KC RANCH TOUR/FIELD --OCTOBER 5TH

BRACKETTVILLE--A Range/Wildlife Field Day and Ranch Tour for area ranchers will be held Monday, October 5, in Kinney County according to Carl Esser, Kinney County Extension agent.

Esser says participants will have the opportunity to take a close look at range land that has been treated with combinations of roller chopping and Graslan herbicide applications. These pastures are used for livestock and wildlife production.

The tour begins promptly at 8:30 a.m. with coffee and registration at the Joe Kerr Ranch located about eight miles southwest of Brackettville off Ranch Road 693. Directional signs will be posted.

Parts of Kerr's ranch were roller chopped last spring and reseeded with different grass varieties. A comparison of tandem and parallel roller chopping results can be observed.

Next stop on the tour is at the Hadley Wardlaw ranch where roller chopping plus effect of Graslan herbicide on tar brush can be seen. also be observed is the grazing land where Graslan was used in conjunction with roller chopping compared with land that was treated with the herbicide but wasn't mechanically treated.

The tour then proceeds to the Clyde Earwood Ranch for a closer look as white brush and ceniza that was treated with Graslan. Brush control practices related to wildlife management will be emphasized at this ranch visit.

Lunch will be served to tour participants at the hunting lodge on Earwood's ranch courtesy of Elanco Chemical Company and Pogue Seed Company-

WORKSHOP

Southwest Texas high school English teachers will have an opportunity to refine and refresh their professional skills on Friday, October 9, at the Southwest Texas Junior College Annual High School English Teachers Workshop.

"One of the more valuable features of our annual workshop has been the variety of programs we have been able to offer," said Nancy Rutledge, SWTJC Humanities Division Chairman and English Instructor.

Nationally known figures such as Dr. James Kinneavy and Drs. Grey and Elizabeth Cowan have been featured speakers in the past.

Past programs have centered on the creative process, remedial instruction, and grading procedures. Local teachers have given demonstrations of classroom methods they have found successful.

"This year, Mrs. Margaret Harbermacher, English teacher in Sabinal, will bring us a 'message from reality' as she shares tec-

Two new strategies to increase the availability and scope of the library facilities at Southwest Texas Junior College were recently announced by Mrs. Billie Noguess, new Library Division Chairman at the college.

"We have had many requests from students, particularly those who attend classes at our off campus centers, to open the library on Saturday's", Noguess said. "We have also had problems with students failing to return books, which, of course, causes a shortage of materials available to other students."

"We will open the library on Saturday, October 3, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in an attempt to determine exactly how many students would actually take advantage of library hours, and will declare the entire month of October "Amnesty Month" on library fines in an attempt to recover the overdue books," she continued.

Noguess "strongly encourages" students desiring Saturday library hours to show up on October 3, not only to take advantage of the extended hours but to demonstrate the need for Saturday hours in the future.

Inflation and cataloging costs have caused the "overdue books problems" to become a crisis.

"We have 450 books out," the library chairman asserted. "If you average the cost of each book at $10 and then include the cost of cataloging and processing, which averages $40 per book, we have $22,500 worth of books missing."

She continued to emphasize that the SWTJC library is very serious about reclaiming the missing books, pointing out that state law protects library property and that legal recourse will be used as a last resort.

"Students now possessing overdue books who are afraid to return them because of the fine or embarrassment involved now have a golden opportunity," Noguess said. "Over due books returned during the month of October will be accepted with no questions asked."

The SWTJC library even has an outside book return in front of the library building for after-hours, of clandestine, book returns.

Twelve honor students from six different area towns were initiated into Southwest Texas Junior College's award-winning chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national honorary scholastic fraternity, Tuesday evening, September 22.

The SWTJC chapter, Eta Beta, has won numerous state and national awards, including, most recently, a "National Award Winning Chapter," plaque for 1981.

The officers of the fraternity conducted the ceremony Tuesday night. President David Bogard and Vice-President Julie Ireton initiated the new members.

The new members and their hometowns include Debbie L. Kressin of Atascosa; Karen Davis and Danny Dean of Camp Wood; Rolando

Azannette Reyes, historian explained the history of Phi Theta Kappa nationally. The organization is a national junior college honor society organized to promote scholarship, develop leadership and cultivate fellowship in superior students since 1918.

