Kay Francis in "White Angel" Plays Her Best Stellar Role As Florence Nightingale Coming Sat. at Mid-Nite

JOE E. BROWN EVOKES RIOT OF LAUGHS IN THE NEW COMEDY "SONS O' GUNS," FEATURE FILM COMING TUES.-WED.

"The White Angel," First National's dramatization of the life of Florence Nightingale, is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Queen Theatre Saturday night at the midnight prelude with Kay Francis in the stellar role. "Call of the Prairie" showing today and tomorrow is the latest of the series of movies built around Clarence E. Mulford's famous "Hopalong Cassidy" stories, "Sons O' Guns," Joe E. Brown's latest Warner Bros. comedy frolic, based on the hilarious Broadway musical hit by Fred Thompson and Jack Donaghy opens Tuesday for a two day run.

"The White Angel"

The picture paints in fiery drama the fight of Florence Nightingale, a wealthy English society girl, to remedy conditions in army field hospitals and the neglect of dying soldiers. All the tragedy and pathos of the battlefield is pictured in the film, as well as the beauty of life and sacrifices of Florence Nightingale and her specially picked nurses. The film is set in the middle of the last century during the Crimean War, and the most thrilling scenes take place at the base hospital at Scutari, a small Turkish town on the north shore of the Bosphorus and at Balaclava, where the immortal six hundred of the Light Brigade rode "into the jaws of death." No more powerful nor romantic theme could have been selected than of the life of the great nurse who gave her all to humanity by revolutionizing the hospitalization system of the world, and whose efforts laid the groundwork for the establishing of the Red Cross.

"Call of the Prairie"

It is the dramatic action story of the trials and tribulations of Johnny Nelson, "Hopalong's" frisky young cow-poke pal and of the efforts of "Hoppy" to aid his protegee. Involved in bad company, accused of attempted murder, although innocent, Johnny finds himself an outcast of Twin Rivers and Bar 20 until he can prove his innocence. Fighting back single-handed, unaware of Hoppy's unwillingness to believe his guilt, he hits the trail to bring the outlaw band to account, with Hoppy coming to his aid at the critical time. Both are reunited and together they prove his innocence.

"Sons o' Guns"

The story is a rollicking comedy romance dealing with the humorous side of doughboy life in France during the World War. The picture is said to be the most colorful and picturesque, and lavish in production values, staged with more elaborateness than any previous Joe E. Brown comedy. Between his distaste for army discipline and enemy shells on one hand and his timorous adventures with three jealous and aggressive sweethearts on the other, Joe finds that life is just one horrible nightmare after another, much to the amusement, it is said, of the spectators. Joan Blondell, Wini Shaw and Beverly Roberts are Joe's three war-time sweethearts.

LYRIC THEATRE

"Love Begins at Twenty," the new First National production which comes to the Lyric Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday is said to be one of the most hilarious romances of the present show season. Warren Hull and Patricia Ellis have the romantic roles. Their path of true love has been blocked by Patricia's mother who scorns Warren, the handsome grocery store clerk. The mother is played by Dorothy Vaughan who bosses Hugh Herbert, her henpecked husband, and other members of the family, and everlastingly throws up to them that she wasted her life by not marrying a mythical Harold McCauley whom she endows with all the virtues of the manly sex.

"Murder by an Aristocrat," a First National mystery drama is to be the featured attraction Wednesday and Thursday. The plot centers about the deaths of two members of the proud and aristocratic Thatcher family. Bayard Thacher, a part played by William Davidson, is the first to meet death. The blacksheep of the family who is attempting to blackmail his relatives, is wounded mysteriously one night by a bullet and the next day he is found shot through the heart. Five other members of the family are suspected as also are the butler and two maids, although John Eldredge, portraying the district attorney, a relative, tries to make out a case of robbery a costly string of emeralds having disappeared. Later Gordon Elliott, is eliminated as a suspect, he being found dead in the attic of the Thatcher mansion. Lyle Talbot as Dr. Carrick is

PRESIDENT OF THE CHEVROLET MOTOR CO. VISITS IN TEXAS

Mr. M. E. Coyle, President and General Manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company and Mr. W. E. Holler, Vice-President and General Sales Manager, visited Dallas Friday, where both Mr. Coyle and Mr. Holler talked to the 300 dealers of the Dallas Zone. Henry Jones from Winters attended the meeting in Dallas.

The visit of Mr. Coyle was his first official dealer meeting in the Dallas Zone, since he was made President of the Chevrolet Motor Company, nearly three years ago. Mr. Coyle has been with the General Motors Corporation and Chevrolet for almost twenty-five years. Both he and Mr. Holler spent Friday afternoon informally with the dealers.

The Chevrolet executives arrived in Dallas, Thursday night from Houston, where a similar meeting was held. During the first part of the week, they visited New Orleans and Memphis. The Detroit party left Dallas Saturday morning by plane for the Motors City.

Mr. J. E. Johnson of Dallas, Regional Manager of the Southwest, and Mr. H. C. Howard, Dallas Zone Manager, welcomed the Company executives and acted as hosts to the large dealer meeting Friday.

Mr. L. H. Averill of the Central Office Staff was traveling with Mr. Coyle and Mr. Holler.

In an interview in Dallas, Friday, Mr. Coyle called attention to the vast growth of the Used Car business in this country in 1936. He said that it was a development of the automobile dealer himself and that it would probably total a $2,000,000,000 turnover during the year.

"Approximately forty percent of the automobile owners in America will have changed their cars before the end of this year," said Mr. Coyle. "At the beginning of the year, there were about 24,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States. The automobile industry will sell nearly 4,000,000 new units this year. The National Dealers' Association has already predicted a sale of more than 7,000,000 used cars for 1936 and conservatively—10,000,000 new and used units should be sold.

