

A GOOD, GENERAL RAIN FALLS OVER THE ENTIRE COUNTRY

Monday night a general rain fell throughout the entire country, and as a result a general drouth throughout the state has been broken, this being the first general rain in five to seven months.

Throughout the Spur country the rainfall varied from half an inch to five inches. The rain was accompanied by hail which also was heavier in some sections than others. The north part of the county had an inch or more of rain, while in Spur approximately half inch fell. Up on Dockum some say they had as much as five inches of rain. The heaviest hail fell in the Draper country.

The rain will bring up dry-sown wheat, and the season is sufficient to break and prepare land for planting.

We have never doubted in the least but that rain would come in plenty time to make crops, and we are confident that 1922 will be a prosperous year, and eventful in many respects. Unsettled conditions and prices will be stabilized and standardized. The armament conference successful and its plans set in motion and European differences solved, world peace established, and work of reconstruction carried out harmoniously and effectively.

NEWLY APPOINTED DEMONSTRATION AGENT FOR DICKENS

We regret to see Miss Forrest leave this work. She was the best that could be had for the place.

SOUTH PLAINS RAIL MEETING HELD AT RALLS

RALLS Texas, Dec. 30.—Twelve South Plains towns were represented at a meeting held here today for the purpose of discussing ways and means of securing a railroad from Fort Worth to the South Plains. The meeting was called by the Ralls Chamber of Commerce. O. L. Slaton, Lubbock banker, presided.

Resolutions approving the steps being taken by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, Star-Telegram and Fort Worth Record, to secure such a railroad were unanimously accepted.

A great deal of enthusiasm was aroused and every town represented through its citizens present pledged its full support, financially and morally, to the movement.

CEPHUS HOGAN HIGHEST BIDDER FOR SOL DAVIS BUSINESS

On January first the general mercantile business of the Sol Davis estate was closed and offered for sale by Administrator Edmonds to the highest bidder. Of the number of bids received that of C. Hogan was the highest, being fifty five cents on the dollar of invoice cost. Should this bid acceptable to the court, Mr. Hogan will restock, reopen and continue the business at the same stand.

Through the fall C. Hogan managed the business for the Estate, and made a remarkable success of it. In fact he did what wholesalers and creditors said was an impossibility—he practically paid the indebtedness of the firm through sales of merchandise, collections and good business management.

LOOK OUT FOR PINK BOLL WORMS IN COTTON SEED

We have been carrying several advertisements for the sale of cotton seed grown here at home. As said heretofore, it is the part of wisdom and a precautionary movement against pink boll worm infestation of this country. Pink boll worms are being distributed over the country through the sale of cotton seed from the infested areas. When seed is shipped here there is danger of the pink boll worm—and when the pink boll worm gets here it will be goodby Mr. Cotton Farmer. We have the finest seed grown here at home, and under the situation, all should refrain from having seed shipped here so long as there is danger of cotton pests coming in.

TAKES BACK "POOR FARM" MAY RUN FOR LEGISLATURE

W. A. Craddock this week made a deal whereby he takes back his farm west of Spur, taking possession and will look after the property and stock farming business. Mr. Craddock spent Christmas with his family at Austin, reporting a very pleasant visit in the capitol city. In reply to the question as to whether or not he intended to make the race for representative of this district in the legislature, he stated that he could not answer definitely at this time, but considering the matter and would like to serve with a view of introducing needed legislation and reform measures. W. A. Craddock has a level head and is capable of being of great service to the country if given this opportunity. Dickens county has never had a representative in the legislature, and we consider that this honor and distinction is now due us. With a live representative, such as Mr. Craddock would make, Dickens county, as well as the entire district, would be given noticeable and beneficial representation.

THE PINK BOLL WORM NOW MENACES DICKENS COUNTY

It is not hard to imagine what would be the result should the farmers of Dickens County be deprived of their cotton crop entirely for a period of years, or even for one year. The season of 1920 with its slim yield is still vivid in the memory of almost every resident, and no one would care to have a repetition of that calamity.

