LOCAL DEMOCRATS
ANXIOUS TO RAISE
CAMPAIGN QUOTA

STATE CONGRESSIONAL

Democratic precinct chairmen of Winters, who have raised approximately $80 for the national campaign fund, are very anxious that the quota of $109.00 be raised before the general election, and are asking that those who are interested in the reelection of President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner make their donations immediately. Donations will be received by W. D. Meadows or the Smith Drug Co. So far as is known here, the two Winters precincts are the only ones in the county to start the work of raising their quotas.

The following plea to Texas Democrats to raise the state's quota to the National Democratic campaign fund, has just been released by members of the National Congress from Texas:

As nominees of the Democratic Party to represent our State in the National Congress we are naturally deeply interested in the pending National campaign.

We share with our fellow Texas Democrats a feeling of pardonable pride in our State's enviable record as the Nation's Banner Democratic State and are eager, as we know they are, that this fine record shall be fully maintained this year.

We feel that Texas owes a debt of gratitude to our great President, our Vice President, our own John N. Garner, and our Democratic Administration. Therefore, we are assuming the liberty of urging our friends and individual supporters, as well as all of our fellow Democrats of Texas, to give their active personal support to the Democratic ticket in its entirety, and especially to cooperate in every possible way with our Texas National Campaign organization in achieving its objectives. We urge them especially to make such liberal contributions as they can to the National campaign fund now being raised in Texas to help the cause of Democracy in other states.

We are confident of an overwhelming victory in November, but to assure it beyond peradventure, all loyal Democrats should do their part in proportion to their means.

GROCERY STORE

NIGHT WATCH.

Marshall's grocery store on Dale avenue, was broken into last Friday evening, between 11 and 12 o'clock, however, the intruders made a safe get-away through the rear door when discovered by the nightwatchman.

Several hundred dollars worth of merchandise had been put in new onion sacks and cotton sacks and stacked by the would-be looters, preparatory to making away with it when scared away by the officers.

Mr. Marshall said yesterday that he did not know just how much merchandise was taken, but was satisfied he lost forty or fifty dollars worth of cigarettes.

Mr. C. W. Gregory and Mrs. T. V. Jennings spent a few days this week in Dallas where Mrs. Gregory purchased new merchandise for her ready-to-wear shop. They returned home today and brought many new things from the wholesale market which are now on display.

Ray Pumphrey of Phoenix, Arizona spent a few days here last week visiting in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pumphrey and other relatives. He came to be at the bedside of his mother, who has been a patient in Hendricks Memorial Hospital at Abilene but whose condition has improved sufficiently for her to be removed to her home near here the first of the week.

Texas Press Educational Bureau
Working On Publicity Plan For State;
Questionnaires Are Mailed to Editors

The Texas Press Educational Bureau of the Texas Press Association is mailing out this week an important questionnaire concerning future "advertising and selling" plans for "Texas of Tomorrow" following the close of Centennial year.

For some months the Texas Press Educational Bureau has been going into this matter very thoroughly with the hope that definite plans will be created and put into effect for an extensive publicity and advertising campaign throughout the nation as a follow-up of the great activity brought about by the Texas Centennial Celebrations during the year.

The purpose of the questionnaire being sent out is to get the reaction and recommendations from a cross section of Texas in the matter. If the returns are favorable, then the Bureau will cooperate fully in a campaign to secure the necessary funds.

Just as soon as the questionnaires have been filled out and returned, the Texas Press Educational Bureau will call a meeting of its committee at Austin to canvass the returns and make future plans according to the information and inspiration shown in the questionnaires.

OF TEXAS SEEING

WINTERS RESIDENTS TO HAVE OPPORTUNITY
NOV. 8, 9.

The first five state school districts to send children to the Texas Centennial Exposition in the general movement of students to the $25,000,000 World's Fair registered an average daily attendance of more than 1,000 per district. Leaders from the respective districts were unlimited in their praise of the manner in which their groups were handled and the housing and feeding facilities which were provided.

Most of these districts were from the far corners of the State. The response was taken to indicate that the remaining districts, having lesser mileage, would respond in a far greater degree to the proclamation of Governor Allred, announcing holidays for them, and the statement of State Superintendent L. A. Woods that two days at the Exposition are worth four weeks in the classroom.

Students are being transported by the railroads at a half-cent a mile. They are given half-price to the Centennial grounds and to the historic Calvacade of Texas. Housing and feeding has been reduced to a nominal rate. School talent is being given a chance to appear over radio under the sponsorship of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company.

Districts which already have been represented are those centering at Amarillo, Kingsville, LaGrange, Alpine and Tyler. Others will come in order, full information being in the hands of school officials in the various counties.

Runnels County school children will have an opportunity to see the Centennial November 8 and 9.

Mrs. Sam Self and Mrs. Senie Jackson of Wingate were among the many shoppers from that community here Saturday.

"China Clipper"

Pat O'Brien does superb work in his role of a young aviation enthusiast and war ace who is obsessed with the inspiration to span the world by air. From a youth of fantastic dreams he develops into a hard bitten, iron-souled man who drives his fellows ruthlessly and unmercifully to attain his objective. Doubtful by his backers, hated by his fellows, scoffed by the world, his home broken, he drives on with fanatical determination until he conquers not only the elements but those who sneered at his projects. Beverly Roberts gives a fine performance as a lonely wife who longs for a home but finds only neglect and poverty. Excellent performances are given by Ross Alexander and Humphrey Bogart, as two ace pilots who help O'Brien bring his plans to a glowing success. Marie Wilson adds a touch of comedy to an otherwise intensely dramatic production as the sweetheart of Alexander, who hates work, but who can't give him up, and ever appearing on the scene to insist on marriage just when her fiancé is off for other lands.

"The Country Beyond"

Adopted from the popular James Oliver Curwood novel, the new Fox romance-drama is a story of a man's gallantry, a girl's love and a great dog's devotion in a land beyond the laws of man. The dog is Buck, the St. Bernard hero of "The Call of the Wild," who appears with Rochelle Hudson, Paul Kelly and Robert Kent in the new picture. Kent and Kelly, balked in the attempt to arrest Alan Hale for a murder, set out after him and his daughter, Rochelle Hudson. The girl has tricked their pursuers in order to give Hale an opportunity to catch the real criminal. Kent overtakes the girl, and aided by the courageous dog, they battle their way out of the forest.

