People used to marry for better or worse. Today it's for more or less.

Money and man are much alike. The tighter each gets the more it talks.

With the passing of the year, Kinney County is finding its number of cattle stocks on its ranges slowly dwindling. No exact number can be quoted, but it is apparent from a mere observation of livestock still in the county. Much of the cattle have been moved to other pastures, different counties for better feeding, etc. There are still a good number of cattle remaining in Kinney County pastures, but unless the extended drought breaks soon, it will be hard on all livestock. Sheep and goat flocks have been reduced very little.

Kinney County Will Reach Its Goal

Dallas, Texas, Dec. — Texans in the past two months have subscribed $552,370, toward a state goal of $700,000 to provide the home-away-from-home services of the USO to our Armed Forces in this country and abroad, Ben H. Wooten, campaign chairman, reported today.

"This is a good showing representing 78% of our goal," Mr. Wooten said. "Many counties have completed their campaigns and some have oversubscribed their quotas, but there are a number of others which are incomplete or just beginning. It is very necessary that the remaining $147,630 be raised to complete our goal, and the only way we can do this is for each county to meet its quota."

Mr. Wooten described the USO as a direct morale and welfare service which Texans can provide for our young people in the Armed Forces.

"Many thousands of our young people in the Armed Forces."

"Many thousands of our young men and women are away from home," he said, "and wherever they go, a part of our responsibility is to keep alive their ties with home. The USO is the organization which we have selected to do that job for us."

Attorney General Price Daniel is general chairman of the Texas United Defense Fund Committee, which is conducting the appeal for $700,000 for the USO. Wooten is campaign chairman, General Courtney Hicks Hodges, vice chairman, R. L. Thornton, Jr. of Dallas, treasurer, and Fred M. Lange of Dallas, secretary.

If You Have a Collision, Full Report is Required

Austin, Dec. 26.—Public Safety Director Homer Garrison, Jr., emphasized in a statement today that the state's new Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law does not give his Department the slightest judicial authority to determine questions of fault before applying the law's full requirements to motorists who are involved in severe traffic accidents.

"The saddest mistake a motorist can make," Director Garrison said, "is to think the state cannot compel him to furnish proof of his ability to meet damage claims and suspend all of his motoring privileges if he fails to do so, because he is quite sure he was not to blame. Those who imagine they can postpone meeting the new law's security requirements until a court decides the issue of fault will find that they are wrong."

"This does not mean that any motorist will be required to pay for damages he did not cause, or that he does not have full recourse to the courts if he feels that any order issued under the new law violates his rights. It does mean, however, that pending a final court decree on a question of liability, the involved owner or operator must satisfy the Texas Department of Public Safety that he is prepared to meet damage claims for which he is apparently responsible."

"Here are the circumstances that will prevail when the new law becomes effective on January 1:

"If you are involved in an accident resulting in death or injury to a person, or property damage exceeding $100 to any one person, including yourself, you must file a complete report with the Department not later than 10 days after the accident. If the report shows that you were properly insured at the time of the accident, you are not subject to the safety responsibility law because it recognizes insurance as proof of ability to meet damage claims up to $15,000."

"If you were not insured, the Department will determine the extent of damages for which you may be held liable, ranging from a minimum of $101 to a maximum of $15,000. You must then furnish the Department with satisfactory proof that you will be able to respond in the fixed amount, either by depositing collateral or posting a bond. You will not be required to furnish any security, however, if you have all other persons involved in the accident release you from liability, obtain a final court decree of non-liability, or execute a legal agreement providing for installment payment of claims. Neither will security be required if you show that your car was legally parked or being operated without your permission, or that all injuries and damages were confined solely to yourself.

"The law allows you a maximum of 70 days, however, in which to satisfy it in any one of these manners—10 days to file your safety responsibility report and 60 days thereafter to satisfy the security requirements. If within the stated period you have not satisfied the law, regardless of how innocent you think you may be, The Texas Department of Public Safety has no alternative but to suspend your operator's license and the registration plates for all cars owned by you.

