Defense And Disaster Relief

(Second of Three Articles)

If an atomic bomb ever dropped on your city, a well-stocked household first-aid kit would be one of your most urgent necessities.

However, officials of the State Defense and Disaster Relief Headquarters and the Federal Civil Defense Administration point out that you wouldn't have time to get the kit together once a bomb drops — or for that matter — when any type of disaster strikes. The time to get those supplies is now.

Here is what you need:

ANTISEPTIC SOLUTION — Benzalkonium Chloride Solution. One to 1,000 parts of water (or Organic Mercurial compounds in water). Ask your druggist. For OPEN WOUNDS (not for burns).

AROMATIC SPIRITS OF AMMONIA — for faintness. Adult dose 1/2 teaspoonful in cup of water; children 5 to 10 drops in 1/2 glass of water; or use as smelling salts.

BOX OF TABLE SALT (or Sodium Chloride tablets 10 grains) and BOX OF BAKING SODIUM (or Sodium Bicarbonate or Sodium Chloride Citrate tablets 5 grains). For shock: dissolve one tsp. salt and 1/2 tsp. baking soda in one qt. water. Have patient drink as much as he will. Don't give to unconscious person or semiconscious person.

FOUR TRIANGULAR BANDAGES — Compressed, 37 x 37 x 52 in., folded with two safety pins (or make from muslin or other strong material). Wrap each bandage and two safety pins separately in paper. For a sling; as a covering; as a dressing.

TWO LARGE BATH TOWELS, TWO SMALL BATH TOWELS, ONE BED SHEET — Old soft towels and sheets are best and should be laundered, ironed, and packaged in heavy paper (relaundered every three months). For bandages or dressings. Cut in sizes necessary to cover wounds. Towels are burn dressings. Place over burns and fasten with triangular bandage or strips of sheet.

TWO MEDIUM FIRST AID DRESSINGS — Eight in. by 7 1/2 in., folded, sterile, with gauze enclosed cotton pads, packaged with muslin bandage and four safety pins. Two small first aid dressings, 4 in. by 7 in., folded, sterile, with gauze enclosed cotton pads and gauze bandage. For open wounds or for dry dressings for burns. (These are packaged sterile. Don't try to make your own.)

BOTTLE OF BLAND EYE DROPS — Sold by druggists under various trade names. For eyes irritated by dust, smoke, or fumes. Use two drops in each eye. Apply cold compressed every 20 minutes if possible.

TWELVE SPLINTS — Plastic or wooden, 1-8 to 1-4 in. thick, 3 1/2 in. wide by 12 to 15 in. long. For splinting broken arms or legs.

TWELVE TONGUE BLADES — Wooden. For splinting broken fingers or other small bones and for stirring solutions.

WATER PURIFICATION TABLETS — Iodine or Chlorine tablets. Chlorine capsules sold under trade names. For purifying water when it can't be boiled. Tap water officially declared radioactive must not be used for any purpose.

RAZOR BLADES OR SCISSORS — For cutting bandages or removing clothing from injuries. FLASHLIGHT with batteries wrapped separately in moisture-proof covering; 15 large SAFETY PINS for holding bandages in place; bar toilet SOAP for cleaning skin; set MEASURING SPOONS; 50 paper DRINKING CUPS.

O.P.S. Makes Statement

A major activity of the San Antonio district Office of Price Stabilization during 1952 was its public service program designed principally to inform businessmen of their duties and responsibilities under government pricing regulations.

In some instances, compliance action by its enforcement branch were found necessary.

"But at least 95 per cent of the merchants in our 64-county South Texas district gave very commendable cooperation in the price stabilization program," Director Guy P. Allison said, "and most violators, once they understood their responsibilities under the law, were quick to comply."

During the year, O.P.S. personnel from the price operations branch provided free information about pricing regulations in 14,749 interviews with businessmen.

Of this total, 6,159 represented the number of visitors at the district office, 229 West Nueva Street, San Antonio, 3,010 the number of businessmen who attended O.P.S. price clinics in cities or towns in their own areas, and 5,580 interviewed by O.P.S. price specialists at their places of business.

The price branch, headed by Clifton George, Jr., also studied and reported on economic conditions in the district and recommended specific O.P.S. national action. The branch also reviewed 971 pricing cases, most of which involved applications for price adjustments to relieve hardships.

The enforcement branch with Bert W. Thompson as director conducted periodical and special compliance surveys throughout the district. From 20 firms its actions brought collections totalling $33,306.72 for ceiling price violations.

Payments by violators ranged from $15 to $8,420.80. Majority of the cases involved meat firms.

In civil cases pending, the government seeks more than $90,000 for alleged violations of ceiling price regulations in the 64-county San Antonio O.P.S. district.

In addition to its compliance survey operations, the enforcement branch conducted 742 compliance conferences, most of these resulting in prompt compliance operations by the firms affected.

