FRANK WHITE IS KILLED IN WRECK NEAR SAN ANGELO

CECIL WOOD SERIOUSLY INJURED IS IN ANGELO HOSPITAL.

Frank White, 42, resident of Winters for more than thirty years, died in a San Angelo clinic-hospital Tuesday night at 7 o'clock shortly after his car was wrecked on the highway near wall. His nephew, Cecil Wood, 18, who suffered a brain concussion and other injuries, did not regain consciousness until Wednesday morning. He wasn't as seriously injured as was thought at first.

The accident occurred as Aubrey Williams of San Angelo, driving the truck that collided with the car, was turning from the highway near the gin two miles east of Wall. Williams suffered leg injuries.

Mr. White, who operated several marble machines and electrical musical machines over West Texas, as returning to San Angelo from Eola as he and Cecil Wood were making a circuit of their territory. They were conveyed to San Angelo in an ambulance and Mr. White died a few minutes after arriving at the hospital. The body was brought to Winters in a Spill Funeral Home ambulance Tuesday night.

Frank Wesley White was born August 8, 1894 at Buffalo Gap and came to Winters with his parents, the late, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. White, in the year 1904. He made his home with his mother until her death two years ago and had since lived with his only sister, Mrs. J. W. Pierce and her husband. He was an ex-service man and during the World War was stationed at Camp Bowie in Ft. Worth but did not see service. He is a member of the Roy Scoggins Post American Legion. He made a profession of faith at the age of 13 and joined the Methodist church.

Funeral services held at the family home Wednesday at 3 o'clock, were conducted by Rev. J. W. Joiner, Presbyterian minister, assisted by Rev. J. W. Sharbutt, Methodist minister. The American Legion was in charge of the services and Legionnaires were pallbearers. Interment was in the Main Street cemetery.

Surviving besides his sister, Mrs. J. W. Pierce, are his nieces and nephews, Mrs. Mable Clifford Allred of Phoenix, Arizona; Jane Wood, Cecil Wood and Roland Pierce of Winters; William Pierce of Ballinger. A sister, Mrs. Cecil Wood was killed in an automobile accident May 11, 1923.

TEXAS OLD AGE PENSION ROLLS RE-INVESTIGATED

Our definite responsibility is to get assistance to the needy aged, and no deserving applicant or pension recipient in Texas should be afraid that we will overlook him, said Acting Director Orville S. Carpenter, of the Texas Old Age Assistance Commission, today explaining re-investigation procedure required by the new pension statute.

The new law, House Bill 8, takes away requirements concerning property, cash ownership, and income as basis for determining eligibility. Entire basis of the new assistance law is the need of the individual. Aid contributed by other individuals, whether cash or free rent, free board, free medical care, or clothes, must be taken into consideration.

"At present we are busy segregating cases in which recipients show no cash in the bank, no property owned, and no other income except that from the Commission. These cases will not be re-investigated until later because the old people would evidently be in need if they were off the rolls," Carpenter declared.

House Bill 8 requires that all recipients now on the rolls be re-investigated.

"We have started already re-investigating each recipient on the rolls whose eligibility under the new law is doubtful because he has income, property, or is receiving assistance from some individual. However, it should be remembered that we will look at each of these cases with the question in mind: "Is this old person in necessitous circumstances?" he added.

"Of the applicants whose cases have not been investigated, or now are in the process of investigation, we will ascertain those whose applications reflect need and then get to them first. Many of our policies will be determined by the fact that winter is coming and that the needy aged must be taken care of now and not six months from now.

"The evident intent of the Legislature was that assistance must go to the needy aged, and we will see that they get their grants as soon as possible."

POPPY SALE SUCCESS

American Legion Auxiliary Appreciates Co-operation.

Sponsoring the Poppy Sale on downtown streets last Saturday the American Legion Auxiliary received the heartiest response from local citizens that they have received in several years. They report all poppies sold from their supply this year and those that were left over from last year's sale.

In speaking of the sale, Mrs. H. N. Lyle, president of the organization, expressed her appreciation of the hearty cooperation the auxiliary received and wished to thank all those who bought poppies and made the sale such a success.

In keeping with the custom of observing Armistice, the Auxiliary decorated a very attractive show window in Joseph's Dry Goods store. Souvenirs of the World War and poppies were displayed with the suggestion "Lest We Forget."

FIRST INSTALLMENT
"Guss Dulcie's got another of her spells!" exclaimed Rod O'Rourke, turning with smiling eyes to the girl at his side as the car came to a sudden stop. "Well, I'll soon fix her," he added. Then he pulled his long legs from beneath the wheel and swung himself over the battered door. "It's a wonder you wouldn't get a new car," Marvis Trevor replied, an unexpected edge in her tones. "This old thing's always falling to pieces."

That red-headed giant, Rod, opened the hood of the car, and then let it fall as he took a step toward the girl. "You know why I'm not buying any new car, Marvis?" There was a hurt look in his sea-blue eyes. "You used to like to help me fix Dulcie."

"Oh, well, a girl gets tired doing that all the time," Marvis replied. Ignoring the pleading look in his eyes, she took out her compact. Calmly, she powdered her small straight nose, and,

Rev. J. W. Sharbutt, who had just returned from the Methodist conference held at Houston, expressed his delight in being returned to Winters for another year as pastor of the local Methodist church, and told club members they could count on him to give every possible aid in their progressive movements for the advancement of Winters and her citizenship.

C. C. Sessions, Runnels County attorney, was licensed to preach by the Central Texas Conference which was held in a joint session of the five Texas Conferences of Southern Methodists and one Northern Conference at Houston last week. FIRST TWO-COLOR AD APPEARS IN THE ENTERPRISE

HIGGINBOTHAM'S USES TWO-COLOR PAGE THIS WEEK.

E. J. Lambert, manager of Higginbotham's local store, in order to bring home to the reading public the importance of the values being offered by his concern, bought the first two-color advertisement to appear in The Enterprise, which appears on page five of this issue.

