Woman Evangelist Speaks Sunday

The New President Lions International

Miami, Fla., June 18.—Irving L. Camp of Johnstown, Pa., was today unanimously elected president of the International Association of Lions Clubs in the convention assembled at Miami, Fla.

Mr. Camp was born in Waterbury, Conn., and has since that time lived in New York, Long Island, N. Y. and Johnstown, Pa., where he now resides.

He began his business career as a clerk in his father's retail coal yard and since then has devoted his entire time to either the production or distribution of coal.

Mr. Camp is president of the Producers Coal & Coke Company of Johnstown, Pa., and is an officer or director of other coal mining and distributing companies. He has also served as director of important political, charitable, social and civic bodies in both his city and state.

The newly elected president of Lions International is a member of the Methodist church, Masons, Odd Fellows and Elks.

President Camp believes that every man owes society an obligation, which can be paid only by service to others and he himself is an example of the busy business man leading in civic affairs.

Mrs. Felix Cortez, 32 years old, wife of Felix Cortez, who lives on the Dr. Tinkle place seven miles east of town, died last Friday and was buried Saturday in the old cemetery. She leaves, besides her husband and other relatives, six small children.

Jim Hobbs of Hillsboro came in Wednesday to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. A. J. Watson.

Family Reunion Well Attended

The family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Jackson was enjoyed by those who were fortunate enough to be one of the family.

The house was decorated with cut flowers and pot plants and the occasion was both a reunion and birthday dinner for Miss Willie Fay Brown, who received many nice and useful gifts.

The hostess in her usual way had prepared a wonderful dinner and Mr. Jackson said he was glad his brother-in-law was a doctor and was present, for fear some one got sick.

Those present were Dr. and Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. W. T. Brown and daughter, Miss Willie Lane, of Coleman; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Newman and mother, Mrs. Dodgen of Santa Anna; Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Brown and daughters, Willie Fay, Mary Lou, Anna and Christine, of Winters; Mrs. Sue Jackson, Mrs. Dotson, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Brunson and children.

The day will long be remembered by all that were present.—One present.

Mrs. A. J. Watson Passed Away Wed.

After a lingering illness of many weeks Mrs. Susan Agnes Watson, wife of A. J. Watson, died at the family home Wednesday afternoon. Taken ill several weeks ago her condition failed to respond to treatment and she steadily grew worse despite all that loving care and medical skill could accomplish.

Deceased was born December 25, 1878 in Arkansas, and died June 22, 1927, at Winters. She moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Davis, to Texas when she was twelve years of age, and located in Hill county. She was married to A. J. Watson at Itasca, in Hill county, in 1899 and to this union six children were born. With her husband and family they moved to Runnels county in 1905, and have lived here for the past twenty-two years. She was a kind and indulgent wife and mother, and truly will be greatly missed in the home made lonely by her going. She became a member of the Christian church in 1910.

Surviving her besides her husband are four daughters, Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Winters; Mrs. C. E. Gannaway, Tahoka; Mrs. T. B. Hairston, Winters; Mrs. R. L. Graves, O'Donnell; one son, C. S. Watson, Winters; two sisters, Mrs. T. M. Mayo, Winters, and Mrs. Pleas Boggan, Baird; and four brothers, W. C. Davis, Littlefield; E. C. Davis, Dallas; A. W. Davis, Waurika, Okla.; and O. C. Davis, Winters.

Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by Elder A. H. Clark, assisted by Rev. Hal F. Smith, and Rev. Gid. J. Bryan, and the body was laid to rest in the old cemetery here.

Pall bearers were L. Labenske, H. Mosely, Oma Robertson, Parker Floyd, Frank Paxton and Jim Davidson.

Card of Thanks

I want to thank my friends through this column for the kindnesses and sympathy shown me and my family during the illness and in the death of my wife. The floral offerings were appreciated very much. I also thank the doctors who attended her for their efforts to save her, and the undertakers and priest for their services.—Felix Cortez.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Patrick left yesterday afternoon for San Angelo, where Mr. Patrick goes to attend a Chevrolet dealers convention.

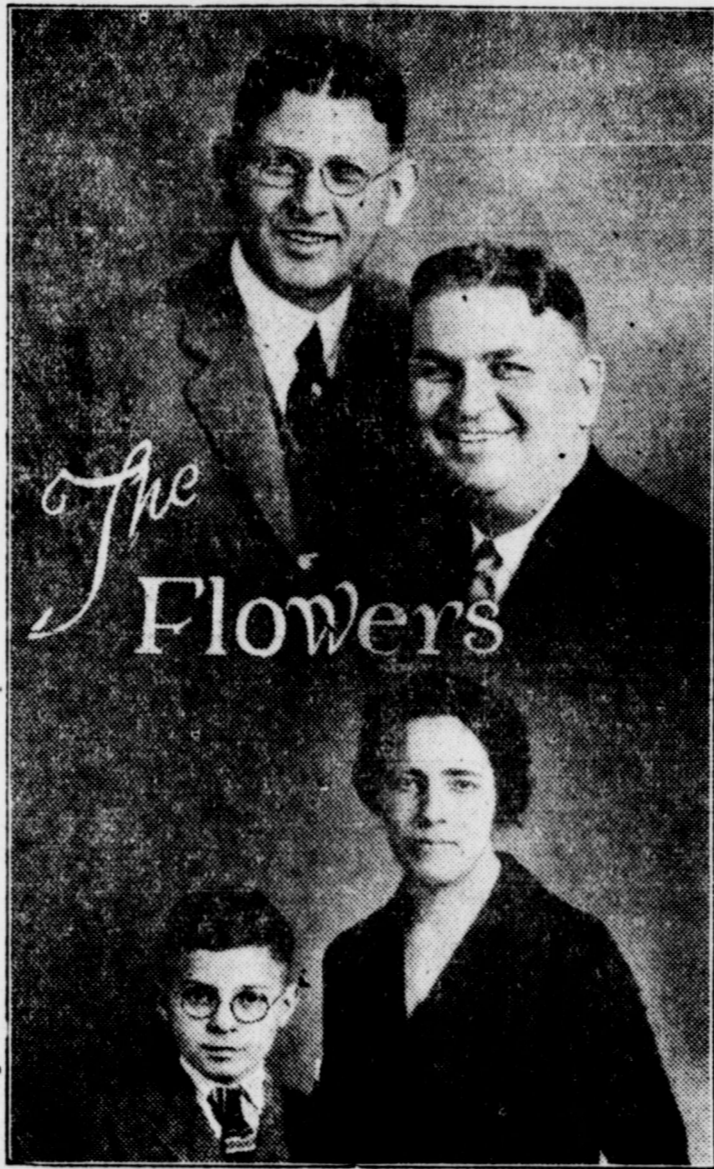

Mrs. J. A. Allen and baby, James, after a pleasant visit in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Forbus, and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Jordan, left Wednesday for their home at Uvalde. They were accompanied home by her sisters, Mesdames Green and Britton, of Sweetwater, who will visit in that city.

Narrow Escape From Drowning

Mrs. H. K. Reid, while fishing on Oak Creek one day the first of the week barely escaped being drowned when a tree limb she had caught hold of broke, and she fell into the water.

