CATTLE RAISERS ANNOUNCE CHANGES IN FIELD INSPECTORS

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association has appointed R. H. Butch Thompson, 35, formerly of Kingsville, Texas, to serve as field inspector for TSCRA District 29 in Southwest Texas, effective immediately, says Don C. King, TSCRA secretary-general manager in Fort Worth. He also announced the relocation of two other field inspectors to East Texas and the Houston area.

Inspector Thompson, who has served as a field security supervisor for King Ranch for five of the last 11 years, will work with cattlemen in Uvalde, Real, Edwards, Val Verde, Kinney, Zavala, Frio, Dimmit and Maverick counties. He will be headquartered in Uvalde and will supervise the brand inspection activities within his district.

Thompson, a Tyler, Texas native, was raised in New London, Texas, and completed high school at Kingsville. He attended Texas A & I University at Kingsville before serving three years with the Kingsville Police Department. He completed the rank of Sergeant before joining King Ranch, King said. In his capacity at King Ranch, Thompson worked in conjunction with TSCRA field inspectors on numerous occasions.

"I feel like we're extremely fortunate to have the opportunity to recruit a man of Thompson's livestock background and experience as a peace officer into the field inspector force. His many years of association with South Texas cattlemen and their type of operations make him uniquely qualified to provide good service to TSCRA members and cattlemen in the Uvalde district," King said.

TSCRA, a 107-year-old cattlemen's organization, employs 32 field inspectors, all certified peace officers carrying special Texas Ranger commissions, to assist cattlemen and conduct livestock theft investigations. In 1983, these inspectors, working with state and local law enforcement agencies, developed 150 theft cases, primarily dealing with cattle, and recovered or accounted for nearly 3,000 head of livestock and miscellaneous ranch property

LIBRARY NOTES

CHAROLETTE COREY.

We wish to thank the ladies of the "New World Study Club" for their purchase of a Sierra Typewriter for the library in the amount of $3 (The old one, even after much maintenance would not even return its carriage.) They have come through again even as they have ever been "The Founding Mothers" of our library.

We welcome Martin Lumbreras as our new Monpower Program worker. He will work during the summer months and be trained to handle the "front desk" procedures, filing and finding materials. Please be patient with him, as he has a lot to learn in a short period of time.

We are sorry to have to say "Good-bye" to Mr. Francis Larson who has served for many years on our Advisory Library Board of Trustees. He has been extremely instrumental in the physical, financial and administrative development of the library. We shall miss his wise but gentle hand. We shall look forward to seeing him in the library when he is able to be in town.

Anyone desiring to serve three years in the honorable position of Library Board Trustee, please contact Mrs. Corey at 563-2884. We meet once a month to discuss library policies and procedures and how the library may best serve the community.

DROUGHT CONDITIONS FOR RANCHERS

UVALDE - While a drought is both stressful and traumatic for livestock producers, it also gives ranchers an opportunity to evaluate and update their managerial practices.

"Once the drought has set in and cow numbers are considerably cut, a rancher can reappraise his entire ranch operation," says Dr. Tom R. Troxel, livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, headquartered at Uvalde. "The rancher can then ask himself, 'What can be done to improve the overall efficiency of the ranch and provide some flexibility to reduce the effect of the next dry period.'"

Many ranchers have already sold 25% to 75% of their herds since the dry weather started last fall. Ranchers have also indicated that they will want to see if it will rain in May and June before selling more of the herd.

Dr. Troxel reminds that lactating cows have high nutritional requirements, and if the nutrition is not present due to drought, both the cow and calf will suffer. One option is to wean and sell the calf early in an attempt to maintain the condition of the cow. He points out that many 200-pound calves are now going to market.

With the culling of cows, a rancher could very easily move from a year-round calving season to a spring and/or fall calving season. "A ranch could keep cows that calve at a certain time of year or when it rains again buy replacements that will calve at the same time of year," said Dr. Troxel.

Many times it is very difficult to control a breeding season due to the large size of some pastures. Once livestock have been removed from a large pasture, the rancher may want to consider cross fencing the large pasture into three or four smaller pastures. Therefore, a rotational grazing system could be initiated which may help during the next dry period.

