Charles Gonzales, charged with rape; case dismissed on motion of the district attorney. The cases of Leola Clayburn, charged with assault and battery, and Lee White, charged with simple assault, were transferred to justice court of Precinct 5, this city.

Prosecutions were conducted by W. A. Stroman, district attorney. All suspended cases were given by juries.

Herschel Baxter Accidentally Shot While Hunting

Herschel Baxter was painfully wounded Thursday morning when a companion's gun accidentally discharged sending the bullets through Baxter's side. He was immediately brought to a legal physician's office and one of the bullets was removed. X-Ray pictures were taken in an effort to locate the other bullet. Baxter, 17 years old, was with a party on a hunting trip when the accident occurred. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Baxter who reside two miles south of Winters, on the Crews farm. His condition is not thought to be serious.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McAdams are announcing the arrival of a baby girl on November 30.

Mrs. M. G. Roper, who is a patient in a San Angelo hospital, was reported Thursday to be improving nicely.

BAPTIST CHURCH TO OBSERVE ALL CHURCH WEEK HERE

"All Church Week" is to be observed at the First Baptist Church here beginning Monday evening continuing throughout the entire week.

Each evening from 7 o'clock to 8 o'clock a study and fellowship hour will be open to all members of the church. The book to be used was written by State Secretary, Dr. R. C. Campbell.

Friday night a church banquet will be given by the W. M. S. and an out of town speaker will bring a brief message. Every member of the church is urged to be present at each hour.

Please give this coming "All Church Week" your due consideration and bring your spirit of good will along to help others, stated Rev. W. T. Hamor, pastor of the local church.

MRS. M. A. SHIREY WAS LAID TO REST HERE YESTERDAY

DIED AT HOME OF HER DAUGHTER WEDNESDAY.

Mrs. Margaret Ann Shirey passed away at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. L. Johnson, in this city. Although in feeble health for the past few years, she had enjoyed reasonably good health until only a few days before her death.

Mrs. Shirey was born in Marion county, Alabama, July 18, 1858, and was married to W. N. Shirey, September 20, 1877, in her native state, the couple coming to Texas in 1893, locating near Mineola where they lived until his death in 1914. Since that time Mrs. Shirey had been making her home with her daughters, Mrs. S. L. Johnson of this city, and Mrs. W. F. Spann of Oklahoma. Deceased made a profession of faith at the age of 15 in Alabama, and held membership in the local Baptist church at the time of her passing.

Seven children were born of this union, five of whom survive. They are Mrs. C. W. Bishop, Beaumont; Mrs. W. F. Spann of Maysville, Okla.; and Mrs. S. L. Johnson, Winters; two sons, B. B. Shirey, Carbon; W. G. Shirey, Midland. Twenty-four grandchildren and four great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church, conducted by Rev. W. T. Hamor, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment at Main Street cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PIONEER HELD AT 11 O'CLOCK

UNCLE HAMP VANCIL TO BE BURIED HERE THIS MORNING.

Funeral services for "Uncle Hamp" Vancil, 85 year-old pioneer will be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the graveside in the Fairview cemetery with Rev. J. W. Joiner, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. The deceased passed away about noon at the home of Walter Young in Buffalo Gap. The funeral procession will leave Buffalo Gap today about ten o'clock.

Uncle Hamp, as he was familiarly known here was a resident of Winters for many years and his numerous friends regret his passing.

Mrs. George Lloyd, Buck Smith, Addie Busby and Miss Carrie Hoots of the Pumphrey community attended the B. T. U. meeting at the Winters Baptist church Tuesday night and heard Rev. Stephens of Ranger.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Odell are announcing the arrival of a baby boy on November 25.

PIONEER CITIZEN PASSES AWAY AT HATCHEL ON 20TH

HAD BEEN RESIDENT OF THIS COUNTY SINCE NINETEEN-TEN.

Ernest Graves passed away suddenly at his home near Hatchel Friday, November 20, after being in declining health for about a year suffering with heart disease, however, his death was very unexpected. He had been up and about his farm work on the morning of his death.

Deceased was born in Robertson County, Texas, April 18, 1866, moving from Glen Cove, Coleman county, to this county in 1910, locating near Hatchel. He was married to Miss Hattie Guin in 1919 and the couple had resided on their farm one mile north of Hatchel continuously since that date.

Mr. Graves was a member of the Hatchel Church of Christ, and was held in the highest esteem, not only by the people of the Hatchel community, but by the people of the entire county, as he was widely known.

Deceased is survived by his widow, two daughters, Corrine and Willa Bell, two brothers, Joe Graves of Ballinger and Merrill Graves of Hatchel. Four sisters survive: Mrs. Key Williams, Mrs. C. L. Reagan and Miss Rosa Lee Graves, all of Hatchel, and Mrs. H. O. Andrews of Ballinger.

Services were held at the Hatchel Church of Christ Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Elder G. B. Shelburne, Jr., of Abilene. Interment at Old Runnels cemetery.

Pallbearers were E. M. Moore, Chas. Michaelis, L. M. Bales, Hugh Forgy, Eddie Voelker, and Mr. Stanley. Ladies assisting with the large floral tribute were Misses Tenie Goetz, Edna Guin, Mesdames Albert Davis, Chas. Michaelis, E. Gray, Ima Ryan, A. G. Hoppe and Austin Williams.

LOCAL CHILDREN INJURED IN CAR WRECKS RECENTLY

ARGENE HODGE TAKEN TO MEMORIAL HOSPITAL THURS.

Argene Hodge, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hodge had the misfortune to fall out of a fast-moving automobile Sunday afternoon in which he was riding with his mother and Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Nesmith.

The accident happened near Jayton when the little boy accidentally opened the door when he had intended to lower the window. He was taken to the Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene for medical attention, and was returned to his home here late Monday afternoon.

His condition had been quite favorable until late yesterday afternoon he became worse and was immediately taken back to the Hendrick Memorial.

June Wilkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Wilkinson suffered a slight head injury Friday when the car in which she was riding with relatives overturned near Tyler. She was taken to the nearest hospital and several stitches were taken in the wound. June, however, was able to attend school Monday and is getting along nicely.

Health Nurse to Be At Victory Today

Miss Beulah White, Runnels county health nurse, and Dr. Stasney, Ballinger dentist, will be at the Victory School this afternoon (Friday) at 3 o'clock, for the purpose of giving health examinations to the school children.

All patrons of the school that are interested in the welfare of the school children are urged to be present.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Orian Baxter on November 26.

ELLIS LEE, V. A. BOY, TALKS TO THE LIONS CLUB TUES.

Principal speakers at Tuesday's Lions Club luncheon was Ellis Lee, member of the Vocational Agriculture class of the Winters High School. Young Lee's talk was very interesting, as he told of the projects of the members of the class and work being done by the local F. F. A. chapter. Miss Selma Chammond, local high school student, gave a reading, which was enjoyed by the club.

Supt. E. D. Stringer briefly reported on the recent meeting of the State Teachers' Association at Fort Worth, and also took opportunity to announce that in the near future different business men of the city would be invited to address high school students at morning assembly periods.

Louis Johnson was in charge of the program.

After round table discussion on Christmas activities, club president, C. L. Green, appointed the following committee to have charge of the Santa Claus parade on the morning of Saturday, December 12: Jno. Q. McAdams, Geo. C. Hill, Roy Mack, Homer Hodge and A. J. McDaniel.

Lions Kendrick and Lambert will have charge of the Lions Club program during the next two weeks.

E. D. STRINGER IS APPOINTED HEAD RUNNELS CO. MEET

SCHOOL EVENTS WILL BE STAGED IN WINTERS.

Directors for the Runnels County Interscholastic League were named at a meeting held in the office of County Superintendent E. C. Grindstaff at Ballinger last week. E. D. Stringer, superintendent of the Winters schools, was named director general.

Other appointments announced were:

Director of declamation, O. L. Conger, Norton.

Director of debate, J. I. Warren, Miles.

Director of extemporaneous speaking, George Stowe, Ballinger.

Director of spelling, Mrs. Foy Davis, Winters.

Director of ready writers, Miss Wynis Greer, Ballinger.

Director of rural schools, E. C. Grindstaff, Ballinger.

Director of Athletics, Bob Fulkerson, Winters.

The above will also compose the executive committee for the county organization, while the following will serve in special capacities only:

Director of music memory, Mrs. H. H. Shiller, Groenwald.

Director of picture memory, C. H. Robertson, Dale.

Director of typing, Mrs. Jackson, Winters.

Director of number sense, J. H. McCroskey, Miles.

Director of choral singing, Miss Marie Hill, Winters.

Director of story telling, Mrs. W. A. Bridwell, Ballinger.

Director of one-act plays, Mrs. Phil Davidson, Winters.

Director of 3-R contest, W. C. Bryan, Blanton.

The executive committee in session at Ballinger Tuesday definitely decided to hold the school activities in Winters this year and set the date for the rural events for March 12 and 13, and those of class A and class B schools for the following week-end, March 19 and 20.

Addition of several events during the last few years and an increase in the number of contestants, causing a congestion of contests, was given as the reason for splitting the meet over two week-ends.

Tennis preliminaries are to be played off before the meet, leaving only final matches for the two days in each section. Bob Fulkerson of Winters, athletic director, was given authority to select a place and set a date for the basketball tournament to be held in February.

BLIZZARDS LEFT YESTERDAY FOR STEPHENVILLE

GAME THIS AFTERNOON ON THE TARLETON FIELD.

In private automobiles furnished with drivers by Messrs. Joe Mapes, H. J. Hodge, R. F. Baker, Grady Flynt and L. E. Hamilton, Coaches Bob Fulkerson and Amon Johnson left yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock with the Blizzards football squad, numbering twenty-two men, for Stephenville where they meet the Stephenville Yellowjackets for bi-district honors.

Coach Bob Fulkerson said yesterday afternoon just before he departed for Stephenville that all his men were in excellent condition for the game, and that Fullback Hodge, who has been suffering with a leg injury, was in the best condition he had been in for the past three or four weeks. Continuing, Fulkerson said: "We expect to find the Yellowjackets plenty tough, but the Blizzards expect to give everything they have to win this game."

Quite a number of Winters fans will leave today in time to reach Stephenville for the game.

It was announced yesterday that officials for the game would be Eck Curtis, referee; Vidol Colley, umpire, and Mike Brumblow, head linesman.