Mrs. Reid, with her son, H. K., Jr., and granddaughter, Doris, and Robert Bacon were spending the afternoon fishing, and when the accident occurred Mrs. Reid and Doris were alone and the latter's cries for help brought Jim Wilson, the small son of Mrs. J. R. Wilson, to the rescue, who handed her a long pole and pulled her out of the water.

It was a close call for Mrs. Reid, who cannot swim, and but for the presence of mind of the two small children would probably have proven fatal.

Club Directors in Concert at Park Meeting Tuesday This Evening

Last Tuesday a meeting of the directors of the Winters Country Club was held and the following notice was ordered prepared and published with the statement that in the future the rules of the organization pertaining to privileges of the club house and grounds and the selling of stock in the club by individuals would be strictly adhered to. Fire Chief Frank Williams and family returned the latter part of the past week from a visit to friends and relatives in Oklahoma.

Winters lovers of good music will have another opportunity to listen to a good program to be rendered by a home organization at Tinkle Park this (Friday) evening.

Winters is fortunate in having two bands, one composed of members of school age, the other of talent further advanced, and the bands alternate in entertaining the public at the park. The older group will be the attraction tonight, and it is hoped that our people give the encouragement due them by their presence.

The following is the program arranged by Director Shepperd for tonight's concert:

Gambill Warehouse Destroyed by Fire

About four o'clock last Sunday morning fire broke out in the warehouse of Gambill's, just east of this office, completely gutting the building and destroying and damaging about $300 worth of merchandise, mostly refrigerators, hoes, and stone-ware. Origin of the fire is not known.

The local fire company responded promptly to the alarm and soon extinguished the blaze.

Methodist Revival Begins Here Sunday; Flowers Evangelistic Party do Preaching

Everything is in readiness for the revival at the Methodist church which is to begin next Sunday. The R. L. Flowers evangelistic party of Dallas, have been secured to hold the meeting. Comfortable seats have been placed on the vacant lot by the church building.

The members of the Flowers party are evangelist R. L. Flowers, who is one of the general evangelists of the Methodist church. He is a forceful speaker, always attracts great crowds. For thirteen years he has been giving all of his time to evangelistic work. He recently held successful revivals at Abilene, Coleman, Oklahoma City and Freeport, Ill.

Cooper New C. C. Secretary Here, Plains Regret Loss

The following news item relative to S. W. Cooper, newly elected secretary of the Winters chamber of commerce, who is to assume his new duties here July 1st, comes to our desk from G. O. Reeves, secretary of the Lubbock chamber of commerce, and will be read with interest by our people:

"S. W. Cooper, secretary of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce has resigned, effective July 1st, to accept a position with the Winters Chamber of Commerce, W. P. Walker, president of the organization announced recently.

"Cooper has served as secretary here longer than the term of any other South Plains secretary, and leaves here with a record envied by many commercial executives of the state.

"At the present time Crosbyton is in the soundest financial condition in its history, due largely to the successful program of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, who launched a movement several years ago to interest Crosby county farmers in diversified farming, hog and poultry raising and dairying.

"Farmers have joined the chamber of commerce in these efforts and formed auxiliary organizations at each community in the county and assisted in the movement. At this time there is hardly a farmer in Crosby county who does not bring in butter, eggs, cream, poultry and other products on each trip to town.

"In leaving the South Plains, Mr. Cooper is to resign from the South Plains Commercial Executives Association of which he is secretary-treasurer and also from the Texas Transcontinental Trail Highway Association, of which he is secretary-treasurer. He is active in the promotion of a national highway that will traverse Crosby county from east to west, coming from Texarkana to Wichita Falls, through Seymour to Crosbyton and west to Lubbock, Clovis and California.

"Other programs are under way in Crosbyton and Cooper has always received the heartiest cooperation from the progressive business men here.

"The entire South Plains section will feel the loss of Cooper as he has followed the instructions of his board and rendered a broad service, always active in any movement for the general benefit of the South Plains section or in cooperation with any other South Plains town."

Floyd Smith and Raymond Lloyd attended the druggists' convention at San Antonio the first of the week.

J. W. Pace of Killeen, arrived in the city Wednesday for a few days visit with relatives.

A. P. Jordan, Emmett McCain and C. E. Jordan left Tuesday on a business trip to Kerrville.

Mrs. C. W. Gregory and daughter, Mamie, are both on the sick list this week.

Mrs. R. L. Flowers, wife of the evangelist, is another member of the party. She is one of the leading women evangelists of the county. She will reach Winters Saturday and speak at the opening services of the revival Sunday morning and evening. Her messages to married women and to young ladies will be one of the interesting features of the revival.

A. J. Flowers, a brother of the evangelist, is the other member of the party. He reached Winters last Saturday and spoke at the morning and evening services at the Methodist church Sunday. He has been meeting with different groups this week getting everything in readiness for the revival which begins Sunday. He will conduct a Sunday School Institute and Enrollment Campaign in connection with the revival. The first session of the Institute will be held Monday evening at eight o'clock.

A list of the different committees appointed by Rev. Bryan, and who will be in charge of the revival, follows:

A REVIVAL AND GOOD PUBLICITY

Methodists of Winters are making final plans for a revival that will open Sunday. Not only are they making plans, but they are telling the public of the plans. They are giving information on the kind of revival it will be, and what it intends to do and how it intends to do it.

In order to reach a larger portion of the public, they are using space in this newspaper quite liberally. We are always willing to help to the limit of our capacity with such movements for any church in the city. It is easier for us to help to a much greater degree, when the organized forces of the church are willing to help themselves along this line. They secured the assistance of a large number of citizens who are in business, soliciting them to run advertisements in this newspaper to tell about the revival, and give evidence that they were substantially interested in it, and then with these advertisements they delivered us a large mass of splendid reading matter concerning their revival plans and spiritual affairs in general.

It is because they visioned the effect of this vast amount of publicity and wanted to reach with it the non church-goer and non member, and provide the way to make its publication economically possible, that a section of this newspaper is devoted to the forthcoming revival today. It is a splendid example of a church effort toward publicity for an event devoted to the spiritual welfare of the community and to which the active membership of the church is bending its efforts in every other way.

LIBERTY BONDS

The treasury will redeem what is known as the second Liberty Loan of 4 and 4 1/4 per cent bonds, now aggregating about 1,691,000,000 on November 15th. These bonds were sold to 9,400,000 people, probably the greatest general subscription to any particular fund known.

The second Liberty Loan, which furnished money for war expenses was floated in 1917 and the bonds were dated to mature in 1947, unless it became expedient to redeem them in 1927. The secretary of the treasury finds the time convenient for repayment of these bonds.

This was the only bond issue in which an optional date of payment was announced. All other bond issues have the date of payment definitely set. The story of the war is never complete without full acknowledgment to the people who responded promptly and willingly to all calls and to those who managed the financial problems.

THE BLACK HILLS

They are black by reason of the dense, dark forests of pine that cover them. They were formed by an uplift of the "Archaean formation," and they lift themselves from 2,500 to 7,200 feet above the sea's level. There is gold in them, and some of the dying Romance of the Old West hovers over them. It is written that "the climate is salubrious, the soil fertile and the hills are well adapted to grazing purposes." And they are also adapted to presidential vacations. The Black Hills region is enjoying a newspaper publicity unequalled since the seventies when

Gen. Custer explored it and the gold rush invaded it and the Sioux Indians fought over it. The Middle West, the Northwest and the West will show President Coolidge a good time during his summer vacation in their midst.