The Used Car business is one of the biggest business factors of our National business life. It has been placed as a $2,000,000,000 enterprise and it is confined to every locality in the country—being a development of the dealers themselves. Our Chevrolet business has been the most extensive in the Company's history this year. Thus far, we have exceeded the previous peak years of 1928 and 1929 and indications at present show that similar conditions will be evident in 1937."

The 10,000 Chevrolet dealers in this country will do a business of more than $1,000,000,000 in 1936 in new and used cars, according to Mr. Coyle. That is practically 2 percent of the total income of the American public.

Chevrolet is showing sales of the 1936 models in excess of 1,000,000 units and over 1,500,000 used cars. Mr. Coyle said that the Dallas Zone showed an increase of nearly 40 percent over 1935 and that the dealers in this area in his organization had called into the case and brings a nurse to the house, a part played by Marguerite Churchill. The nurse runs across so many strange incidents during her night in the house that she confides in Talbot, her fiance, that she believes a murder has been committed which the family is trying to cover up.

Bill Cody in "Six Gun Justice" is the feature film showing at the Lyric today and Saturday.

less used cars in stock at this time than a year ago, in spite of the greatly increased new car volume. "The same condition holds true Nationally, in our organization," he continued. "Our dealers have sold 263,425 more new units during the first eight months, than for the same period in 1935; that is, an increase of 43.2 percent.

They have sold 527,661 more used cars in the first eight months of this year, than during the same period of 1935, an increase of 55.4 percent.

It can be seen that our field forces have done an excellent job and that the policy of our Company in keeping an intimate contact with the dealers by the Detroit executives is proving sound. Such meetings as the one in Dallas are held in every section of the country to keep our dealers advised of plans and programs and to give attention to their problems."

He indicated that his company had made re-arrangements of dealers' territories in thickly populated areas to give wider opportunity for accepted dealers to have larger markets and profits. This—it was pointed out—is directly opposite to the past trend, which has been governed by the business rule that multiple outlets sell goods.

The Chevrolet Quality Dealer program entails supervision by the Zone and Detroit executives over the number of dealers in any locality and a helping hand in the matter of car sales and business organization.

Passengers in the smoking compartment on my train were arguing about why railroad business is picking up.

A factory owner said it was because of this new Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight. This is door-to-door service with no extra charge added to the freight bill.

A traveling salesman said it was because so many passenger and freight trains now run on faster schedules.

There was a school principal in the group and he said it was because train travel is so much cheaper for passengers. He said passenger fares are at the lowest point in history, with substantial reductions if you buy a round-trip ticket—and no more surcharge for riding in sleeping cars.

One man, a farmer, said he liked something he could depend on, that's why he was traveling by train.

Another man, a newspaper reporter, said people were in favor of railroad travel because it is by far the safest. He quoted a lot of statistics from a book called, "Live and Let Live."

A banker we all know by name said railroad tax payments mean a lot in this state.

We are proud of railroad achievements, appreciate the public's good will and increased patronage, and pledge continued progress.

FIFTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS . . . Silas Spelle, high-handed, low-principled cattle baron, is out to smash the local bank and force foreclosure on the small ranchers of the Kanab desert country so that he can seize their range lands. He is opposed by Ed. Starbuck, president of the Cattlemen's Bank and by San Juan Delevan, prominent rancher who has been crippled by a fall from his horse. Tex Whipple and his partner, Johnny Clehoe, are cowpunchers employed by San Juan Delevan to fight the rustlers and protect his interests.

It took Tex a long quarter of an hour to write four telegrams. They were finished finally, however, and paid for. Then Tex went out, took his three jaded mounts to a livery stable with advice that they were to be fed and cared for until his return. After that he ate a huge breakfast and spent the balance of the time until the train had backed in and made up, dozing on a baggage truck in the sun.

For thirty-two hours Tex rode west and south to the clicking of rail and wheel. It was late afternoon when he swung from the train at Sevier. He had hardly reached the platform before there was a leonine bellow of delight and a huge, tawny bearded man caught him by the shoulders, swirled him around and began pumping his hand mightily.

"Tex, yuh old sand hawk—how are yuh? Wat'cha want? I got yore telegram an' come a-runnin'."

"Lafe—I need five thousand dollars. Got a chance to buy in fer Johnny an' myself on a regular spread over the sweetest bit of range yuh ever saw. The present owner, name's Delevan, is crippled an' he's fightin' range grabbin' skunk who bought up all the mortgages on a local bank what went under due to a robbery. This range grabber gets ahold of a ten thousand dollar mortgage against Delevan who he wants special to put on the rocks. Delevan told me his story so I'm figgerin' on steppin' in an' takin' up that mortgage for a partnership split. I got five thousand of my own saved up. Been waitin' for a chance like this to get Johnny started on somethin' worth while. If you can see fit to let me have the money on a personal note Lafe, I'd shore be obliged."

Lafe Stillman's answer was to draw a checkbook from his pocket and twist the end off an old fashioned fountain pen. "Five thousand be enough, Tex?" asked Lafe. "If yuh want more jest say so."

"Five's plenty Lafe, an' shore I'm thankin' yuh. We'll go round an' see a lawyer an' have him fix it up legal."

"Like hell we will," growled Lafe. "Yore word's plenty for me. An' lemme tell yuh somethin'. If I hear yuh're scrimpin' an' scratchin' so's to be able to pay that back, I'll be damned if I'll take it. Savvy?" During Tex's absence Johnny found plenty to keep him busy. Early on the same morning that Tex left, Delevan called Johnny and Pink Crosby and Pod Fortune to the ranchhouse and announced that Johnny was now foreman of the Box D. Johnny having already talked the thing over with Tex, knew what was coming, but the other two were somewhat surprised, in view of Johnny's tender years. However, neither of them had ever aspired to the job, so were perfectly content to see Johnny get it.

