SPRING REGISTRATION

PREPARATIONS & ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPRING 1985 STUDENTS

Individuals planning to attend Southwest Texas Junior College in the spring of 1985 should begin satisfying pre-registration requirements early and follow guidelines established by the college to simplify the registration process, according to dean of admissions John Allen Davis.

The registration process can flow smoothly and be a simple procedure if students make adequate preparations, he said.

Registration activities at SWTJC will begin with a counseling assessment session for new freshman day students on Friday, January 4. The students will be tested on English and math skills for counseling purposes.

This session is for new day students who have not taken the ACT test, Davis explained. We need to assess their skills in English and Math so that they can be placed in appropriate courses to begin their college career successfully.

The new freshmen will eventually be required to take the ACT test, however, and can register for the February 9 ACT testing date on Friday.

Registration at SWTJC begins on Monday, January 7, when Del Rio students will sign up for courses at the SWTJC center at 207 Wildcat Dr. from 10 a.m. till 7 p.m. Eagle Pass registration will be held at the SWTJC center in that city at 1980 Second St. on Tuesday, January 8, from 3 till 7 p.m.

New students in Del Rio and Eagle Pass will be tested at a later time and will not have to travel to Uvalde for the Assessment.

Day students on the Uvalde campus register on Wed. and Thur., January 9 & 10, with Uvalde evening students signing up for courses Wednesday evening at 6 p.m. in the Matthews Student Center.

Other off campus registrations are scheduled at Carrizo Springs High School on Thursday at 6 p.m.

According to SWTJC library director Billie Noguess, who is responsible for issuing identification cards, students who currently possess an ID card should bring it to registration to avoid the complicated process of having a new one issued.

ID cards must be revalidated each semester so that they can be used for access to college facilities, Noguess said. The process is much simpler and quicker if the students bring their old cards to registration.

Other admission requirements for new students include completing an application for admission; providing a high school transcript, G.E.D. scores or a college transcript; and having a physician fill out the SWTJC health form.

Evening students, however, need only provide the admission application and transcript.

Students who need housing should contact dean of student Ismael Sosa; for financial aid, contact director of financial aid Ismael Talavera.

Information on registration and courses offered is available at 775-1612 in Del Rio; 773-9238 in Eagle Pass. Uvalde and other off campus students should call the office of Admissions in Uvalde at 278-4401, Ext. 275.

UVALDE ARTS COUNCIL

UVALDE, Dec. --- The Texas A&M Singing Cadets will appear in concert on stage at the Grand Opera House in downtown Uvalde on Monday evening, Jan. 7, at 8 p.m. Sponsors are the Uvalde Arts Council and the Uvalde A&M Club.

The 60-plus members of the all male glee club have performed in Hawaii and Mexico as participants in International Music Festivals. They travel to cities all over Texas. Their repertoire includes popular music, classics, spirituals, patriotic selections, novelty numbers, and school songs.

Among their latest tapes and albums are "In Romania," "Ease on Down the Road," and "Revival." Tickets at $5.50 each may be reserved by calling the Opera House Box Office, 1-278-4082, or by writing P.O. Box 1451, Uvalde 78802.

THANK YOU

Your kind expression of sympathy is deeply appreciated and gratefully acknowledged by the family of Gloria Rodriguez Terrazas beloved Wife and Mother of: Jesse, Jesse Jr. & Melissa Terrazas.

SENIOR CITIZEN NEWS

I'm glad to report that the Senior Citizen's Christmas party on Dec. 21st was a huge success. A tamale dinner was served at 7:00 p.m. followed by the enjoyable music of "The Pecos River Band", playing as a courtesy for the party. Approximately 88 people attended including guests and some people from Maverick County.

The double wedding ring hand made quilt was won by Mario Abrigo Jr. a little boy from Del Rio, Tx. I want to thank all you people who made contributions for the party and also those who purchased chances for the raffle. Without your support our party and Christmas Dinner would not have been a success.

Thank You All,

MATTOX SEEKS INFORMATION FROM AT&T, SWB

AUSTIN -- Attorney General Jim Mattox has announced that his office is investigation whether AT&T and Southwestern Bell have misled consumers regarding the sale of design line telephones.

Mattox said his office has received a number of complaints from consumers who say they paid between $50 and $150 for telephones from Bell Phone Center stores during the late 1970s to early 1980s.

