with Teny Lester

Is it possible to wave the flag too much? Provided, of course, that you wave it with integrity? Is it possible to study Lincoln or Shakespeare too much? Is it possible to read the Bible too much?

The great, the good, the true, are inexhaustible for inspiration, example and strength. I believe that we are not waving our flag enough, not nearly enough.

It seems to me that we are developing a tendency to be timid or even apologetic about waving the stars and stripes. Walk up and down the streets on July 4th and count the flags. It is our nation's birthday, a sacred day in world history, the most important day of America. Why isn't the flag flying on every rooftop and from every home and building? This complacent attitude is strong evidence of cancerous patriotic decay. The flag is a symbol of our national unity. It is the spirit of our undying devotion to our country. It stands for the best that in us...for loyalty, character, and faith in democracy.

Isn't our flag a synonym of the United States of America? Does it not represent man's greatest, noblest, most sublime dream? Is it not the zenith of achievement, the goal to which generations have aspired?

Ladies and gentlemen, I believe it is time for us...for the mad, rushing Twentieth Century American...to stop for a moment and think. Let us arrest our near reverential admiration of material success and return to the spiritual and ethical values. Let us imbue and rekindle in ourselves and our children the so-called old-fashioned way of patriotism, a burning devotion to the principles and ideals upon which our country was founded.

Should not every home own and proudly display the colors on holidays and other such occasions? Isn't the flag Patrick Henry, Jefferson, Franklin, Washington, Nathan Hale, Gettysburg and Valley Forge, Paul Revere, Jackson and other great men and women who have given us our heritage. When you look at the flag can't you see the Alamo, Corrigedor, Pearl Harbor, The Monitor, The Merrimac, Wake Island, and Korea? Lest we forget, isn't the flag Flanders Field, Bataan, Iwo Jima, Normandy, Babe Ruth and Davy Crockett? The great events of our past and present are wrapped up in our flag.

It is a symbol of this blessed nation, a giant in industry, education and commerce. Millions of fertile square miles, wheatlands, coal mines, steel plants. Our great republic, the chosen infant destined to be man's 1st and remaining hope for suffering humanity, a shining beacon of light, noble and glorious, the haven for the oppressed and persecuted and truly God's gift to mankind.

That is what the flag means to me. Can we wave it too much? I don't think so. The above sentiments reflect my own and hope it does yours. Tomorrow will mark Flag Day in our nation. If Madge and I can manage to get the flag down from the rafters, we will display it at the Record with pride.

At no time in our history is the above article by Dr. S. L. DeLove more appropriate than now when civil disobedience abounds and a noisy minority holds the spotlight, scoffing at everything this country holds dear. Ever since 1956 when he voiced this sentiment Dr. DeLove has devoted much of his life and funds to alert America to threats from within. Through Independence Hall of Chicago this reply has been distributed in volume in the hope that it would stem the slow erosion of our national heritage, which is now deteriorating faster.

In discussion the other day, Joe Curry and I figured out what is wrong in the world today but haven't figured out yet just what to do about it. We were in agreement that the majority of lawlessness, disobedience and moral losses are caused from the widespread of communism in our nation. Some people scoff and say it is not a great concern, but one thing for sure, it's not only bothering Joe and I, it has John Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, quite concerned too. In testimony before the House Subcommittee on Appropriations on Feb. 23, Mr. Hoover gave quite a complete story of communist activity and its widespread to the colleges and schools of the nation. It is an alarming story because of the apathy of the people on the whole.

For a brighter side of life go by and ask Wilda Hancock and Ruby Heald about the gas mileage on a Volkswagen. Especially on the road between San Angelo and Eden.

Solon Hits Hard Rep. Mahon Stresses Enforcement of the Law

Last week Congress took final action on an anti-crime bill and sent it to the President for his approval. I supported it and it should help some but what this country more urgently needs is not more laws but more enforcement of the laws which we already have.

A general trend toward appeasing law violators, tolerating looting and violence in the streets, and denying law abiding citizens the protection of the law has brought this country to the brink of chaos, especially in the big cities.

