Overloaded Trucks Condemned by Ass'n

MARFA, Texas, Nov. 14. — The resolution, unanimously condemning the use of highways by overloaded trucks, was adopted here today by the Big Bend Trail Association, Inc., in annual convention.

The resolution presented by J. Albert Lain of Cleburne, incoming president of the Association follows:

"That the practice of operating over loaded trucks on Texas highways be condemned and that all law enforcement officers be called upon for strict enforcement of the highway laws and requiring overloaded trucks to be unloaded at the point of violation."

San Antonio Sponsors Livestock Show

Champion cowboys, the best of the nation's circuit, will ride and wrestle for more than $30,000 at the San Antonio Livestock Exposition, Feb. 16-25 at the Bexar County Coliseum.

Lucian Jones, rodeo chairman of the stock show, revealed that the exposition had contracted with the Everett Colborn World's Championship Rodeo for fifteen performances during the exposition.

Colborn will bring to San Antonio five hundred head of wild livestock including bucking horses for bareback and saddle bronc riding, wild steers and Brahman bulls for bull-dogging and bull riding, saddle horses for arena work, calves and cattle for calf roping and cutting horse contests.

The prize money will be made up of $15,000 from the livestock exposition, which included $3,000 for each of the five events, to which is added the entry fees of the cowboy contestants.

The rugged rodeo has been approved by the Rodeo Cowboys Association as a major show and places it as a major attraction comparable with the rodeos of Ft. Worth and Houston.

Entry fees for the cowboy contestants are: saddle bronc, $30; bull riding, $30; calf roping, $100; bareback bronc riding, $30, and bull dogging, $50.

Ex-Marines Can Re-up with old Rank

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 13. — Ex-Marines can now re-enlist in the Marine Corps and retain the rank held at discharge, according to Captain T. R. Cathey, officer in Charge of Marine recruiting here.

In making this announcement Captain Cathey stressed that this applies only to those men who are not now members of the Marine Reserves. Reservists must apply to the Director of the 8th Marine Corps Reserve District in New Orleans for active duty.

Non-reserve ex-Marines will be enlisted in the Marine Corps reserve and assigned to immediate active duty and transferred to Camp Pendleton, near Oceanside, California, for placement and retraining, Captain Cathey said.

The Marine recruiting office is open seven days a week and is located on the 4th floor of the Post Office Building in San Antonio.

Seems that in this Democratic country it is next to impossible to jail a subversive, a dangerous criminal who openly flaunts our laws and advertises his allegiance to a foreign power. New laws to control them. Yet no one catches them. Or if caught, long, tedious trials, with always a possibility of legal technicalities of letting them go.

Turkey takes pride in two significant accomplishments this year — one, the first really free election ever held in the country and, two, the beginning of a return of most industries from state ownership back to private enterprise. The party demanding a de-nationalizing of industry won 395 out of 487 seats in the unicameral legislative body. It rarely ever happens — turning away from socialism once a country gets stuck with it.

Turkey sent 250,000 tons of chrome to the United States last year — 38 percent of the U.S. supply. Through ECA and technical help, the annual chrome production should reach 500,000 tons by 1953. The Turks have some of the largest deposits of metallurgical chrome in the world, and we are heavily dependent upon imports.

Tehran, the capital of Iran, is a rather thriving Middle Eastern city of a million people, yet has no water system, no sewer system, and has only 5,000 telephones. The cost of living there is 900 percent above prewar.

There's a very large Texas colony in Tehran, composed of 40 people according to the last count. In fact, they have a "Texas Embassy" and an "Ambassador" — P. L. Hicks, Isthman Steamship Co., representative. Hicks' wife is the former Nettie Schneider of San Angelo. She is a sister of Mrs. Charles Harper and Buddy Schneider who works for Hemphill-Wells.

Other Tehran Texans include Mrs. James R. Pierce, of El Paso, whose husband, Colonel Pierce, is Chief of the Tehran Gendarme (State Police) Advisory Commission.

Speaking of Tehran, the people are still talking about the Big Three (Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin) conference which was held there in 1943. Three of the main boulevards in the city are named Roosevelt Street, Churchill Street and Stalin Street.

Embassy attaches recall that President Roosevelt spent the first night in the American Embassy, but for security reasons was moved to the Russian Embassy where he lived during the remainder of the conference. The British Embassy is across the street from the Russian, and the two could be guarded better, whereas the American Embassy was some blocks away. The conference itself was held in the Russian Embassy.

Denmark holds 4th of July celebrations each year, commemorating our independence, to which Americans are invited. In addition, about two boat loads of Danish-Americans go across to attend each as honored guests. On last July 4, the affair was attended by 35,000 people, and was addressed (in Danish language) by Mrs. Eugenia Anderson, the American Ambassador.

Speaking of Mrs. Anderson, she has been Ambassador for less than a year, yet has just about mastered the native language in that time. She has already delivered three speeches in Danish and is quite a favorite with the Danish people. One of those talks was on Mother's Day, and it was broadcast.

Here is a mystery serial which is coherently written, yet filled with a sense of brooding terror, as a shadowy murderer slowly sets a trap for lovely young Stella Moore who is impersonating a dead girl.

In Denmark I met Admiral Quistgaard, Danish Defense Chief, who until recently was Naval Attache for four years at the Danish Embassy in Washington. His son recently joined the American Marines and is presently stationed at Camp Pendleton, Oregon.

One of the finest dairy herds in Denmark is near Copenhagen. The breed is called Red Danish, the cows average 1,300 pounds in weight, produce more than 500 pounds of butter fat annually. From the one famous herd I visited, during its 40 years, 2,000 registered breeding bulls have been sold.

A strong personality in the Middle East is diminutive General Ali Razmara, new Prime Minister of Iran. His brother, who lives in Boston, is an American citizen and his son is attending Syracuse University. Needless to say, America has a friend in the new Prime Minister.

In Belgrade it's the law that when a car approaches an intersection it must honk once to go straight, twice for a right turn and three times for a left turn which one may look down to nearby Mars Hill where St. Paul stood and delivered an immortal sermon to the Athenians.

It was "Oxi" (No) Day in Greece on October 30, as it is every year on that date. Its origin goes back to October 30, 1939, when at 3 o'clock in the morning the Italian Ambassador telephoned Metaxas, Greek Government head, to tell him that unless there was complete capitulation by 6 o'clock A.M., Mussolini's legions would march in. The sharp answer was "No."