The consumers have told Mattox that they thought they were buying the entire phones at the time but later noticed that their bills reflected charges for "equipment lease." After contacting the phone companies, the consumers say they were told that they had just purchased the plastic shells around the phones and that they would continue to be billed for leasing the "guts" of the phones unless they purchased them, Mattox said.

Mattox launched the investigation by sending civil investigative demand letters to AT&T and Southwestern Bell seeking information on such sales. The letters were mailed December 13.

The consumer complaints we've received have been very consistent, Mattox said. All of the consumers stress that they thought they were buying telephones, not just the plastic, and that they were not told by phone company store employees that the guts of the phone still belonged to the companies, Mattox said.

He said one Austin consumer complained that she was told by AT&T that she had been paying a "hidden charge" since 1980 on two phones she purchased for $70 and $80 respectively.

Mattox said consumers who have similar complaints should contact his Consumer Protection Division in Austin or the six regional offices. Consumers will be sent complaint forms to fill out and return to Mattox's office.

Mattox said similar investigations are going on in other states. For example, he said, the South Dakota Public Utilities Commission had a study done, in which 100 percent of consumers said they did not know they were purchasing only the outside coverings on their design line phones. In the same study, he said, all the 221 consumers surveyed said the phone company sales representatives did not inform they they were just buying the plastic shells.

Mattox sent the civil demand letters under his authority through the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices/Consumer Protection Act. Both AT&T and SWB have until January 3 to produce the requested materials, which include all related customer bills, promotional materials and ads and related corporate documents.

Assistant Attorney General W. Scott McCollough and members of Mattox's Consumer Protection Division are handling the investigation for Mattox.

Dear Editor:

I am trying to locate a John Wickham who was a prisoner of war in W.W. II. He was in the Marine Corps and captured on the island of Guam. A group of us are in the process of trying to locate those POW's for a reunion. I would appreciate your publishing this letter as we are very much interested in John. So far, we have located about 45 members and are planning a grand reunion in Clay Center, Kansas in May of next year. We would appreciate any information on John.

HEIFERS MUST BE VACCINATED

UVALDE, Texas --- December is a very important month for ranchers wanting to sell heifers for breeding stock. According to Dr. Tom Troxel, Extension livestock specialist with the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center located here, recent changes in the brucellosis legislation may make it necessary for producers to re-examine heifer marketing strategies.

In order for heifers born after January 1, 1984 to be sold for breeding stock within the class "C" area, they must be vaccinated, "Dr. Troxel said.

Heifers must be between the ages of 4-12 months to be eligible for vaccination, he said.

Therefore, if you have breeding heifers that were born in January of 1984, they should be vaccinated this month, Troxel said.

If heifers were born during January of 1984 and have not been vaccinated, they can only be sold for slaughter, quarantined feedlot or quarantined pasture, the livestock specialist said. These heifers will also be "S" branded prior to sale, Troxel said.

In addition, any heifers born after January 1, 1983, that are sold across the "B-C" line, must be vaccinated, he explained.

During the drought of 1984, many cattle producers sold a large percent of their breeding stock. Therefore, these ranchers may be looking to restock during 1985, Troxel said.

Its anybody's guess how much breeding heifers and cows will bring next spring, he said.

Due to the new law, nonvaccinated heifer will not bring nearly the price of a vaccinated heifer. Do yourself a favor, vaccinate your heifers and be ready for the spring markets, Troxel urged.

A MARVELOUS ADVENTURE

by Martha Brinkmann

"It has been a marvelous adventure," said Fr. James Cashin in his rich Irish accent as the laugh lines crinkle around his eyes.

"It's a wonderful life, I don't know why more people don't try it," he added.

I asked, "Do you mean the priesthood or the life of a missionary?"

He thought for a second, then responded, "Both!"

Fr. James Cashin -- native of Cork, Ireland; priest of the San Antonio Archdiocese; missionary to South America; pastor of St. Mary Magdalen Parish in Brackettville, Texas -- is a man who seems to really be living his life as if it were a marvelous adventure.

As a seminarian, James Cashin learned the usual statistics on the shortage of missionaries to carry the gospel message to the millions of unchurched people in the world.

