

TIGERETTES LOSE BI-DISTRICT

by Will Risinger

The Tigerettes of Brackettville journeyed to Bandera Thursday night to face Johnson City in the Bi-District playoffs.

The Lady Tigers got off to a quick start in the first quarter but by the half's end Johnson City had rallied to take the lead. The game remained closed throughout the second half and was tied up at the end of regulation play. The Tigerettes seemed to run out of steam in overtime and were defeated 42 to 46.

This was the last game for seniors Martha Samaniego, Maria (Mela) Lozano and Elena Sandoval. All three were starters and will be missed.

SIX BROTHERS HAD FAMILY REUNION

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Anonymous Concerned Citizen:

You speak of too many different topics--teenage alcohol abuse, Acuna, Mexico, U.S.A., Civic Center, Frontier Fair, City and County law officials, the everyday problem of alcohol abuse, worried parents, other parents, not worried, Fort Clark private property, "Challenge", the accident 2 years ago.

You really didn't discuss "this" in the open, you merely stated what has probably been going on in and around our community for the past 50 years.

Nevertheless, I have six children in school (four teenagers), and I would like to know, "what right you have,?" to challenge my children to use peer pressure to try and turn the "teen alcohol problem" around. I send my children to school so that they can study and learn the classroom curriculum; students already have enough pressure to deal with daily.

If you're so concerned, I challenge you to put peer pressure on our City and County elected officials that govern our community along with the appropriate law enforcement units.

I also, do not intend to offend friends and acquaintances.

Respectfully,
Chris Gomez

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I feel that I must answer the letter that was written to the Editor in last weeks paper. I realize that by signing my letter I am opening myself up for a lot of criticism, but I do accept the responsibility. People who write letters to the Editor should be above reproach if not prepared to catch the after flak. I'm not perfect and I know of no other mortal who is, so here goes.

First of all, I recognize the concern, if it was genuine concern, for the young people of this community. I too, know that there isn't enough for them to do here. The "anonymous" writer evidently no

SHERIFF'S CORNER

The regularly scheduled monthly meeting of the Southwest Texas Law Enforcement Association was hosted by yours truly in Kinney County on February 19th. The meeting was held upstairs at the Ft. Clark Restaurant and, as usual, high quality, professional service was provided by Joy Ralston and her staff. And I would like to take this opportunity to thank them for a job well done. I received many favorable comments from officers attending about the quality of the food and service.

The meeting was attended by over 30 law enforcement officers from several surrounding counties with Kinney County Judge Tommy Seargeant also attending as my guest. A general roundtable discussion of various law enforcement and criminal problems was followed by a short talk by San Antonio based F.B.I. Agent, Don Weathermon on civil rights complaints made by citizens against peace officers and how those complaints are handled by the F.B.I. Agent Weathermon stated that his office has received over 50 complaints on officers in his area over the past three years and only two have been found to justify prosecution by federal authorities. He stated that many of the complaints are determined to be frivolous and totally unjustified. Agent Weathermon then gave a hands-on demonstration of a new prisoner handcuffing technique now being taught and used by the F.B.I.

The meeting was a great success and I was pleased by the large turnout of area peace officers. Next month's meeting will be held in Uvalde, the home base of the association.

A bar-room brawl at a local tavern the night of Friday, February 20th left two Ft. Clark men hospitalized with head injuries and 2 Brackettville men in custody for questioning in the matter. Witnesses at the scene indicated that the fight came about because of racial harassment and related arguing was reported to have been going on for 30-40 minutes prior to the brawl. Pool cues and fists were the weapons used in the fracas. The investigation into the matter should have been completed by the time you read this column and the necessary arrests, if any, made.

I would like to take this opportunity to respond to the "anonymous" letter printed in the Kinney Cavalryman last week concerning alcohol abuse by local minor young people.

First of all I want to make it clear that I am in no way offended by the letter as I think the author is truly a concerned citizen who only brought out concerns shared by most responsible citizens of this county and community about alcohol abuse by our young people. I cannot understand why the author elected to remain anonymous, we should all be vocal and recognized for our concerns.

Although I do not necessarily agree with the indication that the problem is as widespread and affecting as large a group of local teenagers as the author of the letter seems to be, we do have a problem that could grow out of control unless we take steps to control it now.