Yet that is the very thing we are risking in the rather indiscriminate introduction of planting seed now being practised throughout the West. This danger arises from the ease with which the worst enemy known to cotton growers, the pink boll worm, is introduced through seed from infested areas.

In order to make this danger plain we will trace the introduction and history of this pest in the United States.

In 1917, down in the Border Country, the pink boll worm crossed over from the Mexican side, and attacked one of the few cotton fields in that particular locality. Some of the seed from this field were shipped to Carlsbad, N. M., and the next year an outbreak of the pest was noticed in the fields where these seed had been planted, and simultaneously an outbreak was recorded in the vicinity of Barstow, Reeves county, where some of the infested cotton had been ginned the preceding year.

From Carlsbad seed were shipped to various points and the next year outbreaks occurred in Ellis and Grayson counties. The worms have also been found in the vicinity of Hearne, and severe outbreaks have been suffered in localities in Louisiana. No locality found infested is allowed to plant a single stalk of cotton—the no-cotton zone method having been found efficacious in controlling the pest. This is exactly what will happen to us if we are incautious enough to introduce the worm through planting seed not properly treated. The treatment found absolutely reliable consists in having all seed put under 140 degrees Fahrenheit which destroys the egg of the worm, and does not injure the germination of seed.

I should like to have the cooperation of every dealer and farmer in the county in this matter. The situation demands action, for seed are being indiscriminately shipped in from almost every section of the state. In this connection it may be well to mention a fact that many of the so-called wonderful new varieties of cotton for which fancy prices are being asked are absolutely worthless, while others which are moderately well adapted to the sections which are growing them would be failures in localities where soil and climatic conditions are different. Some of the best cotton in the South and East are not at all profitable in the West.

Within the next few weeks meetings will be held in various communities to get together on subject of planting cotton adapted to our soil and climate, and at the same time producing a reasonable staple, and in the meantime I shall be glad to advise with any farmer who has already placed an order for seed. If you have ordered seed which have not already been shipped, have the firm with whom you are dealing treat them as recommended or cancel the order. If you have already purchased seed, ascertain whether or not they have been so treated.—R. B. Johnston, County Agricultural Agent

TWO MEN FROM MATADOR FOUND DEAD IN NEW MEXICO

Durango, Colo.—The bodies of Clay Carpenter and Frank Aikens, of Matador, Texas, were found in an arroyo about sixty feet from a deserted cabin near El Vado, New Mexico, by a searching party for strayed cattle. Both men had been shot to death. Authorities are looking for Price Clements, also of Matador, who is known to have been with the two slain men, and who is now missing. Signs around the cabin indicate that the men had been slain in the building and their bodies dragged to the arroyo. The three men left Cuba, N. M., three weeks ago in an automobile for a hunting and trapping trip. Carpenter and Aikens were known to have had about $2,000 with them when they started on the trip.

SAYS CONDITIONS HERE ARE FAR AHEAD OF OTHER POINTS

J. O. Yopp returned this week from an extended trip over the country, taking in Stamford, Albany, Moran, Abilene and other points. He reports conditions here very much improved over the sections visited. In fact he said that at points it was a problem to get water for his radiator. He found hundreds of idle people who are becoming somewhat alarmed at the seriousness of the situation. However, since his return, it has rained and much of the uncertainty for the year may have been relieved.

PROPER COOPERATION BETWEEN TOWN AND COUNTRY

Having read in a recent issue of the Texas Spur an article from California Van Guard. In which he said did you ever give the subject of the local merchant and you any thought? Why how can we help from giving him a thought. He is ever ready to remind us of his business passed and future.