"Should you later meet one of the security requirements, obtain a final court decree of non-liability, or if a year elapses without court action for damages being filed, the suspension will be lifted immediately; or if security was deposited, it will be returned. In the meantime, however, others involved in the accident have their rights protected, too. Thus our new law is fair to everyone."

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—Who is entitled to receive a burial flag which drapes the casket of a deceased veteran?

A—The flag goes to the next of kin, with preference in the following order: widow, children, according to age, with sons having preference over daughters; father; mother; brothers or sisters; uncles or aunts; nephews or nieces; and others, such as cousins or grandparents.

Q—I've had a permanent NSLI policy on which I failed to pay premiums and which was extended by VA as term insurance for an amount equal to the face value of the policy. Does this extended insurance have loan value and cash value, same as any permanent policy?

A—The extended insurance has a cash value, but it does not have a loan value.

Q—I'm planning to take a job overseas. May I use my GI loan to purchase a home abroad?

A—No. Under the law, GI loans may only be used to purchase property in the United States, its territories and possessions.

Predicts Many Deaths

AUSTIN, Dec. 13.—Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today released the prediction of his Statistical Division for the number of violent deaths which will occur in Texas during the eleven-day Christmas Holiday season this year.

According to Garrison, N. K. Woerner, Chief of the Department's Statistical Division, estimates that 222 persons will meet violent deaths during the period. Of these, 115 will die in Texas traffic accidents, 42 will be suicide or homicide victims and another 65 lives will be claimed by miscellaneous accidents such as fires, drowning, etc.

Director Garrison pointed out that Mr. Woerner's predictions for holiday periods and even for complete years have been consistently accurate in the past. He appeals to all citizens to furnish the utmost cooperation to the members of the Texas Highway Patrol and to their local police this year in an endeavor to prove the experts wrong.

The holiday death toll this year will be computed from midnight December 21st to midnight January 1st.

MENTAL MEANDERINGS

This is the New Year. This is 1951. So well, what of it? We can hear disgruntled voices echoing sentiment not only here, but in many places throughout the nation. Was there ever a time like this, when freedom was threatened, when so many people were enslaved, when evil appeared to be so triumphant? There are many critical spots in history to which we might cite as being worse than the one we are in now, but we doubt, in fact, we know, there will never be as critical a period facing any people anywhere, as it was those who saw Evil raise the Christ to the cross and leave His followers leaderless as it were, and without apparently any vestige of hope. Men have enslaved the known world, have conquered it, great nations have arisen, but these have all faded or fallen into dust. It was written that no one has power unless it be given from above. Therefore, to Him we all must look for the salvation of mankind. Have good hope and cheer, God has never failed yet when mighty men strive against Him and seek to set his commandments at naught.

Astrologers are predicting that the great World War III will start in this year of 1952. Sometimes these predictions have come nearly true, but sage observation indicates that where many hundreds of predictions are made, the only claim to truth is when one of these come true. The other ninety nine which fail to materialize are quickly forgotten. Albeit, this may be the year of destiny. If, as has been predicted, Russia and the Western Powers engage in war, it will be a critical year for freedom and Liberty. If it should be a short war as has been forecast, then that much the better. But then, as always, the price paid for such freedom and liberty in human lives is always a very bitter and sorrowful price.

If you did not make any New Year resolutions, you are one of the lucky ones. Many of those who made them have already broken them, while a staunch, sturdy few are still struggling to keep that intention intact. We personally made none, having long ago found out that it was almost a useless task anyone set for himself to make a resolution and then try to make it stick. Seems that you can make a resolution any time and if you can keep it then, you can keep one made for the first of the year.

The difference in the number of prisoners the Americans claim should have been reported—most of these eight thousand missing in action—and the number the Communists said they had, are quite different. What happened to those who are not listed? Some of them, of course, were probably killed in action, but unaccounted for, says the War Department. Some might have been put in slave labor, other concentration camps, or what?

The Editor, as did many, many other persons, received many Christmas cards. We appreciate the thought that inspired these sendings, and we again thank each and every one for every card. It helped make this last one a right Merry Christmas.

Cooler weather has been slow coming, but it finally got here, as usual, around Christmas time with a pretty severe cold spell. However, 1951 went out with a minimum of rainfall, and it will probably go down in history as one of the most dry in our weather bureau history.