According to Valerie Mayberry recording secretary, the Eta Beta Chapter at SWTJC has been in existence since the spring of 1948. One of the current SWTJC board members, Rodolfo R. Flores of Uvalde, was an early member of the honor society.

Frances Huffaker, membership secretary, explained the Phi Theta Kappa symbols and publications, and fraternity member Casey Tate listed the awards won by the chapter.

State awards received by the organization in the past eight years include "Most Outstanding Chapter" at the state convention in 1974, the office of state secretary in 1975, first place in the "Honors Topic Dramatic Skit" in 1978, 1979, and the "travel Award" at the state convention last year.

Bogard then returned to the podium and outlined the honors topic for the year, "The Short Story: Mirror of Humanity." The club plans to study short stories by O'Henry, who wrote about the Southwest Texas region.

Eddie Massey, reporter, listed the fraternity's activities for the 1981-82 academic year. They sponsored PTK Day the first week of school, which included welcoming new students and holding a welcome ance; will volunteer their services to the Dale Evans Child Care Center as a community service later in the semester; will sponsor OTK Founder's Day on November 19 in honor of SWTJC President Wayne Matthews are planning a picnic for members.

Other Phi Theta Kappa activities include sending the president and Vice-President to a leadership conference in Nacogdoches and sponsoring a drafting class on the SWTJC campus.

Faculty sponsors of the Eta Beta Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa are Barbara Atkinson, history instructor, and Jane Willingham English instructor.

KINNEY COUNTY LIBRARY

BY: Marie Bixby

Dear K.C.,

Wednesday night, Sept. 23, there was an open forum meeting where Mr. Quinton Etzel, attorney for Kinney County in the Library case, was present and available to the people of Kinney County to explain the trial process as it applied to our case and to bring us up to date on what has been--and is being done to forward this process.

We were told that the Performance Bond allegedly supplied by Allied Fidelity Ins. Co. was, "not a bond--it was a piece of paper that looked like a bond--that felt like a bond, but, in fact, was not a bond." and that the agent who supposedly sold the bond to the contractor told our attorney he had never reported it to the company (Allied) and it was something he did as a matter of convenience for his friend the contractor. (The architect is responsible for seeing that proper bonds are filed.)

Basically, we have ended up with two law suits. The first, a Federal case filed by Kinney County in which it will be determined whether the Bonding Co. will be held liable; thus determining who can be sued for damages in the District Court.

Mr. Etzel told us the depositions have been taken and the case is ready to go to trial; and that now it is up to the Federal Judge Shannon, our newly appointed judge, to get this on his docket "when convenient".

they fear that the identities of agents and the degree of cooperation between our nations may be made public.

Legislation to protect the identities of our covert agents may hardly seem necessary to the great majority of Americans who would never consider harming our country or placing the lives of its agents in danger, but consider this:

-----Former CIA agent Phillip Agee has written two books which revealed the names of over 1,000 alleged CIA agents. A magazine, Counter Spy, identified the CIA station chief in Athens, Greece. This man, Richard S. Welch, was subsequently murdered in front of his home.

-----Covert Action Information Bulletin, which succeeded Counter Spy, claims to have disclosed the names of over 2,000 CIA agents. The home of a U.S.Embassy official in Jamaica was attacked by submachine guns and explosives less than 48 hours after the publication's co-editor charged publicly that the official was a CIA agent, according to information provided to Congress.

-----In March of this year, several U.S.diplomats and their families were expelled fromMozambique following charges of espionage. These expulsions came shortly after visits to four African countries, including Mozambique by the editors of Covert Action Information Bulletin and senior Cuban intelligence officers.

At this time, there is no criminal statute to specifically prohibit the unauthorized release of the names of our intelligence officers. The bill which I supported in the House of Representatives does not apply to casual discussion, political debates or legitimate journalism, but it is aimed at deterring the disclosure of the identity of covert agents by persons who have authorized access to the information or by anyone else who engages in a pattern of activities intended to expose the agents.