But does He ever give his patrons any thought, only so far as his financial interest goes. I am a farmer I raise hogs, cattle, horses, mules, poultry, fruit, potatoes, cotton maize corn, oats and vegetables. I raise and grow a surplus above my own use: I grow this surplus for the merchant, lawyer, doctor, mechanic, blacksmith and those who do not grow and raise such: Do they buy it from me or from the merchant? Who does the merchant buy it from? Does he buy it from me direct? Now let every man living in town stop and think. This surplus I speak of is my only means of patronizing him, yet he will not buy it direct from me. Why, he says my potatoes will rot before he can get rid of them, as they are not kiln dried. He objects to my home rendered lard, as it is in bulk, and his patrons do not buy it that way. He objects to my syrup as it is put in barrels or kegs, and his patrons do not want it that way, and so on down the line. He goes with his objections, the result is I am forced to ship my product probably a thousand miles, on foot or in bulk to another town, and to a speculator let him knock off freight and insurance, and add a big profit to himself takes that away from the price I am to have. He sells my product to another man in town who will mix compound, knock down and prepare it in smaller receptacles so it will suit the trade. He ships it back with freight, insurance and profit added to it again: to those who I tried to sell to.

Why did you Mr. Merchant not buy it when I offered it to you: You sir by cooperation with your towns people and the producers in your trade territory done this mixing and compounding to have filled the requirements of your patrons, you never thought of it did you? But there never was a better time for you to think of it than right now. You see where you are as business men; the producers see where they are. Don't you think there had better be a get together movement inaugurated between the little guies like we are. The little guies, such as the local banker, business man and stockman are treading on the man-eating bush, that has its limbs spread out on purpose by the big guies, in the big centers. As soon as it gets sufficient weight on its branches it begins to draw in its victims by coiling its strong limb around them tighter and tighter until the blood of its victims is all squeezed out. The blood is what the bush wanted, it refuses the bones as they remain on the ground bleaching for years. The money is what the big guies want in the big centers, not you or I. We realize the town folks are citizens, tax payers of the county in which they and we live and we hope and believe some of them are our very best friends. I am glad I can truthfully say I am a well wisher of every moral, honest and upright man or woman who ever and where ever they may be. I could not and would not, if I could draw any line of distinction between the deserving of the country or the town. But I have always expected and looked to the business interests of the town to find a remunerative market for my product, of not only one staple crop but most everything I could produce. Furthermore I looked to him to consider my interest when he went to buy supplies for his patrons, being one of his patrons to buy as good material as he could, and cheap as he could, and sell to me in like manner. But by his failure to cooperate with me in finding a market for my produce, and helping to put it in a marketable condition save one special crop. Probably he is not offering any very great inducements for me to patronize our local merchants or business man.

The writer remembers well the city of Dallas when it was no larger than Spur, the building of the Houston Texas Central Railroad to Dallas gave the town a sendoff. It began to spread out a little. The building of the Texas and Pacific Railroad gave the town another boost, they spread aut greatly, then they had all of the western part of the state to draw trade from and it grew to be quite a city in a few years time. But Dallas had a check, the building of the Texas and Pacific west to Fort Worth cut them off from the western trade, property went down, men went broke, lost all they had in spreading out too much, and it looked like Dallas was going to remain dead. But Dallas was fortunate enough to have left men with brains, if they were broke for money, these men put their heads together for council. They knew what the west needed and what they bought, so their conclusion was we are not going to loose that western trade. We are going to make what they need and what they have been buying, and we will hold that trade. So they began to make just what they needed and sold it to their western customers. They did not tell them out west we have ordered it for you, but we have made it for you. Not only did they hold their western trade, but they gained back their eastern, southern and northern trade by making what they needed and they are still holding it.

STEEL HILL NEWS

Steel Hill people having made good crops, and getting them all gathered and sold for a good price they are all facing the New Year, in good spirits, notwithstanding the New Year has come in a little dry, we are expecting good crops this year. You know Jesus said once, "according to your faith be it unto you"
Mat. 9-29. So let us all have more faith not only in our Country and Fellowman, but in our Heavenly Father the Creator and Observer of all things.