AIRPLANES EVERYWHERE

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana is pointing its finger toward the inevitable. That company has bought in Detroit an airplane capable of carrying ten people which it will use in reaching its various outlying interests by "safe, fast and comfortable" means. Other concerns, far and wide, will follow this example as fast as adequate landing fields are provided, until presently we shall see a network of airplanes covering our country everywhere and in all directions. That is one of the absolute certainties.

TO EX-SERVICE MEN

After July 2, it will be too late to convert your government life insurance policies, issued during the war, into permanent policies. Any insurance man will tell you that this is sound insurance. It has been endorsed by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. Yet the cost to ex-service men is about 25 per cent less than other insurance.

MUST BE INVITED

A merchant out in the "sticks" in another state told an editor "I ain't got no use for advertising. The last time I put an advertisement in the paper I got woke up every time I started to take my noon nap in the store."

Business must be invited. It is a guest, and no guest goes where he doubts his welcome.

HAVE YOU ONE?

"Third Notice." Every editor has received them. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance, there is a man by the name of,—well, say Tim Short, who sent us three notices to stop his paper. He did not want it any longer; we wondered what was the matter. Upon investigating our subscription list we found that Tim was short five dollars and seventy cents. He had never paid a cent and yet stopped his paper as a matter of economy—to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Tim's melodious voice rang out clear in the song, "Jesus Paid It All." We may have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Ex.

JUST GOING ROUND

The Goodyear people recently turned out the 100,000,000th tire at their Akron plant. Seems as if a good many wheels had turned since the motor industry was a pup.

RIGHT SIDE IS WRONG SIDE

An examining physician finds that the heart of a Nebraska girl is on the right side of her body—in other words, it is on the right side, but in the wrong place. Is that what they call being fickle-hearted? There is nothing to worry about, however. Some damsels lost their hearts and still live—and happily.

ESSENTIAL

The new dry heads, it is sincerely hoped, are also entirely dry behind the ears and below the chins.

A coming event—Fourth of July.

There are always rumors coming up about prices coming down.

Charles E. Hughes, who says he is too old to run for president, apparently forgets that a man is as young as he feels.

Farmer Tells How He Makes Living On His Farm

This Texas farmer kept an accurate list of all groceries bought for a year and found the amount was just $26. This comes to $13.00 per person for his family of two. He farms black land which for the production of fruit and most vegetables is not so good as sandy loam. W. C. Dysart, proprietor of Sunnybrook farm, ten miles north of McKinney, has been plied with many inquiries as to how he was able to keep his family grocery bill for a year down to $26 cash outlay. The Oklahoma Stockman of April 15 carried his explanation in the following article, which we reproduce. Mr. Dysart can not personally answer all the letters that he has received. Therefore, he accepted the offer of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman to tell the reading public through its columns how he did it.

Telling the story of his experience in his own way Mr. Dysart says:

"I could write a book on the subject of how we held our grocery bill down to $26 a year, so I will give you only an outline. I hope it will be of some help to my fellow farmers, many of whom have come to the conclusion that farming is a failure unless they raise their living.

"Our motto is to plant everything and take care of everything in our little garden of 75x75 feet. We raise every kind of vegetable we can. We plant English peas first in double rows eight inches apart. Three rows like this seventy-five feet long made six gallons of dry peas, besides fifty cans put up for winter use. We plant several kinds of bunch beans. After canning all we want, we pull the vines when the pods are ripe and in a few days we thresh these out for winter use. We planted one peck of Irish potatoes in two rows seventy-five feet long and made twelve measured bushels. We put these in the cellar and still have potatoes.

To raise sweet potatoes and keep them, get your slips early, put them out in good soil. They require very little cultivation. Dig before frost. If they are very sappy, or if you have had lots of rain before digging, let them dry out a week and then put them up—a layer of potatoes and a layer of very dry dirt. I still have potatoes to eat. We can all the fruit and vegetables in their season. Then comes the butchering time. We kill enough hogs to give us our meat and lard. When the bacon takes salt we cut it in slices to fry and pack it in fruit jars, then pour hot lard over it and we have nice, fresh bacon all the year. That little unwelcome male calf that is sold by other farmers for about $1.50 we fatten and along about Christmas we can that. We put up roasts, steak, hash, soup and chili, and no better ever went down one's throat. The last one we fattened was the best. We fattened it on oats that were too cheap to sell.

"We have two Jersey cows that supply our table with all the nice milk and butter we need, and we sell the balance. We keep about 100 hens and raise about 200 or 300 chickens. In fact, we can have a fryer any time. We have a bunch of sheep to keep the weeds down in our little pasture, so we have wool and lambs to sell. Two brood sows give us some pigs to fatten all the time. With all these things I have mentioned, why should I spend over $26 a year for groceries? We have our home-ground Graham flour, and our home-ground corn meal; our wheat we can't get ground now, so we just sell and buy flour. My wife is one of the best cooks in Texas, so we have our hot biscuits, cornbread muffins, homemade light rolls, etc. I see some of my farmer friends carry out of the grocery store a whole arm load of bread. The price of that would furnish him with flour for a week. Now, we could go to town and buy lots of fancy groceries that are put up very attractively, but they are no better than what we have at home. I make the garden here. I think that it is too great a task for the women. The house duties are enough for any woman to do.

"Our motto is to take care of our living first, then go to the field. Don't allow the things you have raised to go to waste. Do this and you will always have money in the bank instead of owing the bank for your living. I feel so sorry for our farmers who don't raise their living. I see them in town standing around wondering where they can buy something on credit or borrow some money. Follow my instructions and you will be the happiest fellow on earth. If you raise your living you will have the rest of your crop for investment. I will tell you now, you can't do it by spending too much time in your car. After we have taken care of our crop we usually take a trip to the cool mountains for awhile. Besides raising our living there is as much hauled away from here as we consume. We make it a rule to always put something in our visitors' car, and then, we have two boys in Dallas that are living out of paper bags, so we are glad to give them something fresh from the farm. I was about to overlook two of our important crops—that is pecans and popcorn. We sold enough pecans to pay our taxes and keep enough for home. The two are very healthy and while sitting around the old-fashioned fire at night listening to the radio, we pop corn and eat pecans. I have a real home builder for a wife, and not a flapper. I am 66, my wife is 63, and we are very active at our age. I think it is due to good, plain eating and plenty of fresh air. "If you don't believe a fellow can live on the nice things I have told you about, just you come and put your feet under my table and I will show you."

Conversation Between a Banker and Depositor

The following conversation may be heard in most any bank of this and adjoining counties these days and it is a fair statement of the position of the Bankers and their depositors in the matter of inducing the owners of the small accounts to make them self-sustaining. The same argument justifying compensation balances is applicable also to the items of service such as taking acknowledgments of legal papers, collecting sight drafts and many other acts of service that cost the banks real money. The desire of the banks is to make each department self-supporting with a view of becoming more and more useful to the community.

The ideal sought will appeal to fair-minded men and women everywhere because they wish to pay for what they get. They do not wish to be embarrassed by having a service thrust upon them that costs real money to the Bank for which they are not permitted to pay. They do not wish to be obligated by accepting "something for nothing."

