High Ideals and Responsibilities of Life Stressed in Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday

The new high school auditorium was crowded to capacity last Sunday morning, when some thousand or more people gathered at 11 o'clock to hear the baccalaureate sermon which was delivered by Elder R. L. Colley, pastor of the local Church of Christ.

During the processional 37 graduates marched in and took seats in the special reserved section, after which the congregation sang the Doxology. The invocation was offered by Rev. Hal F. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church, followed by an anthem rendered by the Glee club. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. H. H. Stephens, after which the orchestra played an offertory. A double quartet number was rendered by Perry Barber, Truett Barber, Ina Mae Owens, Velma Griffis, Mada Elliott, Lavera Neely.

The text for the discourse of the morning was Hebrew 6:1-3, the main basis for the sermon being "Let Us Go On Unto Perfection." The full text of Elder Colley's sermon follows:

"Professor Smith, teachers of the various departments, and honored students of this occasion, my heart is made to rejoice with the solemnity of this hour, because it has only been a few days, seemingly, since I filled the place that you are now filling. The most interesting little animal in the world is a boy. If there is any other little animal more interesting than a boy, it is a girl. The chief difference between boys and girls is: One has 'wiggles', and the other has the 'giggles'. I suppose the reason why boys have so many wiggles is that there is so much for them to do during a life time that they need to have a great supply of wiggles to wiggle past the last 'wiggle'. And I suppose the reason why girls have so many giggles in their 'giggle box' is because there are so many heartaches for a woman to endure and so many beautiful ministries for her to perform that she needs to have a thousand smiles for every day to be able to smile her way through all that life brings to her.

"Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and laying on of hands, and of resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit." That is Hebrews the 6th chapter, verses 1 to 3. The statement, 'Let us go on unto perfection' will be the basis for the remarks this morning. This is an appropriate setting for an occasion like this. Not only for this, but for any organization or people. Paul is setting forth here to the Hebrew people that were discouraged because of their surroundings, realizing they had laid the foundations and were giving up their labors in the work of the Lord he comes to them in this undone condition with the admonition 'Let us go on unto perfection'. If a man is going to be a lawyer, farmer, or banker, these principles must be considered. In this is presented the well known facts, viz: theory and practice.

"If a man is going to be a farmer he must learn the principles of agriculture and the fertility of the soil. That's the theory. Then put that theory in practice by rising up with the voice of the birds and tilling the soil, and the bountiful harvest shall be his.

"In order to become a lawyer, I imagine the same principles are true. A man would first need to learn the principles of law thoroughly, then put them into practice with the conditions that are about us. And so on down the line. Life is pictured in various ways. In the Bible it is pictured as a warfare. Paul said to the church of Ephesus, 'Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore, take up to you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girded about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all fiery darts of the wicked, and take the helm of salvation, the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.' Eph. 6:10-16. There is the same principal. Paul gives the theory and when that it thus learned, unsheath the sword of the Spirit and put the theory into practice.

"This is applicable also to the principle of education. There is a defense one must make, lest he lose his usefulness, by being lured by the things that seem so rosy that would lead him to failure. Likewise, education inspires us with an enthusiasm that will give us power of attack. Again, life is pictured as a race.

"Paul said: 'Wherefore, seeing we are also compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doeth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us'. There is the principle of theory and practice again. First lay aside the weight or all hindering causes, then apply the practice. Run the race, looking to the great goal out yonder. Every person should have a conning tower of the soul where he may climb to the heights of God's vision and take a look down through the wonderful years God has planned for him and then look beyond into the life eternal and get a vision of the glories of God's eternal day. He will see the boundless universe, awaiting its unfolding. He will see new worlds in the making. He will see and feel the majesty of God who so masterfully holds immensity in His hand.

"A great philosophy of life is the conning tower of the soul. If one feels that life holds everything worth while and that eternal life is to be the perfect realization of development of all our powers and possibilities, he sees life hopefully, he works cheerfully, he endures heroically. The thrill that comes in the consciousness that everything great is in the future, may ripen into an abiding assurance.

"Life is pictured as a building. First, lay the foundation, deep and wide, then build thereon a tower that will reach into all eternity. My young friends, you have laid a concrete foundation upon which to build. Now, let us go unto perfection. I would have you know that success is within your reach, yet failure is possible with all. Doubtless, some of you will go out, having completed the course of study prescribed by this institution, with high hopes and eager anticipation expecting success to greet you with open arms at the school house door, only to end in failure.

"We must not remain on the foundation. Paul says: 'Leave it, and let us go on unto perfection.' A man went fishing. While busily engaged without a sound about him except the tinkling of the water he heard a faint bleat over by his side and looking he saw a sheep standing in the water. He and his friend lifted him out and to their utmost surprise he flopped right back into the water. They lifted him out again and took him further away this time; he began to go around and around. The man asked his country friend what was wrong with him. He said, 'There is something wrong with his brain. He has the 'rounders'. He thinks he is going on, but he is just going around and around.' Many of us seem to be like that sheep, only there is something wrong with our hearts. We don't progress.

"Past achievements must be left. Paul could have sat down and claimed the crown on his accomplishments, though that was not sufficient for him. He was in prison at Rome at this time and was an old man, yet he said to those who had lesser vision than himself of the great things, 'Let us go on unto perfection.' A little child asked his mother at bed time to tell him the story of Daniel. The mother said 'No son, I am afraid you will dream of the lions all night.' The child replied, 'No, mother, I'll think of Daniel and forget the lions.' Just so, we should take courage from all the accomplishments of life and forget the mistakes of the past.

"Paul said: 'I do not count myself to have apprehended, but this one thing I do, forgetting those things that are behind, I press forward toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.' This principal will lead us to victory. Why should a man if he drops a bottle of glass on the concrete, get down an dipick up the jagged pieces and hug them to himself until they cut his flesh? Throw them down, leave them, use your mistakes as stepping stones on which to walk to success. Profit by the mistakes of the past, use them as a club with which to beat the brains out of the wicked one in every future attack.