And in the war that followed, the Greeks gave the invaders a sound licking. Finally Adolph had to go to Benito's relief. So, for perhaps centuries, every October 30 will be "No" day in Greece.

Women first appeared as professional dancers on the French stage in the 17th century.

The first Bible printed in America was printed in the Indian language.

The first women colonists came to Virginia in 1608.

Mental Meanderings

Seems to us that we have been talking about high taxes, and were, as almost anyone right about their being pushed down on us now, and soon. But, we have been a little too shy in our guesses and consideration. The Government — the big brass hats, that is — are talking about higher taxes but in terms that send a chill down the backbone of most of the guys who make that green stuff easier than we do. Sounds as if the big pressure is on.

Just a few more weeks until Christmas. It is coming fast, and soon we will all be busy as beavers getting ready to do our part. Buying, buying. Giving, giving, giving. There are many thousands of fine and unusual gifts that we can give. There are some who prefer the unusual. Others like the sweet and sincere. Some like 'em costly, others wet, some foodsty. We all like remembrance, though. So start that list of yours and start getting the gifts. Time's a-wasting.

Seems that pretty soon they are going to have color television. One big radio network says it has color television already but there is a big squabble about it. Seems that the one that gets on the air with it first gets the biggest rewards. But it doesn't affect us too much, we who can't get much out of Video.

There is a big tie-up of gambling, legalized and otherwise with big shot racketeers, police and government men. Politics always plays ball with the monied classes. Seems that something should be done about it and our guess is that soon there will be something done. If nothing else, to get taxes out of.

The person who refuses or is unwilling to admit they made a mistake, and won't take any steps to correct that error, is, to most everyone's opinion, one not worthy of the name of friend, not one to be trusted. There are times when it's good policy or a step into an appreciated social class to down someone and up someone else. But when all is said and done, and the final check-up taken, conscience will persist in bringing up that remembrance of something we have done, that we are ashamed of.

Perhaps you have wondered, as we often have, why if so many different cults and isms are brought up and faithfully adhered to, that more people don't give that old-time "faith" a trial. Not that we all expect the faith that moves mountains to work for us all today. It will work today if it worked centuries ago. But only if the conditions are all fulfilled. And we all well know that "faith" of any sort is weak in most everyone. Let us develop faith, faith in our fellow-men, in our civilization, our destiny. Let's have faith the Creator will see us through. He always has.

We have read of the big trials and tribulations our boys go thru, over there in Korea. Just like in any other war. Let us hope that we, who stay at home can endure as much and suffer as much for the good of our country as they can and do for theirs.

Sounds simple, the idea, but then we guess we are getting the wrong guys in the right places. The Americans are touted as the biggest and best advertising men in the world. Yet, we don't seem to click in advertising Democracy to other nations; hardly even to ourselves. What's the matter, Perhaps we need changes made somewhere.

Trust to Tin Pan Alley, or rather to the American musical spirit to run out some zany song in each once in a while. Some of them are really goofy, and possibly only intended to be a stop-gaps or irritate the bump of curiosity of the average American. Some, like "Molasses," etc. are almost unintelligible to half the population. It seems to do all right with the other half. We didn't know until recently that there are hundreds of these songs written that never see the light of day for those that click.

Sympathy it one thing that gets most Americans. It takes more money out of the pockets of Americans than almost any other racket. Not that sympathy is not a good virtue. But to the contrary. It is too well known that too many people take advantage of this trait in humanity to make easy livings, and much money from the sympathy work with and for — and not against — you.

Now, we find some of the smaller magazines and papers, which are read by many of the poorer people, beginning to give tips on house and money-saving. Remember we got strung out last world war on various ways to save money by doing your own repairs, making the food bill go further, etc. Remember about Invert sugar recipe, and from old Almanacs we took lots of recipes. We used very few, but still have them handy. Just in case.

Now that Congress has reconvened, there is plenty of electricity in the atmosphere. No need to wonder what is going on. Plenty of noise, taxes, grumblings, resignations, politics. Something we can't get over, even in time of stress, that politics.

A friend of ours the other day was asking what happened to our dissertation on Nostrodamus and the other prophets of ancient and modern times. We don't like to harp on anything that you can't get much satisfaction out of. You know, we don't believe to any noticeable extent on any of these seers, although some, like Lechin, Karl Marx, Leonardo Da Vinci, Joseph Luff, Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Lyman E. Stowe, C. Osborn Ward, Katie Whittmore, Joanna Southcott, Anton Johanson, Heman Halpern and many others, have occasionally appeared to hit the mark. We believe that events come to pass in the main as the Creator outlined, with the details occurring as time brings them to pass.

Lafayette presented the key to the French Bastille to George Washington and it may now be seen at Mount Vernon.

Turkey, Pumpkin Pie Will Vie for Honors At Thanksgiving Table

AS THE FROST gathers on the pumpkins, it's time to start making plans for the bountiful feast of Thanksgiving. Here's an excellent opportunity for parading the colors of fall as well as the fruits of harvest.

Smart homemakers will plan the menu around simple foods, part of which can be prepared a day or two before the day of Thanksgiving. Then, they, too, will be able to be thankful for planning which didn't force them into the kitchen for the whole day.

With the menu I've planned for this special occasion, you may clean and stuff the turkey the day before. Refrigerate both bird and stuffing before putting together to avoid spoilage. That leaves only the roasting to be done on Thanksgiving.

Chestnut Stuffing (For 16-pound bird)

1/2 pound butter
1 pound chestnuts, cooked and chopped
3 quarts toasted bread cubes
1 1/4 teaspoons salt
1 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 1/2 cups hot water

Melt butter, and add bread cubes, salt, celery, onion, parsley, chestnuts and seasoning. Mix thoroughly. Add hot water to moisten.

When bird is stuffed, estimate the weight of bird by adding 25 per cent to the dressed weight so that total cooking time may be determined. Lay, breast side down, in a shallow baking pan, in a V-shaped rack. Bake uncovered at 325° half the estimated baking time, then breast up until the cooking is completed. Brush the skin lightly with unsalted fat, such as lard, to prevent blistering. If desired, cover with a cheesecloth, lightly moistened with fat, to prevent drying out. Remove the cloth during the last half of the roasting period if the bird is not evenly browned. Roast a 10-16 pound bird 18-20 minutes per pound.