"Eliminating non-breeding and late calving cows through pregnancy determination can increase profitability regardless of rainfall level," adds Dr. Troxel.

Lightweight calves are those generally born late in the season or are those born from poor milking cows. Pregnancy determination can also eliminate the late calves, and ranchers can then eliminate the cows with poor milk production.

Another management practice which should be included is a good herd health plan, Troxel recommends. This includes all necessary vaccinations, including calthood vaccination against brucellosis. Heifer calves should be vaccinated with a reduced Strain 19 vaccine between 4 - 12 months of age, with accredited state or federal veterinarians required to vaccinate the heifers.

The certified free herd program is another consideration for ranchers, particularly those who sell breeding stock. The number of certified free herds in Texas has increased from 675 in 1983 to 1307 or more so far this year. To be classified as certified brucellosis free, a herd (all cattle older than six months) must successfully pass two negative blood tests 10 to 14 months apart. In addition, the herds must be recertified annually, Troxel reminds.

"In the semi-arid Southwest, 6 out of 10 years are below normal rainfall," adds Dr. Troxel. "Cattlemen need to stock their ranches with those six years in mind." Generally, according to long standing statistics, only two "normal" years fall within the 10-year span, while two other years are usually high rainfall years resulting from hurricanes.

Flexibility is the key word during the extra high rainfall years, as well as times of drought. When high rainfall results in an over-abundance of grass, ranchers may want to consider keeping their own stockers or buying some to utilize the extra grass, the specialist adds.

Flexibility has become important as cow/calf operators face rising feed costs and dwindling income. A rancher must consider all possible alternatives for making the ranch as economically efficient as possible. "Although drought is extremely difficult to predict, it does provide an opportunity for ranchers to regroup their thoughts and consider changes in managerial practices," adds Dr. Troxel. "This regrouping of managerial practices will serve the rancher to their advantage when the next dry cycle occurs."

SAD NEWS FOR CHOCOLATE HOUNDS

Chocolate has been blamed for many things over the years from obesity to acne, from hyperactivity to infertility, and now pet death.

In a report from the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory (TVMDL) published in a recent Texas Veterinary Medical Journal, chocolate was reported to be the cause of death in a Springer Spaniel dog. The dog died in seizures one day after eating two pounds of chocolate chips.

The ingredient in chocolate toxic to dogs is theobromine, a caffeine-related stimulant. The stimulant is cleared from the blood at a much slower rate in dogs than in man.

Agitation and loss of bladder control can be symptoms of theobromine poisoning in dogs when seen after they have eaten a large amount of chocolate.

Also reported by TVMDL is the toxicity associated with ingestion of excessive amounts of raw or cooked onions in dogs.

Veterinarians caution pet owners to avoid feeding onions and chocolate treats to dogs, and to keep chocolate in a safe place as a dog's sweet tooth can be just as powerful as any "chocoholic's".

BRACKETTVILLE CITY NEWS

The City of Brackettville's old fire hydrants were assigned by drawings at the City Council Meeting last Monday. Seven hydrants have been replaced by the City crew with three more slated for removal at a later date.

Those selected in order were: Mrs. Allen Kreiger; Mr. Lloyd Davis; Mr. Tony Rose; Mr. Tim Ward; Mrs. Jewel Robinson; Mr. Darrell Paul Franks; and Mrs. Cordelia Mendeke.

The Utility Department would like to thank the residents for the outstanding cooperation and understanding displayed during the water shut-down last week. Not one complaint was received by the residents and only one from local business was received. The crew made up of Supervisor Frank Sanchez, David Martinez, Manuel Villareal and Juan Cardenas did a yeoman job working through the lunch hour to take out four hydrants and replace five valves. A special pat on the pat to our welder Mr. Enrique Lozano for his excellent work and cooperation.

The City of Brackettville's grant application to replace the ground storage tank has been submitted to the Texas Department of Community Affairs. We have now but to wait and see the outcome. On July 10, it will be presented to the Regional Review Committee and then the final review by the state. Preliminary reviews were all favorable.