Mr. Lambert, in taking the first two-color page advertisement to appear in this paper, said yesterday that he was convinced that the enormous stock of fall and winter merchandise now on display at Higginbotham's and the extremely good values being offered, amply justified him in going to the additional expense of using this two-color page in order to impress the buying public with the bargains being offered.

Both T. W. Cunningham, who has charge of Higginbotham's dry goods department and who prepared the copy for the two-color spread, and the mechanical department of The Enterprise, deserve congratulations on the well-prepared and neatly executed idea.

BLIZZARDS TAKE 13 TO 6 GAME FROM RISING STAR

BLIZZARDS PLAY AT COLEMAN TONIGHT 7:30 O'CLOCK.

Playing before a crowd of fans who paid better than $370 to see the game, and by far the largest to see a game on the local gridiron this season, the Winters High School Blizzards continued their march toward the district championship last Friday afternoon when they defeated the Rising Star Wildcats by the score, 13 to 6.

Protected by a line as heavy and almost as impenetrable as most Class A wings, the Blizzards' backfield became aggressive from the start through smashing long drives by Ramsel, quarterback; Hodge, fullback and Partain, halfback; the trio alternating at carrying the ball and blocking with Gardner. The toes of Ramsel and Hodge placed them in several advantageous places. In summary it was a well-balanced machine that Coaches Bob Fulkerson and Amon Johnson threw against the invaders.

Taking possession of the ball on their own 45-yard line through an exchange of punts in the first quarter, the Blizzards began their first touchdown march. Hodge smashed and whirled through the line for nine, Partain made a long drive around left end to take it down to the 21-yard line and after an offside penalty set them back to the 26 line, he squirmed through a swarm of wildcats and raced across the playing stripe. Baker's kick brought and extra tally.

A return boot by Ramsel from midfield, which sent the ball out on the one yard line in the second quarter, paved the way for Winters' only other counter. Kicking under pressure behind his goal line, Hooper sent the

SCIENCE AND THE ARTS

Very few people ever stop to think of the effect of science and invention upon such things as art, literature and music. One of the big radio broadcasting companies has announced that it has arranged with a group of eminent composers to write musical compositions in symphony form, especially designed for radio use, so that an entire symphony can be broadcast within 40 minutes of time. This is a very definite change in an established art brought about by the needs of the most modern of all scientific developments, the radio.

The late Brander Mathews, Professor of Dramatic Literature at Columbia University, pointed out some years ago the effect which the introduction of electric lights had had upon the form and manner of the drama. By making it possible for everyone in the audience to see clearly every facial expression of the actors, electric lighting eliminated the necessity of pantomime and violent gestures in order to convey the idea to the spectators; the drama became conversational in tone and quite different in substance after electricity replaced gas, which in turn had subdued the drama from the earlier days of candle light.

The very modern invention of photography, and particularly its widespread use by amateurs, has had a decided effect upon the arts of painting and drawing. Not many years ago it was considered a necessary part of every cultured person's education to be able to sketch from nature, but the amateur snapshot camera has changed all that. Today anybody can make a picture which is far more real and lifelike than the greatest work of the greatest artists of the past, while recent advances in color photography and the application of the principles of artistic composition by photographers seem to point toward a time when painting itself will become obsolete.

When you stop to think of it, all of civilized man's daily habits, customs and points of view are constantly being changed by the introduction of new scientific discoveries and their practical

POLITICS AND JOBS

The fight against the spoils system in appointments to public office began nearly sixty years ago. It did not become effective until in the 1800's, when the National Civil Service Reform League was formed and aroused enough public interest to obtain the passage of the first law providing for appointments on the basis of merit and fitness in Federal governmental positions. Since then the principal of making a career out of government employment, protecting appointees who have obtained their positions after examinations and stabilizing the government personnel against political raids whenever there is a change of parties in power, has become well established. The basis have been broadened until now almost all of the permanent government establishments are maintained under civil service regulations.

During the past three years however, the creation of a large number of new "emergency" bureaus has resulted in an enormous increase in the number of Federal employees, and Congress has specifically exempted most of these new posts from the operations of the Civil Service laws. One result of the filling of several hundred thousand new government jobs by political appointees has been a revival of efforts to extend the Civil Service regulations to everybody on the Federal payrolls. At present it is entirely within the power of Congress to exempt any group or class of employees, or even to repeal the Civil Service laws in their entirety.

The proposal has been put forward for an amendment to the Constitution, making it mandatory upon every person charged with administering any government application in new implements and devices. Yet there are people who look backward longingly to the "good old days," when as a matter of reality were the bad old days.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

ment department or bureau to select the employees only from the eligible lists of the Civil Service Board. Whether such a Constitutional amendment will be approved by Congress seems somewhat doubtful. Congressmen thrive on patronage, and it is not easy to persuade them to relinquish their prerogative of putting their friends and supporters into public jobs. And whether such an amendment, if submitted to the states, would be ratified, also seems somewhat doubtful. Nevertheless, the proposal is an interesting and somewhat dramatic gesture which will serve to focus public attention once more upon the evils of the spoils system.

THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

The price of national liberty is the cost of being prepared to defend the nation against aggressions by other nations. There is sound truth in the old aphorism: "In time of peace, prepare for war."

The United States today is spending more money for arms than any other nation in the world. For the year 1935 the total cost for our army and navy, including aircraft, was $709,834,000. The estimates for this year for the same purposes run over $900,000,000 and the estimated cost for next year will be $1,000,000,000. No other nation approaches ours in the amount of money spent for military preparedness, even now when war among the major powers seems imminent. France spent $701,000,000 last year, Great Britain, $483,000,000, Germany, $360,000,000, Italy $354,000,000 and Japan, $269,000,000.

Nearly one-fifth of our total governmental expenditures, about 19 percent, for 1935 was for military purposes.

