

Pasture Renovation Pays Big Dividends

Better Grass, Legumes Build Production Power

"Punch-drunk" pastures can be put back on their feet by a renovating program that will build up their milk and beef producing power. Killing out the old grass and growing alfalfa-ladino-brome grass mixtures doubled yields of forage in Wisconsin tests, the middle west soil improvement committee said. The old grass yielded 1,800 pounds of forage per acre, carrying some 200 pounds protein. The new alfalfa-ladino-brome grass seeding yielded close to two tons and 80 pounds of protein per acre. To get these better grasses and legumes, lime and fertilizers carrying phosphate and potash were needed to build the soil's mineral nutrient content.

Completely killing the old grass involves thorough fall working of the field. On heavy sod, criss-cross the field with disc to cut the sod into chunks. Then dig the field twice with the field cultivator, working around the slope the second time. Just before freezing, dig the field to leave it rough. Lime and plant food can be broadcast before the field is worked or can be put on at seeding time.

Then, next spring, seed the higher-producing deep-rooted legumes and grasses. A field cultivator and spike tooth harrow in tandem will leave a good seed bed.

Beef Demand to Remain At High Level, Report

The demand for beef as one of the best preferred foods in the household shopping list will probably remain strong for some time, as full employment at good wages seems to be in the picture for this country.

Breeders of foundation stock, growers of feeder cattle and finishers of feed-lot beef are directly concerned with the expansion of the beef industry to meet this growing demand, says Charles A. Burmeister of the U.C. agriculture department.

Burmeister says that statistics of the cattle industry show that producers have been and are now building up their breeding herds.

"The present beef breeding herd of the country is the largest on record, while the 1950 crop is apt to exceed that of 1949 by 800,000 head. Much of this gain in numbers will be in beef type calves," he said.

Market Trends

The above graph charts the annual trend in hog prices, month by month throughout past years, based on records over 11 non-war years. The solid bars indicate hogs fed to market in six months, broken bars, hogs fed to same weight in eight months. It is a clear illustration that pigs farrowed in March and fed out in six months caught the top of the year's market. But similar pigs, if fed out in eight months, reached market in November, well below the yearly average.

Dairymen Lose Millions Because of Low Quality

Every year the dairy farmers of the United States suffer heavy financial losses because too large a proportion of the milk and cream they market is lower in quality than it should be. It is estimated conservatively that they could add millions of dollars annually to their income simply by giving attention to those factors that promote high quality of product, dairy specialists report.

TAXES, TAXES, TAXES

ONE FEATURE in Secretary Snyder's new tax bill is a 20 per cent greens-fee tax for golfers. This is the first proposal for a tax on walking, crabbing, muttering and adding INCORRECTLY! Your troubles as a golfer may soon be due to the fact Truman and Snyder are GRIPPING the club too hard.

Nothing is certain but death, bigger tax bills and a vacuum cleaner in every wallet. This time Washington is not only drafting money but taking it without a physical. Your dollar is going to war no matter what shape it is in. Mr. Snyder's new proposals call for a pick-up and delivery service. The government gets you, cleans you, presses you and delivers you back in a federal automatic dryer.

If you smoke, drink, chew, wash, shave, listen to Howdy Doody, follow Uncle Miltie, own an auto, need an icebox, carry a watch, play golf or take a glass of beer before going to bed this one will take you for plenty. "Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man's brow," Roosevelt said 20 years ago. That was covering minimum anatomical territory. You can't get enough from a brow to pay one installment today.

Mr. Snyder's latest ideas include a tax of 20 per cent on new automobiles. This means putting the bumpers on the owner instead of the auto. The tax on a de luxe sedan can be as high as $800. That used to buy a bus and allow for extras. Another three or four-cents hike looms on gas. The day is at hand when the AUTO will have to take the MAN in for repairs and adjustments.

"Happy motoring!" (When you say that, smile!) The dashboard panel of tomorrow may include an aspirin ejector, a man killer, a blank check printing press, a stiff drink mixer, direct radio communication with your fiscal agent, a speedometer to tell how fast your bankroll is going and an automatic gauge to indicate when an OWNER has run down and needs recharging. Take off that windshield wiper! There's nothing ahead but the Democrats anyhow.

It is the new tax on golfing that is the big surprise. It's really a "tee" tax. Truman thinks only the Republicans play golf. In our book a golfer already pays plenty. Look at the liquor tax he becomes liable for before he gets out of the locker room! There's a tax when he phones the wife he won't be home for dinner. And after he gets home there's a fight that can only be settled via a mink coat, tax or no tax.

But cheer up, hackers! Every time you miss the ball you will be doing something for your country. The longer you are in a sandtrap, the more you may be helping the defense effort. Even a missed putt can be patriotic. (Fore! One side, men, and let those revenue boys through!)

VANISHING AMERICANISMS—"Let's get some stew meat; that's cheap." "Lemme have 35 cents; I need a haircut." "They can't do this to me!"

A woman couldn't get a thousand-dollar bill changed in New York the other day. What's so odd about that? Are there people who really expect change from thousand-dollar bills today?

Republican leaders in Washington held a box chicken dinner last week. After eating crow all these years they deserved it.

A small-town assistant postmaster had been arrested charged with a $10,000 shortage. He says he lost it at the races. His hunch skimmers were, we assume, "Postcard," "Can't Locate," "Return Call" and "It's About Time" currently running. And maybe a year or so back he always took a chance on "Bell-ringer" and "Notes."

Fish Demand Careful Cooking to Preserve Delicate Full Flavor

MANY PEOPLE WHO really like fish have accustomed themselves to the disagreeable odors that often go with its cookery; many more people would be very fond of fish if it didn't fill the house with odors during its preparation. How few home-makers realize that the cooking of fish entails no unpleasant smell! Here is a delicate food that is tender and tasty. When cooked only to the point of doneness, at proper temperature, its only odor is as savory as that of nicely cooked chicken or beefsteak! Many of the broiled fish recipes call for high temperature, but for only a short time. If cooked just so, fish can be downright delicious. Do give it a chance.

YOU NEED DO little to fish to make it pleasing. It's tender and juicy, easy to prepare, delightful for meal variety. It can be seasoned or served with sauce, but in every way, it's good.

