FARM BUREAU HOLDS QUARTERLY MEETING HERE

The regular quarterly meeting of the Farm Bureau was held in Winters last Saturday evening in the hall over the Main Drug Company, with Lynn Stokes presiding.

The purpose of this meeting mostly was to get the shipping contract signed, and to give a report of the Bureau's activities since the last meeting. Which was very gratifying to all those interested.

Mr. Stokes said, "next time we meet in Winters the gins will be humming day and night, and everybody will be busy marketing cotton, and I want to see Winters shipping her part to the Farm Bureau Cotton Association."

An announcement was made that J. W. L. Hall, field service director will be in this county during this month, and will speak at Norton on 3 p. m., July 17; Wingate, Friday night, July 17; Ballinger Saturday evening, July 18, and Winters at night.

While attending the celebration at Ballinger last Monday evening and watching the fireworks, a fragment from the fireworks struck Mrs. Wiley Rainwater and cut quite a rash in her forehead. While the wound was not serious it was quite painful and bled freely. Friends will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from the wound rapidly.

Winters Automobile is Stolen in Dallas

News was received Wednesday night that the car of Mr. Leslie Harrell was stolen in Dallas some time that night.

Mr. Guffey and daughter, Mrs. Harrell left Winters last Monday for a few days visit in Dallas, and it seems that they had parked in front of a drug store and when they returned their car was gone.

Do your part in making it a day we celebrate without a death list.

All Things Set For 4th Celebration Tomorrow

All the arrangements for the big barbecue and picnic are complete. Everything is in readiness to greet the many thousands of visitors who will be here to enjoy this national holiday in our city. Those in charge of the picnic and barbecue have spared no pains in preparing to entertain and every citizen should extend a hand of welcome to the visitors, and make them at home.

The picnic grounds are just north of town.

The C. of C. band, 26 pieces strong, will furnish music for the occasion, barbecue free, and everybody cordially invited to come and enjoy the day with us.

Winters Lady Loses Brother and Sister By Death at Killeen

A. W. Jordan, wife and son, Byron, left Friday for Killeen in response to a message announcing the death of Mrs. Jordan's brother, Will Willess, relatives receiving a message yesterday at noon stating that Mrs. Jordan's invalid sister, Miss Mandy Willis had died, and it is supposed here that the shock of her brother's death killed her. The Jordans have many friends and acquaintances here who will be pained to learn of this sad bereavement.

John Briley returned home last Saturday from a six week's tour of the plains and New Mexico. He reports a most enjoyable vacation.

"PUBLIC RELATIONS AND GOOD WILL" SUBJECT OF ADDRESS AT LIONS MEET

Following is the address of Mr. W. S. Vivian, Director of Public Relations of the Middle West Utilities Co., Chicago, before the Winters Lions Club at its regular luncheon, Tuesday, June 23rd, at the First Methodist church:

What is Public Relations? On entering the engineer's office of a large electric power plant recently, the engineer said, "Mr. Vivian, I have been hearing considerable lately about Public Relations. What is it, anyway?"

Notwithstanding the fact that Public Relations activities have been carried on as a program along definite lines for several years, there is much misunderstanding and mystery as to what Public Relations really is. Public Relations is no one big thing, but a great many little things. Public Relations is nothing more or less than human relations.

It includes all our relations as between employer, employee, the company and the public it serves. Its purpose is to bring about a more enlightened understanding and friendly relations.

Public Growth In the public utility field, represented by the electric light and power companies, by the gas companies, by the electric railway and telephone companies, there has been a very rapid growth and development during the past few years.

In fact, with the possible exception of the gas industry, it has all been developed within the last half century. It represents a stupendous investment about which our customers and the general public know very little; in fact, about which there is too much of suspicion and misinformation.

The electric light and power industry represents an investment of six billion six hundred million dollars; the gas industry, four billion dollars; the electric railway, six billion dollars; and the telephone over two and one-quarter billion dollars. Thus there is an investment of over eighteen billion dollars in the utilities mentioned in this country alone.

Universal Interest

Our customers and the public all too often fail to understand their interest in this business. If I say to you that there isn't a man or woman or boy or girl in the cities from whence each of you came but who is individually and financially interested in our business, you perhaps would be surprised. Still this is a fact, for today we have approximately three and one-half million individuals who own our bonds and stocks. In addition, there are twenty-nine thousand banks, representing twenty-seven million depositors, who have invested upwards of two billions in our securities. In addition to that the great life insurance companies of this country have invested upwards of six hundred million dollars in our securities. This means that every individual, either owns some of our securities, or is interested by means of a bank account, or because of an interest in a life insurance policy or policies on some member or members of the family.

Interdependence One of the great dangers in the utility industry is due to this fact of rapid growth, which constantly calls for large amounts of capital in order that the demands for service may be properly met. There is an interdependence between the public and its utilities that must be recognized and understood so that the public may understand that the development and progress of the utilities means their development and progress. All must realize that the suspension of one man's dividend check means the stopping of another man's pay envelope.

Correct understanding, or good Public Relations, is sound economics.