"We've sinned—yes, we've sinned, but God says, 'I will blot out your sins.' Leave them and let us go on unto perfection. Peter sinned grievously, yet he shows his penitence and confesses to his Lord three times that he loved Him—once for each denial. Judas sinned, and let his sin bring him to destruction, but who is it that doesn't believe that the same Lord that said to the thief by His side 'Today shalt thou be with Me in Paradise' and asked God to forgive his murderers while on the cross in that terrible agony with the shadow of death around Him would have said to Judas 'Go child and sin no more' had he come to the foot of the cross and confessed his Lord.

"Education is a transcendently interesting theme. It merits its claims, its achievements, its enjoyments, its honors, and its rewards are not to be told in a few minutes, nor inscribed on a few pages. It is the perfect development and decoration of man, soul and spirit. It develops and adorns his animal, intellectual, moral and spiritual nature. It enthrones reason and conscience within him, and subordinates his animalism to the direction and control of an enlightened conscience, and a purified heart.

"To achieve these, is the great end and intention of a rational, moral and religious education. And, as assumed in our premises, it must be adapted to our whole constitution, our position in the social compact, our eternal destiny in the universe of God. Any of these overlooked, neglected or disparaged, most ordinarily, in the common course of human events, terminate unfortunately and unhappily. The individual pupil is first of all, the loser, but society must, more or less, suffer in every such failure. In fact, the whole earth, with all of its riches, real and personal, was designed by the Creator to be one grand constellation of schools, of every rank and order, for training, developing and perfecting humanity, not merely to eat, drink, frolic, dance and die, but to live, reign, triumph in immortal youth, to bloom and

Roberts Reviews Work of Past Year

In beginning the second term as your mayor and business manager, I wish to review as briefly as possible what we have tried to do during the past term and also what we need to accomplish this term. The greatest drawback to the efficient and economical administration of public business is getting the people to take enough interest in those affairs to know anything about what is going on, the result being that when election time rolls around they have a very vague idea of what would be to the best interest of the town. I want and need your cooperation. I will do my best, but I cannot accomplish what I should unless an overwhelming majority of the good citizens are with me.

At the beginning of the last term we had about $74 in the treasury and there was about $38,000 in short time warrants outstanding that were coming due faster than revenue could possibly be raised to meet them. We needed a better water supply but nothing could be done till this indebtedness was taken care of in some way. The best way to handle the matter seemed to issue enough long term bonds at low interest to take up the warrants but we did not know who held most of the warrants or how to get them but we finally made a deal with a bond house who took the responsibility of getting in all the warrants. The bonds were voted and sold and the warrants all bought in but it took a great deal of time. As soon as possible thereafter the $30,000 water bond issue was voted and sold and the improvements have been carried forward as rapidly as possible. We are just finishing laying nearly four miles of 4, 6 and 8 inch water mains, all but about three quarters of a mile being within the city limits, greatly improving the service as well as reducing the insurance rates on all property affected, 10 per cent. In addition to the above reduction we are getting another reduction on all the property in town by laying the 8 inch main around the fire limits. This saving will more than pay for three pipe in three years and the pipe will last indefinitely.

We have three wells ready to be pumped but pumps have not arrived yet. Two of these wells have a water strata of sand and gravel about 5 feet thick and while being dug, we had to pump about 15,000 gallons a day from each in order for the men to work. The other well will supply about half that amount. Since 15,000 gallons of water is as much as we use in a days time it would seem that either of these strong wells will furnish enough water that we will never be out. But we will never know until we try it. The water is certainly there now. The 10,000 gallon concrete reservoir and the pump house has been completed and the pump that brings the water to town has been installed and tried out. We have pumped a little from the old test hole we had dug last year, but cannot use it much on account of its being partly filled with

Paxton Presides At Lion Luncheon

The regular semi-monthly meeting and luncheon of the Lions' club was held last Tuesday noon at the Methodist church.

After the opening exercises conducted by President Nance, the meeting was turned over to J. Frank Paxton, who was toastmaster for the occasion.

Two numbers by a quartet composed of R. E. Bacon, Fred Bedford, David Bruton and Clarence Gambill were enjoyed very much by the club and guests, after which E. A. Shepperd gave an account of the state convention at McAllen May 10 and 11. Mr. Shepperd was accompanied on this trip by Mrs. Shepperd and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Skaggs.

Supt. A. H. Smith told of the success attained by contestants from Winters high school in the state meet at Austin and said the schools would attempt to reach greater heights in literary and athletics the coming year.

Guests of the club were Mr. Behrens of Abilene and W. A. Blakeley of Dallas.

The program committee for the next meeting is composed of J. M. Skaggs, E. A. Shepperd and A. F. Roberts.

Loses Chickens When Fire Starts From Oil Brooder

W. C. Wittie, who lives about 3 miles east of town, was in the office last Saturday and while he told of his misfortune in losing 150 fine White Leghorn baby chicks when the shed in which he had them caught fire, presumably from the brooder burner. Besides the baby chicks and shed, Mr. Wittie lost several of his flock of old birds, and two Bantams belonging to his children, which he said, he had hauled in his car for more than a thousand miles.

Mrs. W. C. Ford and Miss Ruth Chapman of Gatesville, sisters of Mrs. George C. Hill, are expected to arrive Sunday for several days visit in the editor's home. Miss Chatham is planning to enter Baylor University this summer for a special course in music and teach a class here next fall.

I hope to have the pumps for the wells in a few days.

