Production to Profit" will be the central theme of all animal-related sessions.

During the planned visits of Mexican, South African, Australian and New Zealand ranching delegations, speakers will address international agricultural trade, agricultural interdependence and market development, plus take a close look at what these countries need from American producers.

Planned ranch tours, White added, will take participants by chartered bus to progressively managed ranches in southwestern Texas and northwestern Mexico.

Nightly entertainment consisting of American country-western music and traditional Mexican music will add international flair along with the intriguing atmosphere of this border city.

White says it adds up to a week of education, tours and entertainment. "Those who attend will be better prepared to make important business decisions involving all aspect of their ranching operation," he notes.

Roundup pre-registration will be very important in the planning and arrangements process, White stresses. Ranchers are urged to write now for their pre-registration packets to IRR, P. O. Drawer 1849, Uvalde, TX., 78801. A tax deductible fee will be charged to cover expenses.

White says ranchers can obtain more details about the Rancher's Roundup from their county Extension Agent.

The Texas Consumer Association Education Fund's Report from Austin
By Jim Hightower, President

On a slow day, pull out your life insurance policy, or the bank note on your car, or your apartment lease, and just for the heck of it, see if you can figure out what it says.

"Party of the first part, individually and severally, does assign, transfer and convey unto the aforementioned retainer the unsecured collateral . . . of the whereof, whereinbefore and, oh, why not?" You know when you sign one of these contracts that there's trouble lurking in such gobbledygook somewhere, but if you are like me there is little you can do but shut your eyes, sign and hope for the best.

Why can't they speak English? Or Spanish? Or at least Texan, so all us poor Parties Of The First Part can know what we're getting into and who's getting to us?

Consider this auto-purchase contract from an Austin bank: "Upon failure of Customer to perform any of his obligations hereunder or if Creditor in good faith believes that the prospect of payment of the Obligation or performance of the Contract is impaired, the amount of this Contract legally collectible shall become immediately due and payable at the election of the holder hereof, without notice, and in such event the owner and holder of this Contract may exercise any of the rights of a secured party after default. . ."

That reads like it was drawn up by the firm of Dewey, Cheatum and Howe. What does all that hocus-pocus mean? Simple: "If you miss a single payment on that little 4-wheeled beauty, the banker can make you pay the whole tab, plus take the car back."

So why don't they just say so?

Sen. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi and Rep. Paul Elizondo of San Antonio think that banks, apartment owners, insurance companies and other contract-writing corporations ought to do just that, so they have introduced The Plain Language Bill. It lays out requirements for use of common, everyday language to make contracts clear and understandable to the consumer.

Not everyone thinks this is a good idea. The Texas Association of Bankers is lobbying against the bill, arguing that it will require sellers and lenders to re-write all of their contracts.

So what, ask proponents? Better that they should have to re-write than that consumers be kept in the dark.

Well, the bankers say, the problem is that all the legal jargon now used in contracts has already been through the courts to determine what it means, and if we now switch to plain speaking all these new words will have to be tested in court.

Again, so what, ask the proponents? Even if every word had to be taken to court, it would be a small price to pay for straightforward contracts. But, they add, it is not likely that all of these words will be tested. They cite the experience of Capital National Bank in Austin, which has been using a plain-language contract for three years and has not had a single lawsuit about the terms used.

How do you read it? The Plain Language Bill currently is lodged in the House Business and Industry Committee, and if you want to support it or oppose it, you may write either to the committee chairman or to your own state representative at the following address: State Capitol/Austin, Texas 78711.

DEER RESISTANT PLANTS

Homeowners and gardeners in the Hill Country area all too often find that the friendly, lovable deer that roam the hills also like to invade their landscapes and gardens. When they do that usually spells trouble, particularly when the deer's dinner includes some of the gardener's most tender shrubs and choicest plants.

Deer, like all animals have certain food preferences and dislikes. While it is not practical for the gardener to plant only those plants that show resistance to deer, it is possible to use many of these "deer resistant" plants as mainstays in the landscape.

The use of deer-resistant plants to minimize damage from browsing has a number of advantages for the home gardener. Perhaps the principal advantages over the more conventional methods of deer-damage control are those of economy and beauty.

Not many of us care to have a high deer fence surrounding our property; they are unsightly as well as expensive. Noise and odor repellents are out of place on home grounds and not very effective.

Deer resistant plants, however, can be pleasing to the eye and to the pocketbook; they provide their own protection and, when properly chosen and landscaped, produce excellent results for the home gardener.