There is this difference, however, between these expenditures on our part and those of the other great nations. Very definitely the United States is not preparing, and does not intend, to make war upon any other country. That is not true of many of the other nations, which are rearming for the purpose of seizing territory belonging to others. Our cost per capita, moreover, is not as high as that of France, because our population is nearly three times that of France and our military expenses only a trifle higher. Moreover, it costs us more to maintain an army and navy than it does any other power because of the higher wages we pay to our soldiers and sailors. The average pay of the regular army of Great Britain is about $25 a month, which includes officers as well as enlisted men, while the cost per man in the United States army runs above $80 a month.

No matter what preparedness costs, from any point of view, it is cheaper than war. So long as the United States continues to demonstrate that it is prepared to defend its own, the maintenance of a strong army, a still stronger navy, and an air fleet of the highest degree of efficiency will be effective insurance for peace.

When an individual gets very important, you might as well pass him up.

Life has many problems and the wise man doesn't attempt to answer all of them.

This is a good time to begin to avoid the cool weather scourge, the common cold.

DON'T GAMBLE WITH A COLD

COMMON colds are dangerous! Don't gamble with them. You will lose more often than you will win. Even if you are lucky and recover from a cold within a few days without loss of time or money, YOU STILL LOSE. Any illness to a member of the family is definitely false economy because colds create a condition of depressed physical vitality.

This is the age of preventive medicine and medical science has followed the formula that "it is better to keep well than to get well." Therefore, don't gamble. Strike at the root of common colds by eliminating conditions that contribute to "catching cold."

If the temperature of any room in the house is insufficient for comfort it is INADEQUATE

The common cold germ is a constant threat to your well-being during the winter season. If you do catch cold—don't gamble; consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

FOR HEALTH. Members of the family go from a heated room into a cold hall or adjoining unheated room; then shivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. This is one almost certain way to catch cold.

Protect your family against sudden changes of temperature. Give them the benefit of healthful, pure, warm air throughout the home. If you have been heating only one or two rooms, don't go through another winter without complete health protection. If you prefer individual unvented room heaters of the open flame type, be sure to use ONE IN EACH ROOM and provide adequate ventilation from slightly opened windows. Keep connecting doors open from one room to another so that a natural circulation of healthful, warm air prevails throughout the home.

Heat your entire house and provide adequate ventilation of pure air... for your health's sake!

Make-Believe Bride

by Ruth Harley

The girl's eyes softened as she watched Rod. She loved him. She'd loved him from the very first day she had met him. In spite of his red hair, or perhaps because of it, he was a handsome young man. He was tall and lean, with flashing sea-blue eyes and tanned cheeks. He held himself like a Viking of old, she thought.

In the rapturous days that followed their first meeting, Maris told him a thousand times she didn't care if he hadn't much money. He had ideas, and as a radio engineer he would surely cash in on them presently. But lately that wonderful future had seemed so far away, and now as her eyes rested on Rod she saw him no longer with the adoration she had lavished on him at first, but rather with a critical eye.

"There," Rod exclaimed, wiping his hands on a bit of waste, "guess Dulcie will make it all right." Sliding his long legs over the side of the car, he seated himself once more beside Maris.

"I hope so," she remarked ungraciously. "Of course she will," insisted Rod, with a forced note of gaiety in his voice. Just then, after a few coughings and sputterings, the little car started to speed along the road as though she were setting out to win the Derby.

But to all Rod's efforts to get Maris to talk, the girl was strangely silent, or gave him quite curt answers. This was so unlike her usual glib banter, that at last he slowed up.

"Don't you feel good, honey?" he asked, slipping his arm about her. But Maris shook herself free.

"You'll crush my dress, Rod. Of course I'm all right, but I wish to goodness you'd a different car." She tried to laugh lightly as she finished, but there was a note of annoyance in her voice.

"Is that what's bothering you?"

"Well, isn't that plenty? Cars are surely cheap enough," she declared, though deep in her heart she knew she wasn't being fair, Rod was saving every penny so he could perfect the device on which he was working—a gadget which he was sure would bring him independence.

There was a hint of reproach in his voice, when he finally spoke. "I thought you understood, Maris. Just as soon as I manage to get the gadget finished—"

"You've been saying that for so long, Rod," she interrupted petulantly.

How long did he expect her to wait? Would he never realize that a new car now was worth more to her than the possibility of financial independence in the future?

Rod looked at her. Then as they neared Van Cortandt Park and turned down the street to the apartment where Maris lived with her friend, Patsy Desmond, he mumbled thickly, "There's 'There's someone else?'"

For a moment Maris was silent. Maybe it was just as well to let Rod think that. Maybe if he thought there was someone else he would get a new car. But before she could deny it, he said, "All right. Now I understand, and without another word, hurried to the curb.

"Aren't you coming in?" asked Maris.

Rod laughed, "Not where I'm not wanted," he said, his blue eyes flashing.

"Oh, well, if that's how you feel," answered Maris, suddenly angry.

She entered the house then and stepped into the elevator. Her cheeks were flaming. Evidently Rod didn't love her very much if he could let her go like that. Well, she would show him. She had her pride. Maybe it was a good thing after all. He'd been so sure of her.

Swiftly in her mind rose the picture of another man—dark-eyed, debonaire, with swell clothes, Pierce-Arrow roadster, oodles of money, everything a girl would like. His reputation—well, it wasn't just like Rod's. . . . But then, this man moved in a different strata of society.

Her thoughts were swiftly ended. The door of their apartment had opened and Patsy stood there.

"Isn't Rod coming up? I've made the loveliest dinner for him," Patsy announced. A spot of chocolate icing ornamented her flushed cheeks, while the heat from the kitchen had twisted her black hair into tiny cork-screw curls about her heart-shaped face.

"No," answered Maris shortly, brushing past her.

"You've had a scrap?" she asked. "Oh honey, didn't I warn you not to rouse his Irish? He's one of us and you must handle him with kid gloves. I'm going down to get him," and, suiting her action to her words, she darted down the hall.

"He'll be gone by now."

"Not if Dulcie's cutting up her usual capers."

"She's been cutting up all right," answered Maris, "but she's going like the Royal Scot now, I guess. Never mind Rod." The girl pulled off her soft hat and crossed the threshold.

"He can't be far away. I'll bring him back with me," called Patsy as she hastily pressed the elevator bell again.

