CP & L REFUND

Customers of Central Power and Light Co. may receive a credit on their electric bills in October. Central Power and Light Co. today (Friday) requested permission from the Public Utility Commission to refund $20.5 million in fuel overcollections. The amount includes $19.5 million in fuel savings and $1 million in interest collected since April 1989.

If the refund is granted, a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity would receive a credit of approximately $15.96 on their October bill. The amount of the refund will vary depending on the customer's actual electric use in September.

Overcollections occur when CPL is able to purchase fuel at prices below the set fuel factor approved by the PUC. Several things can affect the price CPL pays for fuel, including contract changes, competition among the spot fuel markets, or the addition of an electric generating unit that uses a lower-cost fuel. Unit 2 of the South Texas Project began commercial operation in March 1989.

Since the first unit of the South Texas Project began generating electricity in April 1988, nuclear fuel has saved CPL customers approximately $30-million dollars through July 1989. At today's prices, it costs about $.50 cents to produce a million BTU (British Thermal Units) of heat using nuclear fuel, compared to an average of more than $2.00 to produce the same amount of energy using coal or gas.

Fuel costs and the cost of providing electric service (base rates) are figured separately on customers' bills. CPL's request for a base rate increase in its electric rates is currently being reviewed by the PUC.

As part of an earlier interim rate agreement, a new, lower fuel factor will take effect August 28. This lower factor is a $32 million decrease over CPL's previous fuel factor.

WHITETAIL DEER

The Whitetail Institute of North America is a for profit corporation that serves as a central clearinghouse of information, research, and other general matters of topical interest devoted exclusively to the whitetail deer.

The Whitetail Institute was founded in 1988 by Ray Scott, the nationally acclaimed outdoorsman/conservationist who single-handedly formed the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society two decades earlier. The stated goal of the Institute is to communicate, in lay language, key findings from the academic and scientific communities that lend pragmatic applicatins to contemporary situations. Serving as its sole benefactor, the White Tail Institute is fully funded by Scott.

In addition to monitoring projects relating to whitetail deer as performed by others, the Institute has developed and implemented its own program of applied research. Some specific examples include: SPERM BANK - Using Alabama as a model for future national participation, the Institute will save the semen of trophy deer taken in the state during regular hunting seasons. The sperm will be suspended in liquid nitrogen for future implantation into selected does via artificial insemination.

FORAGE NUTRITION - Comparing a full spectrum of food choices made available to deer, the Institute measures browse preferences demonstrated by whitetail deer in a natural environment. Once determined, the nutritional values of the consumed vegetation to deer are calculated. Plantings include ryegrass, wheat, oats, certain legumes, and a host of clovers.

GENETIC COMPARABILITY - On Institute property, fawns from Montana and Alberta, Canada are being maintained and monitored separately from a similar number of Alabama fawns. The two general groups are fed and raised under the same conditions to determine what, if any, genetic differences might be evident after several generations of free breeding within each group.

The Whitetail Institute of North America is located south of Montgomery, Alabama in the rural suburban community of Pintlala.

DEER WILD ABOUT NEW CLOVER PLANTING

PINTLALA, ALA. -- While some people may argue their taste preferences for certain brands of burgers and colas, whitetail deer have settled on their favorite choice of browse. According to test results just released by the Whitetail Institute of North America, the vegetation preferred most by deer is a new clover product known as Imperial Whitetail

Brand Ladino Clover.

According to Ray Scott, President of the Whitetail Institute and founder of the world famous Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, this newly developed clover product by Cal/West Seeds of California can help revolutionize the sport of deer hunting and improve the overall quality of the species, particularly antler development and fawn quality.

Said Scott, "whitetail deer are just like people. They know what foods they like to eat and they're attracted to them. Our tests and the field testing by scores of hunters across the country have proven that deer prefer to browse this newly developed clover by a margin of up to 5 to 1 over other clovers and other kinds of forages traditionally planted for whitetail deer. It's a sure bet that where this clover is planted, you'll find deer."

