Two Texas Clinics Get Cancer Support

HOUSTON, (Special) — Two Texas medical clinics have just received financial support from the American Cancer Society, Texas Division, Dr. G. V. Brindley of Temple, chairman of the Division's executive committee, has announced.

One of the recipients of Texas Cancer Crusade funds is a newly established tumor clinic at Waco. Organized by the McLennan County Medical Society, the clinic will serve cancer patients of several central Texas counties. In addition to $3,000 in American Cancer Society aid, the clinic is receiving support from the Junior League of Waco.

The League is assisting financially during the first year's operation and is supplying volunteer workers to the McLennan County Unit of the Cancer Society for a cancer information center in Downtown Waco.

The Waco clinic brings the total of full and part-time tumor clinics in the state to 28. Texas Cancer Crusade funds aid 12 of these clinics.

Cancer Crusade funds went to service at Hermann Hospital in Houston. The funds, amounting to $1,200, will help finance the cost of a part-time "follow-up" worker, who will compile records of all surgical cancer cases who have been treated at the hospital and will bring case histories of cancer patients up to date in an effort to encourage post-operative checkups and treatments if necessary, for these patients. The "follow-up" worker's activities will also help to acquire valuable statistical research data, which are proving a valuable source of cancer clues for scientists.

OUR WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

By Congressman O. C. Fisher BERLIN. — It's nearly 300 miles from Frankfurt to Berlin, an outpost 120 miles inside the iron curtain. Along the route can be seen some evidence of Russian military activity. Directly in the center of the air corridor is a jet air field. At another point, the Reds are busy building a new runway, presumably for use by fighter planes.

Berlin, which before the war had 4.3 million people now has about a million less. About 40% of the city was totally destroyed by bombs, including every factory. At present, there are less than 300,000 unemployed here and that number is being steadily reduced as more public works and reconstruction is attempted.

The Soviet-occupied zone, which takes in about a third of the city, is a shambles, and there has been very little re-building going on. Berlin people pass freely into the Soviet sector. There are no guards and ordinarily no questions are asked as long as the visitor does not go beyond the city limits.

But the difference in the two areas is amazing. In the Russian zone, there is much less work going on, the shops are poorly stocked and the people actually look more haggard and distressed. On that side everything is rationed except what is bought in H-O stores. These stores are government operated and the prices are much higher. They are actually government-sponsored black markets.

The schools in the East sector are government-dominated. Every text book must be approved by the Russians. The Reds are making a terrific drive to enlist young people in the Communist Youth organizations. And they are making some progress.

When the Russians sponsored the youth "invasion" of the Western zones a while back, they actually transported a half million German youths from all parts of the East into their section of Berlin. But the big march fizzled, thanks to the German police force recruited to meet the threat.

A huge industrial exhibit sponsored by the Berlin Germans and ECA is to take place soon. It will include manufactured products from over Germany and nearby countries. An estimated 300,000 will attend. The Russians don't like this.

One thing we have noted is that not very many people notice any sort of a sign. Some seem as if they can read, others do not take the trouble to read on the assumption it tells them to "stay off the grass," "Don't do this," "Don't do that," etc. But if people only chose to read, to take time to observe, they might be much happier,—and alive.

Social Security Man To Be In Uvalde

Gordon James, manager of the San Antonio social security office has announced that a representative from his office will visit in Uvalde on November 7. He will be at the City Hall at 1:00 p.m.

He will take claims of retired workers, dependents and survivors; issue social security cards; and distribute informational leaflets explaining phases of the amended Social Security Act.

James calls attention to the provision in the social security law for the payment of monthly benefits to the wife of a retired worker regardless of her present age, if she has a child under 18 in her care. Under the old law, such payments were not made until she became 65. Women who meet this requirement should file claims for insurance payments, says James.

Veterans' Questions And Their Answers

Q—I am a GI Bill trainee just married. May I claim both my wife and my mother-in-law, who just came to live with us, as dependents for purposes of increased subsistence?

A—You may claim your wife, if you submit proof of your marriage to VA, but not your mother-in-law. Persons who may be claimed for additional subsistence include a wife, child, dependent parent or other dependent person who has acted in loco parentis (in place of parent).

Q—Where may I get a free medical examination which I need in order to reinstate a lapsed National Service Life Insurance policy?

A—You may obtain your examination at any VA hospital or at any VA office to which a salaried physician has been assigned.

Q—I understand my GI loan entitlement can be restored if I am suddenly transferred to another city. How do I go about it?

A—Application for restoration of used entitlement in such cases as yours should be made to the Loan Guaranty Officer or the VA regional office which guaranteed your loan. A written statement should be submitted setting forth the reasons for the request.

Q—I am in the Marine Corps reserves, and I draw a disability compensation payment every month from the VA. What happens to it when I'm recalled to active duty?

A—Pensions, compensations and retirement payments to former servicemen may not be paid if veterans are recalled to active duty. If you are called back, be sure to notify VA immediately, otherwise you will receive an overpayment that must be repaid.

Woodrow Wilson issued the first Mother's Day proclamation.

The Kentucky Derby has been run every May since 1875.

MENTAL MEANDERINGS

A project worthy of the united support of all of our people, whether they are directly interested therein or not, is that of cleaning the cemeteries, which has been undertaken by the World Study Club, and which shows to such good effect and with so splendid results in the County or City cemetery. There is nothing which so shows the character of the majority of its people, as the manner in which a cemetery is kept. There is a debt owing to our departed ones in keeping their resting place clean and green, but there is also the moral obligation which we owe to the living and to ourselves who live here. There is some element of pride evidenced by some cities as to the careful grooming that their cemetery grounds have. This is true because it reveals that in these people there still remains a sense of true values, including that of the appreciation of a hallowed place, dedicated to the memory of our loved ones, our good friends who have departed this life. It is a sad commentary on a people to publically show that they do not care so much as to keep the resting place of their loved ones clean and green. It does not take too much effort, as shown by the fact that many of the graves have been well kept and groomed for a long time. But there are some who have no one to take care of their plots, and to these we owe a civic and a moral duty as well. Let's all join hands and help the ladies make a good job of this project. It will make us all feel better.