"The First Baby"

Featuring Johnny Downs and Shirley Deane in the leading roles, it follows the adventures of two honest to goodness people who wed and who get a tiny bundle from heaven, and lots of "in-law" trouble. Marjorie Gatenon, as the girl's mother, is the chief source of worry to the two youngsters. And after the baby arrives and Johnny Downs attempts to set up a home of his own, a serious rift threatens their love. But the baby becomes seriously ill, and the two youngsters, brought face-to-face with the facts, decide that they love each other more than anything else in the world and act on the decision.

"Star For a Night"

Claire Trevor, Evelyn Venable and Dean Jagger are pan-stricken when they learn that their mother is coming to pay them a surprise visit. The mother, Jane Darwell, has lost her eyesight and has been led to believe her children are famous and successful. The children manage to keep up the pretense after the mother arrives but when Edward Bromberg, an eye specialist, promises to restore the mother's sight by an operation they realize the game is up unless they can devise some sensational ruse.

"The Deadline"

Here we have a new Buck Jones. A quiet, serious character bent on re-establishing his reputation in the eyes of the townspeople. Paroled after serving one year of a five year term for manslaughter, Buck is told by the prison warden that, while on probation, he will be walking along a deadline. Cross it an inch and he will have to come back to finish his sentence. Buck knows that he didn't commit that murder in the dark, but a jury believed he did and so did all the citizens of Colfax except little orphan, Jimmy and a few others, and so Buck sets about determined to bring the real murderer to justice.

"Shakedown"

According to the story, Lev Ayers, a young graduate engineer in love with Joan Perry, daughter of the head of a great telegraph company, refuses to allow the girl to use her influence to get him an engineering position with her father's firm. Instead, he accepts her father's offer of a mere messenger boy's job. The girl is incensed at this, and permits herself to be kidnapped by Ralph Gurney, her father's private secretary, and a pair of gangsters to whom he is in debt. The idea of the hoax, as Joan sees it, is to bring Lev to the rescue, thereby bringing home his real worth to her father. But things take a serious turn when one of the gangsters is murdered and Joan is arrested for the crime.

Danes Struggled For Many Years to Win Farm Purchase Laws

(This is one of a series of articles on what is being done by the Resettlement Administration to assist tenant farmers to become landowners.)

Denmark has been quoted many times as an example of a nation that changed its farmers from tenants to landowners, and thereby built itself a remarkable prosperity. Now that the Resettlement Administration is pioneering a movement in the United States by which tenant farmers may be enabled to become owners, it is worthwhile to note that the farmers of Denmark had to struggle for many years to obtain the governmental aid which brought them to their present fortunate condition.

When Denmark's present land policy was initiated by the act of 1899, some sort of change had become imperative, just as it is in the United States today. In Denmark it was so bad that farmers were leaving the country as fast as they grew to manhood and womanhood. The wages which they could earn as tenants or laborers had become so much less than they could earn by going to America that the emigration was equal to the entire increase of adult population in the rural districts. To stop this emigration, which was draining Denmark of the best of its rural population, a County Life Commission was appointed in 1894, whose object as officially announced was "To devise a plan by which, on favorable terms, parcels of land can be made available for rural workers."

When the act of 1899 was passed, the conservative element in Parliament forced a limitation which would allow purchase of not more than five acres: They feared a labor shortage and desired that the holdings be so small that the holders would still have to obtain work as hired hands in addition to laboring on their own farms. The homestead-

Vegetables Play Important Part In Proper Diet

Vegetables play an important part in the diet of young and old. They are rich in vitamins, and should be cooked in such a way that none of the rich minerals are lost.

Put vegetables on to cook in boiling water. Be sure they boil constantly, but not too vigorously. Use a teaspoon of salt to each quart of water, but do not add the salt until the vegetables are almost done as salt is believed to harden tissue.

Mild juice vegetables should be cooked tender in a small amount of water with the cover ajar. There should be very little water left when cooking is finished, and as often as possible this should be evaporated so that its food content will be taken up by the vegetables. Tomatoes will cook in their own juice without the addition of water. Spinach will cook in the water that is left on the leaves after it is washed.

Strong juiced vegetables such as cabbage, onions, cauliflower, turnips, and Brussels sprouts, should be cooked in larger amounts of water without a cover, to allow the volatile oils to escape in order to reduce the flavor and to retain the color.

ESCALLOPED CABBAGE: 4 c cabbage, 1 c buttered crumbs, 2 T butter, 2 T flour, 1 t salt, 1-8 t pepper, 1 c milk, 1-2 c liquid from cabbage. Cut the cabbage into quarters. Cook in an uncovered kettle until nearly tender, and then drain. Spread 1-4 c buttered crumbs in the bottom of the baking dish; cut cabbage into small pieces and put one half of it into baking dish, then add another c crumbs and the remaining cabbage. Over this pour a white sauce made from butter, flour, salt, pepper, milk and liquid from the cabbage. Sprinkle the rest of the crumbs over the top. Bake in a slow oven until the cabbage is thoroughly er was required to make a down payment equal to ten per cent of the value of the land, buildings and livestock. The interest rate was fixed at three percent and the maximum loan was 3,000 kroner, equal to about $1,000. Five years later, farmers had gained more power in the Danish parliament and were able to have the loan maximum increased to 5,000 kroner. They gained still more power by 1903, when they succeeded in having the maximum increased to 6,500 kroner. By this time, it was generally agreed that the purpose of the act should be to encourage holdings large enough for workers to become self-sustaining on their own farms. A few years later the maximum loan was again increased, this time to 8,000 kroner, or about $2,500.

The chief objection raised by the conservatives when all this legislation was being enacted was that the government was undertaking too large a financial risk. But this fear proved entirely unfounded. During the twenty-five years after passage of the act of 1899, the Danish government financed the purchase of 11,451 farms. During that entire period, the total loss to the government from failure of the clients to meet their payments was only $9,058 which amounted to only $35c for every $1,000 which the government had advanced.

EIGHTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS . . . Silas Spelle, high-handed, low-principled cattle baron, is out to smash the local bank and force foreclosure on the small ranchers of the Kanab desert country so that he can seize their range lands. He is opposed by Ed. Starbuck, president of the Cattlemen's Bank and by San Juan Delevan, prominent rancher who has been crippled by a fall from his horse. Tex Whipple and his partner, Johnny Clehoe, are cowpunchers employed by San Juan Delevan to fight the rustlers and protect his interests.