The Steel Hill school building has been completed, and we are all proud of it, we are not ashamed for our neighboring schools to visit us, for we have one of the best modern school buildings in Dickens County.

Prof. Smelcher and Miss Brown, are carrying on our school in the greatest success, we all appreciate the interest our teachers have taken in making our school one of the best rural schools in Dickens County.

W. L. Gregson, C. P. Allen and families went to Jack County, the 8th of December, to visit relatives, expecting to return home before Christmas, but owing to sickness they were compelled to stay until after Christmas. We are glad to report they are all back home and enjoying good health.

Rev. A. P. Stokes of Afton filled his regular appointment at Steel
Hill, last first Sunday.

Mr. Bloch has recently moved on the Hall farm, better known as the Cheely place.

To tell all the news I haven't time.
In fact it might be out of place,
If I even had it on my mind
I might fail to find the space.
Farmers get ready for this new year
Look out for the things you need
Pay up your dues for the Texas Spur
And have something good to read.
Edgar McClellan you all have known
Has knocked his batching out of view
Where once he lived all alone
Now lives a happy pair of two.
Things are different now he said
He hasent half so much to do.
Once he had to make his bread
And then wash his dishes too.
Make up his bed and sweep the floor
And scrub his old coffee pot,
Then do a dozen things or more
He said he always had to trot.
He washed his clothes when all alone
He ironed them very well,
And kept his buttons all sewed on
How he did so much we cannot tell.
His cupboard was a coffee box
Which needed some repairs
His cookstove had the legs broke off
He had a cracker box for his chairs
His towel it was a ragged shirt
He had patched a time or two
When he dried he left the dirt
Like most all men will do.
His dining table was very weak
He kept it standing by the wall
Sometimes Ed would go to eat
And bump a leg and make it fall
All in a pile went every thing
And with his collie dog and cat
He soiled a tie and lost a ring
While grabbing after this and that.
Things does often change the tide
While his past was filled with fears,
Since at last he's won a bride
We hope they'll live a thousand years

Kellogg's Corn Flakes snap up fussy appetites something wonderful!

No coaxing needed to tempt family folks and visitor folks to eat a plenty—not when there's a big pitcher of milk or cream and lots of Kellogg's Corn Flakes—and, maybe some handy fresh fruit—ready to tickle fickle palates!

Kellogg's are unlike any corn flakes you ever ate! They're the original kind—they ought to be best! No other corn flakes are so deliciously flavored; no other corn flakes retain such wonder-crispness till eaten! And, Kellogg's are never leathery or tough or hard to eat!

Kellogg's are always a delight to serve—and a treat to eat at any meal! In fact, you'll never know how good corn flakes can be until you know KELLOGG'S! The difference is astounding!

Do more than ask for Corn Flakes—say KELLOGG'S CORN FLAKES! The kind in the RED and GREEN package!

WANTED A MARKET

A paper of pins is the same price the whole year round. In fact, the price varies very little in a whole generation. The same is true of a spool of thread, a package of gum, a box of soda, a pound of beans and practically everything else we buy to use in the home. The price is fixed. We do not know who fixes it, but somebody does. Excluding wartimes, when everything was abnormal and unnatural, the price of the things most of us have to buy does not vary much. But how about the things that are offered for sale by those who produce them?