Glazed Onions (Serves 8-10)

3 dozen small white onions
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup stock or water
Salt and paprika
2 tablespoons sugar

Peel onions, cook five minutes in boiling salted water, drain thoroughly, and turn into small baking dish with butter, stock or water, salt, and paprika. Cover and bake in moderately hot oven (375°) half an hour; then remove cover, sprinkle with sugar, and allow onions to brown.

Cranberry Sweet Potatoes (Serves 8)

2 cups cranberries, chopped
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup walnuts, chopped
1 tart apple, peeled and sliced

The regal bird, tender and brown from the oven should be placed on a platter large enough to hold it easily. Bright red cranberries in peach halves give it a lovely garnish.

LYNN SAYS:
Here's How You Can Decorate Holiday Table

If you have a gourd, set this at the center of the table on a display of autumn leaves. Fill the gourd with fruits such as shining red apples, tangerines, bananas and grapes.

Beautifully colored leaves can be used on the plates if you are serving chilled vegetable juice or fruit juice as a first course. Place leaf on plate and the glass of juice right on top of the leaf.

Pumpkin pie appears at the table dressed up with leaves cut from thin slices of cheese. Make a leaf pattern from cardboard, place on thin slice of American cheese and cut out with sharp knife.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

I Have A
"Close Squeak"!

Spent last Saturday morning wandering all over the house. Wherever I went—upstairs or down—I kept hearing a "squeak." Couldn't find out where it was coming from until noon-time when the missus came home from her weekly shopping.

"Listen," I says to her, "hear that squeak?" I started walking real quiet-like across the kitchen and there it went again! "Joe Marsh," she laughs, "that is nothing but your suspender clips rubbing back and forth when you walk!" And darned if it wasn't! From where I sit, I'd been letting a little thing become a serious problem. Like some little difference of opinion or taste will start off a great big argument. I may prefer a temperate glass of beer with my dinner—while the missus likes tea—but we figure that no two people have exactly the same likes and dislikes. So, why get all "het up" about it?

The moral is, check your suspenders—and check your temper when it comes to little things.

Football Officials

Lefty James, the very able coach at Cornell, let out a lusty squawk about football officials and the penalties imposed against his Cornell team in the Harvard game.

Lefty James is a first class coach and a first class sportsman. He was merely giving public utterance to what so many other coaches said before in private conversation.

Grantland Rice

What they all overlook is this—football is not a game that lends itself to the operation of officials. You have 22 men on the field, widely scattered, all over the lot, any one of them quite willing to face the chance of any penalty that might help win the game.

As Hurry-up Yost once said to me—"There are at least one or two penalties incurred on every play in football. There are off sides. There is holding, secret or otherwise. There is always some form of rule breaking. All the officials can do is watch for penalties that affect the play directly.

In the course of one season after another, I have seen penalties that changed the course of four or five games a year. I have seen many penalties that were not called but that directly affected the turn of the game. These were shown in motion pictures later. Some of them were glaring infractions but unseen by the officials.

It so happened that I worked as an official in the south for many years as referee, umpire and field judge. It was then I made up my mind that football was not a game that could be handled efficiently on the field. I have never changed my mind since.

No pair of eyes doubled and redoubled can follow all that takes place. Pass interference alone could drive any set of officials stark raving mad. I have shown slow motion pictures of such plays to many officials whose rulings in the game were at variance with the camera portrayal. They were, of course, guessing.

"Backfield in motion" is another problem that keeps coaches and officials in a frantic state of mind. It is a split-second decision and the human eye isn't equipped for split seconds. The hand—and the foot—are both quicker than the human eye. Which is never too fast. Otherwise magicians would starve to death. Yet the official must work with his eyes, which are not capable of handling the job.

Football the Toughest

Football is by all odds the toughest of all games for any set of officials to handle.

Baseball is a holiday in comparison. The umpire today—or four of them—knows where to be and there can only be two men involved right under his nose—the runner and the fielder. But with 22 men scattered all over the field—from 50 to 100 yards apart—all with a little honest larceny in their hearts—no set of officials could cover this ground. I have seen too many motion picture of the mistakes made—mistakes that cost games.

But the main fault is with the structure of football itself, not with the officials. No set of officials in any game works harder, trains harder, or tries harder to handle an impossible job. It is an impossible job on many occasions where the human eye falls down completely. In sitting up in a press box above the field, you frequently see plays clearly that officials on the field must miss with their visions shut off by intervening players.

The worst place to see a football game is from the bench. The level view is impossible. That is why scouts, helping to direct the play, move to some elevated spot and use their phones from above the field. Football officials, however, work on this level range. One official, working above the field, could see twice as much on many occasions as those working on the ground.

Coaches should understand the fault isn't with the officials. It is with the game itself. And the coaches could do a better job in training their men to play the game by the rules, which so few coaches do. Off side, holding, starting too quickly in the backfield are rule infractions, that right coaching could reduce.

Neat Sleight-of-Hand

THE SENATE commerce committee has pulled some neat sleight-of-hand to keep the taxpayers from finding out how much government gravy Pan American Airways is getting.

Under a senate resolution, the committee is supposed to examine the airmail subsidies paid to the airlines for hauling mail. What the senate wants to know is how much of this subsidy is legitimate compensation and how much pure government handout.

Yet, in defiance of the senate, the committee staff has quietly excluded Pan American Airways from the study. And, as a double precaution—believe it or not—it has hired Pan Am's accountants to make the survey.

Interesting fact is that the senate commerce committee is partly dominated by Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine, close friend of Pan American Airways. Brewster has traveled all over Latin America free in Pan Am planes, also commuted between Washington and Maine in a special Pan Am plane and is now being investigated for tapping the wires of TWA's Howard Hughes on behalf of Pan American Airways.

What Brewster had to do with the recent maneuvering inside the senate commerce committee is not known. But it is known that the contract for the airmail-subsidy survey was awarded to Ernst and Ernst of New York City, which also was retained by Pan American for fees of $109,000 in 1948 and $157,000 in 1949. What is even more peculiar, Ernst and Ernst's bid was not the lowest, but one of the highest. Despite this, the committee staff awarded the contract to Ernst and Ernst for $145,000—though other bids were submitted as low as $70,000, for example, by Georgetown University. In other words, it is costing the taxpayers twice as much to hire Pan American's accountants.