Value of Good Public Relations Someone has summed up its value in the following sentences:

1. Poor Public Relations adversely affects net earnings.
2. Good Public Relations means less money spent on rate hearings, legislation and litigation.
3. Easier financing.
4. Less cost of hauling complaints.
5. Easier collections.

6. Sales resistance reduced.

7. Personnel more efficient, happy and contented.

How Realized

How can such worthwhile results be realized? They can be realized by having the right kind of a plan or program and then working the plan.

Selling Employee

There are three essential steps in such a program:

The first is to sell the employee, his job, his company and his industry so that he may be enthusiastic and happy in his particular task and in the opportunities that are ahead so that he would rather work for his particular company and industry than anywhere or in anything else.

John Mantle Clapp said: "The tragedy of life is the waste of talent—talent that is stifled because men find women with personality never get waked up so they can use it. They go through life like walking machines, doing only what they are told to do by others. They remain slaves because they have never tapped the spring of original, intelligent, creative work, never realized the power which is in every one of us."

Informing Employee Second—involvement and educating the employee. Every employee is enthusiastic and happy in his work, it logically follows that he must become informed and educated, and, therefore, the second step in this program deals with factor.

It means that the individual employee must know the technique of his particular job so that he can perform his task in the most efficient manner. Too often industry stops at that point. That is not sufficient. Not only must he know about his particular job, but he must be particularly informed about his company and his industry and the public they serve. He must know of the history and the development and the romance and the economics of the business as a whole. To accomplish this it follows that the imagination of the individual employee must be aroused. Executives, engineers, managers, everywhere, must needs recognize that all progress in our modern civilization has been preceded some time, some place, by somebody's imagination. You have heard the story of the little boy who got into the habit of telling wrong stories. His mother became alarmed for fear it would get him into difficulties later on in life. She therefore resolved to break him of the habit. So on one occasion the little boy comes running into the house and exclaimed with great excitement: "Mother, there's a great, big lion out in the yard. He's got a great, big bushy tail and a great, big shaggy mane, and great, big mouth, and, mother, he growls something dreadful."

Just then his mother laid up her hands and said: "Bobby, you know you're telling a wrong story. That is not true and mother must break you of that habit. I want you to go right upstairs, shut yourself in the closet and talk to the Lord about it."

The little fellow, quite downcast, climbed upstairs and shut himself in the closet as his mother had commanded. After a while she went up to see how he was getting along. She opened the door of the closet and said: "Bobby, did you talk to the Lord about it?" He replied, "Yes, mother." "And what did He say?" "Well, mother, He said it really was a dog, but it was so nearly like a lion that it fooled Him three times." That little fellow had the power of imagination.

Some time ago it was my privilege to visit New Salem, where President Lincoln one time lived. This old village site has been bought by the state of Illinois as a state park and an exact replica of the old settlement is being built. Our party was going in and out of the old log cabins, walking over the same paths Mr. Lincoln one time walked, finally entering the cabin built on the site

RUNNELS COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPT HAS GOOD RECORD

That the local sheriff's department is functioning efficiently is evidenced by the following report, made up from records at the court house. Sheriff R. E. McWilliams has been on the job since January 1st, 1925, and in that time there have been thirty-five felony cases docketed as follows:

Burglary and theft, nine.
Bootlegging, eight.
Forgery, five.
Transporting liquor, two.
Manufacturing liquor, two.
Felony theft, one.
Murder, one.
Assault to murder, one.
Seduction, one.
Assault with intent to rape, one.
Misdemeanor cases that have been placed on the docket in the six-month period from January 1st to June 30th, number 122. One hundred and sixteen fines have been collected on these cases.

Misdemeanors are classed and numbered as follows:
Gaming, four.
Drunkenness, seventeen.
Affray, fourteen.
Petty theft, eleven.
Cold checks, sixteen.
Associated assault, four.
Carrying pistol, two.
Disturbing peace, six.
Vagrancy, five.

There are four felony cases that have not made bond. Only one of the cases listed above has never been arrested. Three broke jail June 26, that are still at large. The jail break, however, was due to the condition of the old jail, as the steel had been removed from the prison to be used in the new structure, leaving only a rock wall between the prisoners and liberty.

It is the duty of the sheriff and his deputies to make arrests and to run down crime whenever it happens, and that the Runnels county sheriff's department has been doing its full duty is shown in the above report. In addition it might be recalled that Sheriff McWilliams has taken part in two chases after desperate criminals in other counties, that of a Mexican desperado who killed two officers at Big Spring, and the negro bandit who killed Sheriff Dick Pasley of Coleman county.

Rev. W. L. Wall of Wingate was in the city Wednesday and told us of the death of Mr. Bowen of the Shep community. Mr. Bowen was about 65 years of age and had some few months ago moved from Arkansas to Shep where he was living with his widowed daughter-in-law. Funeral services were held by Bro. Wall and interment was made in the Shep cemetery Friday.