Pink Crosby was a bright-eyed, cheery young fellow with clean features and a peaches and cream complexion. Pod Fortune was hulking and slow going, with a booming voice and a laugh, which made the walls of the bunkhouse creak. Both were honest and faithful.

Delevan held Johnny after the other two had departed.

"Son," he said. "Seein' as this partnership is comin' up we'll want a few tallies to know where we stand, mebbe. So I'd suggest yuh take the boys an' comb the plateau, particularly the northeast side an' make a count of the cattle yuh find holin' up out in the meadows. The wild-est critters generally hunt that range. It's good range too, but more or less deserted."

Johnny nodded and went away to the corrals. A half hour later he and Crosby and Fortune jogged off around the crest.

The better part of an uneventful week passed, and then one day, when out alone, Johnny swung into the upper end of a little park and came upon a rider spurring easily about a group of cattle, apparently studying their condition and numbers. The rider was a stranger to Johnny and instinctively he bristled. He jogged down toward the stranger and reined in warily at a little distance.

"Hello, there," he drawled carelessly. "Lookin' fer somethin'?" The stranger faced Johnny coolly.

He was a big man and Johnny didn't like anything about him.

"I ask yuh somethin'," snapped Johnny, nettled by the silence of the other. "Who are yuh an' what do yuh want?"

"I'm Silas Spelle," was the even, cold reply. "I'm merely looking over what will shortly be mine."

"Oh—yeah?" said Johnny, openy skeptical. "Well, shore now that sounds pretty thin. Suppose yuh amble on over to the Box D ranchhouse an' tell that same story to ole San Juan Delevan. He oughta be plumb interested."

"Doubtless. Only I don't care to talk to him today. My time to talk will be a little later. Then I'll see him."

"Naw," said Johnny. "Cain't let yuh get away today without seein' him. Yuh better amble along ahead of me."

Spelle stiffened and looked

Johnny over intently. His surface examination was of a stalwart curly-headed, good looking kid. Good-looking, yes—but not exactly dangerous looking.

"Don't be the fool," growled Spelle. "I'm not interested today."

He turned to ride away. The next instant a hissing loop settled over his shoulders and he was dragged backwards from his saddle. Spelle, being a heavy man, hit the ground hard, and for a moment he lay half stunned. By the time he had recovered Johnny had expertly frisked him of weapons and was back on his horse, rolling a cigarette.

"When yuh're feelin' up to it yuh can fork yore hoss again an' we'll amble in an' see ole San Juan," suggested Johnny mildly.

Spelle cursed v e n e m o u s l y. Johnny listened patiently to the tirade, calmly smoking until the cigarette was reduced to a butt. This he crumpled in his palm, tossed away, then reached for his rope once more.

"All right," he snapped, the levity wiped from his face. "I give yuh a chance to ride in like a man. But yuh ain't no man. Yore a stubborn damn fool. When I runs into that breed of cats and they won't listen to me I winds a magney round their horns an' drags 'em."

He shook out the loop and rose in his stirrups.

"Wait!" snarled Spelle. "I'll go. But yuh'll pay heavy for this my smart young friend."

"Yeah?" drawled Johnny again, in insultingly frank disbelief. San Juan Delevan was seated in his usual place on the veranda when Johnny and Spelle rode up. An amazed curse fell from Delevan's lips at the sight.

"Spelle!" he rumbled. "Where in hell did yuh pick him up, Johnny?"

"Back along the crest aways. He was snoopin' around some of the stock. Said he was jest lookin' over what he was goin' to own pretty quick. Sorry I mused him up. But he got kinda salty so I rubbed him over once or twice."

Delevan grinned. Spelle did look disheveled.

"Better git off an' have a seat, Spelle," invited Delevan. "Seein' as yuh're figgerin' so strong on ownin' this layout yuh oughta get acquainted a little bit at least."

"I'll stay where I am," snarled Spelle. "When I get ready to sit down on that porch, it'll be when it's mine."

"Then yuh'll never sit on it," rasped Delevan suddenly, leaning forward with fiery eyes. "I know all about yuh Spelle an' the things yuh been tryin' to do to bust me. Yuh bought off my own punchers to rustle Box D cattle an' throw them onto yore range northeast. Yuh even paid 'em to try an' wipe me out. They did their damndest an' halfway succeeded. I'm a cripple for-life but thank God my gun hand ain't crippled. An' then again I been hearin' things. Don't ever figger everybody is forgettin' that bank robbery an' murder of three good men. Somehow, someway that affair stinks out jest a little too smooth to of yore paws, Spelle. It works yore advantage. Mebbe what some of us know'd surprise yuh."

Spelle, obviously very angry, and not a little fearful, whirled his horse and rode away. There had been a ring of truth about Delevan's last words which Spelle could not shrug off. Delevan knew something and if, as he had stated, he could pay off the mortgage, at any time, it meant Spelle's big gamble had come to naught. Of course Delevan might be bluffing. He would have to find out at any rate and see the thing through to a finish, whatever the outcome might be. Not that Spelle was really considering defeat. He'd win, whatever the cost or methods necessary. In the meantime, he'd do a little thinking and figgerin'.

When he reached the Double S ranchhouse, Spelle's first move was to go directly to his office and send a messenger for Montana Wade, erstwhile foreman of the Box D.

"Wade," asked Spelle when the turncoat had arrived. "D'yuh know of any way Delevan could have got hold o' some money?"

"Nope. He was plumb broke when I left. Any surplus he mighta had was in Starbuck's bank an' that went with the hold-up."

"Uh-huh. Who's that smart young jasper workin' for him? Reckon he must o' jest took him on. Struck me as bein' a stranger."

