ELEVEN NEW MEMBERS WERE ADDED TO CHURCH ROLL.

Sunday night the revival meeting at the First Methodist church was brought to a close. The meeting was a great revival and possibly the best that has been held here for many, according to the pastor, Rev. J. W. Sharbutt.

Rev. D. A. Chisholm, pastor of the Central Methodist church of Brownwood, did the preaching which was deeply spiritual and presented with the power of conviction. Mr. Larry Smith of Ft. Worth, directed the song service and work with the young people. His work was the best in that line of work that the church has ever had at this place.

Eleven new members were received into the church, 9 by baptism and vows and two by certificate. A number were converted that will come into the church at a later date, and many re-consecrated their lives to a more definite work of the Lord in the church.

"We hope to have this same gospel team next year but we are planning to give more time to the meeting than this year. We thank God for these good men and the fine work they did for us and we would not forget to thank everyone that cooperated with us in helping to make this meeting the fine meeting that it was," said Rev. Sharbutt in speaking of the revival.

Hilarious Antics of Will Rogers in "Connecticut Yankee" Makes Most Amusing Film, Coming Sat. Night

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT'S "THE MINE WITH THE IRON DOOR" IS SHOWING AT THE QUEEN TODAY AND SATURDAY.

For the countless Will Rogers fans who have always maintained that "A Connecticut Yankee" was the greatest of the great comedian's pictures, there is good news in the announcement that 20th Century-Fox have re-released that rib-tickling comedy and that it is showing at the midnight preview Saturday at the Queen Theatre. "The Mine With the Iron Door," screen version of the popular Harold Bell Wright novel opens today with Richard Arlen in the stellar role. "Don't Gamble With Love," Columbia's revealing screen drama of what goes on in New York's gilded gambling palaces will head the new feature program Tuesday and Wednesday. Featuring Fred Stone and Jean Parker, "The Farmer in the Dell" comes to the screen as an entertainment "natural" in every sense of that term Thursday night.

"A Connecticut Yankee"

Mark Twain's delicious satire has been modernized in this version to permit the inclusion of speeches and actions that show that Will Rogers' talent at its greatest, Rogers, as a Connecticut smalltown merchant is transported back through the ages to the rude times of King Arthur and his round table. How this whimsical Yankee revolutionizes the business of knighthood, installs bathtubs in medieval England and astounds them all with magic is revealed in the film. In the climax, he is captured by a wicked queen, played by Myrna Loy, who has become infatuated with him. Just before he is brought back to modern times, his modernized troops bombard the queen's castle and rescue Rogers.

"The Mine With the Iron Door"

The picture tells the story of a young salesman who is high-pressured into buying some Arizona property from a slick promoter. When a dumb detective arrives to arrest the promoter who has just skipped, the salesman learns that the Mine with the Iron Door is supposedly located on his property and sells half interest in his purchase to the detective. The two set out for Arizona in search of the mine. There they meet an old prospector, his granddaughter and an archaeologist whose fanatical hatred for gold causes him to lead a most unusual existence. How the two treasure hunters find one clue after another until they eventually locate the hidden mine and how the young salesman finds love in the Canyon of Gold as well as the treasure provides the basis for this unusual story.

"Don't Gamble With Love"

Bruce Cabot's role is that of a top-hat gambling entrepreneur, proprietor of a profitable gaming club that is maintained strictly on the level. When his wife, portrayed by Ann Sothern, decides that their growing son deserves a more respectable environment, Cabot sells his club and buys into an investment firm. But his "honest" partner embezzles the firm funds and leaves Cabot holding the bag. Cabot insists on re-opening his gambling business but his wife refuses to go with him. Their separation leads to a thrilling denouement and a happy reconciliation.

"The Farmer in the Dell"

The story revolves around a kindly old farmer who is caught in the whirlpool of life in Hollywood and the motion picture studios against his will. The dramatic manner in which he extricates himself and his family from the pitfalls into which they stumble leads to a smashing denouement and the experiences of the family in their unfamiliar surroundings offer delightful entertainment.

CHEVROLET SALES SOARING UPWARD

Flint, Mich., Aug. 12.—Spurred by a record-breaking demand continuing month after month, the production of Chevrolet cars and trucks passed the 12,000,000-mark here today, the last million of that all-time total having been built in almost exactly eight months. The announcement was made by M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. The number of cars and trucks built since introduction of the 1936 model is now 1,182,000 he said.

Achievement of the 12th million-car milestone in the company's history was hastened, Mr. Coyle said, by the sustained demand which these products are enjoying all over the country, and the increased production facilities which, installed a year ago, have enabled the company to keep pace with that demand. Even with those facilities, he said, it has not been easy to build cars and trucks as fast as they were wanted in the field. The steady acceleration of Chevrolet's manufacturing operations is shown by production figures from 1912, the company's first production year, down to the present time. It took until 1923, eleven years, to build the first million units. The second and third millions were reached at two-year intervals thereafter, and the fourth and fifth millions in 1928. The sixth and eighth million were attained in the three years succeeding, the ninth in 1933 and the 10th in 1934. The 11,000,000th car was built December 1935, and, like the 12,000,000th, just completed, was a 1936 model.