Refecting Prosperity of Winters Country

At the regular Directors' meeting on the 20th of June, the Directors of the Winters State Bank authorized a dividend of 5 per cent. While the dividends of this institution have never been large, they have been continuous and regular reflecting the wisdom of its conservative and sound policies and the reputation throughout the country of being one of the largest, most progressive and soundest institutions. The Department of Banking, through its examiners, has been saying over the State for a number of years that the Winters State Bank was the model institution of the entire system. The bank has always stood for those things which would help its depositors and has been first in every undertaking for the betterment of our town and country. They have withstood almost every kind of attempted adversity, including panic, drought, war and attempted robbery, but in spite of all these things their progress has been unabated.

The "Picture With A Perfect Cast"

"Merton of the Movies," the deliciously satirical comedy-drama of Hollywood's movieland, is "the picture with the perfect cast."

James Cruze, the man who made "The Covered Wagon" and other notable recent Paramount successes, directed "Merton." It is a story of a movie-struck country youth who goes penniless to Hollywood, meets adversity and indifference, but eventually wins stardom through the guidance of a picture-wise girl.

Glenn Hunter, the "Merton" who captivated the New York stage, has the starring role. Viola Dana, petite star, is featured opposite him as Sally. "Flips" Montague, the super-movie-sophisticated actress who leads his dangling feet to the dizzy heights of success. At the Mission, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Berry of Sulphur Springs, and Mrs. Vanhus of Dallas, are in the city, guests in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Berry, on North Main street.

Edward Giesecke Dies at 3:05 a. m. On June 24th.

Edward A. Giesecke is dead. The news quickly spread over Ballinger Wednesday morning, casting a gloom over the entire city where he had lived all his life and where he had untold numbers of friends who today mourn over the death of this young man. Only a few days ago he was mingling with the business men of Ballinger and going about his work apparently in good health. He was taken ill Friday, June 19, with sinus trouble in his head, and was carried to the Halley & Love Sanitarium Sunday afternoon and operated upon for the trouble. Everything that could be done for the young man was done but relatives and friends had very little hope from the beginning of the attack and death relieved him of his suffering Wednesday morning at 3:05 o'clock.

Edward was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Giesecke, who are pioneer citizens of Ballinger. He had spent all his life here, growing from a baby to young manhood. He was born March 27, 1897, and was 28 years, 2 months and 28 days old at the time of his death.

Mr. Giesecke had been associated with his father in business all his life and was manager of the Ballinger oil mill at the time he was taken ill.

The deceased was married to Miss Cordelia Guion, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Jno. I. Guion, in May 1917. His wife and his father H. Giesecke, were with him during his last illness and when the end came.

Mr. Giesecke's mother, Mrs. H. Giesecke, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jno I. Guion, arrived Wednesday at noon; and his brother, Arthur Giesecke; and sister Miss Serena Giesecke arrived by car at 9:15 o'clock Wednesday morning. Other relatives have been notified, but had not been heard from Wednesday morning.

The funeral service was held at the First Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. E. W. McLabrin officiating, and following the church service the Masonic Lodge was to take charge of the rites at the cemetery. Mr. Giesecke was Past High Priest of the Royal Arch Chapter of the Masonic Lodge.

The following pall bearers had been selected. Active: A. B. Lanford, Edgar Rasbury, Roy Mack, E. M. Lynn, A. McGregor, and M. McGregor. Honorary: R. H. Ward, J. H. Voelkel, Bernie Ward, Harry Lynn, Chas. Northington and Elo Michaelis.

Interment will be made this afternoon in Evergreen Cemetery at 5 o'clock.—Ballinger Ledger.

Buffalo Bill, Jr. Rescues Girl As Herd Stampedes

A wild cattle stampede, during which the frenzied beasts plunge over a cliff to their destruction, and a daring feat of horsemanship in which Buffalo Bill, Jr., rescues a lazed and senseless girl from under the hooves of the maddened herd, from some of the thrills de luxe packed into "Thundering Romance," the latest of this popular young star's thunderbolt thrillers, which is coming to the Queen Theatre today (Friday) July 3.

Jean Arthur, who has played opposite Buffalo Bill, Jr., in many of his pictures, also has the leading feminine role in "Thundering Romance" and deserves much credit for her gameness and nerve in venturing her life for the camera art, as the narrow margin by which her rescue is made by Buffalo Bill, Jr. testifies.

In another scene, when Buffalo Bill, Jr. is making a dash to escape from some pursuers, he drives his wonderful horse, Kelly, into a leap over a twenty-foot chasm, that will surely take the audience's breath away. It is only an incident in the picture, but it shows to what extent this daring, young, riding star will risk his neck, merely to give his admirers an added thrill.

There is plenty of comedy as well as punch in "Thundering Romance," a lot of it being furnished by Harry Reid, who as Davey Jones, a wanderer, and his noble (?) steed, in a search of buried treasure. The finale is about seventeen hands and to mount or dismount him, he has to use a rope ladder, while other him he throws out an an-

Every Texan Will Respond to Legion Endowment Fund

The State Commander of Legion, Mark McGee, says that Texas will respond wholeheartedly to the appeal for support of the Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of service men, and that everyone will do his part if he understands the needs and purposes of the fund.