Broiled lobster tails are a favorite with many for a good fish dinner. They will broil quickly, and are done when they turn a deep, rich pink. Serve them with lemon wedges and mayonnaise.

large shallow baking dish. Sprinkle the sautéed onion or garlic over top. Add salt and pepper. Arrange the fish fillets on this "bed" of tomatoes and peppers. Sprinkle with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Cover with waxed paper; bake in moderate oven (350°) 20-30 minutes. Pour over this Mustard Hollandaise Sauce. Brown under broiler. Serve at once.

Mustard Hollandaise Sauce
3 egg yolks
3 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons cream
2 tablespoons butter
Mix in medium small bowl (or top of double boiler) the egg yolks, mustard, tarragon vinegar, salt, cayenne pepper, cream. Place over hot water (not boiling) and beat until mixture begins to thicken. Add butter, bit by bit, stirring continuously until sauce is rich and creamy. Remove from over water. If too thick, thin with a little additional cream.

Broiled Rock Lobster Tails
(Serves 4)
4 small rock lobster tails
1/2 cup melted butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
Crack heavy back shell of lobster tails lengthwise to make tail lie flat. Turn lobster over and remove thin under shell with scissors. Combine butter, lemon juice, parsley, salt and pepper. Preheat oven and broiling pan at 400°. Place lobster tails on back on pan, brush with butter and set pan about 4 inches from heat. Broiling frequently with butter, broil about 15 minutes or until lobster tails are well browned. Serve hot or cold with lemon wedges and mayonnaise.

Rock Lobster Fries
(Serves 6)
2 1/2 pounds boiled rock lobster tails
1 1/2 cups flour
2 tablespoons salt
1 1/4 teaspoons pepper
1 1/4 teaspoons paprika
3 eggs, beaten
3 cups fine bread or cracker crumbs
Butter
Tartar Sauce
Lemon slices
Watercress
Remove cooked meat from lobster tails; cut into egg-sized chunks. Roll lightly in a mixture of flour and seasonings. Dip floured pieces in beaten eggs. Roll in fine bread or cracker crumbs. Melt enough butter to fill 1/4 inch depth in skillet. Sauté lobster until nicely browned on all sides. Serve with tartar sauce, garnish with lemon slices and watercress.

Tartar Sauce
(Makes 1 1/2 cups)
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon chopped onion or chives
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle
1 tablespoon chopped sour pickle
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon capers
Mix all ingredients, blending well.

Leftover pieces of fish are just the thing to add to a crisp green salad served with a lemon French dressing that's really tart.

When serving sauce with fish, take a bit of time preparing attractive lemon cups for serving the sauce accompaniment. Halves of lemon, scooped out and scalloped at edges are lovely. Frankfurter scallop is easily made with sliced frankfurters and scalloped potatoes. Add about one tablespoon of prepared mustard to each cup of white sauce used.

Venerable Bird

The grouse has been an inhabitant of this continent for a mighty long time. Bones have been found in caves on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts that date back to the Pleistocene period, some 25,000 years ago. Old campfires reveal that the grouse was an Indian delicacy. And even far back of that, King Henry VIII in 1531 put out a royal order concerning the "grows" and the grouse tail was once popular in France as a fan. In fact, the word grouse, itself, comes from the French and means "spotted bird."

While the bird is most plentiful in East Tennessee, it is now moving westward. Quite a few birds were noted last year in several different areas of the Cumberland mountains. The species once blanketed Tennessee and Audubon in 1831 reported birds almost as far south as Natches, Miss.

Like its smaller cousin, the bobwhite quail, the grouse wasn't overly-plentiful before the coming of the white man. The "brown bombshell" scorns dense undergrowth and thrives only in areas near open clearings. The white man, of course, broke up the timberland into ideal grouse cover and the bird became plentiful.

The grouse prefers second-growth timberland areas that include some conifers, used for protection against the elements. Oddly enough, the bird was once barred from markets in Philadelphia because, among its items of diet, was the poisonous laurel. Too, it can eat poison ivy berries without suffering any ill effects.

It's A Tonic

The question that never fails to be shocking is, "Why go fishing, when I can buy my fish at the market?" To dyed-in-the-wool fishermen this question may seem foolish; however, the psychology underlying the urge to go fishing makes this indeed an important question.

We moderns, here in America anyway, are reasonably sure there will be a next meal—that there will be meat on the table. Yet fishing is more important now than it was in pioneer days. The urgency still has to do with bodily well-being, but the organ affected is no longer the stomach; it's the mind.

Doctors tell us that mental disturbances, heart ailments and gastric disorders are on the increase. Our bodies seem ill-equipped for the modern tempo of living. And with the current world unrest and our entry into the atomic age we cannot expect that life will be more simple or more secure in the near future. Relaxation is extremely important today—it may become more significant as time goes on.

The man . . . waiting for that 3-pound crappie to bite has for the time forgotten his business worries. He is not like the man who follows the small white ball around swinging frantically at it with a special bent steel rod. He does not pull out a card and write down the number of casts it took to snag the bass he has just landed, then cuss . . .

Return Those Cards!

After the past season, many duck hunters received framed return postcards from the regional offices of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This marks a new experiment to obtain more accurate information on the waterfowl harvest in which the individual sportsman holds the key, according to the Wildlife Management Institute.

The card simply asks for the number of days the hunter was afield, the number of ducks, geese, and coots bagged, and the state in which hunting was done. Far better returns are expected from this method than from the report cards published in the magazines and newspapers in past years. Each of the present card recipients has been contacted in the field by a federal game management agent, and the new procedure requires even less effort. It is, however, a simple and human matter to delay filling out a report of this kind and then to forget it completely. Simple though the information may seem, the data compiled from the returns is extremely important to those entrusted with the management of the waterfowl.

If you received a card, take the few seconds needed to fill in the blanks and mail it. You will help yourself to better hunting if you do.

Keeping Records

Keeping records of your fishing trips—something few fishermen do—will provide much valuable information for the future. Any sort of notebook will serve the purpose, and it will be better if it is small enough to go in your tackle box. When there, you'll probably take the notebook with you. Important data will not be forgotten if you get away. Record weather, direction of wind, record weather, direction of wind.