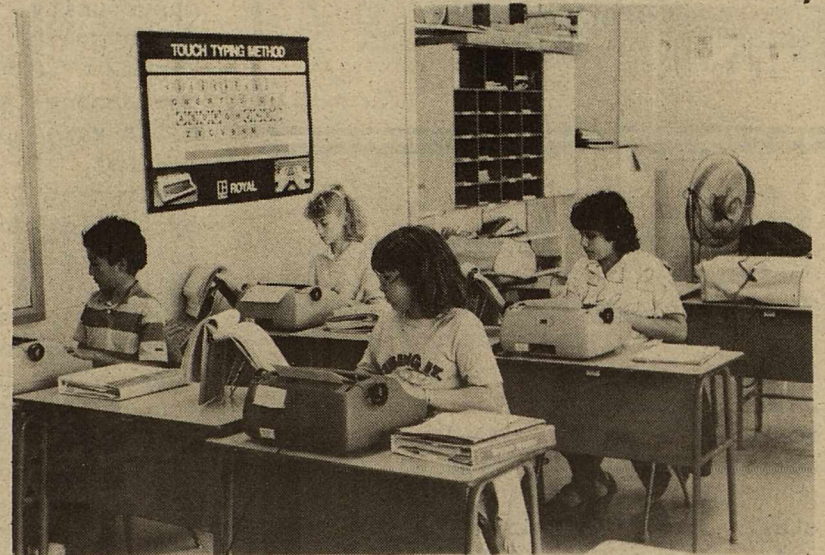

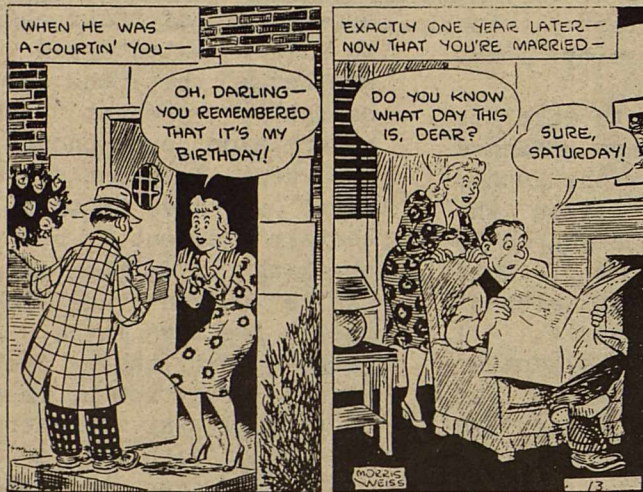

The author of the letter made a point, a very important one, about parents "closing their eyes" to the situation because they love their children. The author also stated that he/she would like to "see our laws concerning minors in possession" and "contributing to the delinquency of a minor" enforced." He/she went on to say that he/she was "speaking to our city and county law enforcement officials asking them to do so." My response to that is that we, and I am speaking for my department only, investigate each and every report we receive about minors in possession of and/or consuming alcohol. We have on many occasions, some recently, brought minors caught in violation of the liquor laws to the county jail and called their parents to come get them. We have called several parents about reports we have received about their minor children in violation of liquor laws or being in the company of those doing so. We have requested local stores on various occasions to cooperate in reporting suspects believed to be supplying alcohol to minors and I am pleased to say that we have received good response and cooperation from local storeowners. I feel that we are doing all that is legally possible in an effort to curb liquor law violations by our minor youths. We, as peace officers, cannot be expected to take the place of parents and be the babysitters and supervisors of all the minor children in our community. Somewhere along the line the parents have to realize and accept the responsibility they have to supervise and guide their own children. Anyone who is the parent of a minor child should care enough to maintain close supervision of their children, even to the extent and with the knowledge that the children will naturally resent that very supervision even though it is in the best interest of the child. Sure, we have to trust them to a certain extent, but a little checking up on them every once in awhile wouldn't hurt anything but their feelings maybe, and I would rather hurt their feelings than have to pick them up in a body bag on some highway somewhere. Alcohol on the breath has a distinctive odor and can be detected very easily. If a child is staying overnight with a friend or a friend is staying with your child, the parents on both sides should cooperate in seeing that there are restrictions placed on the minor children as to where they are permitted to go, with whom, and when they are expected to be home. A supervising parent should wait up until the young people are safely home. That way they can judge for themselves the condition of the youngsters when they get home, and make sure that curfew is met. If alcohol is detected on their breath or they are under the influence of alcohol or some other substance upon their arrival home, then steps can be taken to determine where, how, and from whom the alcohol, drugs, or other substances were obtained and used. Parents should not expect the law enforcement officers of this community to be wholly responsible for maintaining supervision and control of their children, that part belongs at home, where it should be. We will work with any parent or other concerned citizen in any way possible to assist in keeping our minor young people on the right path, but we should not and cannot be expected to take the place of parents.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Fort Clark Historical Society will meet Saturday, February 28th at 10:00 a.m. in the Members Lounge. A VCR film will be shown on "Contrast of Weapons, Gear of Indians, and Cavalry of the 1870's". Everyone is welcome, and there will be door prizes.

FIRST HOLY COMMUNION

Joseph Rainosek and Corey March took their first Holy Communion on February 1, 1987.

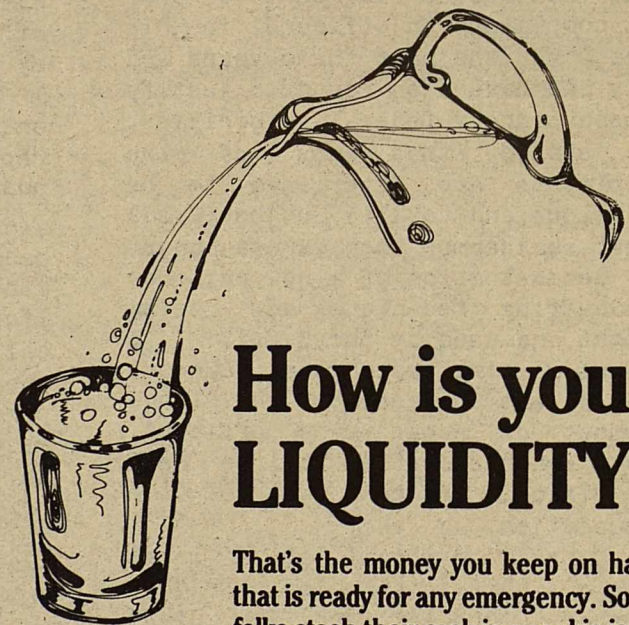

Joseph Rainosek is the son of Thomas and Rose Rainosek of Dubina, Texas and the grandson of Dennis and Rose Mary Slubar of Brackettville, Texas. Joseph is also the great grandson of Sarah Hoover and Rufus Angerstein.

Corey March is the son of Danny and Cindy March of Dubina, Texas and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Klesel of Weimar, Texas and Erwin March of Dubina, Texas.

Joseph and Corey took their first Holy Communion at the Catholic Church in Dubina with Father George Kostikow offering.

The boys are both eight years old and already have an idea of what they want to be when they grow up. Joseph wants to be a carpenter like his dad and Corey is interested in working with his dad someday at Weimar Home Furnishings.

Both the boys are in the eight grade at St. Michael's Catholic School in Weimar, Texas.

longer has teen-agers that he or she has to keep busy or entertained, or possibly has never been a parent. Also, being a parent 15 or 20 years ago is no pattern for being a parent in 1987. I too, have been guilty of sitting in my own living room and saying, "So and so should do this or that", but when you are the one coping with a situation, sometimes it isn't that easy to do. "Walk in my moccasins even one day, White Man, and see the world from my eyes."

