BRACKETTVILLE TEXAS, FRIDAY AUGUST 29 1953

BUSINESS NEWS BRIEFS

The Office of Price Stabilization has been busy recently controlling certain items that have been selling below ceiling prices. On the list was fur coats. Curiously, the fur coat decision was made on Washington's hottest afternoon during a period of 90-degree days that broke a nine-year record. The thermometer that day stood at 100.

Someone has suggested that Congress dishes out the taxpayers' money pretty fast. Well, how fast? The House Appropriations Committee gave about 10 weeks only to consideration of the fiscal 1953 budget. Had it given only a single hour's study to each million of the $85 million requested, the year 1981 would have found the committee still considering the 1953 proposals for spending.

The Point 4 Program contemplates both financial aid and technical assistance to underdeveloped areas abroad. Under the technical aid program, the Egyptians who have lived in mud huts since the days of their Pharaoh rulers are now learning from Americans new methods in mud hut construction.

When Congress finally in the last days of the session now adjourned settled on a fiscal 1953 budget, it had lopped funds allotted to control agencies by about 40 per cent. The reduction means that the 17,000 staff of the Office of Price Stabilization will have to be reduced to about 8,000.

The increase in federal taxes in a dozen years amounts to 814 per cent, as revealed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a chart prepared as a part of its government economy effort. In 1940, the average federal tax for a family was $152. It now stands at $1,389.

How can the government's huge current expenditures be financed? Make the rich pay the bill? The Chamber of Commerce of the United States estimates that if all incomes above $10,000 a year were confiscated in taxes the additional yield would finance government spending for only about two weeks!

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States cites four practical steps in rebuilding blighted city downtown areas. They are (1) acquisition of land in the areas, usually by a municipal agency; (2) demolition of outmoded buildings; (3) replanning streets and utilities to improve land usage, and (4) resale to purchasers who will rebuild according to approved plans.

The federal government now is owner of about one acre of land in every four in the United States. Its holdings total nearly a half billion acres. In the eleven western public lands states, the average is 54 per cent. In Nevada it is 87 per cent and in Oregon 73 per cent.

American business creates 600,000 new jobs every year for young people starting out on their life careers. That means an enormous amount of capital investment is needed to provide these jobs. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States points out that every tax raise cuts down the amount of capital for investments that make jobs.

In 1913, the first federal income tax law provided rates from 1 to 7 per cent. Now they are from 22.2 to 92 per cent. In 1909, the rate specified in the first corporation income tax was 1 per cent. Now the average is 60 per cent.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—I am a World War II veteran taking a correspondence course under the GI Bill. May I switch to a classroom course in the same field this coming fall, even though the GI cut-off date has passed.

A—No. Under post-cut-off-date regulations, veterans may not switch from correspondence to classroom training, even if it's in the same field.

Q—My husband, who was a World War II veteran, died recently because of a service-connected disability. He did not use his GI loan benefit. I'd like to buy a house with the insurance he left me. Is there any way I can get a GI loan to help me do so? I have not remarried.

A—Yes. Under the law, unmarried widows of such World War II veterans may be eligible for GI loans, on the same basis as the veterans themselves.

Q—I am getting a VA pension for a total and permanent non-service-connected disability. In figuring out my yearly income, to determine whether I am eligible, do I count the money my wife brings in as a seamstress?

A—No. Your wife's income is her's and therefore is not used in computing your total yearly income for pension purposes.

Q—While on active duty during peacetime 1949, I was disabled in a training accident and was paralyzed from the waist down. Would I be entitled to a VA grant for a "wheelchair home," or must the disability have occurred in time of war?

A—If you meet all the other requirements of the law, you may be eligible for a "wheelchair home," even though your disability was incurred during peacetime. There's no restriction under the law, as to when a veteran suffered his disability in service.

The Human Side Of Social Security

By: W. A. Watson

Field Representative
Social Security Administration
San Antonio, Texas
Article No. 4

The field offices of the Social Security Administration get applications for social security cards from persons of all ages— young students, middle-age people, and persons well past the Biblical three-score and ten.

