OFF THE RECORD

Those of you that didn't make it to the Athletic Banquet Thursday night really missed something. Donny Anderson speaking, the food and the fellowship were wonderful and so was Corky's introduction! Some of us waited pretty late, but those two ladies he mentioned never did show up.

TEN COMMANDMENTS OF HUMAN RELATIONS.

1. SPEAK TO PEOPLE. There is nothing as nice as a cheerful word of greeting.
2. SMILE AT PEOPLE. It takes 72 muscles to frown, only 14 to smile.
3. CALL PEOPLE BY NAME. The sweetest music to anyone's ears is the sound of his name.
4. BE FRIENDLY AND HELPFUL. If you would have friends, be friendly.
5. BE CORDIAL. Speak and act as if everything you do were a genuine pleasure.
6. BE GENUINELY INTERESTED IN PEOPLE. You can like everybody if you try.
7. BE GENEROUS WITH PRAISE. Cautious with criticism.
8. BE CONSIDERATE WITH THE FEELINGS OF OTHERS. It will be appreciated.
9. BE THOUGHTFUL OF THE OPINIONS OF OTHERS. There are three sides to a controversy-yours, the other fellow's, and the right one.
10. BE ALERT TO GIVE SERVICE. What counts in life is what we do for others.

Uncle Walt from Willow Wells says

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The session at the country store Saturday night was took up mostly with Congressmen and crooks. Not that they was any connection between the two, and the fellers wasn't meaning no disrespect to our Congressmen, but things don't have to have no connection to git on the agenda at the store.

First off, Ed Doolittle reported he had saw where 7 Congressmen was going to Australia to study how they build roads. Ed was shore the fact that is was terrible winter in Washington and summer in Australia didn't have nothing to do with it. And he said he knowed they didn't have nothing to do with the President's plan for Americans to travel at home and quit spending their dollars in other countries.

But what worried Ed, he said, was that if they was anything in the world we didn't need to know about was how to build roads. He thought they had ought to be holding conferences in Washington on how to save some land for the farmers and ranchers. He said we was fast coming to the time when they was more acres in them strips of land between four-lane highways than we got fer grazing and cultivating.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed, allowed as how Americans trying to learn how to build roads from engineers in Australia was like a doctor putting a mustard plaster on a wooden leg. Bug Hookum said he didn't have time to worry none about them 7 Congressmen, that what was worrying him was them 9 men we got on the U.S. Supreme Court. He was of the opinion crime has got complete turned around in this country. It used to be, said Bug, when a feller put a gun on you and took your money he was a criminal. But now, allowed Bug, he was a pore, misunderstood feller that was raised in a rundown section of town and never had a chanct to work fer a living, and it was only fair you hand over your billfold.

Even Clem Webster of the Great Society was agreed with Bug. Clem said if a crook robs a store and is arrested, it's hard to git him in court. First off, if he confesses they'll turn him loose because his Constitution rights to remain silent was violated. And if you final git him to court the victim has to spend a month away from his store waiting fer the case to come up in court. By the time the case is called the victim has done lost more at the store since it was robbed than he lost in the robbery.

The storekeeper butted in at this point, Mister Editor, and announced the fellers had forced him to take to those tranquil pills and he had got so tranquil he didn't care how many Congressmen went to Australia or if his store was robbed or not.

Yours truly, UNCLE WALT

Tsa Mo Ga In Study Of Election Candidates

Due to inclement weather the club meeting for March 11 was put off until Thursday March 14, 1968.

Mrs. A. B. Carpenter called the club to order and roll call was answered by "Do You Know Your Candidate?"

Mrs. Bob Bundell was program director.

Mrs. Polly Rushing read a paper on "Voting—a privilege or an obligation—" She said "The United States of America will be a republic only so long as its people can vote freely for the candidates they think will govern best, a citizen who is throwing away one of his most precious rights. This indifference could permit dishonest persons to gain control of a government. The Presidential elections brings out the most voters, but it has never exceeded, two-thirds of the number of eligible voters.