With this object in view we ask the co-operation of the banking public in bringing about this much needed reform.

DEPOSITOR—What is all this talk I hear about making the small accounts pay their way, by keeping more deposits and writing fewer checks? What does it mean?

BANKER—It means that we have just discovered what we have only suspected before; that many departments of banking are carried on at an actual loss. In other words, as many as 56% of our checking accounts do not pay the costs of handling them.

DEPOSITOR—Why? How is that? Have I not, as a depositor, paid you all you asked me to pay?

BANKER—Yes, indeed you have. It is not the fault of our depositors. It is our fault. They have merely responded to our own rules and customs. For example, we have urged our customers to start checking accounts—no matter how small—and they have done so in very large numbers with very small accounts. Many small checking accounts use as many as fifty checks per month, representing a considerable bookkeeping and stationery expense.

DEPOSITOR—Why? How is that? It certainly doesn't cost anything much to print a few checks, does it?

BANKER—Yes, indeed, that is the painful discovery we have made. We have coaxed people to start checking accounts in hope that their balances on deposit over and above their needs would pay the costs of the checks and handling charges, but we have found that more than half of our checking accounts do not have as much as $50.00 average daily balances on deposit. In fact, they do not have even half that amount and that is not enough to pay the cost.

DEPOSITOR—Do you mean by that, then, that some of your customers do not keep large enough balances in the bank to pay the cost of handling their accounts.

BANKER—That is exactly the truth. For example, 56% of all of our customers have balances amounting to a grand total of less than 3% of our total deposits.

DEPOSITOR—You don't mean to tell me that more than half of your checking accounts have a little less than 3% of all your deposits?

BANKER—That is absolutely true and we find, upon further investigation that these same depositors who own 3 per cent of our deposits issue 40% of the total checks drawn on the bank each day.

DEPOSITOR—Does that mean that 40% of the labor and other expenses is caused by the checking accounts that have only 3% of the total deposits of the bank?

BANKER—Yes. The cost of operating the bank is measured almost to a penny by the number of checks flowing through the bank. That is to say, the accounts with very small balances float 40% of the checks going through the bank and therefore 40% of all of the expense should be earned off these accounts if they are to pay their share of the cost.

DEPOSITOR—Just how is the cost of handling these accounts made up?

BANKER—The handling cost of this business consists largely of labor, printing, supplies and bookkeeping machines. For example, bookkeeping machines cost new $1,050 each, that are used only for listing and adding the checks and entering the record on ledger and statement sheets. There is the printing of expensive ledger and statement sheets, hundreds of thousands of checks, and many kinds of records, etc., aggregating in the course of a year several thousand dollars. It requires a number of bookkeepers, tellers, stenographers and officers to handle this volume of business that flows through the bank every day and these people put in on an average, nearly 10 hours a day in handling the work. The expense in the aggregate must be charged against the income that we receive from the money loaned to our customers, which is our principal source of revenue.

DEPOSITOR—I am surprised that it costs so much to run a bank. I suppose you really should collect 56 per cent of the cost from 56 per cent of your checking accounts.

BANKER—No. We do not expect to collect 56 per cent of the cost of handling, from 56 per cent of our customers who have checking balances averaging under $50.00, but what we do want is to have these customers understand that their accounts are being handled at a loss and that the only way to obviate the loss is for them to increase their balances in the bank. Answering your inquiry specifically, in a certain bank the total average balances of 56 per cent of their checking accounts amounted (on a certain day) to $21,000.00. This was about the average for the year, and from our observation, this ratio is true of all banks. These accounts (or 56 per cent of the total accounts) required 40 per cent of the entire labor and expense of that bank to maintain them for the year, or a total of $11,000.00.

DEPOSITOR—What? You don't mean to tell me that it costs them $11,000.00 to take care of 56 per cent of their checking accounts that had only $21,000.00 on deposit?

BANKER—That is exactly what I mean to tell you.

DEPOSITOR—Why, that means that they have paid out $11,000.00 to get $21,000.00 in deposits.

BANKER—Exactly so. That is precisely what it means and when we discovered a similar condition prevailed in our own case, we were as much surprised as you are. We had never before analyzed our accounts and never dreamed that we were losing so much expense money on account of the smallness of some of our checking accounts.

DEPOSITOR—Well, just how do you propose to improve this banking condition?

BANKER—That is a very logical question. We are going to suggest to our customers, none of whom we can spare, that they do two things to help out this situation.

FIRST—If a checking account is essential to them, increase their balance to $50.00, which will not cover the cost to us but will be sufficiently near to justify a trial, and then refrain from giving more than two checks per month on that $50.00.

DEPOSITOR—Your idea is that a balance of $50.00 with not more than two checks each month would only partially cover the cost?

BANKER—That is correct. If every one of our checking accounts (now under $50) would build the balance to $50.00 and above and be a little more conservative in writing checks, we feel that these accounts would be self-supporting.

DEPOSITOR—Do I understand, then, that you would rather not have small accounts at all?

BANKER—No indeed. We do not want to lose a single account we have—small or large—if we can possibly have them on at least a cost basis. We merely want them to pay for the cost of handling their own business. Our theory has been that the small accounts would some day grow to be large ones and therefore we are willing to handle them at a cost, not a profit, with that end in view.

DEPOSITOR—What you really want is a more satisfactory balance in the small accounts and less withdrawals as part remuneration for keeping our books for us? Is that it?

BANKER—You have correctly stated the facts. That is just what it means. Hundreds of our customers have no other books than check books, which we furnish them, and our check-up each month, by furnishing them their monthly statement, helps them to keep a fairly accurate record of their finances. Their checks give them a receipt for all bills they have paid and enables them to have a record of their transactions.

DEPOSITOR—I wonder what my average balance is, anyway? I am sure, however, I am in the clear for I have made some large deposits lately.

BANKER—I will look it up for you. (Turning to a teller) "Get Mr. B's ledger sheet." Here is the total for the year, and average; it shows your average balance for the year was $40.20.

DEPOSITOR—Great guns! You don't mean that I am below $50.00, do you?

BANKER—That is what the record shows. You see the thing that fools you is you have a deposit one day of $500.00, by the next day you check it out and have none. Perhaps in the course of a few days you have another fair sized deposit but you immediately check it out, which in the end makes you a low average.

DEPOSITOR—So I have really been an expense to the bank this year? Is that it?

BANKER—Yes, that is a fact. You see every time you got a little money ahead you would withdraw it from the bank and invest it and that kept your checking account unprofitable to us. Your only mistake was in investing your money too fast and not keeping your balance large enough to make it pay. The joke is really on us and not on you.

DEPOSITOR—I'll fix that. It will be just as easy for me to stay $50.00 ahead as it is to stay behind. It may require some effort on my part, but I want to make my account worth something to the bank, at least worth enough to pay the cost of handling it as no one should expect something for nothing.

BANKER—That is fine! It shows you want to live and let live; that while you need and must have a checking account you want us to get the cost out of your balances. We greatly appreciate your fair treatment and your bank will always be fair to you.

Methodist Revival Begins Sunday Led By Flowers

Evangelism and What It Offers

Does the Church Have an Adequate Program of Expansion?

Is it a fact that old-time revival methods are not wanted?

Has the time come for a more up-to-date method of conducting revivals?