J. B. RUTLAND TO SPEAK TO V. A. BOYS AT BANQUET HERE

IS STATE SUPERVISOR OF VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE.

J. B. Rutland, state supervisor of Vocational Agriculture, will be the principal speaker when the Winters Chapter of Future Farmers stages its annual Father and Son banquet next Tuesday night, Dec. 8.

Approximately one hundred and twenty-five persons will attend, including fathers, sons, business men, teachers, and out of town guests. Ellis Lee, president of the local and district F. F. A. Chapters, will preside as Toastmaster.

Food will be supplied by the boys and prepared and served by the Home Economics Department under the direction of Miss Lucille Galloway, instructor.

The Winters chapter feels highly honored in having such a distinguished speaker for this annual affair. Mr. Rutland has been with the state department a number of years in the capacity of Supervisor and State F. F. A. Advisor. He is an excellent speaker and a man who understands the problems that are confronting the farm boy of today.

MOTHER OF MRS. S. W. COOPER DIED IN COLEMAN ON FRIDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. W. G. Thomas, native of Texas, born December 14, 1851, were conducted at the First Baptist church in Anson last Friday afternoon with the Rev. O. L. Savage of Coleman conducting, assisted by Rev. W. T. Hamor, pastor of the local Baptist Church here.

In her 85th year, Mrs. Thomas died at Coleman Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. W. Cooper, from the effects of burns sustained recently. She had been a resident of Coleman for five years. She was the widow of Judge W. G. Thomas, the first county judge of Fisher county. She had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Cooper for the past 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are former residents of this city. Mr. Cooper being Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce several years ago.

Salvation Army To Make Annual Appeal Here Soon

The annual appeal for funds to help carry on the extensive Christian program of the Salvation Army in the Texas Division, will be made here soon. W. D. Pedigo from the headquarters office, who has been making these annual campaigns for many years, will be here to assist in making the canvas, which will be supervised by the county advisory committee.

During the past year in this division 50,000 families have been given assistance and encouraged to better living; jobs have been found for many men and women; more than one hundred girls have been cared for in the maternity homes and hospitals; summer camp vacations have been provided for women and children; and thousands have been won to righteousness. Much of this work is shared by small towns and rural communities. Only one appeal for funds will be made during the year. Any other solicitation will be without authority from the organization.

Elementary School To Have Art Exhibit

An art exhibit will be held in the Elementary School building December 7 to 11 with 150 pictures on display.

The exhibit is being sponsored for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of a picture for the school. A small admission will be charged.

Every one is urged to see the exhibit.

PAINT ROCK AND NORTON TO PLAY AT BALLINGER

CHAMPIONSHIP IS AT STAKE FOR DISTRICT 8-C.

Football fans in this part of the state will have occasion to witness the championship game in District 8-C football when the Paint Rock High School Indians will meet the Norton High School eleven on the Ballinger High School gridiron in Ballinger, tonight at 7:30. This is the final game in this class football for both teams as class C football does not go past the district.

The Norton team is coached by Buck Elkins and is champion of the Western Half of the Conference. Coach Conn Isaacs Redskins took championship honors in the eastern division of the district through a series of undefeated games for the Paint Rock High School.

Earlier in the year these two teams met at Paint Rock and although the score was, in that non-conference game, in favor of the Indians, the Norton team scored 12 first downs to the Braves 5.

An estimated crowd of more than 1000 football fans will see the game if the weather is anything like fair on this night.

Mrs. Elmer Dorset left Monday for a three weeks visit with relatives in Los Angeles, California. She will also visit her daughter in Ajo, Arizona, while away.

Rev. H. H. Stephens of Ranger visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith, Jr., a few days last week.

Mrs. Floyd Smith of Mary Hardin Baylor college at Belton and little daughter, Virginia Clare, spent the Thanksgiving holidays in the A. L. Smith home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Woody of Iraan were week-end guests in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith.

Word has just been received from Old Santa Claus, himself, that he is busy making every preparation and getting his things in order to start South, and this year he will make his personal appearance, heading a large parade on the streets of Winters, Saturday morning, December 12th, promptly at 10:30 o'clock.

Santa will bring with him a host of funny characters, including Laffo and Toto, the clowns, as well as Jumbo, the big elephant, and Peter Rabbit, also Happy, and not forgetting Little Red Riding Hood and the Big Bad Wolf, and he wants all the boys and girls of this section to be on hand to greet him, and what's more, he wishes to impress on the little folks to bring along their letters so that he may pick them up and get their presents and gifts prepared for Christmas.

In closing, he says: "Young and old, big and fat, short and tall boys and girls be on hand to welcome me into your midst, for I will arrive in Winters at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, December 12th."

Winters will be all decorated up for the Christmas holidays by the 12th, and the local merchants will have on hand one of the largest stocks of Christmas merchandise ever carried here.

Shop early for Christmas . . . and in Winters where stocks are large and prices are most reasonable!

WINTERS PIONEER PASSED AWAY HERE AT 2:15 THURSDAY

rites for W. D. VIRDEN TO BE HELD THIS AFTERNOON.

W. D. Virden, 82, resident of this section of Runnels county for the past thirty-four years, passed away at his home here Thursday afternoon at 2:15. He had been in feeble health for several months.

Funeral services will be held from the First Baptist church this (Friday) afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with the pastor, Rev. W. T. Hamor, officiating. Interment will be in the Main Street cemetery.

Mr. Virden was born in Georgia January 26, 1854 and came to Runnels county from Lampasas county in 1904, locating near Winters. He had resided in this section and in Winters since. He was married to Miss Willie Lenora Youngblood in Bell county in 1879. To them were born twelve children, three died in infancy and a daughter, Mrs. Jim Hibbits, died four years ago. His wife passed away March 12, 1912. He made a profession of faith when a young man and united with the Baptist church, holding membership in the Winters Baptist church at the time of his death.

Surviving are the daughters, Mrs. J. H. Bullock, Robstown; Mrs. E. L. Sexton, San Angelo; Mrs. Z. G. Kemp, Robstown; Mrs. A. D. Smith; four sons, J. E. Virden, Wingate; Dave Virden, Winters; Rube Virden, Ballinger and Roy Virden, Robstown. There are twenty-two grandchildren and nine great grandchildren also surviving.

Mrs. Albert Sykes and little daughters, Lenora and Mary Margaret, returned home Sunday after spending several days visiting relatives at Goldthwaite.

Patricia Jennings of Dallas is spending a few days with her grandmother, Mrs. Roxie Floyd.

Ralph Nason ad Miss Marion Mayo, both of Lamesa, were visitors in the home of her father, J. J. Condra, Wednesday, and were accompanied by Miss Alice Condra for a short visit in San Angelo. They returned to Lamesa Thursday morning.

Tuesday and Wednesday "White Hunter"

AT THE LYRIC

Today and Saturday "South of the Rio Grande"
Sunday, Monday and Tuesday "The Accusing Finger"

"Go West Young Man"
Cast as a high-strung movie star whose life is curbed by a clause in her contract, Mae West meets and falls in love with Randolph Scott, an automobile mechanic and inventor on a Pennsylvania farm. Warren William, cast as her press agent, has the unenviable job of seeing to it that she lives up to her contract and the means he employs to insure it add much to the general hilarity of the goings-on. Lyle Talbot is another of the swains bidding for the curvaceous blonde's favor and it is from these three that Mae West ultimately selects her man. Also in the film are Alice Brady, Isabel Jewell, Elizabeth Patterson and Margaret Perry.

"Cain and Mabel"
The story is built around one of the cleverest stories of the late H. C. Witwer and has to do with the adventures, rough-neck and otherwise, of a young prizefighter, Clark Gable, and an ex-waitress, played by Marion Davies, who has become (by the scheming of Roscoe Karns, her manager) star of a dance show. Since Gable's pugilistic encounters are failing to draw the crowds and Marion's show is not up to par, Karns has cooked up the brilliant idea of spreading the names of the two in the headlines everywhere as "Great Lovers." The scheme works but the two hate each other as violently as they pretend to love, when in the public eye. Others seen in the film are Walter Catlett, Wm. Collier, Sr., Ruth Donnelly, Pert Kelton, Robert Midlemass and Joseph Crehan.

"White Hunter"
Warner Baxter is seen as a colorful hunter who accepts a commission to guide a big game expedition through a strangely wild country. Included in the party are Wilfrid Lawson, a powerful munition magnate, Gail Patrick, his wayward wife, and lovely June Lang, his daughter by a former marriage, Allison Skipworth, a shrewish hypochondriac, and George Hassell, her hen-pecked spouse. Baxter meets the group hundreds of miles away from civilization and then discovers that the man he is to guide on the hunt is his bitter enemy, Lawson, who years before had caused his ruin in England and subsequent exile. A tense, hate-laden atmosphere oppresses the entire group as Lawson and Patrick realize they are within Baxter's power. June Lang, who is unaware of the terrible hatred existing between her father and the white hunter, develops a strong attachment for the latter which turns into love when Baxter saves her life.

"The Accusing Finger"
Paul Kelly is in love with Marsha Hunt, his secretary, but cannot marry her because his wife, Bernadene Hayes, refuses to give him a divorce. Kelly and Miss Hunt are confronted in a public restaurant by Miss Hayes and he is overheard threatening her. Later he comes to her home and engages in a spirited argument with her. Several minutes later she is found dead with a bullet, fired from Kelly's gun, in her heart. Kelly tells police there was a burglar in the house but so perfect is the case made out against him by witnesses that he is sentenced to die. Kent Taylor, an investigator, believes in Kelly's innocence. He starts the almost hopeless task of finding the killer. Miss Hunt and Taylor come to love each other during the investigation and it is not an easy task they have to tell Kelly. But they don't have to. Things are worked out perfectly, even to the presence of a clergyman, who is ready to link the girl to the right man forthwith.

How Cardui Helps Women To Build Up

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

MODERN WOMEN

by CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS

President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

It is astonishing how rapidly the women of Brazil are gaining political recognition. Recently Dr. Maria Luiza Bittencourt, doctor of public law of the University of Rio Janeiro, on a visit to the United States, told how the younger women all over the country are working in social activities. "We have eighteen women in the Federal Assembly," said Dr. Bittencourt, who is only twenty-five years old, an ardent feminist and the first Assemblywoman in the State of Bahia, Brazil, "and we have three women mayors in Brazil." She is especially proud of the fact that Para has a woman in the office of secretary of education. South Americans are equally proud of Dr. Bittencourt's services in drafting an entire chapter in the new Constitution of Bahia.