Did you have to exchange that gift for Christmas? We didn't. Inasmuch as our receiving list was not great, and we appreciated any thought, it was pretty easy for us to be thankful for what we received.

We started out on our usual hobby of trying to see how many calendars we could get this year—of the sort you can hang up anywhere, of course. Last year we wound up with about seventeen, and from this list we finally came out with three. Some of them were mightily ridiculous, a few very, very nice, some fanciful, a few negligible, one of two humorous, yet withal we came up with only one or two which we did not care too much for. As usual, with American art and literature—if they can be called that—we came across some that were as gross as a deprived nature could wish.

It's a hobby of ours to delve into old-time, and new fangled ideas too, concerning plants and herbs which might be used for medicinal or other uses. In this curious trend we have come across some mighty strange uses of plants and weeds and herbs. For instance, we have found some that were claimed to improve eyesight, memory, prevent mind-wandering, sharpen the wits, prohibit fear, and even cure kleptomania, nightmares, etc. One, was said to make a person brighter, another, to make a person immune to melancholy moods. But there were a number whom the medical profession has found useful, others which home use has found beneficial, and others whose virtues have as yet to be found by experiment.

This is a mighty turbulent era for the government, and therefore for the people it governs. Let us not mistake the fact that what we are going to do with this country, and what course we take, will be a result of the sort of government we are going to get. If it is the sort we have been getting, it's going to be tough. But, on the other hand, if we get anything more lax, it might be tougher. A firm hand is needed in government, and never more at a time than right now. We need someone with vision, with a will and purpose, one who wants freedom and democracy more than anything else. For the masses—and not for the favored few.

'Tis winter time now, officially, that is. A couple of months or more and then we have Spring. Not that we have to look at a calendar for this bright view, but the seed catalogs are coming in. And, we note, they are fewer than ever. Appears to us that the high cost of living also is getting around to them, and the garden plot too.

While on this subject of hard times, we were sort of tempted to look up a booklet a friend of ours lent us a while back—on rich living on a shoestring—and seeing what we might achieve with it. Or that one "Living Without Money." It might come in handy.

Capehart Amendment Allows Price Increases on Thousands of Items

HERE WE GO—With a sigh of "here we go again", home town housewives across the nation learned the Capehart amendment to the controls law is effective immediately. The amendment opens the way for possible price increases on thousands of consumer items, including clothing, meat, foods, milk, butter, coal, gasoline, tobacco, beer, drugs and cosmetics.

Under this amendment manufacturers and processors are allowed to use their pre-Korea prices and add or subtract cost increases or decreases through last July 26 in computing new ceilings. Because application of the Capehart formula is optional, the general effect of the new order could not be adequately estimated. However, it was believed the particular effect will be to raise prices whenever an application for adjustment is granted.

There is just one possible hope for the consumer. Manufacturers are not required to seek new ceilings, but are allowed to do so. If any concern seeks higher prices for any line of goods, any reductions required by the formula for other goods must be put into effect as well. The firm cannot seek higher prices alone.

Among the items affected by the new order are wool and cotton yarns and fabrics, soft drinks, liquor and wine, lumber and millwork, crude oil, canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, and many other processed foods, also many important chemicals, plastics, insecticides.

Price Director Michael V. Di Salle has warned congress that prices apparently are rising again and it would be a dangerous risk to decontrol any major item now.

FOOD PRICES—While the OPS was announcing possible future price increases, the Bureau of Labor Statistics revealed that its latest index on food prices indicated an increase of nearly 1 per cent since its previous report.

The bureau pegged the price index at 231.2. That placed it 131.2 per cent above the 1935-39 average and 14 per cent above June, 1950.

Leading the advance were fruits and vegetables, and dairy products, including milk, cheese and butter. Meats, poultry and fish declined, as did fats and oils.

TRUCE TALKS—The drawn-out, frustrating Korean peace talks continue with the two sides deadlocked over supervision of the truce and the Reds refusing to open discussions on the exchange of prisoners.