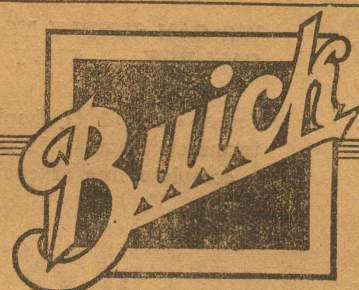

For example how about the price of eggs at this time? There are records, where the price of eggs has varied within a year 1,000 per cent. Last Spring when the egg harvest was on throughout the whole country as it is every Spring, eggs were forced down in many places to 10 cents per dozen. No doubt there are many city women who will pay $1 per dozen for eggs to bake their cakes. What does this mean? It simply means that there is no order, no system, no sense to the egg market. The people and most of the people who send eggs to market, are women and children, who do all the work to make the Christmas cakes possible for the nation, received 10 cents per dozen for the products of their labor, and the women and children who make the Christmas cakes must pay $1 per dozen for the same eggs a few months later. Have the eggs improved by age 1,000 per cent? As a rule, eggs do not improve with age. The question we would like to have answered and we believe there are millions of other women who would like to know the answer, is this: Who gets the 90 cents per dozen difference from the first selling price to the last buying price? Does it cost 90 cents to keep a dozen eggs through the Summer? There are few things in which the producer and the consumer are so far apart as they are on a dozen of eggs. And yet how often in reality they are only a few miles apart at the beginning and at the end of the life of those eggs.

In this case who is the victim; the producer or the consumer? And how many more thousand years do you think an intelligent nation should endure such conditions?

The desire of the rural woman at this time is no a woman's club. It is not an automobile. It is not a light and power plant. It is not running water in her home. It is not to move to town, as so many accuse her of. It is not to get out of honest, hard work. It is not ease and luxury, pleasure and entertainment. The greatest desire of the woman on the farm today is a just and standard market for all her products that are left over after her own family is fed. When she can have this, all other things will come. And they will come in an honorable honest, business-like way. If women and children on the farm could get what they ought to get for the eggs and chickens, the milk and butter, the fruit and vegetables, there would not be an uncomfortable rural home in a few years. Women love their homes better than any material thing on earth. They take more pride in their homes until it is literally starved out of them and they give up all hope of ever having a pretty home. Women would work night and day if they knew by so doing they could have the desires of their heart for their home and children and get them in a dignified upright way, by working for them and then exchanging the products of their work for the things they need.

The cry of the country woman today is: "Give us a just market for our products all the year around and we will supply every convenience and comfort for our home and be happy and satisfied on the farm." There are other things that enter the life of the country home, but none so vitally affects the health and happiness, the comfort and convenience and the contentment of the country home as this unstable unfair, unbusinesslike way of marketing the products of her time and strength.

But don't give up. Don't get the blues. Don't die if you can't help it for a while yet. For we do believe the Farm Bureau will get to the home interests pretty soon. All over this great State the producer and the consumer are gradually drawing a little closer together. One by one the products of the farm are being organized and controlled by the power

FARM BUREAU ELECTS HEADS AT DALLAS CONVENTION

DALLAS, Jan. 6.—John T. Orr of Dallas was re-elected president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation at the close of the three-day convention here Friday afternoon. W. D. Ferris of Ellis County was elected vice president. He will succeed J. E. Boog Scott.

It was said Secretary G. H. Alford would be reappointed by the new executive committee.

The bureau voted down the proposition to permit negroes to be members of the organization.

The following resolutions were offered:

- 1.—Petitioning Congress to pass laws aiding farmers.
- 2.—Indorsing united campaign for crop diversification.
- 3.—Appointing representatives to attend Washington conference Jan. 23.
- 4.—Petitioning legislature to stop shooting quail for five years.
- 5.—Urging development of Muscle Shoals by Government.
- 6.—Pledging support to educational institutions of Texas.
- 7.—Complimenting Agricultural and Mechanical College on character of work done.

The farm bureau movement and organization of co-operative marketing associations have been the cause of the perpetuation of the War Finance Board, and is the greatest undertaking in the history of the United States, Clarence Ousley, prominent Texas agricultural expert and candidate for the United States Senate, told the delegates and visitors.

The report of the committee on constitution and by laws recommended that it be made a permanent committee, that negroes be allowed membership in the federation with no voting power, that the position of treasurer be made appointive instead of elective, and that the membership dues be changed so that new members pay a $5 initiation fee, and that regular dues of $10 a year be divided equally between the state and county organization. The report was discussed at the afternoon session.