Brucellosis Is Danger in Work

ALTHOUGH FARMERS are in constant danger of getting brucellosis from cattle and swine, veterinarians and packinghouse workers run an even greater risk according to a report in the Journal of the American veterinary medical association.

The report, made after a joint survey by the U.S. public health service and the Indiana state board of health, declared that brucellosis can be regarded as an "occupational hazard" of persons whose work brings them into contact with infected animals.

Through use of a blood test, it can be determined if a person has been exposed to brucellosis. Tests showed that as many as 25 per cent of one group of veterinarians either had had the disease or had been exposed to it. The tests were made during a three-year period on more than 600 veterinarians.

Considerable numbers of packinghouse employees also showed exposure to the disease. Numbers of reactors to the test were highest on jobs requiring frequent contact with infected animals—with group percentages running as high as 33 per cent.

When groups of farm workers were tested, slightly less than four per cent of the men reacted to the test and less than two per cent of the women.

Youngsters who are now indulging in the sport of kite flying are being warned against engaging in this sport next or near to highline power lines, which might prove very dangerous sport. No metal should be used in the kite line, or in the construction of the kite itself. No kite flying should be flown during damp weather nor should the flyer stand on wet ground when flying kites near any power or telephone line. But it is specifically pointed there should be NO kite flying around power lines or any utility wires.

SAN JACINTO FIESTA ASSON.

Heroes of the Alamo and today's fighting men in the nation's armed services will receive tributes in April when San Antonio, home of Texas' "Shrine of Liberty", stages its fifty sixth annual Fiesta San Jacinto.

Plans for the traditional observance honoring the Alamo's defenders and Sam Houston's fighters at San Jacinto are well under way. Fiesta will be held from April 16 through 21, and, as in the past will be highlighted by spectacular parades and other activities.

Patriotic motifs will feature many events of the week. Significantly, the celebration will open the traditional solemn Pilgrimage to the Alamo on Monday of Fiesta Week and will close on Saturday night with the spectacular "Fiesta Flambeau", the beautiful illuminated night parade.

The Flambeau has been dedicated as a tribute today's armed services of America and appropriately, its theme will be "Blessings of Liberty", a phrase from the preamble to the Constitution of the United States.

The famed Battle of Flowers Parade, annually held on Friday afternoon of Fiesta Week, also has adopted a patriotic theme, "America Then, Now, Forever."

The theme was taken from an Army recruiting poster of World War II which was painted by Co. Thomas B. Woodburn public information officer at Headquarters Fourth Army Fort Sam Houston.

"America On Parade" will be the theme of the unique river pageant which will mark the opening of the festive aspect of Fiesta Week—after the solemn Pilgrimage to the Alamo. The river event will mark the arrival of King Antonio, who will head a royal river fleet as he makes his official entry into the city. It is staged by the Texas Cavaliers.

A booklet on Fiesta San Jacinto may be obtained by writing to Fiesta San Jacinto Assn., 208 Insurance Bldg., San Antonio 5.

Veterans' Questions and Their Answers

Q—I am a World War I veteran, and I had a U. S. Government Life Insurance permanent policy which lapsed but which was extended automatically as term insurance. The term insurance extension has expired and now I have no coverage at all. May I apply for new U. S. Government Life Insurance?

A—Yes, as long as you meet the health requirements for insurability.

Q—I took out a National Service Life Insurance policy when I entered service in February, 1942, and I allowed it to lapse when I was discharged in March, 1948. Am I eligible for the second special NSLI dividend to be paid in 1951?

A—No. The policy must have been in force at least three months between its anniversary date in 1948 and the date in 1951. Your policy was not in force for three months during that period.

Q—I was discharged from the Navy in 1946, and I was recalled to active duty in the Naval Reserves for six weeks in February and March, 1947. May I count those six weeks in computing my entitlement for GI Bill education?

A—Yes. All members of the organized reserve called back to active duty for 30 days or more on or before July 25, 1947 (official termination of World War II for GI Bill purposes) may count that duty in computing GI Bill entitlement.

Q—I am taking full-time on-the-job training under the GI Bill, and I am required to take a correspondence course along with my job training. Will that correspondence course be charged against my entitlement?

A—No. Veterans in full-time training required to take correspondence courses as well, will not be charged additional entitlement.

Watch Out For The "Blind-Spots"

Stopped by Squint Miller's farm the other day and saw a vinegar bottle in his kitchen with an oversized cucumber inside it. The cucumber filled the whole bottle.

"What's a cucumber doing in there?" I asked him. "That's my 'blind-spot' reminder," says Squint. "My grandmother kept one in her kitchen to remind her to take stock of herself now and then."

"I slipped that bottle over the cucumber when it was just starting to grow on the vine," he went on. "And like certain viewpoints, not noticed, it just grew and grew—now it's there to stay."

From where I sit, we could take a cue from Squint and watch for our own "blind-spots" and prejudices before they grow too big to get rid of. We've got to respect our neighbor's right to his preferences... preferences for a certain make of car, a favorite movie star, or a temperate glass of beer after work. We won't be tripped by any blind spots if we keep our eyes—and minds—open!

Mrs Myrtle E Wickham

It was a shock indeed to the people of this city and county last Sunday to learn of the sudden passing of a beloved citizen, Mrs. Myrtle Wickham. The end came in a Del Rio hospital where she had been taken for treatment and followed a brief illness.

For a few days prior to her return home, Mrs. Wickham had been in Dallas visiting her new grandchild, born to Mr. and Mrs. Hammel, and her daughter and family.

For several years past, Mrs. Wickham had been a clerk in the Brackettville postoffice where she had made a host of friends by her usually courteous manner and gracious personality. These will miss her from her accustomed place and this loss is also extended to everyone who knew her, for the good Christian lady and kindly neighbor she was.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Brackettville Methodist Church with Rev. Theodor Mahler, the pastor, officiating. She had been a faithful member of this church for many years.

Active pallbearers were: D. R. Stalknecht, Victor Couture, Harold Bitter, Jack Buttler, Walter Christensen, Johnny Sheedy. Honorary pallbearers: A. E. Bartberger, Sam Harwood.

An obituary is being prepared for her, which will appear in our next issue.

To those who mourn her loss, which not only includes her family, but everyone who knew her there remains the consolation of the readiness of the Creator to welcome one who has always devoted a life of doing good and to being a good friend and living a useful life.

