The land of the Coleman-Fulton Pas tures Co., in Aransas and San Patricia Counties, is commonly called the Taff Ranch. On this ranch are six thousand acres in cotton. The planting, cultivating, picking and ginning of this cot ton are under the supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Alvord, formerly of A. & M. College of Texas-a recognized authorthe Taft Ranch and Mr. Alvord's letter on the cost of producing cotton may be regarded as stating fact only. His

My Dear Mr. Yeary: I regret that I cannot give you at this time, the definite information as to the cost of producing cotton on our ranch this year, but this would hardly be satisfactory, if I could, as this has been in exceptionally good year for us probably much above the average. I am very confident ibst where a very accurate account is kept of expenses, depreciation, etc. that over a series of ten years, with varying climatic conditions and loss, incident to insect devisation that cotton cannot be produced for less than ten cents per pound, and in that cotton cannot be produced for less than ten cents per pound, and in many instances it costs considerable more than this. I believe that the difference in the cost of production will depend more upon the yield of cotton than upon the cost of labor-seed, etc. On four of our, farms, verying from one thousand to eigh-teen hundred acres each, 1 find that the total express per acre (1912)

$22.19 This farm was operated as eco-nomically as any farm could be, if kept up in proper condition and, of course, you understand that every minute's time of labor and every expense was charged against it. If we add to this, a rent charge of $5.00 per acre, which is very small for land worth as much as this, it would make the cost per acre about $27.19. If the farmer was fortunate enough to produce one-half a bale of cotton per acre, the cost would be approxiper acre, the cost would be approxi-mately ten cents per pound. The Agricultural Reports show the aver-age production of cotton is much less than one-half a bale per acre, and of course, the cost would increase as the production decreases. I am firmly convinced that cotton cannot be produced year after year for a fixed cost for less than ten cents per pound, and in many in-stances the cost will exceed this. Respectfully. (Signed) CHAS.