I resent very much the insinuation that all the teenagers in Brackettville suffer from alcohol abuse. The dance at the Civic Center was mentioned. Most of the kids at the dance were there with their own parents, or said parents, were just a few tables away. You talk as though these kids were staggering drunk. I beg to differ with you. Of course, I went there to dance, which I did, and some with my own son. I did not go to sit on the sidelines just to check out my neighbor nor my neighbors' children's actions. I personally know most of the high school kids and they are a good bunch of kids. These kids are bright, normal, young adults with hurts, insecurities, problems, high ambitions and a lot of hope for their futures. They need all the support that this community can give. They didn't make our world, but they are trying their best to cope with it. And not by burying their heads in a bottle.

The Red Bridge? Well, the world has gradually taken away any place kids have to congregate, away from adult eyes. I would rather my kids be at the red bridge or the swimming pool having a couple of beers around a camp fire than out thieving, vandalizing, using drugs or some of the other things they could be doing. Yes, I worry about alcohol, drugs, sex, kids, and being a good parent. No, I don't have all the answers, if indeed any.

When I was a teenager, (Oklahoma was dry in those days), I didn't have all the temptations my kids do today. My biggest temptations were a watermelon patch or a ripe cornpatch just waiting to be plucked on a moonlit night or an outhouse waiting to be tipped over. The farmer planted extra watermelon and corn knowing neighborhood kids would come raiding. We smoked grapevine that blistered our tongues and one time my brother and I sneaked daddy's Bull Durham tobacco out of his dresser drawer. We took it to the barn and boy did we ever get sick. Nowadays, not only would kids get jailed for swiping watermelon or corn, but would probably die from pesticides. Kids need to gather somewhere with their peers, in order to find out who they are, where they are going and how they want to act when they get there.

I resent anyone making comments about "The accident" at the Fort that killed one of our own. Were you personally involved? I was, and I doubt that anyone investigated that incident more thoroughly than I did. I talked to everyone that had been in contact with those boys (all four) that afternoon. That "everyone", included me. Did you, my friend? Yes, I heard all the stories, how the jeep rolled 4 or 5 times from excessive speed and so forth. Did you go out and pace of the distance and look at all the signs? I did. No, I didn't take anyone else's word for any of it. People do tend to exaggerate. Some of the stories were pretty incredulous, including the tales I heard about the ambulance crew. I have watched my son and his friends grieve for a beloved young friend. I have gone through my own special hell as has everyone who knew Keith well. No, his parents haven't forgotten, and don't need you to remind them...or us.

Yes, we as a community have a responsibility to our young people and they in turn have a responsibility to us also, but don't cite our young people as having an alcohol problem. Their biggest problem is having to deal with a whole world of alcohol abusers. I want my children to be aware of the effects of alcohol. The insidious nature of alcohol makes it all the more dangerous. Let's all band together as a concerned community and support our young people. I do not condone alcohol here or in Mexico. I do want to help if I can. We do need to crack down on the sale of alcohol to minors. Whether it is a direct sale or someone buying it for them. The punishment should be severe.

My "anonymous" friend, I know how hard it was to write your letter. I have written and re-written this one, trying to get my point across and still tell you that even though I disagree on most points, I agree to a certain extent. It is a major concern and I hope that this community can come up with some solutions soon. I feel that this can be accomplished only with courageous letters such as yours, and people opening up and discussing their fears. I realize that my letter sounds full of criticism. My only intent is not to condone alcohol or to encourage its use and sale, but to support and defend the teenage community in some small way.

Thank You.

Sincerely,

Wanda E. Schwandner

CITY BEAT

BY DAVID BOHMFALK
CHIEF OF POLICE

Stats for week of 15-21 Feb. 87:

5 traffic citations
1 city ordinance citation (#226)

This week I was approached by a woman outside a local business. She told me that she and her husband read my column every week, and it has made them aware of their driving habits, such as coming to a complete stop and watching their speed, especially in the school zone. I would like, at this time, to thank her. It makes all I have done, and the problems it sometimes brings, worthwhile.

My job is not so much handing out citations, as it is preventing accidents. That is why peace officers who routinely work traffic, drive plainly marked, and highly visible patrol units. If all we were out to do was catch violators, we would have unmarked cars, and be hiding out of sight. But the unit is marked so it will stand out, and remind motorists (and pedestrians), to watch themselves. To make sure that they are obeying the law. To that effect, and the words of that lady, I can count my job here as being a success. Because if I get one person to watch their driving, the possibility is there, however slight, that I might have, at some point, prevented a tragedy.

And, in a nutshell, that is the whole reason I am here. To that lady, I say thank you.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

From Sunday, March 1st, through Sunday, April 5th, the Brackettville First United Methodist Church will be holding Sunday evening worship and study services at 7:00 o'clock p.m. in the Sanctuary. Coinciding with the Christian observance of the season of Lent, these services will be part of the preparation for Holy Week and Easter. "We Have Seen Jesus" is the focus for the six-week series, using religious art masterpieces in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. These visual depictions of events in the life of Christ, and different aspects of Scriptural accounts, will be studied in a worship setting that will be both interesting and inspiring. The Pastor and congregation cordially invite all those in our area who may desire to attend and share in this experience.

TIGERS LOSE FINAL GAME

BRACKETTVILLE - The Brackettville Tigers lost their last game of the season to the Dilley Wolves at the Tiger Gym Friday night.

The game seesawed back and forth but ended with Brackett on the losing end.

This was the last game for seniors Hector Pena, Charlie Baker, Steve Boutwell, Robert Estrada and Robert Salmon.

The JV ended a season long losing streak with their first win over the Dilley JV in the first contest of the evening.

* Brush hair carefully to stimulate the scalp without causing hair breakage. Use a soft-bristled brush and a wide-toothed comb made of bone or plastic, never metal.

* Since most hair products are formulated for specific hair types, get to know which type you are — oily, normal or dry.