Such public indifference has caused some countries, such as Costa Rica and Uruguay, to compel every qualified citizen to vote. Those who do not are fined or imprisoned. Of 107,000,000 Americans old enough to vote in 1960, approximately 40,000,000 had not bothered to register. This is a shocking example of indifference in our country. Americans should wake up and count their blessings—--one of which is the right to vote.

Mrs. Norelle Sloan gave a very interesting talk on our National Nominating Conventions taken from an article written by Dwight D. Eisenhower in the July 1966 issue of Readers Digest.

Mr. Eisenhower thinks our conventions have become a thoroughly disgraceful spectacle which appall our own voters and create a shockingly bad image abroad. He is not for abolishing the conventions in favor of a national primary. Over the years they have done a reasonably good job of choosing men of ability and honor. National primaries would take too much time and energy and exclude any but rich men who could pay their way as any attempt to cover this big country would be enormously expensive.

There is no reason under heaven why these conventions must be exercises in choss and tumult-unmannerly, undignified and ridiculous. The same atmosphere of dignity should prevail that we find in Congress or in any other major deliberative body. The floor often becomes a scene of milling humanity, and the ultimate in mob scenes occur after each candidate is placed in nomination.

Until recently our nominating conventions was strictly for domestic consumption, and even in our country few people ever saw a convention. Now with TV viewers in foreign countries see the convention by satellite or floor-in tapes, Mr. Eisenhower recommends first that the permanent chairman should have better means of controlling convention procedure. Two, no one except delegates and those with official business should be permitted on the floor. Even the alternate delegates should be seated in the gallery. Number three would provide facilities off the floor for all reporters, television, press and radio. Number four would ban all walkie-talkies from the floor and number five would evict any one using any noise making device from the hall. Demonstrations should be restricted to ten minutes. Booming or hissing or other disorderly conduct from the gallery spectators would be banned. The convention should not interfere with protest demonstrations by legitimate groups, but it should have the right to expect that its business is not impeded by them. The urgent job is to reform our convention procedure so that the 1968 conventions will not find us presenting to the world an inept, insane interpretation of democratic process. Mrs. J. W. Moore gave some pro and cons in choosing our Chief Executive by popular vote. Virtually every political coloration from extreme right to extreme left agree that our outdated Electoral College system needs to be changed to give Americans a more direct voice in choosing their top leaders.

The suggested cures cover a wide range. Direct voting, proportional, congressional and direct plans have been introduced. The one-man-one-vote with its pleasant democratic ring has the indorsement of the American Bar Association as well as the Senate Majority and minority leaders. But election by popular vote could lead to more Federal controls as some rules of voting, age and resident requirements would have to be worked out on a national basis. Any of the proposals is definitely preferable to our archaic present system, which eliminates the vote of all those on the losing side within a state, even if their candidate polled 49.9 percent of the ballots; and which has three times in our history denied the white house to the candidate with the most popular votes.

Mrs. Ty Field discussed the pros and cons of lowering the voting age. War time always bring the percent in favor of letting eighteen year olds vote up, and in a recent poll showed sixty percent of adults in favor today. Four of our states have already enfranchised the vote to eighteen-nineteen and twenty year olds. Although most adults favor lowering the voting age on a national basis, the youngsters themselves express little concern. This group of youngsters represent the highest average in education of any group in our nation, either having finished high school or still a college student. Those opposed to lowering the age fear immaturity and lack of experience could cause this group to be swayed, perhaps, in the wrong direction easily. But on the other hand some think that if an eighteen - twenty year old can head a household or business or go to war he is mature enough to help select the people that

Mrs. J. W. Moore and Mrs. Raymond Bookout were hostess for the social hour. Fifteen members and two visitors were present. We were happy to have Miss Linda Robertson and Mrs. Charles Rayle with us.

Debbie Chadwick Named One Of Best Cooks In America

BY TENY LESTER

Debbie Chadwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chadwick, received word recently that her Blue Ribbon Rolled Cookies will be featured in the New Blue Ribbon Fair Cookbook.