WORKING LAGUNA ROAD

Moving back of fences on both sides of the Laguna right-of-way is expected to be completed this week end, a big job which cost the commissioners court in the neighborhood of eight thousand dollars. The Uvalde section of the fence on this highway right-of-way is also being moved adjacent to this county's area.

The Holland Paige Company at present is using nearly all its huge machinery in preparing the roadbed, clearing boulders and other obstacles from the right-of-way. So far but few crew men have been recruited on the job.

Ross Williams of San Antonio visited in Brackettville Sunday afternoon.

Miss Ethel Mae Stadler of San Antonio visited friends in Brackettville Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Dan Fritter Jr. of San Antonio were Brackettville visitors one day last week.

The Old and the New

TIME MARCHES ALONG to a rataplan of knocks and raps. The loud noises and the squawks usually come from a group of gray-haired veterans panning the present generation. It may be a group of old-time ballplayers attacking the mediocrity of the present-day crop. It may come from a bunch of old-time fighters giving the world proof that those hanging around today are largely bums. The same is true of football where the platoon system has been composed of half-players, according to the veterans of older wars. Those who can run or pass can't block or tackle and those who can tackle can't run or pass.

Only recently Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby, baseball's two greatest hitters — Cobb, the greatest — Hornsby, the game's greatest righthand hitter — decided there were no modern players who belonged among the first 20 of other years.

I don't believe this will quite stand up. I'd say an outfield composed of Musial, DiMaggio and Williams would have been awarded many sprigs of laurel or olive over 20 or 30 or 40 years ago. This trio would have been a great outfield back in the peak year of Cobb and Ruth.

One main trouble which arises in all comparisons is the change that has come to all games. For example, baseball has changed in many ways since the days of Cobb, Ruth and Hornsby. Or in the big days of Honus Wagner. Those were the days of the dead or much-dead ball—the days of the steal—not the days of the home run. Speed and quickness ruled over sheer power. Nine home runs would lead a league in one season. But it would take 70 or 80 or 90 stolen bases to lead a league. Baseball from 1900 to 1920 was an entirely different game from baseball in 1920 on to 1950.

A big part of the game's old science had given way to the home-run hitters.

Same Everywhere

Football is also an entirely different game from what it used to be. The first big change came in with the forward pass in 1906. The pass began to dominate the attack around 1915. Now it is a big part of football. The two platoon system changed football completely. The game of 1900 — even the game of 1920 — had passed out. Football is no longer a team game. It is practically one college meeting another college.

Today you have 30 or 40 men on each side throwing from 30 to 40 passes. So again how can you compare old-time football stars with the modern bunch, who either never make a tackle or else never run with the ball?

It might be well for all concerned to remember this—in the words of Bernard Gimbel—"In every sport that can be measured or timed records are improving year by year. The game is getting better and better."

Every sport should be well advanced today over bygone yesterdays. There are many more players. These players are getting better bulk training and smarter coaching in general.

There is no Cobb or Ruth around today and we'll likely never have another pair like this. But there have been some pretty fair ballplayers—Musial, Williams, DiMaggio, Rizzuto, Slaughter, Reese, Robinson, Terry Moore, Johnny Mize, Marty Marion, Yogi Berra, etc.

Bill Dickey ranks Berra up with the best catchers he ever saw, and Arkansas Bill knows about all there is to know about catching.

When it comes to comparisons, old and modern play are entirely too far apart to start any definite ranking.

The Case of the Cubs

Just across some 18 or 20 miles of water beyond Los Angeles there is a very beautiful island. Its name is Catalina—the training spot for owner Wrigley's Chicago Cubs.

On this island with its hills and ravines you can go wild goat hunting, quail shooting or play golf. Or you can watch Frank Frisch and his Cubs getting ready to keep out of last place, if possible.

It is generally understood that Branch Rickey has no idea of permitting the Pirates to linger much longer around the cramped confines of the cellar. Smart baseball men are betting he will have his Pirates in the first division in two years. But the Cubs, in spite of Frank Frisch's driving ability, don't seem to be going anywhere in the general direction of any higher plateau.

But the Cubs have the most comfortable and best-kept park in either big league and so big crowds wander out to the West Side.

Wilson Dominates Cabinet

THE MAN WHO really dominates cabinet meetings these days is not the President but Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson. Truman is so fond of Wilson personally, so determined to give him complete power, that the big square-jawed ex-head of General Electric carries far more weight than any member of the cabinet.

In fact, some cabinet meetings have featured none-too-friendly arguments in which Wilson always gets what he wants. For example, Wilson will announce to the cabinet: "We need more timber for defense construction. The lumber people tell me we can get it from the national forests."

The national forests are under Secretary of the Interior Chapman, while the timber in them is under the forest service and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. And if the latter argue about the need of saving timber for future generation and suggest using only half the proposed amount, Wilson's brusque reply is: "We need all of it."

Usually the president calls in the opposing cabinet member and says: "I think you'd better go along with Charlie. I had an awfully hard time getting him to take the job and I don't want him to leave because he doesn't get cooperation."

Chief inner-cabinet gripe against Wilson is that he listens chiefly to his advisers from industry and not to his colleagues in government. Generally speaking, Wilson is doing a good job, is especially trying to help place orders with little business—despite the fact that he comes from one of the biggest companies in the world.

Note.—Wilson's chief need is a few men around him who can do more long-range planning.

People-to-People

In the summer of 1947, this writer had an interesting talk with Gen. George Marshall, then secretary of state, about the importance of penetrating the iron curtain in order to refute the Moscow radio and convince the Russian people of the basic friendliness of the American people.

Secretary Marshall seemed convinced at that time that much was to be gained from drawing a distinction between the Russian people and their government, and making it clear that the American people had no quarrel with the Russian people.

In a nation which has no free press, no churches, no parliament to exercise a check rein on the Kremlin, the only way to prevent a precipitous declaration of war is contact with the people of Russia. This fact is, of course, the chief reason for the iron curtain. The Kremlin's greatest fear is that the Russian people will get too friendly with the outside world.

Secretary Marshall, at that time, favored making a speech in the assembly of the United Nations urging Moscow to remove the iron curtain and permit free intercourse between the people of Russian and the outside world. It was suggested that after such a speech was made, translations in the Russian language could be dropped behind the iron curtain—by weather balloons if necessary. The speech wasn't made.