Number 12,000,000, Mr. Coyle announced, will be displayed in Detroit and at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland prior to being driven to Dallas for exhibit at the Texas Centennial.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henslee and children, Carolee and Kenneth, returned home Sunday from a visit to the Centennial Exposition at Dallas and the Frontier celebration at Fort Worth. They also visited relatives while away.

Miss Peggy Rhodes of Los Angeles, Calif., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Foy Davis.

TENTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS . . . Amos Ethridge is found murdered in a county lane with a crude cross of twigs on his breast and a scented sheet of note paper in his pocket. He was the richest man in the state with power and influence enough to make himself candidate for Governor. With his death came hints of an unsavory private life, of wronged women and betrayed husbands and fathers who had reason to wish him dead. There was also a powerful secret political organization opposed to him . . . Mary Holmes, called "the goose woman" by newspaper reporters, lives nearest the scene of the crime on a small chicken farm where she ekes out a poor living and tries to find in drink the forgetfulness of past glories when she was Maria di Nardi, world-renowned opera singer . . . Gerald Holmes, a talented young artist, is hated and loved by his mother who is embittered because his birth caused the loss of her voice and wrecked her operatic career. He has been befriended by the murdered Ethridge, and is engaged to another of Amos Ethridge's proteges . . . Hazel Woods, lovely and brilliant young actress, has been helped to success by Ethridge. She lives in a small cottage owned by Ethridge. Jacob Riggs, eccentric old-time actor, now a doorman at the theater where Hazel Woods plays, has appointed himself her guardian and lives in a room over her garage.

"I—I only told what I saw," Mrs. Holmes declared, uncertainly. "I swore to it and you know what it means when you swear to a thing. Why—they'd arrest me, for all I know."

"But there's a terrible mistake somewhere," the girl earnestly asserted. "I can't explain the car with one headlight—the car that passed you after the shooting—and yet Jerry declares he left your house an hour before the murder and drove straight to town. He's telling the truth; I know he is."

"They claim he laid in wait," without you! It's your evidence that contradicts him. You didn't actually recognize him—you said so! And if it had been Jerry you'd have known him. Of course you would! You'd know your own boy anywhere—"

"I—was too far away." Hazel protested breathlessly: "No, no! Think! Oh, God, think of something to show it wasn't he! Some action, some gesture, some peculiarity! Maybe there were two headlights on that last car and you were mistaken. It's so easy to be mistaken and just that one point might save him. Think! If it were me I'd—think of something. I'd—But they've discredited me; there's nothing I can do. I'm utterly helpless." She broke down now and, hiding her face in her hands, she sobbed wretchedly; the tears came thru her fingers. There was a poignant quality to her grief. She was very young and very frail. Mrs. Holmes realized that this tragedy had broken her like a butterfly. A curse on men like Amos Ethridge! Yes, and on men like Vogel!

After a while the mother said, roughly: "Go away! Give me a chance to think. Mind you, I don't believe it's any use but—" Again she broke out in gusty vexation. "Oh, why does everything I do turn out wrong? It's his fault as much as mine. It's easy for you to tell me to lie, to perjure myself—" "I don't. I merely say what I'd—be willing—to do."

"All right! All right! Go along now. I'll let you know if I can think of anything, but I'm sick. That's my luck. Sick! That's how things go with me. I—I wish I were dead!"

That afternoon Vogel called at the hotel in accordance with a request from Mrs. Holmes, and after she had beat about the bush for a while she told him haltingly that she wished to make a new affidavit. There were certain points in her first one that she realized, upon careful thought, needed explanation, modification. Vogel listened until she had finished, then he said:

"I've been expecting this. Save it for the trial."

"But—the trouble is Jerry's being tried now, in the newspapers. The verdict will be in before the jury goes out."

"Don't you believe he's guilty?"

The woman averted her eyes. "There are some people who couldn't commit a murder, and he's one. There's nothing vicious about him. He liked Mr. Ethridge and he knew nothing whatever about the Woods affair."

"Nothing vicious, eh? Nothing vicious about his mother, either, I suppose?" Vogel grinned derisively. "Tell that to the reporter you shot at."

Mrs. Holmes argued feebly until he broke in: "I understand you perfectly, and your feelings do you credit. But I am a servant of the people and the law must be upheld. I sincerely regret that in doing your duty you placed your son in jeopardy, but it's not the first time such a thing has happened. Justice must be served and murder will out. Truth is more sacred even than a mother's love. It's my task to discover the truth."

"But you haven't. I was—mistaken," the woman protested. "I'm not going to let an innocent person suffer for my mistake."

"Mistake!" "Well, call it whatever you want to. I gave wrong testimony. I—lied!" "Indeed? It's too bad you're so late confessing it. Now see here—the speaker's tone changed—"we'll end this foolishness right now. I'm not going to let you make a monkey out of me, whatever your natural impulse may be, I dare say you'll testify that I deceived or coerced you; put words into your mouth; induced you to sign something you didn't read. We'll see! Are you going to play straight, do your duty as a citizen and stick to what you said, or—?"