Cannot the ministry or rescue be co-ordinated with the ministry of conservation?

The Rev. R. L. Flowers has reduced his work in the vineyard of the Master down to a scientific basis, according to a lecture delivered recently at Nashville, Tenn., before the General Evangelists there.

After rehearsing all the complaints made about modern evangelism and sweeping them away as negligible, Mr. Flowers said:

"The problem as I have faced it for ten years, is this: What can I do during the revival campaign that will co-ordinate my work of rescue with the pastor's work of conservation? When I have been able to do this I will have, in a large measure, eliminated the causes for criticism of my work as an evangelist. Not only so but I will have enlarged my usefulness to the church. In this paper I am to offer you my plans for an adequate program for evangelism. In doing so it is my conviction that these general plans are workable in any well-planned campaign.

"I came to the conclusion that if the results of a revival meeting were conserved it would be done largely through the women's work, the young people's work, but principally through the Sunday School. To be sure the pastor will be at the very heart and center of all this. All these years I had been boosting all these organizations of the church but in a hit and miss way. I had been boosting without building. There must be a closer co-ordination and co-operation of all the activities of the church if there should be an adequate program of conservation. In my boosting these organizations in the past I was working under a distinct disadvantage. My knowledge of the various organizations was general, not special. For instance, in this day of highly organized Sunday Schools to do a constructive work one must be a specially trained Sunday School worker. Furthermore, had I such qualifications I could not do this myself in addition to my other work of conducting a revival.

"So at the beginning of 1924 I secured a layman who not only is trained but is experienced in every phase of church work. He was employed for a number of years by a large downtown church as educational director, having already had ten years experience in distinctive religious work. He took a small Sunday School with an enrollment of 400 and in five years built it up to an enrollment of 2,500.

"He goes in advance to the new field. He makes a careful survey of the existing organization, studies its needs and its program, with the idea of meeting the standard of efficiency as mapped out by the representative board. He also makes a careful survey of the field and classifies the information as to the possibilities for the revival, the church and the Sun-put into operation a sane financial program for the church.

"1—The largest per cent of converts united with the church. This year 85 per cent of all people day School, etc. He meets with the workers and discusses such subjects as:

"How to build a great Sunday School?

"Making the Sunday School social program effective.

"Financing the Sunday School and church.

"Plans and programs for weekly teachers' meetings.

"The use of special days in the building of a great Sunday School.

"The soul-winning Sunday school.

"The monthly visitation day and how to plan for it.

"Surveys and how to follow them up.

"How to get Sunday School pupils to attend the preaching services.

"How to get results in an unorganized class.

"How to enlarge the present organization, and such subjects as the local conditions may require.

"In addition to this he makes all preliminary arrangements and pushes the publicity for the revival. His work enables me to outline a very definite program for the revival.

For example, I have exact data, number of men in church out of Sunday School, number of women in the church out of Sunday School, number of young people in the church and in Sunday School, number of lost people in the Sunday School, number of people with church letters elsewhere.

"Beginning the day the revival opens the worker meets daily with groups and directs personal visitations. Also he meets teachers and officers and discusses local problems, need and possibilities. He revises the records and rolls. Then when people are converted they are urged both publicly and privately to join the church during the revival. Prominent time is set aside for such services, names of converts are given to group workers and special effort is made to get them definitely lined up in Sunday School classes, young people's societies, etc.

"In cases where needed, and they are frequent, he meets with the official board and pastor and helps to forward have joined the church while I was in the city.

"2—The Sunday School doubled by constructive enlisting program running throughout the meeting.

"3—Young people's societies greatly enlarged and in many instances doubled.

"4—New teachers and departmental superintendents secured, whereas before the revival the same people had refused to work.

"5—A complete record system for church and Sunday School put into operation. Also the names and addresses of those who were not reached during the campaign are made available.

"6—Helped to put churches on a sane financial basis.

Rev. Bryan's Message to the Community

"The time for our Revival is at hand. What blessing will each one of us get out of it? What will our church get out of it? What will our sister churches get out of it? What blessing will our community get out of it? Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. What will you invest in the meeting? Your dividends will be in proportion to what you put into it.

"At best the meeting will not be long. Even if it should be three weeks or more, it would soon be over. If it lasts but two weeks or longer, we have but a few days for this revival. Only a few days of opportunity. The time will soon be over. Will you use the opportunity from the first day?

"The time for the meeting has been set for months. After considering carefully, the Board agreed upon this time. The membership has looked forward to it. Mr. A. J. Flowers is already here. Rev. R. L. Flowers and his wife will be here soon. For two weeks they will be here to help us. Much is being done to make this a great meeting. Much time is being given and money spent to prepare for the Revival. Will you let the effort be wasted or will you put yourself into the meeting and believe great things for God? Attempt great things for God."

"Many prayers have gone up for this Revival. Many prayers have gone up for neighbors and friends and kinspeople. God has promised to bless those who seek Him. Let us seek Him with our whole hearts.

"What blessings God has given us! Are you grateful to Him? 'What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me? I will take the cup of Salvation and call upon the name of the Lord.' We can show our gratitude by receiving the greatest gift from God.

"How God loves us! How great is His mercy! How ready He is to forgive us and to take our sinfulness away! How He has sought us as prodigal children to restore us to His own nature and likeness! Let us not neglect so great a salvation! Let us not spurn His mercy and love! 'For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.'"

S. S. Institute and Enlistment Campaign

In connection with the Methodist Revival will be conducted a Sunday School Institute and Enlistment Campaign. This will be in charge of A. J. Flowers, who is an experienced Sunday School worker. The object of the Sunday School work is to stimulate interest in all phases of the Sunday School program.

The first session of the Institute will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the main auditorium of the Methodist church. The subjects discussed at the Institute: "How to get the Sunday School pupil to attend the preaching service," "How to solve the absentee problem," "How to make the weekly officers and teachers meetings effective," "How to finance the Sunday School and Church," "How to make the Sunday School a soul-winning school."

Anyone in the community interested in a bigger and better Sunday School is invited to attend the sessions of the Institute. There will be a meeting each evening next week at 8 o'clock for those interested in Sunday School work.

A. J. Flowers was for five years the Sunday school superintendent at the first Baptist church, Houston. He is an interesting speaker and will bring messages that will be helpful to those interested in the work of the Sunday School.

God's promises are transferable; they never are out of date; they are always usable, for they are undated.

Religion ought to be parked in the church pews on Sunday.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, began missionary operations in China in 1848, with Dr. Charles Taylor as missionary.

The first Sunday School in the United States was organized by Bishop Ashbury, the first bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in America. It was organized in Virginia in 1786.

Opportunity never ceases to hang at the door of the man supposed to have money to invest.—Portsmouth Star.

Is Cotton Enemy to State of Texas?

(By Jack Callan)

Is cotton an enemy of Texas has long been an outstanding question for modern discussion. Many have contended that this leading product is an enemy, but if we stop to think what cotton has meant to the prosperity and development of the South, and in fact all America, we come to the immediate conclusion that cotton is not an enemy, but a friend.

In order to carry out my contentions, I shall illustrate by historical recollections:

It was not many years ago that the Red Man roamed over a great wasteland, uncultivated, uncivilized, and valueless territory unworthy of habitation. The East had long proclaimed it as worthless and regarded it as a barrier rather than an asset to the progress of the nation.

