Members of the organization and all those interested in singing should note the change of date and all are urged to be present.

Robert Wilson, Winters negro, was awarded $3,508.33 damages by a 42nd district court jury Monday, in his suit against W. L. Murphey, et al.

The negro was a passenger on a bus owned by Murphey, when it was in collision with an automobile near Hatchel. The case, heard last week, was handed jurors Saturday and the verdict was returned yesterday. Plaintiff had asked $20,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnson are announcing the arrival of a baby boy on Tuesday, October 27th. He was given the name of Louis Eugene.

Mrs. Ernest Caskey and Mrs. R. H. Henslee went to Abilene Tuesday to visit with Mrs. Joe Martin who is a patient in the Hendrick Memorial Hospital.

JGE GISH

With average date of killing frost only two to three weeks off, ground wet, days short, and conditions poor for curing the late feed, there is no need for worry if one will only put the feed away in a trench silo, writes County Agent J. A. Barton. A trench will keep feed for years without waste, with no danger of fire, no weevil damage, no rat or mice damage, no drying out of feed, water or storm will not destroy it. Furthermore, the more it rains the better it will keep in the trench. It is the cheapest method on earth of storing and keeping feed.

Another thought one can just let his feed grow on and let frost catch it and then wait some four or five days and place in trench, add water and cover from 14 to 16 inches deep and

TURN FACES TOWARD HOME TO VOTE AS CAMPAIGN ENDS

Most recent pictures of Democratic and Republican Presidential candidates with their wives as they turned their faces toward home town voting booths to cast their ballots in the national election, next Tuesday. ## MOZELLE HERE THIS AFTERNOON FOR GRID TILT

GAME TO START AT 3:30 P. M. INSTEAD OF 3:15.

Owing to the game being over transferred here, Winters Blizzards will play the Mozelle team at Blizzards Field this (Friday) afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the game having been delayed fifteen minutes on account of the funeral services of Frank Flynt, which is announced for 2:30 o'clock.

Both Winters and Rising Star won their games this week, so there was no material change at the top of the percentage column in District 23-B.

The Winters Blizzards muddled over Bangs 25 to 0, for their third district victory, and Rising Star took Coleman, 12 to 7.

Santa Anna did not wish to play in the mud and forfeited its game to the strong Cross Plains Buffaloes. Mozelle and Ballinger cut their game to just half regular length, but the Bearcats had plenty of time to win, 28 to 0.

Three conference games are listed this week, but excitement will be scarce. Rising Star is out of action and Winters is due to have it easy against much-beaten Mozelle.

Standings:

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Rising Star	4	0	0	1.000
Winters	3	0	0	1.000
Ballinger	2	1	0	.667
Cross Plains	2	1	0	.667
Santa Anna	1	2	1	.375
Coleman	1	2	0	.333
Bangs	1	3	1	.300
Mozelle	0	4	0	.000

NEW STOP BLOCKS HAVE BEEN INSTALLED BY THE CITY

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS TO BE ENFORCED SAYS MAYOR.

The city has recently put in over the business section eight stop blocks at the intersection of streets, the latest two to be installed being at Church Street going north at Robinson's Service Station, and the other being at the intersection of streets near the Banner Ice Co.

In an interview yesterday, Mayor J. W. Copeland said that he intended enforcing the traffic regulations, and was asking that motorists stop at these stop blocks in the interest of their own as well as the safety of others.

"These recently installed stop blocks say 'stop', and not 'hesitate,'" said Mayor Copeland, "and motorists will avoid expense and trouble by complying."

Miss Lottie Maude Lewis has accepted a position with the Halley and Love Sanitarium in Ballinger and will assume her new duties on November 1st. Miss Lewis is a graduate nurse and for the past several months has been employed in the offices of Dr. R. H. Henslee.

Mrs. Wess Hart was taken to Abilene Monday to the Hendrick Memorial Hospital where she is receiving medical treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McCoy returned home Wednesday from Central Louisiana where they visited with relatives of Mrs. McCoy and transacted business.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Parrish on October 24th.

Trench Silo Sure Method To Save Late Feed According To County Agent's Demonstration At Fair

just forget about it as it will keep perfectly. Heads will keep just as well as the forage. As a demonstration in a small trench constructed on the fair ground where some 800 pounds of perfectly dry heads were placed in a trench silo some 40 days before the fair and on opening found the heads in perfect condition. Another remarkable thing about the trench at the fair grounds was that the river was up about three feet over trench for 48 hours, and had no effect whatsoever on the heads. Another part of this demonstration was storing ear corn and thrashed grain in this trench and these grains kept just as well as the heads.

All kinds of grain sorghums, sudan grass, red top cane and in fact any kind of forage can be easily kept in a trench.

RUNNELS PIONEER RANCHMAN PASSED AWAY AT ABILENE

He was married in 1906 to Miss Dee Kevil and their ranch home is in the Crews community. He was a deacon in the Ballinger Baptist church and a member of the Ex-Open Range Cowpunchers Association.

Texas Voters To Decide Amendments At General Election On November 3; Summary Of Provisions Are Given

ALL ARE IMPORTANT AND SHOULD BE STUDIED BY EVERY VOTER BEFORE CASTING THEIR BALLOTS ON ELECTION DAY.

Texas voters will decide on six proposed amendments to the constitution at the general election on November 3. All of them are important and all should be studied by every voter before he casts his ballot.

Mention has been made in the Enterprise from time to time of the amendment which would raise the salaries of the governor and other high state officials and it seems to us that it is nothing but fair that our governor should be adequately paid and not just receive compensation which was adequate for the governor a half century ago.

Many state papers have commented and urged the adoption of this amendment and also the amendment which would remove the power of pardoning convicts from the hands of the governor. The Texas Weekly of a recent issue urged the adoption of both and gave a factual summary of the other four amendments which we are reprinting.

"Senate Joint Resolution No. 3-a would abolish the present liquor set-up in Texas, under which the sale of liquor is in the hands of dealers licensed by the State, and would give the State itself "the exclusive right to purchase at wholesale and to sell at retail" all liquors except

LIONS HEAR REPORT ON FLOOD CONTROL HEARING

MISS HOLWEGLER PRESENTS TWO OF HER PUPILS.