Senator Wherry's Toast

Before French Premier Rene Pleven returned to Paris, he attended a stag dinner at the French embassy where he sat directly across the table from Sen. Ken Wherry of Nebraska, the arch foe of European aid.

Throughout the meal, the French premier and the Nebraskan isolationist chatted pleasantly about past experiences. Pleven told about visiting Nebraska as a youth, and spoke glowingly of Nebraska's beef cattle.

Wherry responded with a story on himself. He recalled that, as state GOP chairman, he had made a political barnstorming trip across the state. As he moved from town to town in southwest Nebraska, he came upon a small community that had received no advance word and wasn't expecting him. Nevertheless, he rounded up the local Republican leaders and arranged a pep rally that night. As he went into his spiel about the Nebraska GOP ticket, however, he got a cold reception. There was an exchange of whispers with the local leader, and the red-faced Wherry discovered he had wandered across the border and mistakenly arranged a rally in Colorado.

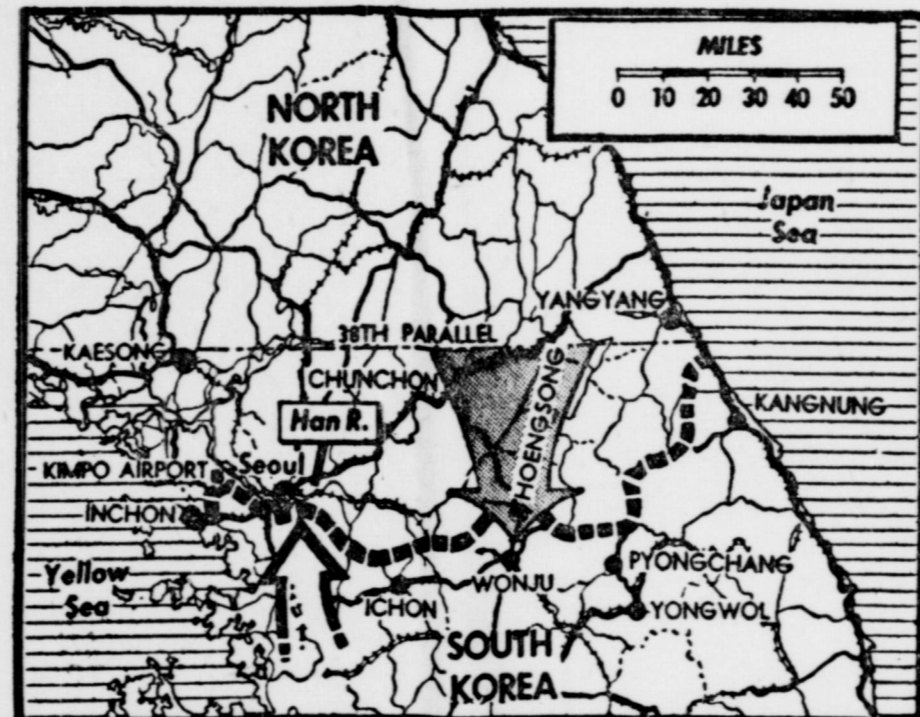

The French premier laughed heartily, and soon the two were talking back and forth as if Wherry were an ardent supporter of aid to Europe. When it came time for the traditional toasts, all drank to the success of Franco-American relations and the French aid program.

Finally it came Wherry's turn to lift his glass and turning to Pleven, he declared:

"Mr. Premier, I may ask a lot of questions. But I want you to understand that I am in favor of helping the French."

NEWS ANALYSIS Premier Jo Stalin Attacks Britain, United States for Korean Conflict; 100,000 European Force Is Planned

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.

The Chinese Communist offensive aimed at Wonju in an effort to split the United Nations line came to an abrupt halt with the destruction of two Red divisions. U.N. troops then pushed forward in a limited offensive that carried up to six miles along the 70-mile sector from Seoul to Wonju. The Reds were reported to have lost approximately 31,000 troops in their one week offensive.

STALIN:

The Role of Prophet

Prime Minister Stalin, in one of his rare public statements, predicted the free nations of the world, and the disintegration of the United Nations.

Assuming the role of a prophet thundering from his mountain, the Soviet leader attempted to intimidate the free nations of the world, to stir up discord between the North Atlantic pact nations, and brand Russia the only true champion of world peace. He succeeded only in tangling himself in a web of contradictions and lies.

There was even a minor threat of war when he said "cannot be considered inevitable," but that it might come if the "warmongers succeed in entangling the masses of the people in lies, in deceiving them."

Stalin went so far as to blisteringly denounce British Prime Minister Attlee for "lying" in saying that Russia had not demobilized after World War II. For his efforts in this direction, Stalin received a sharp slap by the British government with the charge that Russian armed forces now total 175 divisions, 25,000 tanks and 20,000 planes. With tongue in cheek, the British pointed out that figures don't lie.

Some western observers, noting Stalin's assertion that the U.N. was "burying its moral prestige and dooming itself to disintegration," believed Russia may be preparing to quit the organization.

No one in his right mind could believe any of Stalin's statements and the left-handed assertion that Russia really wants peace. To the contrary, Stalin's statements and the American and British replies only point up the seriousness of the present world situation.

The statement should do much to bring about a concentrated effort on the part of the west for what now seems inevitable.

KOREA:

Reds Pull Back

United Nations troops in Korea regained the offensive after breaking the back of the communist attack which saw the Chinese suffering an estimated 31,000 casualties.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's troops pushed forward in limited advances, but there were indications that Ridgway would not cross the 38th parallel in the immediate future.

There remain large unlocated Chinese elements north of the old political boundary line and the Chinese could bring down masses of men from further north.

Ground gains have assumed a secondary role in the Korean fighting. General Ridgway seems to be operating on the theory of hitting the Communists where the maximum number of casualties can be inflicted and retiring to established positions to plan the next move.

No one can foresee the end of the Korean war which has raged up and down the peninsula for eight months. And although the Chinese have suffered defects in recent weeks there is no indication that they are seriously hurt.

TROOPS:

Marshall Tells Plans

Gen. George Marshall, secretary of defense, took much of the steam out of the "great debate" over the question of American military aid to Europe when he told congress that the U.S. planned to send 100,000 more men abroad. The number was much smaller than had been expected.