Penalties range up to ten years in prison and a $50,000 fine, which should be high enough to make these people think twice before endangering more lives. If not, perhaps they can be locked away where they cannot do any more damage.

Our intelligence network is a very seirous business, and it must be treated with the same care as any other element of our defense system. The House bill was carefully drafted to safeguard the

When asked, Mr. Etzel told the people that he didn't think it would hurt to contact Judge Shannon and appeal to him concerning our anxiety on the prolonged delays of this case, but a letter from Mr. Green, attorney working with Mr. Etzel on this case, to Mr. Etzel was made available which states, "Thanks for your letter of SEPT. 24. I hope the committee will leave Judge Shannon alone. This case probably was transferred to Judge Garcia a long time ago. I'll do what I can to get it moving."

So stands our case at this time. Meantime, money is still coming in from the absentee landholders.

One lesson this nation has learned through experience in recent years is that we need accurate and high quality intelligence information if we are to maintain an effective de-ense policy.

The House of Representatives, through approval of the Intelligence Identities Protection Act, has taken a step which I hope will result in improving our worldwide intelligence system while providing an important degree of protection to our intelligence agents.

Our intelligence force constitutes an important weapon in the national defense system, and faulty or incomplete data can be just as dangerous as a weapon that misfires or an aircraft that won't fly. At the front line of this invaluable service is the individual agent, even in this era of high-technology information gathering devices.

Disclosure of the identities of our agents is reprehensible and dangerous, but the effects of exposure go far beyond danger to an individual. Our global defense and foreign policy network is damaged if friendly nations are reluctant to cooperate because rights of our citizens while recognizing the obvious need to protect our agents and our national welfare.

Former CIA Director William Colby recently pointed out that there are more than thirty statutes in our criminal code that punish government officers for revealing information they learn in the course of their work, including provisions which govern Agriculture Department employees and the dissemination of crop statistics.

Colby said that our national secrets and the intelligence officers who serve their country deserve the same protection. I think that most of us agree, and we are doing something about it.

VAL VERDE WILDLIFE FIELD DAY UPCOMING

DEL RIO—A Wildlife Field Day has been scheduled for area landowners Thursday, October 15 according to Val Verde County Extension agent Rex Stultz. It will be held at Rancho Rio Grande, 20 miles south of Del Rio off Highway 277 beginning at 9 a.m.

Stultz says that the purpose of the activity is to acquaint Southwest Texas landowners with wildlife management practices which can improve the quality of deer herds and better balance food supplies with wildlife population growth.

Bill Moody, owner of the 65,000 acre spread which follows the Rio Grande River for several miles, begins the program by outlining the ranch's colorful history. Ranch manager Russ White will then relate their deer management objectives and developments since initiating a full scale wildlife management program about two years ago.

Dr. Dwight Guynn, Texas Agricultural Extension Service wildlife specialist, Uvalde, will outline various wildlife management practices including deer census techniques and spotlight counts which help landowners better plan their harvests.

Dr. Larry White, Extension range specialist, also of Uvalde will discuss range management as related to wildlife nutrition and explain how fecal analysis can assist landowners in managing their ranges for plants that animals prefer.

Dolan Creek Ranch biologist John Finegan then describes techniques in managing hunters of trophy white-tail deer and hunting lease arrangements, after which a steak lunch will be served on the banks of scenic Pinto Creek.

After the lunch break, Mike Morris, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department District game warden will outline the game laws for Val Verde and surrounding counties.

Jim Simmonds, County Court-at-Law Judge, then discusses a problem common to many landowners especially during hunting season --how to make cases involving trespassing hunters stand up in court.

Stultz then closes out the program with a report on Extension activities in the county. Area ranchers are invited. Stultz says the field day should conclude by 3 p.m.

DOUBLE WEDDING

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Mr and Mrs. George Pena celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary along with son and daughter-in-law, Alfred and Josie Pena's 25th Anniversary on September 19, 1981.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I Hortencia Pena am not responsible for any debt or debts for the Elderly Nutrition Program for FY 1980-1981. It was not under my management. Let it be clear and known this 29th day of September 1981.

A cup of mushrooms is rich in niacin and iron, and makes a low calorie treat for the diet-conscious.