With some exceptions, big city mayors have demanded more and more handouts from Washington and have failed to lower the boom on law violators.

The Supreme Court by handing down decisions which over protect the criminal and under protect the public has vastly complicated the problems of law enforcement officers. Law enforcement officers are not receiving adequate support.

This all adds up to an intolerable situation and the patience of the American people is reaching the breaking point. There is a sense of insecurity everywhere.

I am encouraged over the rising tide of concern and resentment which the people are displaying. They are rightly demanding an end to the appeasement of the lawless. This is the first step toward effective action.

Well in excess of 90% of the crimes which are committed are against state and local laws and the principal task of law enforcement is a local problem but there must be firm support for law enforcement from all levels, federal, state and local. The homes and churches have a major responsibility.

Without the preservation of law and order there is no long range hope for this country. We have the tools at hand. We must provide the leadership and law enforcement to move in the direction in which we must move if we are to preserve this country.

Editorial

When a person weds, makes a noteworthy contribution in the community, or performs an unusual act it is nice to see his name in the paper.

When clubs meet it is nice to have clippings for the yearbook, and to let the public know that the home town has organizations as good as their neighbors.

When a loved one dies or a new baby is born, it is only proper that an item appear in the paper. Family members usually clip these articles and put them in the album of memories.

School events are important to any community, and most people like to read about school news to really learn what their children participate in, and how many times have we referred to an old paper with the graduating class pictured in it?

Your hometown paper informs, entertains, and tries to offer educational articles for your benefit.

Churches like for the community to know when they meet and to inform the community of meetings and special events.

It would be nice if your hometown paper could do these things and more without the thought of expenses. Unfortunately this can not be done. The only way any newspaper can continue to publish is if the hometown merchants use its pages to advertise. Plains is not advertising conscious. What the merchants who do not utilize the pages of the local paper do not know is the fact that they are losing money because they do not advertise, and that they are endangering their community in the possibility of watching their hometown newspaper close its doors.

Someone once wrote that a community is just as good as its schools, its churches and its newspaper. Many of us believe that it would be sad indeed to see the county seat lose its paper. This is exactly what will happen if the pages of The Plains Record are not used as an advertising media by merchants, Co-ops, the City of Plains which is in the utility business, and those who care about their community. It is indeed up to the citizens in this community to determine if they want a paper. Time will tell...a very short time.

Sudie Thompson CHDA Says...

Milk has played a prominent role in the diets of people since primitive man. Why? At first, milk was important probably because it was a filling and available food. Then too, many societies attached mystical and magical powers to milk.

Today milk still plays a prominent role but for a different reason. Sound nutrition research has established milk as a valuable food. Research has revealed a unique contribution of milk... a mineral called calcium. Milk is the richest source of calcium of foods commonly eaten in the United States.

The human body cannot survive without calcium. Calcium is vital for growing bones and teeth. Even after bones and teeth stop growing, calcium is needed to maintain bones. Calcium is essential for nerve function, muscle reaction, for the clotting of blood and for regulating the use of other minerals in the body.

One wonderful feature of milk is that not only does the consumer receive calcium but he also gets quite an array of other important nutrients.

In addition to calcium, milk provides outstanding amounts of high quality protein and riboflavin (vitamin B-2).

The appearance of filled and imitation milks on the market in some states has raised questions about the nutritive value of such products. According to present information the fat used in many products is based on hydrogenated coconut oil, a fat notably high in saturated fatty acids, especially lauric acid, and low in essential fatty acids. The use of this fat for infants and children in question, and it is considered unsuitable for persons on fat-modified diets. In some filled milks, isolated proteins are used in addition to unspecified amounts of nonfat milk. Products identified as imitation milk are in no sense a nutritional replacement for milk in protein, minerals and vitamins. Milk contains important amounts of nutrients for which Recommended Dietary Allowances have been established. Increasing knowledge of the interrelationship between nutrients has served to confirm the importance of a balanced diet of a variety of foods including whole milk.