"I propose to make a study of the power of the judicial review of the United States as compared with the higher courts of other democratic countries," is the way Mrs. Charlotte A. Hankin of Washington, D. C., announced her new work. It sounds like an enormous task, but Mrs. Hankin is equal to it for she has made a detailed study of every case before the Supreme Court and every decision rendered by that body. She is one of four American women to receive research fellowships from the American Association of University Women.

One woman who knows what it means to live on Devil's Island, the French penal colony off the coast of French Guiana, is Mil. Irene Peyron, a Major in the Salvation Army. She went there in 1933, where she saw, and now tells about, how the prisoners suffer and are tormented by the terrific heat, insects and fever.

"Hm. Yes," replied her husband, "but I would suggest that if possible you get in a little farther."

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

At the Miami meeting, April 30, of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. H. G. Bogert of Colorado, national conservation chairman, will start a tree planting campaign reaching into every club. In the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Avery Turner of Texas, national chairman of conservation and thrift, has called upon all chapter chairmen to push the program.

In these days when we hear so much about dust storms, floods, and soil erosion causing hundreds of millions of dollars damage, the American people must become tree minded and realize the value of forests in flood prevention. The forests and their products support every industry. Commerce is impossible without these forest products.

Every class in colleges and high schools as well as private institutions, are being asked to plant a tree as a class activity. In the citizenship committees of various organizations, tree planting will be a major activity.

To stimulate interest in tree planting, the American Tree Association has published a very attractive thirty-two page booklet containing the complete Constitution of the United States together with all articles and amendments, and a copy of the original letter of George Washington submitting the Constitution to Congress in 1787. This material comprises one-half the booklet; the balance consists of tree-planting information and suggestions. It is an attractive gift book and it is entirely free. A postal card to the American Tree Association, Washington, D. C., will fetch a copy.

All the gay colors and exotic designs of chintz are incorporated in a new American fabric patterned after the Chinese inspirations. It is washable, colorfast and pre-shrunk, making it ideal for bright summer dresses, sun suits, bathing ensembles and gardening and beach hats.

The phrases "golden" and "silvery tones" have long been stock descriptions used by poets and critics to describe beauty in music. Now, it appears, science and art have co-operated to add a new term to the musical writer's dictionary — "platinum tones." Such, at any rate, is one of the possible results of the introduction by Georges Barrere, world famous flutist, of a solid platinum flute. Made at a cost of $3,000, this instrument is said by musicians and scientists who have heard it to possess tonal qualities superior to those of any other flute ever made.

Experiments at one of the leading universities have shown that potato juice is as rich in vitamins as tomato juice. Peppers, horseradish, parsnips, turnip greens are more powerful sources of vitamin C than orange juice; and cabbage, cress, peas and turnips have about the same amount of the vitamin as orange juice. New methods of estimating the strength of the vitamin content in fruits and vegetables have been discovered. It used to take thirty days with a guinea pig, but now less than an hour is needed.

Household Hint: A small piece of butter added to the water in which vegetables are to be cooked will prevent them from boiling over.

Childbirth was a matter of rather small importance to our forefathers. When Oliver Wendell Holmes, Boston's famous physician, author and wit, was born August 29, 1809, his father treated the event as a mere trifling incident. On the leaf of an old almanac, opposite the date, August 29, the father put an asterisk* and at the foot of the page, "Son b." and that was all.

"Was there any shade in the desert?"
"Yes, but one couldn't get in it."
"Why not?"
"Have you ever tried to sit in your own shadow?"

Make-Believe Bride

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

Synopsis: Maris Trevor is discouraged because Rod O'Rourke spends all his money developing an invention which he hopes will provide an income so that they can marry. Maris thinks they should enjoy the present rather than deny themselves for the future. She becomes uncertain of her love for Rod. Perhaps there would be more happiness with someone else . . .

"Then you've got an appetite after all?" he declared as he started.

"Yes, this is delicious," she replied. "I guess you were right. I'm positively hungry." Something seemed to warn Maris, now, that she had better draw Rod's attention to the food, rather than let him get sentimental. She felt strangely undecided about what her answer to a proposal should be.

However, she could not defer that answer indefinitely and so an hour later as dusk was falling and they strolled through Van Courtland Park once more Rod told her of his love. "Tell me you'll marry me, Maris," he begged as he caught her to his heart, and, beneath the light of the full moon, looked hungrily into her great dark eyes.

Her heart hammered furiously. She loved this man madly. She longed to throw her arms about his neck, to kiss him rapturously, and whisper, "Yes," but something told her, if she did, she must end all her dreams about Stan. If she gave Rod the promise that he wanted, he would insist on her wearing his ring, and if the gadget passed the tests as he felt sure it would, then there would be no excuse for waiting to get married.

He would get a cheap new car, and Dulcie would be discarded. Maybe, in spite of anything she could say, Rod would insist that they live in the country. Oh, so much would be involved in his whisper, "Yes." And yet her heart cried out insistently that she loved him, that by marrying him she would save herself from any heartbreaks she might meet if she made up her mind to walk in ways that were foreign to the course of her life.

Rod's lips sought hers. For a long moment they held hers. Then as she moved in his arms, he whispered huskily, "You will, darling?"

"Oh, Rod," and she gave a quivering, hysterical little laugh,

"don't get so serious. Can't we just be friends, like we've always been?"

"But you love me," he cried hoarsely as he caught her once more to his heart. "You know you do, Maris darling. Won't you be my wife?"

Lightly Maris placed her hands against him as she tried to slip from his arms. How she loved him! If he kissed her once more, maybe she would not have the courage to refuse his love, and yet something seemed to keep her from giving him her answer.

Again she laughed, a falsetto note in her voice. "Oh, Rod, this is so sudden," she mocked. Then suddenly serious, she added, "I don't want to think about getting married—at least not just yet."

The passion died out of Rod's voice as his arms dropped to his sides. His sea-blue eyes seemed to search to the very depth of her being as he exclaimed, "Then you don't love me any more. There is someone else?"

Beneath the fixity of his gaze, Maris' thickly lashed eyelids dropped over her dark eyes. He must not read the secret of her heart—for, even if she felt another fate might be in store for her, she could not deny her love for this man who cared for her so passionately. Better keep her secret to herself. Better let Rod languish in uncertainty—at least until she could see what the future might hold for her.

"You know I like you, Rod," she whispered as she plucked lightly at the sleeve of his coat. "That's not what I want, Maris. I want your love, but evidently I'm too late. Well, let's go home," and silently they went across the park.

But as they reached the apartment house where Maris lived, she whispered, "Don't get sore at me, Rod. Why can't we just be friends?"

Rod's harsh laugh cut across the still air. "That's a good one, Maris. Better tell that to your other boy friend. Well, good night. Dreams have a way of coming to an end." And before she could say another word, he had left her.

Then as she crossed the threshold of the apartment house, a sudden terror seized her. Had she driven the man she loved from her side forever? Why had she not told him there was no one else, that though she loved him she didn't feel she wanted to get engaged—at least just yet?

But even as she thought of what she might have done, what she might have said, a little imp inside her seemed to say, "Now you can see what's to be done with Stan Fayson. Marriage with a millionaire would be much easier than with a poor man. If Rod really loves you, he'll come back to you again. After all, a girl has the right to make things as easy for herself as she can."

Yet another voice seemed to say, "You know you love Rod, so how can you treat him so. What's got in to you, anyway? Stan Fayson will never look at you. Maybe he's really engaged to Rowene, and if he isn't it's more than likely that when he's ready to marry he'll pick some bright bled rather than a working girl."

But, shrugging her shoulders as she went upstairs, for the elevator was temporarily out of commission, she tried to forget about her love for Rod. She tried to banish every memory of his impassioned love-making. She was so tired of being poor, of working for a living, for she had started just after she got through business college. And, even if she married Rod, unless his gadget proved a tremendous exception, they would probably never be rich.

She would have to do all the housework—maybe even the laundry, at first. Then if there were any babies—oh, the very thought of that problem made her sick. And yet, as she slipped her hand in her bag to get the key, she remembered she had thought once that it would be paradise to have a home of her own, an adoring husband, and maybe two curly-headed cherubs to bring the final crown of happiness to her life.

What had come over her, she wondered, as she switched on the light. She could not understand herself. Once she thought she would be in an ecstasy of happiness if Rod proposed to her, and now—well, after she had stilled the tumult his kisses brought to her heart, she seemed to have lost interest in him. Why was it, she continued to wonder. Then, a sense of guilt seemed to cover her with shame. She was fascinated by Stan Fayson and the thought that he might fall in love with her.

Well, after all, a girl had to do the best for herself, especially a working girl who had little chance except through a wealthy marriage to see the world, to have a life of ease, to wear lovely clothes and be surrounded by all the beauty her money might buy. She'd put all thoughts of Rod out of her life for the present. She must not torture herself even with the thought that her calm dismissal had hurt him.

He would get over it. Maybe even yet—but no, she must make no concessions about him. She and Rod had come to the parting of the ways. Yet, though she calmly acknowledged it, and tried to look at it from a worldly wise point of view, it was strange how vividly little incidents about him rose before her as she brushed her lovely silken hair, and prepared to go to bed.

There was the day they stumbled across a couple of youngsters who were fighting furiously in the park. Grabbing one in each powerful hand, Rod held them in the air, till suddenly through the dust smearing their faces, she could see their looks of anger turn to smiles as Rod showed them how foolish they were.

There were other days and other happenings, and now, each seemed to take on a new significance, as though they would mutely plead the cause of this man she loved, and yet had sent from her, refusing his love. Switching off the light, she sighed impatiently. If she was to get anywhere she must forget about Rod. Well, tomorrow would soon be here and in the hustle of the office there would be little time for thinking or dreaming of romance. Besides, Rod would be on his way to Cleveland where his gadget was to be proved. She hoped it would be a success. After all, he did deserve that, because he'd spent plenty of time and money, trying to perfect it.

"What, more invitations to be addressed for the exposition?" questioned Milly Tremaine, as Maris put a typewritten list and a box of envelopes on her desk.

