Author discusses writing 'Keepers' Paula Paul has a pioneer heritage in Bailey County

By Martha Toles Frost
Playwright Paula Paul—who says she has a sense of connection with the past—visited Muleshoe during the production of "Keepers of the Legend" last week, watching every performance.

She said the idea for writing the drama began when she was in Muleshoe to make copies of her mother's column, the "Three Way News," which was published in the papers at Muleshoe, Portales and Morton.

Paul happened to run into Pat Prater, production assistant for "Keepers," who asked her if she would write the outline of an outdoor drama about the early history of Bailey County.

Paul said she would do better than that—she would write the entire play herself. Paul had the background necessary to write the drama because she grew up in Bailey County and heard stories all her life about pioneers finding arrowheads where Indians once lived.

Her grandparents were pioneers in the Lubbock area, she said. And her dad, who rode with cowboys as a little boy, told her about seeing buffalo wallows.

She based the bold West Texas woman (portrayed by Tina Davis) on her enterprising grandmother, who ran a telephone exchange in Plains, TX. "It took a woman with a strong spirit to live out here," Paul said.

Writing is a priority for the Albuquerque author, who lived in Three Way from the sixth grade until she graduated. "It's how I make my living," she said. "When I don't write, I get edgy, crabby—I wriggle. I almost have to write. It's in my

Cotton suffers setbacks

By Curtis Preston

The 1995 High Plains cotton crop suffered severe setbacks at planting, and during the early seedling growth.

Cold wet weather during May caused soil temperatures and moisture to be highly favorable for seedling disease.

Sustained high winds in May and June forced many producers to plant excessively deep or irrigate up when temperature were cool.

Even after cotton emerged, winds continued to pull moisture from the young plants causing continued thinning of stands. Hail and flooding forced many producers to re-plant late, in the month of June.

Following the highly unfavorable start, the month of July has been comparatively favorable for most cotton fields, with warm weather, calm winds and some rain. The adverse start and generally favorable July has created a highly variable condition in each field and on the Plains.

To better inform producers about the status of cotton in their county and on the Plains, an intensive survey of fields was conducted during the first week of August by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service through their ArgriPartners program.

Four hundred fields (twenty from each county) were selected at random for close

New MISD faculty get a warm Muleshoe welcome

By Martha Toles Frost

"The job you do is the most important one in the district," Muleshoe Superintendent Bill Moore told new faculty assembled for orientation in the board room Wednesday morning.

"You impact kids every day.

Our job is to help you do the job you do—answer your questions, meet your needs. We're glad you're here," Moore added.

The president of Muleshoe Classroom Teachers, Sally Messenger, and other representatives of the local teacher organization, welcomed new faculty members with a brunch.

Local businesses provided a shopping bag full of pens, key rings, skin care samples, business cards, food and video coupons, note pads, refrigerator magnets and pot holders.

McElroy targets MISD's newest technology goals

By Linda McGonagill

As director and coordinator of technology for Muleshoe Independent School District, Don McElroy has a huge task ahead.

Just one of the first steps will be to analyze current equipment and software presently in the MISD, pull everything together, from grade one through grade twelve, and enable all MISD campuses (teachers and students) to communicate with each other.

Future goals include the capability to access the library for articles, CD encyclopedic and newspaper information, television classes for high school and college level courses, GED classes, and other long-distance learning capabilities (all interactive).

Other ideas for the future are a local bulletin board, Internet access for the community and campuses, and on-going computer courses, involving word processing, graphics, spreadsheets and desktop publishing.

He wants to emphasize that technology is much more than just computers. Technology consists of many areas—

Horse quarantines slow show & fair participation

This summer's outbreak of Vesicular Stomatitis is a slow-moving storm that has left in its wake canceled horse shows, postponed fairs, and dreams of competition spoiled by livestock movement restrictions.

By Monday, August 7, however, the country's total count of quarantined premises in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado, dropped to 143, down from 169 a week earlier, and animal health officials are hoping the eye of the storm has passed.

Although it isn't deadly, vesicular stomatitis is painful and infectious. Affected cattle, horses and other susceptible livestock, including pigs, sheep, goats and deer, develop blisters in or around the mouth, tongue, teats and above the hooves. Within a few days, the blisters break, leaving raw, oozing lesions that are so painful, the animals are unable to eat until healing begins, usually within a week or so.

"Sick animals can spread the virus when they drool, or when the fluid from the blis-ters comes in contact with another animal. There's also concern that biting flies and insects can play a role in transmitting the disease, so it's important also to control insects and keep pens and barns clean and a fly-free as possible," said the state's regulatory agency for livestock health.