"There are 35,000 war orphans, and many times that number of sick and disabled ex-service men whose lives have been blighted by the war," Commander McGee said. "We cannot do too much for them. Our debt can never be fully repaid. The American Legion has assumed the obligation of seeing that these two consequences of the war receive a full measure of justice but we need the public's assistance to the limit."

On a farm near San Antonio, Texas, amidst the onions and spinach, a cow and young flock of chickens, is a living example of the justice and wisdom of aiding any man who lost his health in the service of his flag, and needed but a helping hand in the period of his illness to place him once more among the self-supporting valuable citizens of any community.

This living example is Bura J. Evans, who, but a short time ago, lay in a government hospital fighting tuberculosis contracted in the service. He is one of the 687,158 disabled men who requested the government to aid him, and is one of the 83,818 men who actually have been rehabilitated. There have been 379,515 men whose requests could not be granted by the government, and thousands of other disabled veterans who, through ignorance of their rights, or discouragement, have not asked aid.

It is for these unfortunate men that The American Legion, with a record of already having helped thousands when that organization did not know from time to time where the finances would be obtained, now is raising a national endowment fund to carry on such work permanently. The fund also will provide homes and education for the helpless babies of former service men.

The success of Evans is a fair example of what will be done by any disabled man who, by very reason of his trying days of service when he carried on bravely, giving his all for his country, today is a loyal citizen with a serious mind.

Evans won his battle with the dreaded white plague and is making come true a dream he nursed as he lay helpless in a government hospital. He was given training in scientific agriculture and proceeded to acquire a farm of his own.

This year the disabled man counted $2,000 worth of onions and nearly that much spinach among his sales. He has a tractor, a cow and chickens. Since going to the farm he has purchased an additional 120 acres.

And today, while Evans is happily on the road to health and prosperity, Texas communities are going over the top in raising their share of the endowment fund for the others who have not been so fortunate. Every Texan, when the needs and purposes of the endowment fund have been understood, is doing his part.

Wrestling Match At Queen Theatre Saturday, July 4th

Sport and motion picture fans will be treated to a rare bit of action in the visualization of Kenneth Perkins' novel, "The Beloved Brute," which will be shown at Queen Theatre on Saturday, July 4. In one of the sequences there is a very realistic wrestling match between Victor McLaglen and William Russell.

Mr. McLaglen, who is portraying the title role, for several years has been one of the foremost amateur boxers and wrestlers of the world. He is also a champion swordsman, having qualified for this title in the British army both mounted and dismounted. His record as a horseman reads like a romance.

His opponent who appears in an equally important role is well known for his athletic prowess. Mr. Russell is a young Hercules in size and strength. He regards McLaglen as his superior and describes him as "strong as a bull," and "quicker than chain lightning."

For several weeks before the big wrestling match was filmed the two men went into training; daily between scenes they met each other in sparring and wrestling contests to prepare for what was to be a real

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Coupland received a telegram Tuesday, June 30, from San Francisco, California, stating that their daughter had arrived safely. Miss Laura has been a missionary to China for the past five years and expects to come to Winters after a visit to her brother in California.

The funny part about it is that Darwin died without even dreaming there was such a place as Dayton, Tenn., on the map.

EAT TOO FAST

South Carolinian Took Black-Draught For Indigestion, and Says He Could Soon Eat Anything.

Ballentine, S. C.—Mr. W. B. Bouknight, of this place, gave the following account of his use of Thedford's Black-Draught.

"Just after I married I had indigestion. Working out, I got in the habit of eating fast, for which I soon paid by having a tight, bloated feeling after meals. This made me very uncomfortable. I would feel stupid and drowsy, didn't feel like working. I was told it was indigestion. Some one recommended Black-Draught and I took it after meals. I soon could eat anything any time.

"I use it for colds and biliousness and it will knock out a cold and carry away the bile better and quicker than any liver medicine I have ever found."

Eating too fast, too much, or faulty chewing of your food, often causes discomfort after meals. A pinch of Black-Draught, washed down with a swallow of water, will help to bring prompt relief. Bloating sensations, eructations, bad breath and other common symptoms of indigestion have disappeared after Black-Draught has been taken for several days. NC-164 battle on the screen.

In the story McLaglen, as the Beloved Brute, is the prospector of Jacinta, a dance hall girl, portrayed by Marguerite de la Motte. He has a brother whom he has not seen but who has been declared by the father to be the superior of the two. The Brute, to disprove the statement, challenges the brother to a wrestling match. The brother, portrayed by Russell, is unaware of the Brute's identity. A fierce battle ensues which has been transferred to the screen in such a manner as will appeal to every lover of sports. It is one of many thrilling situations in a picture which is a happy combination of the old wagon show, blended with outdoor scenes and a novel love interest. The picture has a surprise ending. It is one of those pictures which keeps an audience guessing until the final fade-out.

Trading at 'M' System Relieves You of This Load

Most men work hard for their money—and strange as it may seem spend it freely. Many a man without rhyme or reason goes into debt and figuratively is forced by his folly to carry a grocery bill debt for years.

There is no necessity for such foolhardiness if you are systematic in your arrangement of your budget.