"Pink," he drawled. "It's always been my opinion that yuh were a more or less useless young whelp, but I take it back. What in Sam Hill did yuh do to them broncos to get all that action outa 'em? Come on now—didn't yuh have a bottle o' high life with yuh?"

"Nope," grinned Pink. "Nary drop. I jest painted their hides with leather an' man—they shore responded."

"I rise to remark they did," chimed in Johnny. "Every time me an' Tex took a look both hosses an' all four wheels was plumb off the ground."

"Well doggone it, Tex said, show some speed—an' I did."

"Yuh did yuh know," nodded Tex. "Johnny, if you an' Pod'll undress these skates I'll take Utah, you an' Al come along with me. These cub'll take care o' yore outfits."

When the three old timers were out of earshot Pod Fortune turned to Johnny and Pink.

"If yuh ask me," he stated ponderously, wagging one big forefinger for emphasis. "If yuh ask me, 'there's more genuine high fire an' sudden death tied up in them three old rannihans than they keep buttoned down under the hinges o' hell. If'n ole Si Spelle don't step wide an' hand-some he's sure to be run through a buzz-saw. An' that's whatever."

At Jim Delevan's favorite corner of the porch, the old cattleman sat in serious conference with Tex, Utah Lynch and Al Barrows.

"Jim," Tex said slowly. "Those eight hundred Herefords yuh lost when yuh was hurt ain't gonna get away if I kin help it. Just about where'd be the place them rustlers would drive a big herd like that?"

Delevan considered. "If I'd been doin' it I'd a took 'em South. There's a string o' water-holes reaching clear down to the S. W. & P. railroad. It'd mean a hard drive but it could be done. It'd take time o'course, but if the herd was kept close to the edge o' the desert they could find enough pasture along the eastern foothills to keep the cattle movin'." O' course I'm convinced Spelle is behind the steal but he wouldn't dare hold that many cattle with my brand on 'em up north anywhere. He might take a chance on hidin' out a hundred or so in some out o' the way corner o' his range, but eight hundred would be too big a cut. An' then 'course he'd have to blot the brands. I got the sheriff workin' on the case but after hearin' Doc McMurdo's report on the man I ain't got much hope o' results. Yuh see, Westhaven is the main center o' Kanab County an' they jest about control politics down there. Most o' the office holders are professional politicians who are long on office detail but damn shy on everything else."

Tex nodded. "Which leaves it up to us to handle our own affairs in our own way. Le's see, that steal happened a little over two months ago. How far is it to the railroad south?"

"Close on two hundred miles."

"H-m." Tex considered. "Then on top o' the time it took to drive 'em south they'll have to blot the brands an' give 'em time to heal. I'm bettin' the Herefords ain't seen the inside of a cattle train yet. Jim, Utah an' Al an' me are hittin' the trail in the mornin'. I'll leave Johnny here with Pink and Pod to keep things movin' on the ranch. Besides, Spelle will probably try some kind of a raikaboo an' yuh need somebody close what can throw a gun like the kid."

"Yuh don't think Spelle will go that strong, do yuh, Tex?" argued Delevan.

"I know he will. Didn't he turn some o' his outfit loose after Miss Ronny this mornin', figgerin' on collectin' that mortgage again. I tell yuh Jim, that Jasper is the kind that won't stop short o' sudden death to try an' have his own way in everything. He's been havin' things his own way for quite a time now an' it don't set well with him to think o' gettin' beat. Yeah—I'm bettin' yuh can look fer trouble right here on this ranch."

"A'right," growled Delevan. "Let him come, damn him, 'We'll be set."

"Everythin's settled then," said Tex. "Hi—Johnny, come here. Got somethin' to tell yuh."

Johnny listened to Tex without comment until the latter was finished, then nodded. "I expait you three ole chuckawallas will glom all the fun goin' after that rustled herd, but fer the good o' the cause I'll stick around an' boss hell outa Pink an' Pod. We'll handle things at this end without trouble. If Spelle gits on the prod I'll end the whole mix up with a .45. That'll be the quickest way out of a lot o' argument."

"Shore, that's common sense," drawled Utah, with a wide grin. "Well, seein' that we know which way we're pointed I'm gonna grab off a round o' shut-eye. Me an' Al ain't been doin' such a hell of a lot o' sleepin' in the last week."

"Which goes fer me, too," nodded Tex. "I'm feelin' my age tonight."

"A'right," jibed Johnny. "You three broken down fossils hit the hay. Pink an' Pod an' me'll ket yore packs and make up an' grain yore broncos. We'll see that yore slippers an' pajamas an' hot water bottles are all included."

"You git to hell outa here," threatened Tex, while the others rumbled with laughter. "Git—or I'll whale the tar outa yuh with a number ten boot."

Johnny fled, cackling, and the three old timers clanked wearily down to the bunk-house, soon to be buried deep in their blankets. Johnny and his two assistants labored nearly to midnight currying and graining horses and making up packs. It was Pod Fortune who made a trip to the bunkhouse and returned with two quart bottles of whiskey.

"Roll 'em up in a sack an' put 'em in," he boomed. "Be a pleasant surprise for the ole boys, come tomorrow night. Make 'em forget the sandfleas."

Tex and Utah Lynch and Al Barrows left the Box D early the following morning. The stars were still gleaming cold and bright when they herded their pack animals out of the corral and started them down into the purple depths of the Kanab Desert. Tex was the last to leave and he hesitated a moment, looking down at the silent bunkhouse. His stern, deeply seamed face was wistful, and his eyes just a wee bit hurt.

"Better get a wiggle on, yuh ole brindle-haired," came a gruff voice at his elbow. "The others are gettin' a lead on yuh."

Tex started slightly and turned. Johnny was standing there at his stirrup. Miraculously Tex's face cleared and for a moment a beautiful light glowed in his deep eyes. Johnny held up his hand and Tex gripped it mightily. His left hand went out and settled lightly on Johnny's towseled head.

"Take keer o' yoreself, son" he drawled gently. "If trouble breaks remember all I've taught you. Don't go bustin' into things without thinkin' yore moves out first. If yuh ain't here when I get back I'll pave this damn country with daid men."

"Hell!" gulped Johnny. "I'll be all right. It's you I'm worryin' about. Yuh're shore to bump in to gun-play down south an' I won't be there to watch out fer yuh."

"Nemmine me—I kin get along. So-long Johnny."

"So-long, Tex."