"Yes, Miss Riggs says she's just waiting for another bunch of names, but that will keep you busy for awhile."

"Huh, and what are you going to do? Sit and twiddle your thumbs?"

"No, I should say not, I've got a bigger list than yours, and I'd better start plugging."

"Well, this exposition is certainly giving us some extra work. I wonder if they'll give us a chance to get in free."

"I'd say they should, seeing that Fayson's is having one of the biggest booths on the floor."

"Well, you know what that's for—so Stanley's girl can have enough room to show off the bridal gown made of Fayson's finest crepe," Milly said.

"Why shouldn't she?" asked Maris. "Fayson's can surely afford to spend something to put over a lovely material like that. Besides, it won't cost them a thing for models. That's a pretty smart idea of Stan's—sort of keeping it all in the family."

"Yes, someone said she was going to use the bridal gown at her own marriage," announced Milly as she started her work.

"But is she really engaged to Stan?" asked Maris, suddenly tense as she waited for Milly's answer.

"Sure, I read it in the Herald's society columns—gave all the pedigree of the young man—but I reckon Rowene didn't have any worthwhile ancestors—it only told about the playgrounds her dad had given to all the little burgs up-state."

"Well, when you're rich you don't need ancestors to hold you up. Gold does it well enough and lets you get in where you never could if you were poor and honest."

A moment later, Maris seated herself at her machine and the steady, clickety-click of her type writer joined the chorus of the nineteen or twenty others that were in the correspondence room.

When twelve o'clock came, Maris gave a sigh of relief. Her back was aching and her fingers were positively tired for she'd been working furiously to get her list finished. She had not even had time to glance in the direction of Stan's office, as

Miss Riggs had told the girls that the envelopes must be addressed just so—no shoddy work would be accepted. Not that she ever got that at any time, for the Fayson stenographers were a picked bunch.

But now, as Maris rose from her desk and involuntarily stretched her stiff muscles, her eyes sought Stan's office. Her eyes flashed as she whispered to Milly, "Look!"

Milly raised her head from her machine, and her eyes followed the direction Maris had indicated. Then she rose quickly. "Let's go past Stan's office to the cloak room and get a better view," she whispered.

"All right," said Maris, picking up the box of envelopes and putting them on Miss Riggs' table. A sudden excitement had brought the color to her cheeks.

"Gee, Rowene's prettier than I thought," remarked Milly as they walked along the corridor and glanced through the glass-sided office where Rowene, dressed in the exposition bridal gown was parading before Stan and his father, as well as a select group of the salesmen.

"Better get the photographers over right now," the old man was saying. "We should be having some advance publicity in the newspapers."

A Scientific Truth!

BREAD GIVES SUSTAINED ENERGY!

MEAT AND HOT SLAW TRIPLE DECKER

- 1 large loaf of bread
- 3 cups left-over beef, chopped
- 1 cup gravy
- 4 cups coarsely chopped cabbage
- 3 eggs
- 1/2 cup hot vinegar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups cottage cheese well seasoned
- 8 canned apricot halves
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Cut bread in 24 slices, 1/4 inch thick; trim off crusts. Butter 16 slices on one side, 8 slices on both sides. Heat meat in gravy. Separate eggs, mix together egg yolks, vinegar, water and salt; cook over hot water until thick. Add cabbage and heat thoroughly. Beat egg whites stiff, add to cottage cheese. Place 8 of the slices of bread buttered on one side on a baking pan; spread with meat mixture. Cover with bread buttered on both sides; spread with cabbage mixture. Cover with remaining bread; pile cheese mixture on top; arrange half apricot on cheese. Pour a little melted butter on top and brown in hot oven at 450° F., or under broiler. Makes 8.

HERE'S a scientific truth worth remembering — Bread furnishes quick as well as sustained energy! Actual laboratory research conducted by leading doctors and food experts proves that Bread digests with a steady release of muscle fuel. It releases its abundant energy slowly and steadily. Therefore, a person eating Bread for breakfast is making sustenance throughout the morning adequate and sure.

Every member of your family will benefit by eating Bread — your best and cheapest energy food.

FINISHING LAMBS FOR MARKET

During the first few days lambs are in the feed lot, they should have access to all the clean, good quality hay they will eat. After the first few days, the lambs can be started on one-tenth of a pound of grain and one-eighth pound of cottonseed meal or pea cake. These amounts are gradually increased until the lambs are on full feed. When on full feed, fifty to sixty pound lambs should be eating 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of a mixture of grain and cottonseed meal or cake and 1 to 2 pounds of some good roughage.

Morning Coffee Is Favor Given By Mrs. Hickman

Mrs. W. E. Hickman and her niece, Miss Anna Lee Cobb, were hostesses Friday at a morning coffee, complimenting their house guests, Miss Mary Boyd of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Miss Margaret Burris of Houston, students of Baylor University, who were here for the holidays.

Distinguished guests for the occasion were Misses Roberts, Mona, Leota and Mary Keys, known as the Keys Quadruplets of Hollis, Oklahoma, who were guests in the home of Miss Nell Sheppard of Ballinger.

Baylor colors, green and gold, were given emphasis in the decorations with golden chrysanthemums and mums forming the centerpiece for the table which was laid with lace. Mrs. R. H. Henslee poured coffee and was assisted by Mrs. L. T. Smith in serving the guests.

Miss Anna Lee Cobb greeted the guests at the door and presented the Misses Mary, Mona, Leota and Roberta Keys, Miss Nell Sheppard of Ballinger, Miss Margaret Burris of Houston, Miss Mary Boyd of Little Rock, Miss Gere Dean Gideon of Houston, student of T. C. U.

Those who called during the morning were Mrs. Robert Burton, Mrs. Cecil Ford, Mrs. J. W. Dunn, Mrs. T. B. Poe, Mrs. Vidol Colley, of Mineral Wells, Mrs. Jack Wilkinson, Mrs. A. J. Smith, Miss Mittie Lou Carlisle, Miss Vera Boone, Miss Anita Maddox, Miss Jean Barlow, Miss Doris Reid, Miss La Verne Deel, and Miss Myra Nell Hamor, both of Mary Hardin-Baylor, Mrs. Clarence Spill of Amarillo, Miss Loyle Kornegay, Miss Mattie Cooke, Miss Marie Hill, Miss Christine Boone, Miss Ruth Woodrow, Miss Bendena Spill, Miss Ouida Pentecost, Miss Fair-ey McCaughan.

Victory Club Met in Sawyer Home Tues.

Regular meeting of the Victory Home demonstration club was held in the home of Mrs. Leo Sawyer Tuesday. On account of the bad weather only five members and one visitor were present.

The hostess served refreshments to Mrs. Riley Marks, Mrs. Jim Eoff, Mrs. H. E. White, Mrs. Davis Sawyer, Mrs. Leo Sawyer and the visitor, Mrs. Newt Stoecker, who joined the club.

A call meeting will be held Tuesday, December 8, at the home of Mrs. Pat Guy. This is a very important meeting and all members are urged to be present.

Miss Anita Maddox, student at Our Lady of the Lake and Miss La Verne Deel, student of Mary Hardin Baylor, spent the holidays visiting in the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Maddox.

Autumn Colors Are Featured at Party Wednesday

Yellow and brown colors were used effectively in featuring an autumn theme in game appointments when Mrs. C. R. Kendrick entertained Wednesday afternoon to favor a group of friends.

Vases and bowls of chrysanthemums adorned the rooms where the tables were appointed for games of bridge and forty-two.

In the games of bridge, Mrs. E. D. Stringer made high score and in forty-two Mrs. Wm. Stevens was high. They were presented dainty prizes and Mrs. V. C. Bradford of Goldthwaite won travelling prize.

The hostess served a salad plate to Mesdames R. H. Henslee, V. C. Bradford of Goldthwaite, Ernest Caskey, John Q. McAdams, Jack Wilkinson, Joe H. Payne, L. R. Gaston, Dewey Marshall, W. A. Pace, I. N. Wilkinson, C. N. Kornegay, Wm. Hall, Patterson, E. D. Stringer, W. E. Hickman, C. T. Rives, Wm. Stevens, Jimmie Huffines, Misses Loyle Kornegay and Geneva Craig.

College Guests Are Honored at Dinner Party

University co-eds here for the holidays were honor guests at a dinner party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Low with Mrs. Low and Mrs. Roy C. Maddox hostesses. Honor guests were Miss Gere Dean Gideon of Houston, student of T. C. U. and a grand daughter of Mrs. Low, Miss Anita Maddox, student of Our Lady of the Lake and her guest, Miss La Verne Deel of Baylor College.

Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums in attractive arrangement about the rooms were in keeping with the Thanksgiving season and combined with the autumn colors used in party details, added much to the beauty of the setting.

The table was laid with lace and centered with fruit in pumpkin bowl on reflector with green tapers in crystal holders on either side. Places were laid for twelve guests and the delectable turkey dinner was served in three courses.

Guests were Miss Mary Boyd of Little Rock, Ark., Miss Margaret Burris of Houston, Miss Anna Lee Cobb, all of Baylor University; Worth Nance of John Tarleton Agricultural College, Fred Hunt, Texas University, Terrell Davis, Texas Wesleyan College; Kendall Mullin, Wayne Stark, Texas A. & M. College, Leroy Mosley, Texas Tech and the three honorees.

Miss Gere Dean Gideon of Houston, student of Texas Christian University, spent the Thanksgiving holidays visiting in the home of her grandmother, Mrs. L. E. Lowe, and Mr. Lowe.

Mrs. Foy Davis Is Hostess At Breakfast Sat'day

Complimenting Miss Irene Craig, student of Texas Technological College, Mrs. Foy Davis entertained at her home last Saturday morning with a 9 o'clock breakfast.

For floral decorations chrysanthemums were attractively used about the room and a Thanksgiving theme was carried out with miniature turkeys centering the tables.

Games of contract bridge were played following the serving of the breakfast terminating with Misses Marie Hill and Juanita Dickie of Ovalo winning high table cut prizes. A gift prize was presented to the honoree.

Those who were present were: The honoree, Miss Craig, Misses Fairye McCaughan, Ruth Woodrow, Christine Boone, Marie Hill, Geneva Craig, Juanita Dickie of Ovalo and Mrs. James Lee Johnson.