Don't forget that we are in fall where we can expect cooler and possibly cold weather. And that with such cooler weather there will be fires to be built, flues to be fixed. Don't neglect the home before winter, but plan ahead. This is the beginning of the season of fires, and when a little carelessness or lack of preparation can bring disaster to the home you worked so hard to build and establish.

A friend the other day was explaining to us how the present inflation, or rather the inflationary tendency of our currency when a little carelessness, or rancy, has helped those who have been in debt to more easily and speedily pay their debts. It sounds plausible, but only when applied to those who owe considerable sums and to the government itself. It hardly applies to the day worker, the laborer, whose income is more or less fixed, and who has this inflationary currency with which to buy the wherewithal to live.

From the looks of it, most of the adults who went with the school children to San Antonio the other day to the Shrine Circus, enjoyed the said circus about as much if not more, than the children. Our love for a circus lasts almost forever.

Another thing, we had thought that the government, that is to say the War Department or the department of national defense, was playing it smart, in view of the possible atomic warfare, and would scatter rather than concentrating its military forces where one bomb could do its greatest damage. It still is concentrating in big areas, its training camps and troops and forces, inviting disaster such as is being the core of the defense program

Reading a booklet on atomic defense the other night. The said? for all cities which are urged to prepare for atomic warfare not to do it when the brass hats invite it in the manner aforementioned. Now, why ask us methods sound good but like the Irishman who was asked what was better than presence of mind, and responded "absence of body" to be better — we would prefer this last named method.

The other night was Halloween, and it 'pears that we got through this one without too much frivolity and fun of the mischievous sort. That is, hardly any gates or signs or movable objects were missing. We like to see those "treats" instead of "tricks."

Predictions are for a rather hard and long winter. Some of the old timers predict same because of the thicker fur on wild animals, on the thickness of the bark on trees, on the number of wild fowls winging their way south. Some on the fact that last winter was mild, and that a hard one follows one that was not. Or from moon signs, weather signs, superstitions, etc.

Sometimes we wonder if the quilt and the blanket folks do not help spread some of this propaganda. Whether so or not, and we wouldn't suggest they do it, quilts and blankets are good things to have when the cool and crisp mornings 'come' around.

The appearance of new magazines in the newsstands every once in a while appears odd as we have been reading of late where many of these publications have had to cut down the sizes, pages and in some events even the magazine itself. Our opinion, which no one asked for by the way, is that we could do without half or possibly more of these publications in our homes.

Don't forget that the general November election is coming up soon. The seventh day of November, Tuesday, to be exact. This is the big day of American voters, for those who want to exercise their privilege as free men.

Guess by now no one has to be reminded that Christmas is on the way and coming up fast.

Overheard a fellow the other day indulging in a hobby that sort of appealed to us, in a sort of nostalgic way. He was telling of collecting old-time, new and modern, witty and sentimental "toasts" such as were popular in the not so very long ago, when it was proper to offer a toast to your host, your friends, your guests. The drinking still persists for a good many, but very few toasts are offered.

Thanksgiving Day, too, is on the way. The day on which the nation, with its president, offers thanks to the Creator for the good things which have come to America and its people. We have much more to be thankful for this year, so we can get preparing to be well tuned up for a real warm and sincere Thanksgiving this year.

Casserole Cookery Helps Cut Down Soaring Food Bills

WHEN THE FOOD budget evades all your efforts to keep within its necessary limits, then it's time to start fixing those nourishing, appetite-satisfying casseroles. There's a good bit of eating in a fine casserole, and you can frequently use leftover meats and vegetables in them rather than wasting them.

Even when saving money is no object, there are many people who like the home-like atmosphere of having a casserole dinner. Plan them as well, cook them as carefully as a roast, and your family will enjoy them as much as the Sunday dinner with chicken or a roast.

PROTEIN-RICH eggs and milk extend less than a pound of ham in this tasty casserole dish:

*Deviled Ham Puff (Serves 6)

- 8 slices, day-old white bread
- 3/4 pound cooked ham, ground
- 3 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon horseradish, if desired.
- 4 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Pepper to taste

Spread bread out and let stand several hours to dry out; then toast lightly. Cut crusts from the slices and place crusts in a greased, shallow pan, 9x9x1 1/2 inches. Combine ham, mustard and horseradish and spread in an even layer over the crusts, then arrange the whole slices, cut in half diagonally, on the top. Mix the eggs, milk, salt and pepper and pour slowly over the bread so as to saturate the top slices; allow to stand for one hour. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven for one hour. Serve immediately.

Dried Beef Casserole (Serves 6)

- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped celery
- 1/4 pound dried beef, shredded
- 1/4 cup fat
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups cooked macaroni
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup cooked peas
- 1/2 cup grated American cheese

Cook onions, celery and dried beef in hot fat until onions are golden. Blend in flour, then milk gradually and stir until slightly thickened. Add macaroni, salt, pepper, peas; then pour into greased 1 1/2 quart casserole. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven 15 minutes.

Frankfurter-Tomato Casserole (Serves 6)

- 6 frankfurters
- 4 slices dry bread
- 1 No. 2 1/2 size can tomatoes
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard

Place three frankfurters on bottom of greased 1 1/2-quart casserole.

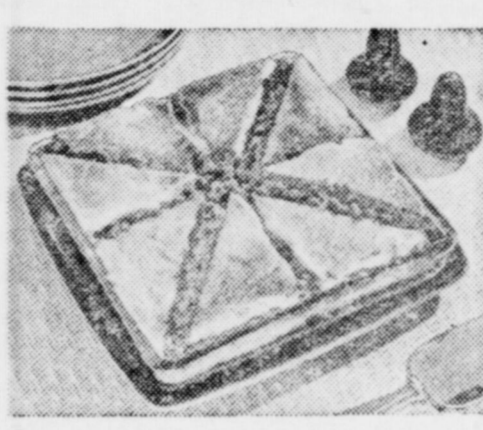

Meat, potatoes and several colorful vegetables are included in this delicious main dish pie. Note the effectiveness of baking powder biscuits cut with a doughnut cutter as topping.