Let us suggest that you trade with us, and make it your aim and purpose to set aside what you save each month, and soon you will have a nice bank account.

GET THE RIGHT TRAINING

It is a regrettable fact that an amazingly large percentage of our young people spend from ten to twelve years of their lives—years of hard, patient study—to acquire an education which COULD be of priceless value to them and then never give it a chance. They virtually throw it away.

Too many young people do not seem to know the purpose of an education. When High School has closed, they wander down life's highway aimlessly. They are like a ship without a rudder—like a mariner without a compass. They are on their way, but they do not know where they are going.

The trouble is, they have no definite plan of life. They do not seem to appreciate that success is the result of carefully laid plans along definite, charted ways. Or, no doubt, they would plan successful careers and then work those plans.

Business is the most fertile field there is for brain power. Business pays more than all the trades and professions combined—both in income and in opportunities. And business does all this while you are still young.

The first step is to train for business just as you would train for any other profession. The Tyler

Commercial College can train you in just a short time to accept and hold a position in Business. Business is a profession. In fact, business is a profession of many professions—advertising managers, sales managers, office managers, salesman, credit manager, accountants, secretaries, etc.

When you train for business you will be better qualified than the university graduate with no special business training. This has been proven thousands of times.

So if you want a good position—one which pays a good starting salary and offers excellent opportunities for advancement—if you want to be well on the road to success long before you are thirty—if you want to accomplish all this in half the usual time and at less expense, send for "Achieving Success in Business." This large book will help you and inspire you; it will tell you of the largest commercial school in the United States and what it can do for you. Just send the coupon printed below for the helpful book. It is FREE.

Ford Foreign Deliveries Reach High Mark

Sales figures of the Ford Motor Company for the month of May show a continued good domestic demand for Ford cars and trucks, the last ten days of the month showing a substantial increase over the previous ten days. The figures also disclose record-breaking sales abroad and in the high-price car field a growing demand for Lincoln cars. In fact, the Lincoln sales in the United States during May went to a new record with 968 deliveries to customers, exceeding more than fifty, the record established in April.

Ford car and truck sales for the month reached a total of 201,779 of which number 19,576 were foreign sales. This is a record for foreign deliveries and is more than 1,100 above the April sales.

Lest we forget, it may be worth while to remind our readers that July 4 is the spiritual birthday of the American Republic. We are 149 years old and going strong.

The Fourth is not what it used to be, outwardly at least. Time was when Willie saved his pennies to buy enough explosives and red fire to burn his fingers and endanger his life, and the village blacksmith fired off potash and sulphur in his anvil. Cannons boomed those days, and the politicians used the picnic crowds for volleys of red, white and blue oratory.

Most of that is now buried in the past. The politicians today talk by radio, and the blacksmith owns a filling station and garage. The passing of the giant firecracker, which was nothing less than a powerful bomb, has saved hundreds of lives. Other dangerous devices have been ruled out by legislation and by public opinion. The greatest responsibility now rests with parents, for it lies within their power to give their children a maximum of fun with the minimum of danger. The glorious Fourth is made safe and sane.

Yet, nothing can change the spirit of our political independence. A glorious reminder of the freedom that has been achieved in America and a monument to those hardy, but poorly equipped heroes who gave their lives for a government "of the people, for the people and by the people."

The Fourth of July, 1925, draws on a people whose material situation contrasts strikingly with that of their forefathers in 1776. It is doubtful however, that there is less need now than there was then for true patriotism, for unselfish regard for the fundamental principles of liberty, willingness to make every necessary sacrifice for the welfare of posterity. It is still possible for every American to exhibit a spiritual patriotism as high-minded as that which still endears the founders of the republic to their sons and daughters. The lesson of today is that there is still work for real patriots to do.

We salute the Stars and Stripes. We hear the vibrations of Liberty Bell echoing in our souls.

We thank God for America and the ennobling memories of the Fourth of July.

SHOW THE FLAG

Display the flag Saturday in celebration of July 4, our 149th anniversary.

We don't see as much of the Stars and Stripes since the Armistice as we did during the preceding 18 months. We are prone to go to sleep when we are at peace with the world, and forget we were ever at war.

Our patriotism doesn't die; it merely goes to sleep. Germany was convinced that it was sleeping too soundly to be awakened in time to stretch herself and get into action. Germany was wrong, but it cost us an awful price to convince her.

Show the flag. It is an exhibition of patriotism and exhibitions of patriotism not only win wars, but sometimes prevent them.

HOT WEATHER

The best of all hints of hot weather "use common sense." In an age of financial theorizing this precept has been in danger of neglect. If it can be restored to intelligent attention by the experience of the recent season the hot wave will not have been without its benefit.

"GENTLEMEN FARMERS"

An advertisement in a New York paper sets before "gentlemen farmers" the allurements of a 400-acre farm, "ideal for a golf course." Is a gentleman farmer by any chance ever supposed to farm?

To some people holidays are a bore because they can't remember how the flag ought to be put up.

July 4 automatically asserted itself as National Defense Day in the early history of the country.

