COMMISSION PURCHASES LOCAL RANCH

AUSTIN - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in November 1986 approved the purchase of the 6,400-acre Seargeant Ranch in Kinney and Edwards Counties, an area known for its caves and other geographic features. The Parks and Wildlife Department officially purchased the property from its longtime owners Tommy and Jean Seargeant on Dec. 19.

Officials said as a result of the generosity of the owners, the property was acquired at significantly less than market value.

There are 10 known caves on the property, the two largest being Kickapoo and Green caves. Kickapoo Cave is considered one of the outstanding caverns in Texas, and 1,700-foot-long Green Cave features a large bat colony.

Another outstanding feature of the site is a large stand of pinyon pine, remainders of a once more widespread pinyon pine/juniper woodland.

The size and diversity of the site provide habitat for a variety of wildlife, including white-tailed deer, turkey, white-winged doves, Mearns' quail, golden-cheeked warblers and black-capped vireos.

The park is closed until improvements can be provided for public use.

Draw a circle around each letter of a word found in the puzzle, then strike it off the list. Circling it will show a letter has been used but will leave it visible should it also form part of another word. Find the big words first. When letters of all listed words are circled, you'll have the given number of letters left over. They'll spell out your answer.

GARDENING IN WINTER

During the winter, gardening activity is limited, but gardening instruments need not remain at a stand still. Winter is a fine time to increase your knowledge of gardening in general or new plants. Whether you are planting a new garden or relandscaping an old one, winter provides an opportunity for careful planning. Try drawing a map of your house and grounds, blocking in each flower bed, rose bushes, shrubs, and other planting areas. When drawing the plan, keep in mind how the garden is to be maintained. Generally, shrubs and trees require the least maintenance, while annual plants require the most. Proper landscaping can help the looks of any garden, for plants can help hide an unattractive spot or add beauty in many places.

Study the many catalogues for seeds, roses, perennials, shrubs and other plants you wish to use. Visit your nursery for plants, and if you have a gardening problem, visit your County Agent. To help you in gardening, join a Garden Club, or help organize one. Membership in a garden club offers excellent opportunities to learn about gardening, meet others with similar interests, participate in a variety of projects to help the environment of your Community.

CHAPTER V

HOME-DELIVERED MEAL SERVICE

I. THE EVOLVING IN-HOME MEAL SERVICE

Home-delivered meal service is an integral part of a larger in-home service system. Participants receiving home-delivered meals are homebound and are generally very different from those served by congregate providers. This chapter discusses the wide range of functions necessary to run an effective and efficient home-delivered meal service, including developing policy, distributing funds, staffing, coordination with other services, determining eligibility and assessing need, selecting and managing the food service system, delivering meals, collecting contributions, providing emergency meals, and managing service information.

Recently, the Office of the Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services did a national service delivery assessment of the home-delivered meals program. It found the following to be true of current program:

The home meals program is expanding, and as it does, the ad hoc, informal, highly personalized approaches that worked well for a small scale effort, are becoming increasingly inadequate. Subtly and gradually, a more bureaucratic operation is emerging. Providers are getting larger, paid staff are often replacing volunteers, reporting requirements are increasing, and more standardized procedures and routines are being developed.

Another development, which has had little effect to date but may turn out to be even more consequential, is the growing public interest in in-home services as an alternative to nursing home care. As this interest intensifies, the home meals program is being viewed increasingly in the context of in-home services. In the process, its ties to the congregate nutrition program, which is geared to the active elderly, are starting to become strained. In conducting outreach, carrying out client assessments and re-assessments, and developing plans of care, home delivered meals efforts, some observers say, should be closely integrated with other services directed to the frail, homebound elderly. The organizational implications of this integration have not even begun to be addressed in most communities.

1 Home Delivered Meals Program: A Service Delivery Assessment, Preliminary National Report, Washington, D.C., Office of the Inspector General, USDHHS, 1981, p.i.

