WATER LAW SUIT IS WITHDRAWN

City Councilman, A. F. Roberts, informs us that the suit against the city of Winters for alleged contamination of the waters of Bluff Creek, from which source Ballinger gets water, has been withdrawn.

This is, of course, as it should be. Since it has been apparent all along that Winters would do the right thing, without a suit in court to force us to it, the suit was deemed unnecessary and we are glad that it has been withdrawn.

The friendly relations heretofore existing between the two towns were in no way "ruffled" and we will go on the even tenor of our way, feeling as neighbors should feel toward each other.

OLD FIDDLER'S CONTEST WEDNESDAY AT HOLLYWOOD

The Old Fiddler's Contest will be held at the Hollywood Theatre next Wednesday night. The manager states that a large number of entries have been made, and a musical time is in store at this playhouse on this night.

All those who have signed to play are requested to be sure and be present on this date.

In connection with the contest, Shirley Mason in "Curly Top" will be screened.

THE KNOCKER

After God had created the buzzard, the snake, the scorpion, the cootie, and all other repulsive, noisome creatures which are put on earth or in its waters to make decent mortals thankful that they are not such as they, He still had a little substance left which was to unspeakably vile that could not be incorporated into anything else which He had yet made. But He had to do something with it, so He made the knocker.

A knocker is a two-legged animal with a cork screw soul, a water-soaked brain, and a combination backbone of jelly and glue. Where other men have their hearts he carries a tumor of decayed principles. When the knocker comes down the street honest men turn their backs, the angels weep in Heaven, and the devil shuts tight the doors of hell to keep him out.

Therefore, don't be a knocker. You can't saw wood with a hammer.

Mrs. Tom Hill has been very ill the past few days but is reported as improving at present.

Miss Nola Faye Woodrow, who is a student at San Angelo Business College, was at home for the holidays.

FERTILIZED COTTON YIELDS DOUBLE

That fertilizing cotton pays handsome dividends was clearly proved by a demonstration put on in Eastland county this season. Farms located in different parts of the county were selected for the test, and cotton was planted unfertilized as well as fertilized. The same cultivation was given each patch of cotton and they were grown under the same conditions. It was found that the yield was practically doubled in every case where fertilizer was used.

The best results were obtained by putting the fertilizer about an inch below the seed at the time of planting. Approximately 125 pounds of fertilizer per acre were used. The average cost of the fertilizer per acre was $2.35. The increased cotton production was in most cases 10 times the value of the fertilizer.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

NEW BARBER SHOP OPENS IN WINTERS

G. H. Cook of Stephenville, attracted to Winters by its progressiveness has opened a new four chair barber shop.

Mr. Cook is offering $2.50 worth of work to the person submitting the most appropriate name for his shop. Read about it in another part of the Enterprise.

THE ECLIPSE OF JANUARY 24

If clear weather prevails on January 24, the people of the Eastern portion of the United States will witness the finest heavenly phenomenon of a generation—a total eclipse of the sun.

While the path of the totality will be confined to a strip of territory, running roughly from New Haven to Duluth, the eclipse will be partial over most of the eastern half of the country.

Elaborate preparations are being made by scientific men for taking photographs of the eclipse, which will be caused, of course, by the moon's passage between the earth and the sun.

At the western limit of visibility the sun will rise in eclipse, while farther east the eclipse will occur shortly after sunrise.

When one reflects upon it, the fact that astronomers can predict eclipses with such unerring accuracy is wonderful, but like many other wonders accomplished by minds of men, it no longer excites any particular interest.

Nothing is more certain than the movements of the heavenly bodies. As surely as the sun rises on January 24, so surely will the moon appear directly between the earth and the sun, causing the temporary

FREEDOM OF THOUGHT

Most of us pride ourselves on the fact that we do our own thinking. But do we? In the more important relations of life we certainly do not.

The two most vital matters affecting the average citizen's beliefs are his religion and his politics. Does he do his own thinking about these? Hardly.

If we take the Republicans of today we find that at least nine out of ten had Republican fathers. The same is true of Democrats. If we look into the family histories of the Methodists today, for instance, we eclipse of our solar system's great luminary. There is no guess work in the calculations of our astronomers.

find that 99 out of 100 had Methodist fathers and mothers. The same holds good with respect to other denominations. In the case of Catholics, practically 100 per cent will be found to have had parents of that faith. The same is true of the Jews.

Then, do we really think for ourselves? In minor matters, perhaps, but in the most vital things in life we follow blindly the beliefs and connections of our families.

The lesson to be drawn from these facts is simply that we should be more tolerant of the beliefs and opinions of others. Had we been born under the same circumstances as they, we should have had their views, as a rule. Few people are independent enough in thought to break away from the influence of heredity and environment.

MY RESOLVE

"I will sing my song, there may be one to hear it.
Someone may listen and be helped along.
I will try to help, there may be someone who needs it.
Someone who falters, with strength almost gone.
I will be kind, for there is need of kindness.
I will be cheerful, for there are many sad.
I will help lift the burden of my brother
And make the weary hearts of others glad.

I will put by the things that vex and try me,
I will forget the dark clouds that I tread.
I will keep on, whatever doubts assail me,
Until I see Hope's bright star overhead.
I will believe that all things work together
Somehow, or good, though I see not the way.
Somehow at last the wrongs shall all be righted,
Lie's close shall usher in Heaven's day."

AWARDED PRIZE FOR BEST COTTON YIELD

Presentation of the first annual award to the premier cotton grower of Texas as determined by the outcome of the "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" contest conducted by the Semi-Weekly Farm News were made at a banquet at the Adolphus Hotel Monday night. The award of $1,000 was presented to John W. McFarlane, Anderson County farmer, by G. B. Dealey, president and general manager of A. H. Belo and Co., publishers, who presided as toastmaster for the occasion.

The banquet, at which Mr. McFarlane was honor guest, was attended by fifty-four guests, including Mayor Louis Blaylock of Dallas, leading Dallas bankers and business men specially connected with and interested in the cotton industry representatives of the Agricultural & Mechanical College of Texas which assisted in the cotton contest movement and the heads of corporations from various parts of Texas. Among the guests were several Anderson County men who attended Mr. McFarlane to Dallas for the occasion.