Will Close For Picnic Tomorrow

The following petition was circulated here during the past week and is self-explanatory:

"In keeping with the request of the War Department of the United States of America through Major General Ernest Hinds, that upon the fourth of July 1925, the different communities of the nation meet and take stock of plans for the preservation of our liberties and independence, the Ku Klux Klan together with other good citizens of Winters community are preparing to follow this suggestion by holding a free barbecue for both dinner and supper, together with patriotic speaking and other picnic activities, on Bluff Creek one mile east of Winters.

"Now to make this a success the promoters of the picnic, respectfully ask all merchants of Winters who desire so to do, to close their places of business between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. on that day.

Lankford's Bakery Installs New Machinery

Lankford's Bakery, in keeping with the policy of keeping abreast of the times and offering the public only the very best products from the oven, has just recently completed the installation of a piece of machinery which does not increase the output of his shop but adds wonderfully to the quality of his products. We are unable to recall the technical name of this machine but if we could it was so we will call it an electrically driven automatic "kneader."

This machine cost Mr. Lankford $1,000.00, and when you consider that it does not increase the output of his bakery, but adds so much to the quality, you can readily see that Mr. Lankford is neither sparing time or money in his efforts to manufacture a quality product.

Call around and inspect this first-class bakery. They will be glad to show you through.

RECEIVES HAVILAND HOG FROM MEXICO

H. A. Baker received by express Wednesday a homogeneous of the hog family, from his brother who lives in Mexico.

The resemblance between this hog and the native hog is quite noticeable, this species having hair that is of two or three colors, and being stiff like a porcupine when the animal is in a fighting mood.

We are not well versed in various species of the swine, but it is called a Haviland hog by Mr. Baker, and in its native haunts runs wild and is very ferocious and unmanageable.

Mr. Baker is going to put his pet on exhibition as soon as a proper cage can be built, and will be kept at his home.

He expects to start a zoo, by making a contribution to Tinkls park.

If you want to see this hog, Mr. Baker will be glad to have you take a look at it.

Nobody Would Do Without the Telephone Now-a-days

—The telephone is one absolute necessity in modern business. It is necessary in modern society. No community can get along without a telephone service.

—So the telephone is a real vital public utility. It is so effected with a public interest that experience has shown that what is best for the community in the way of telephone service is best for the telephone company.

—If the best service possible is not provided the community can not get along as well as it might. If the community does not make such service possible the telephone can not do as well as it deserves to do.

—There is not and can not be any difference at all between the interests of this industry and the interests of the people who depend upon telephone service.

—Whenever difference arises they are due to lack of understanding.

—This company seeks the fullest co-operation of the community to the end that its service may be the best possible service.

APPRECIATED WORDS FROM CHICAGO

Editor of the Enterprise, Winters, Texas. Dear Sir: For some time I have contemplated writing you a few words of appreciation of the splendid improvement in The Enterprise which has been made not a great while ago, and, at the same time, sending a message of greeting, through your excellent publication, to the large number of good friends of mine who live in and around the delightful little town of Winters. So, now that I find myself with a few moments of leisure between the spring and summer terms of school, I shall carry that long cherished purpose into execution.

In the first place, let me say that the paper is much more attractive in appearance now than formerly. It is a relief to one's eyes to unfold the paper now and look at the first page with its balanced, harmonious arrangement. I never could see any reason why the first page of a small newspaper should be made up so as to suggest to the imagination the unpainted wall of an old building which had been plastered over with circus posters. In the second place, there is a great improvement in the volume of local news items which the paper carries. I am not a journalist by profession and give you the reaction only of one who reads your paper, but it seems to me that the legitimate field which gives a paper such as yours its excuse for existence is news of a local character. I would not exclude a limited amount of state and national items from the paper but would say that its speciality should be matters of local interest. There are numerous publications far better qualified than the small paper to give the state and national news. It is especially disappointing to me to get my Enterprise and find that it has no news from home and is filled up with clippings from other papers of news which I have read days before in the daily papers. You have made a great improvement in this respect and I want to tell you that I, for one, appreciate it. All the little news items dealing with persons and things of the Winters country have great interest for me. And, in the third place, you are succeeding to a remarkable degree in giving to The Enterprise a literary finish and cultural tone which are in harmony with the quality of the spirit and culture of the community whose sentiment and ideals you are trying to reflect in your publication and which should be an inspiration to any editor to call forth in increasing measure a type of workmanship that will do honor to his profession.

Now perhaps the friends there would like to have me say a few things about what I am doing here. And I shall begin by saying that my brother Murl is here in Chicago to spend the summer with me, after having spent the past year teaching and coaching in the High school and Junior College of Johnstown, Colo.

Murl and I will be glad to hear from our friends of Winters at any time. Mail sent to my address will reach him also. And when anyone from down there makes a trip to Chicago we would be very happy to have them visit us.

With the best of wishes for the Enterprise and for our friends of the Winters country,

Very sincerely,—S. V. McCasland.

Mrs. Claude Mills and children of Lampasas, arrived in the city Monday for a visit with relatives and friends.