Tricky Word-Juggling

The commerce committee at first tried some tricky language to protect Pan American from the subsidy survey. This was written into the senate resolution by Edward Sweeney, the committee's aviation consultant, who called for a survey of "certificated interstate and overseas air carrier operations."

By a technicality, this left out Pan-American entirely, whose operations are classified by law as "foreign." However, West Virginia's alert Sen. Harley Kilgore caught this word-juggling.

"At first, I myself understood that the word 'overseas' covered the operation of all our planes flying abroad," he told the senate. "But it seems that the civil aeronautics act divided our planes into three classes instead of two. Overseas planes are defined as those which fly overseas to our island possessions."

As a result of Kilgore's vigilance, the senate unanimously changed the resolution to include Pan American. Despite this, the commerce committee has flagrantly ignored the senate mandate and has left Pan American out of the survey contract. The Hawaiian runs of Northwest and United Airlines are included, but Pan American's Hawaiian run is left out of the study by its wire-pulling friends on the senate commerce committee.

Merry-Go-Round

Nine out of ten visitors at Lake Success want to see Mrs. Roosevelt, but have trouble asking for her committee by name (Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural committee). Often they ask: "Is this the room where they hold human relations?" . . . A committee chairman at Lake Success, scanning his list of speakers, announced: "I call now on the delegate of the Soviet Union and when he has finished speaking, all the delegates on my list will have been exhausted."

The Soviets got a lot of publicity when they walked out of various U.N. agencies early this year. But they have avoided publicity in their back-tracking. Thus, few people outside U.N. are aware they have returned to the trusteeship council and the economic and social council . . . Fleet Admiral Nimitz has completed a country-wide speaking tour for the United Nations, and will leave the U.N. payroll at the end of this month. A great fighting man, he has now done a fine job for peace. Capitol Hill is still chortling over the way Sen. "Molly" Malone of Nevada, Republican, challenged Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois, Democrat, to a fist fight on the senate floor just before congress adjourned.

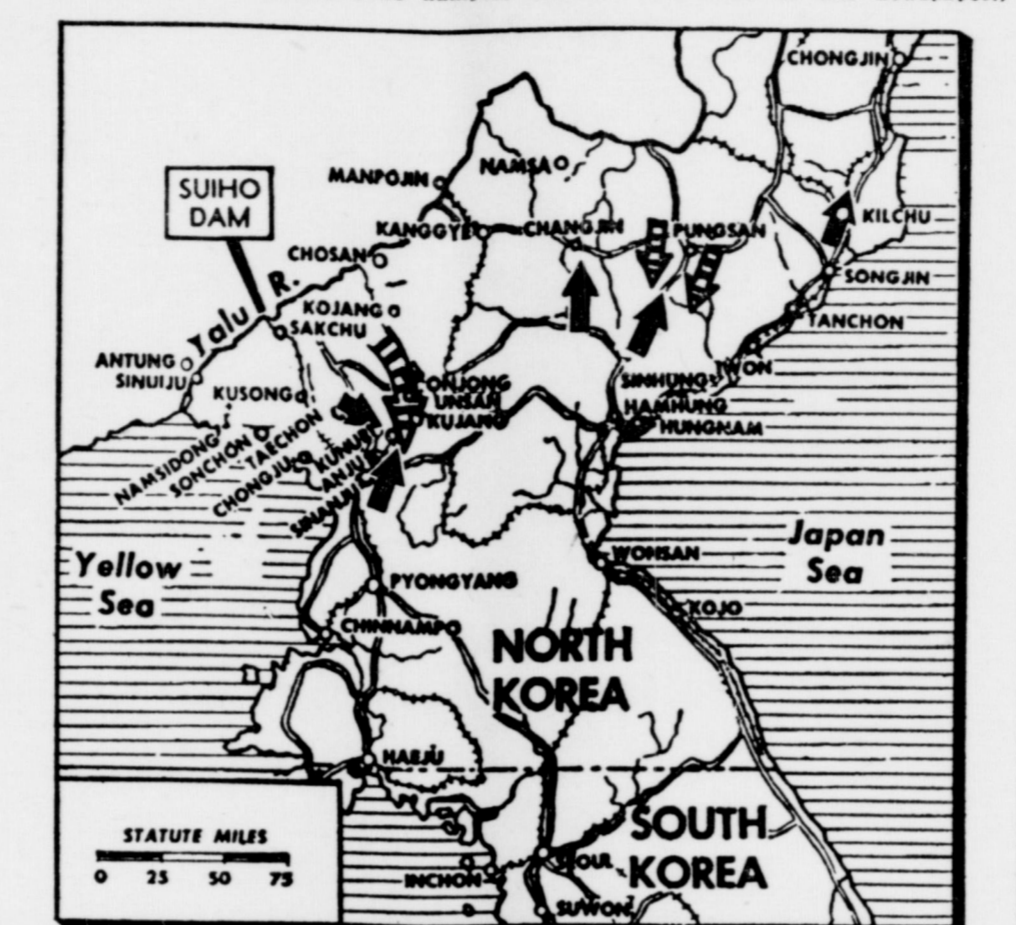

Strange Appointment

A lawyer who helped torpedo the American plan to break up Nazi cartels is now assistant general counsel of the national production authority, the new defense agency with get-tough powers over industry.

He is Richardson Bronson, named by an investigating commission as a key figure behind the dropping of the stiff decartelization plan. While in Germany Bronson worked hand in glove with Phillips Hawkins, son-in-law of Wall Street banker William E. Draper.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS
Republicans Make Sweeping Gains For Both Senate and House Seats; Korean Situation Is Called Serious

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

An estimated 80,000 Chinese Communists are reported driving southward (broken arrows) in an attempt to split U.N. forces. U.N. troops withdrew, although some units were surrounded and cut to pieces. Observers report the Korean situation serious.

ELECTION:

Republicans Gain

Taking the administration by surprise, the Republican party made sweeping gains in the senate and house in one of the most hotly contested national elections in years.

As final tabulations were being completed, observers believed that the Democrats would retain 49 senate seats and the Republicans would have 47. To all practical purposes the Republicans will have a working majority in the senate and will control legislative voting with the aid of rebellious southern Democrats.

In the house the Republicans made sweeping gains, but not enough for control.