We are in good shape financially but it seems nearly everybody has something which they think the city ought to do that costs money. Over $300 a month has been added to our expenses within the last year, being the night watchman, the white way, the street sweeping and the fire department. Some think the streets ought to be kept perfectly clean regardless of expense, others think the fire department ought to be kept in perfect shape regardless of expense, others think we should have more street lights and others think we ought to work the streets more, none of which can be done 100 per cent, but each department can only be kept in the best shape possible with the revenue at hand. I have not tried any whirlwind stunts but have striven constantly for improvements in every department. Take the street cleaning for example. I think some of the merchants have thought their personal liberty has been interfered with at times when they were not allowed to put their trash out the back door but we see less paper blowing in the streets and I hope before the end of this term to see our streets the cleanest of any in the state. This same constant pressure will be applied toward improvement along all lines. I ask your help in making a mighty good town better. A. F. Roberts, mayor.

The following notice has been received by members of the Winters Country club: "Meeting of stockholders at Country club this (Friday) evening, May 20, arranging for tournament and bidding on players. Smokes and lots of fun. Come!—R. E. Bacon, secretary"

Mrs. W. C. Bedford left Wednesday for Abilene where she will visit in the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. O'Dell.

Mrs. L. T. Smith, who has taught music here the past year, is planning to study music with Carlos Buhler, of London, England, this summer at Baylor University.

Work Resumed On Test Well Here

Drilling was resumed on the Lou-Ladd No. -, McMillan oil well, about eight miles southeast of Winters, Thursday of last week. Drilling on this well had been suspended some two or three weeks.

Operations were resumed at 1440 feet and it is thought now that the well will be completed without further delay. The contract calls for a 3500 foot hole, and C. R. Dutton of Ranger is the contractor.

SUMMER TRAINING CAMPS

A young army of boys will play soldier for one month this summer in 53 camps conducted by Uncle Sam. The United States will give 33,425 months of military training to its youth. Measured in years that would be 2,785 years and 5 months. Measured in terms of regular army men who serve 30 years to retirement that would be equal to the services of 93 old timers added together.

The boys attend these camps, not under compulsion but voluntarily. They go for the fun of camp life, swimming, riding and the wonderful entertainments planned for them, more than they go for the foot drill. The C. M. T. C. is a great boon to the moral and physical character of our youth.

COMMENDABLE WORK

The work of the Wisconsin state highway commission in eliminating 41 dangerous railroad highway crossings as a part of its 1926 highway program is commendable. This policy of making crossings safer has long been a problem, but it has been only in recent years that such definite action has been taken. Wisconsin has thus set a good example for other state highway commissions to follow in planning their good roads program.

With the increasing amount of travel, and the growing number of bus and truck lines, the crossing has taken an increasing toll in lives and injuries. Every state is confronted with this problem and all are seeking its solution.

PASSING OF TRAMP PRINTER

The old tramp printers who used to drop into the country newspaper offices on an average of twice a year and "clean up shop" are rapidly passing. Only a few of the old fellows are making the rounds. They seldom visit the large shops for the simple reason that they have no use for the modern linotypes and such "contraptions" the big papers use. And their field is fast becoming limited, as so many of the weeklies are installing machines.

COMMENCEMENT

Tens of thousands of young men and women are finishing their formal schooling at this time. All over the country, during the months of May and June, in every high school and college, boys and girls go out as graduates from the halls where the past four years have been spent in search of knowledge.

Thousands of varying personalities are represented—eager, vibrant, wistful, each with a hunger of the soul for something besides life's meat and drink. All are seeking a remedy for the problems of the world. It is of such fabric as this that dreams

GAINING KNOWLEDGE

The rural population declined 649,000 during the last year. Well, that means that 649,000 ex-farmers will soon realize that city dwellers need relief just as much as farmers do.

HAVING POSIES

It is possible to pay $600 for a single bulb, but that does not mean that one must be a millionaire to have posies in the yard.

Herring Girls Carry Off Prizes In Club Contest

Many of the Herring Club boys and girls attended the rally at Ballinger Saturday May 14. It was a red letter day for the Herring club. We were all there on time and thoroughly enjoyed everything on the program, particularly the "pep" meetings, the picture show, the lunch on the lawn, ice cream, the inspection of the bottling plant, and most of all the girls clothing contest. The Herring girls had five girls in the contest and all made a creditable showing. Miss Della Bragg won the first prize, which was a trip to the Short Course at A. & M. college with all expenses paid. Miss Hazelmae Grounds won second prize, a nice box of toilet articles. We are proud of these two Herring girls, and they certainly appreciate the prizes. Most of our girls have done splendid work in our girls club and the boys have done well, but they started late and have not reached the girls, but we feel sure that they will.

We wish to thank the Winters Chamber of Commerce for the donation of the first prize, and Higginbotham Bros. of Ballinger who gave the second prize. We assure them that the prizes are highly appreciated and we are glad to know that Rannels county has such public spirited citizens as they are. We also wish to thank our County Agent, C. W. Lembery and our Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. Hollingworth for the splendid work with our boys and girls and for the enjoyable time which we had last Saturday in Ballinger. We expect to do more and better work during the remainder of the year than we have done.—Reporter.

which come true are made. It is always youth which is ready to attempt the impossible.

RESPECT AND SUPPORT

Citizens of the United States have never made the religious convictions of a candidate for president a test of his qualifications, therein conforming with the constitutional provision which prohibits such a test. Three of the greatest of the presidents belonged to no church—Jefferson, to whom more than any other man religious liberty is due; Jackson and Lincoln. But, whether religious or not, whether religious or not, religion has always had the respect and support of American presidents.

EXCEPTIONAL PUG

Some of the scribes are said to be annoyed because Gene Tunney dodges the spotlight of publicity. Well most of the fans won't greatly mind—so long as that's the only thing he dodges. "The greatest heavyweight of all time," is the way one sports editor describes the present king of the heavyweights. He says it looks like Gentleman Gene is seated on the fistic throne for years.

Firestone Helps Tires By Proper Repair Work

Through the development of the new and improved system of tire repairs, the national campaign to conserve tire mileage is assured of greater success, according to Mr. Brown of the Nance-Brown Motor company, local Firestone dealers.

Mr. Brown pointed out that the individual motorist is charged with his share of the responsibility for aiding in the campaign started by Harvey S. Firestone against the foreign rubber monopoly and which is now being followed up by governmental authorities.