Allison pointed out that all district O.P.S. operations again during 1952 had as their major objective achievement of economic stability as a part in the national defense program.

"We must remember that economic stability is as important to the national defense as are planes, tanks and guns," he said.

Social Security Gives Warning

Four times each year the social security office faces the problem of trying to prevent workers and their families in Kinney County from losing some or possibly all of their future social security benefits, according to John K. Shelton, manager of the San Antonio social security office.

Shelton said the problem arises from the quarterly social security tax returns filed each January, April, July and October. These reports should show the correct name and number of each worker. Without this information the worker cannot receive credit for his wages and this may result in reduced benefits. Also, it is possible that the lost credit could be the very amount necessary to qualify the worker for retirement payments or to make his survivors eligible for payments in the event of his death.

Shelton explained that the employers and workers can prevent such losses by making certain that each name and number is reported exactly as it appears on the employee's social security card.

Hand Signal Month

Governor Allan Shivers has designated January as Hand Signal Month in Texas to forward his contention that "courtesy at the wheel is a potent weapon in the war against death and destruction on our streets and highways." In his official memorandum of designation, Governor Shivers urges drivers to cooperate in the campaign which has for its theme: "Right turn — hand up. Left turn — hand out. Slow or stop — hand down."

This is the second consecutive January that Governor Shivers has applied the hand signal project to his continuing statewide program on traffic safety education. Sponsored by the Texas Safety Association, Inc., it is patterned after the hand signal campaign conducted jointly each year in Dallas by the Citizens Traffic Commission and the Dallas Civitan Club.

"Courtesy in an automobile," said Shivers, "is more important than in the drawing room. If all drivers were courteous while at the wheel, our traffic toll would be tremendously reduced. One of the most obvious and helpful displays of driving courtesy is the conscientious use of hand signals. Proper hand signals not only protect other drivers from one's own actions, but the signaler himself from the mistakes of others."

"And it has been said, with justification, that the habitual use of hand signals almost automatically makes a driver courteous-conscious of other aspects of traffic safety. It adds up to another highly important weapon in the war against death and destruction on our streets and highways."

The Governor recognized the necessity and effectiveness of State and municipal laws and law enforcement agencies, educational programs of various kinds and advanced highway engineering in "our never-ending war against traffic accidents."

"But," he emphasized, "the finger always swings back to the individual driver. Within certain limits, he is the master of his own fate — and that of others. He is a safe driver or a dangerous driver, depending upon his equipment, his skill, his carelessness or his courtesy. More courtesy in traffic makes for more safety in traffic."

The January hand signal project will be promoted through press, radio and television facilities throughout Texas. It is directed by J. O. Musick, General Manager of the Texas Safety Association, and Weldon Hart of Governor Shivers' executive staff, both of Austin, and Bruce Cunningham of Dallas, representing the Dallas Civitan Club and the Citizens Traffic Commission of Dallas.

The trouble with most of us is that our necessities are too luxurious and our luxuries are too necessary.

The dime may not be a good as the dollar, but we bet it goes to church more often.

MENTAL

MEANDERINGS

The New Year is pulling out fast. That is, to most of us. To those who have been, and still are, in a state of expectancy — of what we won't bother to say, but those who have troubles undoubtedly will be bothered for some time to come, unless a Kind Providence comes to their assistance — it will be a matter of sitting or waiting it out. Like this country: with the Korean situation, our economic mess, our troubles with Communism. But, we have the right and the hope to expect that things will improve, for the better, we hope.

Work was started recently on the Macie Road, which will connect highway 90 and Highway 277, the Del Rio and Eagle Pass highway. This will give us another paved road from the South, and with the completion of the Rocksprings Highway to the North, we will soon have an all-weather road to the north, to Rocksprings and other points in that area. The widening of the bridge structures on Highway 90 in the county is being resumed and this will tend to eliminate some more real traffic hazards on this route where most of our accidents have occurred.

Still keeping this New Year resolutions you made? Then, if you have gotten this far with them, just keep at it. You have passed the most critical part of this resolution business: that of staying with them for the first few days and possibly weeks. If you have stuck with them now soon you will find you are stuck with them. And if they were good — that's Bueno.

We started off the new year in this area with some good rain, and though the weather from January 1st for a few days at least was good, and fair, but somewhat windy and cool, it did not dry too much moisture from the soil.

With the convening of the New Congress at Washington, a new approach toward the "solving" of the ills of the country has begun. Too much can not be expected from this new Congress, inasmuch as the evils which beset our form of government — especially when it is as big as ours and has been subjected to so much pressure from all sides to all forms of ideas — and wherein has been well and firmly entrenched those who wish to make it a source of personal profit and gain, and also those who have definite ideas — not all their own — for changes in the government. The trend has been to the left, and the road is long and hard, but we have faith in our government, and believe it will root out most of these parasites.