One standing on the banks of the great Mississippi could see this valueless territory and could see revealed nothing worthy of settlement by civilization. Finally, however, in the year 1793, the cotton gin was invented and the annual scale of production increased remarkably.

The production of cotton was small before this great invention, due to the difficulty in removing the seeds. Soon the demand for a greater production became prominent and new lands worthy of cotton cultivation were sought.

It became known through experiment that the former proclaimed wasteland afforded perfect climatic conditions and soil fertility for the proper cultivation of the newly universalized product.

Immediately cotton became "King of the South" and made possible a new and worthy country. No longer can one stand on the banks of the great Mississippi and see only the wasteland for hundreds of miles. He sees a country rich in resources, and cultivated to form one of the greatest if not the best agricultural districts in the world.

Does not this prove that "Mr. Cotton" is not an enemy to Texas, but a friend? It is not Mr. Cotton that prevents the annual prosperity of Texas and the South. It is Mr. Cotton Grower who fails to realize the necessity of diversification and plants too much cotton for the necessary amount consumed annually by the world.

Do not censure Mr. Cotton, because his value per pound has decreased beyond reason. Do not declare him an enemy to the prosperity of the individual and nation at large. Consider what would naturally have existed if this necessary product had not been introduced, and then ask Mr. Cotton to permit your apologies if you have censured him or made an unfair accusation.

It is the South at large and not cotton which has caused its own decrease in prosperity. Let everyone, as individuals, as citizens, as up-builders of a greater state and nation forget our former mistakes and overcome them by practicing diversification in the future, for, after all, "it's not the mistakes we have made but the ones which we have overcome which will determine the greater prize."

Are You a Good Judge Bad Eggs?

A poster emphasizing the more important quantities of a good egg has just been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It shows an egg broken into a dish, yolk and white in actual colors. There is also shown in the poster a group of egg dishes, and the text is devoted to giving information to the consumer concerning the more important quantities of a good egg as brought out when it is broken out of the shell.

It is explained, for instance, that the consumer can tell the quality of eggs used in the home by the condition of the yolk and the white. If the egg has a strong shell, one of the qualities mentioned, breakage losses are reduced. The egg should also have a good flavor, which is best maintained by keeping eggs in sanitary places. When the egg is broken out for cooking or baking purposes, the white should be clear and divided into two portions, the thicker and firmer portion which tends to stand up well in a fresh egg and immediately surrounds the yolk, the other portion a little thinner and tending to flatten out into the dish into which the egg is broken. The yolk itself should be of uniform color throughout and should stand up well.

Housekeepers can encourage the production and marketing of better eggs by giving attention to the quality of a good egg and exercising greater discrimination in purchasing eggs for home use.

The fact that Capt. Lindbergh neither drinks, smokes or chews automatically eliminates him from a lot of roadside advertising.

Home Builders Class Given Clever Social

Members, associate members and a few friends of the Home Builders Sunday school class of the First Baptist church received the following clever invitation last Monday: Backward, turn backward, Oh, Time, now I pray Make us all children again, Just for one day.

Forget we are grown-ups, Come back to "skule," Study our lessons And obey the rule.

Bring our lunch in a bucket, Just as you did— Beans and lasses, as you "tuk-it" When you were a kid.

Come dressed as a laddie, Or come dressed as a lass. But come to the gath'ring Of the Home Builders Class.

At the home of Mrs. C. S. Jackson, 3:30 p. m. June 22, 1927.

Promptly at three-thirty Wednesday afternoon the "pupils" with lunch baskets and pails began to arrive and the teacher, Miss Mabel Deason (Mrs. Z. V. Dry) was found in the school room equipped with a blackboard, long benches and other things necessary to complete the old time school room.

As this was the last day of school examinations were taken in the morning and after "recess" speeches, spelling match, songs and debate constituted the closing exercises.

The subject for debate was "Resolved: That the Dishrag is more useful than the Broom." Mrs. H. H. Stephens took the affirmative, while Mrs. C. S. Jackson the negative. A unanimous decision was won by the negative, and the judges were Miss Loyle Kornegay, Mrs. Bounds, and Mrs. Walter Brian.

At the close of school a picnic lunch was spread from the baskets and pails, and the "teacher" treated the "pupils" to lemonade and cake.

The guest list included Mesdames Z. V. Dry, Walter Brian, C. Kornegay, Bounds, Neil, W. L. Brown, W. E. Hickman, Bert Howell, Brandon, W. S. Syler, J. W. Smith, A. L. Smith, H. H. Stephens, C. L. Mrs. Dry Hostess to Friendly Class At Social Meeting.

Mrs. Hal F. Smith's Sunday school class, known as the Friendly Class, met in its regular monthly business session on Thursday evening, June 6th, at the home of Mrs. J. R. Dry.

An interesting meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. C. T. Rives, at the close of which Mrs.

Dry, assisted by Mrs. L. F. Wilson, served lovely refreshments of cake and ice cream to the following members: Mesdames R. L. Labenske, Hal F. Smith, W. H. Clift, J. T. Hayes, J. J. Swatschue, W. R. Johnson, J. A. Davidson, T. H. Haynie, L. R. Gaston, C. T. Rives, V. Vanzandt, and P. N. Williamson of Dallas, who was visiting relatives, Mrs. Dry and Mrs. Wilson.

The class colors of blue and white were beautifully carried out, Mrs. Dry was dressed in blue and Mrs. Wilson in white. The refreshment and plate decorations were both in blue and white. Verses of wit were read by each member from the plate.

Friendly Class Honors Husbands with Picnic

Thursday evening, June 16th, the husbands of the members of the "Friendly Class" were honored with a picnic at Tinkle Park. A long table was spread and filled with good eats which were enjoyed by the following: Rev. and Mrs. Hal F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Gannaway, Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Rives, Mr. and Mrs. Gipson, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Haynie, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dry, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Labenske, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clift, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Parramore, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Johnson, Mr. R. T. Thornton, Mrs. L. F. Wilson, Mrs. J. T. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Vanzandt, and Mrs. Crews.

A series of merry games were enjoyed on the lawn and a reluctant good night was spoken, for the closing time came all too soon.

Cooper Takes Place at Winters As Secretary

The Crosbyton Review, in announcing the retiring of S. W. Cooper as secretary of the commercial organization of that place to accept a like position with the Winters Chamber of Commerce, had the following to say of Mr. Cooper and his work in its last issue:

"S. W. Cooper has accepted the call of the Chamber of Commerce at Winters and will take up his work at that place on July 1st. This will be closing more than five years of work with the Chamber of Commerce at Crosbyton, a record that cannot be surpassed on the South Plains. Mr. Cooper has worked untiringly during these years and the accomplishments made by the co-operation of his people with whom he has worked, shows for itself.

"Cooper's work with the rural communities in organizing different units of the Chamber of Commerce, has been the means of cementing a closer relationship between the city and the rural districts. This work alone has built a foundation that is worth much to the community as a whole. He has had many inquiries of this work from other secretaries, and his services in this respect has reached out into other counties and communities.

"Last year when a new highway was in the making from Fort Worth by-the-way-of Crosbyton and on to Lubbock, Mr. Cooper suggested a name for it which was adopted, and is now "The Transcontinental Trail." Cooper was made secretary of this Highway. He is also secretary of the South Plains Executive Association.