$1,000 Check Presented

In presenting the check for $1,000 to Mr. McFarlane, Mr. Dealey said: "It affords the publishers of the Dallas Morning News and the Semi-Weekly Farm News great pleasure to hand you their check for $1,000 in payment of the prize you have won in the 'More Cotton on Fewer Acres Contest.' We feel that you have done a fine thing, not only for yourself and for your county, but as well for the entire State of Texas, in demonstrating as you have the possibility to produce a large yield of cotton even under adverse conditions. In a way you deserve to be ranked as a public benefactor with the man who made two blades of grass grow where only one grew before.

"It was not in our power to determine where the prize should go, but it is pleasing to us that it has come to Anderson county, which heads the roll call of Texas counties, and which is one of the oldest counties in the state in point of settlement, and is further renowned as the home of the great commoner, John H. Reagan.

"We entertain the hope that the program in behalf of agriculture begun this year will result in great good to the farmers of Texas in particular, and to the people of the State generally.

"It seems peculiarly appropriate at this season of the year to wish you many happy returns, both in a material sense and in a spiritual way."

The list of speakers included bankers, business men, farmers, specialists in agricultural work, representatives of publications and farmers' organizations. All were enthusiastic in their approval of the cotton contest movement and in their complimentary remarks for the winner of the award. The services of The Dallas News and the Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm News in stimulating a reawakened interest in agricultural possibilities was referred to repeatedly. The example that Mr. McFarlane, the winner, has set to other farmers of the state in producing slightly more than two bales an acre on a five-acre demonstration plot, was very high praise. The work of Victor H. Schoffelmayer, cotton contest editor of the Dallas the winner, was notified and came by automobile from Palestine, accompanied by a group of friends, for the banquet. With this introduction, Mr. Dealey, addressing Mr. McFarlane, tendered him the prize check.

Mr. McFarlane Responds

Mr. McFarlane response was very brief. "I just want to thank The Dallas News for the check given me here tonight," he said. "That is about all I have to say. I might add, however, that there are several farms in Anderson county like mine that could produce just as much cotton as mine if cultivated properly." Mr. McFarlane was urged to extend his remarks, to tell something of himself and of how he produced such a high yield of cotton on five acres, but he declined with a smile to say more. "It would take too long to explain how I grew the cotton," he said.

"Most folks who can make speeches are just speechmakers," said Mr. Dealey following the prize winner's brief remarks. "This man's few words show that he isn't a wind-jammer, but a great farmer, not disposed to talk much. But he says there are many good farms in Anderson county like his and that they are going to make a record in production."

How East Texas Feels

"How East Texas Feels About It" was the subject of Judge G. W. Fitzgerald of the Citizens National Bank Tyler, the next speaker. Referring to Smith county and that part of East Texas, Judge Fitzgerald said: "We used to be noted for our politics and our statesmen. We have furnished Texas governors and other statesmen. Now we are turning our hand to show what we can do in the way of agriculture. The work that The Dallas News is doing in this movement is a great one. It is broadcasting to the rest of the country what can be done with proper farming, broadcasting the result of that movement that was started over there in Smith county two years ago. I recall my observations on a visit to Marlboro county, South Carolina, where I saw what is being done on and that was thought to be worn out and almost nonproductive sixty years ago. I saw fifty bushels of corn and a bale of cotton to the acre grown on land that was worn out sixty years ago. East Texas is better suited in every way for growing crops than that land, and if they can do that in Marlboro County we can do much better in East Texas. East Texas can beat North, South and West Texas in agricultural yield. We've been asleep over here, but we are waking up. And I'll be surprised if next week Palestine doesn't hold a big celebration commemorating this victory of Mr. McFarlane. If she does we will all be there."

Cotton and the Banker

Nathan Adams, president of the American Exchange National Bank of Dallas, spoke on "Cotton and the Banker." "Anderson county is certainly due to be congratulated on the record of Mr. McFarlane and The Dallas News on its interest and efforts in this movement for intensive farming," said Mr. Adams. "The cotton crop of the South and of Texas is the greatest asset of this country. Formerly the cotton crop was looked on as the south's crop. Now it is America's crop. There is no business that isn't affected by and doesn't benefit from it.

"Texas this year will receive from its cotton crop more than $600,000,000. Cotton is America's greatest asset, a commodity that is used all over the globe. But not until the people have the same courage in the fall when they harvest their cotton as they have in the spring when they plant it, will they begin to receive the proper reward from it. We should have the courage to stand behind the commodity we have when the time comes to dispose of it. The bankers of Texas are beginning to realize what diversification means. I think that within a few years we will be our own guardians in this matter."

Homer D. Wade Speaks

Homer D. Wade, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce spoke on "The Westward Trend of Cotton." Earlier in the program, Mr. Dealey read a letter from Porter Whaley, manager of the West Texas Chamber, expressing his regrets that he was unable to attend the banquet and designating Mr. Wade as the representative of that organization for the occasion. In presenting Mr. Wade, Mr. Dealey recalled that several years ago he visited Abilene in West Texas and at that time no one there thought it possible to grow a pound of cotton in that part of the state.

"Since East Texas has carried off the prize in this contest, I guess I will have to put on the soft pedal as concerns West Texas, about which I talk so much," Mr. Wade said with a smile in the beginning. "I want to say that I bring greetings to Mr. McFarlane over his victory, but I want to add that West Texas is only a short way behind. I might say further that East Texas counties exhibiting at the state fair might profit by the example that Mr. McFarlane has shown.

"At this point let me digress a moment to speak of monuments and tombstones. The man who can make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before or the man who can make two bales of cotton grow where only one grew before, is building up a real monument. The man who remains in the same old

NOTHING STRANGE ABOUT IT

It is strange that war upon the Catholic church appears to be most savage in countries that until lately were most completely Catholic. In Mexico, land of many churches, there is openly shown much anti-Catholic feeling.