"Reckon that must be Clehoe. Didn't see another with him, leathery, silver topped ole ranny?"

"No. Was there two hired?"

"Yeh. Clehoe an' the ole jasper, named Tex Whipple. Don't know what could o' become of Whipple. Most generally him an' Clehoe stick closer together than two sheets of fly-paper."

"H-m. A'right. Better get word to Art. Yuh two wanta watch yore steps pretty careful. I understand there's been talk goin' around about the hold-up. Mebbe we slipped a leetle somewhere."

On the morning of the third day following, a little cavalcade headed away from the corrals of the Box D and clattered off along the narrow, winding road which skirted the edge of the San Juan plateau on the west, to lead out across the eastern face of the Kanab Desert.

In the lead rolled a buckboard with Pink Crosby at the reins. Beside him sat Ronny Delevan, a soft Stetson pulled well down on her dark head, a voluminous linen duster swathing her from ears to heels against the inevitable dust. Behind the buckboard rode Tex Whipple and Johnny Clehoe, jogging easily stirrup to stirrup.

It was early and the sun not yet up. The keen, crisp air was a tonic to vitality and the lean broncos drew the light buckboard along at a spanking pace. Johnny Clehoe's eyes were bright and he whistled softly between his teeth. On the other hand Tex's face was seamed with thought and weariness, for only late the night before had he come in from his trip to Sevier.

On Texas Farms

Brownsville—Two dustings of 20-80 formula of copper monohydrate dust increased yields 100 bushels per acre on the farm of Harry Whipple of Cameron County, according to Henry L. Alsmeyer, county agricultural agent.

Beaumont—By fertilizing and cultivating his land properly and selling his melons from a roadside stand, Richard Wiess, Jefferson county, 4-H club boy, made $197.50 net profit from one acre of watermelons, according to J. E. Combs, county agricultural agent.

Richard used 700 pounds of 6-10-7 fertilizer which cost $12.50. The labor cost for planting, cultivating, and harvesting was approximately $20. He sold a number of his melons from a roadside stand at 30 to 50 cents each. The remainder was sold at 10 to 30 cents each to wholesalers who came to the fields for the melons.

Pearsall—Shrubs may profit by hot dry weather, if a person will only take advantage of the weather to kill out bermuda grass among the shrubs, according to Mrs. Clyde McKinley, yard improvement demonstrator for the Melon Home Demonstration Club in Frio county.

"Let the shrubs and roses go as dormant as they may so they can be in the best condition for fall and winter," she says. She cut her bermuda grass straight down through the roots with a sharp spade, shook the dirt out of the grass roots, disposed of the roots, and left the soil loose in the bed.

Garden City—John Dickerson, ranchman in Glasscock county, recently reported that his flock of 26 white leghorn hens is still producing 18 eggs per day, the same as they produced before he sold 23 of his hens.

H. F. Kithmann, Reagan and Glasscock county agricultural agent, recently held a culling demonstration on Dickerson's ranch and culled out many of the non-laying hens in Dickerson's flock.

Dickerson reports that his feed cost has been cut 50 per cent through the elimination of his "star boarder" hens.

Kingsville—The problem of what to do with some sheets that were too short to be comfortable and yet too good to be discarded, has been solved by Mrs. B. W. Weir of Kleberg county, according to Miss Effie E. McClane, home demonstration agent.

Mrs. Weir added a piece of sheeting of the same quality and width of the sheets to make them 108 inches long. "This permits sufficient tucking to make the bed comfortably smooth and with the second sheet to allow for turning back about 12 inches over the covers to prevent them from soiling," she says.

Dallas—When the National Pigeon Show was held at the Texas Centennial Exposition recently it was found that all acrobats are not confined to humans. There were 1,500 pigeons, many of which were "tumbler" —skilled in black-flops and other acrobatic stunts.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

In a Presidential-election year, with the headlines and the thoughts of the voters concerned almost entirely with the opposing candidates for the nation's highest office, the next Congress comes in for relatively little attention. But Congress is always vitally important. A stubborn Congress can just about ruin a president's program and ambitions—as Hoover found out in his last two years. And a friendly Congress can make the White House a legislative paradise—as Roosevelt learned in his first two years when the legislative branch of the government succumbed to the influence and appeal of the executive.

Make-up of the next House of Representatives will be largely dependent on who rises to the Presidency—if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected, it will be certain that the House will be preponderantly Democratic, while if Governor Landon comes in, the Republicans will undoubtedly control the lower branch. Representatives must run for office every two years, and their political life is often very short.

A different state of affairs obtains in the Senate. A Senator runs only every six years, and, as a result, the 1937 Congress will be Democratically controlled even though the Republicans sweep the country. It is mathematically impossible for the GOP to win a majority in the upper house—if it took every contested seat it would lack two votes of control. As many contested senatorships are in the Deep South, where the Democratic nomination is the same thing as election, it is inevitable that the Democrats will have a substantial majority when the members of the Senate answer the roll-call in January.

Even so, best commentators feel that this will not be a major obstacle to Governor Landon's program, in event of his election. If the voters disavow the New Deal, Senators of both parties will sniff the wind and fall in line with the mandate. And, on the other hand, should President Roosevelt be endorsed again, he will naturally be able to bring about Congressional agreement of almost anything he wishes.

No matter who takes the big plum in November, the coming Congress will be faced with a number of vital issues. The tax issue will be up again—bigger and better than ever, in all probability. Governor Landon has been biting in his denunciation of New Deal spending policies. And Mr. Roosevelt has again said that he anticipates a balanced budget before long, has gone on the record for economy and a certain amount of retrenchment. Yet both candidates agree that the farmer should be helped from the Federal treasury, that Federal relief for the unemployed and needy must be continued. There is also the probability that the government will feel that it must greatly increase its army and navy appropriations. Under such circumstances, Congress will undergo many a headache as it seeks to control appropriation measures.