LYNN SAYS: Salads Add Color, Contrast to Meals

Leftover bits of roast duck make an elegant salad. Combine with cut-up orange and ripe olives. Use a tart French dressing made with both lemon juice and tarragon vinegar with enough freshly ground pepper for high seasoning. Serve on watercress.

For a simple fruit salad, roll orange slices or sections in shredded coconut and serve with honey French dressing on a bed of greens.

This interesting casserole uses leftover ground ham with protein-rich eggs and milk, a seasoning of horseradish, with toast triangles, to make a dish worthy of hearty eating.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

- Lima Beans or String Beans
- Orange-Coconut Salad
- Muffin Jelly Beverage
- *Recipe Given

Break dry bread into chunks and place over frankfurters. Combine all remaining ingredients and heat to boiling. Pour hot tomato mixture over bread. Top with three remaining frankfurters. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven.

Liver Casserole

- 1 1/2 pounds liver
- 2 onions, sliced
- 2 slices bacon
- 3/4 cups spaghetti
- 1/2 green pepper, sliced
- 1/2 red pepper, sliced
- 1 1/2 cups strained tomato
- 2 teaspoons salt

Place liver, in once piece, in casserole with onion. Lay pieces of bacon over liver. Place in a very hot oven (500°) for 20 minutes. Cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and add to liver. Add peppers, tomato and salt. Cover and bake in a slow (300°) oven for 3 hours.

Meat and Vegetable Pie (Serves 6)

- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 3/4 cup celery, sliced
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 5 tablespoons butter
- 5 tablespoons flour
- 2 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups diced, cooked veal
- 2 cooked potatoes, diced
- 2 cooked carrots, sliced
- 1/2 cup cooked peas
- 1/2 cup cooked lima beans

Cover sliced onion with boiling water and let stand until needed. Cook celery until tender in 1/2 cup water. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water. Make a white sauce of butter, flour and milk; add salt. Combine with drained onion, celery, bouillon, meat and vegetables. Turn into buttered casserole or baking dish and cover with small baking powder biscuits.

Baking Powder Biscuits

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/2 cup milk

Sift flour, measure; sift twice with baking powder and salt. Add butter and cut with pastry blender or two knives. Add milk and stir quickly. When dough is formed, turn on floured board and knead for about 20 seconds. Roll to 1/4-inch thickness and cut into small biscuits; lay on top of mixture in casserole. Bake in a hot (450°) oven for 12 to 15 minutes.

Southern Sausage Casserole (Serves 4)

- 4 large sweet potatoes, cooked
- 1 pound pork sausage meat
- 4 large apples
- Salt, Water, Brown Sugar

Peel potatoes and cut into thin slices. Place half in the bottom of greased casserole; cover with sausage, shaped into 4 cakes. Add apples cut in thick slices. Sprinkle with salt, brush with water and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven for about 1 hour.

Canned pineapple, fresh pear sections and preserved ginger offer a tasty combination for cold weather eating.

Cooked green peas and diced potatoes can be combined with leftover lamb for a main dish salad. Add some chopped mint to the French dressing before serving.

Banana, pear, orange and pistachio nuts folded into half mayonnaise and half whipped cream make a salad lovely and tasty enough for a ladies' luncheon.

Another good party salad uses cling peach halves with cream cheese balls, and shredded almonds which are either plain or toasted.

SPORTSMAN'S HORIZON

By JIM RHODY

Stimulating Idea

Seth Myers, of Pennsylvania, has come up with a challenging idea for American sportsmen and one which may have considerably more merit than first appears. Seth writes:

"The state of Pennsylvania, or any other state where good hunting is enjoyed, has within its boundaries, many thousands of expert marksmen. They are mostly, self trained hunters, having received little or no special training in the handling of firearms. They are, however, fast and sure in their shooting because both qualifications are necessary in bringing down the fleet footed animals they hunt.

"In America, there are perhaps, 20 million of these men. The majority are older than those taken into the armed services to fight the wars but not too old to serve in good stead on the home front. They could deal severe punishment to a possible parachuted enemy in this country.

"During World War I there was the John M. Phillips Shotgun Brigade with the hunters organized and trained for action against sabotage. "When World War II came, the hunters were enlisted in a special auxiliary known as Minutemen. They were carefully selected to make certain that fifth column members did not sneak in. They were given special training which qualified them to meet any emergency that would develop.

"Armed with their own pet guns and able to do expert shooting they would have dished out severe punishment to the enemy bent on sabotage. With the knowledge of sign reading in the forest, extremely little activity could go on without being discovered in time to prevent sabotage.

"Should a World War III come, it is far more likely the enemy will be here in great numbers. We have reason to believe they are already in our midst. They may be in much greater numbers than we suspect.

"We must be ready to take care of them when the time comes. It is not too early to start organizing to meet this unseen enemy. Every state should organize its expert outdoorsmen into a dependable war time home front guard. There are many leaders who are well qualified to do it.

"The important key to the whole plan would be to make sure that all hands were true Americans, and knew exactly what to do with those who proved to be enemies. If every true American hunter and farmer will do this, we need not worry about the slinking enemy we know is already in our home ranks, working day and night to ruin our form of government."

"Rooster Fish"

Casting Lines

In buying a casting line, many fishermen think only of strength. Without thought, they assume that a line should test twenty or thirty pounds to be safe. Tackle salesmen often encourage this belief because they want to be safe, too. They don't want to take the squawk from an irate angler who broke his line on the "biggest fish I ever caught." But the plain truth is that no such strength is necessary in a line, for trout seldom break a 20-lb. line.

When Lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin Cause Stomach Disturbances, Gas, Heartburn, Indigestion, Nagging Aches and Pains and Certain Nervous Disorders

Just A Few Of Thousands Of Records Of Folks With Such Deficiencies Who Have Been Helped

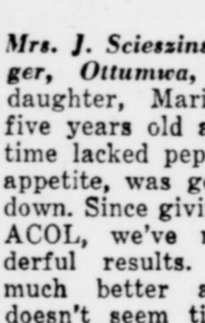

Mr. Link Robinson (steel worker), 519 Lindsey, Newport, Kentucky: "When your stomach is in bad shape as mine was, couldn't eat, gas pains, stomach bloating and nervousness, then your body doesn't get the proper foods it needs. My boss told me about HADACOL and I started taking it immediately.

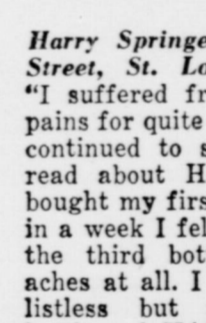

Mrs. Mabel Kitchen, 1650 Amsterdam, Cincinnati, Ohio: "Before I started HADACOL, I had aches and pains in my shoulders, back and arms. I could hardly move without having those pains. Then I heard about HADACOL. After the second bottle the aches and pains were about gone. I'm just starting the fourth bottle and am on top of the world. My aches and pains are completely gone. I recommend HADACOL to all my friends."

After the second bottle I could tell a definite improvement. Now I can eat anything. Best of all, I haven't those gas pains and bloating."

Mrs. J. Scieszinski, 514 Kruger, Ottumwa, Iowa: "My daughter, Marilyn Sue, is five years old and for some time lacked pep, had a poor appetite, was generally run-down. Since giving her HADACOL, we've noticed wonderful results. She has a much better appetite and doesn't seem tired like she used to be."

Harry Springer, 5608 Greer Street, St. Louis, Missouri: "I suffered from aches and pains for quite some time and continued to suffer. Then I read about HADACOL and bought my first bottle. Within a week I felt better. After the third bottle I had no aches at all. I was tired and listless but after a few bottles of HADACOL I felt like getting out and doing things."

The Man Who Gave The World HADACOL! Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc

Thanks to the tireless efforts in scientific research of Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc—eminent statesman of Louisiana and creator of this great new HADACOL you don't have to be satisfied with symptomatic relief—because it's possible to relieve the real cause of such ailments as stomach distress, gas pains, heartburn, indigestion, aches and pains, certain nervous disorders and a general rundown condition, due to lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin.

HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with more than your daily needs of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, and Phosphorus—elements so vital to help maintain good health and guard against such deficiency ailments. A big improvement is often noticed in the way you feel within a few days. And LISTEN TO THIS! Continued use of this great HADACOL helps keep such distress from coming back.

Don't delay. Don't continue to suffer. Remember HADACOL relieves the cause of such ailments above. You owe it to yourself—to your family to start taking HADACOL at once.

...insure the other fellow's car ... and not their own
 Sure, you ought to insure yourself against any damage your car may do to the property of others. But what about your property... your car? Unless you have collision insurance, you're paying money to protect the other fellow and leaving yourself out in the cold.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED

At a meeting Wednesday afternoon November 1st, at 2 o'clock in the district courtroom a large attendance of Kinney County business men, women and ranchers heard a speaker talk in behalf of the forming of a Kinney County Association to be affiliated with the Texas Association of Employers. The speaker and organizer was Mr. William Bacon, of San Antonio.

Mr. A. E. Bartberger, who had called the meeting, was named temporary chairman and Judge Joe K. York permanent chairman of the local organization.

There was some discussion on the all important subject of national and state taxation, with emphasis on that of discriminatory taxes and on evasions of the tax plan. The subject was very well covered by Mr. Bacon.

A Kinney County Association, was organized. Members who pay the stipulated fees will receive free literature keeping them informed as to the economic situation the trend of business in general and the progress being made to correct tax abuses and bring about tax equality. Lobbying for the latter two purposes is part of the Association plan.

BRACKETT WINS OVER BIG WELLS

In what was probably the best game of the season was that held last Thursday night at Tiger Field when Brackettville Tigers and Big Wells tangled. The Tigers won a hard fought victory by a score of 12 to 0. It was also the last game at home for the Tigers, as they play Sabal and San Felipe both away from home.

Both teams were well matched as to size, playing ability and reserve strength and it was a battle from first to end. The Tigers scored in the first quarter on a sustained drive with Jaso going over for touch down. The second score came in the third quarter when Cardenas grabbed a juggled forward pass and streaked for a second touchdown no point being scored on either either touchdown. The Tigers held Big Wells most of the time to infrequent gains.

"Junior—put down that book and turn on the electric dog-washer"

Will you be using room-to-room television in 5 or 10 years? Electric dog-washers? Child-scrubbers? These days, hardly anything seems too far-fetched for the future!

One thing is sure—year after year, you'll turn over more jobs to electricity. Because electric service is the greatest work-time-and-trouble-saver that's ever come down the pike. And because the business-managed electric companies see to it that there's additional electricity all ready when you and other people need it.

That's why there's no power shortage today—even though America is using nearly twice as much electricity as before the war, in our homes, on our farms, in our businesses!

You've seen some of the new power plants the business-managed electric companies have built. More are coming. Not just to keep up with the still-growing demand for electricity—but to keep well ahead of it! Already these companies have added half again as much electric supply as there was during World War II, when government officials said, "Electric power has never been too little or too late."

NEW ELECTRIC COMPANY POWER PLANTS SINCE THE WAR

Each black pin shows location of new power plant (or addition) of the business-managed electric light and power companies. Half are completed...the others scheduled for finishing by 1952. This is why America has plenty of power.