Perhaps the most significant news from the truce talks is that the negotiations have entered the sixth month. It is almost inconceivable that two parties can talk for five months without agreement if there was good faith and a desire for peace on the part of all concerned. This fact alone has made the people in the home town of America pessimistic of the outcome.

By the time this reaches print the December 27 deadline on the provisional cease-fire line will have expired. If an armistice has not been agreed on, then a new cease fire line must be drawn before a final settlement. For this reason (since it appears unlikely an agreement will be reached) increased fighting can be expected on the battlefield as both sides attempt to improve their positions.

TRUMAN—President Truman cut short his Florida vacation and returned to Washington. The President hastened to assure the public that no sudden world emergency dictated his return.

It was obvious two things were uppermost in the President's mind: (1) The deadlocked Korean truce talks, and (2) the still-developing tax scandals.

It was considered unlikely there would be any public announcement concerning decisions about the Korean situation until those decisions had been carried out. The tax scandal, however, was another matter.

The President and those surrounding him have become more and more concerned with the developments (see below) in the tax fix probe. White House intervention, even the calling in of J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, to conduct a sweeping investigation, appeared to be a likely prospect.

MRS. F.D.R.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, one of the most controversial figures to appear on the American scene, came under attack of Archbishop J. Francis A. McIntyre for "assuming the role of an agnostic and fatalist".

Mrs. Roosevelt said on a radio program recently: "I don't know whether I believe in a future life... I came to feel that it didn't really matter very much because whatever the future held you'd have to face it when you came to it, just as whatever life holds you have to face it in exactly the same way."

"I think I am pretty much of a fatalist. You have to accept whatever comes, and the only important thing is that you meet it with courage and with the best that you have to give."

The archbishop said he considers it "a strange situation that one who is chairman of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, on the question of religion, assume the role of an agnostic and fatalist."

DEFENSE—Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett has announced that a provision for increasing the Air Force from 90 to 143 wings—126 of them combat—will be in the 1953 fiscal year budget now being prepared and which will be presented to congress early next month.

The actual size of the defense budget has not been announced, but it is believed to be within an informally set ceiling of $45,000,000,000 for the entire military establishment.

Congress appropriated a total of $59,403,264,000 for the Army, Navy, Air Force and the Office of the Secretary of Defense for the present fiscal year, exclusive of foreign military aid.

The present 90 wings of the Air Force—their size varies from about 75 planes for fighter units to 30 for heavy bombers—are not modernized since they are in many instances made up of aircraft such as the B-29 and B-50. These planes are World War II vintage and must be replaced.

TAX FIX—The House Ways and Means subcommittee graft in the Revenue Department was blown wide open by the charge of Abraham Teitelbaum that two men claiming friendship with federal officials tried to shake him down for $500,000 with promises of a "tax fix".

Teitelbaum, a wealthy Chicago lawyer, further identified as attorney for the Capone family in some of their legal troubles, swore that Bert K. Naster, Hollywood, Fla., businessman, and Frank Nathan, Pittsburgh, led him to believe that they knew of a Washington clique which was on the lookout for "soft touches".

Naster and Nathan both vigorously denied the charge, but Attorney General Howard McGrath ordered a grand jury investigation of charges.

As far as the people in the home towns are concerned, the charges and denials continue to throw a darker shadow across the Internal Revenue Bureau, under fire since the dismissal of Assistant Attorney General Theron Caudle by President Truman. And the deeper the investigating committee digs the more dirt that is likely to be uncovered. There is no doubt now that the echo of this investigation will be heard in the election campaign of 1952.

"I have done nothing outstanding—nothing unusual—unless this be an exception," he told his colleagues. "I have interested myself in the grass roots of medicine, the county medical society."

Dr. Yoder was accorded the honor at the clinical session of the A.M.A. in Los Angeles.