It seems fortunate that opponents of the administration's foreign policy finally forced General Marshall to reveal the exact number of men. It certainly provided the Soviet Union with a valuable bit of military information.

Official Washington circles reported that sharp debate preceded the decision to tell the size of the army planned for Europe. Both the defense and state departments were against the disclosure.

However, continued attacks on foreign military aid by influential senators, including Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, forced the decision. These attacks were continued even after Taft and members of the senate armed service committee were informed in secret of the plans.

General Marshall told the senators that for security reasons he spoke "reluctantly." His reluctance was understandable in that he knew and disapproved of giving aid and comfort to a possible enemy of the United States. It is too bad other prominent figures on the national scene did not feel the same way as General Marshall, Washington observers reported.

LABOR:

An Open Revolt

Angry labor leaders were in open revolt against the nations mobilization program. It began when the wage stabilization board voted 6 to 3 to stabilize wages at a level generally 10 per cent above that of January 15, 1950. Three labor members quit the board.

But labor's complaint against the board's new formula for equalizing wages proved to be only a pretext. What they really had on their chests was a whole series of gripes against Charles E. Wilson, director of mobilization.

They contended that labor was not given a prominent place in policy-making, and that attempts were made to freeze wages while food prices and rents were still unsettled.

Many observers believed that the blowup was inevitable, that sooner or later someone would challenge the vast power bestowed upon Wilson and the "bull-it-through" manner in which he wielded that power. It was the old story of big business and labor in open conflict. But in this instance it was the nation's mobilization program that suffered.

Also on the labor front, the brotherhood of railway trainmen unexpectedly pleaded guilty to contempt charges arising from "sick" strikes in the Washington yards and were fined $75,000.

Labor circles wondered to what extent the guilty plea—a union assuming responsibility for "wildcat" strikes—would effect other pending cases, and whether it would help control wildcat tactics in the future.

CONTROLS:

New Curbs Likely

The protests of the nations housewives, labor and the average home towner may bring about new legislation soon to stabilize food prices. Eric Johnston, economic-stabilization director, hinted that legislation will be requested to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

Critics of recent enacted wage-price controls contend that the law protecting farmers' standard of living—by the parity device—is making a mockery of the government's anti-inflation program.

On the other hand, farm spokesmen have countered with a charge that an attempt is being made to smear farmers and make them the goat in any federal move to roll back prices.

Johnston is on something of a spot, with the housewives and labor lined up on one side and the farm bloc on the other. He has expressed himself as believing the farmer is entitled to his parity. But by the same token, the laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up.

Meanwhile, the government slapped on stiff new credit terms for nonresidential construction, amounting to 50 per cent down payments, in its battle against inflation.

The new order called for one-half down on construction of new stores, offices, hotels, banks, warehouses, garages, auto-service stations, restaurants, theaters, clubs and "other new structures."

The same requirement applies to repair, enlargement, alteration, and reconstruction of existing commercial buildings if the cost of the improvement exceeds 15 per cent of the building's appraised value.

SPORTS:

Game-Fix Scandal

The sensational disclosure of basketball game-fixing involving three New York colleges and a number of prominent players had repercussions as far down as the home towns of America.

Basketball is the most popular high school and college sport in the nation. Year after year a greater number of people see basketball games—from cracker-box gymnasiums to Madison Square Gardens—than witness any other sport.

It is apparent that game-fixing has not been confined to New York alone. A number of investigations which are just being launched will undoubtedly reveal bribery in many sections of the country.

High school basketball in the home towns of the nation does not draw national headlines, but there can be little doubt that there must have been numerous cases of attempted game-fixing on the high school level.

The scandal among the big schools, if nothing else, will bring about closer inspection of the game on the home town level. It may cause a clean-up that will again stress fair play and sportsmanship among the nation's youth.

CHINA:

An Inside Report

The first reliable information from within Communist China since that country's intervention in Korea was made public by Arthur Moore, a British newspaperman who visited Peiping with the backing of the Indian ambassador.

Moore reported the large number of casualties in Korea was causing concern to Red China's leaders and that Manchurian hospital facilities had been unable to care for the wounded.

The war in Korea, although waged on a limited scale, is still somewhat of a surprise to the Chinese. Casualties are greater than expected and a major gasoline problem has developed.

Off to Europe

In a supposedly secret departure, witnessed by some 25 reporters and 75 cameramen, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and his wife, Mamie, board the Queen Elizabeth. The general returned to Europe to resume his command of western defense forces.

POST OFFICE:

Plans Major Shift

What was undoubtedly the most important change in basic postal transportation policy since air mail, was announced by the post office department. The plan is to transfer short-haul mail from the railroad to highway trucks.

The postal department first planned the shift when the railroads filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission for a 95 per cent increase in mail-pay rates.

Don't Talk About Troubles; Correct Them Says Mother

When many folks get to feeling badly they just don't know what to do. They fret and stew around, tell their neighbors, their friends and their family how badly they feel—and they usually do feel miserable. But they don't help matters any by telling other folks how badly they feel all the time, because most folks don't want to be around them when they act that way.

No w, for example, take Mrs. Zina Lee Bowman, Route 6, Clees Ferry Road, Nashville, Tennessee. When she got to feeling badly, she began taking HADACOL and found that by taking HADACOL she gave her system Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron in which she was deficient.

Here is Mrs. Bowman's own statement: "I was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I am 30 years old. I am the mother of 9 children. I was so nervous I hardly wanted the children to speak. I had to rest after I got breakfast and before I cleaned my house. I have taken almost 4 bottles of HADACOL, and I feel fine. The children can make all the noise they wish, and it doesn't bother me. In fact, I join them in their ball games and other games. We are a happy family, thanks to HADACOL."

If your druggist does not have HADACOL, order direct from The LeBlanc Corporation, Lafayette, Louisiana. Send no money. Just your name and address on a penny post card. Pay postman. State whether you want the $3.50 hospital economy size or $1.25 trial size. Remember, money cheerfully refunded unless you are 100% satisfied. —Adv. © 1950, The LeBlanc Corporation.