At a called Special Meeting of the City Council, Thursday, June 14, it was decided that any further discussion of consolidation of Law Enforcement agencies was to be left to the Mayor and County Judge to conduct a joint county court/city council meeting.

The official rainfall for June has been but 1.02 inches. For the year to date 4.27.

PUBLIC UTILITY COMMISSION SETS LOCAL HEARINGS

The staff of the Public Utility Commission of Texas sets out next Monday on the first of seven local hearings across Texas to hear what residential and business telephone customers think about local measured service (LMS).

Monday's hearing will be in Houston. Other hearings are scheduled in San Antonio, Dallas, El Paso, Amarillo, Odessa, and Harlingen.

The local hearing for the Brackettville area will be in El Paso on Friday, July 6. The hearing will take place at the City Council Chambers, 2 Civic Center Plaza, 2 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Local measured service is proposed by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company as an alternative to standard flat rate local service. Monthly flat rate service allows an unlimited number of local calls for a set rate per month. The El Paso current flat rate is $9.10.

Local measured service, under the proposal, would have a monthly rate which is 75% of the current local flat rate service. No usage is included in the monthly rate. Each outgoing call would be billed by a method similar to long distance call billing and would be based on the 1) time of day; 2) number of minutes of the call; and 3) distance of the call. Discounts would apply to calls made during specified times in late evenings and on weekends and holidays. Distance of calls based on minutes of use would fall into one of three mileage categories from 0 to 31 or more miles. Initial minute charges and additional minute charges would be set for each of the mileage categories.

Bell also proposed converting their present measured rate, with a few changes, to a lifeline rate available only to individuals 65 years and over who have incomes at or below poverty levels. The lifeline rate would be $5.00 per month including 25 local calls. Each additional call would be eight cents. The time of day, distance of the call or number of minutes of the call would not be measured for lifeline service.

LMS and lifeline service would be available only in Bell areas served by the electronic central office equipment capable of measuring the elements of each service. The services could not be provided in areas served by older central office equipment.

PUC Hearings Examiner Sheila Bailey will conduct the hearings in each city. Consumers planning to present comments at the meetings do not need to register prior to the meeting. Sign up sheets will be available at the meeting location at the start of the hearing.

Representatives from PUC's General Counsel Division, Consumer Affairs Office and Public Information Office will be attending the local hearings also. In addition, Chairman Al Erwin will attend the San Antonio hearing. Commissioner Peggy Rosson will attend the El Paso hearing. Commissioner Phil Ricketts will attend the Amarillo hearing.

Examiner Bailey set the hearing on the merits of Bell's request for 9 a.m., September 24. Testimony and recommendations of participants in the case will be available mid-September before the hearing begins. Participants are Office of Public Council, U. S. Telephone, MCI, Consumers Union/Texas ACORN/LULAC, City of El Paso, Texas Municipal League and Texas Association of Cellular Communications.

Consumers unable to attend one of the local hearings may submit written comments to the PUC before September 24 at the address below:

When he tried to sell me a smaller air conditioning unit, I thought he was kidding.

I told him I wanted another four-ton air conditioner to replace the one that wore out. Then he started telling me how it might be too big for our house. And since we'd been using four tons for years, I was confused.

"But, then he explained that a central air conditioner that's too big for your home is just as bad, as one that's too small - maybe even worse. It won't control the humidity well enough to keep you comfortable. And it wastes energy - uses more electricity than you really need.

"I wound up with a unit a ton smaller than the old one. I wanted a high efficiency model to save energy, so I made sure I bought one with an EER/SEER of at least 8. The unit I finally settled on, in fact, is rated 8.7.

"And you know, it's doing a great job! We're more comfortable now than we ever were with the larger unit. And I really think our electric bills are lower now, too."

Whether you're buying air conditioning for a new house or replacing the system in your present home, you can save money by choosing a unit with the right cooling capacity for your needs.

Ask your dealer to size your new unit correctly. CPL will be happy to work with your dealer.