Imperial Whitetail is a professionally formulated mixture of high quality Ladino clover varieties and was tested for several years against other clovers, including Crimson, Regal, Arrowleaf, White Dutch, Louisiana S-1, and other clovers commonly planted in America. The new clover product was also field tested by deer and turkey hunters along side other plantings normally planted as deer attractants. Included were oats, ryegrass, and seed wheat. "Until we tested Imperial, a planting that would stay green and highly nutritious year round was unheard of by us or other wildlife people we talked with.

"While the whitetail really prefer Imperial Whitetail," Scott continued, "the real beauty of the clover is its long growing season. Under normal conditions, and with adequate moisture, it keeps producing ALL YEAR LONG and doesn't normally need annual reseeding. When most of the other clovers peter out in the spring, form seed heads, and lose their taste and become too tough to chew, Imperial Whitetail remains lush and tender year round. It's always good nipping for deer."

Randall Rogers, a practicing consulting wildlife biologist and Executive Director of the Whitetail Institute, shares Scott's enthusiasm for the new clover product. Said Rogers, "in addition to the extended growing season, this new clover product has an exceptionally HIGH PROTEIN CONTENT. Over the period of a year, protein levels in this clover were tested to be over twenty percent, EVERY MONTH OF THE YEAR. The consistantly high year round protein level is a crucial factor in the nutritional development of whitetails, particularly in antler development."

As most experienced deer hunters know, spring and summer are the important seasons in the development of deer. It's during these peak months that unborn fawns receive the foundations that will determine future growth patterns for the rest of their lives. Also, these are the seasons of the year when bucks are growing their antlers. The odds are excellent that a big buck sporting a trophy rack in the hunting season enjoyed a steady and nutritious diet not only in the spring and summer months, but also in the fall and winter.

"We've field tested this clover all over the country," Scott said. "It's performed well, particularly during the hunting seasons, in attracting deer in the states of Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi, Texas, and other states in between. As far as we can determine, this clover should do well anywhere in the country except in areas with

This is a busy week with the onset of school and all the activities associated with it. The District Extension Horticulturalist, Dr. Loy Shreve, and I worked on grafting some Chinese varieties of English walnuts the other day. These varieties are just recently introduced in this country and are growing on the Sterling Evans Ranch, north of Brackettville. They are part of a result demonstration plot I have going with Mr. Evans. I would like to have a horticulture tour for homeowners this spring and this will be an ideal spot to see the work taking place.

FALL GARDENING

Gardening is another popular past time in our county. Did you know that a fall garden often produces better quality and higher yielding vegetables than a spring-summer garden? Cooler weather means a longer harvest period for many vegetables. You can count on lettuce, collards, spinach, broccoli, cauliflower and brussel sprouts to be a part of your Thanksgiving meal and lettuce and other leafy greens will be sweeter and more tender.

Timing is essential when planning a fall garden. Vegetables adapted to fall gardens can be divided into four groups by their tolerance of freezing temperatures.

Warm season vegetables adapt to fall gardens but they are killed by frost. These include snap beans, southern peas, summer squash, winter squash, cucumbers, sweet corn and early maturing pepper and tomato varieties.

Cool season crops usually damaged by light frost when mature include lettuce, cauliflower, kohlrabi, celery, cabbage and broccoli.

A third group of vegetable are those moderately tolerant of repeated light frosts and they are: carrots, parsnips, beets, brussel sprouts, leaf lettuce, radishes, ruta bagas and turnips.

The last group are those tolerating night after night of freezing and they include: bulb onions, green onions, chives, garlic, shallots, spinach, parsley, collards and Buttercrunch and Romaine varieties of lettuce.

Seed of snapbeans, baby lima beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, collards, sweet corn, cucumbers, and summer squash will all produce vegetables probably before the first killing frost if they are planted in mid-August.

You can go about establishing your fall garden in two ways. Sowing seed in the garden is one choice but will require repeated irrigation and careful attention to pest control. It's sometimes easier to start seedlings of tomatoes, peppers, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, and parsley in boxes or pots of potting soil, grow them in protected areas, and transplant them to the garden when four to five weeks old. You can also buy transplants from nurseries. If you have any questions or need more information on fall gardening, there are several Extension Bulletins available in my office.

REFLECTIONS

BY PRESTON TAYLOR
FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Are you satisfied with your job? Do you receive enough pay for the long, hard hours you put in? Is your boss hard-boiled and fussy? What do you think about your fellow employees and your company or institution.