Recommendations which came out of the study include the following:

- * "Focus home meals more specifically on the most vulnerable elderly (including those who are frail due to a temporary condition or illness).

- * Conceptualize the home meals program as an important component of comprehensive in-home care.

- * Recognize the program changes implied by such a new perspective, including improved assessment, coordinated linkages to other in-home services, and refined meal preparation and delivery systems."

These recommendations point to the need for improved design and management of in-home nutrition services. This is a joint responsibility of the in-home meal service providers, the area agency, and other in-home service organizations in the community.

II. PARTICIPANT CHARACTERISTICS AND RESPONSES

Common Characteristics of homebound older people are: isolated, handicapped, and psychologically troubled. It is important to recognize the effect of these characteristics on home-delivered meal recipients.

Isolated older people often feel that they are no longer members of a family or community; they suffer from lack of stimulation provided by others. In rural areas homebound people are isolated by geographical distance while the urban homebound, experience isolation because they are not physically able to keep up with the hustle and bustle of life around them. Isolation can lead to feelings of worthlessness. It can also lead to neglect of self-care, loss of appetite, boredom, and depression. The regular visit of the deliverer of meals helps recipients overcome isolation.

Illness and disability result in many worries, including the possibility of not getting better, suffering a relapse, being displaced from home, not being able to pay expenses, and becoming dependent. When a disability interferes with normal activities or is disfiguring, the worry may be heightened.

Chronic illness is especially frustrating because there is no prospect of recovery; conditions worsen (some more quickly than others), and pain and discomfort often cannot be alleviated. These people may become irritable and impatient or depressed. It is helpful to listen to their concerns, and an optimistic outlook can be encouraged by suggesting activities suitable to the strengths that remain.

2 Ibid., p.i.

Psychological responses to slowing down, not being able to cope with tension, tiring faster than before, and trouble with vision, hearing, eating and sleeping make people feel and look old. The homebound may also become despondent over societal changes, loss of family and community roles, and losses caused by death of friends and loved ones. They may resent growing old and rebel against old age. A loss of personal dignity may result from mental confusion, loss of memory, personal untidiness, a return to childishness, and dependency.

3 National Homecaring Council, Homemaker-Home Health Aides Training Manual (New York, National Homecaring Council, 1967), pp.113-114.

Individuals have different needs: some may be semi-homebound and can get out occasionally when there is assistance available; some will be permanently homebound due to severe impairment; others may be temporarily homebound recovering from surgery or an injury.

BY DORTHY PAYNE

Art may be defined as a product of imagination, taste and skill; an expression of the people and the times.

In some forms art antedates history. For example the rock portraits of the Australians aborigine, the drawings of the Bushmen, or the bone carvings of the Eskimos.

The prehistoric cavemen drew pictures of the animals they hunted for food. The most celebrated of these are the cave paintings found at Altamira, Spain.

The earlier works of art were prompted by religious impulses, and were used for rituals purposes. Not only are the art forms ancient but are universal as well. Greece, Rome, Egypt, Mesopotamia, India, China, and Japan have progressed from rude beginnings to some advanced form of art expressions.

The Spanish found a highly developed form of art in Mexico and Peru. But perhaps the oldest surviving example of art is credited to that of the Indus River Valley in India about 5000 B.C. and like early art everywhere was connected with religion.

Christian art make its first appearance about the 4th century on the walls of the catacombs of Rome. The first subjects were drawings of the shepperd, sheep, the disciples of the Lord and the early saints.

In the American colonies the earliest expression of art was in the form of handicrafts, such as furniture, woodwork, metal work and glassware.

The earliest native paintings were made in America by self-taught artist or sign painters. In spite of their crudeness, the paintings had a certain charm.

British influence dominated the styles of the Colonial painters until the first of the 19th century. After the War of Independence, a French influence was noticed.

The Civil War brought a certain degree of realism to painting, and after World War II, abstract expressionism (which is expression of basic emotions without the use of recognizable objects), became regarded internationally as an

MOM'S KITCHENMEANEST MOM

I had the meanest mom in the world. While other children ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs and toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you can guess, my supper was different from other children's, also.