"Only secondary in importance to maintaining the proper air pressure in tires is that of having a good repair made when trouble develops," Mr. Brown said.

"Tire repairs have now been made to keep pace with the modern methods of tire manufacturing. In fact, they are based on the same principles. Firestone, in developing the Balloon tire, recognized that the old methods of tire repair would be unsatisfactory for the thin sidewall, highly flexible balloon.

"Following three years of experimental work by Firestone engineers, the new repair equipment was developed and is now in use in shops throughout the United States.

"Under this new system the injured section of the tire is worn down. Every trace of the injury is removed. Then ply by ply the tire is rebuilt with new material—rebuilt in the same manner the tire was originally constructed at the factory. Even the tread is reproduced faithfully and the balance and flexibility of the tire are unaffected.

"The tire is cured by special molds and the heat located at the point of the repair. This prevents overcuring. There are no weak spots left at this point and the repair becomes permanent. Not only are the Firestone methods the best for Balloons but they are equally as satisfactory for high pressure tires.

"We have installed the Firestone method and our workmen have been trained at the Firestone factories in the proper use of this equipment."

Grow Them RIGHT

Growing mash is just as necessary for growing chicks as buttermilk starting feed is for baby chicks. Neither an exclusive grain ration nor laying mash will do a satisfactory job of growing good pullets. Grain puts on fat and slows up growth. Laying mash forces early growth too fast and over develops the reproductive organs and forces pullets to lay before they have attained full size.

Growing mash is not expensive to use; it costs but little more than laying mash and the results obtained makes it far cheaper to use than anything else.

To use laying mash or an exclusive grain ration means that a high percentage of the pullets will be culls and that means a serious loss to the poultryman right at the time he can least afford it; when eggs are high in price.

Large Attendance At Club Meetings At Ballinger

The joint rally of the boys and girls clubs of Runnels county which was called to meet by Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth, home demonstration agent, and C. W. Lehmborg, county agriculture agent, was well attended at Ballinger last Saturday.

Possibly 500 boys and girls, members of the rural clubs and their parents attended.

The first meeting was held in the district court room of the court house and was opened when Mr. Lemberg introduced Reverend J. H. McClain, pastor of the Baptist church at Ballinger, who conducted the opening exercises.

J. D. Motley, secretary of the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce, made a splendid welcome address, followed by a "pep" meeting and a parade of the boys and girls led by the Ballinger Booster band. A short time was spent in giving yells.

Through the courtesy of the management of the Palace and Queen theatres and the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce an educational program was presented at the picture show. Two reels were shown of the poultry development in West Texas, one of dairying and one of hog raising, also a two reel comedy.

Following the matinee the boys and girls had their contests and demonstrations. The boys had a grain and stock judging contest and the girls had a clothing contest.

The winners and awards were as follows:

First, Miss Della Bragg, Herring, free trip to Texas A. & M. Short Course, given by the Winters Chamber of Commerce; second Miss Hazel Mae Grounds, Herring, set of toilet articles consisting of seven pieces, given by Higginbotham Bros. & Co., Ballinger; third, Miss Eddie Short, Drasco, a Chinelle rug, given by King-Holt Furniture company, Ballinger.

Honorable mention was made of the work of Miss Grace Bragg, Herring 4-H club, and Miss Mildred Smith, Wingate 4-H club.

Lunch was spread at 12:30 o'clock and the general assembly was called at 1:30 with Mr. Lehmborg, presiding.

Short talks were made by Judge Trimmer on "Value of Club Work to Boys and Girls"; Mrs. R. A. Nicholson on "Appropriateness of Dress"; Mrs. Barnes on "How to Make Yourself Beautiful"; Reverend Hooper on "Cooperation in Club Work."

C. R. Robertson, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, presented the awards to the winners in the Girls 4-H Clubs Clothing contests with the awards they had won for having the best dresses on display.

At the close of the program ice cream was served to the visitors and the management of the Ballinger Cocoa Cola Bottling company invited the boys and girls to visit the plant and each one was given a bottle of soad water and a souvineer pencil.

Altogether the rally was quite a success and Mr. Lehmborg and Mrs. Hollingsworth were well pleased with the attendance and the interest shown by the club members as well as the parents.

MISSISSIPPI SCHOOLS ASK TEXAS FOR HELP
Austin, Texas.—S. M. N. Marrs, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Thursday received a telegram from W. F. Bond, Superintendent of Education of Mississippi, appealing for financial aid to rehabilitate high schools damaged by floods in the rural sections of that State. It is estimated it will cost $500 to $1000 to rehabilitate each consolidated high school plant in the flooded districts.

"Will public school students and college boys and girls of your state help one particular school?" Mr. Bond's appeal read.

"This appeal is given to the public in order that students throughout Texas may have the opportunity of contributing," Mr. Marrs said. "It is suggested that local authorities send contributions prior to June 1 to Miss Mary Shipp Sanders, Third Assistant State Superintendent, at Austin.

Johnnie Johnson of Post has accepted a position here with Gardner Bros. and assumed his new duties the first of the past week. Mr. Johnson was in the employ of this firm before going to Post and his many friends are glad to know he is back.

Woman Farm Speaker Here Soon

MISS SUSAN C. LANDON

C. W. Buchanan, field manager of the Texas Farm Bureau for Runnels county, was in the city Monday making arrangements for the coming of Miss Susan C. Landon, educational director of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association, who is to speak here on the evening of Tuesday, May 31.

Miss Landon is well informed in her work and on more than one occasion has addressed conventions of the state organization.

The speaker has been a teacher in the country schools and has been extensively in obtaining material which would be of interest to women of the rural sections of Texas. Her subjects will be along the line of rural home community life.

In other cities and counties

Texas she has visited this year large crowds have heard her discuss the many problems that daily confront the farmer, his wife and his family.