Five minutes later she reentered the apartment. "Well, I guess Rod's Irish is up all right. Not a sign of him anywhere. What did you do to him?" she asked her friend as she stood for a moment in the doorway.

"Didn't do a thing to him. But what's the use of talking?" Maris walked toward her dressing table while Patsy returned to the kitchen.

As she stood for a moment before the mirror, a tiny frown creased her forehead. Soothing it away, she smiled at her reflection in the mirror, then stole her heart against thoughts of Rod. Picking up her comb, she quickly pulled it through her fair wavy hair and set the soft curls with expert fingers. Pat would be likely to lecture her, but she'd stick to her point. Rod had no right to expect a pretty girl like her to be satisfied with an old car like his. There were lots of other young men who'd be only too glad to have the chance to date her.

Entering the tiny living room, she passed through the dining room. Then, opening the swinging door into the kitchen, she asked, "Anything I can do to help you?"

"Put the water in the glasses and get the butter; then we're all set."

"Smells awfully good!" Maris exclaimed. "What are we having?"

"Roast duck and all the fixings. It's a shame there's only the two of us after all my work."

"Well, what about the boy friend? Why isn't Jimmy here?"

"Oh, some trouble in the Bronx and of course he was roped in to it. That's the worst of being connected with a telephone company's trouble department."

"But surely he won't be there all night. Let's wait for him." "No use doing that. He won't be through for hours. Besides, I want to get back to the hotel early because Mame wants to go to a dance tonight."

"Seems to me you and Jimmy are always doing something for somebody else. Why don't you ever think of yourself, Pat?" asked Maris as she got the butter and water from the ice box.

Pat smiled. "Well, isn't that what we're here for?" she answered gaily, and looking at her, Maris realized why she had made such a success of her job as telephone operator at the Vanguard Hotel. The management was crazy about her, and she could have had it lots easier, but she was a beaver for work.

Pat was a light girl, with laughing hazel eyes and masses of blue-black hair that curled naturally about her shell-like ears and smooth forehead. She was engaged to Jimmy Doyle, and Maris had a sneaking idea they were waiting to be married after they knew what she, Maris, was going to do.

"It's too bad Rod missed this," said Pat. "I really got the duck because he said he was hungry for one."

"Oh, he'll get over that, and lots of other things!" Maris spoke lightly.

But she could not deceive Patsy, who exclaimed, "Look here, Maris, I know it's none of my business, but since you've been working at Fayson's you've been different. Come on, spill the beans."

"There aren't any to be spilled." "Sure you're not interested in some of their smart salesmen?"

Maris smiled a Mona Lisa smile, and she crumbled a roll without answering. Then she glanced up brightly. "Oh, no!" was all she remarked.

"Seems to me you've been all excited since you told me young Fayson had started to work for his dad and was going to revolutionize the piece good business." "Well, Stanley Fayson's certainly some bright boy," con-

AT THE LYRIC
 Today and Saturday "One Man Law"
 Sunday, Monday and Tuesday "White Fang"
 Wednesday and Thursday "Along Came Love"

"Public Enemy's Wife"
 Those past masters of "G-Man" pictures, Warner Bros. come through with another smash in this saga of crooks, federal policeman and love. Although lighter in vein, many new twists and a goodly dash of comedy rates it a place among the top rankers of films in this popular category. Margaret Lindsay, wife of a kidnaper sentenced to life, is released from prison where she has spent three years, although innocent. Her husband, Cesar Romeo, swears he will escape and kill any man who enters her life. She divorces him and becomes engaged to a prominent socialite. Romero escapes through an ingenious ruse. The socialite learns of his betrothed's past and walks out. A fake wedding is staged with G-Man, Pat O'Brien substituting for the groom in an effort to lure the killer. O'Brien falls for the girl and wins her.

"Rhythm on the Range"
 Bing Crosby has crooned to blondes, brunettes, to red-heads and platinum-tops, to old and young women of every shade of coloring and every age. But in this film he enters an entirely new field. Bing croons to a prize-winning bull; and the bull likes it. The film is the riotously mad tale of a cow-hand who puts all money he wins at a New York rodeo into the purchase of a bull, then rides back to the West in a box car with the bull and a stowaway. The stowaway is Frances Farmer cast as an Eastern socialite who at the last minute runs away from the man she is to marry and heads by the Crosby box car—for her aunt's ranch. Bob Burns, the bazooka-playing radio comedian who has told all the world about his Van Buren, Arkansas relations, is Bing's pal in the picture. He, too, gets involved in a transcendental romance—with Martha Raye, new screen comedienne who storms through her role with a dynamite delivery of lines and an endless torturing of her vastly flexible face.

"Under Two Flags"
 Telling the story of a man who is brought back from a self-imposed doom by the love of a woman, the picture affords Ronald Coleman and Claudette Colbert the greatest opportunities of their unusual screen careers. She is a boyish child of the desert, madly in love with the charming Coleman, but he in turn gives his heart to Rosalind Russell. When Coleman's commander, Victor McLaglen, finds that his soldier stands between him and Miss Colbert, he makes every effort to destroy his subordinate by placing him in posts of danger. The thundering climax shows how a Legion attack, headed by Miss Colbert rescues Coleman from the tortures of the Arabs.

"Pigskin Parade"
 A boisterous, riotous story of college cut-ups, campus cuties, football, romance and song. The entire cast is great in their respective roles. "Stu Erwin," Jack Haley and Patsy Kelly are terrifically funny, while Johnny Downs, Arline Judge, Betty Garble, Anthony Martin, Dixie Danbar and Judy Garland provide fast-moving, flip-cracking collegiate romance. The Yatch Club Boys, stop the show with their hilarious numbers as they turn the tiger loose.

 Yea for Youth! Laughing, singing, dancing, swinging in this rollicking comedy of laughs, laughs and laughs.