Maybe that influenced his decision to become a priest in Texas. His first assignment, after being ordained for the San Antonio Archdiocese, was in New Braunfels where he worked for four years before being transferred to Holy Spirit Parish where he worked for three years.

Somewhere along the way, he received a letter from the St. James Society inviting him to give some time as a missionary to South America. He put the letter away to think it over. Finally, he walked into Archbishop Furey's office and asked permission to go to South America. The archbishop asked him a few questions. Then he nodded his approval and soon Fr. Cashin was on his way to the St. James headquarters in Boston for an interview and testing.

Before leaving for the missions, Fr. Cashin returned to Ireland for a visit with his family. When he told his parents his decision, his father touched him on the shoulder and said, "I understand perfectly what you are doing."

The Cashin family must be rather special because out of a family of five boys and one girl, three of the boys became priests. The oldest son was also a priest for the San Antonio Archdiocese. He served in St. Luke's Parish and in Pleasanton. He was killed in an automobile accident in 1963.

After several months of study at a language school in Peru, Fr. Cashin was assigned to his first mission in Chimbote, Peru. This city had been a boom town when anchovies were discovered in the bay. But an earthquake in 1970 and the disappearance of the anchovies threw the town in a deep economic depression which was what Fr. Cashin found on his arrival there on March 17, 1973.

After five years, he was transferred to El Triunfo, Ecuador where he was pastor. This parish, located in the midst of banana plantations, was comprised of twelve to fourteen thousand people spread out in 50 to 60 villages which stretched into the Andes Mountains. Sometimes he would visit his parishioners on horseback or by burro but usually the trips were made in the mission jeep. "It was a real hassel avoiding potholes," he joked.

He remembers the malnutrition, the dirt, the illnesses and the poverty. But mostly he remembers "the kids were fantastic -- there were kids everywhere -- a multitude of kids. And they had great empathy with the gringo priest."

On a more serious note, Fr. Cashin said, "A great deal of credit for the rapport the priests enjoy with the people has to go to the priests who have gone before. The people place incredible confidence in us and make tremendous allowances -- the way we speak their language for instance."

Fr. Cashin was transferred to El Empalme after five years. But now something was different. The missionaries had a new tool to work with. They had discovered a family catechesis program from Chile.

"Before, I felt as if we had no clear cut goals. We would say Mass, give the sacraments and teach the children," he said.

But they never felt they were really reaching the people.

"The Chile Catechesis Program provided for the parents to prepare their children for First Communion. After all it is the parents who make the commitment to raise their children Catholic at baptism.

"We would get groups of families together. There were 30 to 40 groups with about 25 people in a group. They met once a week for a year. Soon they got to know each other, to know the gospel, and then they made a conversion to the faith," he explained.

"As the groups developed they would select a guide -- an individual or a couple. We would work with the guide who developed leadership qualities. This was so much better than when nothing happened unless the priest was there promoting church.

"We would give them something real to see -- something that was going on in the village. Then we would introduce the theme for the evening and show them how to communicate this message to the little ones. And this would lead them to the Bible.

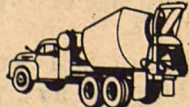

"We were careful that the parents had the responsibility for teaching the children. We avoided teacher dominated classes. We were doing something to give the people a sense of pride," he continued.

"The older kids were also involved. They would prepare a special celebration for the little ones during the Liturgy.

"The groups met every week for discussion and prayer. I have seen groups -- if they liked the theme for the evening -- spend three or four hours in discussion. There they would be — women with their babies on their backs and guys with barefeet — sitting there talking enthusiastically about the gospel message!" he marveled.

The St. James Society limits its terms in the missions to four or five years. After two extensions, Fr. Cashin was denied a third and he returned to Texas last July.

"In a way it was with a sense of relief to come back and rest, to reflect and to do something different," he said. "But, I am longing to go back."

He is pleased to be in Brackettville, however, and likes the people who have given him a warm welcome.

But his travels are not over. In February he will attend a four-month course at the American College in Rome.

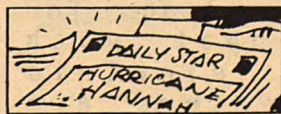

Fr. Cashin said he went as a witness to the people of South America.