* Keep a few brands of shampoo on hand and switch off regularly since hair seems to develop a tolerance to one brand of shampoo.

* Use conditioner at least once a week, but if hair is thin, use only a drop about the size of a dime, because you don't want your hair to look limp.

* If you use sprays and mousses, use water-based products rather than oil-based. These products can have a drying effect or can leave hair flat and matted.

* If you spend a lot of time in the sun, try some of the new spray-on conditioners designed to give hair a protective coating.

* Whenever possible, let hair dry naturally.

* The best long-term plan for maintaining healthy, good-looking hair is a sound, well-balanced diet.

BISD EMPLOYS ARCHITECT

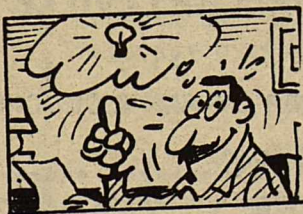

At the regular monthly school board meeting on Monday, February 9, 1987, the Brackett Independent School District Board of Trustees employed the architectural firm of Johnson and Dempsey to produce a master plan to meet future school district needs for renovation and construction. Bob McCall, superintendent, explained that such a plan will help the administration, and the Board in long range planning.

In other action, the Board heard a report from Mr. McCall on the Kinney County Property Tax Appraisal just released by the State Property Tax Board. Mr. McCall indicated that he intended to appeal the State Property Tax Board values. He stated that he felt they were much too high, and hoped that a successful appeal would result in the school district receiving more state aid.

Sharon White reported to the Board that $12,000 was available from the Booster Club for construction of a weight room. Several parents attended the Board meeting, and expressed concern over the attitude of the students, and the early date (February 28) scheduled for the Junior/Senior Prom.

In consideration of an emergency agenda item dealing with the discipline of a student, the Board went into executive session to hear testimony from teachers, administrators, and parents. Emerging from the executive session, the Board voted in favor of a resolution upholding administrative recommendation for discipline, and commending the teacher involved for the efforts at discipline and behavior management.

The Board went into executive session to consider administrators contracts. Emerging from the session, the Board voted to renew Mrs. Schwandner's contract with a 2% raise. Mr. Schermerhorn's contract was also renewed. Mr. Schermerhorn's contract was reduced from 12 to 11 months at the same rate of pay.

1987 BRACKETT HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS; graduation is 3 months away!

How wonderful! How exciting! A time for celebration, receiving gifts and congratulations from relatives and friends.

When young, and living at home, we think and say, "I cannot wait until the day I will be on my own", "the day I become INDEPENDENT."

Webster's New World Dictionary's definition for independent is "free from the influence or control of others; not depending on another for financial support. One who is independent in thinking action." What definition are you using when you say you "want to be independent?" "Free from the influence or control of others?" Who? Your parents and teachers? Yes, parents because they ask you to do chores around the house and discipline you. Yes, teachers because of all the homework and tests they give. But, have you given much thought to "not depending on another for financial support?"

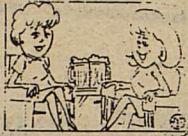

Well in 3 months you can be independent! The following books available at the library can help you if you have not already decided on:

- 1) Choosing the college for you
- 2) How to get the degree you want
- 3) Choosing a college major humanities
- 4) The job hunt
- 5) The secretarial handbook for the modern office
- 6) Wedding plan book
- 7) Bride's book of etiquette
- 8) Women in law enforcement
- 9) The 1986 What color is your parachute? A practical manual for job-hunters and career changes
- 10) Practice for Armed Forces tests
- 11) Scoring high on the Armed Forces test
- 12) Civil Service handbook; how to get a civil service job.
- 13) Other Civil Service Test tutor books are:
 - a) State Trooper
 - b) Police officer
 - c) Post-office clerk carrier
 - d) case worker
 - e) Practice for clerical, typing, and stenographic tests
 - f) Electrician
 - g) Carpenter
 - h) Auto mechanics

From the Kinney County Public Library Advisory Board and it's staff, an early congratulations to all 1987 Brackett High School Seniors. We wish you all the very best!

JUST BETWEEN,

YOU & ME

BY WANDA SCHWANDNER

Have you seen the new building sprouting out to the West side of our Clinic? I was taken on a tour this week and was I surprised! There isn't a doctor in Del Rio that will have a nicer clinic than ours. A culmination of many years of hoping & dreaming. There are 3 examining rooms, a laboratory, an x-ray room, an emergency room, an office for Dr. Luz, and an accounting office for Rosemary. All will be well equipped and spacious. There are 3 bathrooms, for men, women, and employees. The old part of the clinic will be utilized as well. It's not pleasant to be sick, but at least we'll have a nice place to go to when we are. I know our faithful employees at the Clinic will enjoy it more. I think all should be commended for a job well done. They give many hours to this community.

Sarah Hoover and Gertrude McNair took a 5 day trip by Wichita Falls recently and ended up in big old Teague, Texas. They visited Gertrudes' sister & brother-in-law. Now, Grandma Hoover told me they behaved themselves, but I don't know about that. I have my doubts, what do you think?

Alex & Lisa Solis visited with her parents, Bobby and Emma Slaughter, in Campwood last weekend. Sister Rhea, who is attending Angelo State was also home. All are doing well, and said to tell everyone hello.

Six weeks tests are going on this week. I've seen several wrinkled foreheads around town, so I guess there is alot of last minute cramming.

Bob Rice has a birthday next Monday. Don't know how old he will be, or is it how young? Anyway, old Bob, he's not saying. I imagine his kids would tell, if coaxed. Mine always told all those family secrets, even when threatened with a fate worse than a black eye.

We are busy at our house trying to figure out flowers for the Prom. Ole Henry has a girl coming in from the far North (Rocksprings). It is nice that it won't be so hot in the cafeteria this time of year. Maybe next year, with the old Prom time, and a new location, Prom could be a more memorable occasion. That would be nice, huh?