Lions Club members and guests were given a report of the hearing held recently in Austin by U. S. army engineers on flood control in Texas by Lion T. D. Coupland, who attended the meeting. Mr. Coupland said much flood control work would be done in Texas within the next few years and he believed that the Upper Colorado dam, and many other small dams on tributary creeks, would be built. There was a possibility of getting dams built on Bluff creek, and other Colorado river tributaries, as a flood control measure. Mr. Coupland stated.

Entertainment at the luncheon was furnished by little Ira June Brannon and Allen Key, both pupils of Miss Hallie Holwegler. Songs, recitations and tap dancing were included in the numbers given by these two little tots, who elicited much applause. Albert Afflerbach was toastmaster.

Visitors besides those on the program, included E. A. Shepperd and Mr. Armstrong, both of Abilene.

John Q. McAdams is in Dallas today to attend a banquet in honor of Hon. Jesse Jones, Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Ambassador Bill"

Brought back in response to unprecedented popular request, the film presents Will Rogers in the type of role that made him famous—a good-will diplomat, filled with humorous wise-cracks and homespun philosophy. Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill and Gustav von Seyffertitz are featured in the supporting cast. A hilarious story of a mid-western American who is appointed Ambassador to the mythical European kingdom of Sylvania. Ambassador Bill arrives to find everything in an uproar and the country in a revolution. The revolution, however, turns out to be just one of the weekly outbreaks that occur with clocklike regularity. His aplomb considerably shaken, Will, however, steps into the breach and soon has the kingdom running on a smooth, democratic basis.

"Private Number"

Robert Taylor, only son of the wealthy Winfield family, returns home from college and mistakes Loretta Young, his mother's maid for a house guest. He refuses to permit her to explain her situation and this first chance meeting is the keystone of a romance which culminates when the family go to Maine for the summer. One moonlit night, while riding in Taylor's motorboat, they decide to get married, and Taylor wants to tell his parents of the marriage. Loretta, however, persuades him that he should first finish his college education and Taylor goes off to school. The household is presided over by the butler, Basil Rathbone, who rules as a virtual dictator. Rathbone is infatuated with Miss Young, and is determined to make her accede to his wishes. He is furious when he discovered she is going to have a baby and revengefully informs Mrs. Winfield of the situation. Loretta refuses to admit her husband's name but the marriage is revealed by Patsy Kelly. The romantic climax of the film comes in a crowded courtroom where Taylor and Miss Young meet again—and the riddle of whether or not their love can continue to exist is answered.

"My American Wife"

Francis Lederer, in the story is a foreign Count, owning the impressive name of Ferdinand con und zu Reidenach. He marries an American girl—for love, not wealth and comes to America determined to make himself known as "Spike". Social ambitions of the girl's mother bring the romance of Lederer, and Ann Sothern almost to divorce, until the Count takes matters into his own hands and manages a reconciliation. The film gives the fullest possible play to Lederer's virile romantic charm, and gives him as team mate a star whose sparkling personality matches his own.

"Here Comes Carter"

Ross Alexander appears first as press agent of a movie company but is discharged because he refuses to resort to bribery to get an actor whom he despises out of one of his many disgraceful scrapes. Knowing the picture business, and its characters thoroughly, he gets a job as a radio commentator, dishing up scandal on the stars especially anything concerning the player who caused his dismissal. This leads him into trouble with gangster friends of the actor who threaten him with speedy extinction if he broadcasts certain items they think best left unsaid. His refusal to "layoff" lands him in a serious predicament. But the police appear and in a dramatic gun battle—which unknowingly is broadcast over the mike—the mobster's band is wiped out. Alexander has two leading ladies in the film. Glenda Farrell, his wise cracking secretary and Anne Nagel, a radio singer whose career he is responsible.

"Heroes of the Range"

It is a roaring story of a man's courage in the face of almost certain death, as Ken Maynard poses as one of the band of villains, rides with them on their missions of death and destruction only to save the day at a critical moment when not only his own life is in danger but that of his sweetheart and of his friends. Joan Peters is costarred with Ken Maynard in the film.

"Three on the Trail"

The film brings William Boyd back in the role of "Hopalong Cassidy" with Jimmy Ellison as his faithful side-kick, Johnny Nelson. The story shows "Hoppy's" efforts to free himself and Johnny from a false charge of robbery and murder fastened on them by Jecus Kane, crooked gambler and their thrilling adventures in ridding the country of Kane and his desperadoes. It is an action-filled thriller, with deft comedy touches and a tender romance woven expertly into the story by the capable direction of Howard Bretherton. The beautiful country of the West forms a background of scenic splendor that will linger in the minds of the audience. Muriel Evans is lovely and demure as the schoolma'am for whom both Johnny and Kane have fallen.

"Wives Never Know"

The funniest husband and wife in pictures, Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland are together again for the eleventh time in a delightful story of a great love which almost goes wrong. Aiding and abetting in the great merriment is suave Adolphe Menjou cast as the serpent who comes into a Topeka, Kansas, Garden of Eden with some novel ideas on married happiness which he induces gullible Ruggles to try. Charlie does, with results that are almost disastrous to his happy marriage.

NEW CHEVROLETS WILL BE SHOWN HERE NOV. 7

Chevrolet dealers throughout the United States will celebrate the public announcement of Chevrolet's new 1937 models with several thousand "Chevrolet Breakfasts," held simultaneously from coast to coast on the morning of Nov. 7, when the new cars make their formal bow. W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, announced the breakfast program this week, explaining that it celebrated this year's all-time sales record and the outlook for new records in 1937.

More than 50,000 employees will sit down to the breakfast, Mr. Holler said. Immediately following the event, showrooms will be thrown open for the first public inspection of the new models, which are being kept a closely-guarded secret up to the announcement date.

"In spite of the fact that the new cars have not yet been shown, thousands of the new Chevrolets have been ordered for immediate delivery," said Mr. Holler. "It is doubtful if any industrial organization ever received a more eloquent endorsement than that which thousands of men and women have given Chevrolet this year, by placing their orders for the new models before they were introduced—in fact, before anything at all was known of them except that they were Chevrolets."