"Mr. Cooper has had splendid co-operation from the people of Crosbyton and the work has moved smoothly and with precision. His program has always been constructive and the following has been easy, the citizenship realizing that his deliberate judgment has always been good. A splendid program is under way.

"The people of Crosbyton will always remember with kindness Mr. Cooper and his good family, and will say that Winters is fortunate indeed in having them locate in their midst."

Demand Increases For Chevrolets

Detroit, June 20.—Indications that Chevrolet production will reach, if not pass, the million mark this year were seen here today, following the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor Company that production for the first five months totalled 494,953 units. This is a 60 per cent increase over the corresponding period of last year and testifies to the phenomenal demand that has kept Chevrolet factories constantly at capacity, since early in the year.

Since January Chevrolet has bowled over production records each month, reaching a new all-time monthly mark in May with an output of 115,623 units as compared with the record 74,617 units set in May last year.

In an effort to keep pace with the demand Chevrolet factories are now averaging more than 5,000 units a day, working on the heaviest schedule ever undertaken by a manufacturer of gearshift cars.

Chevrolet's production achievements so far this year make certain that a new mark for the production of gear-shift cars will be set this year. The present record now held by Chevrolet stands at 728,697 units. This was established in 1926 and was a 40 per cent increase over the previous high mark, also set by Chevrolet.

Production of one million Chevrolets this year would shatter the present record again by 40 per cent. The June schedule calls for the building of 112,965 units, which

Evidence of the remarkable gains made by Chevrolet since the introduction of the "most beautiful Chevrolet" in January is seen in monthly production figures for the year so far, as follows: January 73,676; February 58,817; March 107,900; April 111,937; May 115,623.

Evangelist Flowers To Hold Revival In Winters

Sunday's Program at Methodist Revival

Everyone to attend Sunday School at 9:45.
 Mrs. R. L. Flowers will speak at the 11 o'clock hour. Her subject will be "The Boldness of Genuine Discipleship."
 "The Power of the Gospel" will be Mrs. Flowers' subject at 8:30 Sunday evening. Service on the lawn.
 Boys and Girls to meet at 4 o'clock.
 A. J. Flowers will speak to the young people at 7:30. His subject will be "The Victorious Life."

Recommendation of Evangelist Flowers

Rev. R. L. Flowers, Dallas, Tex.—My Dear Brother Flowers: In looking over the total results of the revival here which was held by the Flowers evangelistic party, I am glad to say that at this time we have received into our church 225 members and the Sunday School has received an increase of about 300 members, which addition brings it to about 900 members. The Epworth League, Woman's Missionary Society and all other departments of the church have received a new impetus, and I believe that the effect will be permanent and hasten our progress onward.

Your method of surveying the community and the possibilities of the church, with your efficient workers led by yourself, in utilizing the results discovered by the survey, gives the church workers suggestions for future work which have a high value.

Your brother, A. J. Flowers, is one of the most efficient organizers I have come into contact with, and his fine spirit and enthusiasm for the work make him a very splendid advance man, and his personal work during the meeting is equal to the best.

Your wife has won a place in all the hearts of our people, and a reputation which will guarantee her a great audience any time she comes our way to deliver an address.

Your evangelistic sermons, together with your ability to follow up the work and gather the fruits, and your leadership of your forces, make you the logical and effective leader in the work. I congratulate you upon your plan and your workers.

As the church becomes acquainted with the value of your evangelistic party to all departments of the church your field of usefulness will be greatly enlarged. Cordially yours, —V. A. Godbey, Pastor First Methodist Church, Port Arthur, Texas.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I am acquainted with the work of the Flowers evangelistic party. Both Rev. R. L. Flowers and Mrs. Flowers are strong preachers, and are thoroughly reliable and sane in their methods. I have been personally acquainted effects which so often follow an evangelistic effort.

I can most heartily recommend the Flowers party for any such service as indicated above. Their kind of work is very much needed in the evangelical churches today. Most sincerely,—C. W. Rodgers, Pastor Methodist Episcopal Church, Port Arthur, Texas.

Young People's Meetings to Feature the Revival

One of the interesting features of the Methodist Revival conducted by the Flowers party will be the young people's meetings each evening at 8 o'clock in the basement of the church. These young people's meetings will continue each evening next week.

The Flowers have interesting messages for young people. They recently held a revival with the students of the John Tarleton College, and a two weeks meeting at Oak Cliff, Dallas, where thirty young people's societies secured a tent and had the Flowers for a revival campaign. They are inviting the young people of the community to enjoy the special young people's meetings next week.

The first one will be Monday evening.

Boys' and Girls' Meetings

A Bible story hour will be conducted each afternoon for the boys and girls. The first one of these will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Those in the boys' and girls' meetings will make the Sunshine Booster Chorus who will be used in the singing for the revival. Any boy or girl interest in Bible stories and in singing good gospel songs will enjoy these meetings.

Picture a Town Without a Church

Would You Care to Live in it?

Just shut your eyes for a few minutes and imagine what a city without a church would be like.

There isn't a being in this community who would care to live for one minute in a community without a church.

Yet—there are hundreds of men and women who are living just outside of the shadow of the church, who are reaping the benefits of the church's good work—who are deriving help daily from the church's influence—who receive benefit from the betterment a church gives to all in every community.

Why not put your shoulder to the wheel and help?—the church needs you and you need the church equally as much!

PAULINE Mallingate, strangely absent from her home in London for 18 months, is believed to be "Mrs. Creswold," mistress of "The Moat," a mystery house in Yorkshire, not far from the country place of Mrs. Bertha Northwood, friend of the Mallingates.

HENRY Emerson, wealthy step-father of the girl, has vanished mysteriously from a summer resort where he had been staying with his wife and another step-daughter, Lorna.

DR. JULIAN Emerson, claiming to be related to the missing man, has taken Lorna and her sick mother from the resort to Mulberry House, an old estate in Paxton Common, where he is holding them captive.

GERALD Craven, Lorna's lover, has joined with Mrs. Northwood and Noel Shannon, British war ace, in tracing the missing family. Through information obtained from Ellen Storey, a maid at "The Moat," Craven and Shannon fly to Paxton Common. There Shannon accepts a heavy fee for taking Dr. Emerson to Yorkshire.

In the meantime Dr. Emerson suffers a nervous collapse in the village where Shannon left him and is taken to a hospital. Craven, at Paxton, has managed to see Lorna, at Mulberry House. He is walled by two of the guards as he is leaving and seriously beaten. When found in the roadway he is taken to the home of Mrs. Donald in the village.

Ellen Storey and Pauline are doing everything possible to relieve the suffering of the injured man at "The Moat." Pauline is on watch in the sick-room when the telephone bell rings. Ellen decides to answer it. A man's voice comes to her over the wire.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"What you, Pauline? Well! What the devil do you mean? How dare you go against me. . . . I am coming down and I'll soon show you you cannot set yourself against my authority. . . . a nice mess you've made of things. It is the worst time possible for me to leave here, and of course I have got to come. Tell Francois to have some dinner prepared for me."

Then the voice ceased and as Ellen could hear nothing, it was evident that there was no more conversation. So she left the telephone and went out into the garden where she came upon Francois smoking his pipe and nodding his head.