One of the youngest applicants recently turned up at the field office. He got in line just behind a squatty gentleman whose weight caused him to continually shift from foot to foot. The little fellow's head would bob in and out on either side for a quick glance at the receptionist. Then it was his turn. He took a couple of steps to the desk and straightened up. From underneath his cap that was set on his head sideways, were locks of blond, curly hair. He stood on his toes, his chin parallel with the top of the counter, and said shyly: "Mister, can I have a social security card? Sure need it bad."

The receptionist asked a question; the 8-year-old applicant had an answer. "My Daddy had a social security card, but he went to war before he had a chance to use it much. After his plane was shot down, Mom brought his card in here, but you said Daddy hadn't worked long enough. Then last winter Mom got a letter saying it was all fixed up, or something, and now Mom and me both get checks every month. I figured I'd better get a card, too, so that if anything happens to me, you'd take care of Mom even better."

He got his "social security" card.

Must Be Based Upon Facts

AUSTIN, TEXAS, August 21—The control of any disease must be based upon facts and not theory, asserts Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. The reason for this statement is based on numerous theories sent the State Health Department for the cure or prevention of polio, diarrhea and dysentery.

The spread of polio, for instance, has been blamed on weeds, air, bananas, milk, atomic radiation and many other items. All of these are theories and have no basis of fact. Facts in diseases are arrived at in the laboratory, the sick room and the environment of the patient. Facts are necessary and must be the guidepost for control of disease.

Dr. Cox is authorized by law to accept gifts and contributions for public health. The first gift to aid in research on the part played by flies and cockroaches in the spread of polio is two monkeys from Bellaire. Others will be needed to complete the study. Any contribution will be appreciated.

Education work in dysentery and diarrhea—which kills far more children than polio—is being hampered by lack of personnel to do the work. Cox said Texas has six times more dysentery and diarrhea than the national average. There were 1099 infants under one year of age who died of this cause in 1951.

When we get rid of these two filthy borne diseases, we will have done the best thing in the world to get rid of polio," he asserted. "But it takes resources to do it."

Fund and equipment shortages have been a stumbling block to the whole research program in Texas, Dr. Cox said. Despite the fact that the State Bureau of Laboratories has consistently won top honors in national competition for accuracy in disease identification.

And don't forget that while on the subject of election, the one who can, but don't vote, is one of those who hurt the country more than they help it. For it is by the exercise of our rights under the Constitution that we will be governed and show the rest of the world how united American and its Americans are.

MENTAL

MEANDERINGS

Now that the Second Primary is gone past us, it seems that we are gathering momentum for the General election which, while several weeks away, is still near enough for the vote to feel the hot breath of the rival candidates breathing down the back of his neck. There are many people who do not want a change, in name at least. There are many who do. But we now have two different candidates, men of high caliber, who will offer themselves to the people as their best haven in this troubled world. Possibly those who want a change are right; or maybe those who don't want one may be right. That is for history to record, but we, who are living in the making of this history, and to whom the change or non-change will mean so much, it is a hard choice. For, no matter who is elected, who gets to call the White House home for the next four, or possibly eight years, there is no way in which he can lessen the great burden on the American people, and thereby on the free peoples of the world. For, in our fight against communism, there can be no retreat. Perhaps some of the things that were done were against our national security, now seen in the full light of day, but they were done and we are the reapers of the evils which they, and other forces which we could not or were not wise enough to cope with. And under the load we must groan until such time, whether it come in our generation or not, that peace is again established on earth. So, in the final analysis, what we should look for is some sign for the future. Let's choose the man whom we think is the best for our country and its people; who will represent the people and not special interests and power; who will want to give us back some measure of the free choice we had two decades ago. But, after all, let us choose an American.

By the time this column is out, it will be time for school again—almost. The children, refreshed by vacation—and we hope we don't have too many of these after our scalp, for suggesting that they are happy to take up their studies again, either—are rearing to go; or are they? Anyway, its time for the school bell to ring again, for the children to wash up behind the ears, blow the dust off the books, and hie themselves back to the classrooms. And nine months of that.