"One Man Law"
 Sheriff Buck Jones finds himself in a tight when he has to turn out of their homes his dearest friends and decide in favor of newcomers, who held titles to the property. It looked like Streeter, the promoter, who had sold them the property, but had withheld the titles, was a pretty sick article. Buck's close association with Streeter, who had professed to be his friend, now worked against him, and the feeling of distrust against Streeter includes Buck. The old settlers become openly hostile, are ready to fight for their rights. How Buck straightens out this mixed-up affair and rights himself in the eyes of the older settlers and his sweetheart, who believed the worst of him along with the others, makes up fast action drama.

"White Fang"
 Jean Muir and her brother, Thomas Beck, are bequeathed a gold mine. They go North and persuade Michael Whalen to guide them through the dangerous country. Whalen agrees to lead Beck, but insists the girl remain behind. The rigors of the trail are too much for Beck and he goes mad. Whalen falls in the snow and is saved from a savage wolf-pack by a magnificent dog who accepts him as master. A wandering party rescue Whalen but Beck's body is later discovered with a bullet through the skull and Whalen is accused of murder. Miss Muir, torn between love for the adventurer and fear that he is her brother's murderer, and "White Fang" the dog, are Whalen's only chance of escape. A whirlwind of exciting events climaxes this great outdoor romance.

1937 CHEVROLET HAS COMPLETELY NEW LINE CARS

Prices for the new Chevrolet passenger cars for 1937 were announced November 16, by W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, upon his arrival for the National Automobile Show, in New York.

It was revealed that for 1937 Chevrolet would have a completely new line of cars, incorporating one wheelbase and with identically the same appearance. Heretofore, there have been two distinctively different lines of cars with two lengths of wheelbase and quite a wide variance of specifications.

Prices of the Master Deluxe models remain approximately the same as those of the 1936 cars. The popular coach and town sedan models have been reduced $5, while the four-door sedan and the sport sedan prices remain unchanged. The coupe and sport coupe are the only models to be increased in price and these only $5 over the 1936 levels.

Prices of the Master Deluxe Chevrolet now cover features formerly offered as optional at extra cost, including knee-action, safety plate glass all around, fenders in color matching the body, and larger tires. The individual model prices are as follows:

Coach, $598; sedan, $660; town sedan, with trunk, $620; sport sedan, with trunk, $685; business coupe, $588; sport coupe, with rumble seat, $615.

The list prices of the Master Chevrolet, which also include the added equipment except knee-action, are uniformly $60 under the Master Deluxe prices.

Body models in the Master Deluxe and Master lines are of the same except that the Master cabriolet with rumble seat takes the place of a sport coupe in the Deluxe line. The Master wheelbase is 3 1/4 inches longer than that of the 1936 models and this model also includes as standard equipment synchro-mesh transmission, larger tires, safety plate glass and fenders in color to match the body.

Both models are completely new in engine, chassis and bodies, and are identical in design with the exception of knee-action and special features of Production schedules on the new Chevrolet for 1937 have been stepped up sharply in order to meet a nationwide demand for the new car, officials revealed at Detroit, Michigan.

More than 5,000 units are being built daily and schedules will be put up to 6,000 a day to meet requirements of pre-announcement orders now in dealers' hands.

Father and Son Banquet

Plans were made for the Father and Son banquet at the regular F. F. A. meeting Wednesday, November 11th. Date set for the affair was Tuesday, December 8. A prominent speaker from the state staff of vocational agriculture will likely be present while toastmaster for the occasion will be Ellis Lee, local and district chapter president. Food is to be furnished by chapter members and will be prepared and served by the Winters high school department of Home Economics. The boys plan to entertain 120 guests which will be the largest Future Farmer banquet to be staged in Winters. The following committees were appointed by the president to complete plans for the affair: Program committee: Harold Watson, Afton Hudson, R. Q. Marks, Frank Brown. Welcoming guests: Ewing Wheelless, Donald Sowell, Conny Berry. Publicity: Franz Belitz, Afton Hudson, Eugene Hope. Serving: Weldon Mills, Ciriano Chavarria, T. J. Adams. Menu: Merle Proctor, Conny Berry, J. B. Guy. Table Preparations: Monroe Overman, Walter Onken, Rufus Williams. Financing: Merle Proctor, Weldon Mills, Leland Mills. Invitations: Franz Belitz, Cecil Vinson, Willis Davis.

String Band

The Winters Future Farmers are organizing a string band. Instruments thus far include Violin, Guitar, Mandolin, Banjo, Harmonica, and Jews Harp. Merle Proctor has been elected as leader for the boys.

Projects

Eighteen registered pigs were purchased last Saturday from Price Self of Tuscola by the local chapter. This brings the total number of pigs on feed at this time to 37. Seven registered gilts were included in the number. A registered Hampshire male will be owned by Monroe Overman. The boys are expecting a larger daily gain on their pigs this year than ever before. The ration is one used by a very prominent feeder and includes: Tankage, cottonseed meal, and wheat shorts mixed equal parts by weight and fed with skim milk. Grain will be fed in self feeders, free choice.

Calves and lambs have been dehorned the past two weeks by the boys. Three Future Farmers filled trench silos the past week. Cecil Vinson put ten tons of feed in a trench 45 feet long, 5 feet wide, and three feet deep. He plans to feed silage to his beef calf and six lambs, while his father will also use a portion of the feed for dairy cows. Weldon and Leland Mills also filled a trench silo with a capacity of twelve tons. A larger trench is being filled by W. S. Proctor with the assistance of Merle and Gerald Proctor, vocational students. This silo has a capacity of 75 tons. Silage will be used in fattening 35 lambs for show and one beef calf.

Members of the chapter are anxious for activity in runing terrace lines. Anyone who has terrace lines to be run are urged to see one of the boys or J. M. Williams, vocational teacher.

Content Chapter

In the Content F. F. A. Chapter there are sixteen members all of which are feeding some form of animal for their Project. The members are as follows: Leroy Pierce, Leroy Coats, Roy Lee Patton, Delbert Jones, Carl Freeman, Bartis Knight, Arvel Lockett, Gilbert Carter, Claude Smith, Caleb Brown, Durward Giles, Carrol Griffin, Minnie Mathus, Amos and Amond Aldridge, and Alfred Ray.

