Don't Let Potluck Meals Be Bad Luck

indulging in good food. That an insulated chest. combination naturally leads to potluck meals, where friends to share each other's favorite

But don't let the possibility of foodborne illness ruin these festive occasions. Follow these safety precautions to help eliminate that risk:

- When transporting food to a get-together, don't let perishable foods stay in the danger zone - 40-140 degrees - for more than two hours. Transport time and serving time two hours. Be careful with these perishable foods: meat, poultry, seafood, eggs, cooked vegetables and dairy products, and dishes made with any of these foods, such as dressing, gravy, casseroles, cream pies, puddings and dips.

- Perishable foods prepared ahead of time should be kept refrigerated until time to leave. If the food is to be served hot, reheat it at the event.

- Use ovens and microwaves to reheat food; don't use warming trays or slow cookers. Food thermometers should be used to make sure reheated foods have reached an internal temperature of 165 degrees. If reheating equipment is not available, prepare food closer to the event time and keep it

The holiday season is a time hot by wrapping it in towels of sharing, entertaining – and or blankets, or by placing it in

- Keep cold perishable foods below 40 degrees until serving and family gather together time. Use ice chests to transport these foods and keep them cold. Ice chests or ice bowls can keep foods below 40 degrees on a buffet line.

- Make sure everything that comes in contact with the foods is kept clean. Wash hands and food preparation surfaces often. Make sure adequate garbage disposal facilities are available and keep garbage away from the food area.

- If food will be prepared should be included in these at the event, keep raw meat separate from foods that will not be cooked, such as salad or raw fruit or vegetable tray ingredients. Use separate cutting boards for fresh produce and for raw meat, poultry and seafood. If separate cutting boards and utensils are not available, clean and sanitize between uses.

The experts stressed the importance of the two-hour rule: Do not let perishable foods remain in the temperature danger zone for more than two hours. Foods left out more than two hours should be discarded: If in doubt, throw it out!

For more information regarding safe food handling, contact Julie Smith at the Extension Office (806.756.4336).

a hot shooting team last Tuesday in Garden City. Garden City shot just shy of 50% (15/31) from the three point range and 60% from the free throw line. The Lady Coyotes battled the entire game and really did some good things, but overcoming the long ball from Garden City was just too much. The first quarter was a good battle with them winning 17-9, and the second quarter again was a battle with Garden City scoring 20 points, 12 of which came of the long ball, and BC scoring 11. The third was about the same as the home team hit 4 more threes, outscoring the Lady Coyotes by four 15-11: The only quarter that really got away from us was the last one getting outscored 19-5.

Their effort is non-stop, and they are still learning, but as long as their effort stays strong things will start to click.