Debbie's recipe will appear with over 2,000 Blue Ribbon recipes from fairs over the nation. Her recipe was a Blue Ribbon winner at the 1967 Panhandle South Plains Fair in Lubbock.

Debbie states that she learned to cook through 4-H work. She has won two Blue Ribbons on this particular recipe. She has a vivid collection of other ribbons in cooking and sewing achievements also.

Music is the main interest of this lovely blond high school freshman. She is the Drum Major of the Plains Cowboy Band, and a member of the Methodist Choir and Youth Choir.

She also plays the flute in band and enjoys playing the piano and organ. She hopes to major in music during future college years.

4-H activities keep her busy also. She played the piano at the Junior Leadership 4-H camp in Levelland last summer.

Sign-Up For Cotton

WATER ALLOWANCE

Operators of all Yoakum County cotton farms signed intentions to participate in the 1968 Cotton Program. The average reduction to be diverted from cotton was 17.22%. Based on these figures, farmers will plant approximately 3400 acres and the government payments are estimated to be close to 2 million dollars.

At the close of business on the final sign-up date, operators of 342 Yoakum County farms had signed to participate in the Fed Grain Program. The average reduction figured 45%. The Fed Grain payments are estimated at approximately 1/2 million dollars.

To participate in either the cotton or feed grain programs farmers must divert and put to approved uses, acres they have signed to divert. Farmers may be giving up 1/2 of their diverted acre payment, plant casters beans on their feed grain diverted land which they divert in excess of 20% of their feed grain base and all of the cotton diverted land, diverted at the 6¢ per pound.

Yoakum County land owners may now obtain a cost-in-water income depletion allowance on the underground water used in the process of irrigation farming, according to Bob Lee a local resident who is the President of the Board of Directors of the South Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

This depletion allowance has been legal since 1962, but the I. R. S. has not allowed the land owners in Yoakum County to take this allowance due to the fact that the must prove 3 points if he is to be allowed this claim. (1) He must have sufficient evidence to prove the percentage or dollar increase he had to pay for his land above dry land values due to the presence of ground water. (2) The volume of water in feet of saturated thickness at the date of purchase; and (3) The feet of decline under his farm at or for the year the claim is made.

Mr. Lee explained that the Water District has worked up all the data necessary to support the tax payers claim and have had this data approved by the I. R. S.

Tax payers can by filling an amended return receive tax benefits for the years 1964-1967. The tax benefits for the year 1964, will be lost after April 15, 1968, provided the tax payer makes no effort to establish his basis for this claim.

Tax payers can obtain the necessary forms for obtaining the water depletion data by writing the South Plains Underground Water Conservation District #4 at P. O. Box 232 in Brownfield, Texas, or from his accountant. Forms are also available at the Bank in Plains, Texas.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Most agree, these days, that the ideal mountain rifle should weigh no more than about eight pounds complete; it should have a 4X (or variable) scope, and the barrel should not exceed 22 inches in length. The calibre should be a "flat-shooting" one—for the reason that if you misjudge range (easy to do) by as much as 50 yards or so, you'll still (all other things being equal) hit very close to where you aim.—Sports Afield.

For economical shooting sport on a summer trip, try jack-rabbits. When you have planned your trip, check with the game department of each state in jack territory. You will find some (Montana, for instance) where no license is required for pest shooting. Others have a special nonresident varmint license. Arizona's is $5. A good trick, too, is to plan a summer trip to territory where you intend to hunt big game in the fall.—Sports Afield.

Fishing the jig-head worm is not difficult: it consists in merely dragging it ever so slowly across the bottom. The important thing is that you hold the rod properly—at an angle to the water of somewhere between 80 and 90 degrees. The butt of the rod should be held close to your body. As the worm is reeled in with the rod in this position, try always to be aware of "feel." Try to understand what the jig-head is doing and where it is going.—Sports Afield.

The first Negro college graduate in the U.S. was John Brown Russwurm, one of 32 men who completed the four-year course at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., in 1826.

