The FIRST permanent satellite TV Receiving system, in Kinney County, was installed this last weekend at Malone Compnay, in Spofford, by CHC Communications which is represented by George Loos.

The private system was engineered to receive in excess of 19 TV entertainment, news, sports, movie, educational, and religious channels.

CHC representative in charge of installation, George Calhoun, stated,"Systems such as this are being installed all over the U.S. by people that do not have access to cable TV or sufficient coverage from area TV stations and the wide availability of over 19 channels of information and news, 24 hours a day is a real plus factor. In many cases the reception is superior to direct pickups to TV stations or cable companies' services.

FILMS TO BE SHOWN

On August 11, at the First Baptist Church, 8 p.m. the Kinney County Library will be showing films to the community. Everyone is invited to watch films and enjoy the evening with friends and family.

BEGONIA.....Begoniaceae.....

The genus Begonia includes more than 2,000 species and hybrids and they are as varied in appearance and habit as these numbers suggest. Some are valued mainly for flowers some for decorative leaves, some for both leaves and flowers. Begonias range in size from tinys, ground-hugging creepers to stout stemmed specimens 8-10 feet tall. Yet they all share a number of characteristics. Almost all forms have asymmetrical leaves; the leaves always grow alternately along the stems; and new leaves emerge from stipules (leaf-like sheaths). Many do not require continuous direct sunlight, a fact that makes them particularly suitable for indoor use. Most kinds bear flowers in clusters on short stalks arising from or near leaf axils. There are separate male and female flowers on the same plant, however, each cluster is normally composed of either all male or all female blooms.

Male flowers tend to be the most eye-catching, partly because their petals are often of different shapes and sizes, whereas the petals of the female flower are more alike. A distinctive feature of the female flower is the seed-bearing ovary which looks like a three-lobed appendage immediately behind the petals. Female flowers although they may slightly fade, usually last for weeks or even months, but the male flowers tend to drop off within two or three days of opening.

PART II...next week.

RANCHERS HOLD BIG ROUNDUP NEXT WEEK

DEL RIO--The urban cowboy is "out" this week and working cowboy is "in" as hundreds of ranchers from across the U.S. and several countries converge on this festive border city for the International Rancher's Roundup.

It begins Tuesday, August 11, and runs through Thursday at the Civic Center where only chaps and spurs will be missing.

About 125 speakers are scheduled to appear during the week representing 12 prominent ranching states and five countries, quite possibly the largest gathering of this type in the Southwest.

Registered participants will receive a 435-page bound copy of the proceedings which contains most of the talks presented. Over 1,000 ranchers are expected.

Roundup registration for early arrivals begins Monday, August 10, at the Del Rio Ramanda Inn from 3-8 p.m. and resumes at the Civic Center lobby Tuesday at 7:30 a.m.

Participants in need of motel accommodations should immediately contact the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce (512/775-3551) which keeps a daily listing of room vacancies.

Former Governor Dolph Briscoe delivers the first major keynote address, kicking off the Roundup at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

day. Briscoe is also a past president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association and maintains close ties with the ranching industry.

Other noted speakers appearing during the three days of general and concurrent educational sessions are Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, South African agricultural envoy Dr. P.Botha, and State Representative Susan McBee.

A slot for U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block has been reserved for Tuesday morning following Briscoe's talk in hopes the secretary can free himself of legislative activities in Washington.

Simultaneous sessions presenting improved management techniques for producers of beef cattle, sheep and goats, ranch horses, wildlife, plus range resources use and ranch business innovations will be featured each day. Roundup planners have attempted to supply a session encompassing every aspect of the ranching industry by changing speakers and topics for each day's meeting.

Specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Uvalde, organizers of the Roundup, say the big conference has been over a year in planning. They maintain the meeting's purpose is to help ranchers preserve their livelihood.

MCBEE TO SERVE ON TEXAS LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Representative Susan McBee of Del Rio has been reappointed by Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton to serve on the Texas Legislative Council.

E-established in 1949, this 17-member council is authorized to investigate departments, agencies and officers of the state and to study their functions and problems, to make studies on selected topics and to gather information for the use of the legislature.

Additional duties of the council are to study revisions of state statutes without substantive changes, to draft proposed legislation, and to operate automated systems in support of the legislative process.

When making his appointments, Speaker Clayton, who serves as vice-chairman of the council, stated, "The Legislative Council is a reliable tool of our state legislature. It saves time and money and it provides an expert work product. It is the lawmakers' trusted friend in the hectic days of the session. The council is fortunate to have again Rep. McBee as a member. Her past experience and new insights will enable her to make a valuable contribution." Rep. McBee will be serving her fourth term on the council, and she is presently chairperson of the Calendars Committee.