Its funny how you can be talking about one thing and the other guy starts talking about something else. We overheard one fellow telling another about a bridge work that the highway department was going to do, and the other remarked casually that his bridge work needed re-fixing also. Which sort of left the conversation in the air, and those listening, laughing.

Some one asked us recently what we thought of those who voted in the Democratic primary voting for a republican candidate in the general election. We just had not thought about it, as we always felt that that was a question—of ethics, belief, morals, or whatever one wants to make it—for the individual voted. Personally it don't bother us, as we believe in voting for those we want to, and standing by those who win or those who we vote for. However, some make it a fine point that inasmuch as the presidential candidate is not on the runoff primary, they are not bound to vote for him as he wasn't on that ballot. We still think it is a question for the individual voter, according to his lights.

The Korean situation seems just about as hopeless as ever. We can't back out or let go. Just stick on.

After listening to some of those hillbilly tunes on the radio, we got to wondering whether music is really on the downgrade, holding its own or what. Not that we pan it all, because we admit some of the tunes are rather pretty and soft even if the words are, to pardon an expression, full of unsacrosanct mites, or vice versa. There are some nice song words but the tune is about as soothing to a jangled nerves as a carpenter sharpening a saw is to a guy who had such a beautiful evening the night before. However, it seems the masses prefer such things, or rather tunes, and our tunesmiths, keeping their fingers on the nation's pulse, are as eager as ever after the filthy lucre. Which after all is what pays the grocery bill, and the income tax collector.

And then we got to browsing—which we believe is the word the highbrows use for mooching a few pages or reading—among books, those of the paper cover, and small pocket sizes. It sort of startles us, the titles, and the appeal to the senses for a sale. There were some rather wild westerns, promising lots of blood and thunder; murder stories, which keep you in suspense and the fingernails from growing; "real life" stories which they say "are true to life," the sordid is meant; sex stories that are rather worthless from any viewpoint; and a few which we couldn't classify. We remember one which was titled "Storm", which was subtitled "Maria was tempestuous and unpredictable." The guy who read it said that "Maria" was a "low pressure system," a tropical storm in short. The hero was a meteorologist, and there wasn't even a woman involved. My!

After reading a recipe on how to make sourdough biscuits, we began to see why man years ago lived on simple foods. It took too long to try the fancy stuff and a guy in those days would starve to death if he tried anything but what he knew and had no time for experimenting.

Those tropical storms seem to be about ready to come back. There was one brewing just a few days ago down in the equator region, and it was moving upwards toward the U.S. That was the first, and there will probably be others which we will have to contend with. It may be that from these we may get some moisture for the rain-starved pastures of West Texas.

The peean crop this year will be a bit above the average, it appears at this writing, but then the harvest has not yet been gathered. While it has been dry, yet the dryness has caused a decrease in many of the bugs which threatened the crop earlier this year.

May Be In Disaster Area

Governor Shivers was asked last week to declare the whole of the State of Texas to be a disaster area, and to ask assistance from the federal government. This would bring about possible loans to ranchers and farmers who have been hardest hit by the drought, and such loans would be used to help tide them over this lengthy dry spell and its disastrous effects. No immediate action was taken by the Governor who wanted further information before asking such designation.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—I'm a Korean veteran and I want to go to school this fall under the new Korean GI Bill. May I attend any school that was approved by my State for World War II veterans?

A—No. A school must be State-approved for training under the new GI Bill, before you may enroll. Approval granted under the World War II GI Bill does not carry over, under the law, because in many cases schools are required to meet different standards than in the past.

Q—I'd like to take a single course in school this fall under the Korean GI Bill. It would be for less than half-time. How large an educational allowance would I get?

A—You would receive either (1) the established charges for tuition and fees which all students taking the same course must pay, or (2) a prorated amount based on $110 a month for a full-time course. You would be paid whichever amount is the lesser.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and I've recently gone back on active duty. I have never used any of my GI loan entitlement. Which GI loan deadline applies to me: July 25, 1957, under the World War II GI Bill, or 10 years after the present emergency, under the Korean GI Bill?