Take another look. If you owned the company or firm you worked for, how would you feel if the salaries came out of your own pocket?

Would you gladly pay ("out of your pocket") another person the money you get if that other person had your job? More directly, are you worth what you get?

What's your work schedule? Do you ever keep a check sheet on the exact productive things you do for an entire day—writing down a brief report of what you do every 30 minutes? In one of my study projects, I once had to write a brief memo of what I did for a 7 day period—keeping a 15 minute report on every 24 hour day for the entire week. That might "shake up" some folks.

What about "loafing time"? Understandably, "break times" are expected twice each day. And yet, some people "goof off" or waste most all the working hours of the day with little more than "gabbing" and "thumb twiddling". Others work themselves "to the bones". What's your status?

What quality of work do you perform? On a report card would you pass? Would you make an A? B? C? D? F? If you were a doctor, would your patients live? If you were a pilot, would the plane take off and land safely and on time? If the quality of work done is a fraction off on some jobs, total failure is the result. For instance, 8 times 8 is always 64. Again, 49 plus 11 is always 60. A miss is a miss—no mistakes are allowed in math or chemistry! What of your work? Is it "sloppy" or superior?

By the way, God works! He has given us a job to do. And the same Lord who put Man in a garden "to dress it up and keep it" has a task for each one of us. How are you measuring up?

SNÖÖPS

Well folks here I am again on this HOT! summer day, a pounden on this here typewriter. By the time this reaches the newstands, summer will be over. Ma dictionary says a lot a things, but mainly that the time is June, July, and August. Kids are in school, and alls calm around these here parts. Labor Day week-end will be here, and we're goin to have a time of it with B-B-Q's and dancin, and all. Lawdy, how the year has just slipped right on by.

Well! I ben a snoopin around, and one shore do larn a lot about the wonderful people what make up this area. Talked with Norma Allemeier, and she said that she had ben gone fur two long months, ta visit her folks in Ohio. When she come back, they spent a whole day in the Arkansas mountains, and it shore is purty up there. Her oldest son, Wayne Suever, is also in Ohio. She mentioned about the twins, Willie and Bernie, age 13, who are here, and she said they ben here seven years. When in Ohio, they went on to Chicago for a visit with friends and relatives. All in all, they had a great time. She also mentioned that she has special friends in "Mom and Pop", who are also Esther and Al Kesteloot, who live in Unit three.

When someone tells ya how special these folk are, then it's important to jest give them a jingle and chat a spell, which is jist what I did. They are very nice folk. They originally came from Michigan, where they had gone to visit two sons, and relations, haven left the last of June, and got back the end of July. These folk have seven grandchildren, and three great grandchildren. Ain't that excitin? That all from their son, from Rochester. They got a son and a daughter in Grayling, in North Michigan. I have a time readun my notes, becuz, I don't do that "shorthand stuff", but also believe they heard about the Fort, here from Al's brother-in law, Bill Zwart, who was here once, but no longer. Al's not a feelun up to snuff, and ifen anyone thar would like to come a visitun, give a call first, and come a callen. He's in unit three. Lawdy! I turned the page and it seems that Al, has a bad back, and because of that, the Doctor suggested that they pack their bags and leave to a warmer climate. They hear tell about Fort Clark from a neighbor. Been her over

CITY NEWS

At a Special Meeting and Public hearing held Friday, August 25, 1989, the Mayor stated after tremendous response from the children and their parents, along with other citizens and members of Fort Clark Springs, on the subject of the pool project, he wanted to extended the Council's deepest appreciation to Tully Shahan, Bill Bizzell, Rose Mary Slubar and Tim Ward for all their support, help and concern for the children and their parents of this community.

Thanks to the Middle Rio Grande for the "Gentlemens Agreement", its the City turn to get the grant. The City would like to use the $93,037 grant to construct a new swimming pool where the old County pool is located. The pool will still be owned by the County. When the pool is completed, it has been suggested that the pool be operated and kept open by an appointed committee, also that the maintenance labor and water be supplied by the City and the cost of repair materials be furnished by the County.