"The engineering department and the manufacturing department have given the public an outstanding production, and it is gratifying to know that their

Cash Income of Farmers in 1935 Over 461 Million

Increase of Fifty-Seven Per Ct. Over Figure of 1932

College Station.—Cash income from farm production in 1935 in Texas was $461,030,000, an increase of 57 per cent over the 1932 figure of $294,358,000. Cash receipts for sales of principal Texas farm products constitute about 94 per cent of that. During the first seven months of 1936 these cash receipts were 19 per cent greater than during the same period in 1935, thus indicating a continued rise in Texas farm income for 1936, according to figures just released from Washington.

The extent to which the economic situation of Texas farmers has improved since 1932 is indicated in part by comparing the 1932 and 1935 production volume of certain commodities, together with the cash income from those commodities.

Texas farmers produced approximately 4,500,000 bales of cotton and 2,006,000 tons of seed in 1932 for which they received a cash return of $152,463,000. For their 1935 cotton crop, smaller than that of 1932 by about 1,544,000 bales and 690,000 tons of seed, they realized a cash income of $238,492,000, including about $9,617,000 in price adjustment payments and $47,411,000 in rental and benefit payments. The 1935 income was, therefore, larger than the 1932 income by $86,029,000 or 56 per cent.

Beef producers in this State likewise saw a substantial rise in their cash income from 1932 to 1935, in spite of a marked decrease in production. In 1932, their net production of cattle and calves amounted to about 1,235,930,000 pounds, their income therefore totaling $34,363,000. Their net production in 1935 approximated 901,625,000 pounds, or about 334,305,000 less than their 1932 production; yet their 1935 cash returns totaled $51,627,000 or 017,264,000 more than their 1932 returns. Government cattle purchases from Texas ranchmen account for about $2,785,000 of this 1935 income.

Dairymen in Texas profited by marked increase incomes, along with stockmen and cotton farmers among others. Net milk production in this state was only 1 per cent greater in 1935 than 1932 but cash income was 52 per cent, or $13,620,000 greater.

The position of Texas Corn-hog farmers in 1935, as measured by the increased cash returns from production, is much improved over what it was three years earlier. Their 1932 cash income was $8,939,000 for a corn crop of about 102,726,000 bushels and a net hog production of approximately 434,290,000 pounds. Their 1935 income was $20,749,000 including $2,731,000 in benefit payments, for a corn crop of about 89,368,000 bushels and a net hog production of 324,260,000 pounds. The 1935 income of corn-hog producers in Texas was $11,810,000 or 132 per cent more than in 1932.

The 1932 wheat crop in this State amounted to approximately 28,293,000 bushels, for which producers received a cash return of $6,928,000. The 1935 crop of 11,473,000 bushels, about 60 per cent smaller than the 1932 crop, brought them $6,265,000 at the market and $12,503,000 as rental and benefit payments included. All told, wheat producers in 1935 received 80 per cent more cash than they did in 1932 when the crop was more than double the 1935 crop.

Chevrolet Gets Choice Space At Auto Show

The Chevrolet Motor Company had first choice of show space at the National Automobile Shows at New York and Chicago this year for the 10th consecutive time, it was announced today.

The Automobile Manufacturers Association, under the sponsorship of which the shows are held, annually gives first choice to the manufacturer showing the largest dollar volume of sales during the preceding year. Chevrolet has held this honor every year since 1927.

During the model year just ended, Chevrolet sold 1,125,000 units, according to W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, and set a new all-time record. It was the seventh time in the past 10 years that Chevrolet has led the entire automobile industry in yearly sales.

Chevrolet will exhibit a complete line of passenger cars and commercial vehicles at both shows and will have lecturers on the scene to explain the exceptional features of the new Chevrolet for 1937.

Graydon Nicholson of Fort Worth spent a few days last week in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Nicholson. He came to be at the bedside of his mother who has been seriously ill but it is thought that her condition is somewhat better.

also showed encouraging upturns from 1932 to 1935. Income of rice producers more than doubled, rising from $3,847,000 to $7,905,000, including $1,903,000 in benefits on 1935 production. Income from oats rose 137 per cent, or from $1,763,000 to $4,179,000. Income from chickens and eggs jumped $3,320,000, or from $12,255,000 to $17,575,000; and that from wool more than doubled, increasing from $5,311,000 to $13,028,000.

On Texas Farms

Hempstead.—By planting his field with two rows of corn and one row of cow peas, Mack Rosenau of Waller county has stepped up his corn production by better than five bushels per acre in 10 years, according to J. V. Bush, county agricultural agent.

Rosenau uses no fertilizer, depending entirely on the added fertility given the land by planting cow peas on every third row. Under this rotation system cow peas are planted on each row every three years. The turkey herd on the Rosenau farm eat the cow peas and the vines are left on the land to be plowed under.

Fairfield.—"From the standpoint of harvesting, housing and value of the feed, a trench silo is the most economical way to save a feed crop," says W. W. Steward, Sr. of Freestone county.

Steward stored 88 tons of silage from a six-acre crop of red top sorghum, according to J. W. Richards, county agricultural agent. The total cost of this feed including breaking of the land, cost of the seed, planting, plowing and harvesting, digging and filling the silos amounted to only $1.30 per ton. This included a charge of $1 per day per head for his mules. All labor was hired.

Ballinger.—Terraces on 20 acres built 16 years ago at no actual outlay of money had a total value of $640 for J. A. Patterson of Runnels county, according to information furnished J. A. Barton, county agricultural agent.

The terrace lines were leveled off by D. F. Eaton, county agricultural agent, at that time. A V-shaped drag and plow were used in construction of these terraces, with two neighbors cooperating in helping each other.

Patterson says that the terraces returned an average of $1 per acre in crop production and have had the value of $1 per acre in holding water and soil, making a total return of $2 per acre per year. This makes a total return of $32 per acre over the 16-year period or a total value for the 20 acres of $640.

Refugio.—"Wind and sun make the tufted bedspreads take on new life," says Mrs. Emil Leister, bedroom demonstrator of the Austwell home demonstration club in Refugio county. Mrs. Leister hangs her spread right side out on the line at intervals to bring out the tufts and loosen the spin of the yard. Brushing with a stiff brush also gives life to the tufts, she says.