Danger is all around the house for baby. Adults have learned by experience where dangers are. A child uses his five senses—sight, hearing, smell, feel and taste—to get into trouble. So a parent must be his sixth sense—a sense of danger, says Extension family specialist at Texas A & M University. Watch out for plastic toys that break with sharp edges, marbles, knives, refrigerators, breakable glasses, water, scissors, sewing items and cigarettes.

TEACH CHILD TO HANDLE EMERGENCY

A young child must be taught to think for himself, not just to react by habit if he is able to cope with the unexpected. Although demands upon the preschool youngster must be kept within reason, child care authorities, including the Child Study Association of America agree that the average four-year-old is capable of comprehending much more than his parents usually believe he can.

In teaching a child to handle emergencies, do not frighten him. Take a matter-of-fact attitude in explaining emergency situations, even though you may be anxious about them yourself. For instance, in explaining these situations, do not offer sordid details or create a horror story.

Every young child should know what to do in these specific situations:

If lost in town: he should be able to repeat his name, address and telephone number to an adult. A small child should also carry some form of identification such as a bracelet or tag on his clothing with his name and address on it. Train him not to panic, but to try to seek a policeman for help.

If lost in the country: he should remain in the open where he can be found more easily. If an older child is lost while hiking in the woods, teach him to pick one direction and walk until he comes to a road or path. He should be able to keep track of his direction by knowing that the sun rises in the east and sets in the west.

If bitten by an animal: train your child never to pet a strange animal. But, if bitten and no adult is immediately available, teach him to wash the wound thoroughly under running water and dry it, preferably with a clean gauze. He should report the injury to an adult as soon as possible and try to identify the animal.

If fire breaks out at home: a child should know two escape routes from his bedroom. He should also know how to call the fire department and how to report the exact location of the house. The National Fire Protection Association says children as young as four have been successfully taught some simple responses in case a fire breaks out during the night.

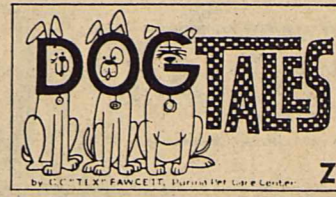

These include not to open bedroom doors, but to stay near an open window waiting rescue and, on a predetermined signal from a parent, to crawl out a window. Repeated rehearsals are important because a child's impulse is to run to his parents in a fire emergency, an act that could trap him in the flames.

If clothes catch on fire: train the child to drop immediately to the ground and smother the flames by rolling about. If a rug or coat is handy, he should wrap these about his body.

If approached by strangers: many hundreds of boys and girls are victimized each year because they are not taught to beware of strangers who approach them in public places. Teach children not to become friendly with strangers and never under any circumstance to accompany a stranger to a lonely place. Children should not accept automobiles, rides, candy, money or other favors from a stranger.

Just For Fun

The hours of joy and happiness that a dog can bring to all members of the family are many. But there is a way to add to the fun you can have with your pet. Why not teach him a few simple tricks.

The authorities at the Purina Pet Care Center in St. Louis have listed several tricks which you can teach Rover. The first is called "Carry." Roll up a newspaper, tie it, and with the dog in sitting position, say "carry." Then place your left hand over the dog's muzzle, squeeze your fingers against his lips and between his teeth so that you force his mouth open, and place the newspaper inside. When your dog will hold it until you say

"give," put the leash on him. While he is holding the dummy, repeat the command, and draw him gently forward. You may have to replace the dummy in his mouth a few times until he gets the idea.

Still another trick is called "Jump Over." First place a low hurdle on the ground, and put your dog on the leash. Walk or run to the hurdle, jump it yourself, giving a jerk up on the leash as you command "Over!" Praise him if he jumps. This way he will get the idea quickly. Then make the hurdle higher, and lead him to it. You walk around while he jumps over. After a time your pet will jump on command and without the leash. It's easily possible to teach your dog to jump objects one and a half times his height.

With these few simple tricks and others you and your dog can enjoy many exciting hours together.