A—The Korean GI Bill deadline applies to you. You will have 10 years from the end of the current emergency to make use of your GI loan benefit.

Q—Are loans made under the Korean GI Bill subject to the down payment requirements of the Defense Production Act?

A—Yes. The down payment requirements of the Defense Production Act apply to GI loans made under the new Korean GI Bill in the same way that they apply to loans made under the World War II law.

Surprise the "girls" with a complete salad meal... a LUNCHEON RICE SALAD. It can be most attractive and colorful. The secret of all successful rice salads is the proper cooking... and the proper chilling of the rice. Rice for salads must be cooked tender but the grains must be firm. Follow the directions given below for cooking rice and learn how good rice can be... what little effort is required for preparing it!

When chilling cooked rice for salads or desserts this is a good rule... KEEP COOKED RICE IN A COVERED CONTAINER IN THE REFRIGERATOR. If rice is refrigerated in an uncovered container the top grains will become hard and dry, giving the finished dish the effect of having been made with under-cooked rice. Rice properly stored in the refrigerator is moist and delicious, tender and yet firm. Rice may be kept in this manner for several days.

INGREDIENTS

- 1 head lettuce
- 2 cups cooked chilled rice
- 1 cup French dressing
- 1 cup minced onion (young green onions preferred)
- 1 pint pickled beets
- 6 whole tomatoes (peeled and quartered)
- 2 whole pimentos (cut in long thin strips)
- Water cress to garnish or other greens
- Grated sharp cheese (optional)

METHOD: Put French dressing over rice, toss lightly with a fork. Let stand for 1 hour, then drain thoroughly. Add minced onion, mold in timbales (glass custard cups make a nice size mold). Place timbales of rice in center of lettuce cup, sprinkle with grated cheese if desired, garnish with pickled beets, watercress, peeled and quartered tomatoes and top rice with thin strips of pimento; egg slices and radish roses may be added. Mayonnaise may accompany this salad if desired. This will make 6 beautiful luncheon salads.

Gumbo With Rice

With cool fall days ahead, we are looking for tasty sturdy foods such as this Gumbo with Rice . . . a steaming luscious mixture of chicken and ham with tomatoes, onions and okra . . . served with a generous mound of fluffy white rice!

When preparing the rice for this Gumbo and Rice meal be sure to have plenty of it. It is the large mound of fluffy rice in the center of the soup bowl which carries the flavors of all the other foods in the gumbo . . . and gives the right texture to the almost complete meal.

INGREDIENTS

- 6 cups hot cooked rice
- 1 slice ham, diced
- 1 large stewing hen
- 2 tablespoons ham fat
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 small onion, minced
- 1 sprig thyme or parsley, minced
- 1 No. 2 can tomatoes
- 4 okra pods, sliced
- 2 quarts boiling water
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 bay leaf

PREPARING THE FLUFFY WHITE RICE: To make 6 generous cups of rice, put 2 cups of uncooked rice, 4 cups of cold water and 2 teaspoons salt in a large saucepan and cover with a tight-fitting lid. Bring to a vigorous boil. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and steam for 14 minutes or until all the water is absorbed, leaving the separate rice grains with their full nutritional value. This makes very firm rice grains. (If you prefer more tender rice grains, add ½ cup more water and increase the slow cooking time 4 or 5 minutes). Remove the lid, permit the rice to steam dry to the desired consistency and the grains will be separate and fluffy. Never stir rice; lift rice gently with a fork.

METHOD: Cut up the chicken and season with salt and pepper. Heat fat in soup kettle. Add chicken and ham, cover and let simmer for ten minutes. Then add onion, pepper and thyme, tomatoes and sliced okra pods. Now add the boiling water and let simmer for two hours. Serve in a tureen. Accompany with a bowl of hot rice. Or serve in soup bowls with a generous mound of hot rice.