Fourteen meetings are to be held while Miss Landon is in Runnels county, and she is expecting large crowds at every meeting. Mr. Buchanan is advertising the coming of

Local Trade Vital To Growth of Town

The chief argument in favor of home trade is the fact that it not only rebounds to the benefit of all residing in the adjacent trade territory which is a part of every community but pays in dollars and cents. Every dollar sent away to build up business in some big city is just that much taken away from the resources of the home community.

If people will only figure up the incidental costs and conveniences occasioned by sending out of town for anything that can be purchased in their home town will readily see that it pays to trade at home. It is customary to ignore such items, but they are there just the same and are part of the cost of the goods that are purchased in that manner. For instance the cost of a trip to the city hotel bill, time wasted away from employment, goods bought that are not really needed, higher prices actually paid for the goods on account of the stupendous overhead of the big city stores. All this means cost and must be charged against the purchase.

Warns Cotton Planters Against Large Acreage

As chairman of the executive committee appointed by the Southwest Cotton Conference and intrusted with the conduct of a campaign for cotton acreage reduction, I deem it my duty to issue the following statement. It is my own personal opinion and does not represent the view of any other member of the committee. For lack of funds the committee closed its office at Memphis, April 1, and no meeting of the committee has been held since.—Tait Butler.

In the public press have appeared statements that little cotton could be planted this year in the large overflowed areas of Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Believing that these statements represent facts, it is claimed by some that other sections of the Cotton Belt will increase their acreage, on the erroneous assumption that there will be a short crop, because of the lessened production in the Mississippi valley, and that cotton will consequently bring a big price next fall.

Any cotton planter who accepts this reasoning and contemplates increasing his cotton acreage above what he had intended, will do well to consider carefully the following facts.

First, there will not be anything like as large a forced reduction of the cotton acreage in the Mississippi Valley as many seem to think. Some low land which was planted to cotton last year and made a good crop because of two successive dry years, will not be planted to cotton this year, but the amount of this acreage will not be large enough to materially reduce the total acreage or production. The experience of planters after other overflows shows that cotton planted as late as June 1, or even five to ten days after, has usually made good yields. In fact, the records show that the yields per acre after the overflow have been larger than in average years when no overflow occurred.

Due to the increased fertility of the soil from the sediment deposited by the water and the fact that there is plenty of moisture and the weather is warm, cotton planted late after an overflow comes up quickly to a good stand, grows off rapidly, and as stated, usually makes better than an average yield per acre. Perhaps 50 per cent of the cotton planted is usually planted too early for the best results in the absence of boll weevils. Late-planted cotton is not likely to be bothered by the weevils this year until after the general migration occurs, for the warmer has probably killed the most of those that went through the winter alive.

As stated there will be some reduction in the cotton acreage in the overflow area, but the reduction compared with the whole acreage will be slight. It now appears reasonably certain that the overflowed lands north of Vicksburg, that are dry enough to plant cotton an average year will be free from water sufficiently early to permit of planting between May 15 and June 5 and early maturing varieties planted before June 1 on the overflowed area will probably make average yields, unless there is an unusually early frost.

Cotton planters in other sections should, therefore, not be misled by the false impression given out that the cotton acreage in the Mississippi Valley will be decreased enough to materially affect the price of cotton grown in other sections.

Moreover, even if the acreage planted in the Mississippi Valley were greatly reduced, this reduction would not affect the price of the short staple cotton grown in other sections. Most of the cotton grown in that section is of the long staple variety. A large reduction in this area might increase the price of long staple cotton, but it would not affect the price of short staple cotton. Even without any increase in the acreage over that intended, an ample supply of short cotton will be produced in those sections which grow short staple cotton only, and those who increase their acreage in the belief that the price is going to be materially affected are doomed to disappointment.

I do not believe that any large numbers of cotton planters in the hill or upland sections will make the mistake of increasing their acreage, because of the floods in other sec-

It is possible to pay $600 for a single bulb, but that does not mean that one must be a millionaire to have posies in the yard.

Herring Girls Carry Off Prizes In Club Contest

Many of the Herring Club boys and girls attended the rally at Ballinger Saturday May 14. It was a red letter day for the Herring club. We were all there on time and thoroughly enjoyed everything on the program, particularly the "pep" meetings, the picture show, the lunch on the lawn, ice cream, the inspection of the bottling plant, and most of all the girls clothing contest. The Herring girls had five girls in the contest and all made a creditable showing. Miss Della Bragg won the first prize, which was a trip to the Short Course at A. & M. college with all expenses paid. Miss Hazelmae Grounds won second prize, a nice box of toilet articles. We are proud of these two Herring girls, and they certainly appreciate the prizes. Most of our girls have done splendid work in our girls club and the boys have done well, but they started late and have not reached the girls, but we feel sure that they will.

We wish to thank the Winters Chamber of Commerce for the donation of the first prize, and Higginbotham Bros. of Ballinger who gave the second prize. We assure them that the prizes are highly appreciated and we are glad to know for I believe that they have learned that the only chance we have for fair prices this fall is from a reduced acreage from that planted in 1926. In fact, there is little chance for even fair prices for the 1927 crop, and therefore no planter should increase his cotton acreage, and fail to raise his feed supplies. To increase the cotton acreage at repairs, the national campaign conserve tire mileage is assured greater success, according to M. Brown of the Nance-Brown Motor company, local Firestone dealers.

Mr. Brown pointed out that the individual motorist is charged with his share of the responsibility for aiding in the campaign started by Harvey S. Firestone against the foreign rubber monopoly and which is now being followed up by governmental authorities.

"Only secondary in importance to maintaining the proper air pressure in tires is that of having a good repair made when trouble develops," Mr. Brown said.

"Tire repairs have now been made to keep pace with the modern methods of tire manufacturing. In fact, they are based on the same principles. Firestone, in developing the Balloon tire, recognized that the methods of tire repair would be unsatisfactory for the thin sidewall, highly flexible balloon.