Congratulations to the Citizens of Brackettville, Texas

Through the cooperation of one and all the The Citizens of our City—we have completed a modern sewerage collection system of which we may justly be proud,
On October 14 of this month
the project was 100 % complete.
How many of us can remember the many attempts which have been made to realize what we now accomplished. No longer should we be forced to hear comments such as, "The smell was awful, somewhat akin to the smell that permeates the atmosphere in Brackettville on a hot sultry day when festering cesspools threw off their aroma."

There is within reach of all a sewer main which will permit a connection to your present facilities. In some instances it will be more difficult and more expensive for some to connect than others since we enjoy a peculiar situation in the arrangements of our lots, blocks, alleys and streets.
It was an economic impossibility to provide a sewer main either in front or directly behind every residence in this city, thereby permitting a connection direct to the individual property line.

Cooperate with your neighbor if his connection must cross your property in order to take full advantage of the facilities which have been provided. The system is now complete and is to be paid for by you in the form of monthly rentals. The repayment of the cost of this construction must come entirely from these rentals inasmuch as no tax funds are obligated in any way. Cooperate with your city officials by completing your connection to this system at once.

Your City officials will assist you in any way to determine the easiest method of connecting to the system at the lowest possible cost to you.

May we again thank you for your assistance in acquiring this needed improvement for our City. It is provided for your use, your benefit and your health.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman-MacArthur Discuss Korea Reconstruction at Wake Meeting; Dewey Says He Won't Run in 1952

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

WAKE ISLAND: Talks Lack Something

On the hot, lonely little island of Wake in mid-Pacific, President Harry S. Truman and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, two men who have had much to do with world destiny in the last few years, had a talk.

After it was over a statement was issued which said the two discussed a number of subjects vital to world problems. According to the press release they talked about reconstruction of Korea, the possibility of a Japanese peace treaty, and the general agreement to strive toward peace in unity with other U.N. nations.

The meeting was of great interest to the American public from another angle. MacArthur and Mr. Truman had never met and their conflicting views on a number of subjects had been reported in the press during recent months.

Reports of the meeting indicated that MacArthur had only a general idea of the topics to be discussed when he was asked to meet the President. It was also reported that Truman conducted the talks from an agenda scribbled on a pad.

Observers believed these reports gave an indication of the how and why of the meeting. The President had a number of topics to discuss with the U.N. commander and he limited the talks to that agenda. It was also suggestive, some observers believed, that Mr. Truman was acting in his capacity as President and commander-in-chief and not as a man seeking advice.

On the surface the meeting was cordial. In farewell, MacArthur said: "Good-by, sir. Happy landing. It has been a real honor to talk with you."

But the other MacArthur seemed revealed when he said good-by to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff: "Good-by, Omar. Don't let them get you down up there."

To the observer not so close to hand, the MacArthur-Truman meeting seemed to lack something, although no one has been able to say definitely just what.

DEWEY: A Bombshell

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tossed a political bombshell upon the national scene by saying flatly he would not run for President in 1952 and would back Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomination.

The governor had no more than made his statement when other liberal Republicans, including Harold Stassen, backed the move.

"Under no circumstances that I can conceive," Dewey said, "will I accept the nomination for President in 1952, and I doubt if there is any possibility the situation would arise thereafter."

The Democrats had nothing to say about Dewey's announcement. President Truman when informed of it was reported to have murmured "that's fine" and continued his swim in the Pacific.

A number of political figures, however, recalled that the governor said shortly before he announced for the third term as governor of New York, he would not be a candidate for that office again.

The last time Eisenhower mentioned politics he said he did not want to identify himself with any one political party. He added that "I have no political connections, no political ambitions, and don't want any connections with politics."

HARD TO BELIEVE

Nine Firms Announce Price Cuts

In these days when the public seems to be fair game for all kinds of price boosts, it's hard to believe that nine companies announced price cuts. The cuts were on bagged coffee, airplane parts and asphalt tile.

The A & P company and Grand Union company, retail grocery chains, announced reductions on the price of their various brands of bag

Headliners

"Firm action in Korea must not hulk us into a sense of false security. What happened in Korea has set world peace on stronger foundations. There may be time to build up a European army with strong aid from Britain, the United States and Canada," Winston Churchill told a cheering mass rally of the Conservative party.

"As for myself, my convictions as to the place and methods through which I can best contribute something to the cause of freedom have been often expressed. They have not changed. Here at Columbia University I have a task that would excite the pride and challenge the qualifications and strength of any man. I still believe that it offers to such an individual as myself rich opportunities for serving," General Eisenhower said in answer to Thomas Dewey's suggestion he become the Republican candidate for president in 1952.

THE DRAFT: Fathers in Line

National Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, worried about where the men are coming from for the draft, announced he might ask the President to erase almost all draft dependency deferments except for fathers. Later he said he even favored taking some men with children.

Hershey said it might be necessary to take some fathers if the goal of three million men in the armed forces by next June was to be met.

Meanwhile 19,000 young physicians, dentists and veterinarians registered for a possible 21 months' military service. Of the total, 1,522 face induction by January 15 unless they volunteer first.

If there are too few volunteers the army will begin an induction program November 15 by taking 300 physicians, 300 dentists and 50 veterinarians. Another 322 doctors, 200 dentists and 50 veterinarians will be called by January 15.

All doctors through age 50 eventually must register, but the first group includes only those deferred during World War II to train at their own or government expense and saw less than 21 months service.

Investigators

Sen. Estes Kefauver, chairman of the U.S. senate crime investigating committee, confers with chief counsel Rudolph Halley and his assistant, Alfred Klein. Kefauver's committee has revealed major crime syndicates in a number of U. S. cities.

ELECTION: Duty to Vote

As the date of the national election nears, the American Heritage Foundation, the non-profit citizens' group that sponsored the Freedom Train, stepped up its campaign of turning out a large vote.

The foundation is sponsor of the contest in which prizes of historical papers are being awarded to communities, counties, and civic organizations doing the best job in turning out the vote.