"No, I can't. I'm going to tell the truth."

Vogel rose. "Thanks for letting me know. If you choose to discredit yourself in any such manner I'll make a good job of it. You see, I've looked up your whole history and I'll make you tell it to the jury, with your own lips. It won't help the defendant any, believe me."

"What do you mean?" Mrs. Holmes faintly demanded.

"You understand plain English. You'll hear a lot of it if you maintain this attitude." There was a pause. "You must have some affection for this—this 'son' of yours. That's nothing more than animal nature! But the more lies you tell, the more the jury will believe in the story you told me and swore to; the more firmly you will convince them that you are swearing falsely to save your illegitimate child."

"I see. If I don't do what you say you'll tell all about—Jerry?" "And you! Exactly. I'd like to spare you both, but—" the speaker shrugged. "Better grit your teeth and go through with it. You can't save him, no matter what you do." With these words Vogel left.

Hazel Woods was surprised late that night to receive a telephone request to come at once to the hotel where Mrs. Holmes was stopping. On account of the hour, she took old Jacob Riggs with her. She had taken Jacob about with her a good deal this past week, not merely as an escort, but also because he displayed such pathetic eagerness to comfort and to protect her. In these troubled circumstances she was grateful for sympathy and faith from whatever source, and of all her friends he alone remained loyal; he was indeed a father. He was, if possible, "queerer" than ever, more given to melancholy quotations from the Bible; nevertheless she had a tender feeling for him and her misfortune had drawn them close together.

Hazel found a number of reporters waiting in the hotel lobby and was surprised to learn that Mrs. Holmes had likewise sent for them. Her surprise deepened, hope stirred, when the two attorneys she had hired for Jerry hurried in, explaining that they, too, had been summoned. It was quite a group that finally rode upstairs and filed into the sick woman's room.

Mrs. Holmes was up and dressed, but she looked desperately ill. As soon as her visitors had disposed of themselves, she began, in a voice harsh and purposeful:

"Get out your pencils, boys. There's another 'big' story coming. I had a talk with Mr. Vogel today and told him I had made a false affidavit. I told him my account of the Ethridge murder was a pure invention."

The correspondents exchanged glances, the attorneys leaned forward eagerly. Hazel felt old Jacob's bony fingers upon her arm and heard him mutter some scriptural phrase of thanksgiving.

"I'm going to tell you the whole truth and I want you to print it. I sent for Jerry's lawyers so they can have it put down in proper form and I can swear to it. I don't know how such things ought to be done, but—"

"Never mind. Go ahead," one of the attorneys urged.

"I'll start at the beginning and go along in my own way. Please don't interrupt me—you can straighten it out later. Well, then, I did see an automobile with one headlight pass my house that night—I was waiting for Jerry—and it stopped in the pine grove up by the lane. But that's all I actually saw. I did not see the murderer; I didn't see the car come back. I don't know when it came back, for I never stepped outside my door after Jerry told me good night. After he left I went to bed. I heard some shots, but I didn't know Amos Ethridge had been killed until the next morning. As soon as I heard about it I hurried up there and hung around all day. That's the truth, so help me God!"

A question or two was voiced, but the woman did not answer.

"I talked to some of you boys that morning and told you all I knew, but you went out of your way to treat me contemptuously—make fun of me. I was furious when I saw your stories. When I was on the stage I used to get a thrill out of interviews; I was crazy for publicity. People in my profession frequently get that way. I loved to see my name in print. I saved every notice, every criticism; I collected thousands of clippings and preserved them. It's a mild form of disease and lots of actors have it, for they're always playing to an audience. . . . I've been acting all my life, on the stage, at home, before my friends, to myself. When you're in print, you are acting in a way, only to a different audience. When I lost my voice I lost my audience. That was the hardest thing to bear. I used to think I was the most tragic figure in the world, but—the speaker smiled bitterly—"I guess it was largely because I never saw my name in print, never heard it mentioned any more. What is a career except—appliance? What does a person get out of it except food for his vanity? I'll tell you this to explain what happened next, for if you don't understand the sort of person I am—the theatrical temperament—you won't be able to understand what I did."

"Well, after I got over my first resentment at being ridiculed, the old disease came back. It pleased me to be written about and to have my words quoted, even though you called me the 'goose woman,' a bedraggled old hag, 'a drunken haridan.' When I realized how far I'd gone back a lot of dead hopes and ambitions came to life. Embers I thought were cold . . . The 'goose woman'! It's a good name for me."

"All at once I dropped out of the papers entirely. I got no more thrills; had nothing to think about, nothing to occupy me; I had to quit acting. I was awfully lonely. I'd had a taste of the drug; the habit was back on me fiercer than ever, if you know what I mean. . . . I dare say after this you can follow my motives. I pieced out a story to fit my theory of the killing, studied the ground so as not to contradict myself, planted an old glove—it was very simple; it looked perfectly easy; I didn't think I was doing harm to anybody for I felt sure the murder would never be solved and I was merely bringing Maria di Nardi back to life—laying roses on a forgotten shrine. I don't know and I don't care who killed Amos Ethridge. Whoever did it had a good reason, no doubt, for he was a bad man."