The tariff will likely be an issue. Tremendous difference of opinion has resulted from the reciprocal trade agreement act authorizing the President to lower tariff duties in favor of countries doing the same for us. Congress will be beleaguered on the one hand by powerful groups wanting a high tariff, such as agriculture, and equally powerful groups wanting a lower tariff and bigger foreign business, such as the heavy machinery and automobile makers.

PEACE OR WAR?

In addressing the third World Power Conference at Washington the Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, remarked that "unfortunately, a vastly disproportionate share of the skill and energy of scientists and statesmen alike is being devoted now in many parts of the world to the creation and organization of forces of destruction."

Every thoughtful person with even a slight understanding of the forces which seem to be driving toward another world war will agree with Secretary Hull in deploring the activities of governments and leaders who, under the guise of preparing for national defenses, are stimulating the war spirit and preparing to plunge civilization into chaos.

It has lately been reported that so many of the German people are engaged in the manufacture of arms and munitions of war that an illusion of prosperity has been created. To what end is suggested by the recent remarks of Chancellor Hitler, in which he suggested that Germany might do if she possessed the mineral and agricultural resources of Russia. That, coupled with his demand for a return of the German colonies taken away by the Treaty of Versailles, comes very close to being an actual threat of war.

Russia today has the largest standing army ever known in the history of the world and one of the best equipped. Russia fears attack both from the West and from the East. Japan is reaching farther Northward and Westward from Manchuria, and the day seems not far off when

THE EARLY MORNING START FOR THE COUNTY FAIR

CONSTITUTION AFTER 150 YEARS

The United States Constitution Sesqui-Centennial Commission, under the leadership of the indefatigable Sol Bloom, Representative in Congress from New York City, has got its plans under way for a nation-wide celebration of the 150th anniversary to the states for ratification on September 17, 1787, and on September 17, next year, it will be 150 years old.

Congress appropriated $250,000 in 1935 for the Commission to use in arousing public interest in the historic document. Thru state commissions, educational institutions and libraries the Commission is establishing contacts with millions of students of college, high schools and grade schools who will compete for local and national prizes and honors. Orations and essays on the Constitution will be judged by local and state committees and the national contestants will go to Washington to compete for the first prize, which will be handed to the winner by the President of the United States.

Full-sized facsimiles of the original draft of the Constitution will be distributed to state capitols, libraries and educational institutions; a series of commemorative postage stamps will be issued and an exhibition of historical paintings and portraits of the signers of the Constitution will be assembled in Washington.

In our opinion this effort to revive interest in and the study of the Constitution of the United States is very timely. All over the world peoples of entire nations are being deprived of their ancient liberties. A widespread undertaking of the peculiar liberties which we of America enjoy under our Constitution, which has been described as the greatest document ever forged by the mind of man cannot fail to be helpful.

the Soviet Republic will be fighting for its life on both fronts. Italy and France both seem to be watching for the time and the opportunity to dismember Spain and parcel it out between them. Britain's colonial empire is threatened by all of these developments. In the event of another great war, it seems impossible that England can stay out. And it is far from impossible that the United States would also find itself involved.

If ever the times called for the utmost exertions in the name of peace, it is now.

For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafa, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Theford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 23.—Newspaper correspondents in Washington are being flooded with letters asking questions about the presidential election.

One of the most frequent questions asked by voters writing to Washington is how it is possible for a President to be elected by less than a majority vote. Another question is whether it might be possible for a Republican President and a Democratic Vice-President, or vice-versa, to be elected.

In National Election

What most of these inquirers do not quite understand is that nobody votes directly for either Presidents or Vice-Presidents. Presidents and Vice-Presidents are not elected by the people; they are elected by the states, under the Constitution. In each state the opposing parties nominate presidential electors, and on Election Day the people will vote not for Roosevelt and Garner, or Landon and Knox, but for the presidential electors nominated by their respective parties. The number of electors in each state is the same as the number of Senators and Representatives which that state has in Congress.

It is this system of voting by states for President and Vice-President instead of by direct popular vote for the candidates that made it possible for ten Presidents to be elected who had fewer than a majority of the popular vote.

For example, Mr. Cleveland, in 1884, carried many states by very large majorities but his majority of the popular vote in New York State was less than 2,000, so that although this gave him a majority of the presidential electors, he had a minority of the nation's popular vote. The same thing occurred when Mr. Wilson was elected President in 1912. In that year, however, the electoral vote was split between three candidates. Mr. Taft and Col. Roosevelt between them had more popular votes than Mr. Wilson had, but Mr. Wilson got the majority of the electoral votes.

The Electoral Vote

A question frequently asked is whether electors chosen on the Republican ticket could vote for the Democratic candidates. The answer is that there is nothing whatever in the law to prevent them from doing so. They are free agents, chosen by the people of their state to vote for the candidate for President and Vice President.

On November 3, as a matter of fact, nobody will be elected President. Only presidential electors will be chosen, varying in number from New York's 47 to the three each of Arizona, Nevada and Wyoming.

The actual election of President and Vice-President takes place when the electors, chosen on November 3, have met and cast their ballots. The Constitution requires the electors to meet in their several states and declare their choice for President and Vice-President, and the number of electoral votes which they give to each candidate. They must then sign, certify and transmit their ballot, sealed, to the President of the Senate, who then, in the presence of the Senate and the House of Representatives opens these sealed envelopes and counts the electoral votes from all the states. The President of the Senate, who is the Vice-President holding over from the preceding administration, then declares who has been elected President and Vice-President for the next four years.

In Case of Tie Vote

Another question often asked is what would happen if the vote should be a tie, or neither candidate had a majority of the electoral votes. In that case, the House of Representatives would have to elect the President.