The campaign was designed to combat widespread voter lethargy which in the presidential election of 1948 saw more than 45,000,000 of America's voting population fail to go to the polls.

Two years ago, only 52 per cent of the voters took the trouble to cast their ballots, a poor record when contrasted with other countries. In the last national elections held in Sweden, 82 per cent of the voting population went to the polls. The turnout in France and Italy exceeded 80 per cent. In Great Britain it was 76 per cent and in Canada, 74 per cent.

Thomas D'Arcy Brophy, foundation president, said in launching the contest: "In this year of crisis it is more necessary than ever before that every citizen of voting age vote. A large turnout at the polls is the most effective answer free citizens can hurl at those who would enslave them."

Soon after election day a three-man board of judges will start reviewing the efforts of various communities and organizations in raising the voting levels in their regions. The judges are Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, director of the central intelligence agency; Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric company, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

In 1948, Utah had the best voting record with 74.6 per cent going to the polls.

SECURITY ACT: Confusion in Europe

The new U. S. internal security act threw Europe into a state of confusion that bordered on the fantastic. Hundreds of businessmen, artists, and tourists scheduled to sail for America suddenly found themselves without permits to enter this country as a result of the state department's order that all visas be canceled.

The order required all visas be revalidated and hundreds of travelers, thousands of miles from home, were told they would have to return to their native lands to secure new permits.

The state department's action was taken under that section of the security law which says no visas will be issued to persons who are now, or ever have been, members of the Communist, Nazi or Fascist parties, or affiliated with any of their organizations or subdivisions.

There was further confusion in that there was no ruling on the problem of eligibility for visitors or immigrants from Spain or Argentina, both of which have been mentioned as governments to which the anti-totalitarian ban might be applied.

Businessmen and manufacturers complained that the ban injured U.S.-German trade by keeping out businessmen already checked by allied authorities. About 90 per cent of all Germans are believed to have been members of Nazi organizations either by choice or compulsion.

The standing joke of Europe, seen in newspapers and on posters, read: "Visit America and see Ellis Island."

MOBILIZATION: A Fight for Survival

A new cry for an all-out effort in the fight for survival was made by W. Stuart Symington, economic mobilizer. He called for higher taxes, stiffer curbs on credit and longer working hours.

He reported his agency is now getting organized for such price and wage action as may be needed, but hastened to add he believed it might be possible to avoid general price-wage controls in the immediate future "if we could get over the psychology of scarce buying."

Many observers believed that Symington was making a desperate appeal in an effort to head off further curbs.

Symington said: "We must have strong credit controls to cut down civilian buying. . . We must have much higher taxes, on a 'pay-as-you-go' basis, to keep purchasing power down to a level of available civilian goods."

To cope with Russia's superiority in man power, he suggested:

1. A "great step-up" in American production.
2. Return of older workers and women into the labor force.
3. Restoration of work hours, "at least part way" to the levels that prevailed during World War II.

PARCEL-POST: Rate Increase Asked

Involving a little-used statute, Postmaster-General Donaldson has asked the interstate commerce commission for an increase in parcel-post rates amounting to $105,000,000 a year.

The proposed increase would up mailing charges for the first pound from four to nine cents, depending on postal zone. Additional poundage would be increased up to three cents a pound.

Nobody Produces Any Toys, Plaint of Soviet Mothers

WASHINGTON — Government officials report that mothers in the Baku area of the Soviet Union are complaining that government run cooperatives have "completely forgotten about the manufacture of toys for children."

One co-op tried to manufacture dolls but mothers rejected them as "monstrosities." The complaints were published in a Soviet publication, The Baku Worker.

GREEN GRASS OF WYOMING

By Mary O'Hara

Crown Jewel is turned over to Greenway and the groom, Collins. The colt's antics delight everyone as he frolics about and chases a tumbleweed. This inspires Rob to suggest that they name the colt "Tumbleweed" and Carey enthusiastically agrees. Ken sees Thunderhead coming down the gorge and determines to capture him. It's done at last! Ken manages to get a rope around Thunderhead's neck as the stallion mashes oats. He shows how easily he can ride Thunderhead. Rob takes a ride on the great horse and is thrilled with Thunderhead's fire and strength. He determines to ride the horse in the Delaware Hunt Cup Race.

CHAPTER XXV

Rob, lost in thought, was sitting by the fire, staring into it, leaning forward, his arms set across his thighs. Now he sprang up, went to the mantel and nervously began to fill his pipe. As he did so he stepped on Chap's tail and there was a wild yelp. Impatiently he shoved the dog away. Chaps went off and sat down near the piano, eyeing him reproachfully.

"What about Banner?" asked Nell.

"Banner will have the rest he deserves. The best the ranch has to offer. A pasture of his own, shelter in the winter, a box stall, oats and hay as long as he has teeth to eat them. He's given me a lifetime of service."

"And WhoDat," said Nell. "You had picked him to replace Banner."

Rob made an impatient gesture. "What of it? Anyone with half an eye can see that WhoDat is not cut out for a range stallion." He tamped the tobacco violently into the bowl of his pipe and went on in the same half-angry voice. "The purpose of all breeding is to produce the perfect—the superperfect individual. When you've done it—when you've got him, what sense is there in finding fault with the process that made him?" He struck a match, held it over the bowl of his pipe, puffed until smoke poured out of his mouth, then threw the match into the fire. "Besides," he added, "if Thunderhead had once won a great race, he would have a name, and his colts would sell because of that."

"Won a great race!" exclaimed Nell. "What are you talking about?"

"The Delaware Hunt Cup."

"But Ken is going to ride Jewel!"

Rob did not turn his head but the narrowed line of his blue eyes swung around to rest upon her face, his white teeth showed beside the stem of his pipe.

Nell sprang to her feet. "Rob! You wouldn't!"

"Wouldn't I!" he grinned. "I can't wait for the chance!"