Kathy Bader has purchased "The Screendoor" from David Bixby. She has renamed the shop, "The Sunshine Garden Center." Kathy has so many talents, I'm sure she will do great. Kathy recently headed the March of Dimes campaign here in Brackettville. She has also helped decorate for the Miss Kinney County Pageant the last several years. Good luck in your new venture Kathy! Incidentally, Monea Meck will be leaving Kinney County Wool & Mohair where she has been employed the last several years to assist Kathy in the new business.

My apologies to Tony & Nancy Frerich. I left them off my list of people who attended the Stock Show in San Antonio last weekend. Paul Shepard says he was there also. I'm sure there were many Brackettville people there I didn't see, with so many in attendance.

See you next week!!!

VIDEO RENTAL REVIEW

It may be a little juvenile for some people, but I liked "Flight of the Navigator" very much. It's a light, entertaining, hokey kind of thing, but of course with Walt Disney you can't go wrong. I understand from the kids that "Karate Kid II" is very good. It probably is because "Karate Kid I" was excellent. "The Manhattan Project" with John Lithgow was nice. It'll put you on the edge of your chair a few times, but just right in the suspense department. I didn't like "Pirates" with Walter Matthau. I never could figure out the plot, if there was one. I like Walter Matthau, but this just wasn't a movie up to his usual standards. Don't waste your time and money on "At Close Range" with Christopher Walken. He is one of my favorites, but his movie is definitely one to avoid. He plays a sicko father and there is a great deal of senseless violence. Like I say, It's garbage. I loved "Amadeus", but I'm sure that some people wouldn't enjoy it. It is the story of Amadeus Wolfgang Mozart. His genius was wonderful and the movie was very touching.

Thanks, from the Critics Corner.

BRACKETT HIGH SCHOOL WELCOMES NEW TEACHER

Brackett High School welcomes new teacher, Pat Seawell, to it's staff. Mrs. Seawell was born in Corpus Christi, Texas and raised on a ranch in Laredo. She received her bachelor's degree from the University of Texas at Austin, where she majored in English with a minor in Secondary Education.

She met her husband, John P. Seawell, at the University. He is from Laredo and a retired Army Officer of 20 years.

Mrs. Seawell taught in several different countries including Korea, Germany, and Ethiopia during her husbands 20 years in the Army.

She continued with her education and received her masters degree from George Washington University in Washington, D.C., where she studied Education and Human Development specializing in Curriculum and Instruction.

She and her husband settled in Del Rio two years ago, after her husbands retirement.

Mrs. Seawell enjoys reading, writing, kids, kitties and lake Amistad sunsets.

"PLANTING BARE ROOT ROSES"

Now is the time to plant bare root roses. If you buy good quality plants and plant them properly you can expect quality blooms later on. Choose a well-drained planting place, away from the roots of large trees and shrubs, and where the plants will receive full sunlight for at least six hours each day. Before planting rose bushes, soak the roots in water overnight. Trim off any broken roots and branches that are damaged.

Dig the planting hole to accommodate all of the roots without crowding them. The best time to plant is early in the morning or later afternoon. Mix equal parts of moistened peat moss with the soil, and if the soil is low in phosphorus, add a cupful of bonemeal to the soil mixture.

Mound the soil in the bottom of the hole in a cone shape, place the rose bush on the cone and spread out the roots, then add the soil mixture. Be sure that the bud union is an inch above the soil line to allow for settling of the plant. Water until the hole is full to the brim, for this will eliminate any air pockets. Also tramp the soil firmly around the plant to make the bush roots firm in the soil. After watering, elevate the dirt around the bush to a height of about six inches, for this will prevent damage from winds and frost.

It has been recommended to apply a complete rose fertilizer as soon as newly planted roses show three inches of new growth. In the Spring when you prune, mix a good rose fertilizer in the soil, and repeat after the first blooming. When fertilizing, wet the soil before applying the fertilizer, and apply about six inches away from the main stem. Buy good, healthy bushes, give them a sunny place in the garden, protect them from insects and diseases, and they will reward you with beautiful blooms.

Wild Animals are Rabies Threat

Some 10,500 animal specimens, from armadillos to zebras, were tested at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) for rabies last year. Of these, 470 were found to carry the disease.

Although no human cases of rabies were reported in Texas during 1986, Dr. Foy V. McCasland, chief of the TDH Bureau of Veterinary Public Health, said the disease is a continuing threat to people. He warned that anyone with pets, or who frequently works with domestic animals, should see that the animals are vaccinated annually, as the law prescribes.

He also warned against adopting wild animals as pets. Wild animals are the most frequent carriers of rabies, and there are no approved rabies vaccines for them, Dr. McCasland explained. He said that although a wild animal may be vaccinated with the same shots used for dogs and cats, the vaccine may or may not be effective. "A wild animal, sooner or later, is likely to bite or scratch its owner," he added.

Wild animals, chiefly skunks and bats, constitute about 90 percent of all rabies cases confirmed by TDH. Dr. McCasland said that most cases of domestic animal infection can be traced to contact with rabid wild animals.

Testing for rabies in Texas is conducted exclusively in health department laboratories in Austin, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso. In 1986, these laboratories confirmed rabies in 275 skunks, 132 bats, 14 dogs, 14 cows, 13 cats, 11 foxes, 3 bobcats, 3 horses, 2 coyotes, a raccoon, a goat, and a sheep.

Rabbits, squirrels, and some other rodents are not considered to be rabies threats to humans because of their characteristics. "Although they may not bite, they may carry the disease, and it is remotely possible for a person to be exposed to rabies by handling them," Dr. McCasland explained.

Most areas of Texas have effective animal control units to enforce vaccination laws for domestic animals. These units also care for or remove sick and dangerous wild animals. But some rural counties and those bordering Mexico, where vaccination laws are less stringent, are the most frequent areas for rabies outbreaks. In these areas, Dr. McCasland cautions all pet owners to keep vaccinations up-to-date and all persons to avoid any animals unlikely to have had shots.