Resistance of the plant to deer is related to the availability of other food. If there is an adequate supply of natural browse in the deer's usual feeding ground, the gardeners' ornamental planting may be largely untouched. If, however, the natural food supply is low, there will be increased browsing in domestic gardens. If there is an extreme shortage of natural food, few, if any plants are totally resistant to deer.

A heavy deer population also increases competition for food with the result that plants relatively unpalatable in an area where deer are not numerous will be readily browsed in an area where deer abound.

Various factors can make a plant resistant to deer. Many of the most resistant plants (such as oleander) are poisonous, some all at times and others only at certain stages of growth. Palatability of non-toxic plants also varies with plant age or with the seasons.

Because of these considerations the following list of deer-resistant plants should be considered as a general guide only; under conditions as those mentioned, deer will sometimes browse some of the plants listed. However, the following are some of the most common deer resistant plants for the Central Texas area:

Century plant; Aloe; Butterfly bush; Boxwood; Cactus; Mexican fan palm; Clematis; Oleander; Oxalis; Phoenix date palm; Cherry Laurel; Rhododendron; Rosemary; Windmill palm; Holly (all varieties except thornless); Jasmine; Bluebonnet; Magnolia; Chinaberry tree; Wax myrtle; Narcissus; Daffodil; Jonquil; Scotch broom; Persimmon; Fig; Arizona Ash; Carolina jessamine; English Ivy; Washington palm.

NEWSWORTHY TRENDS

If you're light-skinned, a redhead or a blonde, you may get more than a tan from overexposure to the sun.

Over a period of many years, too much exposure to the sun may cause a condition called solar keratoses. Left untreated, it can develop into skin cancer, the most common form of cancer among people.

Although particularly prevalent in the sunbelt states, this condition can develop no matter where you are. It often affects people whose jobs require them to work long hours in the sun—farmers and fishermen, for example.

The symptoms include red, scaly patches, usually on the hands and face. Anyone with such symptoms should see a doctor. Only a doctor can properly diagnose and treat solar keratoses. Doctors have a prescription drug cream and solution, developed by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., that is often prescribed with good results for people who have solar keratoses.

If you must stay in the sun, protect your skin properly!

If you think you have solar keratoses, or any other skin problem, it's a good idea to see your doctor.

Freezer Jam Is A Cinch!

Imagine the flavor of Strawberry Mint Jam lavishly spread on warm biscuits, morning toast or tender pancakes. Don't tax your imagination when it's so easy to prepare no-cook freezer jam with liquid fruit pectin to help assure a good "set." Reusable freezer containers not larger than one pint in capacity with tight-fitting lids can be used. Or, you may prefer standard glass jelly jars with two-part lids. As fresh strawberry season moves along, try another freezer jam or jelly recipe printed in the leaflet tucked inside the package of liquid fruit pectin. Think of all the eating pleasure you'll create!

STRAWBERRY MINT JAM

- 1-3/4 cups prepared fruit (about 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint*
- 4 cups (1-3/4 lb.) sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 pouch Certo fruit pectin

*Or use 1 tablespoon crushed dried mint leaves.

First prepare the fruit. Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 quart strawberries. Measure 1-3/4 cups into large bowl or pan. Add mint.

Then make the jam. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Add lemon juice to fruit pectin in small bowl. Stir into fruit. Continue stirring 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into scalded containers. Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature 24 hours; store in refrigerator up to 3 weeks. Makes about 4-1/3 cups or 5 (8 fl. oz.) containers.

This crumb-grabbing pelican on Galveston Island refused to stay when his benefactor tried to leave, and assumed this perch on his new friend's pickup. When last seen, the two were having an amiable chat. TTDA Photo by Michael Murphy.

FANCY THAT!

You may not want or be able to completely protect your skin from the sun, but there are ways to minimize the damage that overexposure may cause. Use a sunshade preparation containing opaque chemicals such as zinc oxide or titanium oxide. Wear clothing that's not too porous and reduce or eliminate time in the sun when its ultraviolet rays are strongest—from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Too much exposure to the sun over many years—as can happen to construction workers, fishermen and sun-belt residents—may lead to a condition called solar keratoses, which in some cases can become malignant. Its symptoms include irregular, scaly, red patches, usually on the hands, face, head and neck. Anyone with such symptoms should see a doctor. Solar keratoses may lead to skin cancer, the most common type of cancer among people.

Doctors sometimes use a prescription drug in solution or cream form, developed by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. It is often prescribed with good results. Only a doctor can properly diagnose and treat solar keratoses.