And in the Argentine Republic, a great power of South America, the Attorney General threatens to imprison the Roman Catholic bishop, Monsignor Juan Bonco, because he refuses to submit for government approval his credentials from Pope Pius.—Arthur Brisbane in Fort Worth Record.

Whenever a country has been under the dominion of the Catholic church that country has had centuries of struggles to establish a republican form of government. This is not an attack on religion, but it is an attack on certain dogmas that seriously affects the politics of any country.

Hierarchs and free governments are incompatible. The founders of our own government realized this with all its force when they separated church and state and guaranteed the rights of freedom of conscious.

But even the word conscience has limitations within which it must operate or else it must be restrained.

We cannot recognize the right to commit murder for even conscience sake although murders are occasionally committed through fanaticism. The British government has forbidden suttee in India, that custom through which religion compels the wife to the funeral pile upon the death of her husband, although this is a direct interference with conscience. John Wilkes Booth suffered the death penalty for the murder of Lincoln, notwithstanding he was moved by conscience in the belief that he was destroying a tyrant.

The fundamental dogma of the Catholic church is the infallibility of the hierarchy and its claim to the claim of political jurisdiction over territorial jurisdiction means political jurisdiction as understood by the Pope and his ecumenical council. Here is where the conscience of the devout Catholic is bound against the doctrine of separation of church and state, a fundamental principle of republican institutions. The Catholic church has never abandoned that claim of political jurisdiction over Rome and Italy, and from the days of Garibaldi until now, say a half century or more, the Pope has been a recluse as a protest against depriving him of that jurisdiction.

Backing up this claim is the dogma that all persons who die out of

ARE ANY OF THESE YOURS?

More than twenty million pieces of mail failed to reach their proper destination last year, because of being improperly addressed, according to the Postmaster General's annual report.

When one is familiar with the great skill developed by postal clerks in making out illegible and incorrect addresses, this showing is all the more significant. It illustrates that illiteracy and carelessness combined interfere seriously with the operation of the mail service, to the detriment of the government, as well as bringing disappointment and perhaps much financial loss to the public.

Letters bearing a return address are, of course, returned to the writers, but unfortunately those who write most of the illegible and incorrect addresses do not use printed envelopes and seldom take the trouble to place their own addresses on the envelope.

Carelessness on the part of the public places the mail service under a great handicap and the number of dead letters is steadily increasing from year to year because of it. How careful are you in addressing your letters?

The church are consigned to eternal damnation. No devout Catholic wants to go to hell. Excommunication from the church sends him there, regardless of his faith otherwise. His allegiance to the church therefore is necessarily superior to the loyalty he owes to any political government. The Pope is the church when he speaks ex cathedra.

It is no answer to these dogmas to say that Catholics are in the main, good citizens of a republic. If the church takes issue with the government the Catholic layman must side with the church or risk suffering the extreme penalty of excommunication.

There is nothing strange about the right between republicanism and the Roman church. That church could put itself in accord with the principles of political democracy by abandoning the claim to infallibility and the claim to territorial political jurisdiction, but it has not done it, and it will never do it, or it would undermine the whole structure.

Some who stand for progress are content to remain standing.

PRINCELY GIFTS OF 1924

While the amounts given to educational, scientific and charitable purposes during the year 1924 have not equalled those of some former years, the sum set aside for these purposes by American millionaires reached the total of approximately $130,000,000.

A striking feature of the year's giving was the donation of $1,500,000 by an unknown donor to the Union Theological Seminary.

During the past ten years the beneficence of two men of wealth stand above all others. John D. Rockefeller has donated the fabulous sum of $575,000,000 to educational, religious, scientific and charitable institutions. Andrew Carnegie gave $350,000,000 for similar purposes, his hobby being public libraries. In these ten years gifts totalling a billion and a half have been made by American men and women.

So, while modern business practices make possible the accumulation of vast fortunes, they also make possible magnificent philanthropic enterprises, which promote the advancement of knowledge and the progress of the world.

More and more are men of great wealth coming to the view that only by using it for the benefit of humanity can they leave behind them anything worthy of remembrance.

Two outstanding philanthropists of 1924 are James B. Duke, who donated $10,000,000 and George Eastman a kodak fame, who gave $15,000,000 for laudable enterprises during the year. Mr. Eastman has so far given no less than $58,000,000 from his fortune made from his epochal photographic inventions.

The safety of America is largely bound up in the fact that most of our great captains of industry have human hearts and unbounded vision.

ABSOLUTELY LOST

A small boy was whimpering on the street corner when he was addressed by a policeman:

"What is your name?"
"I don't know."
"What? Don't you know your own name?"
"No," sobbed the youngster, "Mother got married again this morning."

Miss Julia Garrett was home for the holidays from her school duties at Hale Center.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hood were here from Abilene to spend the Christmas holidays with relatives.

Misses Marcia Livingston from Shafter and Maurine Guy from Daniel Baker College, Brownwood, were week end guests of Miss Pauline Dunn.

rut year after year is setting up a tombstone. By the victory of Mr. McFarlane, it has been shown what can be done in the way of building monuments in East Texas. Productivity in East Texas depends on the care of the land, on terracing and fertilization, on diversification and crop rotation, since the farm land there is land that has been under the plow for years. This sort of care will come in West Texas later on if the soil there should not be cared for. And let me say in this connection, that the man who doesn't consider soil preservation is an embezzler. Maybe not one whom the law can reach, but he is one just the same. The soil should not be robbed of its productivity without building up that productivity again. With fresh soil such as exists in West Texas today, great things are in store in an agricultural way in that country.

"One of the greatest things that can be handed down to the children of today is a spirit of thrift and home-building. And no agency is doing more in promulgating such a spirit than The Dallas News. I want to voice congratulations and say that the organization I represent pledges its support to the building up and spreading of that spirit."

Presenting T. O. Walton, director of extension service, A. & M. College of Texas, Mr. Dealey, referring to the A. & M. College said: "An institution now fifty years old, the A. & M. College has done and is doing a great work. Nothing more need be said."