Mrs. Leister has recently completed her tufted bedspread as one of the items in improving her bedroom, according to Miss Frances Beason, county home demonstration agent.

Waco.—"To save money and trips to town for meat, I have found that I can buy cured bacon in large pieces and keep it by cutting it into chunks and dropping it into the cotton seed oil I have left after using all my home cured meat," says Mrs. C. A. Seawell of McLennan county, according to Miss Martha Buttrill, county home demonstration agent.

"Bacon bought in large quantity and stored in oil does not become rancid nor mold before it is used up," Mrs. Seawell says.

Falfurrias.—Planning ahead for warm bedding for the coming winter months, Mrs. J. M. Word, president of the Falfurrias home demonstration club in Brooks county, has made two wool comforters from home grown wool. After washing and combing it, she put one and one-half pounds of wool in one comforter and two pounds in the other.

She bought 15 yards of soft pliable material and thread to tack the comforts with, the total cost of the material being $2.55. For one comforter she used a quilt top she already had.

Certified dwarf milo seed produced 2,000 pounds per acre for Willie Smith, a crop demonstrator working with the county agricultural agent in the Peacock community in Stonewall county, while common seed produced only 1,000 pounds per acre. Both kinds of seed were planted on the same type of land and at the same time of the year.

Forty-three cents per acre is the actual cost of terracing his 80 acres of land with a tractor, according to H. G. Karenbrook of Wichita Falls. The terracing was done under the supervision of C. W. Wilhoit, assistant county agricultural agent.

R. L. Wilson, a poultry demonstrator of Allison community in Wise county, made a net profit of $245.39 from 132 hens during seven months ending September 30. The hens produced 1,143 dozen eggs during the period. The feed cost was $63. Gross sales were $209.39 or an average net profit of $1.09 per bird during the seven months. The birds were fed a balanced ration and cared for according to instructions of the county agricultural agent.

***

J. B. Rhea, poultry demonstrator near Wichita Falls, reports a net profit of $204.29 from his 327 white leghorn hens during the months of May, June, July, and August. Total sales were $335.47. Feed costs were $131.18. This demonstration is one being conducted in cooperation with the Extension agents of Wichita county.

Mrs. Henry Arledge of Knox City is visiting in the home of her mother, Mrs. M. W. Carlisle.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

The most expensive political campaign in the nation's history comes to an end next Tuesday. More money will have been spent by both parties in the National, Senatorial, Congressional, state and local campaigns than ever before.

That is not to imply that there is anything improper in the spending of money by political organizations for election purposes. It costs money to pay the expenses of speakers, to pay for advertising in newspapers and on billboards, to buy time on the air, to print booklets, circulars and badges by the tens of millions, and to pay the wages of employees.

All of these expenses so far as they relate to national offices, Presidential, Senatorial or Congressional, are required to be reported to the proper officials in Washington in detail, and particular plans are taken to scrutinize them with great care and frequently to investigate them afterwards. Since the passage of the corrupt practices act, more than 20 years ago, instances have been very rare of improper or fraudulent use of money in elections for such purposes as bribing voters or concealing the expenditure of campaign funds.

Practically all of the states require reports of campaign expenditures made on behalf of state, county and municipal officers, so that it is increasingly difficult for any party, however well organized and financed, to buy an election. There is nothing shocking therefore, in the fact that this year's political campaigns, taken altogether, will run to around $25,000,000.

The Money Spent
Of this amount the Republican National Committee is expected to report the expenditure of $8,336,000, which is the largest amount ever spent by any party in a presidential campaign, except in 1928, when the Republican National Committee spent $9,433,000 and the Democratic National Committee, $7,152,511. This year the Democratic National Committee expenditures will run around $3,000,000. The Senatorial and Congressional Committees and the two major parties are expected to spend about $500,000 each.

Senatorial and Congressional candidates' personal expenditures will run to about $2,000,000. The minor parties, Union, Socialist, Communist, Prohibition, Farmer-Labor, etc., will probably spend among them about $3,000,000. State, county and local campaigns will account for another $8,000,000.

One of the reasons for the heavy expenditure this year is the great increase in the number of voters of whom every candidate and committee is trying to reach and influence. The addition of more than a million to the registered vote of New York State led to the calling of a special session of the legislature last week for the purpose of enacting a law permitting the polls to remain open several hours later than the established closing time of 5 o'clock.

If the efforts of the various campaign committees to get out the full vote are successful, the probability is that in many of the crucial states and cities the process of counting the ballots will necessarily be prolonged. It is, therefore, quite possible that the nation will not know definitely who has been elected President until well along on Wednesday morning, Nov. 4.

In the cities which use voting machines, such as New York, Buffalo and many of the larger cities of the Middle West, the total vote is normally completely tabulated and recorded within an hour after the close of the polls. But with the extension of voting time in New York and the probability that it will be necessary to resort to paper ballots to supplement the work of the voting machines, the way is paved for a long delay in the reports from this and other vital centers of election night interest.

The Straw Vote Polls
In no previous campaign has there been such an extensive use of the method of trying to forecast the election by means of polls or "straw votes." One enterprising newspaper, the Cleveland News, conducted what it calls a "poll to end all polls." That newspaper discovered that no less than 3,007 separate polls were being made, nationally or by state and localities.

Combining the results of these polls, the Cleveland News comes to the conclusion that, if these straws actually do show which way the wind blows, Mr. Landon will get 307 electoral votes against Mr. Roosevelt's 220. Analyses of the major polls by others do not bear out this conclusion. Indeed, as the election day approaches, it still remains anybody's guess as to whether the President will be reelected or Mr. Landon will go to the White House.

All of the polls and straw votes have been under more vigorous fire than ever before. Polls which show a decided trend toward Republican victory have been attacked by the Democrats and vice versa.