The Council passed a resolution for the elderly and handicapped Day Care Center and also a Resolution for a Planning Grant and Affordable Housing.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

My congratulations to the commissioners that are at least trying to look out for the poor taxpayer.

In the last few weeks, Commissioner Bizzell has at least attempted to spend $54,000.00 of county funds. $30,000.00 to rebuild a county barn, that very few other than him wanted rebuilt. (It ends up that some $20,000.00 will be spent to repair it!!!) & $24,000.00 to give to the city along with the swimming pool that is used 10 weeks a year. Both of these projects are construction jobs.

The money for the county barn is to come out of the Bridge and Road tax. (Remember the $5.00 charged every time a vehicle is licensed). The $24,000.00 from the budget.

It seems to me, if the county has an extra $54,000.00 in their jeans, (this figures to something like $21.00 for every man, woman and child in Kinney County), they might consider abolishing the $5.00 bridge and road tax, and rolling back the county taxes. I'll bet this would make more people happy than spending it for something like they want to. But then again, Politicians like this have never heard of reducing taxes, except maybe just before election, when they know they don't have to carry through with it.

You like your home, your neighborhood and the people who live around you. True, you probably wouldn't mind living in a newer, energy-efficient home. But, you're comfortable where you are.

Now get even more comfortable.

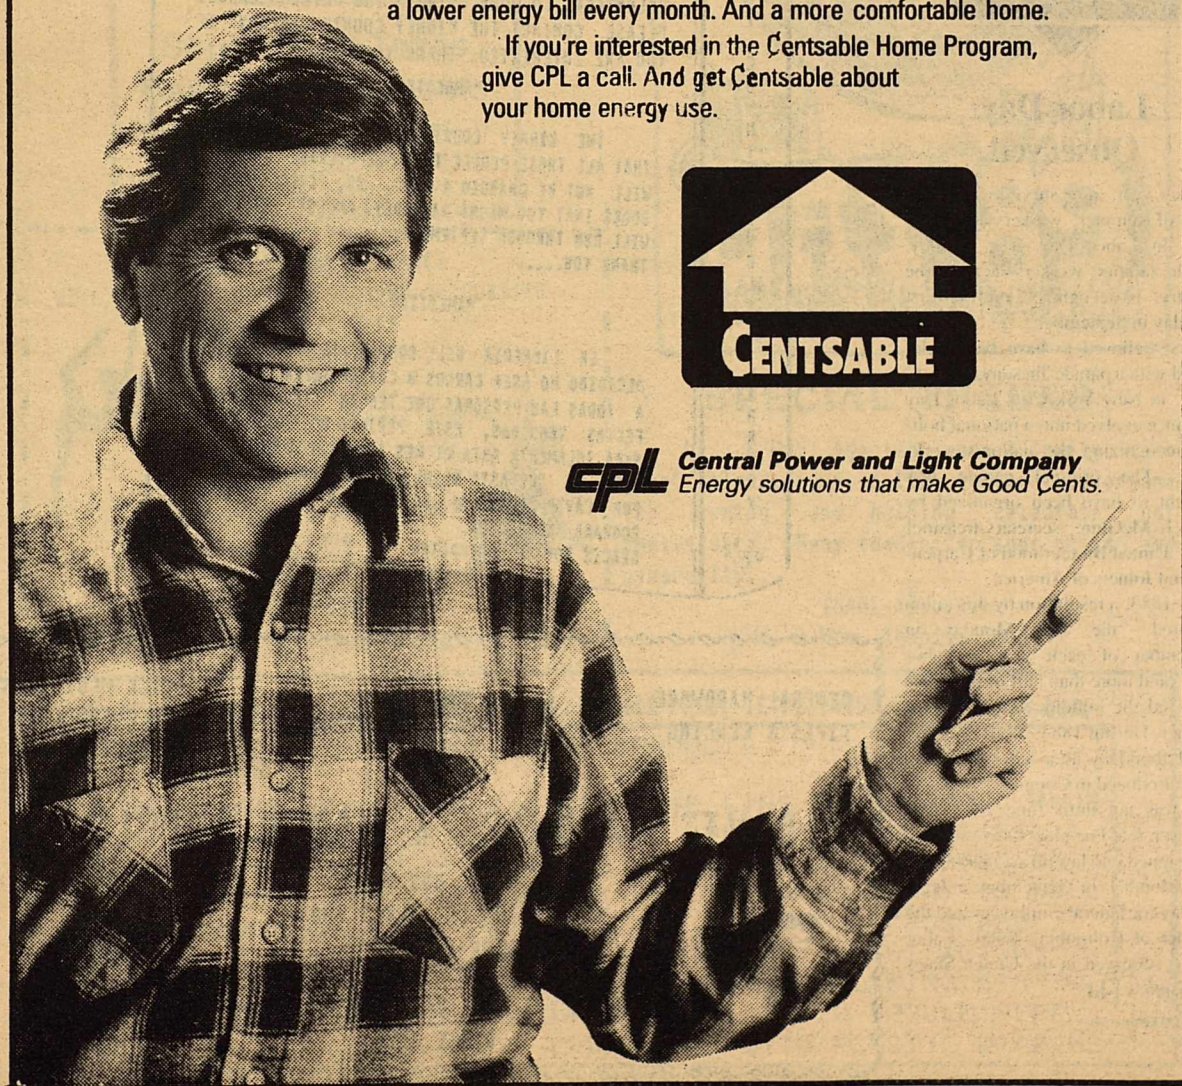

Central Power and Light has developed a program that can make your present house more energy efficient. It's called the Centsable Home Program.

What they'll do is run a Free Centsable survey on your house and then analyze the data. Then, they'll give you specific recommendations on how to lower your energy bills.

The recommendations involve steps like adding more attic insulation, caulking around windows and doors and putting an insulated blanket around your water heater. And installing a new properly sized central heat pump or air conditioner will qualify you for a Centsable Home Certificate from CPL.

You can either call a contractor or do the work yourself. Either way, you'll get a lower energy bill every month. And a more comfortable home.

If you're interested in the Centsable Home Program, give CPL a call. And get Centsable about your home energy use.