Tight Rope

By Allison L. Burks

Stella Moore and Nurse Carol, fleeing the Thorndyke mansion where Stella has been masquerading as Dorinda LaCroix, the granddaughter of old Mrs. Thorndyke, stop at an all-night hamburger stand to determine if a car which was behind them was actually pursuing them. Three mysterious deaths have excited and alarmed the women. The car stops and Edward Thorndyke, old Mrs. Thorndyke's son and the man who had employed Stella to play out the masquerade to save Mrs. Thorndyke from the shock of knowing the real Dorinda is dead, enters the restaurant. He chides Stella for not reporting her suspicions to him and drives her to the home of Cleve Adams where Mrs. Adams takes her in.

CHAPTER XVII

"We've got a girl here who needs a lot of sleep, Mother. We'll leave explanations until tomorrow. If you've an extra nightie or pajamas or whatever it is you gals wear, drag it out and tuck our little neighbor into bed." Dorinda caught the warning glance he shot at his mother.

Mrs. Adams asked no more questions. She produced a white night-dress "reserved especially for visitors who don't bring their own," she told Dorinda gaily; she escorted the girl to a guest room down the hall and helped her undress; she went to the door and took the glass of hot milk Cleve brought, and watched Dorinda as she drank it.

Finally she tucked her into bed and, bending over, kissed her cheek. "Good night, my dear," she said gently and left her.

"You needn't feel afraid any more." The echo of Cleve's words was the last thing Dorinda remembered that night. "You needn't feel afraid!"

She slept the deep dreamless sleep which comes with relaxation from strain and did not awake until morning drew a penciled line of sunlight across her face and her eyes opened and blinked in its blinding dazzle.

She felt rested and hungry. Dressed again in the brown pull-over and skirt, she ran down stairs. The front door stood open to the soft spring air and beyond the protecting screen she could see Cleve pacing up and down the porch, whistling softly to himself.

He looked around at her call and hurried inside. The screen door closed behind him with a bang. She watched him come, a little stab of pain at her heart. If he could always be this close, always where he could come at her call. But would he want to be—after today? She shook her head driving away the thought. They were together now. She would pretend that now was all that mattered.

"I've been waiting for you." Cleve's voice was a caress. "Mother has already gone to Trentville, marketing. How do you feel?"

"Hungry," she laughed.

"Good!" But as she looked up at him, she saw the frown that creased his forehead.

Sheriff Asks Dorinda About Night's Events

"Dorinda," he asked abruptly, "Did you see Lana last night?"

"Lana!" she repeated in surprise. "Why, no. I haven't seen her since she went out yesterday before lunch. What makes you ask?"

"She seems to be missing. Your Aunt Harriet phoned this morning. She said Lana'd been gone all night and she seemed to think you must know something about it since you'd been gone, too. Although she admitted Mr. Thorndyke had told her where you were and that you didn't know anything about Lana's absence."

"I certainly don't," she assured him. "She never tells me—or anyone else I should judge—from what her mother says—where she's going or when she'll be back."

"I told your aunt I was sure you hadn't seen her. I advised her to call Poole—he must be back by now—and she said she would. She was terribly upset. She said Lana's never stayed away all night before."

"It's queer. Cleve, you don't suppose she was one of the persons Carol heard—whispering?"

His face hardened. "It doesn't seem likely. Why on earth would Lana have it in for you? You haven't interfered with any of her plans, have you?"

"I'm sure I haven't. She's always away. About the only time we meet is at meals. I don't suppose we exchange half a dozen sentences a day. You know, Cleve, I can't believe she's really missing. She's probably stayed all night some place and will show up soon."

"I think so myself. Let's not worry until we know there's something to worry about." He piloted Dorinda toward a door a short distance down the hall. "Breakfast, Myrtle, and plenty of it," he shouted kitchenward.

Twenty minutes later she pushed back her plate. "What a breakfast!" She sighed. "It's wonderful being here, Cleve. I feel so free."

"Only one word from you and the place is yours for life. You—He stopped as Myrtle poked her black head through the door.

"That sheriff man's here to see you, Mr. Cleve." Naturally, it can't help but make Poole more suspicious of us all.

His dark eyes met hers and slid away. "I don't demand a great deal of life, Dorinda. Just peace and what I consider a reasonable amount of comfort. Sometimes it seems to me that everyone around me is in a conspiracy to destroy the things I value." His lips were set in morose lines of self-pity.

"But that isn't what I came for." He cleared his throat uneasily. "The time has come when I've got to tell you a few things, my dear. It—it's not exactly pleasant for me but I can't evade it any longer. What I have to say is partly an explanation, partly a confession."

He sat upright, one plump hand on either knee. She looked down at his round white fingers, seeing, without knowing she saw, the well manicured nails, the fine black hairs along the third finger joints.

"I loved my mother, Dorinda. But in her way she was a hard woman. Perhaps not hard, but inflexible. She didn't want her children ever to think they must cater to her, yield to her whims for the sake of favors received. She wanted us to be free to live our own lives. Underneath this may have been the feeling that she didn't want anyone to look forward to her death or be placed in the position of waiting for her to die.

"When I finished college, she made over to me my half of the money my father had left. She would have done the same for my sister except that Laura made an early marriage to a wealthy man. Mother had a little money of her own which came from her own family. She would have made it suffice if necessary even though it meant a simpler mode of living. In her will that money was designed for charity."

"At any rate, it was understood that the other half of my father's fortune was to go to Laura or any children she might have. I had had my share."

Edward shifted nervously. He got up and walked over to the porch rail, staring out over the clipped turf. When he turned back to Dorinda, he remained on his feet, leaning against one of the square painted posts which supported the roof.

Tries to Rationalize Decision to Deceive

"Apparently, I wasn't as wise as I thought—or as my mother thought. I know she had expected me to go into some business or profession of my own or to at least leave the money in the safe and conservative investments my father had made. But I traveled. I enjoyed life. I had what no doubt you would consider a great deal of money. But I didn't think it enough. I wanted to double it. It isn't necessary to go into details. I speculated—and lost."

He frowned moodily. "However, that's beside the point. The years went by and somehow I hadn't broached the subject which was constantly on my mind. It was difficult."