THE SHERIFF'S CORNER

By Norman H. Hooten, Sheriff

The Investigation into the tragic plane crash that claimed the lives of William R. "Bill" Miers, 52, his wife Kathleen T. "Kathy" Miers, 32, and his mother Edith Miers, 77, late Christmas Day is complete. It is not known when the findings of the investigation by the F.A.A. and the N.B.T.C. will be made public, but enough information is known at this time to indicate that a combination of factors including low visibility caused by bad weather, darkness, and pilot error were joined together to cause the fatal crash.

Bill Miers was an excellent pilot with many years experience and the plane and equipment on board were in top shape, but air transportation is extremely unforgiving of mistakes made as in this case. The only redeeming fact of the tragic crash is the survival of the two children who were passengers in the rear seat. Sarah Bunjes, 11, and her brother Aaron, 7, not only survived the crash but walked away with minor injuries. An influence far stronger than a well constructed airplane was at work on their behalf in this incident. Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the families, friends, and other relatives of the victims.

The body of the Anglo male which was discovered on December 21st by the railroad tracks on Highway 1572 1 mile south of the intersection of Highway 90 East of Brackettville has been identified as that of George E. Holland, 55, whose last address was given as Los Angeles, Ca. Information received from the Texas Crime Information Center in Austin indicates that Holland had an extensive criminal record with 24 arrests in Texas alone. The majority of those arrests were for felony crimes that ranged from theft, robbery, burglary, auto theft, and weapons offenses to escape. There were, however, no outstanding warrants for him at the time of his death.

During the investigation to determine his identity it was learned that he was a drifter who habitually traveled around the country hopping rides on freight trains. He stayed at the Salvation Army in San Antonio in the latter part of November and had told workers there that he had been sleeping in freight cars and was enroute to Los Angeles hopping freight trains for transportation. An address he gave the workers at the Salvation Army for his mother, who he claimed as his next of kin, has been proven to be fictitious and non-existent. We are now contacting the various law enforcement agencies throughout the state which handled him over the years in an attempt to obtain the name and current address of a relative. Every effort will be made to contact family members, but at this point indications are that it will be a difficult task.

AS the New Year of 1985 begins, those of us with the Kinney County Sheriff's Department sincerely hope that the new year will bring peace, happiness, and prosperity to all of you. Our New Year's Resolution is to furnish our citizens with faster, better, service and law enforcement protection. Hopefully the need will not arise, but should the time come that any of you need the services of me or the Sheriff's Dept. do not hesitate to call at any time, day or night. We are here to serve YOU, the people of Kinney County.

WIN THE ENERGY BUDGET BATTLE

Texans who take seriously the battle of the budget know that efficient management of heating systems is a wise strategy. Winter heating accounts for a large share of annual energy costs second only to summer cooling. For Texans who heat with electricity, electric resistance heaters are typically used, but high efficiency heat pumps are growing in popularity.

The best efficiency strategy is to assure that you don't pay for anymore heat than you need to be comfortable. Maintain a thermostat setting of 68°F or lower when the house is occupied. At night or when the house is unoccupied, a setting of 55 to 60°F is adequate. Dress for cool weather wearing layered clothing of natural fibers. Be sure to keep your head and feet warm.

The location of your thermostat can make a difference. Keep heat producing items, such as lamps, at least three feet from the thermostat. These can delay thermostat activation, keeping the house uncomfortably cool. Conversely, protect the thermostat from drafts that would activate the system and cause it to run too frequently.

You also should insure that heat you pay for is not wasted. Adequate insulation levels and caulking and weather stripping to minimize air infiltration will help you control the energy dollar drain. Check the registers that deliver heated air to each room. If they are blocked or covered, you are not getting the heat you are paying for.

If your electric resistance heater is ready for replacement, or if you are building a new home in an area where electricity is the most economical choice, you will want to consider a high efficiency heat pump. Anyone who has a refrigerator is familiar with a heat pump, even if he or she hasn't heard the term. Its operation is based on the fact that all air (even cold air) contains some heat. A heat pump uses a compressor/refrigerant loop to absorb heat from the outside air and to raise its temperature. It discharges that heat inside the house. The heated air is circulated by the same duct system as heat from electric resistance systems. This concept of heating is about 2 1/2 times more efficient than electric resistance heating.