Christine Brown Is Hostess Monday To Goal Diggers

Miss Christine Brown was hostess to members of the "Goal Diggers" Club Monday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Brown.

The title of the program for the evening was "Accent on Youth" with Jo Davidson giving "When a Fellow Needs a Friend"; Elbertine Robinson, "Adventure in Youth"; Mary Evelyn Perkins, "Bill of Fare"; June Marshall, "Beautiful but Young"; Mamie Dell Mapes, "Gay Youth"; Ruby Nell Mosley, "Interlude of Youth."

Members who were present were: Jimmie Earl Rogers, Novie Moreland, Carl Lesta Davis, June Marshall, Jo Davidson, Ruby Nell Mosley, Elbertine Robinson, Mary Evelyn Perkins, Mamie Dell Mapes, and the sponsors, Misses Loyle Kornegay and Mildred Spill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Howell of Ballinger have moved to Winters to make their home, Mr. Howell having accepted the position as service man with the West Texas Utilities Co.

Cortez Robinsons Are Hosts at Dinner Thur.

Mr. and Mrs. Cortez Robinson were hosts Thanksgiving day at dinner which was served buffet style to a large group of friends. Games of forty-two and dominoes were enjoyed in the afternoon.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Dean Collins, Aldridge Weldon, Maedean Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos McGuire and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Nichols and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde V. Bailey and children, Miss Frances Hodge, Miss Imogene Thornton and Elton Parker.

Shower Is Given For Recent Bride At Pumphrey Home

Complimenting Mrs. Bernice Gardner, a recent bride, a miscellaneous shower was given Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pumphrey. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Frank Pumphrey, Mrs. Myron Pumphrey, Miss Hortel Coward, and Miss Mattie Cooke.

Chrysanthemums in graceful arrangement about the rooms made a pretty setting for the group assembled. An interesting program of readings was given by Miss Mayme Gregory and little Miss Peggy Jean Lindley.

Shower gifts were presented after an appropriate speech by Miss Mattie Cooke when Peggy Jean Lindley presented the bride with blue and white crystal showers tied with celophane and flowers from which streamers led to the basket of gifts.

After the gifts had been opened and admired the hostesses served refreshments of banana loaf, rolled sandwiches, spiced tea and mints.

Invited guest list included: Mesdames Lula White, N. C. Terry, J. W. Dixon, Z. V. Dry, W. T. Hamor, James H. Craig, G. E. Hamm, Minnie Hillyard, John Shipman, R. B. Osborne, LaDell Davis, J. V. Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Aldridge and little daughter of Cisco visited relatives and friends here Thursday.

Chili Supper Given Tuesday By S. S. Class

Members of the Kionoinis Sunday school class of the Methodist church honored Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mack of Ballinger Tuesday night with a chili supper, given in the church basement.

Rev. J. W. Sharbutt had charge of the program and readings were given by June Williams and Mary Norwood. Kendall Mullins gave a vocal solo which was followed by a musical contest, violin solos, Mrs. Leeman and Miss Sara Lou Stevens, with Mrs. Charlie Chapman playing the organ accompaniment. Rev. Sharbutt closed the program with prayer.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Sharbutt, Messrs. and Mesdames Boone, Strother, Daniels, Cryer, Lehman, Ford, Dewey Marshall, Babston, Crockett, Norwood, Bruton, Mrs. Frank Williams, June Marshall, Robert Chapman, Miss Stewart, Miss Stevens, Vivian Cryer, Kendall Mullins, Carter Chapman, Miss Gladys Oliver, Ann Leeman, and the honoree, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mack of Ballinger.

Rev. R. C. Edwards, pastor of the Meadowbrook Methodist church of Fort Worth, wife and daughter, Ruth Louise, spent several days last week visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carter. Mrs. H. P. Byars, who had been visiting in the Carter home for the past three months, returned home with Rev. and Mrs. Edwards. Mrs. Byars is the mother of Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Edwards.

Building Together

The success of every business is built largely upon the success of its customers. When our depositors are successful, it is favorably reflected in the volume of our own business, and in the general welfare of the community.

We welcome every opportunity to further the success of worthy depositors. It is the aggressive and successful men and women in any community that make it progressive and prosperous.

The business of those who already bank with us is greatly appreciated. We shall be pleased to welcome any others who in this period of reviving business can use our service to their advantage and profit.

Winona Moore Is Married Thursday To Del Rio Man

Marriage of Miss Winona Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Moore of this city and Mr. Bonney J. Vinyard of Del Rio, was solemnized at 8 o'clock Thanksgiving morning at the Central Presbyterian church in Abilene. Dr. E. B. Surface, pastor of the church, read the ring ceremony.

The bride wore a brown dress trimmed in brown squirrel, an off the face antelope hat and accessories of brown and gray suede. Her flowers were a corsage of talisman roses.

Mrs. Vinyard is a daughter of one of the early settlers of Runnels county and was reared in Winters and near here. She has been teaching music in the Abilene Fair Park school for several years. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Vinyard of Del Rio and is employed by the Southern Pacific Railway company.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Waldrop were hosts for a wedding breakfast at their home, 1534 Chestnut Street in Abilene. White flowers and wedding bells were used in decorations of the breakfast table from which a wedding cake was served. The guest personnel included Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wildman of Littlefield, Flora Lee Pope, Evelyn Edmonds and the bridal couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinyard will be at home in Del Rio after a wedding trip to Monterrey, Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Sims Saylor and little daughter, Ellen Ann, of San Angelo, spent Thanksgiving in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Lloyd.

Mandy Lee Smith Is Hostess to Favor Visitors

Miss Mandy Lee Smith entertained visiting Baylor university students with a 9 o'clock breakfast last Saturday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Smith. Miss Smith is also a student of Baylor University.

For floral decorations, gladioli were attractively used at each plate forming the centerpiece for the tables with place cards attached. The breakfast was served in three courses.

Those who attended were: Misses Mary, Roberta, Mona and Leota Keys, quadruplets of Hollis, Oklahoma; Mary Boyd of Little Rock, Arkansas; Margaret Burris of Houston; Nell Sheppard of Ballinger; Anna Lee Cobb, all students of Baylor University. Miss Jean Barlow, student of Texas Wesleyan College, Frances Lyle and Lohma Hoover.

Mrs. B. F. Haynes Is Honored With A Dinner Party

A surprise two-course dinner was given to Mrs. B. F. Haynes Tuesday evening, Nov. 24, in honor of her birthday by her daughter, Mrs. T. S. Jordan. Mrs. Haynes received several nice gifts. After dinner the evening was spent in playing dominoes and forty-two.

Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Campbell and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harold White, Mr. and Mrs. Theo Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Jordan and children, Mrs. Sallie Holloway, Mrs. Jay Cotten and baby, Misses Lucile Sanders, Ann Holloway, Dumon Sanders and Duard Holloway, Mrs. T. S. Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Haynes.

Mother Jones is Honored on Her 81st Birthday

Honoring Mrs. M. B. Jones on her 81st birthday, members of the T. E. L. Class of the Baptist Sunday School, gave her a surprise luncheon and shower at her home Monday. Each lady brought a covered dish with Mrs. Dry, teacher of the class, and Mrs. S. L. Alexander bringing the lovely white birthday cake trimmed in rose with the numbers "81" embossed on top.

Mother Jones was seated in the living room where gifts were presented and admired. At the noon hour the delicious luncheon was served from the dining table centered with the birthday cake. Guests were seated at the table in the order of their age, the oldest first.

The rooms were decorated with chrysanthemums and pot plants. Following the lunch hour the group enjoyed pleasant conversation throughout the afternoon. Those present were Mesdames Z. V. Dry, E. A. Meadows, F. W. Debo, S. L. Alexander, J. L. Pumphrey, Robert Cooke, D. H. Taylor, W. J. Wheelless, G. E. Hamm, A. C. Harrison, M. A. Williams, W. L. Bell, J. A. Worthington, Mrs. Long, Mrs. J. T. Brown, Miss Ruth Williams and the honoree, Mrs. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Collinsworth of Merkel spent the Thanksgiving holidays in the home of their parents.

Librarian Resigns

Miss Inez Denton, who has served as librarian at the high school for the past two years, has resigned her position effective the last of December. The school board is urging all those who would like to apply for the place to send in their applications at once to any members of the school board.

LOOKING AHEAD AT WEATHER

About this time of the year, as the Old Farmers' Almanac used to put it, look for the first crop of weather forecasts for the winter. The long-range predictors are at it again, and are trying to tell us that we are going to have a severe winter with plenty of cold, lots of snow and some heavy rains. So anyone who is inclined to believe the weather prophets might as well get a fur coat and a pair of rubber boots and be prepared.

Seriously, the chief of the United States Weather Bureau lends a little color to this attempt at long-range forecasting. Dr. W. R. Gregg, whose nickname in Washington is "Old Probabilities," in his annual report describes the development of new methods of foretelling the weather by the use of radio, "air-sounding," by means of balloons sent up to high altitudes and particularly by the study of previous weather cycles. If there is anything in the weather-cycle theory, then we may be in for a long series of cold, wet winters, succeeding the 25 years or so of generally mild, open winters prior to the last one.

The science of meteorology, however, has not yet reached the point, in Dr. Gregg's opinion, where a great reliance can be placed upon the efforts to tell the weather for more than a week or two ahead.

Sometimes in this big country of ours the western part will suffer under a very severe winter while the East is hardly affected. Sometimes it is the other way about. Nobody knows yet why the cold air currents from the North Pole which sweep southward sometimes comes down east of the Rocky Mountains and sometimes west of the mountains. Nobody is sure yet what effect sun spots and other disturbances outside of the earth's atmosphere have upon the weather. The only thing we can be sure of is, as the old couplet has it:

"Whether it rain or whether it snow
 We shall have weather, whether or no."

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Grissom are announcing the arrival of a baby girl on November 26th. She was given the name of Mary Gwyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Daniel are announcing the arrival of a baby boy on November 19th. He was christened Ray Wade.

Miss Odessa Morris visited with friends and relatives in Cleburne during the past week-end.

"EXPENDIBLE" CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Gifts fall into three classes: something to keep, something to use, and something to use up.

Unless you know someone very well indeed, anything you give him or her to keep is likely to be a white elephant, and anything you give for use is likely to be something for which the recipient has no use. By all means give your grandson a gold watch to keep or a set of carpentering tools to use, but in every case of doubt, give an expendable gift—something that can be used up.