Much of the criticism of some of the more important polls has been based upon the allegation that they do not necessarily represent the views of actual voters. Those critics have maintained that the only way to get an accurate forecast is to poll all of the registered voters of the state or nation. The Baltimore Sun undertook to do this in the state of Maryland, with the result that its straw vote, representing about 10 percent of the voters, showed a heavy majority for Mr. Roosevelt. But, as an eminent Republican commentator points

F. F. A. BOYS BIG WINNERS AT THE COUNTY FAIR

WILL EXHIBIT AT THE ANGELO SHOW IN SPRING.

Future Farmers of Winters high school won ribbons in several exhibits at the Runnels county fair the past week, results of the judging disclosed. The boys have received $40 in premiums to reward them for their efforts. Frank Brown's fat calf won first award and his pen of five lambs took second money. Cecil Vinson placed first with his pen of feeder lambs while his fat calf was awarded second place. First money on feeder calves went to a Content entry while Winters boys took the next seven places. A calf owned by Weldon Mills was second while Franz Belitz's entry was third. Willis Davis Hampshire gilt took first premium and Rufus Williams was awarded second. All awards in the capon division went to the Winters boys. Douglas Cole, 1st.; Franz Belitz, 2nd.; and Weldon Mills, 3rd. In the agricultural department, Frank Brown took blue ribbons in Red Top cane and Feterita. Weldon Mills exhibit of Hegari was second and Conny Berry received second money on Millet and comb honey.

Projects
An average daily gain of more than two and three-fourths pounds over a 258 day feeding period was made by a Hereford calf fed by Gerald Proctor, Winters High School pupil, as a part of his supervised practice work, under the direction of J. M. Williams, teacher of vocational agriculture. Gerald bought the calf from J. M. Brooks, Brady, for $40 picking it from a lot of 300 calves. Two other calves being fed by Frank Brown and Cecil Vinson were purchased at the same time. All are receiving from two to three gallons of milk per day and a grain ration containing: Corn, maize, oats, cottonseed meal and limestone flour. These animals will be shown at the San Angelo show next spring.

Initiation of Greenhands
Ten first year vocational agriculture boys were initiated as "Greenhands" at the regular weekly Future Farmer meeting Wednesday. The degree consisted of a solemn ceremony administered by chapter officers. Those initiated include: T. J. Adams, Jerry Dry, Cipriano Chavarria, Eddie Green, Clarence Krempin, Harold Millipn, Benjamin Nitch, Monroe Overton, Harold Watson, J. C. Watson. Future Farmers of Winters staged a Halloween party Wednesday night, Oct. 28th at the high school. Approximately 40 Future Farmers and dates were present.

out, nothing is easier than for a well organized party to see to it that its adherents record their preferences, while the weaker organization cannot do that so effectively. Where there is a strong Republican organization the method of polling registered voters is likely to show a Republican majority and vice versa. And there we are. By this time next week we ought to know who is to be the next President of the United States.

WILL IT BE "QUEEN WALLY?"

Next to the question of who will be elected President of the United States on November 3, probably more people in this country are interested in the question whether King Edward VIII of England is going to marry the vivacious American woman, Mrs. Ernest Simpson, after she gets her divorce, which her husband said he would not contest when the case comes up for trial in an English court. Nobody knows the answer but the King and Mrs. Simpson, but the underwriters of Lord's, the great English insurance exchange are asking a 25 per cent premium to insure London merchants against the postponement of the King's coronation, which had been set for next May. That is taken to mean that British financial minds believe that the King will get married—to somebody—with the result that all plans for the coronation will be changed.

Meantime, the gossip of both sides of the Atlantic are busy speculating as to whether the King intends to marry Mrs. Simpson, whether he can legally marry her, whether if he marries her she can take the title of Queen, and whether he ought to marry her, anyway. All America is interested, because she is an American. Everybody who ever knew the former Miss Wallis Warfield of Baltimore speaks of her in the highest terms as a lady who can hold her own in any society, and whose lineage, if not royal, is at least as good and as well authenticated as that of King Edward himself. She has been the King's constant companion for a long time, and numbers among her friends many of the highest figures in the British peerage. But she is an American, though a British subject by reason of her marriage to Ernest Simpson.

Can the King of England marry a commoner? Nobody seems to know of any law to prevent him from marrying anyone he pleases, except the Act of Succession which prohibits him from marrying a Roman Catholic. But Mrs. Simpson is a Protestant, so there seems to be no legal obstacle in the way of her marrying the King if it so pleases both of them. To be sure, no King of England has married a commoner since Henry VIII took Anne Boleyn to wife; but that is not to say it can't be done. An old English law prohibits any member of the royal family from marrying without the monarch's consent, but surely King Edward could give his own consent to his own marriage. And if the question of nobility is a serious one, nobody can prevent the King from making Mrs. Simpson a dutchess or a marchioness before he marries her. Kings have ennobled their favorites in the past—without marrying them. King Charles II's blood runs in the veins of some of England's proudest families, descendants of his illegitimate children of whom Nell Gwynne was the mother, and upon whom he conferred titles of nobility.

It seems to be true that whomever the King legally marries becomes the Queen, although the husband of a reigning Queen does not automatically become King. Queen Victoria's husband had only the title of Prince Consort.

It is all interesting speculation, especially in view of the fact that "Wally's" forthcoming divorce will be her second. King Edward's great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, would not recognize or receive a divorcee, but times and moral judgments have changed in the 35 years since Victoria died. It is hardly likely that anybody would try to snub "Queen Wally," if things should turn out that way.

WHO WANTS TO BE 100, ANYWAY?

It is a bit disturbing, just as we had been reading about the old Negro of 116 who is living on a Federal pension, in Tennessee, to have the insurance actuaries, who ought to know, come out and say flatly that no human being ever lived to be more than 106, and very few, not more than 30 in a million, ever reach 100. Insurance records and other public documents going back more than 100 years are cited to prove that all of the tales of persons living one or two or three decades beyond the 100-year mark are myths.

Mankind is the longest-lived of all the mammals, living longer than even whales or elephants; but it is curious, at

"WHY WE ARE FOR ROOSEVELT"

"Without His Leadership Our Very Form of Government Might Have Perished."