"Mr. Vogel believed me. He brought me here, put me up, dressed me up, and I got so I believed my own story. It was wonderful to 'come back' to creep out of my shell and become Maria di Nardi again even though it was all make-believe. There's a crab—the hermit crab—that does something like that. He's an ugly, soft, misshapen thing, but he crawls into empty shells, beautiful shells, the owners of which have died, and he lives there . . . I had a glorious time in my new, beautiful shell until I realized that I had

FIRST GRID GAME OF THE YEAR TO BE IN DALLAS

Dallas, August 12.—The Southwest's first major football game of 1936, to be played in the Cotton Bowl at the Texas Centennial Exposition September 7, will show a cast of all-star characters equivalent to anyone's who's who in the great American grid game today.

Southwest fans have seen grid ghosts go galloping over their gridirons before, to be sure, but this battle in the Cotton Bowl Labor Day night between the Chicago Bears and a picked All-American eleven dominated by Southwestern stars promises to be a case of collective gambling.

There will be half a hundred or more of these grid stars on hand for this game, and a majority of them, whether members of one team or the other, are not strangers to All American ranks. Check these names in your who's who in football: Truman Spain of Southern Methodist University; Bobby Wilson, also of Southern Methodist; Westmueller of Southern California; Bob Reynolds, also of Southern California; John McCauley of Rice Institute; Ike Poole and Jimmy Howell of Arkansas; Throgmorton of Vanderbilt; Lutz of University of Southern California; and "Iron Man" Wetzel of Southern Methodist University.

The Bears are the most spectacular grid outfits and were runners-up in the 1935 national championship.

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE G. Y. LEE ENDORSES JAMES M. SIMPSON, JR.

Eden, Texas, August 12, 1936. Mr. James M. Simpson, Sr., Paint Rock, Texas. Dear Mr. Simpson: Replying to your inquiry concerning the assistance rendered to me in my candidacy to the office of Representative, you were the man that forced me into the race. You procured a petition and filed my name in the three different counties and paid the filing fee thereon.

I have at all times regarded that action on your part with a great degree of pride. Having known you for more than thirty years, you having known me intimately all during those years, and having had the opportunity to know my limitations, I could but accept that token of confidence with much regard.

Under the circumstances and conditions existing today, I hope that your son, James Simpson, Jr., will succeed in winning the representative race at this time and it is alright for you to use this letter as seems proper to you if it will further his candidacy, and if my support will be of value to him.—Yours very truly, G. Y. LEE.

FOR TOWN WEAR

Pattern 8704: Achieving a youthful accent in a frock for mature figures brings joy both to the designer and to the wearer, and the model here shown accomplishes this objective so gracefully, so easily as to make it appear utterly simple. For which you may give credit to a softly charming neckline and the concealing folds of the always-flattering capelet sleeves. The slimming panels of the skirt, front and back, give way to kick pleats for essential fullness.

Make it of a colorful print of your favorite material—silk or crepe or pongee or cotton—with a self-fabric belt to gather in the waistline and know the joy of perfect grooming.

Winters Couple Married Saturday at Lubbock

Marriage vows were taken Saturday evening at Lubbock, uniting Mr. Foy Davis and Miss Bonita Harrison, both of Winters. Dr. Francis Fry, a close friend of the bride and Bible instructor in Texas Tech, officiated at his home, reading the double ring ceremony in the presence of Miss Irene Craig and Herbert Adami of this city.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. J. B. Rhodes of Los Angeles, California. She has been a member of the faculty of the Winters schools for the past three years and taught at Raymondville prior to coming here. She received her college training at Texas University and Hardin-Simmons University where she took her degree. She has taken active part in church and social affairs during her residence here.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Davis, well-known members of a pioneer family of this section of Runnels county. He was reared near Winters and is a graduate of Winters high school. He received his college training from Hardin-Simmons and took a business course from Tyler Commercial college. At present he is employed in the bookkeeping department of a road construction project.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will make their home in Winters and are at home in the Stephens apartment.

Bible Study By Methodist W.M.S. Is Interesting

One of the most interesting Bible lessons of the year came at the close of the revival meeting when the missionary society read and discussed the 16th and 17th chapters of Acts on Paul and Timothy's preaching at Thessalonica, Borea and Athens, at the Methodist church Monday afternoon.

Mrs. J. M. Skaggs opened the meeting by the group singing "Jesus is all the World to Me" followed by prayer by Mrs. J. W. Sharbutt. The teacher, Mrs. Chas. Chapman, began the lesson by asking Mrs. Guy Mullins and Mrs. W. A. Pace to read and discuss the first chapter of the lesson. The points stressed were "Paul Finding Timothy," conversion of the Philippian Jailor and only condition of salvation.

The 17th chapter was read and discussed by Mesdames A. D. Lee and Mrs. J. W. Sharbutt. Points stressed were "Founding the church at Thessalonica," "Paul and Silas at Borea" and "God Will Judge the World Thru Jesus Christ." A round table discussion was held and everyone was anxious to ask and answer questions until it seemed like a religious meeting. The closing prayer was by Mrs. Wm. Stevens.