One of the reasons why the latest amendment to the Constitution provides that the new Congress to be elected November 3 shall take office on January 3, while the new President does not go in until January 20, in that case of a tie in the presidential vote it will be the new Congress and not the old one which would elect the new President.

The House of Representatives is limited in its choice, in such a case, to the candidates for whom electoral votes of states have been cast, but it is not bound in any way by the size of the popular vote of any candidate.

Only once has the election of a President been thrown into the House of Representatives. That was in 1876, when Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat, of New York, ran against Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio. On the face of the returns, Mr. Tilden appeared to be elected, but charges of fraud in the Democratic vote in Louisiana were made and the Republicans contended that the Democratic electors of Louisiana had not actually received a plurality of the popular vote.

The House of Representatives appointed an electoral commission to investigate and advise the House. The commission reported that the Democratic elec-

CONSTRUCTION OF TEXAS MEMORIAL MUSEUM UNDERWAY

Austin, Sept. 22.—The erection of a permanent museum on the campus of the University of Texas came one step nearer last week when construction on the Texas Memorial Museum got underway. The imposing edifice will house many of the precious relics of Texas and will stand as a tribute to the history-makers of the Lone Star State.

Through a legislative appropriation of $225,000 and a congressional allocation of $300,000 from the federal government the Texas Memorial Museum fund was established. The federal government also authorized the minting and sale of 1,500,000 fifty-cent pieces to be sold at a minimum of one dollar. The profits of these sales, now being conducted by students of the University of Texas, are going into the building fund.

Construction of the Memorial Museum is being done by J. E. Morgan and Sons of El Paso. Fox-Schmidt Company of Austin is in charge of heating, ventilating and plumbing.

Initial steps in the erection of Texas' finest museum were taken aboard his special train at Austin that exploded the charge breaking ground for beginning of the work.

The Museum will stand north of the stadium facing San Jacinto Boulevard, being located with a view to future expansion.

tors of Louisiana had not been properly elected. The House adopted the report of the electoral commission and gave the Presidency to General Hayes.

How Tie Could Develop

A tie vote of presidential electors is impossible unless Mr. Lemke or some other third-party candidate should receive an odd number of electoral votes, since the total number of electors to be chosen November 3 is 531. In the event of a tie the House of Representatives to be elected on November 3 will have the say. A shift in 115 Congressional Districts from the present set-up would be necessary to give a Republican majority.

There will be no change in the party majority of the Senate, this year, no matter how the election goes. Senators are elected for six years and there are 51 Democrats whose terms run for from two to four years longer, more than a majority of the 96 members of the Senate.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER

The lurking cold germ is waiting for your defenses to be lowered. Leading doctors tell us that fifty per cent of all disabling diseases start with a "common cold." America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, strikes with such viciousness that sixty per cent of the population has three or more "colds" each year. (Think of this startling total of over two hundred million illnesses—many of which could be avoided with adequate heat and proper ventilation throughout the home.)

Tapering Off

A young man who was an only son and whose parents were very rich and aristocratic was married last night to a chorus girl—against the wishes of his parents, who had grand plans for him. The young man selected his best friend to break the news to the old folks next day and this is the way he instructed him: "Start off by telling them that I have been murdered by gangsters and then gently work up to the climax."

The Jews call it sheol and the Nazis something else but the latter give it to the former in any event.

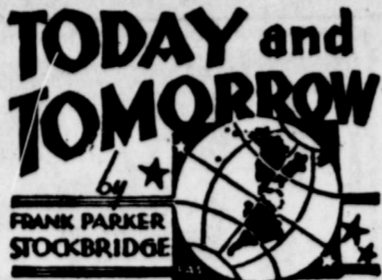

'Twon't Be Long Now

"Do I bore you," asked the mosquito politely, as he sank a deep shaft into the man's leg. "Not at all!" replied the man, smashing the mosquito gently over the head with a book. "And by the way, how do I strike you?"

AUTUMN . . . up our way

The most glorious season of the American year is now approaching. In no other country is Autumn so full of appeal to the lover of the out-of-doors. I motored over back roads through the Berkshire hills a week or so ago and saw the beginning of America's most gorgeous spectacle, the color picture of the forest trees before the fall of the leaves. No sharp frost had yet touched them, but around almost every bend in the road we encountered a lone maple which had not waited for frost, but had changed overnight from green to brilliant scarlet.

Before October is far advanced, the New England landscape becomes a scene of such color and beauty as cannot be matched anywhere else the world over. Of all seasons, Autumn is, to my mind, the best season of all up our way.

JIMMY . . . on his own

Jimmy dropped in at the home of one of my friends the other evening. His face was clean, his hair was brushed and his clothes were neat and well-pressed. But his hands were covered with callouses and irremovable grime.

Jimmy grinned from ear to ear as he told about his first adventure at facing life on his own. His father, one of my friends, had been dissatisfied with Jimmy's marks in his first year in college. "Get out and get yourself a job and prove that you've got something in you, before I spend any more money on your education," his father told him.

Jimmy got out. He got a job as a pipe-fitter's helper at $18 a week—and he loves it. He's got a surprise for his father, for he's saved $3 a week out of his wages. "I've learned what a dollar costs," he said.

Jimmy's going to get somewhere.

PROGRESS . . . the auto

E. R. Thomas, the man who built the first automobile to travel around the world under its own power died the other day at the age of 85. He was past fifty before he made his first car.

I first knew Mr. Thomas around the turn of the century, when he took over a small bicycle shop in Buffalo and began to make motorcycles. He had a dream, which Ford, Winton, Chalmers, Haynes, Apperson Leland and Duryea shared, of making a practical four-wheeled vehicle to be propelled by a gasoline engine. The French built the first ones that worked, but Thomas made about the best of the early American gas-buggies.