Rob took his pipe out of his mouth and said more quietly, "Nell, I'm aching to do it. And Thunderhead is aching to do it. And we'll win. Ken has never completely mastered that stallion. No boy could. He's a man's horse. He's my horse. And I tell you he knows it."

Nell looked down at the fire, then lifted her hands and examined a hangnail on one finger. She sat down abruptly and slowly raised her eyes to Rob's.

He was looking at her with a strange, questioning, almost humble expression. "Yes," he said. "I'm thinking of that, too. How would it affect Ken? After all, Thunderhead belongs to him—"

Nell locked back at the fire, placing herself first in Rob's shoes, then in Ken's.

Finally she said, "Ken's awfully happy that he's going to ride Jewel. That's tied up with Carey."

"And there's to be a big auction over at Pine Bluffs," said Nell. "There'll be mobs there. I'll go along!" she added excitedly.

"What about when I take him East?" asked Rob. "I suppose you won't want to leave Penny?"

Blue fire flashed at him from her eyes. "Not go!" she exclaimed. "Do you think I would miss that race with either you or Ken riding Thunderhead? We'll keep Miss Sartoris for Penny."

Rob's eyebrows shot up and he grinned. "Atta girl!"

Nell Frets as Rob Says He'll Ride Race

Nell's hands dropped in her lap. "Thanksgiving," she murmured. "It might be very cold. A good thing I've got my grey squirrel coat."

Excitement swept Rob again. He leaped to his feet. "I've got a chance!" he cried and gave a skip, like a boy.

The day of the race was raw and cold. Fitful sunshine played over the course and the surrounding country beyond. Although occasionally there was the smell of snow in the air the ground was dry and hard. It was weather to whip heat into the blood and make the horses dance as they stood in the paddock waiting to be saddled.

It was true that Nell felt no anxiety about Ken. This panic had seized her when Ken had made his decision to stick to the original plan and ride Jewel. Why had he done that? To win a victory for Carey's filly? Or because he saw that his Dad longed to ride Thunderhead? Nell suspected it was the latter. At any rate it had not been until that moment that Rob's riding of the stallion had become real to her. Now it was comin', now it was inevitable, and it was only a matter of minutes before she would see them ride out onto the track and take their places.

She had been insane ever to agree to it! Rob—middle-aged, tough and close-knit in bone and muscle—not like these little slim whips of jockeys, not like Ken who could take a dozen falls a day and not know it—those terrible jumps!

Bewildered by the voice, her eyes still strained to see the white horse, the black-shirted rider. There they come!

Rob squeezed her arm hard. She looked into his dark face, then flashed her glance to the jockey who was riding the big white horse through the opening. The shirt had the number 4, and it covered a very slim, boyish body. The horse—those great white haunches! the powerful legs!

For one second Carey closed her eyes. But only for a second. In the breathless, almost silent moment in which Thunderhead rode up to the last jump, Carey leaned forward and yelled. "Oh you, Ken! Come on!"

It was over.

Carey drew a deep breath, hardly aware of the great roar of the crowd around her. Thunderhead first, Jewel second by a nose.

The grasp on her wrist tightened and she met her grandmother's blazing eyes. "What behavior! You ought to be ashamed!"

"Ken's won," stammered Carey. "He's won, Grandma! Let me go!" She gave a tug at her wrist. Around them the crowd was surging into the aisles of the grandstand. Announcements were bawled through the loudspeakers.

"You stay here with me!" said Mrs. Palmer severely.

For one moment Carey stood hardly aware of her grandmother, thrilling with the realization of the strange haphazard victory which, after so many heartbreaking years of struggle and failure, had come to Ken.

Then Carey turned on the old lady. "Grandma, the are some things I want to tell you!"

"Tell me!" Mrs. Palmer became inches taller. Her eyes boared into the girl's face.

"Yes—tell you," Carey marveled that she was completely without fear. "I am engaged to Ken McLaughlin. I am not going back with you to the Blue Moon. I'm going to Miss Meredith's school in Washington to get the rest of my college credits and next year I'm going to Vassar. And I'll be visiting the McLaughlins most of next summer at the Goose Bar."

"You dare to tell me, what you'll do and not do!"

Carey, 'Free,' to Tell Ken They're Engaged

For answer Carey smiled. She lifted her unprisoned wrist, gave it a sharp twist, and she was free.

She said the word aloud as she stepped back, rubbing the skin where her grandmother's hand had held her. "Free!" The next moment she was gone.

Mrs. Palmer could hardly believe that such a thing could happen to her. She looked around to see whom she could get to take her part, but the crowd was concerned only with the outcome of the race, the horses, the announcements. She sat with lips drawn in, brows pulled down over eyes which darted this way and that.

Then a man in the next box saw the cane which had rolled out of her reach. He entered her box, picked up her cane, and courteously handed it to her.

She accepted it without a smile or a word of thanks and continued to sit there as if waiting, the knob of the cane in one hand, her other clasping her large suede bag to her breast. At last her lips began to quiver and her eyes to fill.

She glanced furtively around, but there was no one to see.

With an abrupt, angry gesture, she threw the cane to the floor, rose to her feet and drew her mink coat closer around her. Then, with an air of great hauteur, and with steady gait, she left the box.

All the newspapers and racing sheets found material for "something more than the usual announcement of the winner of this famous event. The headline, RANGE STALLION WALKS AWAY WITH THE DELAWARE HUNT CUP topped an article of three columns, six inches long, which also contained a picture of Ken sitting on Thunderhead and wearing an amazed expression as he put out his hands to receive the trophy. The stallion had refused his share of the glory—the garland of flowers, and was photographed in the act of snorting his disgust. Something of Thunderhead's history was given, also that of Crown Jewel, who had amused onlookers by breaking away from her groom and running to Thunderhead to rub her nose affectionately against his shoulder.

The article was not flattering enough to satisfy Carey, but she liked the picture, and that night, as she pinned it to the edge of the mirror of her dressing-table and then stood looking at it, there was a warm, excited smile on her face. "You don't know it yet, Ken, but we're engaged—really engaged."