Very sincerely,—S. V. McCasland.

rado. He has a position with Marshall Field & Company as salesman in the store for men and is delighted with his work. You may be certain that it is a great pleasure to me to have Murl here. Very likely neither of us will be home during the summer and it makes the absence from home much more endurable when two of us are together.

I am continuing my work in the Divinity School of the University and like the work more and more all the time. I have completed the required number of courses for the Ph. D. degree in New Treatment and am ready now to begin writing the Dissertation which I hope to be able to complete by June 1926. This must be completed before the degree is awarded. Working for a Ph. D. degree is a long and laborious process and many do not think it is worth the price, but I have found the work delightful indeed, and it has brought many rich personal associations and experiences into my life which alone have made all the effort worth while. In this age of undreamed achievement and discovery in every field of human endeavor no effort can be considered too great which gives one the privilege of coming into contact with the masters themselves in their workshops. So while some of my friends wonder how I can be content to spend so much time in the dusty libraries of the universities, let me say in reply that I consider this very privilege the rarest and most valuable one that life has to offer.

Murl and I will be glad to hear from our friends of Winters at any time. Mail sent to my address will reach him also. And when anyone from down there makes a trip to Chicago we would be very happy to have them visit us.

With the best of wishes for the Enterprise and for our friends of the Winters country,

Very sincerely,—S. V. McCasland.

"The White Sheep" is Goat of Family In New Film

You've often heard of the Black Sheep of the family, but it has remained for Hal Roach, the great comedy producer, to show us what "The White Sheep" looks like. He does it with a profusion of laughs, thrills and quite a bit of romance in his latest novelty feature which bears that name at the Mission tonight, last time. This production is a Pathe picture and features Glenn Hunter, Tryon and Blanche Mehaffey.

The White Sheep is Toby Tyler, the only placid member of the fighting Tyler clan who lived in a little town that straddles the border of two states, half of it in Missouri and the balance rambling over into Kansas. The white sheep is so tame that his black sheep brothers shear his wool on the least provocation.

But when they try to "cut in" on his sweetheart they find that Toby's wits are a good match for their brute strength and he manages, by a clever trick, during a supper party at the girl's home, to so dominate them that, in her eyes, he becomes the fiercest of the fighting Tylers. Some reputation to live up to!

Hal Roach, who wrote and directed the story, has interwoven all the elements of entertainment into the picture. It is melodrama embroidered with satire and filled with laughs and thrills. The play ends with a whirlwind finish that shows the White Sheep usurping all the fighting blood of the family, saving his father from a first-class lynching at the hands of a populace grown tired of his dominance of the town's affairs; pictures a big fight in a wagon as it floats down a raging river and, of course, delivers the girl into his arms with the blessing of the black sheep family, who consider that Toby has redeemed himself.

Farm Bureau Checks to be Sent Out July 15th

Checks totaling $5,772,881.44 will be distributed July 15 by the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association to the members of the cotton co-operative marketing association, representing the final distribution on the last season's deliveries. The distribution of these checks brings the total season's advance to the membership to $35,180,270.76, said Harry Williams, secretary and treasurer of the organization.

"Practically every cotton-producing county in the State will participate in this large distribution," Mr. Williams said, "as out of the deliveries to the association last year only several counties did not have cotton in the association."

These counties, he said, were among the smallest cotton-producing counties of Texas. The balancing of the various cotton pools, ledgers and auditing work is now being done. Within the next few days the writing of about 25,000 checks to cover the distribution will start.

Ice Uses You May Not Know

DO YOU know that medical authorities recommend the ice bag to "relieve pain, quiet the action of the heart and reduce fever"?

The ice bag is sure relief for tonsillitis and sore throat—in scarlet fever it has saved many a life. Ice is frequently prescribed for local application in cases of acute rheumatism—and the Reference Handbook of Medical Science states that pneumonia fatalities are reduced from 10% to 5% when ice is applied to chest and head.

Your family physician knows the curative values of ice. Ask him, too, about the risks run when foodstuffs are not properly protected in a well iced refrigerator.

Public Relations—

where he used to live. On entering I noticed directly opposite the door a large, old-fashioned fire-place, and immediately a picture came to my mind, which I expect everyone of you have seen. What is it? It is a picture of that cabin room, a fire in the fireplace, the light being reflected out over the room; lying on the floor is Lincoln, a young man, and in front of him a book which he is studying by means of the light from the fireplace. The question then comes to our minds, "How did he get the book?" The story is told how he left his cabin home before daylight of a morning and walking over the old Indian trail to Springfield, where he borrowed a book from a law firm, retracing his steps to the settlement, traveling a distance of more than thirty-five miles in one day to get a book. Someone asked him, "Why do you do that?" His reply is recorded, "So that I may be ready for the opportunity when it comes."

In all walks of life there is abundant opportunity. The electric light and power industry has doubled every five years during the past twenty-year period. This has brought greater opportunity to multiplied thousands of our men and women.

It is your task and mine to help arouse the imagination of the men and women in our organization so that they too may be qualified for the opportunities that are constantly open so that there may be created a dominant desire to render the larger service and incidentally to fill the bigger position and receive the larger remuneration.