It's hard to realize now, that we haven't always had motor-cars. I bought a horse and buggy in 1900. I didn't think then that automobiles would amount to much in my time!

HAEMOPHILIA . . . transfusions

The most dreadful disease of all is haemophilia. Its victims are born with it and seldom live to grow up, for they can bleed to death from a pin-prick. Their blood does not clot. Only males have this affliction, but they inherit it from their mothers' fathers.

Alfonso, Count of Covadonga, son of the former King of Spain, is in a New York hospital undergoing frequent blood transfusions as the physicians try to stop the bleeding from a slight operation several weeks ago. His mother, the ex-Queen, has come across the Atlantic to be with her son.

One of the world's greatest medical men, Dr. Alexis Carrel, had a son who suffered from haemophilia. The father invented a method of blood-transfusion which saved his child's life, and which is now in universal use all over the world. As a result of Dr. Carrel's research more has been learned about the blood in a few years than all that centuries of study had taught the men of science; and blood transfusion from one person to another is no longer a dangerous but an everyday commonplace in hospital work.

ATLANTIC . . . air seamanship

I saw the German flying boat "Zephyr" when it came into New York from Europe on September 10, after a non-stop flight from the Azores. Two days later the "Aeolus," also German, flew in from Germany via Bermuda. While fliers of other nations are exploring the northern routes across the Atlantic, the Germans are studying the southern passages, where there are islands at which stops can be made.

Very practical, it seems to me, is their idea of using flying boats instead of regular planes. They regard the ocean flight as a feat of seamanship and fly only about 50 feet above the water, where the winds are least severe.

I flew from Naples to Genoa in one of these German flying boats, a few years ago, never more than 100 feet above the water, and I liked it better than all the high flying I have ever done.

TEN THOUSAND LIONS ARE EXPECTED TO VISIT TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Dallas, Sept. 22.—Ten thousand Lions from the Southwestern States of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana will gather in Dallas at the Texas Centennial Exposition on October 10 to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the birth of Lions International.

The order was founded at a meeting in Dallas on October 10, 1916, by Melvin Jones of Chicago, now secretary-general, who will return for the anniversary.

In recognition of the event the international board of the civic organization will meet outside of Chicago for the first time. It is composed of representatives from the United States, the Dominion of Canada, the Republic of Mexico and seven Central and South American republics.

The board will meet for two days preceding the homecoming of the four States. It will be attended, in addition, by the five Texas district Governors, who will plan the entertainment of the thousands of visitors.

On October 10 the Lions will be welcomed to the Exposition grounds by Governors Allred of Texas, Marland of Oklahoma, Futrell of Arkansas and Leche of Louisiana, or their representatives. A ceremony in the morning will be held at the $1,200,000 Texas Hall of State where Governor Allred will be the principal speaker.

The Lions will see the University of Texas and the University of Oklahoma football game in the Cotton Bowl, seating 50,000 persons. Arrangements have been made to seat the Lions at a special showing of the historic Cavalcade of Texas.

The international board, having completed its business on the day preceding, will attend the Centennial celebration in a body. Invitations have gone forward to every Lions Club in the four States to send every member possible to the homecoming. Responses indicate that practically every club in the four States will be represented.

Dallas, with the hospitality it has maintained throughout the Exposition period, has given as-urance through its responsible representatives, that there will be ample accommodations for every Lion visitor, as well as members of his family, and that prices will continue on the level of pre-Exposition days.

David Horde and little sister, children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Horde, both submitted to operations for the removal of their tonsils last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Jenkins of Guion are announcing the arrival of a baby girl on September 19. She was christened Vera Mae.

Herbert Tuerk submitted to an operation for the removal of his tonsils Wednesday morning.

Noel Reid returned home Wednesday morning from Temple where he has been a patient at the Scott & White sanitarium.

Jeffersonian Democrats Declare Stand They Will Make in the Coming Presidential Election in Nov.

TEXAS DEMOCRATS WILL SUPPORT LANDON AT THE POLL IN NOVEMBER

With a full realization that our country faces a political crisis transcending all partisan interests, we Democrats of Texas now pledge our best services to the Nation upon a non-partisan basis. We reassert our belief in the Constitution, in the rights of the States, and in the Jeffersonian principle. Believing thus, we must condemn the Roosevelt Administration.

The issue before the American people today is not Roosevelt versus Landon; nor is it the Republican Party versus the Democratic Party. The issue here is the same as that which rocks the rest of the world, and that issue is regimentation versus freedom and democracy. We are confronted with a change in our form of government from a Democracy, in which the government is the servant of the people, to a Socialist and Communist state in which the individual becomes the servant of the state and loses all personal freedom and all property rights.

We charge that Mr. Roosevelt is not a Democrat and never has been in sympathy with the principles of the Democratic party.

We charge that Mr. Roosevelt has aided and abetted the aims of the Socialists and Communists, and has set up a board of advisers known as the "brain trust," which is largely made up of red radicals not in sympathy with our form of government.

We charge that few members of this "brain trust" have ever been connected with the Democratic party prior to the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for President.

We charge that the key positions in the numerous bureaus set up by Mr. Roosevelt are now held by radical appointees selected for the most part by Felix Frankfurter, known throughout the country for his red radical activities.

We charge that the radicals, whether they call themselves socialists or communists, now have the nation by the throat, thanks being due Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Perkins (a married woman following the Russian system of not taking her husband's name), Felix Frankfurter, Rex Tugwell, and others.

We charge that all New Deal acts such as NRA, AAA and others in which business, farmers, and the rest of us were to be regimented and directed by some bureaucrat are the brain children of radicals, one of whom is Tugwell. We will prove to you before November 3rd, by quoting Mr. Tugwell himself, that he is as red or redder than Stalin, the Russian dictator.