Ken, Thunderhead Win Thrilling Horse Race

There was a sudden crescendo in the roar of sound from the grandstand.

"What's that?" Rob asked.

"That bay horse that was led past the judges' stand—when he got near the other horses at the post he lashed out at several. He looks vicious to me."

"What's his number?"

"Ten. Blue and red stripes."

"That's Top Hole—a bad actor but a good 'chaser'."

"They're putting him in the outside stall—Oh! They're off!"

The roar from the grandstand swelled as the horses swept forward and rapidly sorted themselves out into leaders, followers, tail-enders. Crown Jewel made a good start and held her place in a group of three just behind the leaders. Thunderhead ran alone behind the tail-enders.

Beaver Greenway joined them. Edging their way as the crowd surged and flowed, they gradually worked to the rail. How swiftly the first mile was covered! Four tough jumps and two horses down already, but not Jewel, not Thunderhead. The stallion was running wide on the outside, gaining on the others a little, taking his jumps easily. And now the bright shirts and the straining horses were half hidden as they curved away through the rolling country beyond.

And now Thunderhead began to close up the distance between himself and the leaders. He still ran wide, as if scorning the advantage of being closer to the rail. Down the backstretch he was abreast of Top Hole. The two horses took jump after jump with absolute precision. As Thunderhead forged ahead, running now with his strange floating gait, Top Hole seemed to lose heart. He dropped back. The crowd went wild. One length, two, three separated the white stallion from the six horses who were still in the running. They swept into the home stretch, the jockeys plying their whips, the crowd in a frenzy, all eyes fastened on the one jump remaining, the rail, the ditch, the wall and the water. Jewel galloped with might and main as if indignant that Thunderhead should run away from her.

For one second Carey closed her eyes. But only for a second. In the breathless, almost silent moment in which Thunderhead rode up to the last jump, Carey leaned forward and yelled. "Oh you, Ken! Come on!"

"You don't know it yet, Ken, but we're engaged—really engaged."

THE END

Ken, Thunderhead Win Thrilling Horse Race

There was a sudden crescendo in the roar of sound from the grandstand.

"What's that?" Rob asked.

"That bay horse that was led past the judges' stand—when he got near the other horses at the post he lashed out at several. He looks vicious to me."

"What's his number?"

"Ten. Blue and red stripes."

"That's Top Hole—a bad actor but a good 'chaser'."

"They're putting him in the outside stall—Oh! They're off!"

The roar from the grandstand swelled as the horses swept forward and rapidly sorted themselves out into leaders, followers, tail-enders. Crown Jewel made a good start and held her place in a group of three just behind the leaders. Thunderhead ran alone behind the tail-enders.

Beaver Greenway joined them. Edging their way as the crowd surged and flowed, they gradually worked to the rail. How swiftly the first mile was covered! Four tough jumps and two horses down already, but not Jewel, not Thunderhead. The stallion was running wide on the outside, gaining on the others a little, taking his jumps easily. And now the bright shirts and the straining horses were half hidden as they curved away through the rolling country beyond.

And now Thunderhead began to close up the distance between himself and the leaders. He still ran wide, as if scor

Letter From State Health Officer

Austin, Texas, Oct. 17. — It is the statutory duty of the Texas State Department of Health, through its Bureau of Vital Statistics, to provide for the registration of the births and deaths occurring in Texas.

On the statistics made from the vital records much of the planning for the welfare of the people of Texas is done. The number of births credited to the county or city of the residence of the mother can be used in planning hospitals and medical care. The medical certification of the birth record furnishes the Division of Maternal and Child Health, with a list of children who may need additional care, because of prematurity, congenital malformations or birth injuries. The birth certificates are used in establishing dependency benefits for veterans or members of the armed forces. They are also used in proving relationship in settlement of insurance claims and inheritance matters.

The statistics made from causes of death as gathered from medical certifications on death records are used in the prevention of disease, for control of epidemics, and immunization programs for children of pre-school and school age. Leading causes of death statistics furnish data for study and research which will lengthen life expectancy and improve health during the expected time.

Mortality statistics and the expected length of life are insurance premium rates.

A rise in the number of deaths from diseases bred of filth can institute immediate action by the Bureau of Sanitary Engineers. Nutritional diseases can indicate a needed improvement in diet, and school lunch programs can help guard the health of Texas' school children.

Murat Thurmond Named President

FROM THE DEL RIO NEWS-HERALD

George Murat Thurmond, son of the late Judge George Thurmond, is president of the new wool top making firm, Thurmond and Cuneo, in Boston at 232 Summers Street. Thurmond, a brother of Judge Roger H. Thurmond and of Mrs. Tim B. Cobb, has been president of Draper Top Company. Both Thurmond and his partner were senior stock holders in Draper Top Company. Wool dealers, at a dinner for them in Algonquin Club September 28, presented both men with desks for the new firm. Offices are being renovated and are expected to be completed by November 1.

Don't forget that we are getting close to the general November election and that that's another voting time for all of the general population who qualified as voters.

Are Our Texas Highways Being Destroyed by 1% of Highway Users?

This question is presented squarely for the first time by the Texas Tax Journal in its booklet, "The Case of the One Per Centers."

Every Texan who wants good highways, adequate for 99 of every 100 users, should write for a free copy of this revealing booklet.

Approximately 99% of all Texas motor vehicles are registered for a gross weight of 20,000 pounds or less.

All Texas taxpayers, including your Texas Railroads, have reason to be concerned about the high cost of constructing and repairing our highways and the prospect of building more costly roads made necessary by the operation of highway "box cars."

No one has any desire to bar vehicles of reasonable size from our highways, so long as each pays its fair share of construction and repair costs.

Other Texas taxpayers should not be required to shoulder the burden of a roadway system for highway "box cars", representing only 1% of highway users.

Every Texan interested in good highways without increasing the growing tax burden should fill out the coupon below and get a copy of this valuable booklet.