T. O. Walton Speaks
"I want to extend to the Dallas News the heartiest congratulations on its far-sightedness in the promotion of the cotton contest movement," Mr. Walton said. "It has done a great thing for the farmers of Texas and the Southland. It has demonstrated that our soils will produce more abundantly when properly attended to and cultivated in the right way. And I want to congratulate the News on its agricultural editor, Victor H. Schoffelmayer, who has labored so diligently and intelligently in the interests of better farming, who has thrown his great talent behind the work. And I want to congratulate Mr. McFarlane, the winner of the cotton contest prize, for his far-sightedness and his work that have brought distinction not only to himself but to his county as well. It has all been a service to the whole South. If every farmer in Texas and in the South were doing his job as well as Mr. McFarlane, where we have relative poverty now, we would have abundance."

"If we are to make Texas prosperous, we must have a greater net return to the acre. The average farmer is not making the return he should have in order to give himself and his family the standard of living he deserves. In this connection let me say that I have found Mr. McFarlane is not a one-idea man. In addition to the 100 acres of cotton he has cultivated this year, he has produced 800 gallons of ribbon cane syrup, has managed his dairy herd, raised meat for his table and fruits and vegetables for his own use and for the use of the tables of others. He is not only setting an example in making his acres produce the maximum, but he is making his farm a self-sustaining unit. Others should follow this example. I have heard it said that if intensive cotton cultivation were followed, too much cotton would be raised, more than the market could stand. But that will not be the case if the farms are well balanced. The farmer will never be able to obtain the standard of living he deserves until he makes his farm a well-balanced, self-sustaining unit."

Cotton Growers' Problems
John T. Orr, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association had as his subject, "How Cotton Growers Solve Their Problems." "This splendid accomplishment by this Anderson County farmer, backed by the greatest paper in the South has demonstrated how to solve the farmer's problem," he said. "And too much stress can not be laid on the subject of the financial end of the matter. It is like Mr. Adams said, the matter of keeping your nerve when disposing of your products is a matter of vital concern. The farmer who has his place to pay for and a family to care for must look first to the support of himself and family from his farm and then the disposal of his surplus for cash. After the farmer has asked banker to go with him on prospects for the year he should look out for an orderly market when the time comes to dispose of his products and eliminate the process of farmers running over one another at the peak of the harvest in an effort to sell." Mr. Orr urged greater attention to soil preservation.

"A Four-Year Program"
Victor H. Schoffelmayer, cotton contest editor of the Dallas News, was the last speaker of the formal program to be presented. He dealt with the subject, "A Four-Year Program," explaining the purpose and ultimate aim of the "more cotton on fewer acres" contest. The contest just closed is the first of a 4-year campaign he said. "Some 30 years ago I understand," he said, "The Dallas News advocated an agricultural diversification campaign. This has culminated in the four-year program, the first part of which was the campaign just closed. In this program there has been enlisted the sympathy and interest of business men, bankers and those particularly interested in cotton as the keystone of our agricultural life. The campaign has completed its first year. It has had its faults, its mistakes, its errors, its difficulties. But an effort to remedy these, to avoid them, will be made in the 1925 campaign. The idea of the campaign is to sell to the farmer the principle that by increasing the yield per acre of cotton, much land now used for cotton cultivation may be released for the production of food and other crops; in other words, the making of a well-balanced crop. Mr. McFarlane, winner of this year's contest, has, in a year of drouth, accomplished a great record and rendered a great service in demonstrating what may be done by proper farming. Other fine records were made. In this work, if it accomplishes its aim, all must help."

"The awards next year will total $1,500 instead of $1,000 and will be divided into nine prizes. The rules will be published within the next few days."

Talley Commends Move
Lynn P. Talley, Federal Reserve agent of the Eleventh District, Dallas, spoke briefly, commending highly the movement. "Why Mr. Adams has been giving his attention to promoting proper sale of the commodity after it is harvested, I have been urging the raising of sufficient feed crops," he said. He explained how surveys of conditions are made by agents of the bank all over the district. Mr. Talley recalled that he was one of the first to endorse the "more cotton on fewer acres" campaign and he congratulated Mr. McFarlane, the winner, and the Dallas News on the outcome of the first year's contest. "And I want to welcome Mr. McFarlane here tonight as a farmer among so many agriculturists," he said with a smile in closing.

J. H. Connell, of Dallas, former president of A. & M. College, spoke briefly. "I know that I voice the sentiments of thousands of business men and farmers of Texas in congratulating the Dallas News, Mr. Schoffelmayer and the A. & M. College on the work which is celebrated here tonight," he said. "When the farmer succeeds on old lands such as those of East Texas, there is no question of success on the fresh new soil. The influence of this work will reach throughout the confines of the Southwest and also will become the beneficiaries."

R. E. Montgomery of Palestine was presented. In referring to Mr. McFarlane, he said that the winner of the prize was not only a cotton grower, but a producer of many other fine crops, especially melons, on his Anderson County farm. "His whole soul is in his work and he produces what he starts out to produce," said the speaker. "We of East Texas are very enthusiastic over our country. We raise anything there from persimmons to the best peaches in the world. We took first prize at the exhibit at Athens recently and our county agent led east Texas counties at the State Fair this year. We just want West Texas to know that we are going to give that section of the state a run for the prize hereafter."

"I think the Dallas News is the greatest institution we have in the South, especially Texas," Mr. Montgomery said in congratulating The News on its work for the advancement of agriculture. "The greatest thing about the News," he added, "is that it is always working unselfishly for some one else."

During the process of the speech-making, the toastmaster was informed by one of Mr. McFarlane's Anderson County neighbors that the prize winner was the father of eight children.

"It is interesting to know," said Mr. Dealey, "that Mr. McFarlane has a wife and eight children, and I guess if the truth were known his wife is largely responsible for the fact that he is the winner of the $1,000 prize given in this contest."