(Editorial in Scripps-Howard Newspapers, Oct. 14, 1936)

"... We are for Roosevelt for the same reason that we think we would have been for Jefferson or Jackson or Lincoln had we lived in their day. We are convinced that future historians, as the years bring the complete prospective, will record Roosevelt along with those. We believe that in him the times providentially produced the man; that we have lived through an era far more dangerous than any of us fully realized; that our very form of government might have perished had we not been blessed with a leadership equipped with those qualities of courage, wisdom, understanding, human sympathy and daring which must be present if a major crisis is to be survived.

"It is needed only to recall a few of the events—the banking paralysis, the food riots in the cities, the organized defiance of the courts in the agricultural regions, the veterans of the nation's capital, the hunger and desperation—to picture what might have happened had the ship of state been turned over to a muscle-bound, tradition-minded and near-sighted pilot. Thank God we didn't get one, but instead one who could keep his head when all about were losing their, who could remain calm-eyed while panic reigned, who could sense the full size of the peril and take such chances as were necessary to the rescue. ...

"We have criticized him much and will much more, but we are trying to deal with the 'et,' the batting average. And that is higher, in our opinion, than that of any other public figure of our time. ... We are a bit fed up with the hate Roosevelt chorus that has been sung in recent months by the very supermen that Roosevelt saved. But we do not rest our case on emotions. Rather, we want to put in words why we think it was possible only for a man of Roosevelt's vision to lead us out, and then why we believe it would be a stupendous blunder to defeat him for re-election in the middle of a recovery which he is so certainly accomplishing.

"Roosevelt's tribute to the forgotten man was more than a friendly political gesture. ... It expressed a philosophy both of government and of economics. It represented a realization that our society had become lop-sided—that powerful and organized interests which had been able to have their way with the Government were actually endangering it. ... Roosevelt had the vision to see that capacity to produce had outrun capacity to consume and that the answer must be found in creating a balance. That could only mean a policy that would shift the emphasis and the attention of government to the man who hitherto had been forgotten. To do this, Roosevelt, realized, the Government must be taken over in behalf of all of the people. ...

"So he made the switch—and least, that most of the people over 100 were born in places where no accurate public birth records were kept. Such stories come every day or two from the far corners of the earth. People believe them because, probably, life is the most precious thing to all of us, and we would rather not believe that it has a time-limit. "The days of our years are three-score years and ten," wrote the Psalmist; and for the vast majority, that is as true now as it was in David's day.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me. ... If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician."

BRUCE BARTON Says:

Experience Teaches Dollar Worth

One day the vice-president of a trust company was showing me around and explaining how carefully the company handles the funds entrusted to it. Being asked by him for a comment, I modestly put forth the following: "There would seem to be one defect in your set-up. You take young men from the rich dormitories of Princeton and Harvard and Yale, and you transport them straight into the paneled offices of Wall Street without ever a chance to find out what life is all about. A dollar or a hundred dollars or a hundred thousand dollars are just so many marks on a piece of white paper to them.

"No boy ought to be allowed to come into your trust company until he has first worked a year on a farm or as a section-hand on a railroad, or behind the counter of a country store. A dollar never again would be simply a mark on a piece of paper to him. It would mean struggle and sacrifice and sweat."

The vice-president didn't pay any attention to the suggestion, of course, but I still think it was good. A great danger to this country comes from the lack of understanding between the different sections and classes. I wish it were possible for every big city banker, lawyer and executive to change places at least one year in seven with a small-town storekeeper, or a day laborer. It would be fine if every big board of directors had one place which would be filled by a farmer—a different one every year.

How much more humanity there would be in business if the men at the top could keep fresh their contact with the problems and hardships and heartaches of the ordinary man and woman.

Keep Right On Keeping On

Young people write asking: "How does one get into the advertising business?" Several successful advertising people recently jotted down their business au-much of the bitterness in high places against him comes from those who once were at the elbows of those who ruled. The old order became aroused when it finally realized that Roosevelt "meant it," and that explains the heat of the 1936 campaign, the trumped-up alarm about communism, regimentation and all that—the protests of those who had sat near the driver's seat and now are there no more. And yet, threading through ... is the purpose of making life more livable for the many and at the same time more secure for those who already are well-to-do. "Underneath all that has been a philosophy that our democracy, if it is to survive, cannot be rigid; that our government is a living organism; that it must change to meet the times; that to go back would mean a recurrence of what did happen, multiplied—an eventual shock too great for the nation to stand. "Translate that philosophy in terms of the recovery we are now enjoying and the greater confidence the rank and file of us have in our future and you have our explanation of why we believe the Roosevelt Administration has been the most effective, the most farsighted and the most humanitarian since Lincoln saved the Union. And what we have said of the domestic policies we project also into the foreign field, to encompass why we consider the 'good neighbor' in a troubled world the blood brother of the foreign man at home. We are moving ahead. But there's a long way yet to go. It's no time to change leaders."

TENTH INSTALLMENT

"Plenty," answered Johnny succinctly. "Had a run in with Montana Wade an' a Jasper called Spike, back at Jake Butterfield's. They come bustin' in loud-mouthed an' bossy like an' told Jake that Spelle wanted all the .30-30 cartridges he had in the joint. Addin' that crack to the one Pink heard them dry-gulchers made last night about rushin' the ranch here an' cleanin' up the whole shebang, I figured mebbe it'd be a purty good idee to corral that ammunition ourselves. So I sorta argued 'em outa it an' brought it along."

"Oh—yuh did, huh?" rumbled Delevan peering intently at Johnny. "Yuh musta done some damn fast talkin'."

"Tollable—tollable," nodded Johnny. "I don't allus stutter when I got somethin' real important to say."

"Hr-rumph!" Delevan cleared his throat again. "Yuh never out-argued Montana Wade without killin' him. I know that Jasper too well."

"Did I say I didn't kill him?" asked Johnny innocently.

At this statement a squeak of joy broke from Pink Crosby and he leaped upon Johnny to belabor him joyfully on the back.

"Oh dang you're miserable hide, chortled Pink. "Johnny, if yuh clicked off that danged snake-in-the-grass I love yuh like a brother."

"Couldn't help it," remarked Johnny soberly. "He went fer his hawg-laig first. An' then this Spike humber was backin' his play. He got out o' it lucky. I jest smashed his shoulder. I reckon that evens the count fer you an' Pod, Pink."