Dr. Terry Beals, executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC),

"To prevent the spread of the virus, it's important to keep infected livestock isolated from the rest of the herd and prevent the movement of any stock that may be in the two-to-eight-day incubation phase," he said.

She said when she begins writing, she finds a comfortable chair so her back won't hurt. And she likes it to be completely quiet—no radio, no kids, no TV, no distractions—so she can "slip into that other world," the world she has created.

Once she's in (that other world), nothing bothers her or distracts her from her purpose. She has often written in the midst of turmoil. She had two children, and their home was "the hub of the neighborhood." And she has written at a metropolitan newspaper office, "but that wasn't fiction," she explained. When writing a newspaper article, she can shut out the noise of phones ringing and people talking.

The first thing Paul remembers writing was an adventure based on a story in the reader at school. Her teacher told her, "You can do better than that!"

"I believed she meant it, and I thought, 'I will do better than this.'" Paul continued to write stories during high school, and she was encouraged when the teacher read them to the class.

But a primary factor that made her become a writer was being an avid reader. "Often kids who read turn out to be writers," she suggested.

Paul wrote the lyrics to the songs for the drama, and she had tunes in her head when she did it. But she wanted music co-writers Cassidy Cleavinger and Alan Finney to explore the possibilities of their own creativity, so she didn't share her melodies unless they asked.

"I hope Muleshoe will continue to produce 'Keepers of the Legend,'" she said. "I think it's gotten off to a good start—thanks to Alan Finney and the Muleplex Production Company."

Paul said she chose a little moment in Bailey County history that was especially significant—the moment when the farmers and the ranchers were deciding whether or not to become a county and the school was getting started.

It happened all over West Texas, she said. But Bailey County is so young that it almost has no history, she said.

Them's fightin' words!

There was a big prairie fire, but that was used in the drama "Texas." The railroad was late in coming, so she used poetic license having the train engine in the play." Train robberies came even later," she said. She portrayed a religion-dominated community because Bailey County has always been dry. Having no alcohol kept the "color" away that is often associated with the old West's saloons and dance hall girls, she commented.

Stomatitis

In West Texas, that practice has worked well for a well-traveled rodeo horse that was diagnosed with the infection July 25. This animal remains in quarantine on its premise near McCaulley, (about 40 miles northwest of Abilene), and the restricted area extends to a 10-mile area around the site. Livestock cannot be moved from the 10-mile area for at least 30 days after sores heal on any infected animals, and exams indicate the infection has not spread.

Dr. Beals said the lesions on the quarantined horse in West Texas healed by July 28, and if additional cases are not diagnosed in the 10-mile area, the quarantined may be released in late August.

"We don't want to take chances with this disease," said Dr. Beals. "Besides the suffering infected animals endure, there is some inconvenience and economic impact when pleasure or work horses become ill. Furthermore, when dairy animals loss production or feedlot animals fail to gain—even lose weight, there is significant economic loss. We are continuing to provide diagnostic assistance as we receive reports of blistering, or sores on livestock."

Dr. Beals urged producers to call their area TAHC office, the TAHC Austin headquarters at (512) 719-0700, or the USDA Austin office at (512) 482-5555, if they notice symptoms compatible with Vesicular Stomatitis.

Two states—Kentucky and Massachusetts—have chosen to refuse stock from states with infection. South Carolina requires the veterinary statement on the certificate of veterinary inspection to cover the past 60 days; and Idaho and Maryland require permits on stock entering from states with infection.

Canada has instituted movement restrictions, refusing entry to livestock and horses from states with infection—or stock that has been in an infected state within the past 30 days.

This cuts competitive horse owners from Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Texas out of summer livestock events in that country.

Likewise, the European Community will not accept horses from infected states, and Chile currently will not accept any susceptible animals (horses, cattle, swine, sheep, goats and deer) from states with infection.

scrutiny using plant monitoring techniques. This data set was interpreted using yield and plant growth data collected on over 150 fields by Extension Agents during the last two years as part of a research project funded by producers through their Cotton Incorporated State Support committee.

The following summary provides a glimpse of the crop condition in Bailey County and across the High Plains during the first week of August.

Within the 400 randomly selected fields, plant height ranged from 4.5 inches to 28 inches tall, with an average of 13.4 inches. Total nodes was on average 12.8, for an average internode size of just over an inch. High Plains cotton tends to be compact this year—a desirable trait for late maturing cotton—due to drought in dryland cotton and early season stress in irrigated fields.