THE SHERIFF'S CORNER

by Norman H. Hooten, Sheriff

Several months ago I made you aware of a proposal by the U.S. Marshal's Service to Kinney County to build a County Jail Annex. It was to be used primarily for the detention of pre-trial, low risk, minimum security federal prisoners until they could be brought to trial in federal court. These prisoners were to be mainly illegal aliens and/or smugglers of illegal aliens.

This week's column will be to re-cap the progress of that original proposal and bring you up-to-date on the developments as they stand today.

After we received the original proposal, an in-depth study by the Kinney County Commissioner's Court was made into the many aspects of such an undertaking, by financial and cost & planning experts. After careful study and analysis, the decision was made that the cost and long term debt necessary for such a facility would not be in the best interest of the taxpayers of Kinney County.

Shortly thereafter, we received a proposal from Operational Support Services, a Houston based company in the business of building and operating private enterprise detention facilities. The proposal was to allow them to enter into negotiations with the U.S. Marshal's Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service in an attempt to secure contract commitments on numbers of prisoners to be detained in such a facility, should one be built. Representatives of Operational Support Services further offered substantial percentages of the gross income to be paid direct to the County through the Sheriff's Department should the proposal and commitments be accepted and the Detention Center be erected in Kinney County. The reason for this offer of percentages of gross is that, by law, the U.S. Marshal's Service cannot contract with private enterprise for the detention of their prisoners and all contract agreements must be handled through the Sheriff of a county where the prisoners are to be detained.

The construction, operation, and maintenance of the proposed facility would be at NO cost to Kinney County. The compensation received by Kinney County through the Sheriff's Department was estimated to range from $250,000.00 to $600,000.00 per year. The amount depends on the size of the facility and the number of prisoners detained within the facility.

Now, I am no financial wizard, but to me this seemed to be a good way for the county to become more financially stable and be able to ease the burden on the taxpayers of this county with NO cost to the county and NO risk on monies invested. Naturally there were some opponents to the proposal, and although I was surprised at the radical opposition demonstrated by some, I still respected their rights to express their feelings on this matter.

I have tried to present the facts to the people as we have progressed with the proposal. There has never been a final agreement made and the proposal was simply that - a proposal under serious consideration. No final action will be taken without input from the citizens and taxpayers of Kinney County.

For your information, as of this date, it appears that due to the reluctance on the part of the U.S. Marshal's service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service to agree to contract for specified minimum numbers of prisoners to be detained in the proposed Detention Center, the chances of any final proposal by Operational Support Services to build such a facility have just about been killed. I, for one, am disappointed because the income from prisoner care fees from a Detention Center in Kinney County would have been a tremendous boost to the economy in the forms of jobs for our people and a substantial cash flow direct to the Kinney County General Fund in addition to an increased tax base on the buildings and property.

At any rate, NO final decision has been made as of this date by neither Operational Support Services nor Kinney County. I just wanted to bring you up-to-date on the matter and will, as promised, keep you advised on any further developments.

High Hopes at Olympics for U.S. Cycling Team

Proto-type Aerodynamic bicycles may help put our championship cyclists on the road to Olympic success.

Medal hopes are high for the United States Cycling team at the 1984 Summer Olympics. The reason? An impressive stream of recent victories in events ranging from the Pan American Games in Venezuela to the Circuit des Ardennes in France. It's due, many experts say, to a combination of outstanding athletics and outstanding bicycle-building technology that's bringing the U.S. what may be our best bicycle team ever.

Just last year, a sophisticated new Bicycle Technical Development Center, the first of its kind in North America, was opened in Dayton, Ohio. The Center has designed, developed and handcrafted the racing bicycles being used by the United States Cycling team, using state-of-the-art technology. The star-products of the center, operated by Huffy Corporation and its subsidiary, Raleigh Cycle Company, are the prototype aerodynamic bicycles.

The Raleigh Racing Team concluded its 1983 season with two gold medals at the Pan-American Games, two gold medals at the World Championships, three gold medals at the National Sports Festival, nine 1983 National Championship titles and 17 District Championships. Team members raced in 29 states and 15 foreign countries during the season, and represented the company in over 400 cycling events.