The animals on feed at the present are eleven calves, eight pigs, twelve sheep. We selected these animals from several herds and they represent the very best livestock in this district. We boys worked out rations for these stock from feed grown in Runnels county. The Chapter decided feed must be raised at home and fed to stock to get the greatest profits from feed and livestock. So as a result we have thirty-two acres of feed crops in our projects.

Our program also includes jobs of various kinds to be done during the year. This includes running five miles of terrace lines, culling 100 chickens and digging and filling three trench silos.

NEW 1937 FORDS TO BE DISPLAYED HERE SATURDAY

THE NEW CARS PRESENT MANY OUTSTANDING FEATURES.

A new Ford V-8 for 1937, presenting definite advances in modern streamlined styling, and powered either with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine now in use in more than 3,000,000 motor cars, or a brand new 60 horsepower V-8 "economy" engine, which is a smaller counterpart of its elder brother, is announced by the Ford Motor Company.

The new cars will go on display tomorrow (Saturday) at the Kendrick Motor Co., local Ford dealers. They were shown at Dearborn for the first time last Friday at a meeting of more than 7,000 Ford dealers, the first general rally of Ford dealers from all parts of the United States ever held with Henry Ford, founder, and Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company.

Disclosure of the new lighter "economy" 60 horsepower engine as an optional power plant for the new Ford V-8 for 1937 will set at rest definitely rumors of a new "baby" Ford which have been circulated in the automobile industry for the past several years.

The new cars present many outstanding features, principal among which are:

Two engine sizes, a brand-new 60 horsepower V-8 which makes its first bow in the American motor car market, and the famous 85 horsepower V-8, with a number of important refinements. Either is available in the single chassis.

New cable-and-conduit control "soft easy action" brakes, with the "safety of steel from pedal to wheel."

New body lines in which the "tear drop" form has been used wherever practical.

A de luxe five-passenger club coupe is the newest of the eleven body types available, five either with or without de luxe equipment and with either engine size, six with de luxe equipment and the 85 horsepower V-8 engine only. All closed body types have clear-vision ventilation system.

All-steel body, including new all-steel top, as well as steel structure, steel panels and all-steel floor.

Improved "finger-tip" steering, with increased wheel leverage.

Increased comfort, including new quietness of operation.

The new car, according to those who previewed it at the Ford dealer meeting in Detroit last week, is the most beautiful Ford ever built. Its sleek lines flow without a break from the smart radiator grille, through the new shield-type hood, the new slanting V-type windshield and the smoothly moulded steel top to the graceful reverse curve of the rear quarter.

The interior treatment is modern. Upholstery is pillowed, with wide pleats. Seats are wide, deep and soft-cushioned. The instrument panel is grained, with the dials and engine controls in front of the driver. Glove compartment is at the right side. Starter button is on the dash, the hand brake at the left under the panel, out of the way of front seat passengers.

From a mechanical standpoint the most important development in the new Ford is the 60 horsepower V-8 engine. Although new to America, it has been built in England and France for more than a year for Ford cars designed for the European market. There it has been an outstanding success.

The engine was developed primarily to give the American motoring public maximum fuel economy. Its introduction marks an important deviation from the continuous trend during recent years toward higher horsepower and extreme performance. It permits a lighter car with resulting greater economy. Equipped with the engine, the car's top speed, is about 70 miles an hour, compared with 60 in the smaller unit.

Twenty-six boys from Winters, Tuscola and Bradshaw were initiated for Future Farmers degree.

Our area supervisor was also present Wednesday night and told us of some future business that we could look forward to. I am glad to report that we have three new members: Bud Wheeler, Bennie Jacob and Louis Tomlinson. These three members make our F. F. A. Chapter total twenty-nine.

Bride-Elect Is Given Shower By Baptist Group

A surprise shower was given for Miss Joyce Henslee whose approaching marriage to Mr. W. J. Morgan was recently announced, when the Fiedlis Sunday school class of the First Baptist Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cooke Tuesday evening with Miss Mattie Cooke as hostess.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Miss Marie Hill, and roll call was answered by quotations on Charity. Friends were revealed and new friends were drawn for the next three months.

Following the meeting the gifts were presented to the honoree in a very clever fashion. Clues from clever verses gave the honoree an idea as to what the package contained and she was required to name each gift before being permitted to open them.

A dainty salad plate with mint love birds and orange blossoms as favors were passed to the following members: Misses Joyce Henslee, Marie Hill, Loye Kornegay, Katherine Hill, Mittie Lou Carlisle, Marie Lambert, Eunice Polk, Mayme Gregory, Ima Gene Davis, Ann Catherine Cooper, Vera Boone, Rhee McDonald, Fannie Lou Stokes and the hostess.

Little Things

Every day is made up of a multitude of little things. They may be only details, but they play an important part in the life of every one of us.

The Winters State Bank gives particular attention to the little things which enable you to transact your business with more convenience and with greater pleasure. There is always a personal element in our dealings with depositors . . . and no detail is ever too small to be regarded as unimportant.

ASSISTANCE GIVEN 1,098 FAMILIES IN TEXAS FLOOD DIS.

TOTAL EXPENDITURES OF RED CROSS WAS $141,915.00.

The American Red Cross early this week completed rehabilitation work among the 9,000 victims of the Concho valley and Brazos river floods of late September. This announcement was made today by Wm. M. Baxter, Jr., the agency's midwestern area manager, who placed total Red Cross expenditures at $141,915. Of this amount $47,277 was subscribed by Texas citizens, the remainder being appropriated by the National Red Cross.

Driving thousands of families from their homes when it left it banks on September 17, the Concho river seriously flooded parts of five counties. Two-thirds of the damage, however, was confined to San Angelo, where 800 homes were demolished or damaged by the flood. At Lampasas 200 residents were struck. Altogether 1,098 families turned to the Red Cross for assistance in this disaster, Baxter said.