My mother insisted upon knowing where I was all the time--you'd think I was on a chain gang. She had to know who my friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if I said I'd be gone an hour that I be gone an hour or less--not one hour and a minute. I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck me. Not once, but each time I did as I pleased. Can you imagine someone actually imagine someone actually hitting a child just because she disobeyed? Now you begin to see how mean she really was. While the other girls were wearing mini skirts and outrageous hairdos and smoking cigarettes, I had to wear dresses and jeans and to be a little grandma and be called old fashioned. Mother would not even let me go to the drive-in-movies. How could she be so mean?

My mother actually broke the Child Labor Law. She made me work. I had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night just thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us and it nearly did. She embarrassed me by making my dates come to the door to get me. None of this "tooting the horn" by the boys for me to come running.

My mother was a complete failure. Because she was so mean, none of us have ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by a mate. Each of my brothers served his time in service to his country. And whom do we have to blame for the terrible way we turned out? You're right--Our mean mother.

Look what all we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, attend a rock concert, take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and many other things that the other children did. She forbade us to grow into God-fearing, educated honest adults.

Using this as a pattern, I am trying to rear my children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me "MEAN."

Author Unknown

Had I a brother or sister this could have been written by me. The times have changed, the children haven't. This letter hangs in "Mom's Kitchen" as a constant reminder to be the meanest mom in the world.

MOM'S KITCHEN is not just a column in a small town newspaper. It exists in one form or another in every home in America. Mom's kitchen is that place in every home where everyone gathers, where old friends share a cup of coffee, a small child's skinned knee is "fixed" or a little girl's doll is repaired. It's where grandma taught mom to bake cookies, dad had "that talk" with brother, and family meetings are held.

Please let us hear from your kitchen. Do you have a special recipe or helpful hint? Maybe a comment on child care or even a gardening tip. How about a word from dad on home repair, car care, one of his favorite recipes or kitchen tips.

DENVER - The Denver Broncos advanced to the AFC championship game by beating the New England Patriots last Sunday 22-17. Bronco QB John Elway fired a 48 yard TD pass to wide receiver Vance Johnson on the last play of the third quarter to put Denver ahead to stay at 20-17. The only score in the fourth quarter was a safety with less than 2 minutes remaining in the game when defensive end Rulon Jones sacked Patriots QB Tony Eason in the end zone.

The Broncos now travel to Cleveland to take on the Browns next Sunday to decide who will represent the AFC in the Super Bowl. Game time for Sunday's tilt will be 11:30 CST.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - The New York Giants dominated the San Francisco 49ers last Sunday to such an extent that it prompted reporters to ask Giants Coach Bill Parcells if he thought it was a perfect game, and he answered by saying, "It wasn't the perfect game, but it was pretty close to it. We played very, very well today." Parcells made this statement after watching his star running back Joe Morris rush for 159 yards and 2 touchdowns and QB Phil Simms fire 4 TD passes to 4 different receivers. On the flip side, the defense was near flawless, giving up only a 26 yard field goal with a 1:20 remaining in the first quarter. The 49ers were held to only 29 yards rushing and 155 yards passing with the Giants defense grabbing 3 interceptions.

Next Sunday, the Giants will play host to the Washington Redskins to determine the NFC champion. The Giants have beaten the Redskins twice this year so the third meeting promises to be a great matchup. Game time is set for 3:00 p.m. CST.

MEAL SERVICE

III. SERVICE DECISIONS

There are two questions concerning in-home meal service which call for major decisions:

- * What is the need and how will it be met?
- * What should the duration and comprehensiveness of services be?

The AAA has final approval on service policy decisions.

