SHERIFF'S CORNER

BY Norman Hooten
Sheriff

The arrest of a 19 year old suspect late Thursday night, June 18th, cleared up two theft cases we had been working on since we received the first report of the crimes on June 12th.

Robert Hugh Tyer of Red Bluff, Iowa was arrested at approx. 11:30 p.m. by this writer and Deputy Sheriff David Luna at a ranch approx. 20 miles North of Brackettville off Tularosa Road. We had received a report on June 12th of the theft of two saddles from the Ft. Clark Stables tack room. The victim of the reported crime was Julian H. Flores, Jr. of Ft. Clark. Mr. Flores reported that the two saddles were discovered missing on the 12th but could have been taken prior to that date.

During the course of the week long investigation we turned up evidence linking Tyer to the crime scene and he became our prime suspect within hours of the report.

One of the stolen saddles was recovered at the ranch where Tyer was arrested and another saddle was recovered the following morning. Ironically the first saddle recovered turned out to belong to Debbie Herman of Ft. Clark who had not even discovered it was missing until we called her to come to the Sheriff's Office to identify it. The other recovered saddle was one of the two reported stolen by Mr. Flores. At the time of this writing the remaining stolen saddle has not been located.

Tyer has been charged with 2 counts of Class A Misdemeanor theft and bonds set in the two cases by Justice of the Peace, Alvin Hall total $1,000.00. The cases will be tried in County Court at a later date. Tyer remains in jail in lieu of the bonds.

On Saturday morning, June 20th, we received a report of a dead body on the railroad tracks 3 miles east of Spofford and the investigation indicates that the unidentified Mexican National was sleeping near the railroad tracks and was struck on the left arm and head by an eastbound train at approx. 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

From evidence at the scene we believe that the man heard the approaching train, raised up to look and was struck by an object protruding from the train. It appears he was killed instantly and never moved from the position he was in when struck.

Photos and other physical descriptions will be distributed to the Mexican Consul in Eagle Pass and various other law enforcement agencies on both sides of the border in an attempt to obtain identification of the deceased man.

Another incident which occurred late Saturday night left a Del Rio woman hospitalized with injuries she received when she fell from a car on Ann Street in front of the Tax Appraisal Office. The young woman had been drinking heavily and according to witnesses she insisted on riding on top of the car with a male companion. When the driver of the vehicle made a turn off Ann Street both the woman and her companion fell off, he received no injuries but she had numerous bruises about the face and head. EMS personnel were called to the scene and the accident victim was transported to Val Verde Hospital by ambulance. The woman's male companion was arrested at the scene and charged with Public Intoxication and Resisting Arrest after he became extremely argumentative with peace officers at the scene trying to prevent his interfering with EMS people attending the injured woman.

He was tried in County Court on Monday, June 22nd and received a $350.00 fine plus $88.00 Court Costs on a plea of guilty as charged.

In keeping you advised of the current situation at the county jail, we received nine (9) federal prisoners on Monday, June 22nd. and anticipate added revenue of some $19,600.00 by the end of July. That added to the $60,000.00 total already collected adds up to over $80,000.00 this fiscal year we will have collected in prisoner care fees. As the old saying goes "that's better than a kick in the pants."

GARDENING TIPS

BY THE MORNING
GLORY GARDEN CLUB
DEL RIO, TEXAS

AN HERB GARDEN

There are many kinds of Gardens - why not an herb garden, close to the kitchen door. They may be planted in a small plot, hanging baskets, pots, and even in old tires. A tire for each herb. This type of garden can be beautiful, as the plants have delicate blossoms in soft lovely colors. Herbs are both annual and perennial.

Some of the annual herbs are dill, basil, and borage. If you grow dill from seed, thin the plants eight to ten inches apart. It has feathery leaves and pale yellow blossoms. Use good soil and drainage for all herb plants. Basil adds color to a garden with its green leaves tinged in purple, with small white and purple flowers. It smells similar to cloves, and the plants should be spaced about ten inches apart. Borage has a place in the herb bed also, as it has lovely blue flowers that look like the Forget-me-not, and the fresh leaves taste like cucumbers.