Main Street Moved a Mountain in a Day To Give Its Children a Safe Schoolyard

By Browne Sampsell

It was neither a Rocky Mountain range nor was it a mole-hill, this mountain whose hilly slopes stood in the way of traffic safety and wholesome recreation for the school children of Ooltewah, Tennessee. What made it a hill of difficulty was the fact that Ooltewah's school buildings, elementary and high, stood together on the hill-sides of this mountain that towers in a sharp peak over the town. And the only available space for the loading and unloading daily of 12 school busses; the parking of cars; and the coming in and going out of 800 pupils, was a strip about 60 feet wide in front of the elementary school building. With no outlets or turn-around facilities, it was a dead-end driveway. Only one bus could enter at a time; the next arrival had to wait until the in-bus backed out before it could drive in.

MARCH OF DIMES

JANUARY 2-31

The people were aware of the need for a driveway and playgrounds too, but what could they do about it? They had no money and no prospects of getting any.

Then Ooltewah got a high school principal who believed that "a school should be able to change the life of a community." With the approval of the local superintendent of schools and the State Department of Education, and the cooperative support of two other principals in the area, he began the drive to turn locally operating schools into community schools.

To secure community cooperation in the solution of existing school problems, this principal called a meeting of parents, teachers, pastors, members of the American Legion, Kiwanis, Masons, Eastern Star, Riding Club, and high school students. Fifteen representative members from these groups became the "Community Council of Ooltewah."

At the time the Community Council was organized, the building of a new school gym held the center of community interest. They had the blueprints and the money, but for some unknown reason had not begun to build. The Council took over and soon there was a new wing added to the high school building. This was the new gym complete with dressing rooms, lockers, showers and bleachers.

The building of the much-needed school gymnasium did two things for Ooltewah; it proved that the Council could get things done; and it emphasized the lack of playground facilities for the school children. Also it brought back into sharp focus the need for a safe school driveway.

Representatives went to Chattanooga and got the promise of a bulldozer, two trucks, and free oil from oil companies. Those who hired out trucks and tractors agreed to furnish this equipment and labor.

Teachers and pupils made tentative drawings of school playgrounds. The students calculated in cubic feet the amount of earth that would have to be moved. They wrote letters and releases for the newspapers.

The State Department of Education, the State Planning Commission, architects of the TVA (Tennessee Valley Authority) and landscape artists of the University of Tennessee all helped to organize Ooltewah for a face-lifting.

Early on a cloudless May day, parents, children, teachers, the Parent-Teacher Association with food and cold drinks for the workers, followed bulldozers, steam shovels, trucks and tractors into the schoolyard.

By sunset, men and machines had accomplished 90 per cent of a $5,000 job; they had moved 5,000 cubic yards of earth; had leveled hilly slopes into a flat area that meant a ball diamond, athletic field and a convenient driveway for school busses and other motor vehicles.

With the mountain flattened out, the Council concentrated next on turning a small pine grove into a picnic ground. And the Garden Club turned its attention to dressing up the school yard with transplanted native shrubs. Soon, the driveway will have a hard surface; this will mean easier driving in and out and the children will bring less mud on their shoes into the school building.

Navy Declines

THE NAVY has taken an unusual stand regarding the air warfare which is getting more and more intense over Korea. It has turned down a request from Gen. Otto Weyland, Air Force commander in the Far East, that Navy jets help out the Air Force in combating Russian MIGs.

With increasing Communist strength in the air, and with the Air Force sometimes badly outnumbered in battling Russian MIGs, General Weyland requested help from the Navy's carrier-based jet fighters.

However, despite the fact that there is supposed to be armed services unification, the Navy refused. Official reason was that Navy carriers were outside the fighting range.

Air force pilots who sometimes go into battle against superior Communist odds believe the Navy is trying to hide the fact that its jets are inferior to the MIGs. Since the Navy specializes in fighters, and not long ago boasted the best jet fighter plane in the world, this is a bitter pill to swallow.

Navy pilots today are among the best in the world, but apparently planes haven't kept up with either the Air Force or the enemy. As a result only two MIGs have been shot down by the Navy during the Korean War. One was bagged by a Navy Panther jet some time ago, the other by a Navy pilot who, however, flew an Air Force Sabre jet.

Debate Over McGrath

President Truman's advisers are split down the seam on a bold move to oust Attorney General Howard McGrath and name crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver to clean up the Justice department.