Those present were Mesdames Ira Huss, Norman Marshall, Walter White, J. W. Sharbutt, Lula White, W. A. Pace, W. L. Pratt, Guy Mullins, Ella Ritch, W. W. Poe, A. D. Lee, J. M. Skaggs, Wm. Stevens and Chas. Chapman.

Sixteen Books Are Donated to Winters Free Library

By the timely donations of books and magazines and the recently received loan of fifty books from the State Library at Austin the Winters Free Library, for the first time during the summer months is able to supply the demand for reading matter. And with the thermometer standing around 100 during the greater part of the day, and with so many people wanting books for their recreation instead of more strenuous pastimes, these books and magazines supplied through the generosity of our patrons are doing a wonderful amount of good.

The latest donations of books are sixteen donated by W. B. Oliver as follows:

Capt. Jno. Blaine's "Boy Scouts in Italy;" Winston Churchill's "Cinstiton;" Jeffrey Farnol's "Sir John Deering;" H. Rider Haggard's "Allan's Wife;" H. Rider Haggard's "Allan Quatermain;" V. B. Ibanez' "Enemies of Women;" Mary Johnston's "Prisoners of Hope;" Vaughn Kester's "The Prodigal Judge;" "Kitteridge and Early's "Grammar;" Mrs. L. T. Meade's "A Sweet Girl Graduate;" Mrs. Molesworth's "Carrots;" Mrs. Molesworth's "The Girls and I;" Pace's "American Literature;" Pennycuiker's "History of Texas;" Plutarch's "Lives;" Joseph Vance's "The Brass Bowl."

Twenty Saturday Evening Posts were brought in early Wednesday afternoon by Jane Wood and Susie Baker. As magazines are very popular during the summer time these will help supply the present demand for magazines for mature readers.

Every reader is cordially invited to make selections for their reading from these books and magazines each Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

Nothing can take the place of that close relationship which may exist between you and your local bank—a bank that is not too big, and yet large enough to meet every requirement of the community.

Farmers, business men and everyone will find here a service adequate for their needs. They will also find a sincere and neighborly interest in their financial welfare, which is possible only in a bank that is not too big—a bank which has grown with, and knows the needs of, the community it serves. We are always pleased to make new friends.

HOW THE "TAKE" IS SPLIT

Some interesting figures have just been compiled by the Department of Commerce which show an increase in 1935 of $2,425,000,000 in the wages paid to workers by American business concerns, above the wage payments of 1934. At the same time, these figures indicate, the amount paid to the executive management of business enterprises increased by about $75,000,000. The net figure of about 27 billion dollars for wages and 850 millions for management tallies with previous statistics which show that the wage-workers get about 97 cents out of each payroll dollar and the big executives three cents.

A study by the National Association of Manufacturers indicates that the total of goods made and sold last year was about 50 billion dollars, out of which labor and management were paid about 28 billions, or 56 percent of the intake, while about 9 1/2 billions, or 19 percent of the selling price of all goods, was taken by Federal, state and local governments for taxes. Less than a quarter of the income from sales was left to pay for raw materials, plant maintenance and depreciation and the other costs which every business must carry, to say nothing of reserves against a rainy day and dividends to stockholders.

All of this is interesting in view of the criticism that the salaries paid to the management of the big corporations are too high. If by paying a good manager three cents a business is enabled to pay a worker 97 cents that would seem to be to the workers' advantage, especially when they get nearly 55 cents and the big bosses less than two cents out of every dollar's worth of goods sold.

Dallas, August 12.—Booker T. Washington (Negro) High School of Dallas will go in strong for inter-state grid games in the Cotton Bowl, Texas Centennial Exposition this fall. Three of its six games at the Exposition will be with out of state schools, Tulsa, Ardmore and Oklahoma City.

Be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars.—Van Dyke.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

The ordinary pattern of a revolution is simple and well established: Comparatively radical or liberal elements within a country rise against a conservative or monarchist government. The French and American revolutions are examples of this.

The current Spanish revolution violates the accepted rules. The party in power in Spain—"The Government"—consists of so-called liberals and radicals, whose beliefs range all the way from a mild semi-socialism to communism. The rebels are the reactionaries—the Spanish equivalents of Tories and monarchists.

At this writing, the revolution is still in full swing, and both sides are claiming great victories, both say they are certain of success. Normally, such a civil war would not be of any great interest to America and Europe. But the chaotic European and Asiatic situations being what they are, the Spanish revolt is of tremendous international, as well as national, significance.

Today, roughly speaking, all Europe is divided into two camps—fascists and anti-fascists. Germany is fascist. So is Italy. So is Austria. France is anti-fascist. The Spanish rebels, if they succeed, will establish a fascist government in Spain, and following the German-Italian pattern, will rule through power of might, at the expense of all civil liberties. And if they fail, it will still be evident that a substantial minority in Spain is opposed to all liberal tendencies, favors a militaristic dictatorship. (The present Spanish government leaves much to be desired, in the light of American and British ideas of freedom, but, by comparison with Germany and Italy, it stands solidly for civil liberties.)