Waco bore the brunt of the Brazos river flood of September 27. Falls county also felt the effects of this overflow, but damage was not heavy. The Red Cross helped 1,057 families, most of whom resided in Waco. Since only 170 homes were seriously damaged, the task or rehabilitation was not as heavy as in the Brazos river flood. Baxter pointed out. Here the relief agency cooperated with the State Health Department in an immunization program.

In a statement to the 236 Red Cross chapters in Texas, Gov. James V. Allred last week called upon the citizenship to support the national organization in its November 11 to 26 Roll Call. His office cooperated closely with the Red Cross throughout both disaster operations.

"As you know," said Gov. Allred, "the existence of the Red Cross is dependent upon individual membership, enrolled annually during the organization's Roll Call. The objective this fall for Texas is 154,000 members. Attainment of this goal calls for a substantial increase over last year's enrollment, which totaled 120,426. Not only as governor of our state, but also as an individual citizen, I sincerely hope that no effort will be spared in keeping the Red Cross at full strength by the achievement of our state membership objective."

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Cotton undies have hit a new high—two new highs, in fact—one in color, one in style, and as far as the younger set is concerned at least, silk can retire. We certainly can't blame the girls or their older sisters, for that matter, for raving about batiste nighties in bright blue, red, brown, aqua and black that pretend to be as demure as anything, what with their little-girl collars, halter necklines or pleated bosom fronts, like a man's dress shirt, even to the colored studs.

The modest front that they put up belies the nakedness of their startling decolette evening gown backs and very full dance frock skirts. Incidentally, it is the blacks that the young things are snatching up with greatest plee. For those who cling to femininity in their night attire there are printed dimity nightgowns trimmed with val type lace, also pajamas and robes. Another nightie we saw was of very fine imported batiste, tucked and trimmed with hand-finished lace insertion and boasts a very elegant swishy lace flounce. Very romantic with its low neck, puffed sleeves, full skirt and a pink sash that hangs down the front.

Frivolity aside, here is real news. The old-fashioned chemise is back and with good reason, as anyone who has tried to appear nonchalant in some of the lighter-weight culottes has found out to her discomfort. Slips are definitely out of the question; panties quite inadequate. So we have a polka batiste chemise, its top cut like a brassiere. There are panties and nightgowns to match.

Handkerchief-linen lingerie is grand, too, and you will find slips, the culottes petticoat, which is, of course, divided; straight petticoats and another old-timer, the camisole. This has come back to wear under sheer bodices. These come in pastels or high shades with contrasting piping.

The people who manufacture spectacles and those who fit them to our eyes owe a debt to the printing trade. Spectacles are believed to have been worn in ancient times both in China and in the lands about the Mediterranean. Apparently the ancient use was forgotten and in the 13th century Roger Bacon suggested the usefulness of convex lenses in reading. However, there was not much reading and so little demand for spectacles until the 15th century when printing was invented. Then the demand for spectacles grew as a direct result of this invention. But the science of correcting eyesight was slow in developing and some of our greatest thinkers and writers probably were handicapped because of it. For example, it seems likely in view of what

Let Your Rent Buy You a Home!

It is no longer true that "it is cheaper to rent than to own a home."

Your rent during the next ten years will buy you a nice home, . . . now is the time for real bargains.

For example: A 5 room modern home, near school, for $100 down; balance $18.70 per month. This house will probably average renting for $22.50 per month during the next few years.

FRANK PARKER STOOKBRIDGE

KING human nature
Edward VIII became King of England on the death of his father, George V, without even a mild protest from those of his subjects who still believe that the throne belongs by right to the family of Stuart. Less than 200 years ago, in 1746, the last battle fought on British soil resulted in the defeat of the army led by Charles Edward Stuart the "Young Pretender" grandson of King James II, who had been deposed and banished in 1688.

Until 1901, when the present King's grandfather succeeded his mother Queen Victoria, there was a constant fear in England of another "Jacobite Rising" to put the House of Stuart back on the throne. Fingerbolls were long banned at important public banquets, lest some secret adherent to Stuart cause, in drinking the toast "to the King" should hold his wine glass over the fingerbowl and so drink to "The King over the water."

In late years the Jacobites have contented themselves with gathering at the statue of Charles I in Trafalgar Square on January 20 each year denouncing the reigning monarch as a usurper. This year, however, they postponed the denunciation to March 27, so as not to annoy the mourners for King George V.

Some of my Canadian friends tell me that their Jacobite "Society of the White Rose," has a jolly time at their annual dinners, denying the claim to the British throne of the monarch at whose call they would all go out and fight for the Empire.

WOMEN bonus
Nobody knows exactly how many American women took an actual part in the World War, but there were more than 14,500 of them regularly enlisted in the military and naval services of the United States, who are entitled to a bonus on the same basis as the men who served. They are mostly members of the Army Nurse Corps, enlisted nurses who served in the Navy hospitals, and survivors of that interesting corps of young women who were given the rating of "Yeoman" in the Navy, and went through the war in uniforms, doing clerical work in the Navy Department in Washington and at the various naval bases. Probably fully as many women did war service overseas in the volunteer organizations, such as the Red Cross, Y. W. C. A., Salvation Army and the rest, and several times as many were engaged in war work on this side; but only the ones who were on Uncle Sam's payroll are due for the bonus.

Folks who have the idea that all women are pacifists, don't remember America the last time we went to war.

WEALTH needs watching
When young John Jacob Aster III quit his $25 a week job with the steamship line of which his half-brother, Vincent Aster, is vice-president, a lot of people spoke sneeringly of the "idle rich," jumping to the conclusion that the young man was nothing but a "playboy" after all. But to me his explanation that the 48 hours of work every week took up so much of his time that he couldn't attend to his personal business affairs properly, sounds quite reasonable.

"In times like these," he said, "you have to watch things pretty closely." He has had to learn young that it is easier to make money than to keep it. Heir to one of the largest fortunes in America, he has discovered that everybody is trying to take it away from him, and that he has to do his own watching, instead of leaving the guardianship of his property to hired men.

I know a number of wealthy men. Most of them work harder at the job of keeping their wealth from slipping away from them than the rest of us do in trying to make a little more.