A. DOCUMENTATION OF SERVICE NEEDS

To justify establishing or expanding a home-delivered meals service, the need for HDM in a community or a service area should be documented. This is the responsibility of the area agency, but the area needs assessment is often done in coordination with existing nutrition services and other providers. Documentation of service needs should answer the following:

- * How many people are handicapped? How many of those are 60 or over?
- * Where do large numbers of elderly people live?
- * Are there institutionalized older people who could return to their homes if meals were available?
- * Are there older people who could be discharged from hospitals if meals were provided?
- * Are there people who have indicated a need/desire for HDM? Where are they?
- * Are there people/organizations currently providing HDM in the area?

Possible sources for this information include: AAA's, I&R services, home care agencies, nursing homes, community helping organizations such as visiting nurse associations and Title XX agencies, physicians, dieticians and other medical staff, churches, and local special interest groups.

B. DURATION AND COMPREHENSIVENESS OF SERVICE

Home-delivered meal service is based on a determination of need. Decisions regarding the duration of services to home-delivered meal participants may be restricted by the availability of funds. However, the nutrition service provider should try to continue the home-delivered meal service to the participant when the service is critical to continued independence. HDM providers should regularly assess or arrange for assessment of participants to ensure that the services delivered are those most appropriate for the individual. (See Section VIII for additional information on assessment.)

Decisions about the number of meals to provide to participants will reflect the availability of other resources in the community as well as HDM policy. AAA's and nutrition service providers must study the feasibility of providing a second meal, a weekend meal, or therapeutic diets in addition to serving more participants with existing services. This decision must be coordinated with policy decisions concerning the target population and the duration of service.

Stats for 1986 (accurate stats from previous chiefs not available, except for citations and warnings):
628 citations (315 since 19th Sept.)
66 warnings (38 since 19th Sept.)
27 total arrests since 19th Sept. - 19th of September is when I took Office.

Stats for December, 1986:

- 88 Traffic Citations
 - 1 nontraffic citation
 - 3 warnings
 - 6 arrests - state traffic warrants (HP-44's)
 - 5 arrests - Brackettville Municipal Court Warrants
 - 1 arrest - DWI
 - 1 assist - DPS
 - 1 assist - Probation Dept.
 - 1 municipal jury trial

Stats for week of 28th Dec. 1986 to 3rd January, 1987:

- 23 traffic citations
 - 1 nontraffic citation
 - 1 warning
 - 1 arrest - Brackettville Municipal Court warrant
 - 1 accident investigation

So closes 1986. Not the best year for me, except for coming to Brackettville. We have much to look forward to in 1987. With several irons in the fire, I hope to make the Brackettville Police Department more efficient in serving the community and beyond.

In ending the year, I stopped a violator, who explained that this was the second time, and said that I should be out on Highway 90 catching drunk drivers. What I did not explain was that 11 of my 27 arrests for the year was for DWI. Also unexplained was that there is more to Brackettville than Highway 90. Although I may appear to step on some toes by issuing citations on local residents, my primary duty is to enforce the law in the city, of which only a small portion is Hwy. 90. Of course this brings to mind that time that I wrote a citation a person who had a radar detector. Upon handing him his copy, he ripped the detector out of the dashboard and destroyed it, explaining that he had just paid $90 for it two weeks prior. I explained that there was a 100% sure-fire way to beat the (radar)

"game" and it did not cost a cent. Hopeful, he asked what it was. I replied, "Drive the speed limit."

That's the whole point. If one does nothing wrong, then I have no reason to stop them. I would like nothing more than to have it so boring that I have nothing to do all day, but sit at my desk, doing PR work. But as long as there are infractions of the law, whatever they are, I will continue to be out there issuing citations and making arrests. And I think that all peace officers nationwide feel the same way.

NEW TAX RATE EXPLAINED

AUSTIN - State Comptroller Bob Bullock Tuesday reminded Texans not to forget the increase in the sales tax rate that began New Year's Day--January 1, 1987.

"Only the rate has changed. In every case, what is and what is not taxable under current sales tax law remains the same when the new law went into effect January 1," reminded Bullock.

A special session of the Texas Legislature raise the state's sales tax rate one and one-eighth percent to deal with a shortfall of tax revenue caused by the collapse of oil prices.