"I'll tell a man it does," declared Pink fervently. "Wait till ole Pod hears o' this. He'll get well over night."

"Hope so. By the way—mebbe we better bring Pod up to the house here. I got a hunch we're due fer a visit from Spelle an' his crowd. An' say, Jim, accordin' to Jake Butterfield ole Spelle offered him five hundred dollars if he'd refuse to sell yuh any more supplies."

"Damn him!" rasped Delevan. "An' what did Jake tell him?"

"Told him to go jump in the lake."

"Good fer Jake. I won't ferget that. Dunno but what yuh're right about bringin' Pod up to the house. Can he be moved, Doc?"

"Aye," nodded McMurdo. "If it is necessary."

Twenty minutes later Pod Fortune, still unconscious, was safely reposing in the ranchhouse. Johnny had prevailed on Jim Delevan to abandon his beloved porch corner and have his chair wheeled inside. Now that grim old warrior was sitting at the edge of a front window, a loaded Winchester across his knees and an open box of ammunition at his elbow. Pink Crosby, similarly armed, patrolled the rear windows, which looked out on the slope of the plateau, while Doc McMurdo who had gruffly announced this intention of seeing it through with his friends, sat in the same room with Delevan, glaring dourly at the gulf of the desert. For himself Johnny was in the kitchen devouring the meal Ronny had prepared for him.

He was doing his best to keep Ronny from suspecting the true state of affairs, but she, with her cleverness and intuition, would not be thwarted.

"Johnny," she said, standing at his elbow. "Something terrible is about to happen. Tell me now, what is it?"

Johnny tried unsuccessfully to avoid both her searching eyes and equally searching words. He had to capitulate in the end.

"Well Ronny," he mumbled finally. "It's like this. Spelle's crazy-mad—must me. We've licked him at every turn o' the trail. He's gettin' desperate. On the face o' things it looks like he's goin' to bust wide open by tryin' to clean up on all of us. I figger he's goin' to attack this ranch. So does yore dad. We're just gettin' ready fer him, that's all."

"But-but the law," argued Ronny. "What will the law say?"

"I dunno. Me—I ain't figgerin' on the law to help us out o' the mud. An' Spelle don't give a cuss fer the law. It's pretty generally understood right now that he was in back o' that bank hold-up. To everybody what ain't prejudiced it shore looks that way. An' the law ain't said boo to him about it."

"But-but, somebody will be killed," wailed Ronny.

"I reckon," said Johnny slowly. "Le's hope it won't be anybody in this house. An' when it does start—an' if it does—I want you to get out o' the way o' lead. They's a cellar to the house ain't they?"

Ronny stiffened and her little chin went out. "Johnny Clehoo, if you think I'm going to skulk in the cellar while the rest of you fight, you're mistaken. I can't shoot very well but I know how to load the extra guns. Indeed I won't hide out."

"Aw golly," argued Johnny desperately. "Please Ronny—please. If yuh don't I amble right out in the open with the first shot."

"If you do—I amble with you," said Ronny defiantly. "So there."

In the end she had her way and because of his worry for her Johnny prowled morosely about the house for the rest of an afternoon that seemed interminable. Just as the last rays of the sun were flittering through the window Doc McMurdo stood up with a snort.

"I na believe that mon Spelle will come," he rumbled. "I'm off for yon town."

By this time even Johnny began to doubt the soundness of his theory and he offered no argument to the contrary with the old Scotchman.

"Sorry to have kept yuh this long, Doc, he drawled. "Come on, I'll go down an' throw yore hull on yore bronc for yuh."

The doughty Doctor lingered for a moment to give Ronny some last instructions about the care of Pod Fortune so Johnny strolled corral-wards by himself. He led out the doctor's horse and tossed the saddle blanket in place. He smoothed it deftly with one hand and reached for the saddle with the other. At that moment a single rifle shot crashed out, coming from the fringe of underbrush at the edge of the clearing to the north. Came the spat of speeding lead meeting flesh and the luckless bronco went down in a heap at Johnny's feet. The slight leaning twist Johnny had given as he reached for saddle had saved his life, and the bullet, which otherwise would have torn through the center of his chest, struck the horse at the angle of one jaw and ranged upward through the animal's brain.

Like a flash Johnny whirled and went racing for the ranchhouse. It was far closer to the bunkhouse but even if he did reach it in safety he would swiftly be cut off from the rest of the ranch defenders to be eventually wiped out ignominiously. All this went through his mind as he ran, and though he knew his chances of ever reaching the ranchhouse alive were slim indeed, he did not falter. Instead he drew his gun as he ran and threw shot after shot at the treacherous undergrowth.

The answering fire was murderous. Bullets whispered at his ears and plucked at his clothes. His hat was whisked from his head. Something seared across his left thigh. Once he lurched and went headlong, but with Ronny's despairing scream echoing in his ears he was up and on again. The porch was close now, beckoning him on. He tried to fire again but the hammer of his Colt snicked futilely. The gun was empty.

And now a cursing figure leaped clear of the underbrush and sank to one knee, sighting steadily along the barrel of a Winchester at John's bobbling shoulders. Inside the big living room a virulent oath fell from old Jim Delevan's lips and the rifle which had rested across his knees leaped to his shoulder and spat fire. The crouching figure at the edge of the brush stiffened and rolled over, while the bullet that had been meant for Johnny ripped harmlessly into the ranchhouse roof.

Johnny took the porch steps in two long leaps and burst through to the sanctuary of the house. Ronny had her arms about him immediately.

"Johnny—Johnny," she whispered brokenly, "I thought they had killed you."

Johnny patted her head. "Thought so m'self for a minute," he panted. "The dang bush-whackers shot the heel plumb off'n my left boot. Wow! That was sure some hot sprint. Now brace up, honey. We got work to do."

Johnny limped into the big room, punching empty shells from his .45. He caught up a handful of fat, yellow shells from a heap on the table and dropped them through the loading gate, clicking the cylinder around with his thumb.

"If you ain't a fool for luck," rumbled Jim Delevan. "What yuh limpin' about?"

"Lost a heel o' my boot," grinned Johnny. "Got a flat heel on the left side. I reckon I owe yuh one, Jim."