Referring to Mr. McFarlane's family, Mr. Leopold in his brief talk said: "I understand now why Mr. McFarlane won the prize. With a family of eight children, he has to be a good farmer in order to provide for them." A friendly smile wreathed the faces of the guests at this sally and Mr. McFarlane's smile was the broadest of them all.

Frank A. Briggs, editor of Farm and Ranch, expressed congratulations to The News, especially complimenting the work of Mr. Schoffelmayer, the cotton contest editor.

Mr. Dealey announced that Mr. Frank P. Holland, publisher of Farm account of sickness. The toastmaster following Mr. Briggs' remarks, paid tribute to Farm and Ranch as being "unexcelled as a farm publication by any in the world."

Charles Saville, manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, in speaking of the significance of the gathering, said that it demonstrated that the problems of banker, business man and farmer are common problems.

M. H. Wolfe, Dallas cotton factor, spoke briefly expressing satisfaction with the outcome of the first year's work on the four year program for agriculture development, and expressing a hope that all present might meet again on the second prize-awarding anniversary.

Mayor Blaylock Speaks

Mayor Louis Blaylock told of his experiences in West Texas half a century ago, when no one thought cotton could be grown west of the Colorado river. The first crop undertaken was in Burnet county, he said, and was declared a failure because the stalks grew so large they had to be chopped down with axes. He told of finding excellent cotton in far West Texas this year, and after praising the spirit of East Texas in waking up to its agricultural possibilities, spoke feelingly of his acquaintance with Dr. Richardson of the old Galveston News whom he first met seventy years ago. The News then as now was impelled by the desire to upbuild Texas, a policy which has governed it through the long intervening time. "The News deserve far more credit than we who at times differ with it politically are disposed to give," he said, "and despite Mr. Dealey's request, I shall pay it the tribute it deserves."

as the greatest institution for the development of Texas."

J. J. Taylor, "State Press" of the News, spoke briefly and humorously of the reference of an Anderson County speaker, who had preceded him and who described the persimmons of East Texas.

John W. Carpenter, vice president and general manager of the Texas Electric Company, spoke on the development of cotton milling in Texas, but declared himself more interested in the growing of cotton, and the prosperity of the farmer, upon whose adequate return for his labor the prosperity of the State and its every community depended.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER
(State Board of Health)
That there is a prevalence of influenza in Texas is evident from the facts that were reported to the State Board of Health; 403 cases in October and 990 cases in November. To prevent a recurrence of the epidemic, Dr. Malone Duggan, State Health Officer, urges the people of the state to use precautionary measures to prevent the spread of the disease.

Do Not Neglect Colds
"Do not neglect colds," says Dr. Duggan, "as colds of any kind are infectious and communicable, because of the fact that colds are due to germs just as diphtheria and whooping cough. Beware of the person who coughs and sneezes without covering his mouth and nose as the germs thus forcibly ejected are carried in minute particles of moisture through the air for several feet. Colds are so common that they are not treated with the seriousness which they deserve, and for that reason thousands of people die every year from the after effects of complications arising from what was in the beginning a bad cold. You do not take cold from getting your feet wet, or from sitting in a draft, or from sudden change in the weather, although any of these causes may be inciting factors, due to the fact that any of those things diminishes the resistance powers of the body to invading germs."

Influenza
"It is now believed that there may be a closer correlation between the common cold and influenza than was formerly thought to exist," states Dr. Duggan. "Mild cases of influenza are not always recognized as such but are sometimes diagnosed as colds, which fact makes it more evident that every precautionary measure should be used to prevent the spread of the disease by the victims of a cold. As a general rule the onslaught from influenza is more sudden than that from an ordinary cold and it spreads much more rapidly. It is a preventable disease and proper precautionary measures will prevent its spread. If you have a cold, treat it with respect, or it may master you."

"WAY DOWN EAST" OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT
The local engagement of D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle "Way Down East" which comes to the Queen Theatre for a stay of two days, beginning Jan. 5th, is expected to be one of the greatest successes this city has ever seen.

It may seem a little unusual but this paper knows enough in advance about "Way Down East" to advise that all lovers of the best in motion pictures see this production at the earliest opportunity because the record of "Way Down East" in every city it has played is that it has played to crowded houses during its entire engagement.

From all reliable sources of information it is manifest that Griffith has outdone himself in "Way Down East." He has taken a simple story of a phase of New England life that is all but too swiftly passing from view and employed its plain people with their quaint characters and their rugged sense of the honest and the human and unfolded a series of adventures and restraints which illumine the ever troubled path of love. As Mr. Griffith himself likes to put it "Way Down East" is a tale of love and lovers in a frame of such exquisite charm and pastoral beauty the most captious of critics have said many of its scenes are worthy to hang in the best art gallery in the world. Rising up from its charm and its humor in colorful contrast it rushes to a climax in the powerful ice jam and the breaking up of the floe on the river which combines every element of stirring drama and becomes at once the most astounding and remarkable scene ever seen within a play house in all times.

"NORTH OF 36" A TEXAS COW STORY IS COMING HERE
"Boys," says Lois Wilson—"boys I'm broke. I'm busted clean and fair."
That's the start of Emerson Hough's novel, "North of 36," which Irvin Willet produced for Paramount on the actual locale of the story as it took place sixty years ago.

At the time, many in the South were bankrupted. Miss Wilson, who takes the part of Taisie Lockhart, owner of the Del Sol ranch in central Texas, is no better off than the rest. Nobody counted their cattle, for cattle couldn't be sold. There was no market, no railroad.

The carpet-baggers at Austin, led by Sim Rudabaugh (Noah Beery) are stealing land scrip, driving off cattle, and dreaming of a day when they will be masters of a great empire in the south.

Then comes word that a railroad has been built as far as Abilene, Kansas. Cattle, it is said, are in demand at as much as ten dollars per head. Taisie decides desperately to drive all the cattle left by Rudabaugh's raiders to Abilene, more than one thousand miles away.

The Start
The start is made with the north star as their only guide. McMasters falls under suspicion. Miss Wilson's trunk containing the scrip that gives her title to the Del Sol ranch disappears and is found in his wagon. He won't explain. He is banished from the outfit, dishonored.