Tex rode away, a dark, creaking bulk in the half dawn. At the corral gate Johnny stood, watching and listening until the last sound of departure vanished. Then he turned slowly back to the bunk-house, swallowing thickly and blinking his eyes. He was strangely unashamed of the tears.

For the next three weeks Johnny drove Pink and Pod and himself unmercifully. There were a multitude of things to be done about the ranch, and every night the three youngsters dragged themselves to their blankets tremendously weary. But a month after Tex and Utah and

"That boy Johnny is shore a gogetter," he remarked one evening to Ronny, who was perched beside him "Pink an' Pod have done more work in the last month than they ever did in six before, an' darned if they don't seem happy in doin' it. They're gettin' that danged proud o' this ranch they ain't fit to live with."

"They are good boys, all," answered Ronny softly. "So loyal and cheerful."

"Cheerful—yeah," nodded Delevan. "All except Johnny. That kid's worryin' about Tex. I kin tell it."

"I love him for it," said Ronny. "He worships old Tex. He—he'd die for him. I know he would."

Delevan nodded again. "I like that kid—sh-h-h, here he comes now."

Johnny came striding up out of the dusk and crossed the porch to Ronny and her father. He looked very tall and lean and capable, thought Ronny, her heart skipping a beat. And his usual devil-may-care face was set and grim and strangely harsh.

"Evenin' folks," he drawled. "I come up to say so-long for a time. I'm heardin' south in the mornin'."

"I savvy," nodded Delevan. "Go ahead son, yuh've done mighty fine work in the past month an' things are in better shape than they've been for a year. I see Pink an' Pod haided fer town after dinner."

"Yeah," said Johnny, relaxing a little. "Them boys shore have earned a holiday. An' it was jest about a case o' have to. Pod was down to his last pair o' socks an' Pink's been on the verge o' tears for a week over the way his pants are fallin' apart. But they shore have worked."

"I'm raisin' their wages," declared Delevan abruptly. "I kin appreciate any man's efforts."

"Be all right if I take a couple o' spare hosses?" asked Johnny. "I aim to make a fast trip."

"Hell," snorted Delevan. "Do yuh need to ask? Take a dozen if you want 'em, son. I don't think yuh need to do any worryin', but I ain't tryin' to hold yuh back."

"Take—take care of yourself, Johnny," she murmured, holding out her hand shyly.

Johnny gripped it in both of his. "They's jest two things worth while in life fer me, Ronny," he murmured with a kind of fierce tenderness. "Yuh an' Tex make up the herd. Yeah—I'll be back."

Just before midnight Johnny awoke with a start. Someone, grunting and stumbling, had entered the bunkhouse.

"Quien es?" called Johnny. "Who is it?"

"It's me—Pink," came the answer. "Strike a light Johnny, Pod's hurt."

Achievement Day Is Observed By Home Demo. Clubs

Winters Home Demonstration club held open house last Thursday with the assistance of two other clubs in the county, Dale and Victory, entertaining with an achievement Day Tea at the club house.

The achievement of the Winters home demonstration club for the past two years has been the club house which is clear of debt, and members of the club took a special pride in showing the visitors about the large room and kitchen as well as the displays of achievements by all the clubs.

The Victory club had a nice display of fancy quilts, fancy needlework, tufted bedspreads and one table of canned fruits and vegetables. The Dale club entered a tufted bedspread. The Winters club displayed several tufted bedspreads, crocheted pillows, mats, several fancy quilts, and a number of other small items of interest. One quilt that was of special interest was a wool quilt. The wool was washed by members of the club and was then sent to San Angelo to be finished and rolled into bats for the quilt. The quilt is made of rayon crepe in rose and green color and quilted in a lovely design.

As bedrooms were the club goal for the year a number of bed rooms have been remodeled by members of the club. Several bedspreads have been finished and others are making theirs. About twenty-two mattresses have been made or renovated by members and most of them have provided mattress protectors and spring covers, also a supply of linens. But most of all the club house and yard has been the achievement the past year and each member has done her part to make it a real club house.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cookies and coffee were served from a lace-laid table over orchid and centered with a large bowl of flowers.

THE BIGGEST AMERICAN BRAIN

There is still a considerable difference of opinion among scientists as to whether the size of a man's brain has a direct relation to his intellectual capacity or not. In general, however, it is the common belief that the person with the largest brain has also the most powerful intellect.

If that is true, then the most intellectual person who ever lived on the North American continent, so far as any evidence goes, was an Aleutian Indian who died several hundred years ago and whose skeleton has just been unearthed on one of the islands off the tip of Alaska. He had a skull capacity of 2,005 cubic centimeters, which is just a trifle larger than the braincase of Daniel Webster, who certainly was one of America's intellectual giants.

The largest brain of which there is any record belonged to Turgenieff, the Russian novelist, which measured 2,030 cubic centimeters—not much larger than that of the unknown Aleutian Indian. Bismark, the great German statesman, had an enormous head, with a brain capacity of 1,965 cubic centimeters. The French poet LaFontaine; the German composer, Beethoven, and Immanuel Kant, the great philosopher of two hundred years ago, all were noted for the size of their heads.

All of which is flattering to the man who wears a 7 1-2 hat or larger, though it must be admitted that some mighty smart men never wore bigger than a 6 7-8 hat. Mere size is not enough to account for the brilliancy of some of the world's best brains, in all probability.

Nevertheless, it is too bad that there are no records, traditions, or relics to tell us more about this Aleutian Indian with that great brain case.

AN INDUSTRIAL TEXAS

That Texans are commencing to think seriously of their state as an industrial empire as well as an agricultural and cattle empire, is shown by the widespread approval given a recent suggestion of Matthew S. Sloan, chairman of the board and president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines, for a state-sponsored effort to develop the state industrially. Serving as guest columnist for the editor of the Dallas Times Herald, the Katy Lines' chief executive declared the time is ripe for Texas to capitalize upon its manifold opportunities.

Pointing to the success of the Texas Department of Agriculture

Mr. Sloan said that by increasing the size and value of the state's crops it had paid its way a hundred fold. "Would not a similar department concerned with bringing new industries into being, with finding ways for putting more of the state's natural resources into profitable production and with focusing attention of the industrial world upon Texas, also pay handsome dividends?" he asked.