The state sales tax rate goes from 4.125 to 5.25 percent.

Comptroller Bullock said that in many areas of Texas the state rate and local sales taxes, including transit and city sales taxes will put the combined rate to as much as 7.25 percent. In making accounting changes to collect the new tax rate, businesses should have adjusted cash registers and alerted and trained their personnel to collect sales tax at the new local rates.

The new law also raised the motor fuel tax 5 cents--from 10 cents to 15 cents a gallon.

"My office has contacted taxpayers and sent new rate cards and updated information on these state tax changes," Bullock said.

Texans with questions may call the Comptroller's office toll-free line at 1-800-252-5555.

FIRST BAPTIST DEDICATES PIANO

BALLANTYNE & HILL HONORED

At a commeration and dedication service held January 28, 1986, the First Baptist Church of Brackettville honored J. Lee Ballantyne and her father, Rev. F.M.D. Hill, M.D., with the dedication of a baby grand piano. Ballantyne had been a long-time organist for the Church, while her father was the Church organizer in 1921.

The ceremony began with a welcome and call to worship by Chairman of the Deacons, Tim Ward. Ballantyne's family and special guests were recognized and a favorite hymn was sung by Marjorie Owen Kirchner accompanied by pianist Betty Campbell.

As requested by Ballantyne, Rev. Jack Cash presented the Address of Commeration and Dedication. Several members of the congregation were given a period of personal testimony in which they related special moments and memories of Ballantyne, her father, and family.

Brian Coats, great-great grandson of Rev. Hill unveiled the plaque which was placed on the piano. The plaque read: "In honor J. Lee Ballantyne Daughter of Rev. F.M.D. Hill, M.D. Church Organizer 1921."

An intensive investigation over the past 12 months by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officers Standards and Education has led to the arrest of a Brackettville man on charges of Tampering With Governmental Records, a 3rd Degree Felony.

Ralph Gonzalez, 38, was arrested on a warrant issued after a complaint was signed by Bill Madison, Director of the Middle Rio Grande Law Enforcement Academy. The complaint was accepted by District Attorney Tom Lee.

Information gathered by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement investigators and contained in the complaint alleges that Gonzalez submitted false documents and false sworn statements to the Commission in order to obtain a Temporary Peace Officers License issued by the Commission. He subsequently attempted to enroll into the Middle Rio Grande Law Enforcement Academy on the strength of alleged illegally obtained license.

Gonzalez was appointed as a Police Patrolman with the city of Brackettville Police Department in late 1985 and was suspended from that position in February 1986 by then Chief of Police Jim Lindeman after Lindeman was advised by the Commission and Bill Madison that an investigation was underway into the documents submitted by Gonzalez and that it was believed by the Commission that the documents were fraudulent and false. The investigation continued throughout the year and ended with the revocation of the peace officer's license issued Gonzalez by the Commission. With that revocation on December 11, 1986 Gonzalez can never again be licensed as a peace officer in the State of Texas regardless of any other proceedings in the case.

Gonzalez was magistrated before Justice of the Peace Alvin Hall who set bond at $5,000. Gonzalez remains in jail at the time of this writing in lieu of that bond.

A brazen daylight burglary of a building at the residence of Gladys Euscher on Monday, January 5th, left her the victim of personal property losses totalling $1,825. The burglars jimmied a lock off a garage door between the hours of 2:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. and took the property. Evidence at the scene indicates that the burglar or burglars drove into the alley near the garage and loaded the various items into a vehicle and left the scene. The case is under investigation by Sheriff's Department investigators at this time.

PROFILE OF A SENIOR

Who is a Senior Citizen? What is one?