Onward moves the herd at its pitiful ten miles a day. Past the Colorado and Brazos rivers—dangerous swimming for the herd—past Cleburne, Temple, Austin, Waco and Fort Worth Village.

Rudabaugh and his men follow, determined to stop the caravan.

Rudabaugh knows that if the herd reaches Abilene it means immediate prosperity for Texas, for other herds will follow. That would mean the end of his regime.

Indian Territory
On push the drivers into the dangerous Comanche lands of Indian territory. Rudabaugh and his men are still behind. They have been joined by McMasters after he was dishonored by the caravan. They attack the herd and cause a stampede.

The Comanches, however are even worse enemies than Rudabaugh. Under Chief Yellow Hand they cut the herd to pieces and surround the drivers. Just in time the tiny handful of pioneers are saved by a company of United States cavalry from Fort Sills.

At last Abilene appears in the distance.

But that is not the end.

Just when fortune is within Miss Wilson's grasp Rudabaugh and his men swoop down upon her once more in one of the most dramatic and colorful climaxes in the history of screen drama. It is a thing that will inscribe itself in the history of one's heart as a thing never to be forgotten.

Here's the second "Covered Wagon" of this generation—just as big a story, just as stupendous production, by the same author and with a cast that spells perfection.

There's not a red-blooded American in the land that's going to miss this one.

"North of 36" will be shown at the Hollywood Theatre next Thursday and Friday, January 8 and 9.

WINTERS STUDENTS AT McMURRY COLLEGE
Miss Lula Smith of the Drasco community, who entered McMurry College at the beginning of the summer session, is at home for the holidays. Miss Smith is reported doing good work at McMurry, and is exceedingly active in religious interests of the student body.

Gattis Neely, who is spending his first year at McMurry College, seems to be taking hold of things in a manner that indicates for him a splendid future as a college student. It is said by college authorities that he has already developed a strong influence and that throughout the fall term he has been actively engaged in Epworth League and Life Service work, in addition to making good grades in his various courses.

Miss Veta Lewallen of the Drasco community has been a student at McMurry college during the fall term, and as such seems to be making good. Although this is her first term at McMurry, she is holding a responsible part time position in the college office.

Misses Clara and Irene McNeill, who have been students in McMurry college during the fall term, and who were students in the institution last year, are visiting home folks during the Christmas holidays. The college authorities speak very highly of the work that these two young ladies are doing. Miss Clara's work in piano is said to be of an exceptionally high order, while Miss Irene is an outstanding student in the Bible department of the institution.

FACTS NOT POPULAR

It is a strange trait of most humans that they care little for facts which would increase the store of real knowledge. We spend many hours reading trashy fiction, which, if devoted to the acquiring of useful information would make us really cultured.

With the greatest wonders of the universe overhead every night, few persons know the names of half a dozen stars. Few know or can distinguish the difference between a fixed star and a planet.

This is merely one illustration of how little interest is taken in the great facts of nature. Even with regard to current events, small attention is paid to new developments which mean so much to mankind. The greatest discoveries of science are hardly ever discussed, while details of the latest murder are on every tongue.

While a relatively few people in the world are giving thought to the marvelous developments of our wonderful age, the vast majority confine their reading and conversation to a narrow range of most trivial subjects. Facts worth knowing are not popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Hawkins and baby of Dallas were here for a few days visit to relatives.

SIMMONS COLLEGE CHORAL CLUB

PAUL, THE APOSTLE—AN ORATORIO

Friday evening, 7:30 o'clock in the First Baptist Church, Winters, Texas, under the direction of H. Grady Harlan; with soloists as follows:

Anna Morris Soprano
Loula Cardwell Contralto
Lee A. Stulice Tenor
Clyde J. Garrett Baritone

Eighty voices will take part in this oratorio.

Wilma Tripp will preside at the piano. The Abilene Little Symphony Orchestra will also accompany them.

We are indeed fortunate in securing this program. $1.50 and $2.00 are usually charged for a seat at a program of this nature, but no charge will be made at the church. A free will offering will be taken for the benefit of the Choral Club. If you want a seat come early.

Mr. Harlan was connected with I. E. Reynolds in the South-western Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth in 1921 when this same Oratorio was staged with more than 100 voices taking part and brought forth comment all over the country. Don't forget the time and tell your friends, Friday evening, January 9, 1925, at 7:30 p. m.

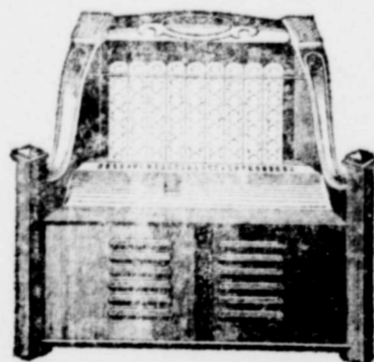

We welcome all who have come into our fellowship during the year of 1924 and to every Baptist in Winters and the Winters vicinity, who have not done so, we urge that you place your letter with us and help us put over the 1925 program in the greatest way possible for the glory of God.

We urge that all members of the church make a strong effort to be in their places with a determination to continue throughout the year.

Let every teacher and officer of the Sunday school and every leader and officer in the B. Y. P. U.'s start the year right by being in their places on time Sunday.

The pastor will preach both morning and evening next Sunday. Communion will be held at the 11:00 a. m. hour, and will have a baptizing at the evening service. All who are approved for baptism please be present at that hour.

ABOUT WOMEN

Miss Rose Barrett is city manager of Warrenton, Oregon, and is said to be the only woman in the United States to hold such a position.

Mrs. Julius Kahn, widow of Congressman Kahn of California, who died recently, is a candidate for the seat in Congress from her district.

Mrs. Nell Wheelock is a telephone lineman in the state of Washington. She climbs poles and strings wire as efficiently as any man on the work.

Mrs. Edwin A. Faulkner is now chairman of the state pardon board of Alabama.

