THE TORTILLA CONNECTION ...PART II

Before I get wound up--I would like to re-state--this is your newspaper--I express my views--they may not be the same as yours--we welcome letters from REASONABLE AND RESPONSIBLE people on their views. If you do not believe this, read this week's letter to the editor! We appreciate ate the many phone calls on your opinions--BUT WE CAN NOT PRINT PHONE CALLS. If you would like to express your views write us a letter to the editor.

CENTRAL EMERGENCY TELEPHONE NUMBER

Many cities in Texas have gone to a central emergency number enabling them to reach Fire, Sheriff, Highway Patrol, Ambulance, and Ect. by calling one number. In San Antonio the number is 911--the information is then transferred to the emergency agency you need.

Several months ago we printed a cut-out, paste up with the ambulance number. Recently we have been doing the same including other agencies. It was brought to our attention that we left the Brackettville Police number out of the listing. We have corrected this situation and for those interested parties, if you will check page eight of this weeks paper they are all there.

This gets back to the problem! How many of you cut it out and put it on your phone book, or close by for quick reference? Have you ever tried to find the clinic in the phone book? DON'T! Call the Sheriff's office after

Letters to the Editor

George,

"Now appears a member of the Fort supposedly representing Fort Clark wanting an accounting of the jail's financial operations'
.....copied from your paper of July 17, 1981.

Yes, I did appear, yes I did ask for an accounting of the jail's financial operations, yes
I do represent Fort Clark Springs Association, Inc., as President of their Board of Directors. There is no supposing to it, I do represent Fort Clark's interests.
However, if this were not true,
I would represent myself a taxpayer.

George, you then printed, and I quote, "the amazing thing is every phone call I received from Fort Clark was in favor of better law enforcement". For the life of me, I just cannot make a connection between the fact that a taxpayer wants to know how his money is being spent and the statement you made. I really do not believe there is a connection. Had you been to the meeting and reported the facts first hand instead of printing what someone else quoted me as saying, you would have heard me say that I am for better law enforcement as much as anyone else. I stated that I am in favor of the jail making money and helping the county, but I also stated that if this were not true, I do not feel that we should subsidize the Federal government.

I have read in your paper about how much money the jail program was taking in. As a businessman I learned a long time ago to look at the bottom line. At the July 13th Commissioner's Court meeting
I saw the bottom line of the jail program report and it did not look good from a tax payer's standpoint.

There was some discussion as to whether or not this report was correct. I do not know one way or the other about the correctness of the report. I do know that I have the right (as does every other taxpayer in Kinney County) to know what is correct in reference to the jail program.

In relation to our County Judge and four County Commissioners, it is their job to protect our tax dollars. I have not agreed with every decision they have made in the past, but I do feel that they are trying to do the best they can with what they have to do with. When they question how our tax money is being spent,
bless them, for it they don't,
who will?

and the Ambulance. When you need help--you generally need it in a hurry--You are not interested in playing Ma Bell's "find the number game."

If the City, County and Fire Department, ect., all got together it would not cost the taxpayers a dime! Even if Ma Bell did not give us a special number---ONE NUMBER WOULD BE BETTER THAN FIVE OR SIX!!

In the mean time--Do you have all those numbers next to your Phone?

There is one little hitch to my suggestion---That is---Some of the personell on duty at the jail are aparently not competent to answering the telephone much less being adapt at communicating on the two-way radio. I have heard conversations on both of these medias and it is rather sad. This, I believe could be easily remedied by sending each of the persons over to one of our sister cities (Del Rio, Uvalde, or even San Antonio) and let them sit in with one of their dispatchers for a day of learning proper precedures.

TO MEET OR NOT TO MEET--THAT IS THE QUESTION

Again this week, (see letter to the editor), I was questioned about my attendance to a public meeting. Well I think it is about time that I give you my side of the story!

On one night of the month three meetings are held at the same time. I am therefore to divide myself by three. I would like for all you public spirited citizens to attend all these meetings. If you do not have to make a living and don't mind being bored to death I would certainly recommend it!

If I do not actually attend a meeting myself, I get the copies of the minutes of the meeting. I then "cul" through these and give you the news I think that you need to make your own decisions. This is broken down so that you, our reader, doesn't have to wade through ten tons of "Horse Hockey."

I have sat through meetings that have lasted for hours that should have lasted for minutes. I have listened to politicians' turned self-styled comedians tell poor jokes. I have sat and listened to the start of a discussion on subject and the whole subject is dropped and something else is brought up. The original subject is usually tabled!

I checked with the Kinney County Library, today, and they do have a copy of Robert's Rules of Order--Just maybe some of our meeting holders should check it out.

Everyone should be public spirited, attend all your meetings, pack your picnic lunch, bedroll, bring a good book and a few aspirins.

OR---Just read the KINNEY CAVALRYMAN for the truth!

Kazen

By: Abraham (Chick) Kazen, Jr.

The Administration's recent prediction that interest rates will remain higher than projected earlier is bad news for the nation but it may also mark a positive turning point for the federal government.

Last week, in a mid-session review of the economy, Administration economic advisors said short term interest rates will hover above 10 percent this year and next, resulting in about $10 billion more in federal spending next year.

Projecting further, the new estimate indicate that some $55 billion--instead of an earlier estimate of $45 billion--must be cut from 1984 spending if the promised balanced budget is to become a reality.

Not too long ago, these economic advisors predicted interest rates would be as low as 8.9 percent by next year. These projections were used to sell an economic package based on the assumption that a "believable" economic plan would lead quickly to reduced interest rates and a measure of control over inflation.