He added that veterinarians usually take rabies immunizations every two years because of the likelihood of their exposure to the disease, and TDH further urges trappers, who may skin a variety of wild animals, and spelunkers, who may encounter bats in caves, to be immunized also.

JOB SEEKING

If you are seeking a job or trying to change jobs, your focus may be on simply getting hired. But it's also important to use this time to assess your personal interests, skills, life goals and values. For the better you know yourself, the better your chance of having a satisfying job and career.

The focus of a self-inventory is on the individual. Since work is just one aspect of life, the vocation (work) self shouldn't be separated from the total self. If a career is right for you, it will reflect part of what you are as a total person.

What facets of life bring you joy and happiness - spiritual well-being, family, leisure, friends, community or the kind of work you do? These are your personal values. In addition to values, recognize your personal needs that are met by a job earning money, being recognized, a comfortable lifestyle, and friendships.

Grades, degrees and other achievements may be a fair measure of your aptitudes and abilities, but employers also look for personality traits such as enthusiasm, interest, desire or willingness to work hard. Some of your skills, capabilities and interests may not be directly related to your job, but they can support your effectiveness in your career choice.

As promised last week, here are some more wood care terms:

* Crazing — the cracking and fine lines that can be seen in an old, damaged finish.

* Finish — a term with two meanings. Finish refers to the smooth surface left after sanding. Finish also refers to a substance applied to seal and protect wood. Finishes include paint, varnish, lacquer, shellac and polyurethane.

* French polishing — an early technique for applying a finish. In French polishing, varnish or shellac is mixed 50/50 with denatured alcohol. This mixture is applied to a rounded ball of cloth, then the cloth is brushed across the wood in a pendulum motion. Few complete finishes are applied today with this technique. However, French polishing can be used to repair small damaged areas where the finish has come off the wood.

* Furniture refinisher — A product designed to remove varnish, lacquer or shellac, but not paint or polyurethane; furniture refinishers are gentler than all-purpose strippers, so they will dissolve an old finish without unnecessarily disturbing the wood.

Next week: the last on our series of wood care terms.

ALONG THE
BY DORTHY PAYNE

Another episode of the Pancho Villa uprising happened on December 8, 1913 when the Federal troops dug in near Ojinaga, Mexico. The town sits on top of a small hill with open country on three sides and the Rio Grande on the other. Across the edges of the gullies on the side of the mesa they dug rifle pits and trenches, and threw up breastworks of adobe. In the open country they piled up barricades of rocks and brush.

Many Federal soldiers met their end behind these meager walls in the shallow rifle pits.

Meanwhile, back in Presidio it was beginning to get exciting, with American newsmen, photographers and spectators lined up on the American side of the river to watch the battle.

The fighting dragged on until the month of January, 1914, with first one side then the other, having the upper hand. Villa then decided it about time he took a hand personally, so he joined the rebels with a good amount of veterans.

When the Federal army in the front lines heard the news that Villa and 6,000 rebels were already in the camp of the revolutionists they suddenly decided they needed muy macho ammunition. Almost to a man they rushed back like scalded dogs to lay in a supple, at least that was their story. Villa said they just plain vamoosed.

On the Federal back lines the soldiers were so jumpy when they heard the noise of the front lines retreat, they opened fire on their own men. The retreaters thought somehow the rebels had gotten around behind the trenches and the panic was on. They fought through the back lines of their own men until they reached the river. They didn't stop there, but stripped down to their birthday suits and swam to the American side for protection. They were afraid to be identified as soldiers, because being a prisoner in Mexico was no picnic.

The United States troops helped them all they could with food and water and with what few blankets they could spare, but with the crying children, barking dogs, naked, dripping soldiers and the wounded and dying, it soon became a madhouse.

Pancho Villa claimed another victory with the retreat, and General Mercado of the Federal army claimed he had to order evacuation to save a massacre.

The War Department of the United States gave orders to send those 3,500 Federal troops and the 1,000 refugee women and children to El Paso.

The nearest railroad was at Marfa, Texas, 72 miles away. Food was shipped to Presidio from the U.S. Army at El Paso. So the refugees and soldiers marched to Marfa where the trains waited to take them to El Paso.

Two spectators watching from the American side of the Rio Grande were the only ones to come out of the situation with a profit.

Zack Miller and his brother Joe of the 101 Ranch in Oklahoma, were on a mule buying trip into Mexico when they had been halted by the battle. They were in Presidio to take delivery of a herd of mules on Jan. 14, 1914. They watched the Mexican Army surrender to the American Army and ask protection.

When the Millers heard that the Mexican Council at San Antonio had permission to sell the Army equipment on Texas soil, the brothers bought the equipment of the whole army, lock, stock, and barrel. They offered $45,000 for mules, horses, burros, wagons, ammunition, saddles, and all the harness thrown in.

Leaving one of their top men in charge of the move, Zack and Joe went back to Marfa. Everything was loaded onto the wagons or pack animals. The refugees rode or walked, and to top off the misery of the wounded and thinly clad soldiers, a blue northerner came up in the night.

After burning all available wood, the men began burning the harness' and saddles, among other trappings. When Zack heard about the burning he stated he would have done the same thing to keep from freezing to death.

As soon as the horses, mules and burros arrived in Marfa, the Inspector for the Cattlemen's Association declared he would have to cut out all stock wearing a Texas brand, which he did, taking one hundred of the best horses. A Mexican official thought he would get his finger in the pie so he wanted a like amount on the grounds that the Millers were swindling the Mexican government, but Zack finally talked him out of fifty horses.

Their first problem was moving everything to Marfa to the railroad. At first the United States customs wanted three and a half dollars per head before the stock could be moved. But somehow the Millers finally got around paying duty.

There were six hundred burros and nobody wanted them, not even Zack. His proposal to turn them loose was met by protests on the part of the local ranchers, who were having enough trouble feeding their cattle, without turning loose 600 burros on the range. About this time a man stepped up and offered one dollar per head for all 600 and the Millers took him up.