"Following three years of experimental work by Firestone engineers the new repair equipment was developed and is now in use in shops throughout the United States.

"Under this new system the injured section of the tire is worn down. Every trace of the injury is removed. Then ply by ply the tire is rebuilt with new material—rebuilt in the same manner the tire was originally constructed at the factory. Even the tread is reproduced faithfully and the balance and flexibility of the tire are unaffected.

"The tire is cured by special molds and the heat located at the point of the repair. This prevents overcuring. There are no weak spots left at this point and the repair becomes permanent. Not only are the Fire-the expense of his feed will prove disastrous in 1927, as it always has. Let no one fool himself that the overflowed area will make so little whole.

Mesdames Lloyd and Meeks Entertain Martha Class

A lovely party of the past week was that given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lloyd last Tuesday evening, when Mesdames Lloyd and C. G. Meeks entertained the members of the Martha class in a business and social meeting.

The guests were served punch by Mrs. Joe Childers who presided at the punch bowl. Clever decorations carrying out the class colors of pink and green were reflected in lights placed at the base of the bowl making a pretty effect.

Following a short business meeting several contests proved a happy diversion until a basket laden with gifts for "Pals" was brought into the room and exchanged and the "Pals" revealed.

The hostesses served a dainty refreshment plate of brick ice cream and angel food cake with coronations as plate favors.

Members present included Mesdames Pete Davis, S. H. Davidson, Frank Johnson, Clarence Gambill, Fred Ballard, C. C. Benson, R. L. Stokes, Floyd Smith, C. R. Robertson, W. V. Whitley, A. L. ### Colored Folks Want Addition In Winters

Rev. Miles W. Jenkins (colored) of Abilene, field missionary of the Baptist Missionary and Educational Convention of Texas, spent a few days in the city the past week in the interest of securing an addition to the city of Winters for the use of the local colored population.

A petition was circulated among the colored folks to ascertain if they favored the proposition and to date bears some fifty signatures. It is claimed that if an addition was set apart for the negroes, a church and school building erected, and a nine-months school term secured, the better class of colored people would buy lots in the addition on the installment plan, and the result would be the attracting of the better class of negroes who would become taxpayers.

A site for the proposed addition has been selected west of the Cotton Oil mill and it is thought the cooperation of Mr. Percy Jones, of Abilene, who owns this land, can be enlisted in the project.

yourself by your bootstraps. There is no easy way to secure goods for a less figure than they can be supplied by the experienced business man of Winters.

Perhaps nothing is studied any closer than the retailing of merchandise and you can safely figure that your live home merchant is working hard to secure the best of merchandise to place before his customers at the lowest possible prices consistent with sound business principles. And in this day of keen competition there are few business men who do not run close to the danger line in fixing prices that will attract trade and meet competition anywhere. It is only necessary to use common sense in dealing with these problems. The field is open to all who may wish to enter any line of business, and if there were big profits to be made that condition would not last for every opening for business is carefully searched out, and competition has reduced everything to the level of lowest possible prices.

5 reasons

Why YOU Should Own Your Home

First—You cease paying for the upkeep of another man's property. Money that went to the landlord each month will now be invested in your own home. Owning a home makes you independent.

Second—A home with its grounds provides the only proper environment for rearing children. Their playmates are the children of other homeowners. Owning a home makes you a better father.

Third—Similarly, you choose your neighbors. Instead of being people you must tolerate, they become friends you want to know. Owning a home brings you friends.

Fourth—You are afforded the opportunity of living in a truly residential section; trees, lawns and flowers in place of noisy streets. Owning a home brings wholesome surroundings.

Fifth—Being a landowner, you enter more wholeheartedly into the affairs of your community. Its interests are yours. Owning a home makes you a better citizen.

WHAT'S DOING In West Texas

Amarillo—Through its weekly traffic bulletin, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has directed attention of its members to the meeting of the Southwest Shippers advisory board which will be held in this city May 21, the day following the meeting of the Panhandle Grain Dealers association. The shippers board gathering will be the fourth annual meeting and the fifteenth regular meeting of that body, and all members are urged to attend.

Rails—A modern sanitary sewer system is being installed here, with two ditch digging machines on the job. Four modern residences have just been started and others will be started in the next few days. A paving project will be taken up soon. Conditions in the section are ideal and the general outlook is good.

Stamford—The May issue of "West Texas Today" off the press May 14 was in the form of the ninth annual convention program number, and contained the yearly report of the president. Copies of the official West Texas Chamber of Commerce magazine were distributed to convention visitors at Wichita Falls.

Carlsbad—Four big bodies of visitors will see the famed Carlsbad Caverns during May. These are: The State Medical association, Dallas Trade Trippers, New Mexico-West Texas District United Christian Missionary workers, West Texas Geological Society members with the Bureau of Economics of Texas University. In addition to this, increasing numbers of tourists will visit the noted caves.

Lockney—Work will start immediately on erection of a main building for the Lockney Cotton Oil company. The contract price for the structure is approximately $75,000. In addition to this building, seed houses, ware houses and other elements are to be built to the plant.

Eastland—June 1 has been set as the tentative starting date for construction of Eastland's $300,000

Conelley Hotel. Final plans and specifications for the building have been received and approved by the local committee, and preparations are being made to receive bids.

Snyder—Snyder's new $25,000 structure for a combination round and square bale gin is complete here. Machinery will be moved into the new plant at once.

WHY PAY MORE

LOW RATES
for time payments
on these cars

ANY FAMILY entitled to credit may buy a General Motors car and pay for it while using it, under the GMAC Plan.

When time payments first became an accepted form of car purchase, General Motors organized its own finance company, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, to make sure that the sale of its cars on time would be in the buyer's interest and that the finance charges would be fair.

GMAC rates have always been low; and the last reduction has saved General Motors' customers more than $12,000,000.

The General Motors line includes "a car for every purse and purpose"—a suitable model for every income. You can buy it out of income, paying no more than the cash delivered price, plus only the low GMAC financing charge. And the whole transaction is so conducted as to keep your goodwill and satisfaction.