Some of the perennial herbs are the following: chives, thyme, mint, and sage. Chives is a tiny onion of a delicate flavor. Its leaves are tubular and produces round clusters of lavender flowers. The clumps should be divided every two or three years, and may be used to border a flower bed. It can be planted in a pot and placed on the window sill. An upright growing herb in the Thyme with pink and lavender flowers. The leaves have the best flavor before the blossoms appear. Mint grows easily and spreads very fast, its leaves are dark green and the flowers are lavender. This herb has many uses. Sage plants last for years if planted right. The foliage is gray with lavender spicy flowers, but beware, the flavor is strong and should be used sparingly.

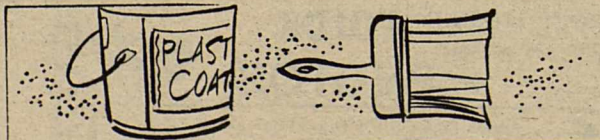

MADGE HORN, CLUB MEMBER

Freezing changes some flavors: the potency of onion flavor decreases; that of spices and garlic increases.

"THE NITTY AND THE GRITTY"

BY JOE TOWNSEND

Did you ever see a Road Runner fight a rattlesnake? It is an amazing sight. A rattlesnake strikes so fast it is almost impossible to see it. He coils and can strike roughly two thirds of his length. The Road Runner darts in and strikes at the head of the snake. He is quick enough that he is in and out before the snake can dodge or strike. The Chapparal continues until the snake is dead. It must be that they are natural enemies.

There are some people who seem to be natural enemies to life itself. Nothing is right. They spend their lives fighting life.. They are constantly at odds with people. They are quick and viscious as the Road Runner. The Road runner is one of my very favorite birds and the rattlesnake is one of my bitterest enemies. I always try to kill a rattlesnake when I see one because of the danger he poses to animals and humans. I suppose in that way I am kin to the Road Runner.

The main thing about the battle is that a small animal like the Road Runner will challenge the dangerous rattlesnake. A rattle snake five feet long is not big for the Road Runner to attack and kill. It is not alwys the size that is important. The courage and heart for the task is the winning combination. The Road Runner uses only what it has; but he uses it with courage and an aggressive spirit.

There is no battle in life that cannot be won if one aimply takes what he has and uses it wisely and well. The courage and heart to use what one has determines the winner.

FLOODS WE'VE HAD BEFORE

BY DIXIE BROWN

The dreadful flood of '87 really took us by surprise, Why, we couldn't believe the sight before our very eyes.

Could that be the little stream called Las Moras Creek, That gently flows along its course the Rio Grande to seek?

The old timers told us about the floods we've had before, But it didn't seem possible when fishing from the shore.

Over its banks the water came seeping under our doors, And left its ulgy mark of sediment all over the floors.

We should have been prepared for the sound of the warning, And set out a trout line in our living room that morning.

The Red Cross was helpful; gave us a broom and a mop, Some disinfectant and a big sponge with which to sop.

After the tears the cleanup came; it seem so bleak, We cleaned, mopped, swept and sopped for an entire week.

Will it dry? Who knows? we were put to the test, But saved what we could and threw away the rest.

The insurance adjuster came but only had to say, "Sorry, floods aren't covered so we don't have to pay".

All the folks stuck together and showed such concern, As we helped our neighbors and they helped in return.

But hard times like these will only make us stronger, Brackett is our home and will be for a lot longer.

Years and years from now we'll go fishing from the shore, And tell the youngsters about the floods we've had before.

Today's hens lay eggs about twice as large as those of the ancient Greeks.

WARNING

Commissioner of Insurance George Dale is warning the public to be careful in purchasing senior citizens life and medical insurance from television advertisements endorsed by famous personalities.

"Many of the ads dwell on low cost, but consumers do not realize they have purchased a policy with limited benefits until it has already been issued," Dale said. A life policy may pay no benefit if the insured dies of natural causes within two years of purchasing the coverage. The company will pay only the actual premium paid by the policyholder under the terms of the policy.