This proposal was pushed backstage by Averell Harriman, who has been on speaking trips out of Washington and knows how deeply the corruption issue is hurting; also by usually cautious White House counsel Charlie Murphy, and younger staff members.

Their argument with the President is: "The investigations are not going to stop with Internal Revenue and RFC, but will go into alien property custodian, surplus property, and possibly the federal judiciary right up to the Supreme Court. The American people won't be satisfied unless the administration cleans house boldly and dramatically. A sure-fire way to regain public confidence is to name Senator Kefauver as attorney general, giving him complete authority to prosecute, no matter who is hurt."

Mr. Truman seems to like the idea and has been saying privately: "I've always been loyal to my friends. But they haven't been fair to me."

On the other side, a powerful White House force, Matt Connelly, who sits next to the President and makes all his appointments, is more than cool. Connelly vigorously defends his fellow Irishman in the Justice department and has been digging up political friends of Mr. Truman to talk up McGrath and talk down his ouster.

Merry-Go-Round Poll

People not on the political inside seldom realize how much backstage wire pulling goes into the nomination of a presidential candidate. To a considerable extent this lessens the chance of the American people to elect a President. For, while they can elect, not many can nominate.

This frequently leaves the selection of the presidential nominee a matter of barter and backstage lobbying by the party bosses.

Today, Taft scouts have been combing every state in the union, pledging delegates six months in advance. Some of these may represent the people of their state, some may not. Some may realize that world conditions, the threat of war, the hopes for peace, can change the world in six months, and with them can change the presidential needs of the nation.

Therefore, to sound out the true political sentiment of the American people through the 600 newspapers publishing the Washington Merry-Go-Round, this column is conducting a post-card poll on the Republican candidates. (The Democratic poll will come later.) To vote, address a post card to the GOP candidate of your choice, Box 1952, Washington 13, D.C., and tell him: "I'm for you in 1952."

Washington Pipeline

Lucille May Grace, the lady who nobody thought had a chance to become Governor of Louisiana, is really stirring up the state... Attorney General Howard McGrath, while unhappy over the King Income-Tax Committee, has been cooperating quietly with the income-tax probe of Senator Williams of Delaware. McGrath is even trying to get a job for a Williams man, J. George Stewart.

It's Wonderful the Way Chewing-Gum Laxative Acts Chiefly to REMOVE WASTE NOT GOOD FOOD

Here's the secret millions of folks have discovered about FEEN-A-MINT, the modern chewing-gum laxative. Yes, here is why FEEN-A-MINT's action is so wonderfully different! Doctors say that many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach where food is being digested. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy. You feel weak, worn out.

But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that typical weak, tired, worn-out feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel your "peppy," energetic self! Get FEEN-A-MINT! No increase in price—still 25¢, 50¢ or only 25¢.

Quail Hunting Limits Clarified by Authority

AUSTIN. — The Executive Secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission issued a clarifying statement on quail hunting limits because, he said, the varied regulations "naturally have confused some sportsmen."

He reported a number of Panhandle hunters "were understandably mixed up because of belated action liberalizing limits in the 28-county Panhandle area over which the Commission has regulatory power."

The Commission, pursuant to Panhandle reports of a fine bobwhite quail crop, increased the daily bag and possession limits slightly after the regular Game Law Digest had been issued.

The limits in the Panhandle originally were ten quail per day and twenty in possession. The Commission increased the bag limit to twelve quail per day and twenty-four in possession.

The Executive Secretary pointed out that, under the general state quail law, the daily bag limit for most of the state is twelve per day and the possession limit 36.

Meanwhile, the Executive Secretary reported "good sportsmen response" to an appeal for co-operation with the quail wing project.

The Wildlife Restoration Division needs the wings for studies of the birds in connection with routine game management activity.

Hunters who can help out may obtain instructions and supplies by writing the Commission in Austin.

While thinking about it, we have a feeling that everyone who will plant a nice garden this year will have something to brag about, and it'll be a big help to the family budget this year. With food prices as they are, we feel that the Victory Garden, which was so fostered during the last war, and which had put many a family across into the regular eating column, should be started again. It will prove beneficial, and eatable, too.