"Then the war in Europe came. Laura died and Mother became critically ill. I went after my sister's child. You know what happened. I was in a panic. We didn't tell Mother that Dorinda was dead. It would have killed her. And by the terms of her will, if Dorinda died before my mother, the money would have been divided among a number of charitable institutions she favored. It was then the inspiration came to me to find a substitute granddaughter—you."

Edward Tells Dorinda Of Life With Mother

Edward smoothed back his black hair in his familiar gesture. He came back to the porch swing and sat down close beside Dorinda and went on in a lowered voice. "Believe me, I meant no harm. In the beginning my only thought was to prolong my mother's life. As I told you, I loved my mother. And I had to have time to persuade her to change her will."

"But after you came and the impersonation was so successful, the idea came to me that even if I failed with Mother, and that fear was always with me, there seemed to be no reason why we shouldn't go on as we were. You were my mother's heiress, you'd have the money. If we divided it—"

"Good Heavens!" Dorinda stared at him, her brown eyes wide with amazement. "You didn't think I'd take the money, that I'd stay there, that I'd be Dorinda always, did you?" She was too astonished to be angry.

"It's not worth that much to me. To play a part all my life—"

"You'd get used to it. After awhile you'd have believed you really were Dorinda. And neither of us would have been in a position to betray the other. I believe it would have been a wise and successful venture, only—"

He paused, moistening his lips.

"Only!" she repeated softly, her eyes filled with the horror of a dawning realization. "Only someone wanted your mother's heiress out of the way. If I had died—who'd get the money?"

HUMPHREY BOGART proudly boasts that some day his two-year-old son, Stephen, will be paying enormous income taxes. Bogart has made sure of that by setting up a trust fund for Stephen, into which will go the $5,000 weekly which the tough guy of the movies will receive for starring in the Ziv Company's transcribed radio series, "Bold Venture." When reminded that Stephen will have to contribute heavily toward the upkeep of Uncle Sam, Bogart retorts that he'll be able to afford it.

HUMPHREY BOGART

Margaret Sheridan, discovered five years ago by Howard Hawks, has been studying hard all this time in preparation for a picture career. She makes her debut as the feminine lead in Hawks' "The Thing," for RKO.

Bob Hope's present plans include sailing for England in mid-April for a two-week engagement at the London Palladium; he'll get the highest salary they've ever paid an actor. Afterward he will entertain American and British troops in England, then fly to Germany and France to put on shows for the GI's stationed there. Right now he's working in "My Favorite Spy."

Those jokes about how women love to suffer as they listen to daytime serials don't apply to the first television counterpart, "The first Hundred Years." It is light, frothy domestic comedy, the story of a young married couple and their parents—the kind of people we all know. It is expertly performed by a cast headed by Jimmy Lyndon and Oliv. Stacy.

Robert Alda, very busy in the stage hit, "Guys and Dolls," is not neglecting his movie fans. Eagle-Lion will shortly release his "Mr. Universe," and he has just finished "Two Guys and a Gal" for Laurel Films.

Thelma Ritter's first starring film, "The Mating Season," has a fine cast, good direction, and a familiar story. Miss Ritter was better as a supporting actress. Gene Tierney, John Lund and Miriam Hopkins are excellent.

Phyllis Thaxter had to learn to draw and twirl a gun, also do some rapid shooting, for "Fort Worth." She worked at it at the studio and got instruction at home from an expert, her five-year-old daughter, a Hopalong Cassidy fan.

More than 2,000 extras have been used so far in RKO's Technicolor musical, "Two Tickets to Broadway," starring Tony Martin, Janet Leigh, Ann Miller, Eddie Bracken and Gloria DeHaven. There are 109 speaking parts.

Patricia Medina took dancing and dramatic lessons for years in the hope of some day portraying a gypsy dancer on the screen. It paid off when she was cast in Columbia's "Valentino." She aids the star, played by Tony Dexter, to win his famous role in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" by dressing as an Argentine cantina girl and dancing with him.

Dale Van Sickle gets himself killed for the 100th time in Warners' "Storm Warning"; he specializes in stunt work, especially in dying spectacularly. Says it's quite a science to fall just right if you're shot; nobody would believe you were dying if you just fell down, as people do in real life. He demonstrates this in "Storm Warning," when a bullet gets him.

Jerome Courtland wears a special wig for his blackface skit in Columbia's "Sunny Side of Al Street"; was the one worn by Al Jolson when he was with the Dock-stader Minstrels, in 1906; Larry Parker wore it in "The Jolson Story."

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Hugh Sanders, who'll be one of the top featured roles in "Storm Warning," was a rag, announcer for a San Bernardino, Calif., station just a few months ago. So many people comment on the beauty of Star dust, the Kimble, Randolph Scott rode him, La Salle, that Scott rides him, Maverick, "Fort Worth" . . . Piano Nudes; Piano Playhouse, "Maverick," his own 15-minute recording, "Maverick," recorded by Zappa.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—Can you tell me what type of evidence I should submit to VA in order to apply for death pension benefits? My husband, a World War I veteran, died recently, but not of service-connected causes.

A—You should submit proof of your husband's death; complete information as to your annual income, and proof of your marriage to your late husband. If either you or your husband had been married previously, you also should submit proof that the earlier marriages were legally dissolved.

Q—I started school under the GI Bill a month ago. I just learned that my school, through oversight, had not yet returned my certificate of eligibility to VA. Meanwhile, I never received subsistence and my tuition hasn't been paid. If the school sends the certificate to VA now, will I get back subsistence and will the school get back tuition?

A—So long as the school sends the certificate back to VA within 90 days of the date of receipt, VA will consider that date of receipt as the date of your entrance into training. Subsistence and tuition payments will begin as of that time.

Q—Is there any limit to the amount of money I can borrow from a private lender under the GI Bill?

A—No. The GI Bill limit is on the amount of VA's guaranty of the loan, and not on the amount of the loan itself.

Q—I am a World War I veteran and I have a $10,000 U. S. Government Life Insurance policy. I am thinking of turning $5,000 of it in for cash. If I do so, and later change my mind, will I be able to restate the cash-in $5,000?

A—No. Under the law, U. S. Government Life Insurance surrendered for cash may not be reinstated. However, before you take any steps to surrender your policy, you should write to the Office of Insurance, Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. C., and ask what courses of action are open to you under your insurance contract that would preserve your valuable reinstatement rights.