Among the sensational cyclists who captured medals in recent months were Connie Carpenter, of Boulder, Colorado, who won the Women's 1983 Criterium Championship, breaking the world record en route to her championship ride in the 3000m pursuit and junior sensation Roy Knickman of Colorado Springs, who won five National titles in 1983.

The U.S. team members credit their new Huffy Corporation bikes with helping their increased success in competition. Says team member Thurlow Rogers, "The bikes are the fastest I've ever ridden." In the last three months the United States, which has not won an Olympic cycling medal since 1912, has recorded some of the world's fastest times of the year in the team pursuit, team time trial and individual pursuits, setting numerous American records and one world record.

DID YOU KNOW? *Quality in American Life

Propane Gas—it's been called America's most versatile fuel. Here are some facts you may not know about this important energy source for the 80s:

- Eighty percent of all propane gas is U.S. produced.

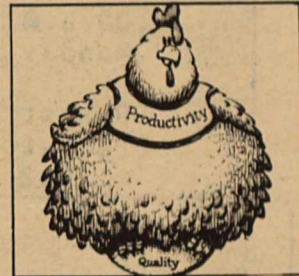

- This clean, efficient energy is used by over 66 million Americans in homes, industry, agriculture and recreation. The average home consumes over 1000 gallons per year.

- Propane gas is now used for heating, water heating, cooking and virtually hundreds of other uses from road building to automotive fuel, experts say.

- Used in today's high efficiency gas appliances, propane can deliver energy savings of 20% or more for heating, cooking and water heating.

Here are some surprising facts that may boost your knowledge of productivity... and its relationship to quality.

- Productivity is a measure of how efficiently we can produce goods and services. Experts report that there is a direct and absolute relationship between productivity and quality.

- If you take a production run of 12 to get 10 good units, productivity is lessened.

- Some studies have indicated that the direct costs associated with poor quality—including scrap, rework, field repairs and customer returns—can equal as much as 15 percent of sales.

- Some American companies are now emphasizing quality. At Reynolds Metals Company, for example, there is a new corporate dedication to quality from top to bottom. There, quality is everybody's job, from the executive offices to the shop floors.

- A company that pays close attention to quality gains market share, increased volume, productivity improvements and cost effective operations. Experts find that a company that encourages these virtues will be a profitable company that stands out in the marketplace.

BEWARE OF "MINOR" EYE TROUBLES

Do any of these symptoms sound familiar: trouble adjusting your eyes to darkened rooms? Rainbow-colored rings around lights? Problems seeing things to the side of you? Don't ignore them. These, and other subtle vision difficulties could be signs of a serious eye problem.

Here are a few of the major threats to sight in adults and what can now be done to insure that as you get older, your sight will last as long as you do:

Glaucoma: The nation's leading cause of blindness, this eye disease can generally be controlled with medications and sight can be saved. Regular eye exams and early detection are essential to guard against this often symptomless eye disease. It can be detected by a quick, simple test called tonometry.

Diabetic retinopathy: This eye disorder is now the fastest growing cause of new blindness in adults under 75. However, it's yielding to treatment by lasers. Every diabetic is at risk for this condition and should schedule annual examinations by a medical eye specialist, whether or not vision symptoms have appeared.

Cataracts: Although three out of four elderly Americans have cataracts, it is usually curable. Cataracts can be removed by safe and simple surgery. The cataract-clouded lens can now be replaced by permanent lens implants within the eye, or extended-wear contact lenses which can be worn continuously around the clock for weeks or months at a time.

Free Booklet

For a free booklet about saving your sight as you grow older, send a SASE to the National Society to Prevent Blindness. Also available is a do-it-yourself Home Eye Test for Adults that will enable you to determine if you're seeing as well as you should. It comes in an easy-to-follow, illustrated kit. It may be ordered for a fee of one dollar to cover postage and handling by writing your state Society to Prevent Blindness or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016.