Alexander Woolcott, famous author, expressed this thought recently thus:

"If you are planning to give me a present this Christmas, I beg of you NOT to make it something indestructible which would only add to the litter of my life. Eventually, I would shove it up in the attic and then be haunted every time you came to call for fear you'd notice it was nowhere around."

"Such a gift is dictated by the same kind of vanity which makes some men stipulate in their wills just what kind of marble horror is to keep their memory green. The gracious and truly modest gift is always something perishable—a song under the window, flowers for the living room, or, better still . . ."

Of course, Mr. Woolcott has his own idea of what the "better still" sort of expendable gift is for him, though many folks would not agree that a bottle of whisky is the best way of expressing the Christmas spirit. A little thought will suggest many expendable items that will find favor with friends and relatives who are on your own Christmas list. Any store sells expendable as well as indestructible items. Give more expendable gifts this year.

Mrs. Joe Worthington of Harmony went to Temple last week-end where she underwent a minor operation at the Scott and White Sanitarium last Friday. She was released from the sanitarium and returned to her home here Wednesday.

W. J. Davis, student at John Tarleton College, spent the holidays in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Davis.

Bo McMillan, who is attending John Tarleton College, visited with friends and relatives the past week-end.

Miss Ima Gene Davis spent the Thanksgiving holidays visiting with friends in Robstown.

BRUCE BARTON Says!

Beware, Sweet Sounding Whistles

At a recent convention of the Society of Friends, generally known as Quakers, it was announced that "not a single Quaker had been on relief rolls during the national depression."

These extraordinary folk are a survival of another era. They conceive it their duty to "exclude themselves from the frivolous pursuits of pleasure," and never have asked for help to keep up payments on the automobile. Benjamin Franklin, who lived among them and was a close student of their habits, has left us many reasonable sayings, such as the following:

"Beware of little expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship." . . . "Buy what thou hast no need of, and ere long thou shalt sell necessities." . . . "Keep thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee." . . . "Diligence is the mother of good luck." . . . "A child and a fool imagine that twenty shillings and twenty years can never be spent."

In a letter to Mme. Brillou, written while he was representing our country in France, Franklin told how as a small boy he received a pocket full of pennies as a birthday gift. On his way to the toy shop he met another boy who had a whistle that charmed him. In a great hurry, young Benjamin offered all his pennies for a similar whistle, only to learn, on his return to the house, that he had paid much more than the whistle was worth.

"I conceive," Franklin wrote, "that a great part of the miseries of mankind are brought upon them by false estimates of the value of things, and by their giving too much for their whistles."

Quakers cling to the old-fashioned notion that hard work, living within your income, and a sturdy self-respect are highly valuable spiritual possessions—much too valuable to be traded for any sweet-sounding whistle.

... Whence Come Immortality
 A dinner was held the other night at which a bronze medal was presented. The dinner was a simple affair, in the grill room of a modest restaurant, down below the street level; it was inexpensive because the people who gave it were mostly artists; they constitute what is known as the Institute of Graphic Arts. The medals were presented to J. Thomas Willing.

"So what?" you probably say. "There are dinners every night in every restaurant, and who cares? Who is J. Thomas Willing?"

He began life as an artist but, because he had talent for directing and encouraging the work of others, and a fine instinct for the proper arrangement and balance of art and type on the printed page, a newspaper annexed him as art editor.

Subsequently Willing was lured to New York by a great lithographic house, and later he moved on to a group of national magazines. It was during the days of his magazine activities that I came to know him.

We had been together only a few days when I noticed something strange about his office. It seemed to be always full of people. I asked him about it, and he blushed a little, and said: "Every year a lot of young

P. G. Garrett, recently employed with the local office of the West Texas Utilities Co., has resigned his position with that company and accepted employment with another concern in McCamey. He will leave for McCamey Monday.

Mrs. Carl Carr of San Angelo spent the Thanksgiving holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Campbell. Mr. Carr, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon B. Campbell, visited relatives in Dallas and Greenville.

artists come to New York, and I feel that somebody ought to be a sort of Welcoming Committee. So I encourage them to come in. It takes a good deal of time, but every once in a while I am rewarded by making a real discovery."

Around the table on the night the medal was presented were some of the best known artists in America. They were there because J. Thomas Willing had helped them when they were young; in many cases he was the first to hold out a kindly hand and utter an encouraging word.

He has no wealth; he has no fame beyond the limits of his own profession. But his life will live in the lives he has helped, and in the lives that they, in turn, will influence. This is immortality.

Mrs. T. L. Hatler and son went to Dallas last Wednesday to spend the Thanksgiving holidays.

Ray Caskey of Coleman attended the Ballinger-Winters football game here Thanksgiving and visited with old friends.

Mrs. V. C. Bradford of Goldthwaite came Sunday to visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Caskey and with other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George Newby and Miss Ann Price of Ballinger went to San Antonio last Wednesday to spend the Thanksgiving holidays. They also attended the Texas-A. & M. game in Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spill of Amarillo spent the past week-end visiting in the home of his father, Ben Spill.

Misses Louise Burton and Nadine Smith spent the past week-end in Fort Worth and Dallas and attended the TCU-SMU football game Saturday.

Among those who were here for the Ballinger-Winters game Thanksgiving Day were Gerald Collinsworth, Pete Nance of Cisco and Sam Beasley of Ozona, all of whom are former residents of Winters.

THE IMPORTANCE OF AIR!

Requirement of food, water and air to sustain life.

Food . . . 3 pounds per day { An adult can exist for approximately 40 days without food

Water . . . 4 pounds per day { An adult can exist for approximately 12 days without water

Air . . . 27 pounds per day { An adult can exist for approximately 10 minutes without air

The air supply of a person is of first importance. Therefore it is a wise precaution to keep the air in the home during winter as pure as the warm oxygen-laden air of summer. A room that is poorly ventilated can be injurious to health. Inadequate fresh air and a lack of pure, warmed air throughout the home make it easy to "catch cold."

A simple method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is found by keeping a window in each room slightly open. Connecting doors left open between adjoining rooms, when the entire house is adequately heated, provide a natural circulation of pure, warmed air from one room to another.

Never permit the air you breathe to become "stuffy" through lack of pure air circulation. Heat your entire house and provide fresh air ventilation for your health's sake. It's important to you and your family.

COLLEGE STATION.—"Now is the time for dairymen to give thought to a far sighted program of dairy management," E. R. Eudaly, Extension dairyman, said in commenting on the annual report issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The report states that rising prices for milk cows and dairy products are in prospect. One reason for the favorable forecast lies in the growing demand for milk and milk products because of a better undertone in business, Eudaly pointed out. Then, too, there is a correlation between prices for beef cattle and dairy animals, and indications point to a favorable market for beef.

A third reason for the expected strong market is that the number of milk cows has been getting smaller because of the droughts of 1934 and 1936. Since 1920 through 1933, the number of milk cows has been on the increase, but the bureau estimates that we will have fewer dairy animals on the first of the year than on any January since 1932. No great increase is expected before 1939 or 1940.

Eudaly felt that the next year or two should be a favorable time to raise dairy heifers, because a good market would likely be ready for them. He warned, however, that dairymen should not increase the business blindly. "It is necessary to think ahead, and to plan pastures and feed reserves, before increasing the size of our herds," he commented, "and these reserves can be stored more efficiently and economically in trench silos."

"The average dairy cow in Texas is underfed," Eudaly continued. "In most cases, the dairyman can make a larger return on his investment and labor by feeding his cows to their full capacity than he can by increasing the size of his herd and parceling out feed to them."

PADUCAH.—A worn linoleum was made into a different floor covering at a cash outlay of 60 cents by Mrs. Cullen Wood, bedroom demonstrator of the Moon Home demonstration club, according to Miss Hattie Tucker, county home demonstration agent of Cottle county. Mrs. Wood painted the entire surface of the linoleum with two coats of paint and followed this with two coats of ivory enamel. A small design of brown and green was stippled to give it color.

FARWELL.—Celery in the hotbed of Mrs. Frank Hastings of Bovine reached a height of 28 to 30 inches, according to Miss Margaret St. Clair, home demonstration agent of Parmer county, while sets planted on the same day in the garden are not taller than six to ten inches.

LONGVIEW.—The ten demonstrators in home food supply in Gregg county have already canned 3,120 quarts of vegetables and fruits, according to Miss Vida Holt, home demonstration agent, in addition to bringing 255 containers of meat, 165 quarts quarts of pickles, canning 600 of jellies, curing 1,200 pounds of meat and drying 1,450 pounds of vegetables and fruits.

GEORGETOWN.—Careful planning and judicious selection of shrubs has enabled Miss Lois Steward, special yard demonstrator of the Concord community in Williamson county, to have a yard that is a pleasure the year around, according to Miss Bessie L. Vogt, home demonstration agent. Some of the 16 varieties of flowering shrubs are always in bloom.

Besides the screen planting of the flowering shrubs, Miss Steward has planted evergreens about the foundation of her house, resodded her lawn, removed scattered and unrelated shrubs from the front lawn, laid down cobblestone walks, and moved her roses from the front yard to the back, where they are concentrated into an attractive rose garden.

WAXAHACHIE.—In 1934 R. E. Edmondson of Ellis county took charge of an almost worthless 15 acre field that was a thicket of briars, undergrowth, and trees. The land was cleared and only the best pecan trees were left standing, according to W. M. Lowe, agricultural agent. In 1935 the field yielded more than 7,000 pounds of native pecans.

This year Edmondson sodded the field to bermuda grass and planted Italian rye grass, and now has a pasture which is taking care of several head of stock.

DIMMITT.—A preliminary survey at the end of October showed that 41 trench silos had been filled in 10 of the 13 communities of Castro county, according to E. W. Thomas, agricultural agent. Of these, 32 have been constructed this year to take care of the heavy crop of grain sorghums.

ALPINE.—Sheley Brothers recently topped 400 ewes out of a flock of 2,500 and purchased 15 heavy shearing polled Rambouillet rams to round out a breeding program on their range. Records will be kept on the shearing of the lambs from this flock as compared with their regular flock, according to Ernest Gibbons, agricultural agent of Brewster, Jeff Davis and Presidio counties.