Most startling aspect of the election, in the opinion of most observers, was the defeat of such men as Democrat Sen. Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois.

Lucas was the Democratic majority leader in the senate and Tydings was a strong supporter of the administration and the state department.

In Ohio, Sen. Robert A. Taft won a resounding victory over the labor-Truman purge attempt. Foreign policy played an important part in Taft's campaign and the results of the battle may shake the foundations of the Republican party. Some observers saw Taft's victory as a plain indication that the people were not happy with the administration's foreign policy.

The administration took another blow in Connecticut. Republican John Davis Lodge ousted Fair Deal Democrat Chester Bowles in the governor's contest. Democrat Sen. Brien McMahon, however, was re-elected.

In New York, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, twice-defeated Republican nominee for president, won a third term as governor of that state. The governor's running mate, Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley, was defeated by Sen. Herbert Lehman. Here again was evidence of that trend where neither Republicans or Democrats were able to sweep all offices. This split across party lines was evident in many sections of the country.

In California, Republican Gov. Earl Warren, seeking a third term, won re-election over James Roosevelt, son of the late President. Rep. Richard M. Nixon also defeated Democrat Helen Gahagan Douglas in a senatorial battle.

In a congressional fight that attracted nation-wide attention, American-Labor party Rep. Vito Marcantonio of New York, the only minor party representative in the house, was unseated by a Democratic-Republican-Liberal coalition formed for the sole purpose of beating him. Marcantonio's foes charged that he followed every twist and turn of the Communist party line during his service in the house.

As final tabulations were compiled, observers agreed that Democratic control of the senate and house was so slight it did not constitute a safe working majority. As a result, the next two years will see a number of bitter battles on legislation and much of it being passed or killed by incredible small margins.

OFFICIAL CENSUS

U. S. Population Now 150,697,316

As of April 1, 1950, there were 150,697,316 persons in the United States. That is the official count as recently released.

This represented an increase of 19,028,068 since the 1940 census. In the last 10 years there has been a considerable shift in the concentration of the population. As a result seven states will gain a total of 14 seats in the house of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey added a marathon television show to his list of political-campaigning devices. He had Mrs. Dewey on the show with him a while. He asked her, "Why don't you take your hat off." She replied, "Because my hair's a mess. Why do things like this happen just when I need a permanent?"

Headliners

"The Communists committed one of the most offensive acts of international lawlessness of historic record," Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his report on Chinese intervention in North Korea.

George Bernard Shaw, Irish author and wit, who died at the age of 94, for years had kept the world in a whirl with his use of words. Here are some Shavianisms: Success—"The secret of success is to offend the greatest number of people;" Truth—"The truth is the one thing nobody will believe;" Love—"Sir, there are two tragedies in life. One is to lose your heart's desire. The other is to gain it."

KOREA:

Situation Serious

The war in Korea which seemed on the verge of complete victory for the United Nations forces took a dangerous turn with the invasion of Chinese Communists. Political observers termed the situation serious, including Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the U. N. commander.

According to available reports, between three and six Chinese divisions crossed the boundary between Manchuria and Korea and went into battle beside the North Koreans. The immediate military result was a withdrawal of U. N. troops south, in some instances as much as 50 miles.

MacArthur summed up the situation by reporting that the North Korean army was finished as a fighting force in October by the inflicting of 335,000 casualties. This included 135,000 Reds who were captured.

His communique on the situation said: "In the face of this victory of U. N. arms, the Communists committed one of the most offensive acts of international lawlessness of historic record."

There are available in Manchuria about 300,000 troops—veterans of the Chinese civil war—which could be thrown into the battle immediately. Another 300,000 are believed to be either in Manchuria or North China.

The dangerous question now facing the free nations is what attitude the Chinese will take to MacArthur's charge that "alien Communists" have entered the war.

Whether the Communist world is prepared to take this colossal step is a secret, most probably locked in the depths of the Kremlin.

If the Communists are ready to take this risk it may mean the start of World War III and the end of the world as we have known it.

representatives; nine states will lose that many seats. The reapportionment will take effect in the congress convening in 1953, assuming the 435-seat total of the house is not changed in the meantime.

Congress could change the membership total of the house if it wished, but most observers believed this unlikely.

GERM-WARFARE:

Infected Rats Found

One of the most frightening and horrible discoveries of the Korean conflict was made public when the army disclosed it had found five thousand rats and mice inoculated with deadly plague and other germs in a secret laboratory near Pyongyang.

The army reported more than 5,000 rats and mice were inoculated with such diseases as bubonic plague, encephalitis, and eburicawaddy fever immediately after the U.N. landing at Inchon.

Only 380 of the carriers were alive when discovered and 200 of these were mad from hunger. None were believed to have been turned loose or to have escaped from their sealed cages, though fleas from the dead animals might spread disease.

The project was reported under the supervision of a Russian woman scientist who fled northward after the landing.

The animals were kept in cages in groups of from two to 20. They were well fed and their furs sprayed with a chemical that encouraged the multiplication of fleas.

The discovery will provide a clue to the type of germ-warfare experimentation Communist countries might be carrying out and give the free nations of the world an indication as to what horrors the Communist will resort.

SPAIN:

Ban Is Lifted

After four years the United Nations had lifted its diplomatic ban against the Spanish government. The action accomplished two objectives:

1. It withdrew the 1946 recommendation to all U. N. members that they withdraw ambassadors and ministers from Madrid.
2. It lifted the 1946 ban against admission of Spain to the U. N.'s specialized agencies.

The United States, however, will not return an ambassador to Madrid. President Truman said publicly recently he would not appoint one.

The U. N.'s resolution left intact the condemnation of the Franco regime for its aid to the Axis during World War II.

The United States voted in favor of removing the boycott which was spearheaded by Catholic Latin American nations.

Revolutionist

Pedro Albizu Campos, Harvard graduate, leader of the Nationalist party that threw Puerto Rico in turmoil, was arrested after the attempt to assassinate President Truman. FBI agents were trying to connect him with the attempt on the President's life.

WORLD WAR III:

Thunder Can Be Heard

The capitals of the world trembled because many observers believed they heard the thunder of World War III on the horizon.

The thunder was caused by Communist China which adopted the attitude that "American intervention in Korea signals an intention to invade China."

All Communist dispatches and broadcasts hammered out the same recurrent themes:

1. The Chinese Communists will oppose "American imperialist aggressors" with concrete action.
2. American use of the atom bomb will mean retaliation in kind.