The heat pump also provides summer cooling by reversing the flow of the freon and removing unwanted heat from the inside air, thereby cooling it. The efficiency of a modern heat pump's cooling action is about the same as that of a regular electric central air conditioning unit. The initial cost is about 10 to 25 percent more than the combined cost of most separate central heating and cooling systems. However, these higher costs are justified by the monthly dollar savings in the heating season.

For more information that will help you hold the line against the energy dollar drain, call the toll free ENERGY HOTLINE 1-800-643-SAVE. Ask for Texas Energy topics factsheet no. 2.

DIET AND ARTHRITIS

Claims that special diets or vitamin supplements can prevent or cure arthritis are not true, reports the South Central Texas Chapter, Alamo Branch of the Arthritis Foundation. Hundreds of carefully prepared research studies have failed to find a link between diet and the cause or cure of any form of arthritis except gout.

Yet people with arthritis continue to spend millions of dollars annually on special diets, health foods and vitamins, seeking relief from their pain and disability.

Many people believe that some special diet can cure arthritis, said Marsha Rosenfeld of the Foundations Alamo Branch. Nutrition has an important effect on health, but no vitamin or diet has yet been proven to control arthritis.

Among the arthritis "treatments" currently proposed in diet books and articles are cod liver oil, poke berries and black strap molasses --- none of which have been shown effective, according to the Arthritis Foundation. There are potential dangers with some of these diets because they exclude essential nutrients.

The main problem with these diets is that people believe they are treating their arthritis, said Ms. Rosenfeld. Thus, they abandon or delay getting proper medical care that has proven to be effective. Arthritis can only be controlled through a treatment program prescribed by a physician --- not by a diet book or a well meaning friend.

Only one common form of arthritis, gout, can actually be helped by a special diet. Gout is caused by excess uric acid, which forms needle like crystals in the area of joints. Eliminating foods which stimulate uric acid production can help relieve the pain of gout. Your doctor can prescribe the diet that is proper for you.

Obesity can aggravate the pain of almost any kind of arthritis, and people who are overweight have a strong tendency to develop osteoarthritis. Maintaining your normal weight is important if you have arthritis.

For most people with arthritis, the best diet is a sound, well balanced one. To be sure you are getting all the nutrients you need, include portions from each of the four food groups in your meals every day. These include meat, vegetables and fruit, milk products, and breads and cereals. Of course, people with allergies to certain foods should avoid those foods.

If you would like more information about diet and arthritis, contact the South Central Texas Chapter, Alamo Branch of the Arthritis Foundation. Call 224-4857 or write Arthritis Foundation, So. Central Texas Chapter, 503 So. Main #102, San Antonio, TX 78204 and request a copy of the brochure, "Diet and Nutrition: Facts to Consider."

Doctors Explore Link Between Cancer and Virus

Dr. Leonard J. Rosenthal, a researcher who may have found a link between cancer and a virus.

The doctors at the National Foundation for Cancer Research are looking into a possible link between cancer and a virus known as HCMV: human cytomegalovirus. This herpes virus is the number one viral cause of birth defects in the United States. It is also a serious infection which affects people with acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) and can cause a mild mononucleosis-like illness and pneumonia. It is also associated with several types of cancer, including prostatic carcinoma, cervical carcinoma and Kaposi's sarcoma.

The Foundation, a worldwide organization of scientists dedicated to basic cancer research, is in a unique position to study the virus. In 1983, a team of doctors there, headed by Dr. Leonard J. Rosenthal, Associate Professor of Microbiology and Pediatrics at Georgetown Medical Center in Washington, reported the identification of a DNA fragment of the virus which can change cells. DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) is the molecular basis of heredity and usually found in cell nuclei. Now, Dr. Rosenthal and his collaborators are trying to demonstrate the presence of this fragment with several cancers.

"If we can dissect the smallest possible region of HCMV DNA which causes cells to become transformed, we can use that small piece of DNA as a probe to look then at a tumor cell DNA and determine its presence," says Dr. Rosenthal. "If it is present, is it expressed? Is that a regulatory protein which allows tumor cells to lose their growth control?"

Dr. Rosenthal also stated, "Our research will require an extensive team effort and we hope in the years to come to make significant contributions in defining the association of HCMV in human cancer."

Their success could mean new hope for millions.

The European discoverer of the Pacific Ocean, Balboa, called it the "Southern Sea."