TIMPSON.—Through the efforts of the County Conservation Committee farmers of Shelby county pooled their orders for 11,000 pounds of yellow blooming sweet clover seed which they will plant on idle crop land to control soil erosion and improve the fertility of the soil, according to J. O. Moosburg, county agricultural agent.

Word was received in Winters the first of the week that Dr. F. J. Brophy, who has been ill in the base hospital at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, is steadily improving and expects to be able to return to his home here within the next few days.

Otis Lambert, who had been in Dallas all during the Texas Centennial where he was employed with that organization, returned to his home here Tuesday evening, and after a short visit in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lambert, left yesterday for Delano, Calif., where he has accepted employment with the Delano Hardware Co. of that city.

Mrs. J. D. Pitcock and children returned to their home in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Saturday, after a week's visit in the home of her father, T. D. Coupland.

P. C. Jones and family and Will Caldwell of Gatesville spent a few day the latter part of last week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Whittenburg in the Harmon community. Mr. Jones and Mr. Caldwell were brief visitors at the Enterprise office Saturday.

Little Tommy evinced inordinate pride in his knowledge of fractions and not long ago an opportunity was afforded him to demonstrate the fact. His mother asked whether the little neighbor was an only child. A look of triumph came to Tommy's face as he replied: "He's just got one sister. He tried to fool me by telling me that he had two half sisters, but I knew too much about fractions to be caught that way."

Farmer: "No, I couldn't think of chargin' yo for the cider. That would be bootleggin'—and praise the Lord, I ain't come to that yet. That peck of potatoes will be five dollars."

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington (Autocaster) December 2.—The belief is growing that President Roosevelt's trip to South America may prove to be one of the vital turning points in our national history, something which historians of the future will refer to as the beginning of a new era in world affairs.

Back of the President's attendance at the conference of American Republics, which is being held at Buenos Aires, is a definite purpose to bring the entire Western Hemisphere into a new agreement for co-operation in peace, common defense in war and free exchange of commodities between the nations of the two Americas at all times.

The logic of such a lineup is quite obvious. This country does not want to be involved in European political affairs, nor in Asiatic politics. Neither do the Republics of the South. War is breeding to the East and to the West. The American continent is separated from these warlike regions by the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean.

Also to the South of us lies a great opportunity for peaceful developments of mutual trade. South America is the natural market for American manufacturers and the United States is a natural market for South America's raw materials.

Likewise, South America offers to the adventurous, pioneering spirit of our youth as great opportunity for exploration and development as our West did in the early days of our continental expansion.

A Great American Empire

It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that President Roosevelt should cherish the dream of a united Western Hemisphere, which could conceivably be entirely self-contained and free to develop a vast empire with a new type of culture and civilization, in no way dependent upon either Europe, Asia or Africa. If that dream should be realized then the President's visit to Buenos Aires would, indeed, be a historical occasion.

Secretary of the State Cordell Hull has the same vision. He is meeting the President at the Argentine capital and will remain there throughout the international conference to participate in the discussions which he hopes will result in the formation of an All-American League of Nations.

That American business and industry is at least hopeful that something will develop from this conference to broaden our export market and render the opportunities which South America offers more readily available to North American capital and enterprise, is indicated by the fact that Harper Sibley, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, flew down to Buenos Aires last week to attend the conference. Sibley also plans an extended airplane tour of the principal South American countries and capitals.

All the reports that come into Washington indicate that the Latin-American peoples and their governments have shaken off the fear of aggressions on the part of the "Colossus of the North." This was a fear mainly fostered by self-seeking politicians of a type now rapidly losing influence in the southern continent. At present the road is clearer than it has ever been for such a Pan-American understanding, if not alliance. Such as has been the dream of far-seeing statesmen for many years.

That European Tangle

It is no secret that the whole problem of foreign relations in one which is giving the Administration more concern than almost any domestic question. The State Department is inclined to feel that the civil war with Spain may result in precipitating general European hostilities, since both Mussolini and Hitler have announced their recognition of the rebels under the leadership of Gen. Franco as the de facto government of Spain and Great Britain has announced that it will resist any attempt on the part of the rebels to interfere with British commerce in Spanish ports.

The rebellion in Spain is definitely a fascist movement, to set up a government of the same dictatorial type as those of Italy and Germany while the existing government of Spain is distinctly Communist and has the backing of Soviet Russia.

It is not difficult to imagine a situation developing which would bring about a general European war. In that event, America's position of neutrality would be increasingly difficult to maintain, especially if England and France were involved.

The appointment of Joseph E. Davies as Ambassador to Russia is looked upon here as an important move on the diplomatic chessboard. Mr. Davies is a former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, a lawyer of wide experience, a wealthy man in his own right who lately married one of the wealthiest women in America. It is the expectation that he will find it possible to make sound trade agreements and treaties with Russia.

Washington still looks longingly upon the Russian market for American manufactured goods and is not blind to the fact that Russia produces great quantities of mineral products which are essential to American industry.

The last appointment made by the President before he departed for South America is regarded here with enthusiasm. That is the naming of Charles Edison, son of the great inventor and head of the Edison industries, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, the post which the President himself held in the Wilson Administration.

Mr. Edison has inherited a considerable share of his father's genius and has developed on his own account a high degree of business ability. The gossips here have it that he is slated to succeed Secretary Swanson, who is expected to retire from the Cabinet because of long continued ill health.

The boarders had just seated themselves at the table when an insect stalked across the table. The boarding house keeper was nonchalant. "You know, folks," she said, "I never see one of those little creatures without wondering where it came from."

"I never see one," said Miss Pert "without wondering where it is going."

A bobbed-haired waitress, very much out of sorts sailed haughtily to the table at which sat a grouchy customer. She slammed down the cutlery, snatched a napkin from the pile, tossed it in front of him, then striking a furious pose, snapped, "Watcha want?" "A couple of eggs," growled the customer. "How ju want 'em?" "Just like you are."

Father criticized the sermon, mother disliked the blunders of the organist and the eldest daughter thought the choir's singing atrocious. The subject was dropped when the small boy of the family, with the schoolboy love for fair play, chipped in with the remark: "Dad, I think it was a jolly good service for the nickel you put in."

She was the kind of woman who could be relied upon to say the wrong thing wherever she was. At a recent dinner she turned to her neighbor and said: "Doctor can you tell me who that terrible looking man is, over there?"

"I can," replied the medical man. "That is my brother."

There was an awkward pause while the woman racked her brain for something to say. The doctor was enjoying her discomfiture.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she stammered, blushing. "How silly of me not to have seen the resemblance."

Winter be blowed!...

OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE

This is exactly true: Oil-Plating supplies lubrication in LESS THAN NO TIME AT ALL! Faster than "instantly"... faster than the fastest-flowing Winter oil might even begin to flow, Oil-Plating is ready to lubricate. That's because a genuine Plating of Conoco Germ Processed oil is always left firmly bonded to every working part. Like any other real Plating, this Oil-Plating cannot run off. After hours or days of standing in the cold, Oil-Plating is still perfectly ready-to-go. Now these days you read on every side, how poorly-oiled starting causes most engine wear, and how fast a Winter oil ought to flow. But you cannot have even a doubt of sure starting-lubrication, when it is always UP IN ADVANCE. That's Oil-Plating... a plain, straight, economic reason for changing to your correct free-flowing Winter grade of Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented. Costs no more than changing by hunch.

O.P. SKAGGS "A Surety of Purity"

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

You know what unfavorable weather conditions did to most food crops this year. Many foods having half their normal yield have depleted canners' stocks. We feel sure practically all foods will continue to advance until next year's crops are harvested.
But here is good news: Safeway contracted for foods last Spring had them shipped before the strike took effect, and that's why we can feature canned goods at the low prices quoted in this advertisement.
Good business judgment calls for buying while prices are low—we've done just that. Now, Mrs. Housewife, is your opportunity to show good business judgment by stocking your pantry shelves—you'll be happy if you do.

OLD FASHIONED CHRISTMAS

Christmas EDITION

"Bless you, no! I don't mind being called old-fashioned. 'Cause I really am old, you see. Older'n anybody — even your grandmaw and grandpaw — can remember. How old? Well, now you've got me there . . . I don't rightly know. Got it written down somewhere, but it's sort of slipped my mind. But as for bein' old-fashioned, Santa's real proud of the distinction.

"But don't you go callin' me an institution, like I was an orphan asylum or something. Old Santa doesn't like that — no, sirree! You don't think an institution could remember just what every little boy and girl in the whole wide world wants for Christmas, do you? Takes a real live body to do that; An' I got a good memory, too.

"Yes, sir! Little boy, weren't you here to see me about twenty-eight or thirty years ago? No? Well, now, reckon it must have been your paw. Same hair an' eyes as you, only he wanted a Noah's Ark 'stead of a streamlined train.

"Sure, I remember all your maws an' paws. Your granddaddies, too. An' I'll probably be a-settin' right here to talk to your little uns an' their's when they come along.

"'Cause old Santa'll come adrivin' back year after year. Long as there's any love an' sweetness left in the world an' any children to climb on his lap an' whisper in his ear an' hang up their stockings on the night before Christmas."

IS ALWAYS WELCOME

Shopping For Men is Easy!

A PERSONAL INVITATION TO THE WOMEN OF WINTERS TO COME ON A SHOPPING TOUR.

With Sandra Clause
(An Average Woman Shopper)

TO MANY WOMEN, I know, the joys of Christmas are little compared to the agonies of selecting the proper gift for the proper person, to say nothing of getting gifts that "look" expensive for people you just "have to remember". It seems a bit cruel that after racking your brains last year for original gifts to give blase brother, unconcerned (?) uncle, calloused cousins and whatnot, you have to start all over again!

But this season your task is lightened considerably. In my shopping tours around the various stores that cater to men, I found that any number of public spirited manufacturers have come to our aid with new gift ideas. These are all reasonably priced, and along with the old standby gifts, add greatly to the pleasures of Christmas buying.

Of course, the first stores I visited featured men's furnishings, hose, mufflers, slippers, pajamas, shirts, suspenders, garters . . . these are the old standbys I referred to. They cannot be overlooked on any Christmas list, indeed! we couldn't want to overlook gifts as practical as smart-looking as these, gifts that are always certain of cordial reception! Men are much too negligent about replenishing worn-out socks, frayed shirts, frowsy ties and other clothing necessities: Yet, every wife, sweet-heart and daughter knows how much a new tie and shirt helps any male's appearance, to say nothing at all of his disposition! Women know that a wilt-less collar on a shirt often conceals a bundle of cheery "Good Morning's"!