We didn't believe those who use it had to have reasons to take it up or continue its use, but the other day we ran across a recipe for "high vitamin beer" published in a magazine. Well, well.

The New year seems to be starting off with the usual emphasis on troubles which beset this old world. Not that anyone expected a change so soon, but we all had hopes that there would be something in the wind to give us all more hope. Maybe it is coming. As a noted author once said, the future of mankind lies in two words: Faith and Hope.

The traffic toll throughout the Christmas and the New Year holiday period was rather high, but did not quite reach revised Safety Council totals expected. Which, in a way, was good. That more were not listed on the roll of fatalities, it is assumed, was due in part to the inclement weather which prevailed in many parts of the country. We are glad that it wasn't too bad, though perhaps bad enough.

There is one thing which we find there is a dearth of, and that is ways and means of entertaining oneself, especially in a small community. We have been around them for quite a while, and especially the younger element, one finds that they are hard put — despite their creativeness and activeness — always running out of things to do. That is why we have always favored doing something for, or providing the younger element of the community, with, recreation of a beneficial sort.

We will in the very near future be going into the spring season. Of course, the calendar says that we are quite a good ways away from it, but down in this area, we often find that seasons do not always begin right on the dot when the calendar says they should. Down here, Spring often begins way before the calendar says it should, and oftentimes winter hangs on, in spells, right smart time after it shouldn't.

We heard a right good discussion recently — we won't say where — on doing good to your neighbors, and treating them with the "other cheek" attitude. Then, right afterwards, the one who was giving the version of the good words from the Master just hopped on a companion who inadvertently made a hasty remark. Principle, we thought, is different from example.

When people have nothing much to do, they could not put it more profitably to use than by trying to fix up their premises, helping out their neighbors and the community.

Flu Strikes Many

A form of influenza which has been working havoc through many parts of the United States has struck Brackettville and Kinney County with considerable force. Many persons were reported sick with this illness and many were those who had to stay home for from few to several days. Both Doctors Lloyd and Futrell have been besieged by work in the current epidemic, which to date seems to have been of a severe but not critical type.

From State Health Officer

AUSTIN, TEXAS, January 1

—If you have not had an audit made recently of your physical assets and liabilities, go to your doctor now and have it done, is the advice of Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, to grown-ups in Texas. It is quite as important to check up on your physical resources as it is to look into the state of your financial possessions. By regular care under your physician's direction, you can conserve your physical assets and avoid an accumulation of destructive liabilities.

Everyone starts with a certain amount of physical capital and as a personal business proposition it is worthwhile to preserve. In infancy and childhood our physical resources, as a rule, are safeguards for us. As we grow older, the responsibility for doing so rests upon the individual. The critical period for many comes in middle life with the sudden realization that the physical capital is yielding diminishing returns in the way of physical well being.

The records of health departments and of insurance companies show that from 10 to 15 years have been added to the average length of life. But the same records show that a majority of the deaths are due to the degenerate diseases of middle age.

Nearly all of these diseases have slow beginnings and their onset discovered through physical examinations before they have gained serious headway. Every detection, adjustment or physical expenditures and better budgeting of activities under a physician's direction will help shift the balance from the unfavorable to the favorable side of the ledger.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Pretty "Foxy" Terrier

Talking about dogs the other night—and Sandy Johnson topped everything off with a tall story about his fox terrier, "Boscum."

According to Sandy, "Comes bird season and that dog won't stir if I take down my rifle. Same if it's deer season and I go for my shotgun—he won't move, but he's scratching at the door if I so much as look at my rifle!"

One day, Sandy decided to fool him. He took down both his shotgun and his rifle—and swish, Boscum was on his way! So Sandy put the guns back and took out his fishing rod. He went outside and there was Boscum—digging like crazy for worms!

From where I sit, a dog that can outguess humans is as rare as a human that can outguess other humans. For instance, I like a glass of beer with lunch but I wouldn't think of pouring you one without first asking. Everybody has preferences—and it's finding out what they are and respecting them that keeps freedom from "going to the dogs."

Another Socialist Myth

LONDON — The belief that capital was being accumulated at a rapid rate under the British Labor Government, just doesn't hold up, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The 1952 British national income White Paper shows that the percentage of resources devoted to building up capital during the post-war period is not nearly as large as the socialists claim.

As a percentage of gross national production, capital accumulation amounted to 15.8 per cent, 16.1 per cent and 15.9 per cent in 1948, 1949 and 1950, according to the 1951 White Paper.

But the new White Paper reveals a corrected figure of only about 12 per cent for the same years.

Whether the change to Conservative government during the period between the two White Papers had any influence on the adoption of a more realistic definition of gross fixed capital formation or not, is, of course, open to speculation.