During the two-and-a-half years he has been president of the Katy Mr. Sloan has spent much of his time traveling over the state, studying conditions and becoming acquainted with business leaders. A director in several of the country's larger industrial and financial concerns, and, prior to commencing his career as a railroad executive, an outstanding figure in the public utility field, Mr. Sloan's training and broad experience adds weight to his statement that "no other state has so many justifications for planning industrial growth through organized and systematically directed effort." Editorial comment indicates his suggestion is regarded as one worthy of the best thought of all Texans.

The Texas Weekly reproduced Mr. Sloan's article almost in its entirety and added that it "speaks for itself and requires no comment, although, it is in order to remark that it shows once more how the sentiment for an industrial Texas—which would not, as Mr. Sloan pointed out, have an adverse effect on agriculture in the state—is growing."

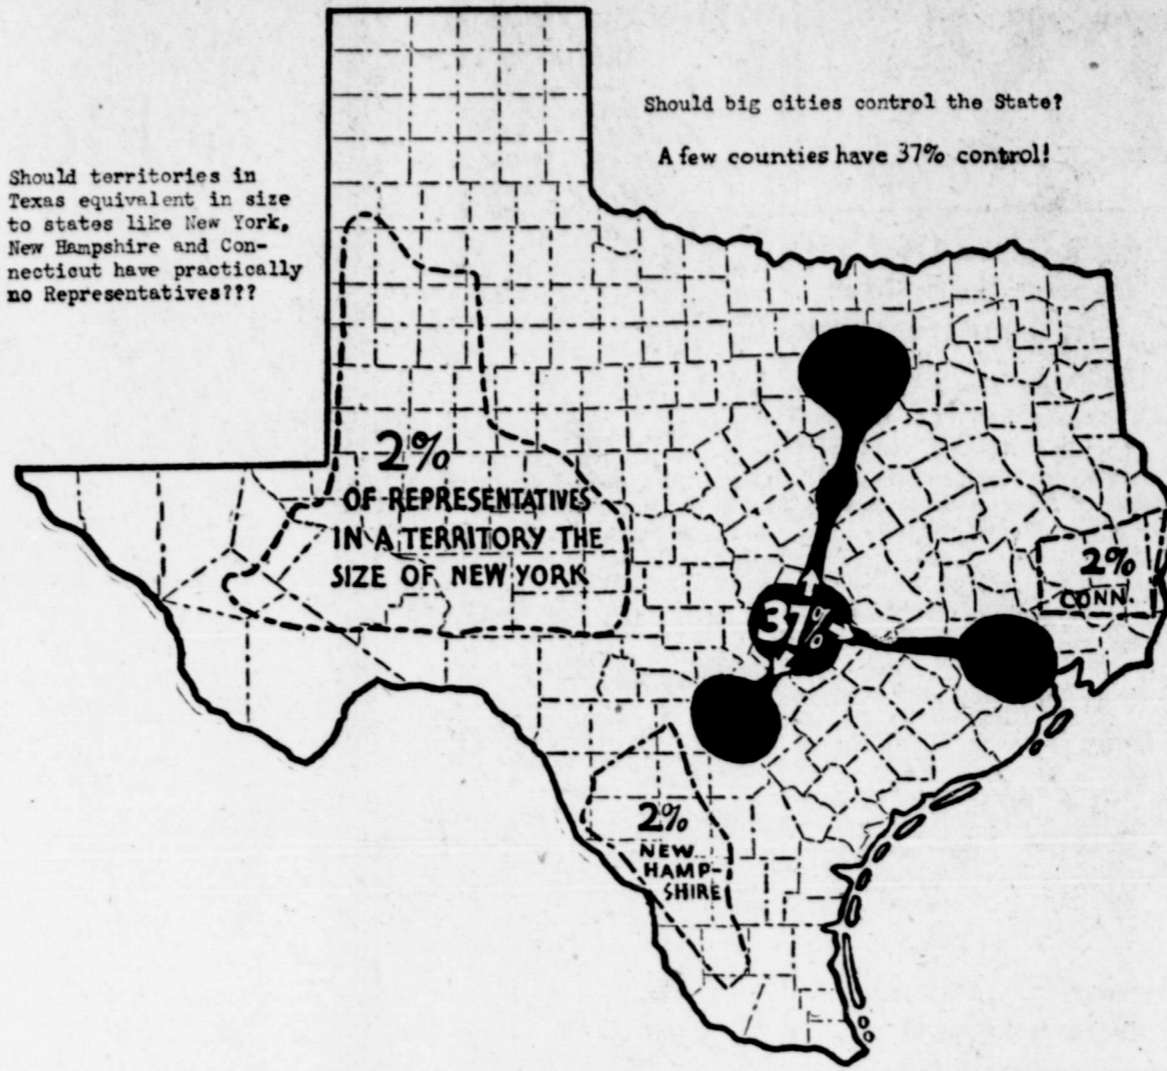

"Mr. Sloan is right," commented the Dallas Times Herald, "a state like Texas must balance its economy. The state has offered many kinds of aid to farmers; the time has arrived for manufacturers to be given their share of attention. The tentative suggestion of Mr. Sloan that a state agency be created to encourage and assist industry is worthy of study."

"The proposal has obvious merit" commented the San Antonio Express. "Most recent governors of Texas have expressed concern with building up the state industrially. Such a state agency as Mr. Sloan suggests would give that sentiment effective outlet and direction. It is time to be thinking of making a concerted effort to draw industries to Texas."

The Moffett Amendment (No. 6) will prevent undue centralization of power in a few of the very largest Counties of Texas. "Vote for amendment No. 6 in November"

MOFFETT EXPLAINS AMENDMENT NO. 6

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—George Moffett, member of the Texas Legislature from Chillicothe, made these statements today:

"Texas is the largest and most important agricultural state in the union, and this should be the most potent fact in the minds of legislators as they enact the laws under which the people of Texas live—

"But the state's population trend is not toward the farm. It is away from it, moving into already populous centers. In the 1920-1930 decade the population increased 1,162,000, and almost exactly one-third of the increase occurred in the three most populous counties. By actual census figures 69 rural counties showed decreases in population between 1920 and 1930. Power farming probably accounted for most of the decrease—

"If Texas were given legislative redistricting today under our present constitution, Dallas county would have ten members and Harris county (Houston) eleven. In 20 or 30 years more this would be doubled—

"Unless our present constitution is amended, population will continue to be the only yardstick by which representatives in the legislature are allotted to the various counties, and the big cities will completely control the legislature."