ARTIST & CRAFTSMEN SOUGHT FOR FIESTA AMISTAD

Del Rio---The Good Neighbors Arts and Crafts Fiesta--val organization of Del Rio is seeking artists and craftsmen for its 6th Annual Amistad Arts and Crafts Fiesta-val to be held Saturday, October 24 and 25.

The Fiesta-val is a highlight of the annual Fiesta de Amistad which celebrates the continuing friendship between the United States and Mexico. The Fiesta is organized by the Good Neighbors Council. Among the events of the weekend is the International Parade which travels between Del Rio and Ciudad Acuna, Mexico, making it one of the few international events of the world.

The Arts and Crafts Fiesta-val is located one block from the parade route underneath the shady trees surrounding historic Val Verde County Courthouse in downtown Del Rio. It is a natural attraction for the estimated 10,000 parade participants and spectators. 44 booths are located underneath colorful circus tents and are highly visible to street traffic on the main road to Mexico.

Booths are 10'X10', 3 sided with wire suitable for hanging displays, and provided with electricity. Artists will provide their own display needs such as tables and chairs and shelving.

A donation of one hand-made arts or crafts items will be required of each exhibitor for a Fiesta-val Benefit Silent Auction to be held at the Firehouse Gallery sponsored by the Del Rio Council for the Arts. Proceeds from the auction will be donated to a local non-profit arts organization.

Artist are encouraged to demonstrate their techniques.

For an application for booth space, craftsmen are asked to contact Kim Jayroe, Chairperson, in care of the Del Rio Council for the Arts, P.O. Box 178, Del Rio, Tx 78840, Telephone: (512) 775-0888.

Kazen

By: Abraham (Chick)Kazen, Jr.

It may take several years before we know the full effects on the economy of the tax plan approved last week in the House of Representatives, but it is apparent to me that at least a few of the provisions will be of great benefit to Texans.

I supported the President's tax plan on the final vote because by then it was the only surviving bill that included a tax reduction for individuals--and because it incorporated several important provisions that originated in the Ways and Means Committee Bill.

I would have preferred the Ways and Means legislation, which also contained what I considered more equitable tax cuts for individuals and represented a realistic attempt to balance the budget, but this bill was defeated after an intense campaign led by the White House.

Because of the confusion throughout the country over what each bill actually said, it might be helpful to go back a few weeks and see how the legislation developed. The Ways and Means Committee, in an effort to attract more moderate and conservative members, agreed to include a variety of beneficial tax reforms measures long sought by many of us. This was the case in relief of estate and gift taxes, certain benefits to small businesses and much-needed relief to producers and royalty owners from the Windfall Profits tax.

In many cases, supporters of the President's tax plan simply added the identical language of the Ways and Means bill or bid a little higher than Ways and Means in their own efforts to attract widespread support. Thus, because of the Ways and Means bill, the bill finally approved by the House contained these highly beneficial provisions:

--Among the improvements, the bill reduces the maximum estate and gift tax rate from 70 percent to 50 percent over a 4-year period. More importantly to many people, the so-called "widow's tax" is repealed on the grounds that an individual should be free to pass his entire estate to a surviving spouse without the imposition of any inheritance tax.

--Present law provides qualified royalty owners with a credit of up to $1000 against the Windfall Profits tax. The House bill increases the credit to $2500 and also reduces the rate for producers on newly discovered oil. Independent production of stripper oil is exempted beginning in 1983.

--As savings incentives, the deduction from gross income for contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts is raised from the lesser of 15 percent of the annual income or $1500 to the lesser of 100 percent income or $2000. The annual deduction limit to a Keogh pension plan is increased from $7,500 to $15,000 per year.

Kinney County LIBRARY

BY: Marie Bixby

DEAR K.C.

Plans are progressing for showing free family films Tuesday, August 11 at 8 p.m. Rev. Franks of the First Baptist Church of Brackettville has graciously given permission for the films to be shown on the lawn of the church grounds. Meantime Librarian Corey is making arrangements to procure films that will appeal to all ages. Lion President, Tim Ward, has assured us that the Club's snow cone machine will be at our disposal which means that snow cone refreshments will be available for a minimal charge that evening.

Checks are still coming in from the absentee landholders of Kinney County. The amount taken in from this source has now reached $1,596. Susan Bunjes also contributed $500.