In other instances, reduced benefits are paid to the beneficiary during the first two years after the life policy is in effect. For example, one company will pay only ten percent of the face amount if the insured should die within the first year. This would result in a $200. benefit paid on a $2,000 policy.

"Mississippi law gives policyholders a ten-day period that the policy can be returned to the company for a full refund if it is determined you do not desire to keep the coverage," Dale said. "Individuals should take the time to review the policies upon their receipt and return it to the company if the coverage is not what they thought was being bought."

He said that some of the medical insurance offered in the television ads pay a set amount for each day a person is in the hospital: however, the first three days of confinement are excluded.

"In other words, no benefit would begin until after the fourth day in the hospital," Dale stated.

"I am concerned with the particular targeting of our senior citizens and the emotional appeals made by well known personalities.

Amelia Spell in the Alamo Village Indian Store

Amelia Spell's favorite item in the Indian Store where she works at Alamo Village is the handmade Ute Indian pottery. "I like its' simple design, and how each piece is painted and signed by the artist," she said of the Great Sleeping Ute Mountain Tribe's work. A 1983 graduate of Brackett High School, Amelia said she likes working at the Village "because you get to meet a lot of interesting people." Amelia's hobby is latch-hooking rugs, but that will soon be replaced by bottles and diapers for the new addition she and her husband, Jerome, are expecting in late July or early August. Amelia will be leaving Alamo Village prior to the baby's arrival, then joining Jerome in Greenville where he is employed by E-systems Electronics after the baby is born.

Nell Hurley working in the Alamo Village General Store

Nell Hurley spends her days at Alamo Village looking at John Wayne - a life-sized picture that is. "He's not such a bad fellow to have to look at all day," she said. Nell moved to Brackettville almost a year ago from Blanco, Texas with her husband Don. The past nine months of working at Alamo Village have been nice she said, because the peace and quiet of the winter months have given her time to crochett the tablecloths, afgans and little stuffed animals that she sells. Nell likes the relaxed, friendly atmosphere of Alamo Village because it gives her a chance to visit with the vast array of people who tour the famous movie location. "After all," she said with a smile, "talking is my favorite occupation anyway!"

Rita Sims in her "office" at Alamo Village in the Cantina

Rita Sims has been cooking at Alamo Village for 19 years. She calls the six months she took off to open her own restaraunt her "vacation". But it was hardly that. "I wanted to have something of my own," Rita said. "But I finally realized I couldn't. It is really hard to run a restaraunt by yourself, and I missed the Village, so I came back. A lifelong resident of Brackettville, Rita calls Alamo Village her second home. "They don't treat me like an employee, they treat me like family. I have never worked with anyone as good as the Shahan's have been to me." Rita has had some well-known personalities sampling her cooking. It was singer Tom T. Hall that gave her the nickname "Enchalata Mama," and singers Ray Price and Mel Tillis are two more of her favorites who used to stop and visit. "I have talked to some beautiful, wonderful movie stars in my kitchen," she said warmly. Rita spends her spare time working around the 18-acre "ranchita" where she lives, gardens, and raises chickens and cattle.

Affairs of Life

Pernicious actions are costly - and, it scars the soul. Eccl. 7:14

"Owens of the railroad", was what they called them when the railroad was king.

For nearly one hundred years the name Fred Harvey has been connected with good food and the railroad. Shortly after landing in 1850 in New York Harvey got his first job in the Smith McNeill Cafe. He was fifteen years old and just over from London, his native home. He made two dollars a week washing dishes. But he kept his eyes open and learned the restaurant business and in 1850 he established his first dining hall in St. Louis. He opened his first railroad restaurant on the second floor of the Santa Fe depot in Topeka, Kansas in 1876. In the eighties and nineties he started other dining halls through Kansas, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico and on to Arizona and California.

In those days meals on trains was poor if any, but now the Harvey Girls provided service in attractive dining halls along the railroad. With their clean and pleasing appearance and good manners they were an instant success.