John Orr, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association, made a report on that association. J. H. Hill Jr., secretary of the cotton association explained the work that had been done by the cotton body since it began operations on Sept. 1, 1921.

The cotton association has sold 38,000 bales of cotton at an average price of 19 cents a pound, middling basis, since Sept. 1, Hill said. The final condition on that date was as follows:

Cash on hand and deposited in banks $304,671, notes receivable $20,000, accounts receivable $58,348, concentration claims $13,288, concentration paid $168,459.93, advances $3,131,301.94, operating expenses $141,000.

THIS TERRITORY WILL PROBABLY GET ANOTHER TEST WELL

Frank Williams returned this week from Breckenridge where he was conferring with oil developers on the proposition of coming to this territory and drilling some wild-cat wells. He will probably close a deal with one of the concerns to drill one or more wells in this section, since he has the required acreage blocked up and ready to deliver the lease acreage they ask for. We are anxious to see a well going down which will give this territory a complete test for oil. We have never expected oil to be found here under four thousand feet, but expect a big paying pool to be uncovered at this depth.

Mrs. W. T. Andrews returned last week from Iredell where she spent the holidays with her parents.

Mrs. McClanahan and children this week moved to Dallas for the benefit of military schools. They will return to Spur at the end of the school term.

T. G. HARKEY ANNOUNCES FOR PUBLIC WEIGHER'S OFFICE

T. G. Harkey this week authorized us to make his announcement for the office of Public Weigher of Precinct Number 3, Dickens county, subject to the action of the Democratic Primaries of 1922.

Every voter in the county and this precinct knows Uncle Tom Harkey personally. He was among the early settlers of Dickens county, and in earlier days conducted a successful mercantile business at Dickens, later coming to Spur and engaging in the telephone business. He has made more money, spent more and lost more in helping friends and those in need than any other individual in the county. For ten years or more he bought and weighed cotton. He knows the cotton business in every detail, and in seeking the weigher's office, promises to give the public not only accurate and conscientious service in weighing but the benefit of his knowledge and ability as a cotton trader. Should he be favored with the place, Uncle Tom states that he will arrange for adequate facilities to promptly weigh without delay all cotton as rapidly as it is brought in.

We ask voters in the Democratic Primaries to give the candidacy of T. G. Harkey a due and deserved consideration before casting a ballot for weigher in the primary election.

John Jackson, manager of the Matador Land & Cattle Company, was in Spur Monday from Matador.

CHICAGO LADIES SEXTETTE IS NOTABLE ORCHESTRA

Happy Combination of Artists is Worthy of High Musical Standard of City

An orchestra worthy of the high musical standard of the city whose name it bears, the city that gave Theodore Thomas his opportunity that provided the first Orchestral Hall as memorial to the great conductor and his genius, that supports the Chicago Opera Association and the summer opera at Ravinia Park such is the Chicago Ladies Sextette, which is to be heard in concert here Monday, Jan. 16 at the Gem Theatre 7:30

It is a unique program of standard classical and popular music with which this fine group of six feminine artists entertains. In varied combination of violins, cello and double bass with piano and instrumental features, in addition to which vocal music is provided, for this is a happy combination of artists who can sing as well as play.

Ability, versatility, experience and genius go to make up an organization which stands out in the lyceum world as few organizations do. Those gifted young women sing and play a way into the hearts of their audiences, and lose no time in doing so.

They have what is described by competent critics as a "personality program," for they certainly are "personality girls"—every mother's daughter of them, and the program with its delightful mingling of old favorites, popular ballads and standard concert music is sure to delight.

W. E. Duke, of the Watson community southwest of Spur, was Monday, transacting business and meeting with his friends.

Chas. Ingram, who has been of the ranch employees on Pasture, left this week for Mt. Vernon.