Labor Day Observed

Each year, after surviving the dog days of summer, workers look forward to Labor Day. The holiday, which honors workers across the country, is recognized on the first Monday in September.

First believed to have been celebrated with a parade Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City, Labor Day has since evolved into a national holiday recognizing the nation's workforce. The original parade was thought to have been organized by Peter J. McGuire, secretary/treasurer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

By 1883, a resolution by this union declared "the first Monday in September of each year a Labor Day," and more than half of the states observed the holiday on one day or another. During 1883, a bill to establish Labor Day as a federal holiday was introduced in Congress.

It was not until June 28, 1894, however, that President Grover Cleveland signed into law an act making the first Monday in September a legal holiday for federal employees and the District of Columbia. Today, Labor Day is observed in the United States and Canada. ■

In addition to attracting deer and providing a healthy diet as well, the new clover has proven to be a big hit with wild turkey, too.

Imperial Whitetail Clover has another unique feature. Unlike other clover, Imperial does not require the mess inoculation process at the time of planting. It is preinoculated with a special coating before it is shipped. It is conveniently ready to plant by the hunter with full planting instructions.

The whitetail Institute is looking for serious minded, dedicated "food-plot" and "deer pasture" oriented hunters to be cooperative field testers of Imperial Whitetail Clover and other experimental plantings. NEW LAW

A new law passed by the 71st Texas Legislature will change attendance rules in school districts throughout the state. Provision of the law require that a student be in attendance at least eighty (80) days each semester to receive credit. No distinction is made about excused or unexcused absences.

Parents of students will be notified when their children are about to exceed the limit and after the limit has been exceeded. Each district will establish an attendance committee to consider extenuating circumstances if absences in excess of the rule limit occurs. Decisions made by this committee can be appealed to the Board of Trustees in each district.