Observers were further troubled because the Chinese evidently meant business. From three to six Chinese divisions had been identified in action in Korea against United Nations forces. They forced U. N. troops to make withdrawals, and, from early reports, intended to continue their march south.

No one in his right mind can overlook the fact that China could be the strongest nation in the world. The Chinese Communist armies already are estimated at 5,000,000 men of whom 1,000,000 are in Manchuria. Peiping recently announced organization of 5,500,000 armed militia, bringing the country's armed strength to more than 10,000,000.

Its industrial might never has been exploited, but could, within a few years, become one of the greatest in the world. China's war supplies at present are furnished in great part by Russia. There is no reason to believe they will be discontinued.

Observers believe that if China is determined to do so, she can take over Korea. It would mean a defeat for United Nations forces and the first phase of World War III. The answer seems to be hidden in the brain of Mao Tse-tung, China's Communist leader.

Ultraviolet Light Hikes Egg Laying

Hens exposed to ultraviolet light showed a marked increase in egg production during a series of experiments conducted by U. S. department of agriculture scientists. The exact properties of the ultraviolet radiation causing the increase have not yet been identified, but production was raised by as much as 19 percent through its influence.

The experiments were started in 1945 by the agricultural research administration as the result of a discovery made while scientists were working with so-called bactericidal ultraviolet light (the very short rays of invisible light, frequently used to eliminate bacteria). A source of bactericidal light was being tested for its ability to reduce the number of air-borne bacteria in a poultry house when it was found that hens under the ultraviolet radiation laid more eggs than those held under similar conditions but without the light. The scientists then decided to gather more scientific facts about this phenomenon.

For five consecutive years, hens were tested in a specially constructed underground poultry house from which all natural light could be excluded. Visible light was provided for certain periods each day by regular fluorescent lamps. The flocks were held in the house at all times during the experiment so that complete control of the visible lighting could be maintained. Recommended laying diets were provided, including normal supplies of vitamin D.

Each year the hens held under bactericidal light produced from 10 to 19 percent more eggs per bird than hens maintained under the same conditions and diet, but without bactericidal radiation. It was demonstrated conclusively that neither the number of bacteria in the poultry house nor the vitamin D content of the light rays was involved in the beneficial effect.

Further tests showed that the addition of vitamin D to poultry rations beyond normal amounts did not increase the rate of egg production. Exposure of hens to longer rays of ultraviolet light, which have previously been found to supply vitamin D requirements for laying hens, gave none of the beneficial results of bactericidal light.

Grandma's Sayings

AIN'T IT STRANGE how the more happiness we pass along to other folks, the more we seem to have left for ourselves? 45 said Betty Cross, Abolachia, Va.

TALKIN' ABOUT the "new look" brings to mind the new package for Nu-Maid margarine. It's modern in every way . . . seals in Nu-Maid's sweet, churned-fresh flavor. Yes, sweet! I prefer "Table-Grade" Nu-Maid, the modern margarine, for my cookin' and bakin'.

JEST THINK how much wider the "straight and narrow path" would be, if more and more folks traveled it. 35 said Mrs. C. R. Anderson, Louisville, Ky.

FROM SUNNY California comes this bright idea—margarine molded in modern table style 1/4 pound prints that fit any servin' dish. And wouldn't you know you'd find yellow "Table-Grade" Nu-Maid shaped this modern way, 'cause Nu-Maid is a truly modern margarine! *55

Irene Dunne handled the difficult impersonation of Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark" so satisfactorily that the picture was chosen for a command performance in London. But wait till you see what happens to her in RKO's "Never a Dull Moment". She falls into a haystack, sets a stove on fire and tries to cook a cougar, all incidents gleaned from the life of Kay Swift, on whose book the picture is based. However, she needed no elaborate make-up. For "The Mudlark" she said, "They covered my face with strips of plastic lastex so I doubt whether my own daughter would recognize me". And made her a heavy-set woman with several double chins!

Samuel Goldwyn will come up with a re-make of "The Winning of Barbara Worth", remembered as the picture which launched Gary Cooper's career, in 1926. This time Dana Andrews gets the starring role. And it will be produced in semi-documentary style, since it deals with the trials of desert reclamation in the west. But the love story won't be ignored.

Dan Seymour has been asked by a Paris cosmetic firm to come over there for three weeks and put the French version of "We the People" into operation. There's nothing he would like better, if he can get time off to go.

Mona Freeman, co-starring with Joan Fontaine and John Lund in "Rendezvous", has another teenage role, the same part that brought stardom to Helen Hayes in "Alice-Sit-By-the-Fire," the play on which the picture is based.

Blossom Seeley and Benny Fields, husband and wife who were tops among vaudeville stars years ago, are acting as technical advisers on "The Blossom Seeley Story" at Paramount. Betty Hutton will be seen in the title role.

The day after Al Jolson died many of New York's taxi drivers were very badly in need of sleep. Many of them had not bothered to go home, but had stayed up together, listening to the radio station that played Jolson records all night.

Gov. Dan E. Garvey of Arizona has agreed to appear in a walk-on role in Pine and Thomas' "The Last Outpost", being filmed near Tucson. It has not yet been decided whether the governor will portray a Yankee or a Confederate soldier. In either case, he will be given the grade of corporal. Ronald Reagan, Rhonda Fleming and Noah Beery, Jr., head the cast.

Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" vaudeville unit is travelling in style. For their opening in Baltimore, headliner Bill Lawrence and the other performers were flown to Maryland in Arthur's plane, with him in the driver's seat. Then he turned his DC-3 complete with navigating crew, over to the entertainers, to fly them all over the country for the full tour.

Margaret Whiting gave her sister Barbara, of "Junior Miss", the honor of naming her brand new baby girl. Barbara chose "Debra" as the baby's name, and added "I'm grooming her to take my place on the show in 1965."

Harold Lloyd waited 12 years for the right story for his return to the screen. He made his last screen appearance in 1938, makes his next one in RKO's "Mad Wednesday". Says he never retired just stopped acting.