If there is any good news in all of this, it may be that future economic planning may be based on somewhat more accurate predictions--or at the least that the predictions will be taken with a grain of salt. A colleague of mine said the revised figures indicated the economic advisors are joining the "real world." It is the earnest hope of all of us that this is the case, but it must be pointed out that many other economists expect the interest rate next year to be several points higher than even the new estimates.

But economists--inside and outside the halls of government--have the reputation of making occasional mistakes. The best we can do is recognize this and be extremely careful in handling an issue as critically important as the economy of this nation. As we have learned, a difference of a point and two in projections can mean an error of billions of dollars.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

I note with great interest that Robert P. Nimmo has been confirmed by the Senate as Administrator of Veterans Affairs. This means for the first time in four months the VA has an administrator to manage 230,000 employees who look after the welfare of more than 30 million veterans.

Nimmo has a background in California state politics, live stock raising and grain farming. He served as a bomber pilot during World War II and was company commander of the first National Guard unit called to active duty in the Korean Conflict.

He won bipartisan support in the Senate after he said he would challenge arbitrary cuts to veterans benefits. As administrator, he will supervise the operation of 172 hospitals, 96 nursing home units and 228 out patients clinics while watching over the various medical and educational benefits of veterans. South Texas, with its large number of veterans, has a stake in the VA. I wish the administrator well in his new position and pledge to continue to work with the VA in support of our veterans.

Kinney County LIBRARY

Dear K.C.,

At the "Friends" last meeting it was moved that there be a night of films shown Tuesday, August 11th, at 8 p.m. for the families of the community; the place to be announced later. The film will be selected to appeal to all ages and there will be no charge. If this occasion is well received the library may consider showing films on a regular basis as a community service.

For more and better services for the community the "Friends" would like to see the county tax dollars match the Federal Revenue Sharing monies now allocated to the library on the next fiscal year's budget.

The letters sent out to absentee landholders last week are beginning to show results. Four replies have already been received in the amount of $100--$100--$50 and $25, totaling $250 so far. It would be gratifying if we continue to get this kind of response from the remainder of the 200 absentee landholders.

Yours truly,
Friends of the Library

The Texas Consumer Association's Report from Austin

By Jim Hightower, President

When you think of oil companies, what names come to mind?

If you're like most gasoline buyers, you probably think of brand names like Exxon, Mobil and Shell, and the mere thought of their exorbitant prices and profits most likely makes you fume.

But there's more to this industry than a handful of multi-billion dollar, multi-national conglomerates trying to rip us off. Far away from the skyscraper headquarters of Big Oil, out in the far reaches of the Texas countryside, down at ground level where money is risked and crude is pumped, you'll find another breed of oil men and women. There you'll find the true competitors within this industry — thousands of wildcatters, mom & pop royalty owners and independent production companies.

These are the people who find oil for us. Sure, Exxon and the other big names take out ads telling us they're putting their profits into oil exploration, but a lot of them are like New York cowboys: all hat, no cattle.

The little "no-name" enterprises, on the other hand, do more drilling than advertising — last year, 83% of all wells in Texas were drilled by these independents.

You would think, then, that government tax policy might favor those who put their money where their mouth is — that those who plow their windfall profit back into oil exploration would get a tax break, while those who simply pocket their profits or put them into other kinds of business would have to pay more. But that's not the way it's done.

Current federal tax law requires the little-uns to pay the same as the big-uns, no matter what they do with the excess dollars taken from us at the pumps. Big Oil takes the lion's share of excess profits in the oil industry,

CARNATIONS

Competitions were held among growers to determine which flowers were the most perfect. Among the varieties entered were "Ruffling Robin", "Lustie Gallant and Master Bradshaw His Paintie Ladie".

Competitions were made all the fiercer when a barber from Enfield, Christopher Nunn, turned his talent from dressing wigs to dressing carnations. Skilled with a razor Nunn would hire out to dress prize flowers for contest, shearing off petals and rearranging then on a card to create a perfectly symmetrical carnations. So skillful was he that he became known as the father of carnation dressing an art which has fallen into disfavor.

Modern-day carnations, which are essentially available year-round are derived from varieties developed by the French, who discovered a cultivar that flowered out of season, imported to the United States just before the Civil War they have since been extensively hybridized to produce spectacular varieties with evocative names like Ambrosia, Gayety, and Elegance. As popular with Americans as they were with Europeans, carnations have become a staple for U.S. florists--and THE flower to give on Mother's Day, long-lasting, colorful, fragrant, and dependable carnations constitute about 25 percent of all cut flowers used in florist shops.

Nowadays, modern methods of care and handling have produced but they are not putting much of that extra cash into new energy development — for example, Mobil bought Montgomery Ward, Arco bought the London Observer newspaper, Exxon bought Reliance Electric motor company, Getty bought the ESPN television sports network, Occidental bought Iowa Beef Processors, Sun Oil bought Mr. Zip convenience grocery chain, and Diamond Shamrock even laid out $600,000 to buy a 16'x16' glass-enclosed luxury box at the Dallas Cowboys football stadium. A national study just released shows that the big oil companies have spent only 28% of the increased profits they got from price decontrol to expand their oil exploration and production.

The independents, however, put nearly all of their profits back into their chief business — producing more oil. For that reason, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has proposed legislation giving these small entrepreneurs a partial exemption from the windfall profits tax. It would apply only to the independents, and then only to the first 1,000 barrels of their daily production.

President Ronald Reagan says that he opposes Sen. Bentsen's proposed exemption, claiming that it would cost the federal treasury too much in tax revenues. Lobbyists for Big Oil also are opposed to the Bentsen bill, arguing that it discriminates unfairly against them.