To continue, France is the last important mainstay of Democracy in Europe. Even now, she is bordered on two sides by fascist states, which hate her and are hated by her in turn—Germany and Italy. If Spain goes fascist and, as would doubtless follow, enters into an accord with Germany and Italy, France would be almost entirely surrounded by inimical, fascist powers, all longing to tear the Tricolor from its mast. In that case, nothing but a miracle could prevent war.

It is strongly rumored that both Italy and Germany have been encouraging the Spanish rebels, have provided them with arms and other supplies.

In the Far East, Japan wishes to dominate the Pacific—but first, she wishes to dominate Asia. All that prevents the fulfillment of that ambition is Russia, which is possibly the best-armed country in the world, and which has almost limitless resources of all kinds. The experts are certain that in case of trouble, Japan and Germany would enter into an accord, and the enemies of 1914 would become allies.

The Side Show

fillment of that ambition is Russia, which is possibly the best-armed country in the world, and which has almost limitless resources of all kinds. The experts are certain that in case of trouble, Japan and Germany would enter into an accord, and the enemies of 1914 would become allies.

The whole situation is charged with dynamite—there is no question but that the outlook is much darker even than in the dark days of 1913, before Sarajevo. One of the best of the foreign observers recently said that Europe has been drifting toward war for years—but that now it is marching. That is no exaggeration. And the "little Spanish match" could explode the whole powder keg.

RICH MEN'S MONEY

One of the most popular subjects of discussion is that of the so-called redistribution of wealth. Few stop to think that the process is going on all the time, and has been from the beginning of time. There is an old saying that it is "only three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves." In other words, no matter how much a man may accumulate in his own lifetime, his great-grandsons will have to go to work to build up their own fortunes.

Sometimes the process is speeded up. The very rich find it more and more difficult to keep their fortunes intact. It is a sound axiom that it is always harder to keep money than it is to get it. And the more intelligent the temporary possessor of great wealth is, the less concerned he is about keeping it.

The late Andrew Carnegie said that it was a disgrace for a man to die rich; and a recent court procedure disclosed that the trust fund which he set up to provide for his wife and daughter, amounted to less than one-tenth of his fortune; the rest he gave away during his life or left in his will for public and philanthropic purposes.

When J. P. Morgan sailed for Europe a few days ago he remarked to newspaper men that in another thirty years there would not be any more great fortunes left in America. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., returning from France where he had been receiving the thanks of the French government for gifts of many millions to restore some historic edifices, told ship news reporters that he thought Mr. Morgan was giving present-day fortunes a pretty long time to live.

But the history of humanity is that new men of ability and force are always rising from the mass, building new fortunes for themselves, which they and their families enjoy for a generation or two, to be in their turn dissipated. So it has been from the beginning and so it will always be.

Dallas, August 12. — Ticket prices for grid games in the Cotton Bowl, Texas Centennial Exposition, will be in line with the Exposition's general "reasonable price" program. Seats for major games would sell for $2.20.

When you have a fight with your conscience and get licked, you win.—Nuggets.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, August 12.—How important a political issue can be made out of the falling off in exports of American farm products and the increase in imports of staple food supplies is the latest question on which political observers here are focusing their attention. How much of the current situation is due to natural causes or conditions outside of governmental control and how much to political measures, is the root of the argument.

The facts as Washington gets them are something like this:

The oversupply of surplus wheat which has been depressing the world market for several years, has been practically consumed, resulting in higher prices. The world's normal carryover of surplus wheat is about 300,000,000 bushels. All the reports which the Department of Agriculture regards as reliable indicate that the surplus for the year to come will be just about this normal carryover. Of this the United States crop of 1936, amounted to 600,000 bushels, and the supply of old wheat carried over, 125,000,000 bushels, will leave an American surplus of about 100,000,000 bushels.

Wheat consumption is increasing all over the world and this fact, coupled with the worldwide shortage, will tend to keep prices up. Of course, it is much too early to forecast the Argentine and Australian crops, where it is now mid-winter or early Spring.

In the meantime, American Wheat imports are up this year over last year. These imports are for special grades of wheat in demand by millers, which are normally grown in the Northwest and of which the crop has been short for the past six years. In the first six months of this year official figures show that 19,805,560 bushels of wheat were imported from abroad, compared with 12,839,047 bushels in the corresponding period of 1935.

Corn and the Drought
Official Washington is more concerned with the corn crop than with the wheat crop. If the drought continues to the middle of this month, the Department of Agriculture's estimate is that the corn crop will be less than half of the normal 2,500,000,000 bushels, and even with good weather and plenty of rain, the corn crop will be about 800,000,000 bushels short of the normal 2,500,000,000.

So far this year imports of corn have been less than one-third of what they were in the first half of 1935; 5,662,215 bushels against 17,620,195 in the same period last year. There has been a sharp decline in the importation of oats and of butter.