Someone has well said: "The joy in the gifts of the future can be far stronger than the satisfaction in the offerings of the present. Here lies the spring of the power of imagination. Anticipated joys of the future are the chief motives to action."

Unless our men and women are happy and can actually visualize in their minds just how their efforts are contributing to the happiness, comfort and opportunity of men and women everywhere, they cannot be the best kind of employees. Neither can they reflect through their individual actions the purposes, policies and ideals of the industry they are representing.

How is this informative and educational part of our program carried into effect? By means of carefully planned employees' meetings, courses of study, trade publications and conventions. There are a number of companies with whom the speaker is familiar who bring their employees together at least once a month to discuss matters of mutual interest. A number of these same companies have large numbers of their employees engaged in study courses where the men and women are qualifying for the better positions, where the employees are thinking about the problems of their company, where they are getting so informed that when criticisms are made or questions asked concerning their company, they can give the correct answer in such manner as to develop a friendly interest.

Power of Expression

The third step in this program is to develop the employee's power of expression so that he can stand before an individual or group any time anywhere and tell the things he knows in a pleasing, convincing manner. In our business we have groups of employees at numerous places who are developing themselves along this line of expression and then, as opportunity offers, they go before Rotary and other civic clubs, before schools and colleges, and tell the utility story so that their customers and the public generally may understand that the utility business is a business affected with a public interest, something that concerns the welfare and well-being of every individual.

Spirit of Service

In carrying out this kind of a program, the real spirit of service will be manifested. Dr. Freeman said: "We often mistake facilities for service. Facilities are mechanical things. Service is quite different. Service does not consist so much of facilities as of spiritual qualities. It isn't what a man has in his plant, but it's the spirit he infuses into that plant."

The Route to Happiness

Mr. W. G. Sibley wrote: "All the wild ideas of unbalanced agitators the world over in their ignorant and pitiable quest for happiness through revolution, confiscation of property and crime, cannot overthrow the eternal truth that the one route to happiness through property or government is over the broad and open highway of service; and service always means industry, thrift, respect for authority and recognition of the rights of others."

ognition of the rights of others."

Service

Service has also been defined as that which completely satisfies all concerned.

And still another writes that "Service is the delivery of the commodity plus the sum total of every individual in the organization." If we are in the electric business, service becomes the delivery of kilowatt hours of electrical energy, plus the sum total of every individual in the organization. If we are in the merchandise business, service is the delivery of merchandise, plus the sum total of every individual in the organization. What do these words "plus the sum total" mean? They mean that you and I are obligated to bring to bear on our tasks all of the mental abilities we have, all of the spiritual qualities we have, so that by studying, thinking, planning and striving, we take these powers which have been given to every one of us and draw them out and develop them to the end that we may do a better job tomorrow than we did today.

As one of our young women said, "Service consists very largely in doing the things you don't have to do, the things you are not paid for doing."

Service means a life of growth, of development, of helpfulness. And in the concept of service we learn by personal experience that happiness comes only in this way—only as our employees become enthusiastic and happy in their work, only as they become informed and educated, and only as these two combined are reflected in their personal conduct with the public, either individually or in groups, can the desired Public Relations and good will be realized.

Sam Walter Foss' poem, "The House by the Side of the Road," was inspired by the manifestation of this spirit of service, for one time.

When he was traveling forth over New England hills, he came to a beautiful tree by the road. A hedge was in the background with an opening cut through, and by the side of the opening there was a sign. He went over and read these words:

"Inside is a spring. If you are thirsty, enter and drink."

He went in, found the spring and quenched his thirst. On coming out he noticed a bench underneath the tree and, walking over to it, he saw a second sign with these words:

"If you are tired, sit down and rest."

So he selected an apple, sat down on the bench and enjoyed his rest, thinking the while what the signs might mean. While thus engaged an old man came up the road. When he drew near, Mr. Foss said:

"My friend, can you tell me what these signs here all mean?"

The old man replied, "I reckon I can. You know my wife and I live in the little cottage yonder and one day she said to me, 'John, why don't you cut an opening through that hedge so that passers-by who may be thirsty can enter and drink at our spring?' and I did that; and then she said, 'John, you know the old bench up in the attic? It isn't doing us any good there. Why don't you bring it down and set it beneath the tree so that passers-by who may be tired can sit down and rest in comfort?' and I did that, and at this time of the year we have apples aplenty. We bring up a basket of them each day so that any who care for them can enjoy their rest beneath the tree. And they seem to have served their purpose, for rarely is there a day but what one or several drink at the spring and rest on our bench and eat of our apples, and," the old man continued, "We have been wonderfully happy in the doing of it."

Mr. Foss because of the lesson contained in that story was inspired to write "The House by the Side of the Road." There is one stanza of that poem that goes like this:

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road

Where the race of men go by—
The men who are good and the men who are bad

As good and as bad as I;
I would not sit in the scorners' seat
Or hurl the cynic's ban—

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

And be a friend to man."

And it occurs to me that every man and woman, regardless of their vocation in life, whether they are in the utility business or some other business, are living by the side of the