CLIP THE COUPON

USE THE GMAC PLAN to enjoy a new car now. Use it to get a better car for what you plan to spend. Have General Motors quality. Share in the economies of volume production. Look over the list of General Motors cars below. See which car suits your purse. Then check and mail the coupon. We will send you full information about that car and about the fair, low-cost GMAC Plan of paying for it out of income. Don't wait. Clip the coupon and mail it TODAY.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pauline Malligate, strangely absent from her home in London for 18 months is believed to be "Mrs. Creswold" mistress of the Moat, a mystery house in Yorkshire, not far from the country place of Mrs. Bertha Northwood, friend of the Malligates.

Henry Emerson, wealthy stepfather of the girl, has now vanished mysteriously from a summer resort where he had been staying with his wife and another stepdaughter, Lorna.

Dr. Julian Emerson, claiming to be related to the missing man has taken Lorna and her mother to a strange estate in the suburbs, known as the "Mulberry House" where he has been holding them captive. He told Lorna that her stepfather had no right to marry her mother, but Lorna has told her mother that Henry Emerson was taken to London because of sudden illness.

Gerald Craven, Lorna's lover has joined with Mrs. Northwood and Noel Shannon, British war ace in tracing the missing family. Through information obtained from Ellen Storey, a maid at the Moat, they have planned to go from London to Paxton Common. There fortune gives Shannon the opportunity of offering his services to Julian Emerson, who is willing to pay handsomely for a quick trip to Yorkshire.

Craven, remaining at Paxton has made his way over the wall into the grounds of Mulberry House, where he finds Lorna. Following an affectionate meeting, the couple take refuge in a wood shed near the house where Craven tells her of Ellen Storey, "The Moat," the strange woman in charge and his suspicion that her stepfather is imprisoned there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Is it Pauline, my sister, who is there at that funny old house! Pauline, who calls herself Mrs. Creswold! Pauline who is helping to keep poor stepfather a prisoner! Oh, Jerry! This goes to my heart of hearts!"

"I don't think she is doing whatever she is supposed to do willing, my dear one," Craven hastened to say.

In her turn she poured out the story of all that had happened.

"What Shannon and I think, Lorna, darling, and we have talked it out very considerably today, is that you are of great value to Julian Emerson—that in some way your father must have made over a great sum of money to you and that they want to get control of that money and also of much more through you."

"Listen!" she said in a whisper, "don't you hear someone coming?"

"But dear stepfather has never said anything to me about money, Jerry. Of course, he has been generous itself. You know he has lavished all kinds of things on me? He opened a banking account for me only a week or two ago, but I know exactly how much he put in there. It was 500 pounds. Of course that signifies a great deal of money to me, but it isn't enough to make people do the dreadful things that they are doing, is it?"

With this Craven agreed, but he had another theory.

"I don't suppose he intended you to know, Lorna, but I daresay he wanted to make provision for you in case anything happened to him. Moreover, of course, he must have settled a big sum of money on your mother when they married. I suppose she had her bank account also?"

"Yes," said Lorna, "but I am convinced that she has no more money at the bank than I have."

Then Craven put a very important question to her.

"Lorna, dearest, can you remember the name of a firm of lawyers who acted for Mr. Emerson at the time of your mother's marriage?"

She answered him promptly. "Of course. It was Wilde & Pettigrew, and their offices are in Gray Inn. A very nice head clerk attended and witnessed the marriage. Then of course, there are stepfather's bankers.

She gave him the name of the bank.

"And he also had a great friend," she added, "who is the head of a big shipping firm, Mr. Macnaughten. It was this Mr. Macnaughten who gave us a reference for Mr. Emerson when he came to live with us in the first instance, Jerry! What you have to do is to go back to London and get in touch immediately with these people—the lawyers, the bank and the shipping friend."

But Craven clung to her.

"My darling, how can I leave you, knowing that you will perhaps be exposed to bodily ill treatment and knowing that your mother is distracted about your stepfather."

Suddenly Lorna ceased speaking and crouched closer to her lover.

"Listen!" she said in a whisper, "don't you hear someone coming?" She drew him back still further into the shadows of the hut, and they stood with their hearts beating wildly, listening with intent.

Sure enough there was the sound of footsteps on the gravel path beyond, and then they heard someone pause, and then a whisper in a low vibrant voice, calling Lorna's name. The girl drew a deep breath and stepped forward.

"I am here, Mrs. Brown," she said in her quiet voice.

The woman turned to her eagerly.

"Oh, Miss, I was getting no nervous about you! I want you to get upstairs and into your room before Kassan and that brute come back from the village. They'll have been drinking heavily and they might insult you."

"I'll come almost at once, Mrs. Brown. Don't leave mother—go back to her. But stop, wait a minute. That other man who came this afternoon. That man called Carter. What is he? Who is he?"

Mrs. Brown gave a shrug of her shoulders.

"Poor wretch. I'm not afraid of him—I don't know why he has come here. Only you needn't fear him. He won't harm you—he hasn't got the strength to harm anyone, he far more likely to take your part."

"Well, now please go back," Lorna urged. "Go back to mother. Has she changed at all?"

"She's in just the same condition," said the housekeeper. "I have everything ready, and I'll give her a little beef tea as soon as ever she shows signs of consciousness. But won't you come with me, miss?"

"No! I think it is better if you go back by yourself. I'll be indoors almost directly."

Whether Mrs. Brown realized that there was some purpose working in Lorna's mind could not be told but anyway she turned and went swiftly back towards the house as desired and as she disappeared Lorna ran back to her lover in the hut.

"You heard what she said? Now won't you go, Jerry? Oh my dear one, I entreat you to go. See! it is your duty to do this! These people who can take care of us must be got at as soon as possible. And you may rely on me—I will go upstairs—I will sleep in mother's room tonight, and I will lock the door. We have Mrs. Brown on our side now, and I don't think they dare to do anything to her because they know she is important to Julian Emerson. God knows how it is she is working in with such a man! I suppose he must have some hold over her, but she is of good creature, of that I am now very sure! Now hurry—hurry, the moon is getting up and the night is so clear that you must not stay too long and risk being seen, Jerry."