Some men wanted to buy the army wagons, so Zack sold the wagons for five hundred dollars per acre for every acre the wagons covered where they were standing which came to $2,750 plus for the harness.

When the 80 carloads of horses were located in the boxcars the freight agent said the rates would be $185 per car from Marfa to the Miller Ranch in Oklahoma. Zack began to read up and found if horses and mules were used for herding they could be shipped at the same rate as cattle, plus ten dollars per car. He bought three carloads of calves from the local ranchers. Of course the freight agent thought two thousand head of horses to herd 120 cows was a little out of proportion, but Zack said "the calves were plenty wild".

BHS STUDENTS STUDY WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT

On January 28, 1987, Mr. Jack Frerich's two Environmental Science classes took a field trip to Mr. Bud Conoly's Ranch. The students were given a presentation by Mr. Jim Voss, Animal Control Specialist for the Macie Wolf Club, and by Mr. Manuel Pena, Animal Control Specialist for the Las Moras Wolf Club.

The students were informed about techniques used to control target predatory animals and why this program is important to livestock producers. Mr. Pena showed the students a cable snare and how it is used. Mr. Voss demonstrated the leghold trap and how to set one. Along with other demonstrations, the men explained laws and necessary precautions that have to be considered in using these techniques. The men were also helpful in answering all of the students questions.

This field trip was an outdoor lab in conjunction with the students' classroom study of wildlife management. Mr. Frerich and his two Environmental Science classes are grateful to Mr. Conoly for giving them the opportunity to have the field trip on his ranch. Brackett High School greatly appreciates the way Mr. Voss and Mr. Pena volunteered their time and professional knowledge to help educate the Environmental Science classes.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The First United Methodist Church of Brackettville is offering an opportunity to all interested members of the community to take the National Safety Council's Defensive Driving Course--a "Driver Improvement Program" designed to save lives.

Each year in the United States we kill 45,000 to 50,000 on our nation's highways and injure three million others. The economic losses are in the billions of dollars.

National Safety Council statistics indicate people who take the Defensive Driving Course have 35% fewer accidents. That means less people are killed and injured, and also means a savings to insurance companies. Successful graduates of the DDC are entitled to a 10% reduction in their annual automobile insurance premiums, valid for a three-year period.

There is a real savings to the participant in terms of dollars, as well as the benefit of improved driving habits.

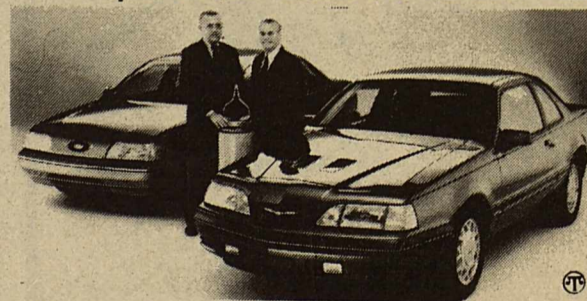

The DDC is an 8-hour course, which will be offered Tuesday, March 10th, and Thursday, March 12th, from 6:00 until 10:00 p.m., at the First UMC's Slator Hall on James Street. To complete the course, you must be present on both evenings.

This Defensive Driving Course is also approved by the courts for certain court-assigned cases. It is possible for a person to have a traffic ticket dismissed if they opt for the completion of the DDC. The ticket then does not go on a persons's driving record, the fine may be waived, and insurance rates would not be increased because of the citation. Before registering for the course, however, persons desiring to deal with a traffic citation in this manner should secure the court's permission. Contact your municipal court judge or justice of the peace.

The cost of the course is $25.00, payable the first evening (March 10) upon registration. For more information, or to have your name included in the pre-registration, call Pastor Phil Bell at the church office, 563-2823, or Mrs. Ray Kurtz, 563-2846.