Amendment No. 6

Moffett's statement was made in support of one of six proposed constitutional amendments upon which the people of Texas will vote on Tuesday, November 3. It is Amendment No. 6 providing for equalization of legislative representation on a basis of geography as well as population in laying out districts. As chairman of the legislative committee on constitutional amendments Moffett was the author of Amendment No. 6. He is for all the amendments, but believes this one is by far the most needed "to keep the government in the hands of all the people and not the few who have moved to the cities and whose interests are more industrial than agricultural."

Moffett said further:

"Thirty states take geography as well as population into consideration in laying out legislative districts—why should not Texas? In Oklahoma the limit for a county is seven members; in Georgia and Florida, three members; in Iowa, two members; and other states that are predominantly agricultural have similar restrictions based on geographic and territorial considerations.

"Our forefathers wrote it into the federal constitution that the President and Vice-President of the United States should not come from the same state. They opposed concentration of powers—and Amendment No. 6 proposes to do the same thing in Texas.

"The United States Supreme Court in 1932 in a clear-cut decision that congressional districts need not even be approximately equal in population. County commissioners precincts, city commissioners precincts, judicial districts, school districts and many other subdivisions created for legislative purposes, are not laid out on a population only basis, but usually with an eye to giving each section or community fair representation. Geographic and territorial considerations play an important part in shaping the aforementioned districts, and should likewise be considered in laying out representative districts instead of using population alone.

What Amendment Proposes

Amendment No. 6—last on the November ballot—was passed for submission by the 44th Legislature. It provides that no county may have more than seven members in the lower house, and if adopted, a redistricting under any law—present or future—would have to conform to it.

"Since the total membership of the house is fixed in the constitution at 150," said Moffett, "it certainly is proper and fair that no one county out of the 254 counties in Texas should have a disproportionate representation, and a maximum of seven should be enough. In a state as large as Texas it would never be for the best interests of the state to permit the bunching of its lawmakers in a very few counties. It is most justifiable for Texas to recognize geography, as well as population, than any other state, because it is the largest state with the farthest-flung boundaries and has the greatest diversity of conditions and interests.

"Unless Amendment No. 6 is adopted by the people next month and written into our constitution, four or five of our larger counties will within a few years, have a population preponderance enabling them to control and dictate the laws under which the people of all the other counties must live. Amendment No. 6 seeks to put a reasonable and necessary balance wheel in our governmental machinery, and it should be adopted."

Examples

At the present time representation in the Legislature is fixed by dividing the total population of the state by 150 (the number of representatives in the house) and allotting representatives to each county, or counties, in accordance with the resulting population quotient. Here is an example of how that works:

Dallas county, with six members, has a representation exceeding the combined representation of the following 32 West Texas counties: Dallam, Sherman, Hans-

Made of opaque glass, they come in lovely jewel colors to harmonize with the rich satins and brocades of the new evening shoes. Next in the procession of novelties is the aerated rubber heel, a model which makes it literally possible to walk on air. It has an air chamber in the back which collapses when a step is taken, thus throwing the weight of the body toward the front of the heel where many orthopedic experts say it belongs.

And while we're on the subject of shoes, here's some timely advice from a well-known orthopedic surgeon. "No one should continue to wear a spike heel at all times," he declares. "A dress shoe or sitting shoe is not a walking shoe. If ladies must indulge their fancy for high heels, they should take a brisk walk daily in bare feet or at least in low-heeled shoes."

According to a home economist, most women pound their heels over hard floors for the equivalent of three to eight miles a day in the performance of their household tasks. If they wear spike heels, she says, their resistance will have sunk to zero by the time the dinner hour approaches. Well-fitting shoes with Another example An area in West Texas reaching from Farwell down to Sanderson and from Balmorhea across to Paint Rock—an area as large as the state of New York—has only three members in the lower house, no greater than the representation allowed Beaumont and Port Arthur in one county, Jefferson.

Moffett sounded this warning: "It was a stern and hard fight to get the Legislature to submit this amendment. Opposition to submission, centering in the populous counties that profit most under the present law, was overcome with the greatest difficulty. If the people vote against the amendment next month, I am afraid they will never get another opportunity to pass on the question, and that the state will be redistricted under the present laws. And that would give two counties (Dallas and Harris) 14 per cent of the entire lower house membership."

comfortable built-up heels are recommended by this expert for women who must stand on their feet for lengthy periods at business, in the home, or when engaged in outdoor activities.

Luxurious bathers can now add bath oil to their list of tub accessories. A few drops is all you need to a tub. And a trick to using bath oil is to drop a little into the tub before you run the water, right under where the water first hits. The force of the water from the faucet as it strikes the oil breaks it up nicely into utter and sweet diffusion.

Something new in handbags is made of cocoon leather. Honest-to-goodness, it's made from the cocoon the butterfly spins, later dried and pieced together in three-quarter inch squares. It looks like mosaic and is nice with wools or woolen accessories.

Beauty specialists advise that it may be harmful to try to remove freckles. Prevent them by staying out of the sun. But if they do appear, here is a simple and harmless homemade recipe of a Frenchwoman that is well worth trying and may make the freckles less conspicuous: Beat the white of an egg and the juice of one lemon together in a mixing bowl. When the mixture is frothy add one cup of water and one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Beat it again, then spread over the freckled area and leave on all night. Naturally, you should cleanse your skin well before you start.

Household Hint: Ham blends well with left-over cooked meats such as beef lamb, veal or mutton. Try some for your next pot pie.

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

The cold germ is a constant threat to your health during winter because leading doctors tell us that fifty per cent of all disabling diseases start with a "common cold." And the invisible but dangerous cold germ finds one of his best opportunities in homes where occupants are most liable to sudden changes of temperature. Therefore, it is a wise precaution to avoid the possibility of sudden changes of temperature in your home this coming winter by providing a constant circulation of pure warm air throughout the house.

LONE STAR GAS SYSTEM

On Texas Farms

Gainsville—At a cost of 20 cents for hinges and nails, Mrs. Weldon Beley, Food Supply Demonstrator for the Callisburg home demonstration club in Cooke county, has a closet for her canned products. Heavy unfinished lumber that was stored in the attic was used to frame it; the doors were covered with heavy pasteboard; and the closet was lined with pasteboard to keep the products cool.

Edinburg — "Ventilating my old pantry and adding two shelves makes the storage space more serviceable," says Mrs. M. A. Shields of the Lone Star home demonstration club in Hidalgo county.