On the other side of the scale, exports of wheat have dropped to practically nothing, though cotton exports have been higher is no surplus labor in the industrial market, the slack having been taken up by the Government's WPA and CCC activities, so that the trend of wages is upward.

The outcome of the internal warfare in the ranks of organized labor, between the A. F. of L. and John Lewis' C. I. O., which means "Committee on Industrial Organization," becomes more acute, with each side trying to get some sort of a commitment of backing from the Administration. Miss Perkins, the Secretary of Labor, is keeping on neutral ground in this situation.

Organized labor is not satisfied with the fuller explanation which Gov. Landon gave, in his letter to Norman Thomas, the Socialist leader, clarifying his position in regard to labor. The attitude of union labor leaders is that a "company union," that is, one confined to the employees of a single company, is something not to be tolerated, no matter how free the employees may be left by their employers to organize as they see fit. Gov. Landon has not denounced company unions, though fully conceding the right of union organizers to use any form of persuasion short of coercion to induce workers to join their unions.

For the first time since President Wilson went to France to negotiate the peace treaty a President of the United States while in office set foot on foreign soil, when President Roosevelt paid a visit to the ceremony of Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada. American newspaper men who accompanied the President were glad to have furnished to them an English translation of the part of his speech which he delivered in French for the benefit of the people of Quebec, whose official language is still that of France.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

ORDINARY FOLKS IMPORTANT

Every year a certain executive delivers a speech to the members of his organization, which contains this standard paragraph: "The most important people in this office are not my partners or myself; they are the young people who sit in the reception halls. My partners and I see only a few people; they see everybody. They create the impression about our office that is carried by thousands of visitors into all sorts of places, and may bob up at the most unexpected times to do us good or harm."

"If these young people are going to insult anybody, I hope it will not be the young messenger boys who deliver telegrams and packages. Be careful never to insult them. You never can tell how soon they will grow up to be executives in positions where they may have a big influence on our affairs."

An automobile dealer mistreated a certain difficult customer, who forthwith acquired a permanent frown and devoted much of his spare time to airing his grievance. Nobody knows how many sales he killed in the course of the year, probably hundreds. A meter-reader for a public utility company was rude to a housewife. Her husband was subsequently elected to the state legislature and became a thorn in the company's side.

Every business, big or little, is dependent for its good will on the humdrum activities of very ordinary men and women. These people are unimportant on the pay-roll, but they may be mightily important in the balance sheet.

THEN THEY GOT MARRIED

The campus of a certain university was picketed by fiery-eyed youngsters carrying banners of violent protest. Just what the object of their indignation may have been, I can't for the moment remember. It was a lively spectacle; a couple of windows were broken in a recitation hall, and the president's study was assailed with high-pitched demands that he come forth and declare himself.

I met him on a golf course a week later and referred to the rumpus. "You look pretty serene for a man who has lived through so many unrising," I remarked. He laughed. "They are a regular part of the job," he said, "Every once in a while the young man's thoughts turn to parade and denunciations. I have watched the phenomenon for twenty-five years. Also, I have kept a list of the principal riot leaders. I know what happens to them."

"That's interesting," I said. "What does happen to them?" "They get jobs, and then they get married, and then they have youngsters, and then they get better jobs. And by that time they are no longer interested in over-turning things. They are too busy playing the game."

It will be a sad day for the world if youth ever ceases to have its period of protest. Youth ought to be dissatisfied and impatient; it ought to look critically at the messy fashion in which its elders have run the world. The sharp point of its protest pricks old age and causes some grudging forward movement.

But Nature seldom allows the movement to develop into a runaway. Almost before Youth is aware of what is happening, she has married him, and put him to work, and transferred him to the ranks of good citizens.

Throngs of Motorists Entering Texas During Year of Celebrations

Austin, August 12.—Approximately 45,000 out-of-state vacationists' cars enter Texas each month to travel an average of 540 miles in the State, according to statistics gathered by 13 information offices located at border points and maintained by the State Highway department.

It is estimated that one car in every seven stops at one of the 13 highway information huts for assistance and an average of 1,600 cars stop weekly at the border line stations according to reports from the station attendants. With the Texas Centennial by far the outstanding attraction, every state in the Union has been represented by tourists entering Texas. J. B. Early, maintenance engineer, said that practically every visitor who stopped for information indicated his intention to visit other parts of the state as well as the Exposition at Dallas, the Frontier Centennial at Fort Worth and the exhibition at Austin.

Based on information received by the State Department of Information with offices at Dallas, thousands of the nation's vacationists are deferring their visit to Texas until fall months, an indication that the tremendous out-of-state travel in Texas will be swelled with the coming of fall.

It is interesting to note that California sends more visiting motorists to Texas than any other state with the exception of the neighboring states of Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

There's something wrong with everybody—even you.

Queens at Centennial Meet at Ford Exposition

It was Queens' Day in the lounge of the Ford Exposition building at the Texas Centennial in Dallas when five reigning beauties celebrated Railroad Week with a reception. Queen of Queens was Miss Marybeth McGurk, of Chicago, who held court in the lounge with her maids of honor. Left to right: Mildred Kreher, St. Louis, Queen of the Cotton Belt; Dorothy Whitt, Chicago; Miss McGurk, Mildred Williams, Chicago, and Martha Bergersen, Chicago.