Gertrude Lawrence is certainly not herself in "The Glass Menagerie"—she appears in curlers, wears tacky nightgowns and faded old bathrobes.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Anne Kimbell, who made her film bow at the age of 12 in Warners' "Roughly Speaking", is back six years later to play a college girl in "Goodbye, My Fancy" . . . Scott Forbes, who changed his name to Julian Dallas when his family objected to his being an actor, is Scott Forbes again for his American film debut in "Rocky Mountain" . . . Robert Douglas has the leading male role in "Bonaventure" at Universal-International, starring Claudette Colbert and Ann Blythe.

Tight Rope

By Allison L. Burks

Edward is disturbed by the fact that a casual acquaintance of Stella Moore, masquerading as Dorinda LaCroix, has recognized Stella on the street and may make trouble for himself and his cousin Fay, his fiancée, who has employed Stella to pose as Dorinda to help keep Dorinda's grandmother alive. They are afraid that if the truth of Dorinda's death in a lifeboat at sea after a ship was torpedoed were known, it might prove fatal to the aged woman. Stella reviews the events which led to her, an unemployed secretary, being employed to pose as the rich Dorinda LaCroix. Fay speculates on the wisdom of Stella's giving up the masquerade and leaving the Thorndyke house.

CHAPTER III

"It seemed to both of us," Fay explained, "that to learn of her granddaughter's death would kill Mrs. Thorndyke. She is so ill, it would need only this one thing more. We want you to take Dorinda's place until Mrs. Thorndyke has sufficiently recovered to be told the truth. It may be weeks, it may be months. We've taken this way to get in touch with the right kind of person."

"But I don't believe I could do it," Stella Moore had stammered.

"It isn't as difficult as it sounds," Fay assured her. "Mrs. Thorndyke hasn't seen Dorinda since she was a small girl. No one in the village has ever seen her. There are no recent photographs. We do no entertaining since Mrs. Thorndyke's illness. It will be quite simple really."

"You see now why the French requirement. After all, a girl brought up in France would be expected to be able to speak French. Probably you'll never need it but you might."

"And," she went on, an ironic note in her voice, "you need have no uneasiness. The Thorndykes are one of the oldest and most respected, as well as wealthiest families in Trentville. We can give you references which I am sure will satisfy you—only, of course, we want your promise not to let anyone know of this impersonation. We think it best to confine this knowledge to the three of us. We are not even letting Harriet Thorndyke, Mrs. Thorndyke's sister-in-law, and her daughter, Lana, who live with us, know. If too many people share the secret, the truth will inevitably come out. If we do this thing at all, we can't afford to have that happen until the proper time comes, as you can readily understand."

Stella Moore hesitated. She felt a reluctance, hard to explain, to go on with this. She had thought of playing a part for only a few hours daily. This would be a part for all day, every day. Could she do it?

But she had a broken wrist, she had no work, most of all, she needed the money. She would be foolish to pass up such a chance. Yes, she would try it.

'Grandmother' Captures Dorinda's Affections

Fay looked relieved at her acceptance. "I'm glad. I think if you'd decided against it, we'd have given the whole thing up. You're the only one I've felt would have any chance of playing Dorinda with conviction."

"Not that I blame you for hesitating," she added coolly. "I must own I don't like it myself. But what else can we do? Mr. Thorndyke is devoted to his mother. I am extremely fond of her myself."

"No, she is not my mother." She answered the unspoken question. "I'm a distant cousin of Edward's, although I've made my home with the Thorndykes for a long time. Mr. Thorndyke and I expect to be married whenever Mrs. Thorndyke's health permits."

So Dorinda came to Thorndyke House, a big old house furnished in the lush opulence of the nineties, with thick carpets, heavy hangings and massive furniture. Here at her journey's end, Dorinda met the other three members of the Thorndyke family: Harriet and her daughter, Lana. And Grandmother.

Harriet was middle-aged, thin and spare. Her hair was a faded brown, her eyes watery and gray behind the pince nez precarious perched on her long narrow nose. She had been married, widowed, she had a daughter.

Lana was a doll-like girl in her early twenties, small and childishly pretty, with heavy, dark red hair worn rather long and turned under in a smooth roll about her shoulders, and round eyes which were sometimes blue, sometimes green. When she had come to know these two better, Dorinda could understand the rather cynical remark Fay had made on the drive from Los Angeles. "It won't be difficult keeping a secret from them. Harriet is absorbed in Lana; Lana is absorbed in herself."

Grandmother was just Grandmother, a fragile and elegant old lady whom Dorinda had loved almost to sight.

She went down the dimly lit hall to Grandmother's room. As she lifted her hand to knock, she saw Harriet just rounding the head of the staircase. The older woman peered at her with nearsighted eyes.

"You're going in to see Lucy?" A dissatisfied expression crossed her colorless face. "She seems to think a lot of you. Queer how she almost grieved herself to death before you came. You'd have thought Lana'd be a comfort to her—her own husband's niece. But no, it was Dorinda. Dorinda all the time. And she hadn't even seen you for years."

"Well, after all, her own daughter's child—" Dorinda began soothingly, and turned as Carol opened the door, her pretty dark face dimpling in welcome. "She's been waiting for you," she said and Dorinda crossed quickly to the bedside. She took Grandmother's frail little hands in hers, she bent and kissed Grandmother's cheek. It was like soft wrinkled velvet against her lips.

"Was I long in coming, darling?" she asked and sat down in the cushioned chair drawn up close to the bed.

"If you're going to be here a little while, Miss Dorinda, I've a few things to attend to," Carol excused herself. Her crisp white uniform rustled as she moved.

Mrs. Thorndyke's brown eyes followed her as she went out. "A pretty piece, isn't she? The best-looking nurse I ever had. You don't see really black hair like that very often. She took care of me when I was in the hospital last year, you know."

"I like good-looking people around me. You and Carol and Fay. No better looking women anywhere. I suppose some people would call that little hussy of Harriet's pretty but I don't. Fay's really the handsomest of the lot. But she's cold, Dorinda. Beauty needs warmth for perfection."

"Fay is lovely," Dorinda said honestly. "I think I have never seen anyone more beautiful."

Dorinda Finds Lana Slightly Distasteful

Dorinda went away when Carol came back. Grandmother was right about Carol. Black satin hair, black eyes, a rounded figure. She exuded vitality, possessed all the warmth which Fay seemed to lack.

Back in the living room again, Fay announced she had letters to write. Harriet and Lana went upstairs to inspect the purchases Lana had made in the village that day.