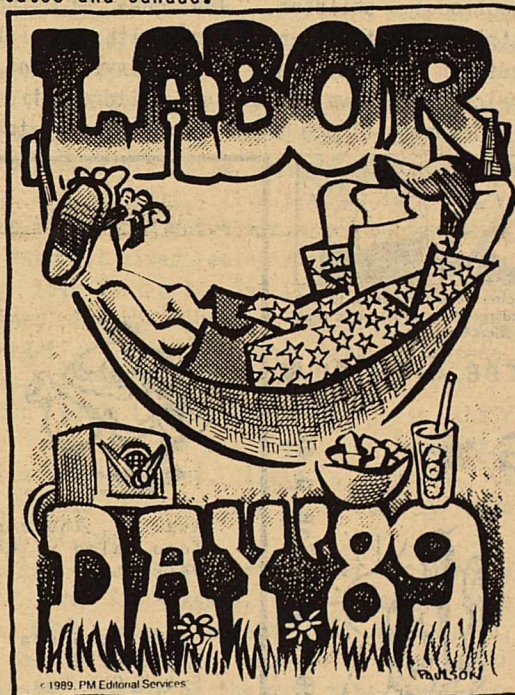

The Brackett Independent School District Board of Trustees will be considering attendance rules to conform with the new state law on Monday, September 11, 1989.

Living along the Mexican border sooner or later you will probably go to a bullfight.

A special breed of bull is bred to fight in the ring called "Toros de Lidio", (bulls of combat). Originally these bulls were the wild cattle of Spain, where in ancient times men hunted them like deer.

In the middle ages Moors and Spanish horsemen killed bulls with lances for entertainment at court and at country festivals. Later the bulls were fought by men on foot a cape for defense and a sword instead of a lance for killing.

The fighting bull has been bred by man for four centuries and registered since 1790. It is the only bull suitable for the bullring and has no other use. It is born with the instinct to fight anything that moves.

At two years of age the bulls, raised on special ranches are tested for bravery, then turned on wild and spacious pastures until they are four years old and ready for the ring.

The bulls are then fed special feed for a few weeks and shipped to the bullring in trucks. They are four years old, weigh between nine and twelve hundred pounds, and are about forty-five to fifty-five inches high at the withers, but very light on their small feet. I once saw a bull leap to the top of the barrier surrounding the bullring and from there into the stands, scattering the spectators.

The bulls neck muscles must be strong enough to toss a horseman and his mount into the air. This blood line of bull is usually all black, sleek, fine haired, quick, powerful and must be approved by a veterinarian to be without defects before he can enter the ring.

The torero must be a special man who is possessed with fever to fight bulls, He must follow the three basic rules of the bullfight. He must stand still when the bull charges. He must have a good sense of timing, and he must dominate the bull.

Bullfighting is a ritual, symbolizing man face to face with life and how he deals with death.

fifteen year. Now I got the story straight. That O.K. Esther? Ifun I do make a mistake, then ya'll call to git me straight on the story.

I got a hankerun to give Russ Owen, a jingle. Ya'll know that Russ lost his lovely wife last year. Russ was on a trip for a month in Houston, Alabama, and Georgia, and had a great time. He loves to fish and hunt. He loves a visit now and then, cuz he's a busy man. He belongs to Masonic Lodge, V.F.W., and the Lions Club. Said that their B.B.Q. was held ta other evenin, to honor and welcome the new teachers of the area. It's an annual affair. He's been at the Fort since 1982. I'm gettun ahead of myself. I mean't to say, "Give him a call first, cuz he's a busy man." And you can see that he shore is.

Well who else do you suppose I spoke too? Shore nuff, it war Ward Pomeroy. He took two weeks to roam around New Mexico. Seems that Mary, didn't go. That Mary, she's a cute one. She loves playin bridge, and exercisin. They got a boy and a girl, livin in the state of Washington. The Pomeroy's have been on the Fort for ten years, in September. Ther're friends of Francis and Daisy Larson.

Then I let my fingers do the walkin, and called La Rue Pratt. She is the finest lady, and we chatted a while. they been here, that is , she and Bill, five years, in unit 15, space #114. They got their place up fur sale, and they got mixed feelun's about leavin, as they love the Fort. She is originally from Alpine, Texas, and the two of them spent twenty-five years or more in Henderson, Texas, before a commin ta the Fort. They're planun to go to East Texas to be near their only son. She got a a sister in-law, Mary Thalia Jones Garnet, livin in Houston. La Rue, would love ta have ya'll come by fur a visit, ya hear?