The "Friends" are looking for a stonemason who will volunteer his skill in teaching an apprentice his art on the job; making possible the re-construction of the old Fritter home situated on the site of the new library. If you know of anyone we might contact on this please advise.

A new trial date wstill has not been re-set for the civil action of Allied Fidelity Ins. Co. -vs- Kinney County since the last date of May 11th has come and gone without as much as a hint of a postponement date. Since the counsel for the defense said in his letter to the Plaintiff's counsel in the counter-suit April 10, 1981, "If we are ever going to resolve this case, now is the time." it is even more strange. Is it time for the "Friends" to inquire into this in more depth?

There has been good progress on the new library building since our benefit barbeque. The roof and beams are in place and the final square sotnes are being laid.

All "Friends" of the library are reminded of our next meeting Tues. August 11 at 7 p.m. at our usual location in the County courtroom. Several concerns of interest will be on the agenda so we hope to see you there.

Kazew -----

--Under the present law, homeowners who move, have 18 months to acquire a new home of equal or higher value to avoid tax penalty. Because of the high mortgage interest rates and resulting difficulty in acquiring replacement homes, the period is increased to 24 months. The one-time exclusion of up to $100,000 of gain on the sale of residences for persons 55 and older is increased to $125,000 beginning in July, 1981.

At this writing, the final version of the tax bill had not been reported by a House-Senate Conference Committee, but there were strong indications that most of the major provisions of the House version would remain in the bill.

In the end, my support for the President's tax bill was because of the tax savings and other provisions initiated by the Ways and Means Committee and because, on the final vote, it was a choice between the President's tax package and no tax cut at all.

However, in fairness, I must add that sections of the Administrations bill are disturbing. I preferred the Ways and Means treatment of individual tax cuts, for example, because they were targeted to the middle-income taxpayer and those who earn less than $50,000 each year. Under the President's plan, 35.1 percent of the individual tax cuts in 1982 would go to 5.6 percent of the population--those making $50,000 or more. A full 10 percent of the cut would go to 0.2 percent of the taxpayers--those making $200,000 or more.

At the bottom end of the scale the 41 percent of American taxpayers who make $15,000 a year or less would get 8.5 percent of the 1982 cut. Under the Ways and Means plan, a $10,000 wage earner with a family of four would have seen his taxes cut by $362. Under the Administration plan, his taxes will be cut by $52. Two wage earners supporting a family of four on $25,000 would have had their taxes reduced by $1,013 instead of $700 in the Administration plan.

I would also have preferred the "trigger" on the third year tax cuts. If the economy performed as predicted, the Ways and Means bill would have continued the reduction for the third year. As it is now, the 10 percent tax cut will be mandatory, regardless of the federal deficit, the rate of inflation or anything else. The problem with this is that some economist already warn of a deficit as high as $80 billion by 1984.

A deficit of this magnitude and a movement toward balancing the budget simply do no compute. I continue to believe that the foundation of economic recovery and all of its benefits--including meaningful tax relief, reductions in the rate of inflation and escape from spiraling interest rates--is a sound, balanced budget. Both Congress and the White House must find a way to work toward this end.

PETS: TWO'S - EVEN THREE'S - COMPANY

What are lovable, playful and double the fun? Two, even three, furry family members.

Giving your pet a new pal to play with can offer every family member a double dose of happiness and good health. If you've been meaning to bring a new pet into the family, summer can be one of the easiest times to do it. This is because warmer temperatures mean more time to spend outdoors training and getting to know your new family addition.

Introductions between new and old pets take about a week or two and can be a snap. One easy way to let an older pet know that company's coming is to set an extra bowl at meal times. Also, be sure to cuddle the old-timer just as much as the newcomer, if not more.

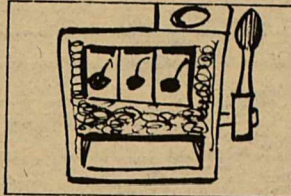

Pet authorities agree that kittens and puppies can be easily added to any family as second pets. Size differences between older and younger pets should be considered, though. A friendly nudge from a large, full-grown dog could land a frisky pup across the room.

It won't take long for two pets to become the best of friends, says Roger Caras, author, naturalist and special correspondent ABC News. "In fact, don't be surprised to soon see the two curled up together!"

In ancient Rome, unmarried girls were prohibited by law from wearing pearls. Instead, the pearls were worn by young men, who placed the pearls in tiny bells which, hanging from their ears, tinkled gaily.