Miss Mary Dillon, who has been with the Brooklyn gas company since 1903, has been made vice-president of the big corporation.

Mrs. Florence Knapp is now secretary of state of New York.

THOUGHTS IN BRIEF

Bills designed to prohibit the shipment of pistols through the mails or by express are now before Congress, with indications that they will be enacted into law. The public should approve any measures which may be taken to reduce the appalling number of homicides which result from promiscuous pistol-toting.

Psychologists, psychiatrists and psychopaths are industriously discovering or inventing new mental diseases, whereby criminal tendencies are explained. Soon every possible crime will be listed with its appropriate mental disorder, so that the acquittal of all criminals may be expected as a matter of course.

Opposing a bill to make Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday in the District of Columbia, Congressman Blanton of Texas declared it to be merely a scheme to give government clerks another holiday. It does seem that we might appropriately take notice of such anniversaries without stopping work for a whole day.

Kentucky has an "anti-gossiping" law, under which a woman was recently fined $10 for saying that the police of Owensboro divide "50-50 with the bottleggers." The most dangerous person in the world is the gossip, who recklessly circulates opinions or rumors which have no foundation in fact. No one's reputation is safe from the assaults of vicious scandal-mongers.

Rev. and Mrs. Roy Crawford were here from Brownwood to spend the holidays with home folks.

Hoyt Smith left Sunday for Ballinger where he will assist County Superintendent White in his office for the coming year.

Biggest Texas Story Ever Screened

"NORTH OF 36"

A story of first cattle drive out of Texas

THE ROLLICKING, ROMANTIC DAYS OF '67 LIVE AGAIN

"It's North for me!" said Taisie Lockhart, when news came of a cattle market "North of 36." And a handful of faithful, fearless cowhands went with her.

Across a thousand miles of dangerous, unblazed trail—driving a herd of 4,500 cattle.

Crossing turbulent rivers, fighting fierce stampedes of the maddened longhorns, resisting furious Indian attacks and desperate outlaws. And finally struggling through to glorious victory.

Here is the most enthralling story of the pioneer West since "The Covered Wagon"—and the most appealing romance.

If you're a Texan, you should see it.

TO GIVE YOU AN IDEA OF HOW BIG "NORTH OF 36" REALLY IS

More animals were used in "North of 36" than any other picture ever produced! That is the statement of Irvin Willat, who produce the picture for Paramount. The claim is substantiated by the following list: 4300 long-horn cattle, 212 calves, 12 oxen, 52 horses, 12 mules, 232 buffalo, 24 deer, 2 elk, 16 dogs, 4 wild-cats, 1 wolf, 16 rabbits, 36 wild turkey, 4 fighting cocks, 42 chickens, 1 covery quails and 4 rattlesnakes.

—and this, added to the fact that Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson and Noah Beery are featured in the leading roles of the production, which is an adaption of the novel by Emerson Hough, gives one a fair idea of the bigness of the picture.

SEE —the Indian braves swoop down on the cattle train; —the desperate battle in the wilderness; —the great herd of cattle swim the raging Red river; —the infuriated long-horns stampede through a town!

A Spectacular, epic picture of the Olden, Golden West of the Texas Cattleman

At Hollywood Theatre
Thursday and Friday, Jan. 8-9

Look what a cast: Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and a host of others. Story by Emerson Hough author of "The Covered Wagon."

NOTE:—Don't conflict this picture with so-called "North of 36 Rodeo," as it has no connection, and is an original Texas made picture, produced only by Paramount, and is shown only at Paramount Theatres.

"MEN" A TRAGIC LOVE STORY WITH A HAPPY ENDING

Here's that different picture you have been waiting for.

The new Paramount production, "Men," starring Pola Negri, which will be at the Hollywood Monday and Tuesday, fulfills a long felt want. For the longest time the producers have been promising a picture in which Pola Negri would absolutely return to that kind of part for which her earlier productions made her famous—a role like that in "Passion." Well, they have made good! Pola comes into her own in "Men."

"Men" is a great women's picture. They all want to see how she handles them.

Here's a picture that has absolutely everything that could be possible packed into the seven reels.

From title to climax it rolls along without a jar, without a trace of lagging and without a scene forced for the sake of spectacle. But there is spectacle, and romance, and thrills and all the rest.

And the cast—it's typical of all Negri pictures—all-star from A to Z.

Rowlett's Automatic Sash Control eliminates sash cord, weights and pulleys, stops rattling in old and new windows, can be installed by anyone. Cheaper and better than the old way. Sold and guaranteed by your Lumber Dealer.

Don't forget your car wheels—C. L. Logan will fix them.

"THE GAME OF MAKING GOOD"

In the game of making good there is a time limit.

When we were seventeen the future to us was a world unexplored, with time unlimited. But a thirty-seven or forty-seven our prospective has changed. We look into the future through wiser eyes and are startled—time has acquired boundary lines. We look back at opportunities lost—at things done which we ought not to have done—at long hours and well meant labor which proved profitless. And it shows in our score. We stand at the crest of the hill—the game is half over—to win we must capitalize the future with experience gathered from the past. But we cannot afford to put off till tomorrow. We cannot afford to miss even one opportunity. There is a limit—a time limit—and every day, every hour, every minute, yes, every second is reducing just that much our chance of rolling up a good score in the game of making good.

We can't afford to go through the year not knowing whether we are winning, playing even, or losing ground. A year is three hundred and sixty-five precious days—eight thousand, seven hundred and sixty hours—the best days and hours of our life, and we can't coax them back. If we are losing we want to know today, so that tomorrow we can "change the trump." And next week we want to know how much we profited by the change!

If we investigate, we find that a larger percentage of all failures is due—not to lack of ambition, ability or hard work—but rather to each man's ignorance of the actual conditions of his own particular business.

Further investigation convinces us that the greater majority of small

ICE CREAM FACTORY IS ASSURED FOR WINTERS

Among one of the most progressive steps of the city that will occur in 1925 is the coming of an ice cream factory. A. M. Sparks, who has recently opened a business house on South Main, will within a few months begin the manufacture of ice cream. The machinery for the plant has been installed and practically all preparations completed for the making of cream.

retailers are capable, hard-working business men—working in the dark—waiting for the end of the year to find if their score has gone up or down in the game of making good.