Square retention averaged 90 percent on the High Plains, but dropped off to 71 percent in the fields off the Caprock. On average each plant held five first position squares, those close to the mainstem and most likely to set a boll.

Although boll retention on the High Plains is starting off well, 80 percent, only 1.3 bolls had been set on the plant, on average, as of August 4. With so few bolls set, this year's crop is approximately 10 days behind last year's boll development or 200 heat units later maturing.

The average node above white flower, 5.5, was tracking above last year's level for can use equipment to make displays and handouts.

Meador told new teachers that a teacher mentoring program is available to them if they choose to participate.

Meador said MISD is working to get on line so that it can have a "live curriculum" and a "paperless school."

While the new classroom teachers met, Technology Director Don McElroy was hard at work installing computer equipment at the high school. (See related story about McElroy's interview with Linda McGonagill in this issue of the Bailey County Journal.)

New coaches were at the football field for the first practice. (Coach Randy Adair provided biographies of the coaching staff for the Aug. 10 issue of the Muleshoe Journal.)

And Facilities Director Sam Whalin, who has been coordinating the maintenance of groundskeepers and custodians since June 12, was troubleshooting at his warehouse office after making a run to a local hardware store for needed supplies.

Whalin has lived in Muleshoe all his life and is married to Lisa Whalin, who is MISD's bookkeeper. They have two children, Brandi, 9, and Dal, 5. Previously, Whalin did construction work in the area.

The new teachers described their work and educational backgrounds, their interests and family connections and explained what they would be teaching.

Cindy Cargile and Donna Wiley will be teaching kindergarten at Dillman Elementary School. It is the first job for both teachers.

Cargile and her husband Wade have three daughters—Leslie, Tara and Danielle. She graduated from Eastern New Mexico University with a BS in elementary education. She enjoys reading, crafts and family time.

Wiley has four children—Ryan, who will be in the fourth grade; Derek, in the second grade; Kaleigh, in the first grade; and Keelin, 4. She also graduated from ENMU with a BS in elementary education. Her interests are reading and being with her own kids and her classroom kids and going to the Muleshoe Mules football games. "Go, Mules!"

A new school nurse is joining the staff at Dillman. Cindi Pace has two children, Sarah, 8, and Micah, 5. Pace graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi in 1980 with a BSN in nursing.

Although she has worked in lots of hospitals, she has never been a school nurse before. Her interests include reading, cross-stitch and playing with kids.

Four new teachers are joining the staff at Mary DeShazo Elementary School.

Terry Bohler will be teaching third grade. She and her husband Jim have four children—Heidi, 22; Matt, 20; Jamie, 16; and Randy, 14.

Bohler graduated from ENMU with a BS in elementary education. She has been working at the Muleshoe Journal, and her interests include photography.

Connie Alanis will be teaching English as a Second Language and Spanish enrichment at DeShazo.

She and her husband Robert have four children—Josh, 21; Nicole, 19; Rodney, 16; and Shari, 12. (They also have a granddaughter named Britany.)

Alanis graduated from ENMU with a BA in elementary education. She has taught at Lindsey Middle School in Portales. Her interests include music, dance and watching any sport.

Brenda Capps has three daughters—Seresa, 24; Patti, 21; and Brandi, 17, and one three-year-old granddaughter, Brook. This is her first year to teach, and she will be teaching special education and health at DeShazo. She graduated from ENMU in May, and her interests are walking, reading, and spending time with her girls.

Jan Via will be teaching resource special education at DeShazo. She attended Texas Tech and WTSU, earning her certification in special education. She has taught at Dimmitt Middle School.

She and her husband Gary have two children—Laura Jo, 12, and Sterling, 9. She enjoys hauling them to rodeos and basketball practice and spending time as a family.

Two new male classroom teachers are Dan Stevenson and Joseph K Maker III.

Stevenson, who is single, graduated from Texas Tech with a BA in Spanish. This is his first job, and he will be teaching high school Spanish. His interests are languages, cultures and writing letters.

Baker and his wife Elizabeth have two sons—Liam, 9, and Conor, 7. Baker graduated from the University of Iowa with a BA in English literature, and this also will be his first year to teach (special education resources). His interests include reading, chess and family.

Also new at MHS are Hellen Adrian, who will teach art; Carolyn Johnson, who will teach home economics; and Sharry Jenkins, who will teach English.

Adrian and her husband Lonnie have two children, Christi, 13, and Gradee, 10. She graduated from WTSU with a BS in art education.