HOUSING for poor
I've been hearing a lot of talk about low-cost housing for the poor, but I haven't seen anything tangible, so far, that convinces me that new homes can be built with high-priced labor, at a cost that will enable the lowest-paid workers to pay the necessary rent. They've done it in England by buying cheap farm land a long way from town, and paying building trade workers about one-third the wages they get in America. I've seen some of the European low-cost housing develop-

RAMBLING 'ROUND NEW YORK

with HUGH KENNY

The chewing gum industry has made work, not only for jaws, but for the men we saw in the Fourteenth Street station of the Independent subway-scraping gum from the platforms And Wall Street sidewalks are carefully groomed by scrapers employed by the money magnets, too!

There are 2900 members of the New York police who have had their blood classified, and stand ready to donate it for transfusions whenever called for. Two hundred and three were called on during 1934.

They are all based on land values far below ours, lower labor costs and remission of all taxes on lands and buildings for twenty years or more. Even then, the very poor can't afford to live in them.

It seems more reasonable to me to encourage the modernizing of old houses for the use of the lowest-income groups, and the building of new homes for the ones who can afford to live in them.

GLARE killed
Every motorist knows that the chief danger in night driving is the dazzling glare from the headlights of cars one meets on the roads.

A young Boston scientist, Edwin Land, has developed a new transparent material for headlights and windshields which is said to eliminate this dangerous glare entirely. The principle of "polarizing" light has long been known, but up to now it has required expensive apparatus to reduce light beams to a single plane, and so, as it were, take out the dazzle.

I hope young Mr. Land's invention will do all that is claimed for it. I like to drive at night, but I dread it more and more, as cars multiply, speed increases and headlights get brighter.

Add to your list of poseurs, the people who drive up in one of those town cars priced in five figures, and only pretend that they own them. They may have come from the Rolls Renting Company—which seems to be making a bid with greater swank, for some of the business that the sixteen cylinder Cadillacs have been getting.

One of the funniest of this crazy New York's neurotics is the husband of a newly famous actress, an artist. He got the idea so thoroughly fixed that he had a bad heart, that he developed the habit of reading obituaries, and nearly fainted each time he read of anyone near his own age dying of heart failure.

A bilious attack sent this New York artist to the doctor. Three days of highly scientific tests showed him physically perfect. Then he realized he had forgotten to tell the doctor something. Having mixed the yolks of eight eggs with his tempera colors, he couldn't bear to see the whites wasted, so drank them all at once! . . . The doctor nearly knocked him down.

Diamond Dan O'Rourke who used to run the biggest and best saloon in the Bowery is considering reopening for business. He hasn't sold a drink there since the long dry spell set in. But before that it was the rendezvous of James J. Jefferies, Bob Fitzsimmons, William A. Brady, Tim Sullivan and Steve Brodie who won the saloon of O'Rourke's rival, Chuck Connors, when he jumped off Brooklyn Bridge—(if he did jump).

It's a fact...
BREAD IS NEARLY 100% DIGESTIBLE!!

CRISPY CRUMB SCRAMBLED EGGS

- 1 cup soft bread-crumbs
- 3 strips bacon
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 5 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon salt
- few grains black pepper

Cut bacon into small pieces and heat in frying pan. As soon as bacon is heated through, add bread-crumbs; cook until bacon and crumbs are crisp and brown, stirring frequently. Beat eggs, add milk and seasonings. Remove bacon crumb mixture from frying pan and keep warm. Melt butter in pan, add beaten eggs and cook slowly, stirring eggs up from bottom of pan as they cook. When eggs are nearly done, add crumb mixture, mix well and serve at once. Serves 4.

WHEN you eat Bread, you are eating a food that is nearly 100% digestible and nearly 100% assimilated . . . a food that is all edible, practically all utilizable for nourishment.

Famous scientists and nutrition experts recently completed a series of laboratory tests to find out the true facts about Bread. The fact that Bread is nearly 100% digestible was established beyond a doubt.

If you have been wondering about the digestibility of Bread, science now gives you the correct answer—"Bread is nearly 100% digestible!"

ball back to the 35-yard line where Ramsel snatched it and ran back to the 21. Four plays divided between Ramsel and Partain took it to the six-yard line. On the last down Partain passed to Rogers across the goal line. A pass from Partain to Rogers was incomplete for the extra point.

Smith opened the cage door for the Wildcats upon taking the kickoff of the second half on his own 10-yard line and heeled through all eleven Blizzards to take it to within eight yards of the coveted flag line where he tripped himself, but he was not denied pay. After a futile attempt to advance by Hooper, Smith plunged the line twice to place it one and a half yards away and in a last trip went over. His kick was low for the conversion. Pepped by their first blood, the Wildcats became a clawing, raging group of lads that threatened to calm the locals. Their advances took them twice to within striking distance but each time the Blizzards turned them back, despite lengthy squirming runs by Zellars, Smith and Hooper. It was late in the last frame before the Blizzards succeeded in checking them.

Winters was denied a touch-down in the last few seconds of play. When a linesman drew an off-sides penalty, the ball had been carried over from the one yard line by Ramsel. The game ended after another unsuccessful stab. The first downs were 11 and 9 in favor of Winters.

Coleman Tonight

The Blizzards go to Coleman today where this evening at 7:30 o'clock they will take on the Coleman Bluecats in a conference game and at which time they will again attempt to retain their standing at the head of the percentage column as the only undefeated and untied team in the district.

The Blizzards will be without the services of their regular left guard, Clois Mapes, who suffered a broken collar bone in scrimmage Tuesday and will be out for the balance of the season. His place will be filled by Belitz, Hodge, fullback, is still suffering with a leg injury, and it is doubtful if he will see much service in tonight's game.

Dope Upset

Ballinger's Bearcats upset the old dope bucket Armistice day when they nudged out Cross Plains by the close score of 7 to 6. It now looks like the two Runnels county teams will stage a game on November 20th at Ballinger, which will either determine the district championship winner or provide a three-way tie for the top.