We charge that Mr. Roosevelt has shown no interest in the 1932 platform of the Democratic party except to repeal prohibition.

We charge that most of the New Deal bills he forced through Congress were specifically called for in the 1932 Communist and Socialist platforms. We will prove this to you before November 3rd by showing you word for word the platforms of these parties and showing you how the New Deal acts met the demand of these platforms.

We charge that when Mr. Roosevelt insisted on having all relief and PWA money given to him to use at his discretion it was for the purpose of getting control of Congress, by denying any Congressman money-spending projects in his district if he voted against the President's bills.

We charge that Jim Farley, the Tammany politician and prize fight commissioner, expended this money in building up a political machine to Tammanyize the United States, and has succeeded in doing so to an extent that it is as vicious as it is in New York City.

We charge that the Nation cannot survive the continuation of the present, flagrant, wasteful spending far beyond its income. Mr. Roosevelt expects to

Many Kinds of Dessert May Be Made Cheaply

Denton. — A great variety of simple desserts can be made by the housewife with little expenditure of either time or energy. Some can be prepared in advance. Others may be partly fixed with the basic materials, and later you can do wonders with them by adding sauces or fruit fillings.

Cherry and Pecan Torte
Prepare cup cakes, using whole egg cake batter. Cut off tops carefully so that the covers may be replaced. Hollow out centers somewhat and fill with a mixture of chopped pecans and maraschino cherries, or raisins may be substituted for cherries. Replace tops and decorate with whipped cream.

Fried Apple Slices
Wash and core apples. Do not peel. Cut across apple for 1-2 inch slices. Put fat in iron skillet. Cover bottom generously. Fry slices, turning once when brown to fry on both sides. Sprinkle with sugar and serve on platter.

Orange Crullers
Beat 2 eggs without separating. Add 1-2 c granulated sugar and 1-4 c whole milk, 2 c flour, 1-2 t salt, 1 t cream of tartar, 1-2 t soda. Add grated rind of one orange and mix to a dough. Roll small amount at a time to thin sheet. Cut into rounds. Put 1-4 t marmalade on each piece and cover with another round. Press edges together and fry in deep fat.

Almond Cookies
1 c butter, 6 T powdered sugar, 1-2 lb. almonds, 1 t vanilla, 1 t baking powder, 1 1-2 c flour. Mix in the order given and with fingers roll into size and shape like a large peanut. Bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven. When slightly cool dust with powdered sugar. If the dough sticks to the fingers when the cookies are being shaped, a little more flour should be added.

One way to be somebody is to be right when everyone else is wrong.

Ancient Fortress Scene of History's Most Ruthless Siege.

Spanish rebels entrenched in the ancient fortress of Alcatraz at Toledo, Spain, and their women and children, so far have withstood the most ruthless warfare in the history of modern man.

Dynamite blasts, sprays of flaming gasoline, bullets, bombs and shells have failed to move the rebels whose life is forfeit should they surrender. Should the rebels win, their heroism will be a national legend, but should they be defeated they will be merely rebels against a cause and their death acclaimed as a good deed. A lot depends on the way you look at anything.

Dionne Quints Prove a Problem for Movie Makers.

A movie company taking the second of four scheduled pictures starring the Dionne Quintuplets has been forced to plan a $50,000 sound stage at Callender so that the children can be kept within range of the cameras. Movie men seem surprised that the youngsters are so active. Any mother of a large family could have told them what to expect with youngsters that age.

Pacific Shipping Preparing Plans For Long Strike

Difficulties between shipowners and employees along the Pacific Coast have come to a stage where a strike is expected soon that will tie up vessels plying the seven seas. To us in Texas this doesn't sound like it is of much importance but to Honolulu and other island places it has all the earmarks of a tragedy.

Lettuce Field Strike at Impasse During Negotiations

California lettuce fields have been torn by strike involving several thousand pickers and packers. Armed guards patrol the district and a few strikebreakers work in barricaded sheds. In the meanwhile prices go up in the eastern markets and other lettuce growing sections profit. Efforts to negotiate have brought the trouble to a deadlock because the strikers don't want more money, merely a closed shop, which the growers refuse.

Atlantic Flyers Abandon Amid Quarrels

They used to say if you want to know a man go camping with him. It seems that flying the Atlantic has the same effect. Harry Richman, crooner and Dick Merrill, his pilot, have been in a continual squabble since their round-trip across the Atlantic and now they've left their plane in the mud in Newfoundland. The same thing happened in the Levine-Chamberlain flight a few years ago. Perhaps the trouble was there wasn't any real joint purpose in the flight but personal publicity.

Clipper Ships to Take Passengers Beginning Oct. 21.

The difference between purpose and lack of purpose is indicated by the Clipper ships flying the Pacific. Here the great white birds are flying regularly without fuss or furor and will start carrying passengers on scheduled trips Oct. 21. There can't be any squabbles on flights of this kind, because there is a job to be done.

Wild Boars Stage Life, Death Fight Lasting Week.

Two wild boars on a ranch near Antlers, Okla., have been fighting for a week in rounds of about three minutes. More than 100 persons have watched the battle which, at last report was swinging in favor of the smaller, weighing about 400 pounds. Whatever the cause, the animals refuse to quit, except when one is seriously hurt he flees to a nearby mudhole and recuperates while his opponent waits for him.

Strike Halts Train Service in East Texas

A strike of employees of the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas Railway, has tied up traffic on that road which operates in East Texas. Employees' spokesmen declare they were in a fight to a finish while the railway organized guard forces to prevent damage to property. There have been no disorders.

An Unusual Way To Hold a Job

The Irish Foreman found one of his men sleeping in the shade. "Slape on ye idle spalpeen," he said, "slape on. So long as you slape you've got a job, but when ye wake up ye're out of wurk."