The storm which Noel Shannon had predicted must come and which had passed off Paxton Common, traveling elsewhere, lay ahead of him as he flew northwards. In fact, about half an hour after he had started, he was in the thick of the hail and the rain almost before he realized it. And he guessed rather than knew, for it was impossible for him to look behind, that his passenger was in a very agony of nerves and fright.

As the machine he was flying was not a very large one Shannon was determined to land instead of going straight ahead, and after a little he began to take bearings. They seemed to be encircled about by mountains of storm laden vapor. The dials registered about 300 feet, and it was not easy for Shannon to see what lay below, but he planed down cautiously.

The landing was a bit rough, so rough in fact that the passenger collapsed in his seat and sat huddled up in an almost unconscious condition. It gave Shannon a considerable amount of satisfaction to see one whom he already realized as a dangerous individual so stricken with fear as to be knocked out so completely.

The rain had stopped and the sun was coming out. It was very wet on this rough ground, but despite this fact odds and ends of people came running out, attracted as they always are by the sight of an aeroplane down.

Perhaps the fact that he was being stared at roused Julian Emerson, or the sound of voices penetrated through the veil of unconsciousness which had fallen upon him; in any case he opened his eyes but though he struggled to sit up he was so feeble he had to be lifted out of the aeroplane, and then supported on the shoulders of two men, since his legs refused to support him. Then, becoming acutely conscious that he was the center of attention to a crowd that was increasing, he pulled himself up and turned to Shannon.

"Where are we?" he queried of Shannon harshly. "Have you brought me to where you said you would?"

Next Chapter: Shannon arrives at Yorkshire minus his passenger.

fructify forever in the eternal Paradise of God.

"Demonstheese had a great vision of becoming an orator. Yet, every obstacle as high as mountains towered before him. He even stuttered, his speech was broken, his tones harsh, yet that was his goal, fixed in the days of his youth. What shall he do? Shall his great purposes be forfeited because of the unfortunate conditions? Not for one moment will he permit these obstacles to hinder him from attaining the high ideals of the days of his youth. History tells us he went out to the seashore, amid the roaring waves, filled his mouth with pebbles and with that undying courage continued to struggle with the conditions that seemed to be against him as an orator. Through his continued practice, by and by he attained that ambition that was born in a youthful heart and he goes on record as the greatest orator this world has ever known.

"When God made man he honored him with His own image pressed upon his brow, gave him the ruling powers over all other creatures. Man has a mind like God and can be educated and it is His eternal purpose that we shall be educated and developed, not only to live here and to plow into the great undeveloped accomplishments that have not yet dawned upon the heart of men, but that we be fitted to have comradeship with God himself. Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God! Therefore, the world knoweth us not because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be Him, for we shall see Him as He is."

"The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirits that we are the children of God, then if children of God, heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ. The children of God shall dwell with Him in Glory. This is the perfection to which we should press on to attain. We make our lives here and hereafter just what we want them to be. Every man is the architect of his own house, his own temple of fame. If he builds a great and glorious one the merit and bliss are his. If he rears a polluted, vice-haunted den to himself, the shame and misery belong.

"The warp of life is given us, but the woof we furnish. Let us go on unto perfection.

"The poet has beautifully expressed it in 'The Open Door':
"Open the door let in the ir; the winds are sweet and the flowers fair;
Joy is abroad in the world today, if the door is wide, it may come this way.

Open the door, let in the sun; He hath a smile for everyone.
He hath made the raindrops gold and gems,
He may change our tears to diadems.

Open the door of the soul, let in strong, pure thoughts that will banish sin,
They will grow with grace divine; And their fruit shall be sweeter than those of the vine.

Open the door of the heart; let in sympathy sweet for strangers.
It will make the halls of the heart so fair,
That angels may enter unaware.

Delegates Back From W. T. C. C. Convention W. F.

A splendid delegation accompanied the Winters Junior band to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Wichita Falls this week where, according to all reports, a good showing was made. Even though the band did not place in the contest, those who heard it assure us that the band did credit to the town. Competition was very keen throughout the contest, especially among the younger organizations.

Those attending the convention were Jno. Q. McAdams, C. L. Cooke, A. P. Jordan, A. O. Strother, T. B. Poe, W. L. Pratt, R. I. Collinsworth, Mrs. C. L. Green and C. R. Robertson.

This section of West Texas was well recognized as was shown by the fact the next president of the greatest regional chamber of commerce in the world is an Abilene citizen. R. W. Haney was elected as the president of the organization for next year. Two Runnels county citizens were placed on the executive committee, Scott H. Mack of Bollinger was elected to that body, while Jno. Q. McAdams of this city was reelected to serve for another year as a member of the governing body.

Noel Reid returned home from Dallas last Sunday evening. He went to accompany his sister to Winters to visit relatives and friends.

L. B. Townsend of the undertaking department of Higginbotham Bros. and company attended the three day convention of the Texas State Board of Embalmers which met at El Paso Tuesday and continued through Thursday.

A tiny little girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Garrett Monday, May 16. Mother and little daughter are doing nicely.

White Deer—Road signs have been placed recently at strategic points on highways entering this city. This is in line with a road sign placement campaign inaugurated by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which advocates establishment of road markers and mileage information in order to save strangers perplexion, loneliness and loss of time. The White Deer Chamber of Commerce sign committee is taking action at this time to prepare for the tourist season now opening.

Crowell—Extension of sidewalks is under way on North Main street. This development gives the city nearly a mile of pavement from the northern portion of town to the depot.

Lanesa—A Dawson County Poultry association has been perfected here, and committees are now at work on problems of handling and marketing eggs. Five officials make up the executive corps of the organization.
