Mutation May Help Develop Better Peanut Varieties

Father Of Mrs. Key Dies At Cisco

W. P. (Buddy) Reed, 54, resident of Cisco and father of Mrs. Madge Key also a brother of Mrs. L. P. Murphy both of Carbon, died in a Cisco hospital Friday at 7:30 p. m. after an illness of two months. Funeral was held at 2 p. m. Sunday in the First Baptist Church at Cisco with Rev. Lee Fields officiating. Burial was in Cisco cemetery.

Born Jan. 19, 1909, in Carbon, and swimmer for several years.

He was a member of Eastland Masonic Lodge, the Oddfellow Lodge of Cisco, Order of the Eastern Star of Cisco, Masonic Lodge and Cisco Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Murl Sprawls Reed of Cisco; one son; dan, of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Key; 5 sisters, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Fannie McMillan and Mrs. Eva Cook both of Dallas, Mrs. Emma Cornelius and Mrs. Leona Howard both of Ft. Worth; one brother, Jim Reed of Tatum, N. M. and one grandchild.

A small, low producing Spanish peanut with no commercial value, may lead scientists to the development of better peanut varieties, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The line of typically small peanuts has been found to possess a mutation that can be used as a genetic marker in peanut improvement research, explains the USDA. These plants have crinkled or curled leaves while normal plants have smooth leaves.

Geneticists with the USDA have shown that the crinkle-leaf characteristic is a dominant inheritance when introduced into a cross between two peanut lines. This mutation can be easily seen at an early stage of the plant's development. The discovery helped scientists disprove the old belief that peanuts are self-pollinating, says the USDA. By the use of its marker gene they have shown that as much as 10 per cent natural crossing occurs in some cases. This means that natural cross hybrids, identified by their crinkled leaves, can be produced from known parents and there by speed the breeding of improved peanut varieties.

The unusual crinkle-leaf peanuts were not discovered by scientists but by a Sidney, Texas, farmer, William Bryant. The mutation studies by the USDA have been with plants from the original seed stock supplied by Bryant.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall Wescott of Odessa visited his mother, Mrs. C. D. Wescott recently.

Maurice Sherrell and family of Dallas visited his parents, S. S. Sherrell and wife, during the weekend.

A slide into first base as the ball whizzes overhead, a riotous game of lawn tag, or even a quiet picnic on the grass. These things are lots of fun for youngsters — but often not for mom. Not if she has grass stains to remove after the fun is over. Prompt treatment and the right method are the answer to this problem.

Here's what to do to remove a stain, either from grass, flowers, or foliage:

Work from the wrong side of the fabric, forcing the stain out instead of in. On washable fabrics, work a detergent into the stain, then rinse. If the stain is stubborn and remains after this treatment, use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach or hydrogen peroxide. Do not use chlorine bleaches on fabrics that contain silk, wool, or spandex fibers. Read the labels on wash-wear fabrics to see if it is safe to use a chloride bleach.

Treat grass stains on non-washable fabrics the same but try alcohol first—if it is safe for the fabric. Use 1 part alcohol to 2 parts water for stains on an acetate fabric.

If your cakes crack open, it's probably because your oven is too hot.

If you prize the bright red color of fresh meat, one way to preserve it is to brush the meat with vegetable oil before storing it in the refrigerator.

To avoid that unappealing "massed" effect when cooking macaroni, noodles, spaghetti or rice, add one tablespoon vegetable oil per quart of boiling, salted water. The oil also prevents the water from boiling over.

Conservation Plan Making Headway In Eastland County

The Great Plains Conservation Program, since its initiation to this area last spring, has made fast headway, according to reports received this week.

To date, 58 landowners have applied for contracts with the Eastland Work Unit of the Soil Conservation Service.

Twenty-one contracts were approved at Eastland in time for spring pasture planting and other seasonal practices. Twelve contracts were written and approved by the Rising Star work unit during the same period. A large number of contracts are being developed at the present time. It is anticipated that 50 to 60 contracts will be signed within the next six months.

Application of the planned conservation practices on the original 21 contracts at Eastland was almost 100 per cent as planned. Costal bermuda plantings as a part of land use adjustment was the most widespread practices. A total of 964 acres of Costal was planted on 20 farms. Practically all of this bermuda was on cropland being taken out of cultivation. One large waterway was shaped and sodded to bermuda, and two acres of critical gullies were reshaped and sodded. Four ponds for livestock water have been built thus far under the program, and about one and one-fourth miles of cross fencing has been built on four different farms, other ponds and fences are now under construction.

On native rangeland some 120 acres of oak tember was bulldozed and about 300 acres of oak shinnery chopped with a heavy duty type bushchopper. One small mesquite pasture was sprayed with a basal application of 2-4-5-T. In the above brushland, about 300 acres were seeded to weeping love grass primarily for winter pasture. About 120 acres were reseeded to native grass mixtures of little bluestem, Indian grass and side oats grama. One 20-acre field was planted to King Ranch bluestem to be grazed in conjunction with native grass pasture.

The Great Plains Program is a program of conservation cost sharing and technical assistance under long term contract in keeping with a conservation plan fitting the needs of the land and the landowners operations. It is designed primarily to accelerate needed conservation and land use adjustment in areas with severe climatic hazards.

Great plains contracts are proving a most valuable tool in the realization of many landowners desires to change from cash crops to grass and livestock. The program is pointing the way to new hope in the conservation and development of land in Eastland County.