The ventilation was added to the old pantry by cutting an opening in the floor one and one-half by two and one-half feet and in the ceiling one foot by one foot. The openings were screened to prevent insects from entering. The shelves were made of two-inch strips with three-fourths of an inch between so the air could pass through.

Mrs. Shields' pantry holds 744 pints of food at present valued at $111.98. She assisted 20 non-club members during the past year, according to Miss Mattie Wilroy, Hidalgo county home demonstration agent.

George West—From her flock of 200 white leghorn hens, Mrs. John Dunn of Live Oak county made $180.10 during a 6 months period, according to Miss Linda Sears, county home demonstration agent. This is an increase of $64.94 over the profit she made from the same number of hens during the same six months of the previous year.

During the first six months' period, the hens produced 959 dozen eggs and during the second period they produced 1634 dozen, showing an increase of 675 dozen.

She attributes the increase to the fact that she has built a new poultry house, thus giving more room for her flock, and that she has increased the size of her poultry yard, thus giving the hens more green feed for the entire year.

Vega—Floyd Mitchell of Wil-dorado in Oldham county reports that he harvested 1,600 bushels of wheat from 60 acres of land last month, according to R. T. Alexander, Jr., county agricultural agent.

"This is as large as any yield that has been reported in Oldham county for this year, as ninety per cent of the wheat failed entirely while the remaining acres produced only light yields because of drouth," Alexander reported.

Mitchel attributes this yield to the fact that the land was worked continuously on a contour last year and was drilled the same way last fall so as to conserve all moisture that has fallen in the last 12 months.

In addition, two short terraces were built where a small draw enters his field and these terraces have tended to spread the water from the draw all over the field.

Angleton—Pasture land mowed for the first time in 1935 and cleared of small brush has more than trebled its carrying capacity on the R. H. Carr farm near Angleton in Brazoria county, according to J. H. Sandlin, county agricultural agent.

In March 1936, Carr had to double the number of head of stock in the pasture in order to get the grasses and clover grazed down satisfactorily, and again in May another group of cows was moved in on the pasture. Now the total number of stock carried in the pasture is more than three times as many as had been carried in previous years.

Liberty—Mrs. Arthur Sheppard, rug demonstrator in Liberty county, says that a vacuum cleaner will not clean soiled rugs.

"Take your hooked rugs out on the cement walk, brush them well to remove all loose dust, then prepare a thick soap suds of chips and warm water and brush this into the rug well, using an old broom or brush," Mrs. Sheppard explained.

"Then hang the rugs on the clothes line and rinse well with the hose. Press them before using and your rugs will look like new," she concluded.

Farm timber resources are coming into recognition in East Texas it appears by the interest of the 150 farmers who attended the recent demonstration by Extension agents of a portable sawmill on the J. A. Page farm in the Greenhill community in Titus county. Methods of stacking lumber for curing without warping, and chemical treatments were also demonstrated, in addition to the sawing of trees, logging them to the mill, sawing the logs and planing the lumber. The 1,250 board feet produced during the two-day demonstration will be used by Mr. Page to make improvements on his farmstead.

One of this town's remarkable theatre runs—still going on—is "Tobacco Road," a play of stark realism of the deep South. In its second year, now, it looks as though it will go on playing straight through the summer.

The charter of the City of New York has probably been read completely by a very few men—because it is about twice the length of the Bible! Not even Al Smith has read it through.

New York's Eighth Avenue Subway has fewer beggars than any other line, perhaps because it is owned by the City, and has more police protection. On other lines there are beggars who go the length of the trains, playing accordions, sometimes, but more frequently, just begging.

Some "visiting firemen" in town from Jacksonville, Florida, who think there's actually more home life in New York than in the town where they can find everybody they know and start a party within twenty minutes. And perhaps they're right.

When visitors have been in New York for a week, going a terrific pace of doing things and going places, they frequently ask their hosts, "how do you stand such a pace?" And the truthful answer is usually, that "such a pace" is just as temporary for the residents as for the visitors.

One of the hottest forms of transportation in summer is that of the Interborough subways in New York. Insufferably stuffy, the trains still go at breakneck speed, and there's always a cluster of standees to be found at the front end of the train, leaning on the chains of the open front door, and take the hot wind in the face. It's about the only comfortable spot.

When a man was arrested at the Bronx zoo recently for throwing a lighted cigar into a monkey cage, it came to light that several of the chimpanzees and gorillas are bad smokers, and in visiting hours the keepers have to remove the hay from the cages to prevent fires.

While Washington's attention is not in the least diverted from the presidential campaign, consideration is being given to what is going to happen after election, no matter who may be elected. For, on the question of who will be the next President of the United States, the best-informed political prophets here are frankly throwing up their hands. So many factors which have not been present in previous presidential campaigns enter into the picture this year that nobody feels quite sure that the usual signs which have heretofore been relied upon will prove reliable in 1936.

But whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Landon is elected, the mill of the Supreme Court will grind on as if there had been no political campaign. It is not expected that any important decisions will be handed down until after election, but from then on there will be a succession of decisions on ten, at least, of the acts of the 73rd and 74th Congresses whose constitutionality has been challenged.

The principal laws under attack are the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Moratorium measure, the 1933 "Truth in Securities" act, the Public Utility Holding Company act and the right of PWA to make loans for publicly owned hydro-electric plants.

The Challenged Laws
The Wagner Labor Regulations Act, which established the National Labor Relations Board and guaranteed the right of collective bargaining to all employees, has been challenged by the Associated Press and by the Bradley Lumber Company of Arkansas. The lower courts have upheld the constitutionality of the act. Now the Supreme Court is to pass upon their rulings.

Several power companies have questioned the constitutionality of government loans for publicly owned electric light and power systems. Their complaint is that this puts the government into unfair competition with private business. The action of the Supreme Court on this and the Public Utility Holding Company act is expected to bring to a head the conflict between the Federal Government and public utilities.

A step toward bringing about better relations between the Government and privately owned power companies was taken the other day by President Roosevelt, who called in representatives of important power companies for a private conference at the White House.

While no public information was given out as to what was discussed, it is understood here that the effort was to find a reasonable rule to govern the distribution of power produced at government dams in the Tennessee Valley and elsewhere.

The right of the government to distribute this power has been challenged, though its right to generate electric energy as an incident to the construction of dams for flood and navigation control, has been upheld by the Supreme Court.