A Senior Citizen is one who was here before the Pill and the Population explosion. We were here before television, penicillin, polio shots, antibiotics and frisbees. Before frozen food, nylon, dacron, Xerox, Kinsey, radar, fluorescent lights, credit cards and ball point pens. For us time sharing meant togetherness, not computers, a chip meant a piece of wood, hardware meant hard wear and softwear wasn't even a word. Coeds never wore slacks. We were before pantyhose and drip-dry clothes, before ice makers and dishwashers, clothes dryers, freezers and electric blankets. Before Hawaii and Alaska became states. Before men wore long hair and earrings and women wore tuxedos.

We were before Leonard Berstein, yogurt, Ann Landers, plastic, the 40 hour week and the minimum wage. We got married first and then lived together. How quaint can one be?

Closets were for clothes, not for coming out of, bunnies were small rabbits and rabbits were not Volkswagens. We were before Grandma Moses and Frank Sinatra and cup-sizing for bras. Girls wore Peter Pan collars and thought cleavage was something butchers did. We were before Batman, Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer and Snoopy. Before DDT, vitamin pills, disposable diapers, Q.E. One, Jeeps, The Jefferson Memorial and pizza, Cheerios, instant coffee decaffeinated anything, and McDonald's were all unheard of. We thought fast food was what you ate during Lent. We were before Boy George, J.D. Salinger and Chiquita Banana. Before FM radios, tape recorders, electric typewriters, word processors, MUZAK, electronic music, disco dancing—and that's not all bad!

In our day cigarette smoking was fashionable, grass was for mowing, Coke was a refreshing drink and pot was something you cooked. If we'd been asked to explain CIA, Ms., NATO, UFO, NFL, JFK or IUD we'd have said alphabet soup.

We are today's SENIOR CITIZENS, a hardy bunch when think of how OUR world has changed and of the adjustment WE have had to make!

HOME HINTS

DIRTY WORK — Those disposable wipettes made for use when changing baby's diaper can come in handy in the car. Use them after filling your car with gas, or after eating in the car. I wouldn't travel anywhere without them! Rose N., Harley, Idaho

CONVENIENT DOG FOOD — If you hate opening canned dog food, open your can at both ends. Then, very carefully so as not to cut yourself, push the food out of the bottom with the lid you opened from the top. This eliminates the mess and scraping to get the food out of the can. However, don't be tempted to try this trick if the dog food is a gravy-type mixture. It only works on solid food. Jackie R., Jackson Hole, Wyoming

MOTHER'S HELPER — Instead of buying a box of nursing pads, use thin panty liners. They're less expensive, serve two purposes and have adhesive tape to secure them snugly to your bra. Just cut one in half or to the desired size. Charlotte P., Shinnston, W.V.

LONG LIVE THE UMBRELLA — If you're ready to throw out your umbrella because of some lost stems from the tips of the ribs, try this: Close the umbrella, double and twist a thin rubber band as tightly as you can hold it. Pull the umbrella fabric over the tip of the rib. Wrap the rubber band around and around the tip of the rib as tightly as possible. Repeat the method for each rib. Voila! Your umbrella works like new! If you're concerned about the aesthetics, try using matching colored rubber bands. Yolanda E., Tillamook, Ore.

FOOLPROOF FUDGE — To remove fudge (or other pan candies) without breaking up the first few pieces, try this: For a nine-inch square pan, cut an 8 x 11-inch strip of heavy-duty foil. Grease the bottom and two sides of the pan with butter or margarine and fit the foil strip into it. There will be a 1/2-inch flap for each of the ungreased sides. Pour hot fudge into the pan and let set for the usual amount of time. When ready to cut the fudge, lift it out of the pan with flaps as holders and place it on a cutting board, foil side up. Peel off the foil and score the fudge for cutting. Georgia D., Woonsocket, R.I.

STAINED TABLECLOTHS — Most stains can be removed with a good soaking in a laundry detergent which contains enzymes. This treatment works best on wine, coffee, tea, chocolate and dairy stains. For grease stains, rub a bar of wet soap into the stain and wash as usual. This will work better if done before the first laundering. If you have linen tablecloths, you're better off letting the dry cleaner take care of stains. Janine G., Colquitt, Ga.