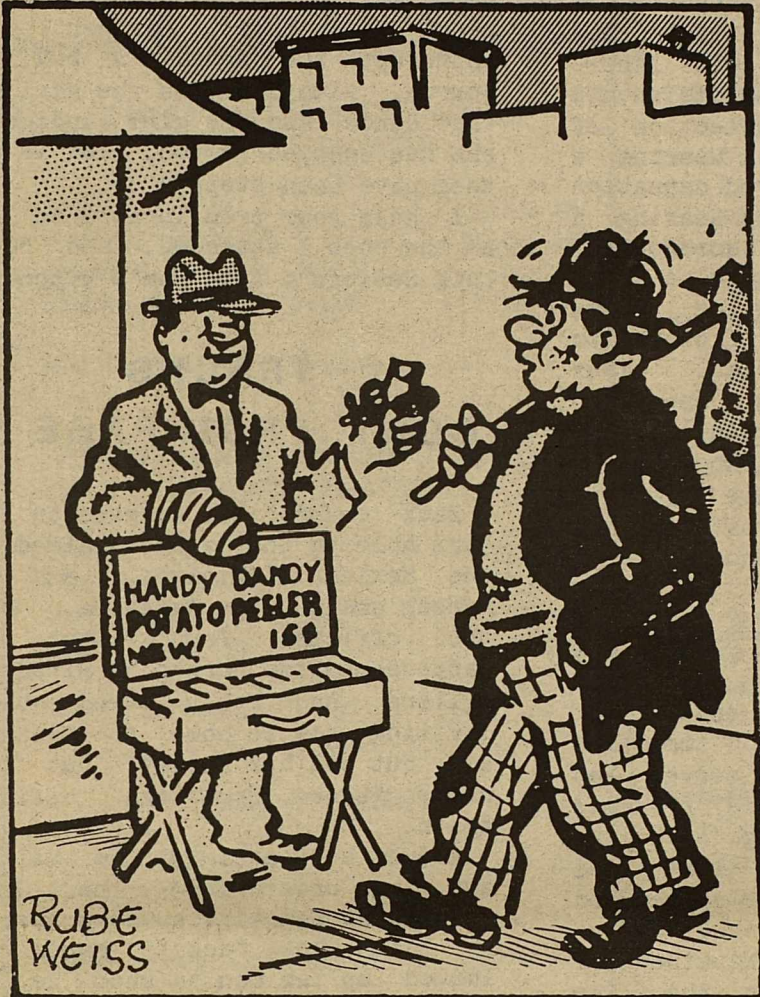

Ford Captures Car Honor For Second Year

With Ford Thunderbird Turbo Coupe (foreground) named Motor Trend's 1987 Car of the Year, Ford Motor Company is the first auto manufacturer to win the award two years in a row. The Ford Taurus (rear) won the competition in 1986. Robert L. Rewey (left), Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, accepts the 1987 trophy from Robert E. Brown, Petersen Publishing Company's senior vice president of corporate development. The 1987 Thunderbird Turbo Coupe, which is built at Ford's Lorain (Ohio) Assembly Plant, features an antilock braking system, automatic ride control and an intercooled 2.3-liter four-cylinder turbocharged engine. Ford Thunderbird also won the Car of the Year award in 1958.

With prom night rapidly approaching, I have been privileged to a number of conversations between both teens and adults in regards to what is the proper etiquette for this or that.

I thought I would try to answer a few of those questions this week.

Who Drives?

Sometimes it is the girl who has the use of a car. If her date is a licensed driver and known to be a good one, she may, (with her parent's permission), say to her date, "would you like to drive?" If he accepts, it is then incumbent upon him to drive with the greatest care.

A boy picking up a date when his parents are driving goes to the girls door (alone), steps in and greets her parents, then escorts the girl to the car. If necessary, he introduces her to his parents by saying, "mother and dad, this is "Jane", etc. (they of course, should already know her last name) He holds the door for her and sees that she is seated.

When a girl is driving, the young man still shows her the same courtesy as if he were driving.

What About Corsages & Boutonnieres?

A girl is much more impressed when the boy makes an effort to find out what type and color corsage his date would prefer. Carnations, rosebuds, and orchids are usually preferred for evening wear. Save the chrysanthemum for sports.

If the boy can't bring himself to ask the girl what she plans to wear, he is safe in sending white flowers. Flowers are worn various ways with evening clothes. If they are to be worn on the shoulder or waist for dancing, the right side keeps them fresh. Many girls these days prefer wrist corsages for a night of dancing. It is usually safe to send a wrist corsage if you are unsure of the type of gown the girl is wearing. A wrist corsage can easily be worn pinned to the shoulder or waist and should always be sent with florist pins for this purpose included. A corsage is worn stem down. The girl should pin it on herself, or with assistance from her mother.

In most cases it is customary for girls to give the boys boutonnieres. However, sometimes the boutonniere is included with the flowers for the girls--sometimes as a gift from the florist. The girl inserts it in her escorts buttonhole if he has one or pins it to his left lapel. The color of the boutonniere should be determined by his selection of evening wear. If he is wearing a dark suit, a white or red carnation is suitable. If he is wearing a black tux with black accessories, red or white is suitable. A white tux with red, pink or mauve accessories? Choose flowers to match those accessories. Your choice of flowers may be carnations, roses, tiny mums, lilies of the valley, babys breath or any suitable small flower, though roses and carnations are usually the flower of choice.

What About Table Manners?

At large banquets, guests may begin eating after the invocation has been delivered and several of the guests in your immediate seating area have been served (at least 3 out of 6). This prevents the food from becoming cold. A gentleman always sees that the ladies at his table are served and have been made comfortable before he begins to eat. Napkins are always placed open in the lap before any food or beverage is touched.

A bit of bread may be used to push food onto a fork if need be, but never the fingers. However, never use the bread to sop gravy or juice from the plate.

If you must leave the table for any reason, no explanation is necessary, simply say "may I be excused". When you return, no comment is necessary, simply take your place.

Ladies approach their chairs and sit from the left. Gentlemen rise when a lady enters or leaves a room or table. The gentlemen seat the ladies to their right and remain standing until all ladies in their general area are seated. Elbows on the table are permissible between courses but not while one is eating. Place cards are never changed by the guest, only by the hostess.

What About Dance Manners?

The first dance and the last, at least, are reserved for the gentleman or lady who issued your invitation. It is the gentlemen's responsibility to see that all ladies are kept dancing. This should not be considered an excuse for jealousy on the part of his date, nor should he use it as an excuse for ignoring her. She is his first responsibility. A boy asks for a dance by saying, "may I have this dance?" Boys on the stag line may cut in but once a girl has been cut in upon, she should not permit another partner to interrupt the dance. A boy, of course, always thanks the girl for the dance and the girl indicates she has enjoyed it too, even if her toes have been stepped on.

I hope your prom is as much fun as the ones I attended, and "Good Luck Seniors", from Mom's Kitchen.

Zack changed the address on the cars holding the horses claimed by the Mexican officials, and the horses ended up in Oklahoma. When the official found what had happened to the horses he wired the Millers and they wired back, inviting him to come to Oklahoma and cut out his horses, but they never heard from the official again.

About a year later the Millers got an order from the Greek government for five hundred burros, so Zack went back to Marfa and looked up the man to whom he had sold the burros during the Mexican army transaction. When he was found, Zack offered him twelve dollars and a half per head, but the man thought he would pull a fast one and asked for more. Zack turned him down as the Greek government had only offered fifteen dollars. Later the man was stuck with 600 burros and ended up selling them for seventy-five cents a piece for the hides; both he and the burros got a good skinning.

The Millers made sixty-five thousand dollars total, on the deal when they bought the entire Mexican Army---all but the soldiers that is.

STUDENTS MAKE DEANS LIST

Three Uvalde Area Study Center students were named to the Dean's List for outstanding academic performance during the fall semester 1986. Those named include Roy G. Snow of Uvalde, Juan Gonzales of Eagle Pass, and Maria G. Saenz of Carrizo Springs.

Eligibility for the Dean's List requires a grade point average of 3.50 and enrollment in twelve or more semester credit hours.