Dallas, August 12.—Cavalcade of Texas, that unforgettable spectacle, a pageant depicting the colorful history of the Lone Star State, continues to draw the largest crowds of any concession on the grounds of the Texas Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas.

Mrs. Warren Gray and daughters, Suella and Mary Frances, Mrs. Leslie Parson and sons, John and Russell, all of Las Cruces, N. M., visited last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Latham. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Parson are sisters of Mr. Latham.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Colburn, Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Colburn and children attended a barbecue and fish fry at the Campbell ranch near Ballinger Wednesday.

Miss Virginia White, enroute to her home in Dallas from a visit in California, stopped over Friday for a visit with Mrs. Lula White in the B. G. Owens home.

put a noose around my boy's neck."

Mary Holmes fell silent. Nobody spoke for a moment; then somebody inquired:

"What did Vogel say when you told him this?"

"He said I was lying to save Jerry and he had expected something of the sort. Then he threatened me—"

"Threatened you?" It was one of the lawyers speaking.

"Yes. He's holding something over me. Now that I've defied him, I've got to tell you what it is—that means telling the world—and it isn't easy even for a 'bedraggled old harridan' like me. You see—I was never married! . . . Well, gentlemen, there you have the whole story. Mr. Vogel doesn't believe it, but you do, don't you? And the public will believe it. Why, you must know I'm telling the truth."

The speaker stared eagerly at first one then another of her hearers. One of the older men answered her:

"It makes no difference, Mrs. Holmes, what we fellows think. We're trained not to think, but to get the news. We'll send out this story, if you say so, but are you sure you want us to? Will it do any good?"

"Then you—don't believe me?" "Let's put it this way: we don't think the public will believe you. The circumstantial evi-

Refreshing Relief When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

TREACHEROUS MONTHS

Why do people "catch cold" more easily during winter than in summer? In most cases it is due to indoor living conditions.

The generally accepted theory of "a cold" is that you carry cold germs in your throat constantly. As soon as you become tired, overheated or chilled you are susceptible to attack. Any sudden change in temperature disturbs the heat-regulating apparatus of the body and the cold germ rises to the opportunity to undermine your health. Therefore, quick changes of temperature should be avoided.

The threat of the cold germ is limited during summer months largely because warm weather living habits make it exceedingly difficult for cold germs to become active. In summer, there is an adequate circulation of pure, warm air throughout the home. Since the temperature is approximately the same in each room during the warm weather season, your family is not subject to sudden changes.

On the other hand, UNLESS you provide adequate heat and proper circulation of pure, warm air in every room of the house during winter, sudden temperature changes are unavoidable. Members of your family go from a heated room into a cold hall or unheated adjoining room. Then shivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. Each time this happens during the winter season, they have unnecessarily subjected themselves to the vicious attack of the cold germ.

It is good health insurance to take the simple precaution of providing adequate heat and proper circulation of pure, warm air in every room in the house during cold weather. Use your home to the fullest this winter as you have during the past summer. You will find it of valuable assistance in protecting your family from America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ.

COMMUNITY NATURAL GAS CO.

The common cold germ is responsible for more than two hundred million illnesses each year.

Recipes And Menus

Denton, Aug. 12.—It is often economy in labor to cook more food at one time than is used for one meal. But the problem of combining cooked foods into entirely different dishes at the second appearance at the table requires originality and skill in seasoning and in combining natural food flavors.

Certain vegetables which were served plain when freshly cooked can be reheated in a sauce for the second appearance. Corn on the cob can next be served cut off the cob, creamed, or in fritters. Bony cuts of chicken or roasts with left over gravy or broth have many possibilities.

Cottage Pie

Cover the bottom of a small greased baking dish with hot mashed potatoes, add a thick layer of roast beef, chopped or cut in small pieces (season with salt, pepper, and a few drops of lemon juice) and moisten with some of the gravy; cover with a thin layer of mashed potato and bake in a hot oven long enough to heat through. Brown the top slightly.

Escalloped Oysters

1 pint oysters, 4 T oyster liquid, 2 T milk or cream, 1/2 c stale bread crumbs, 1 c cracker meal, 1/2 c melted butter, salt, pepper. Mix bread and cracker and stir in butter. Put in thin layer in the bottom of a buttered shallow baking dish. Add oysters and crumbs alternately. Pour on liquid and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Curry of Chicken

1 c boiled chicken, 1/2 c boiled rice, 1/2 c chicken broth, 1-4 c cream, 1 c milk, 1 T flour, 1 T butter, 1-2 t salt, dash of pepper, 1 t curry powder. Make a white sauce of the butter and flour and milk. Add salt, pepper, and curry powder. Then add cooked rice and cooked chicken, cream, and broth. Place over the fire and when heated thoroughly serve.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Williamson of Dallas are expected today for a visit with his sisters, Mrs. L. F. Wilson and Mrs. J. R. Dry, also his mother, Mrs. J. V. Davis.