Farm and Security Acts
The Frazier-Lemke Act which granted a three-year moratorium against foreclosure of farm mortgages has been challenged by the Phoenix Joint Stock Land Bank of Kansas City, which has carried the request to the Supreme Court after adverse ruling by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court decided last year that an earlier Frazier-Lemke Act of similar intent was unconstitutional. The present act was passed in an effort to accomplish the same result by constitutional means.

No formal action to challenge the constitutionality of the Social Security Act has yet reached the Supreme Court, although that is a very important act of the 74th Congress of which a constitutional test is expected sooner or later.

In the meantime, the Social Security Board is preparing to carry out the provisions of the Act, especially that part of it dealing with old age insurance, which does not take effect until January 1, 1937.

The gigantic task upon which a huge staff of clerks has been at work for nearly a year is that of checking and recording the names, ages, and employment records of some 26,000,000 workers in industry and business.

Immediately after election every postmaster is to be furnished with the Social Security Board's list for his community and will be called upon to check upon the present whereabouts of every person whose name appears on the list.

Starting January 1st

Beginning January 1, every employer will be required to pay to the government a tax of one per cent of his total payroll, except for such parts of it as run above $3,000 a year for any particular employee. Beginning at the same date, every worker earning up to $3,000 a year will be required to pay an income tax of one percent of his total salary or wages. This income tax must be deducted from the pay check or wage envelope of the employer and turned over to the government.

Out of the proceeds of this payroll tax the act provides for retirement pensions beginning at the age of 65. The expected attacks upon its constitutionality are based upon the fact that the tax is not a general tax but applies only to workers in business and industry and is not required from workers in agricultural, shipping, domestic service, members of charitable, scientific and other non-profit organizations, or persons who are self-employed, such as professional men.

Another ground is that the proceeds of this tax are not distributed for general welfare, but only for the specific benefit of the particular classes who are taxed, so that there is no provision in the law for old age insurance benefits for a very large part of the population of the United States.

LONE STAR GAS CASE TO HIGHEST COURT

Officials of the Lone Star Gas Company have announced that they expect to appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of the Texas Supreme Court denying the company an appeal in the company's gate rate case. Attorneys for the company will first ask for a rehearing and if this is denied they plan to go to the highest tribunal in the land, they stated.

This case involves an order of the Texas Railroad Commission reducing the city gate rate from 40 cents per thousand cubic feet to 32 cents. The company appealed from this order to the Travis County district court and a jury decided for the company holding that the commission's order was unreasonable. The state then appealed to the Court of Civil Appeals which reversed the jury verdict. The State Supreme Court was then asked to review the case but has declined to do so.

Officials of the company stated they believe the jury verdict was correct and that in order to protect their service to customers they are bound to go on with the case. They also expressed the opinion that because of increasing cost of doing business it is more than necessary to maintain present rates.

Seven Runnels Farmers Avoid Foreclosure

Seven farmers of Runnels county have been enabled to avoid foreclosure or forced sale of their farms or equipment as a result of voluntary debt adjustments reached through aid of the Resettlement Administration. A total of 1,000 acres of land, as well as other property, was involved. Debts amounting to $10,492 before adjustment were reduced by 113.

"One long-time purpose of the Resettlement Administration is to help farmers toward ownership of the land which they operate," said T. J. McCaughan, chairman of the county debt adjustment committee. "It is just as important to keep them from losing land which they already own as to help them buy new land." He said that the debt adjustment work is largely with small farmers whose financial needs are so small that other agencies find no profit in handling them, or where the debt is so large, in proportion to the value of the property, that other financing agencies consider it unsafe. The Resettlement Administration makes no loans for paying delinquent taxes, interest or principal, but through committees of local volunteer workers brings about agreements between the debtor and creditors for reducing or extending the indebtedness to such an extent that the debtor has a reasonable opportunity of paying it off. Assistance is rendered in refinancing the debt, through the Farm Credit Administration or other public or private lending agencies.

Although it can make no loans for payments on land or taxes, the Resettlement Administration is authorized to make loans for purchase of teams, tools, and supplies. Such loans were made in many cases adjusted during the year. Unsettled cases pending September 1 totalled 9. Members of the debt adjustment committee for Runnels County are: T. J. McCaughan, Norton; W. E. Puckett, Winters; and J. E. Fowler, Ballinger.

Financial support and the securing and training of scoutmasters was also urged. About 300 Chiropractors met last Friday and Saturday at the Plazo Hotel in San Antonio for the twenty-first annual convention of the Texas State Chiropractic convention. The convention was opened Friday morning with an invocation by the Rev. J. Grady Timmons and an address of welcome by Mayor C. K. Quinn. Dr. Joe E. Busby of Abilene, state president, made the response. Among the noted speakers on the program was Dr. K. Ligeros, of Athens, Greece and Judge A. W. Ponath of Wahpaton, N. D., Judge Ponath told the convention that "As Judge of the probate court, I am chairman of the insanity board of Richland county, N. D., and a study extending over several years has convinced me by cold statistics that chiropractic has been 125 per cent more effective than any other method of therapy employed on mental cases. Judge Ponath also stated that he believed every state should have an institution where the insane are treated only by chiropractic, and he believed this science should be employed in schools, tubercular homes, and homes for delinquents. Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Craig who attended the convention, returned home Sunday evening and report a very profitable meeting.

"POOR CIRCULATION" MOSTLY TIRED NERVES

So many people come to see me, telling me, among other things, that they have "poor circulation." The reasons for this mistaken idea is because their feet are more or less numb, with "creepy" sensations, tingling and almost invariably, cold or uncomfortably cool. These symptoms they ascribe to poor circulation.

True, it feels just like that; feels as if the blood could not get through the tissue fast enough and was trying to force its way—which isn't the case at all; those tiny blood-vessels may be as open as they ever were, with the pulse rate and arterial pressure normal. The coldness, tingling and numbness, however, will bring the "poor circulation" opinion every time, when the patient tells me about the failing legs, or arms below the elbows.

It's a nerve proposition every time. When the brain and spinal cord become very very tired, fagged, weary from long over-taxing, the twigs of the nerves farthest from the centers will manifest their exhaustion by lack of healthy function. To prescribe a heart tonic for such a condition when it only needs rest, would be stupid. The general tonic may be useful, and particularly, the nerve tonic, which, however, is only supplemental to the first requirement—rest for the brain and cord.

If those leg symptoms are accompanied by high blood pressure it is extremely necessary that the patient consult his physician at once—and it isn't "poor circulation" even in this emergency; it's still a nerve proposition that caused the feeling, though the circulation may be running riot.