She previously taught in Alameda, CA, one year, at Plainview ISD for six years and at Muleshoe for 10 years. Her interests include designing and marketing ladies' accessories and jewelry under the name "Hellen's Originals."

Jenkins and her husband David have a daughter, Shawna Stevenson. She earned a MBE from ENMU. She has previously worked as assistant registrar at ENMU and at Portales High School, teaching office education and English. David Jenkins is the assistant principal at MHS.

Johnson is married to Roald "Buck" Johnson, who was formerly the assistant superintendent at Muleshoe ISD.

She graduated from WTSU with a BS and is pursuing a masters of psychology at ENMU.

She worked last year at First Bank in Muleshoe and for the last 10 years as counselor with troubled youth. She has worked in Austin and the state of New Mexico with the juvenile felony offenders program.

She has taught in Quitman High School and Harmony

High School. She enjoys fishing at Lake Fork, her hometown area in East Texas.

She also enjoys golf and swimming and is an avid reader. She says she loves working with young people and is active at First United Methodist Church.

Adrian Meador, who has been with MISD four years, said he is also new to the system, but "slightly used."

Meador informed the new teachers that their superintendent, Bill Moore, was named top superintendent in Texas last year by the Texas State Library Association, and that the MISD School Board was among the Texas Association of School Boards' top five school boards in the state.

Damron and Johnston are united in marriage

Double-ring wedding vows were exchanged Saturday evening July 29 between Laurie Ann Damron and Jim Johnston at the First Baptist Church in Sudan.

Bradley Damron, cousin of the bride, officiated for the ceremony which was performed before and arched candleabra flanked by brass double heart candleabras decorated with sweetheart ivy and burgundy bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Damron and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Damron of Needmore and Zetha Young of Amarillo.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston of Austin.

As Mr. Julian Damron presented his daughter for marriage, she wore an elegant full length gown of white satin and organza ruffles. The illusion neckline was lavishly decorated with bugle beads and iridescent sequins.

The veil was a beaded headpiece with pearls and iridescent sequins. Somethings borrowed was the veil, belonging to Anna Rosipal, sister of the groom. Something blue was the garter which was given to her as a wedding gift from Becky Lance. For something old, she wore her greatgrandmother's pearl necklace and earrings and carried her mother's Bible which she carried at her wedding. The something new was the bride's dress and bouquet.

She carried a bouquet of burgundy and mauve roses accented with white roses and pearls.

Anna Bechyne of North Richland Hills was the matron of honor. Stephanie Damron, sister of the bride, served as the maid of honor. Bridemaids were Kelly Beasley of Abilene, cousin of the bride and Stephanie Johnston of Austin, sister-in-law of the groom. The attendants were attired in mauve floor length gowns with v-shaped lace and ribbon back and straight skirts. they carried burgundy and mauve rose bouquets.

The Earliest Confession— "Jesus Is Lord!"

One of the earliest confessions of faith, according to Bible scholars, is the short but powerful statement, "Jesus is Lord." Very likely this was the statement uttered by early believers as they were about to be baptized. It was and is a statement packed with meaning.

somehow, to a throne, to a government, to an authority, to something that is supreme, to something to which he offers sacrifice, and burns incense, and bends the knee."

The paradox is that only when a person is bound to Christ does that person become truly free. The Christian is not only a person who believes in the deity of Christ; he or she is also a person bound by the confession, "Jesus is Lord," to Christ as the Lord of all of life.

What a marvelous binding it is! And everyone who is bound through faith to Christ Jesus is also bound to the others who have surrendered to His lordship.

One faith. William Barclay writes, "By faith the New Testament nearly always means the complete trust and surrender of the Christian in and to Jesus Christ.... All Christians are bound together in one [faith] because all of them have made one common act of complete surrender to the love of Jesus Christ."

There may indeed be many creeds and many traditions, many expressions of faith. But the one faith which binds Christian people together is best summed up in three words—"Jesus is Lord!"

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

The Greek word for "Lord" is the word which is used over 6,000 times in the Greek translation of the Old Testament to translate the name of God, Jehovah. When a person confessed his belief by uttering the words, "Jesus is Lord," he was recognizing both the deity of Jesus Christ and the right of the Savior to be Master in every aspect of life.

"Jesus is Lord." Paul says that no one can make that confession from the heart unless the Holy Spirit is at work in his life (1 Cor. 12:3).