"How about a few games of cribbage with me, Dorinda?" Edward asked, and drew a card table up in front of the fire.

Outside the wind had risen, rain dashed against the windows. Now and then a gust of smoke down the chimney ebbed out into the room. As flames caught back again into the grate, as flames leaped high on the hearth. The quiet was broken by the count, "Fifteen-two, fifteen-four."

They played until nearly midnight. Greer came in a couple of times, mended the fire, emptied ash trays. Afterwards, Dorinda was to be very glad indeed that she and Edward had played; that they had been together; that Greer had seen them there.

She slept late the next morning. When she awoke the sun was pouring into the room and beyond the windows lay a clean washed world.

Edward and Fay still lingered at the table in the sunny breakfast room, smoking over the coffee cups. Edward smiled at her but Fay, lovely in a blue housecoat that matched the blue of her eyes, only murmured a cool good morning as she lit a cigarette.

"No dieting for you, Dorinda,"

Edward commented. "It's great to be young, eh, Fay?"

Fay shot him a glance full of venom. "I've never found it necessary to diet yet," she said coldly. She turned one shoulder toward him and spoke to Dorinda.

"Edward and I have been talking it over," she announced in a lowered tone. "We've decided that, since in any event you would be leaving very soon, we might as well make it right away, say tomorrow morning. If you take the morning train it will get you into Los Angeles in time to look for a place to live and get yourself settled to some extent before night. That will give you today to get packed. Perhaps you'd better do it yourself. We don't want the servants taking it over beforehand."

Dorinda broke in quickly. "It's all right with me, I'm ready to go at any time. The sooner the better." A shadow crossed her face. "Only what will I tell Grandmother?"

"You're to say nothing to her," Edward said hastily. "Don't give her any hint that you're leaving. We'll make the explanations later."

"I hope she won't be hurt." There was a murmur of voices in the hall. Then the door was pushed open and Lana, closely followed by her mother, came into the breakfast room. She wore a fussy breakfast coat of pale green. A matching satin ribbon tied back her red hair.

Her round face held an expression of pleased anticipation. "I'm starved," she declared, and slid into her chair across from Dorinda, her roving glance taking an inventory of every dish upon the table.

Dorinda watched Lana as she began her breakfast, then looked away. There was something distasteful to her about the other girl's dainty greediness. Lana seldom spoke at mealtimes but ate steadily and silently. Her small white hands plied her table utensils with expert correctness, but, without actually doing so, she gave the effect of smacking her lips over each palatable morsel she swallowed. Lana was the true hedonist, absorbed to the point of obsession in her clothes, her luxurious pastel-tinted room littered with lacy pillows and long-legged dolls, in anything which contributed to her own adornment or enjoyment.

"What's the matter, Dorinda?" Fay asked. "You're not eating. Perhaps in spite of what Edward says, you are toying with the idea of diet."

Harriet focused her vague eyes on Dorinda's face. "Diet?" she repeated. "Why, Dorinda's not too heavy. Of course, she's young yet and you never can tell—" Her glance shifted back to her daughter. "More coffee, darling?"

Cleve Promises Dorinda One of Trix's Puppies

"I imagine Dorinda has decided to cut down on her food," Fay's voice was pregnant with meaning, and Dorinda, her appetite gone, pushed back her plate.

"It's too nice a day to stay inside," she said lightly and left the breakfast room.

She went down the passage to a side entrance opening on to a smooth stretch of lawn.

A few hundred feet back of the house, there was an abrupt drop to a small beach. A flight of wooden steps led down to the white sand. Once down there you were alone, cut off from any view of the house, and, unless you stood at the very edge of the water, sheltered as well from the gaze of any loiterer farther down the beach by the curving wall of the high bank.

Dorinda stretched out like a cat in the sun. Her last day! She would leave all this—the beach, her lovely room, Grandmother, Cleve. These she regretted. Not the rest. She couldn't even say goodbye. If Cleve were here now she couldn't tell him.

As if her thought had drawn him, she heard his voice. He came down the beach around the end of the curve. He wore slacks and sweater, his feet in canvas sneakers. A brown and white wire-haired dog followed at his heels.

"Hi, Dorinda. I had a hunch I'd find you here. Or if not here up at the house or somewhere else. At least I figured you'd have finished breakfast at"—he glanced down at the watch strapped about his wrist—"eleven o'clock."

"Clever deduction," Dorinda's brown eyes shone up at him. She'd never known anyone just like him. Tall, wide-shouldered, dark blue eyes under tumbled black hair, a long Irish upper lip, a cleft chin. Not handsome. Better than handsome.

"You know what, Rinda? After deep thought, I've decided to give you one of Trixie's puppies. Come over this afternoon and take the pick of the litter."

"Oh, Cleve—not one of Trixie's pups!" She clapped her hands in delight. Then she remembered. She couldn't have a pup.

She swallowed a lump in her throat. "Oh, I'm sorry. I can't come today, Cleve."

Federal Government Wants to fill Vacancies

The Federal Government today had resorted to the highways and by ways in its search for qualified personnel to fill approximately 700 vacancies at installations in the San Antonio area, according to Adolph L. Stein, Executive Secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, in San Antonio.

He said increased activity at most Government establishments — plus a heavy demand for workers by commercial firms — had taken their toll and left the San Antonio labor market just about stripped.

Previous appeals for personnel — needed mostly in the aircraft trades — have failed to fill existing vacancies. Approximately 700 vacancies already exist and this total is rising daily.

Most urgently needed are electronics engineers, aeronautical engineers, aircraft electricians, radio repairers, radar repairers, propeller repairers, sheet metal workers, test block equipment servicers, plumbers, steamfitters, armament workers, automatic pilot repairers, power saw operators, aqua fuel system operators, teletype equipment repairers, tool grinders, locksmiths, welders, automatic material dispatchers, electrical accessories installers, cook helpers, draftsmen, and medical technicians.

He said workers, with the exception of clerical personnel, can just about choose their type of work and place of employment.

Engineering salaries range from $3100 to $4600 a year. Other positions pay from $1.25 to $1.58 an hour.

Individuals in the immediate vicinity of San Antonio were told to make application in person at the big Central Hiring Agency, located on the sixth floor of the San Antonio Post Office.

Out-of-towners may apply direct to Civilian Personnel Section, Bldg. 206, at Kelly Air Force Base, either in person Monday thru Friday or by mail.