She roused him: "I have just answered that telephone. You can understand me, can't you, Mr. France? Well, someones in a nasty temper—it is a man, and he didn't sound the sort we want down here—he's coming and you're to have some dinner for him."

The old Frenchman got on his feet and he burst into a flood of language of which Ellen could not understand, but she was quick enough to gather that it was an outburst of anger; and somehow this outburst met with her satisfaction.

Mrs. Creswold was coming down the stairs, white-faced and trembling.

"Was that the telephone that rang, Ellen? You didn't call me."

"No, ma'am, I didn't. I didn't want to disturb you. It was a man speaking. . . . a very angry man. He says he is on his way down here and he wants some dinner."

"Yes, yes," said Pauline Creswold. "I knew he would be coming. . . . I expected he would ring me up. Did he know it was you on the telephone?"

"Never said no word, ma'am," said Ellen promptly. "Never opened my lips. . . . could not have said nothing, he talked so much. My! But he sounds in a wax. But don't you be frightened. . . . I'm here. . . . and unless I'm much mistaken your old cook is going to stand for you. There's to be no more knocking that poor old man about, that I promise you, because the first sign of it and I scream for help. I don't want to do that, ma'am. . . . I don't want to bring the people in here, otherwise I'd have had Dr. Barlow in to see this poor invalid; but I know you're in great trouble. . . . I know you're tip against something big and ugly, and I don't want to do anything to make things worse for you or to make you sorry I come here."

"Sorry!" said Pauline Creswold. "Oh, you don't know what your presence means to me. . . . and to him upstairs. I wish I weren't such a coward, Ellen! If I had some of your spirit, I would never be where I am now."

"Well, we none of us know what we'd do until we tried," Ellen said, "but I do wish as you had got some friend, ma'am. Now, there's Mrs. Northwood, the lady as lives at Danes Gate not far from here. She's a fine lady. . . . so ready to do anything for anybody. . . . you don't know how good she's been to my grannie and to all of us."

"I cannot turn to anyone," said Pauline Creswold. "I have got to fight this out in my own way; at least just at this moment. But I am thinking out things for myself and there's got to be a change. I am going back now to sit with Mr. Emerson, he is sleeping again and sleeping soundly. I believe you have saved his life, Ellen."

The heat of the afternoon waned slowly, but gradually the hot sun faded into the dusk of evening. Francois was in the kitchen grumbling, and perhaps swearing to himself as he made preparations for dinner, when there came a ring at the gate.

"I'll go," said Ellen promptly. She wanted to have a look at the man who had spoken so violently on the telephone—to take his measure as it were, for she was determined that there should be no brutality, no ill-usage, and she just wanted to measure herself, her wits, her courage and her strength against the enemy.

But when she opened the big gate to let a car come inside and closed it again, she found herself looking into a young good-looking and very attractive face and this newcomer's first words assured her that this was not the man who was expected.

"Will you be so good as to ask Mrs. Creswold to see me?" Noel Shannon said. "Tell her I have come from London on purpose to see her."

"Yes, sir!" said Ellen. "Will you come in? Mrs. Creswold is upstairs and I'll go and tell her."

He walked to and fro in the hall waiting until Ellen should return. He was quite prepared for a refusal, but when he heard the sound of footsteps on the stairs and looked up, he saw that it was not the maid who was coming to meet him, but the mistress of this house.

The lamp light shone on her, and he saw that Pauline Creswold was as white as the gown she wore, and he saw, too, that she was trembling from head to foot.

He went forward with outstretched hand.

"How do you do?" he said. "You don't know me, but I know you by name and repute. You were Pauline Mallingate, and you did some very wonderful work out in France. . . . I'm not sure that you didn't drive me once or twice in that wonderful car of yours."

The touch of his strong calm hand seemed to put courage into Pauline. She gave him a very faint smile.

"How do you do? I daresay you did meet out there, but I saw so many and I don't remember your face. May I know your name?"

"Shannon," was the quick reply. "Noel Shannon."

"Oh!" said Pauline Creswold. "I have heard of you, Mr. Shannon! How much I have heard of you and all the wonderful things you did! I used to want to know you when I was out there, but somehow you never seemed to be near where I was."

"Sit down," said Noel Shannon quietly and kindly, and he pushed forward a chair as he spoke.

There was a little pause, and then Pauline spoke:

"Ellen, my maid, told me that you had come down from London on purpose to see me!"

He nodded his head.

"Yes! That's so. My object was to see you, but I also was engaged to bring someone here who was in a fearful hurry to get here, and as the train service would not bring him as quickly as he wanted to travel, he chartered my little bus. But I'm afraid he didn't enjoy his journey very much," said Noel with a faint smile. "I have never seen a man so terrified in my life!"

She nodded her head. "Well! It didn't take me very long to grasp the character of the man who was my passenger today—a bad lot, Mrs. Creswold! A very bad lot! . . . and I am very grieved for your sake that you are obliged to have anything to do with him."

"God knows I would never have had anything to do with him if I had been a free agent," she answered in a low voice.

There was another pause between them, and then Shannon began to question her.

He asked her if she knew the name of Gerald Craven? and with a great start she said "Yes." And he then asked her if she knew the whereabouts of her mother and sister?

And this question brought a veritable outburst of anguish.

THE G. A. AT CHRISTOVAL

On Monday morning of last week at six o'clock, eighteen members of the Intermediate G. A. of the First Baptist church met with their sponsor, Miss Taylor, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baker. A truck was soon loaded with quilts, pillows, frying pans, eats, and girls. With Mr. Baker at the wheel, at six-thirty, the truck headed for Christoval. Arriving at high noon all hands busied themselves setting up camp in the Y. W. A. hut. Although it rained a greater part of the afternoon, shouts of laughter, yells and songs from this lively bunch echoed throughout the camp grounds. All parties agreed that a few more quilts would have been accepted Monday night, but the sun came out Tuesday and prevented all skating on the river.

Tuesday afternoon we visited Christoval mineral wells sanatorium, and gave a program consisting of songs, both religious and popular, readings and yells. We were given a hearty welcome by the inmates of the sanatorium with an urgent invitation to return.

Tuesday evening Kangaroo Court was held on the ladies' diving platform and Mary Helen Nicholson was tried for the crime of having a birthday while in a G. A. camp. She was found guilty and sentenced to sixteen bumps, which were administered at once.

Wednesday morning we enjoyed a trip to the head of the river. Other features of entertainment were boating, swimming, swinging and eating, and all the girls in turn proved themselves excellent cooks.

After noon Wednesday we donned our uniforms and after making a short visit in San Angelo, returned to Home Sweet Home. Those enjoying the delightful outing were Estelle Hornburg, Fannie Lou Stokes, Gladys Palmer, Mollie B. Stokes, V. Marie Stephens, Verta Nell Rountree, Margaret Nicholson, Alta Fae Patterson, Maurine Pumphrey, Edna Hornburg, Eloise Inman, Mary Helen Nicholson, Gladys Graham, Mildred Boone, Altha Sullivan, Victoria Dry, Vera Boone, Altus Shipman Mary D. Taylor, Sponsor; and Pastor and Mrs. H. H. Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baker, chaperones. Mrs. Sevels also went along and spent the time with Mother Patterson of Christoval.