"Huh, Fergit it. I may be glued to this dang chair, but I ain't fergot how to look down a Winchester. Hell, there goes another pane of glass. An' that stuff costs like blazes in this neck o' the woods."

"Let 'em have their fun. Good thing yuh built this ole house outa logs instead o' sawed lumber. The soft-point slugs they're usin' ain't gettin' through worth a cent. The shootin' will slow up pretty quick I reckon. They can't have any hell of a lot o' shells, seein' as I beat 'em to Jake Butterfield's stock."

True to Johnny's prediction the burst of fire which had followed him to the house and had grown to a veritable fusillade when Delevan had picked off the reckless marksman who had been determined to get Johnny, gradually faded to a few desultory shots. To Jim Delevan's profane disgust there was hardly a sound pane of glass left in the windows. After the first abortive attack on Johnny, Spelle's men had pretty near circled the house.

At intervals bullets whistled through the devastated windows to thud harmlessly on the inner walls. Once the whang of Pink Crosby's rifle sounded, to be followed a moment later by a shrill yell of triumph by the excited Pink.

"Pink musta made a bulls-eye that clatter," grinned Johnny to Delevan. "Shore, I'm—wow! That was a close one. Holy hen-hawks—what they got out there—a cannon?"

Johnny's exclamation was caused by a deep toned bellowing report from down in back of the bunkhouse and by a big bullet which tore through the log wall, to cut a neat nick out of one wheel of Jim Delevan's chair, from there to pass on and splinter one leg off of the table.

"Sharps," growled Delevan. "Ole buffalo gun. That Jasper's dangerous. We got to get him, Johnny. But he's using black powder. See it hangin' down yonder at the corner o' the bunkhouse."

Johnny nodded and pulled back the hammer of his Winchester. Then he crouched at one corner of a window and watched the bunkhouse with unblinking eyes. A slow minute ticked past before the big gun thundered again. This time the slug tore through not a foot from Delevan's head to carry on and hopelessly wreck a framed Remington picture on the inner wall. And the billow of smoke seemed to spring from the ridge pole of the bunkhouse.

Why shield them from every danger except EYESTRAIN?

Isn't their sight worth enough to make you find out what your lighting may be doing to it?

You bundle up your children against cold and rain. You see that they are tucked snugly in bed at night. You are constantly on guard lest they be harmed in some way. You try to shield them from every danger . . . but are you sure about eyestrain?

Sight is their most precious possession. Yet do you let them read and play on the floor where the light is never adequate for even simple visual work? Can you say for sure whether the lighting in your home is letting your children's eyes develop normally? Do you know that your child has enough light for his studying tasks?

Don't guess—be sure. There has been too much guessing about proper lighting. And mainly because of improper lighting, one child in every five has defective vision by the time he finishes grade school. The ratio increases to two out of five by the time they reach college age.

The I.E.S. Indirect Floor and Student Lamp is a simple, economical way to be sure that your child is studying under proper lighting conditions. What is more, the entire family can enjoy and will appreciate this modern, better light. See these lamps on display . . . today!

Wide opening at top throws light to ceiling, eliminates shadows.

Glass bowl softens light, prevents glare.

Wide shade spreads light over wide area.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to every one who rendered assistance and for their expressions of sympathy during the recent illness and death of our dear boy, Wade Miller. May the blessings of God rest upon each of you. Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Miller and boys.

The sky of a hot Manhattan day looked as though a cooling rain-storm was on the way. But the weather man said it was a pall of the city's smoke that hung like a tent overhead.

Texas Voters--

have nine representatives and Dallas county would have eight. Since, however, neither of these counties has a population of 700,000, each would be limited to seven representatives under this amendment. Incidentally, each county at present has five representatives.

"Senate Joint Resolution No. 18 is of particular interest just now in view of the attention being given currently to various phases of social security legislation. It provides the setting up of a "retirement fund" for teachers of Texas—"persons employed in public schools, colleges, and universities." This fund would be contributed to equally by the State and by the teachers themselves. The amount paid by each teacher could not exceed five per cent of his compensation, and a limit of $180 annually is fixed. No teacher would be eligible for a pension until he had taught in the State for twenty years, and no person participating in the benefits of the plan could receive other direct aid from the State.

"House Joint Resolution No. 23 provides that the "Legislature shall have power to pass such laws as may be necessary to provide for workmen's compensation insurance for such State employes as in its judgment is necessary or required; and to provide for the payment of all costs, charges, and premiums on such policies of insurance; providing the State shall never be required to purchase insurance for any employe." It is difficult to comment on this proposal, since, seemingly, it would enable the Legislature to enact measures providing compensation insurance for State employes, but would not allow the lawmaking body to require the State to purchase this insurance. Does this mean that the State would set up its own form of compensation insurance? Probably not. But the proposed amendment does appear to contain contradictions.

"For the sake of completeness, provisions of the two remaining amendments should be mentioned. One of them would raise the salary of the Governor of Texas from $4,000 to $12,000 annually, and that of the Attorney General from $4,000 to $10,000. Salaries of the Comptroller, the Land Commissioner, and the Treasurer would be raised from $2,500 to $6,000, and the salary of the Secretary of State from $2,000 to $6,000. If this amendment passes, the total added cost to the State will amount to about $28,000 per year.

"The remaining amendment would remove the power to pardon and parole convicts from the hands of the Governor. It proposes the reconstruction of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles so that it will consist of three members serving six-year overlapping terms, one member to be named by the Governor, one by the Chief Justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals, and one by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Given to this board would be full power over the granting of pardons and paroles, the Governor serving only in an advisory capacity."

Far-reaching changes are contained in these proposals, and their fate should not be decided lightly. The six proposed certainly offer plenty of room for serious study.

Sub Escape Lungs

WASHINGTON... Getting men out of a sunken submarine has been a U. S. Navy problem which seems to be pretty well solved as tests at the Navy Yard were made here this week. Louis Zampiglione (above), ace navy diver, used the "escape" lungs to make successful trips from the ocean bottom to the surface.

Go up the Hudson River far enough and it's clean enough to swim in—fifty miles or more from Manhattan.