Harveys' Girls were recruited from good homes in the east and historians say they played a large part in railroad history and the settlement of the west. They brought culture, refinement and romance where buffalo, wild Indians, and horse stealing was common place.

Dormitories were built for the girls complete with house mothers. They were entirely protected and many were former school teachers. Even some of the local wayward men were seen escorting a Harvey Girl to church on Sunday.

It is claimed that four thousand Harvey Girls who were married, named a baby Fred, or Harvey or both.

The girls were visions in their black and white waitress uniforms and legends grew up around them and their employer.

Will Rogers once said he figured Fred Harvey and his girls kept the west in "food and wives".

One story goes that twenty thousand of the pretty Harvey Girls wound up as brides to western cowboys, ranchers and railroad men.

When the railroad business declined, the Harvey Company moved to the airports, shopping centers and resorts. There are still resort facilities in some of the National Parks as well as other locations across the land.

But the Harvey Girls were not the only attraction of the Harvey house.

Before nineteen hundred breakfast cost fifty cents and included cereal or fruit, eggs on top of thick juicy steaks with hash browns and six large hotcakes swimming in butter and maple syrup, topped off by apple pie and coffee.

Dinner was seventy-five cents and varried, featuring a delicious entree (sometimes wild game) and served with a smile by the Harvey Girls.

The one regulation Fred Harvey insisted upon was the "coat rule. In his early days it was proper to wear dinner jackets. Harvey kept a supply of dark coats on hand and would loan his customers the use of one before he would turn him away. I guess the casual dress habits nowadays would cause Harvey to figure up some different arrangements.

One of the stories circulated was when Fred Harvey died at sixty-six his last words were "Don't cut the ham too thin."

Harvey Company became a subsidiary of Amfac Inc. and the legends and aura of romance that always surrounded the Harvey House Girls was no more.

Recently in Las Vegas, New Mexico a beautiful Harvey House has been restored and is used for community activities and features the historical dining hall.

RED CROSS

Rosa Baker and Ron Kelley, Kinney County Red Cross Chairperson, attended two sessions on disaster training in Del Rio on Friday, June 19, 1987. Representatives from the Comstock and Del Rio area were present. Baker, Beatrice Rocha, and Beverly Wright will attend a training session on disaster preparedness in Austin on July 14th and 15th, as a result of this initial orientation.

Kelley said he is encouraged by the reponse of local citizens to his call for a combined drive of all charitable groups. He re-emphasized the need to establish a Red Cross disaster fund for small and large Kinney County tragedies such as floods, fire, and tornadoes. A unified drive whereby all charities and service organizations would divide contributions would satisfy this need and stop several individual campaigns.

During the past week he has received suggestions that the Swim Pool Assoc., Babe Ruth (Little League), Capital Improvement Fund, EMS (AMBULANCE), Red Cross, Salvation Army, March of Dimes, Volunteer Fire Department, Kidney Foundation, Heart Society, and Cancer Fund join in a unified drive. "Although two of the organizations above usually don't participate in local combined drives it would be to their advantage to do so in this county," he went on to say.

Kelley would like to speak to Kinney County fraternal and civic organizations about the plan. He can be reached at 563-2752.

100% OF SENIORS PASS EXIT EXAMS

Superintendent Bob McCall announced earlier this month that all of the Brackett Seniors successfully demonstrated mastery of the Exit Level TEAMS Test. Mr. McCall said that there were two seniors that passed the test in May. All others had successfully mastered the test at one of the three earlier test dates. Only special education children are not required to demonstrate mastery in the Reading and Math portion. All other students who do not demonstrate mastery cannot receive a diploma, or go through the graduation ceremony.

The Superintendent stated that the students at risk of not graduating were placed in special remedial classes during the Spring Semester where they worked on the areas where they had demonstrated weakness on prior tests. The remediation really paid off. McCall stated that it would have been very sad to see these seniors not be able to receive a diploma or not graduate with their peers.