But we find the man that is making the "killing"—the man with the best score—is the man who labors less and thinks more—the man who systematizes—who installs a proper accounting system—the man that knows which clerk deserves a raise and which should be fired—who knows which line should be discontinued and which pushed. He is the man who knows this week what he made last week. He is MANAGING.

We have the same opportunity. What he is doing we can do—we have the same ability, ambition, and energy. But we must be UP AND DOING—we've have reached the crest of the hill, and—in the game of making good there is a time limit. Get busy and run up that score before that final and fateful whistle.—Turner E. Camp.

DRAMA OF SMALL TOWN LIFE

"Flaming Barriers" a George Mel-ford production or Paramount, featuring Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno and Walter Hiers comes to the Hollywood Theatre for a run of one day on Friday. Byron Morgan wrote the story which was adapted by Harvey Thew. It's a drama of small town life, replete with thrills and with Mr. Hier, as an efficiency expert, supplying enough laughs for a full length comedy.

Folks, there are fancier towns than our little town, there are towns that are bigger than this; and the people who live in the smaller towns don't know what excitement they miss. There are things you see in the wealthier towns that you can't in a town that's small; and yet, up and down, there is no town like our little town after all. It may be the streets through the town are not long, they're not wide, and maybe not straight, but the neighbors, you know in your own little town all welcome a fellow—it's great. If the glittering streets of the glittering town, with its palace and pavement and thrall; in the midst of the throng you will frequently long for your own little town after all. If you live and you work in your own little town, in spite of the fact that it's small, you'll find it a fact that our little town is the best little town after all.

Business definitions as given of the man who thinks you are as bad as he is: Creditor, a contemptible pirate whose demands are always unreasonable. Debtor, an unhungry villain with a bum memory. Dividends, a certain per centum per annum, perhaps. Filing system, a storage for lost letters, memorandums, etc. salesman, a slick guy who sells something he can't deliver to some one who doesn't want it.

Children, do not tease the cat; don't pull the poor dog's tail you'll have to be good boys and girls or you'll end up in jail; don't yell so loud; you should be seen, but very seldom heard; if you must talk pronounce your words, your "g" should not be slurred. Don't wrestle in the parlor; quit sliding on that floor; if you must run from room to room, you'll have to close the door; don't throw that ball around in here, you'll break something you know; if you are to squeal and fuss, out-doors you'll have to go; don't leave your toys around the house; they should be put away; why is it, though I talk and talk, you can't understand how to talk and talk, you can't learn how to play? Well, pop my ten-year-old replied, it's not our fault—it's you; You've told us everything to don't; now tell us what to do.

The Winters Skeptic's Society after exhaustive research, has arrived at the following conclusions:

A stitch in time does not save more than three or four at the most.

He who laughed last laughs worst in $6.14 per cent of the tests made.

Where there was smoke there was fire in only 8.93 per cent of the cases examined; in all other cases it was too rich a mixture.

Still waters were not shallow in nearly every case investigated, but were most easily excited.

In 63 per cent of the tests when a leaper paused to leap some one else leaped ahead of him.

Of the burnt children examined the majority were carrying matches and manifested no fear of fire.

Of the mice observed, 99.75 per cent did not play when the cat was away; but went right to work.

Some very short lanes were found to have no turnings.

The final reports on barking dogs cannot be given until two of the investigators recover from incipient hydrophobia.

In many cases a soft answer was taken for ridicule and wrath increased.

The increased production resulting from haste more than made up for the slight waste occasioned.

In the worm catching trials the most worms were caught by an old owl that stayed up after the early birds, wearied by their early rising, had turned in.

One investigation had to be abandoned because no one could be found living in a glass house.

LET'S TUNE IN

Abilene Reporter:

An old farmer who remembers Stanhope buggies, home-spun clothes and copper-tied boots, comes to town now and then. For years we have met him no place except in front of one of the local jewelry stores, watch in hand, looking into the display window at a chronometer.

"Hello, there, what are you doing in town?" We ask.

And always he answers, "Oh, I just came in to get the time."

There's a wise twinkle in his eyes as he says it. For he gets the "correct time" in many ways, summed up in the expression, "keeping abreast of the crowd and the times."

The average farmer comes to town regularly to find out what's going on in the way of improvement. It would be mighty profitable for all of us if the city man went into the country occasionally to get a line on the industry that feeds him.

Producers should periodically tour their markets to "get the correct time."

The politicians in Washington should make a junket tour of the whole country occasionally to keep in touch with public attitude needs. In other words, "get the correct time."

Mental stagnation is inevitable if we isolate ourselves and lag behind the times. We are fortunate in living in the fastest-moving period of the world's history. How many of us take full advantage of the opportunity to learn and improve.

Few people need urging to keep up with the latest in sport, cards, dances, movies, songs, styles and crazes like crossword puzzles.

When it comes to "the latest" in the way of improvements in government and economies, the crowd usually yawns.

There's hope, though. Our generation is alert to keep in touch with all improvements in inventions such as radio and autos. These things, after all, shape society, economies, and, indirectly, government. All in all, we're close to "the correct time."

WE WANT TO DO YOUR PLUMBING

If plumbing is what you want, see us. I am now connected with the Winters Plumbing and Metal Works, with N. Passeur, plumber in charge of this part of work. Mr. Passeur has had 18 years experience in the plumbing business and comes highly recommended from San Angelo and Ballinger where he has done a large amount of work. He has done 41 jobs of plumbing in Winters and his work is highly recommended by A. F. Roberts, city inspector of plumbing. Mr. Passeur is under $2,000 bond and all his work is guaranteed for 12 months.

We want to see a plumbing job in every home in Winters and if parties for whom we work prefer, we will furnish pipe at cost and they can lay their own lines and save money.

All we lack of getting your job is having a chance to figure on it. Please give us that chance.