Women IN THE KNOW

By Jean Kinkead, Women's Consultant, The Travelers Insurance Companies

National Safe Boating Week

Half a century ago, the Water Rat in Kenneth Grahame's little classic "The Wind in the Willows" first expounded his wisdom about boating. "There is nothing," he said, "absolutely nothing half so much worth doing as simply messing about in boats." About 40,000,000 Americans will testify to that as they hit the waterways this year!

To the credit of the vast number of boat-lovers, boating remains one of the safest forms of recreation. To encourage this each year the week with July 4th is designated National Safe Boating Week. That's an opportunity time for sea-going women in the know to contribute to family safety afloat. Here's how:

1. Check all safety equipment to be sure life jackets and buoy rings are still effective, lights adequate and working, fire extinguishers full, horn and radio okay. Charts should be up to date.
2. Have the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary come aboard and inspect your boat.
3. Get a family member to take a course in Basic Seamanship offered free by the USCG Auxiliary, U.S. Power Squadron, Red Cross, Outboard Boating Club or Boy Scouts.
4. Review the "rules of the road" and emergency procedures with all hands.
5. Be sure your boat insurance covers expensive new equipment or possible hazards connected with sailing different waters. When your Traveler's agent cares for your boat insurance, he'll simply add these to your business and personal insurance premiums. The new Umbrella Plan covers all your insurance needs with one manageable monthly payment.

Ima
Blabmore

Dear Ima Blabmore:

We are a retired couple who seem to have but one common interest. This is watching our favorite TV shows. My husband likes westerns and sports, and I suppose I have always been a little stage struck, and like the heavies and the light comedy. The battle of the dial continues, and we are at odds ins over what to watch. Now we have come to a declaration of war over our only common interest. I have told my friend husband that D Day approaches if he changes the dial to a cowboy flicker on the late show, or tunes in for more winter olympics.

Embattled Viewer
Dear Embattled Viewer:
I suggest both of you try Johnnie Carson on the Tonight Show or get a second hand portable for the spare room. Remember dearie, Hitler lost the war as a result of D Day, and it could happen to you.

Dear Ima Blabmore:

One of the real enjoyments I get from my time spent in the daily grind is my stops at the local parlor for a game of dominoes with the boys. Now understand Ima, we don't gamble...we just play dominoes. My wife says to cease or decrease. What should I do? She also calls the recreation hall a house of sin and suggests that I take up a new hobby. In the Bone Yard

Dear Bone:

If your wife puts it that way, my advice would be to cease, or at least cut your trips for games with the boys to a semi-weekly match. Perhaps if you do, she will say it is a step in the right direction.

Dear Ima Blabmore:

Your advice to Disturbed Grandma last week was wise, but I can certainly sympathize with her. My husband, we shall call him Arnold, is a dead ringer for her husband. The only difference is the fact that he prefers to try to impress the teenage set by telling of his great athletic ability way back when...I haven't the courage to tell the grandchildren and their friends that Arnold sat out the clock on the bench during his day as substitute to the water boy. The way he lays it on, one would think he was an All American. It gets embarrassing to listen to those tales he tells the kids. Should I tell the children the truth or let him blow more hot air.

Sealed Lips

Dear Sealed Lips:

They always told me that there is no fool like an old fool unless perhaps it is a young fool. Let him go. If the children are foolish enough to bite the bait then ignorance won't hurt. If they are being polite for him there is a chance he won't find out. After all, he could be trying to impress chickens in other lots instead of the children. Thanks for your interest in my column last week.

Dear Ima Blabmore:

Our maiden Aunt who is elderly has come to live with my husband and myself; my husband resent this and complains that she is out of order when she demands ten percent of each of his pay checks for herself. I have explained that she helped out our family when we lost our mother when we were children, and that she deserves this token from me. My husband has said, its either my maiden Aunt or him, and D-Day is this weekend. Please, Miss Blabmore, what can I do?

End of My Line

Dear End of Line:

Run, do not walk, to the nearest public conveyance and see to it that the Maiden Aunt is on it; her demands are totally unreasonable, and remember,