Warren Wiersbe, in his book Real Worship, quotes G. Campbell Morgan: "Religion is that which binds a man. Every man is bound somewhere,

Library hosts American Girl dolls this week

By Anne Camp
Muleshoe Area Public Library
 Muleshoe Area Public Library, 322 West 2nd St., is pleased to be able to show the entire collection of American Girl dolls and the books of stories, crafts and cookbooks.

The American Girls collection is a series of historical fiction for children 7-12 that will be on display at the library during the week of Aug. 14-18.

The stories are about five lively girls living at different times in Americas past, and are designed to give children an understanding of American history, along with a delightful story of these girls' adventures.

Felicity Merriman (1774) was a spunky, sprightly colonial girl growing up just as America was becoming a nation.

Today's American girls read about her strong-willed struggle for independence at a time when America was beginning its feisty fight for freedom.

Kirsten Larson (1854), a pioneer girl of strength and spirit, grew up on the edge of the American frontier.

In her stories, readers discover a world of wilderness and prairie, of log cabins and one-room schoolhouses—a life of simple pleasures, heartfelt sorrows and real adventures.

Addy Walker (1864) was a proud, courageous girl who made a daring fight for freedom in the North.

Her stories explore a young girl's determination to be free when her family is separated by slavery and the country is bitterly divided by the Civil War.

Samantha Parkington (1904) was an orphan raised by her Victorian grandmother at a time when America was bursting with new inventions and ideas.

Samantha's stories explore her struggle to come to terms with the new values developing in an era of rapid change.

Molly McIntire (1944), a lively schemer and dreamer, grew up on the home front when America was hard working and hopeful, patriotic and proud.

In Molly's stories, readers learn about life during World War II as Molly copes with rationing and her concern for her absent father.

Balloons, bookmarks and brochures about the authors of the books will be given as long as they last.

Videos about the authors will be shown at 4 p.m. each day. A drawing for a free book of choice will be held. Come any time during the week. Library hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A friendship quilt made by Virginia bowers and her mother's friends, as well as a quilt more than one hundred years old will be on display also.

PAINT . . . Protects wood and metal
 GOD'S WORD . . . Protects the soul

As paint protects wood and metal from decay, rust, and corrosion, so the promises found in God's word protect the soul from the evils of sin, anxiety and despair. Hear God's wonderful promises proclaimed from the pulpit in the church of your choice this Sunday. These promises so heard will accomplish wonderful things in your soul and heart, for God says of His Word, "It shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." Isaiah 55:11.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
 The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Rotary Club report By Dan Lusk

The Muleshoe Rotary Club held its weekly meeting on August 8 at the Bailey County Civic Center. President Mike McDearmon called the meeting to order by requesting Lary Hooten to give the invocation followed by Clifton Finley leading the group with the Pledge of Allegiance.

Rotary Club guests for the week included James Cox, son of Ed Cox; Colt Ellis, son of Todd Ellis; and Cleo Castleberry brought along "the best muffler man around" Dwayne Castleberry.

The program for this week was brought by Bob Finney. Due to the recent articles and local interest, he asked Bill Moore, Muleshoe School Superintendent, to discuss the recent school ratings that had been released.

Moore presented an in depth look at the score breakouts of categories looked at in the rankings and the discussed recent, as well as historical, scoring of the local students.

The program bought out many good questions relating to our school's efforts in educating our students as well as topics including industrial classes.

Birthday policy

The Muleshoe and Bailey County Journals publish birthday announcements free of charge for babies one year old or for people ages 90 and over. A photo may also be included with the announcement. Complete guidelines and forms are available at the Muleshoe Journal office.

Moore went over the school's five year plan for improving the student's performance in many areas. He also emphasized the positive strides which have been made.

Members in attendance included Lonnie Adrian, Harvey Bass, Cleo Castleberry, Ed Cox, Todd Ellis, Jay Feagley, Randy Field, Clifton Finley, Bob Finney, Sam Harlan, Jerry Hicks, Lary Hooten, Bill James, Larry Kirk, Bill Liles, Dan Lusk, Adrian Meador, Mark McClanahan, Mike McDearmon, Bill Moore, Charles Moraw, Mark Morton, Richard Murphy and George Nieman.

The weekly Polio Plus winner was Clifton Finley.

In Bailey County, average plant conditions were plant height, 14.5 inches; total nodes, 13.2; number of squares, 6.3; and 1.1 bolls per plant.

The High Plains crop is late and highly variable with only 1.3 bolls set, but progressing well. The fate of this crop rests with August rains, heat units in September, and freeze dates in October and November.