La Rue, told me about her neighbor's Leola and Ira Fingers. I had sech a nice visit with Leola. It seems that Julie Hatch, married to Bo Hatch, are in ta the acten business. Workin on the play "The Seven Year Itch.", in Del Rio. And these folk are related! Julie is their daughter. also got a daughter Jaye Potter, a married ta Danny Potter, who has the Band, at the school. Seems that Jaye will be teachin in Del rio. Got a right smart daughter, called Allison, goin to Angelo State University, in San Angelo. She won a music scholarship. The very best ta you Allison.-----Leola, had knee surgery last November, and it's still a little rough she says. If'un it hurry's and git's well she'll have the other one done. She say's that they attend the Methodist Church in Brackettville, where their preacher is Roland Cole, and his wife is Karen. Has a cute little son named Shannon. The Cole's just returned from Houston. Leola said that she sure do miss her good friend, Bea Workman. I told her that I had learned that they was a returnin, real soon since they sold their home in Temple, Texas. She said that Bea had dropped in on her a week or so ago, and told her the same thing. So hurry on back here Bea.

My but the time does fly. My space is used up, and I got to git a fixin supper. Have a fun Labor day week-end, and see ya'll next week. News? Jest give me a call here at the Cavalryman - ask for "Snoops".

RORY'S VIDEO REVIEW

DISORGANIZED CRIME

Lou Diamond Phillips (La Bamba, Young Guns) and Fred Gwynne (Pet Semetary, The Munsters) team up with a gang of professional criminals who have everything it takes to rob a bank-except their boss, Corbin Bernsen (Major League, L.A. Law), a car and a plan. The only things they do have going for them are a cop, Ed O'Neill (Married...With Children) and his partner, who are dumber than they are. by the time the gang hits the bank vault, it's a safe bet there's going to be organized insanity and disorganized crime! This hilarious hit from the makers of Stakeout delivers an arresting combination of action, suspense and comedy!

BEACHES

They met on a beach when they were very young, brassy C.C. Bloom (Bette Midler) and classy Hillary Whitney (Barbara Hershey) Through good times and bad times through broken marriages and budding careers, they still had each other. And together they would face their greatest challenge...as only best friends could.

Hershey is splendid, and Midler will astound you all over again with her comedic and musical talents in this critically acclaimed box office smash. Beaches glows with warmth, humor and tenderness...This is one friendship you'll enjoy every minute of.

NEEDS FOR HUMAN SERVICES

AUSTIN - The Texas Department of Human Services is conducting a survey to help identify the health and human service needs of Texas residents.

The survey, known as the 1989 Special Texas Census, is being conducted by mail and involves more than 38,000 households, including more than 11,000 Spanish surname households. In addition to basic demographic data such as age, sex and race, the survey collects information on each respondent's income, health insurance coverage, employment status, child-care needs and disabilities. The results will be used to support the department's budget and planning process and ensure more efficient use of tax dollars.

Households to be surveyed received letters from Gov. Bill Clements the week of August 21, announcing the survey and requesting prompt return of questionnaires. Follow-up-efforts by the department's Budget and Data Analysis Division will also encourage households to complete and return their questionnaires to ensure a representative sample. The sample is designed to provide valid data statewide, regionally and in selected metropolitan areas.

Data collection will continue through October. A toll-free number is provided for respondents to get further information or help with filling out their questionnaires.

The survey is similar to one conducted in 1985. The information gathered then was widely used for department budget and planning purposes, including preparing a legislative appropriation request and supporting the need for health and human services. The data was also use by many other state agencies and legislative task forces.

DISABLED

Beginning September 1, service stations that offer full-service refueling must pump gasoline and diesel for disabled drivers, upon request, at the self-service price. Stations that have only self-service pumps are not affected by the new law, passed during this year's regular legislative session.

To receive refueling service at the self-service price, a driver must display a personal insignia, validation sticker, identification card, or license plates issued by the highway department.

The new law allows Class C misdemeanor charges to be filed against a station manager who does not establish a policy providing refueling services for the disabled driver. Similar charges can be filed against an individual employee who is acting against station policy and refuses to provide this service when requested.

The law will be enforced by the attorney general or a local prosecuting attorney.