Enough of that. We are all thoroughly convinced of the value of "Wearables" as Christmas gifts. Incidentally, the merchants of Winters are giving you a pre-holiday opportunity to get these gifts at worthwhile savings. See announcements in these pages!

Did you ever stop to consider "novelties" as toys for grown-up men? That's just what they are! Compare little brother's reaction to his new train, with Dad and his new gadget for his desk. Our point is proved, we'll continue!

Many of the men's stores we visited had separate departments set aside for these "novelties." Smoking accessories offered interesting gadgets in the shape of trick humidors, pipe racks, lighters contained in curious and almost unidentifiable shapes, cigarette cases, ash trays in modernistic designs of birds and animals that are strongly suggestive of your favorite cookie cutters and a raft of other fascinating gifts. His favorite store not only offers you heavy wool socks, size 12 1/2 for grumpy Uncle Horace, but all these new, delightful things as well!

Military brushes, traveling kits and leather goods in general, are to me, just about as masculine as anything could be; I must have inspected hundreds and hundreds of these, and I found the salesmen most helpful in suggesting what should be given whom and why.

I also visited the boys' departments of the various stores and found many things suitable for boys of all ages. Any number of smart new leather jackets, suits and furnishings. All are styled exactly the way big brother's things are styled. Those new fur and leather jackets would warm the heart (and hide) of any outdoor boy. I can tell you! And the sweaters and sweater sets are not only desired by all boys, but are as warm and long wearing as what used to cost about twice as much!

My shopping trip concluded, I found myself with so many smart gifts, I was surprised that I was ever-frightened by the bug-a-boo of Christmas gifts. And what's more, I'm sure that my gifts will be "different"! No, I didn't spend a fortune, either. That's because all these things only sound expensive. I'm sure that if you take the trip I did, around to the various men's stores, you'll have an unusual gift for every man on your list, too! Try it and see!

"Marriage," said the philosopher, "is like a railroad sign. When you see a pretty girl you stop; then you look, and after you're married you listen."

Young Woman: "Whose little boy are you?"

Sophisticated Willie: "Be yourself! Whose sweet mama are you?"

Stamp pads, and stamping ink for rubber stamps in violet and red at The Enterprise.

DRESS UP OLD SPIRIT

No matter what sort of gift you choose, you want to have them express a really old time cheer. And that can be a problem, sometimes, unless you've prepared for just such emergencies with a plentiful supply of bright paper, gay ribbons and glittering little stickers. The stores are showing a grand selection . . . heavy modern designs in all colors, cheery plaid patterns, designs stamped and printed to carry out hobbies for everyone. And if you're clever about it you'll select a rather distinctive one that expresses your own ideas.

Maybe you like dogs. You'll find friendly scotties, and bristly nosed wires on some papers. Or if you've a yen in the direction of country life some of the plain papers with hunting and country scenes in bright red will just about solve the problem. Little birds, in pale colors against a silver sprinkled background offer another suggestion for another type of person. But plan on working in a few minutes soon to shop around for your paper. You'll find it well worth while . . . and an kit contain practically everything really personal, will accompany the gifts you send!

Seals and ribbon can mellow the same scheme. There was a time when ribbon was red, seals were gold, and that was all there was to it. But the ribbons and seals are planned today, and smart ensembles for every package are easy to find and reasonably priced. So when you buy your wrapping paper don't forget that it has to be tied and sealed . . . and look for the kind you'll need!

"What is your worst sin, my child?"

"My vanity. I spend hours before the mirror admiring my beauty." "That is not vanity, that's imagination."

GOVERNOR ALLRED ENDORSES ANNUAL XMAS SEAL SALE

Texas' first citizen, Governor James V. Allred, endorsed the 30th annual Christmas Seal Sale to fight tuberculosis in a statement to all Texas citizens as Christmas Seals go on sale throughout the nation.

Governor Allred said, "The declining death rate from tuberculosis is ample demonstration that the state and national tuberculosis associations are accomplishing their purposes. Texas has been generous in contributing to the Texas Tuberculosis Association by the purchase of Christmas Seals each year. The thirtieth such sale in the nation presents a challenge to good citizens everywhere. As your Governor, I earnestly hope that the citizens of Texas will contribute to this cause this year to the limit that their means will permit."

Texans who purchase Christmas Seals this year will assist their state and local tuberculosis associations in a concerted drive planned for 1937 to reach more people between the ages of 15 and 45, where tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death, with those methods of diagnosis prevention and cure which have reduced the death rate from tuberculosis more than two-thirds in the past thirty years.

The sale of seals in Runnels county was launched last week by the county health committee and an effort will be made to sell $500 before Christmas, when the sale closes.

Many stamps were mailed to individuals, asking them to keep the stamps and return one dollar bill to the committee. This method has been used successfully for several years and many citizens of Winters have responded by sending the cash to the committee.

"Got any old clothes for the heathen?"

"My daughter has some cast-off garments, but I'm afraid the heathen wouldn't wear such clothes."

Young Husband: "I can't stand this suspense any longer!"

Medical Man: "Calm yourself. I've brought thousands of babies into the world and never lost a husband yet."

Blanche: "In days gone by the young men came around at midnight and serenaded young women."

Leona: "That would never do today. A popular girl is hardly ever at home at that hour."

"Whaffo you sharpenin' 'at razuh?"

"Woman, thed's a paih o' gemmun's shoes undeh yo bed. If they ain't no niggah in them shoes—Ah'm gonna shave!"

FARM PROGRAM FOR RUNNELS COUNTY IN '37 SUGGESTED

PLAN HAS BEEN APPROVED BY FARM LEADERS.

Suggested plan of work for Runnels county farms has been presented by County Agent J. A. Barton to farm leaders of the county. The plan which is based on the one used in 1936, has been approved by them.

The program has nine objectives under each of them which makes a well-rounded diversified farm program with soil conservation leading in importance. One feature of the program which will interest many besides farmers is wild life conservation.

Following is the suggested program:

1. SOIL CONSERVATION
 - A. Educational Tour to Demonstrations in County or Community tour if it could be arranged.
 - B. Terracing Lines to be run by Committees, County Agent, 4-H Club Boys, Vocational Boys, Special Terracing Assistant, Soil Conservation Assistant.
 - C. Strip Cropping, Crop Rotation, Legume and other soil Conserving Crops.
 - D. Contouring and Terracing Pastures.
2. 4-H CLUBS

Supervised by Local Leaders and aided and helped by County Council.
3. FARM ORCHARDS AND GARDENS
 - A. From 1-4 to 1-2 acres of orchards for every farm—Peaches, Grapes, Berries, Persimmons, Apples, Pears and Plums. Form a pool and buy trees and shrubs.
 - B. Garden, Summer and Fall, Sub-irrigation.
 - C. Orchard and Garden Demonstration in each community.
4. SEED IMPROVEMENT
 - A. Secure a Blight Resistant Maize and get all to use it.
 - B. Develop a source of Purer Small Grain and Grain Sorghum Seed.
 - C. Encourage the growing of Sweet Corn for Home uses.
 - D. Introduce a drought resistant yellow corn, such as Denco, Yellow Sur Cropper, Etc.
 - E. Seed Treatment for the prevention of smuts in small grains, grain sorghums, corn.
5. ENCOURAGE the growing of Legumes, Cowpeas, Soybeans and their inoculation.
6. FARM PEST CONTROL
 - A. Prairie-dog Eradication.

Yuletide in Old New York

There was a hot time in old New York when Christmas rolled around. The Dutch were a merry people and the streets rang with joy to commemorate the birth of Christ. In 1654, for instance, the city fathers declared themselves a Christmas holiday that began December 14 and lasted until three weeks after New Year's day. That was a real Christmas vacation!

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS ADDRESSED

Due to weather conditions the meeting of the stockholders of the Cooperative Gin Co. of Winters called for Dec. 2, was not held.

A special meeting is called for Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 2:30 p. m., at the Lyric Theatre, Winters, Texas, for the purpose of electing permanent directors and transacting such other business as may come before the meeting. You are urged to be present.—J. W. STEHLE, Secretary. 32-2tc

Captain Marjorie Weeks is said to be the only woman fishing boat skipper on the north eastern part of the Atlantic Coast. She takes charter boat parties out deep sea fishing from New London, Connecticut. Sometimes all the anglers are men. Captain Marjorie became a full-fledged pilot recently. She has been taught by a sea captain and though she is only 21 she can pilot a boat through fog and around the banks as well as any male skipper.

Recipes And Menus

Denton.—Studies of food purchases of families in various parts of the country show that the causes of malnutrition are not always due to lack of income, but more often to wrong ideas about the nutritive value of foods and to preference for "what we like." Our bodies require a wide variety of foods to nourish a variety of tissues, and much of their real value is lost in the manufacture of our so-called "refined foods." They are, therefore, robbed of nature's endowment. Milk, whole grain cereals, green leaves and fruits are protective foods and should be included in the diet.

Whole Wheat Muffin
1 egg, 1 cup milk, 1 cup whole wheat flour, 1 cup white flour, 3 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 2 tsp. shortening. Beat eggs until light and add milk. Mix and sift dry ingredients together and add to the first mixture. Beat just enough to blend thoroughly. Add melted shortening. Turn into greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees F.

Cheese Muffins
Add ½ cup grated cheese to the whole wheat recipe.

Why Dental Health Education

Why add to the taxes of the people that are now heavily hindered, by adding a dentist to the Texas State Board of Health, thereby creating more expenditures and consequently more taxes? For the first time this has been done. While this item may not be listed on your tax

Apricot Blanc Mange
3 cups milk, 5 tsp. cornstarch, 1-4 cup sugar, pinch of salt, 1 tsp. flavoring, 1 cup strained apricots. Scald two and one-half cups of milk. Mix cornstarch, sugar, and salt and moisten with the remaining milk. Add to the hot liquid and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, stirring constantly until thickened, afterwards occasionally. Add strained apricots and lemon flavor and turn into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Serve with cream.

Floating Island
3 eggs, 1-4 cup sugar, pinch of salt, 3 cups milk, 1 tsp. flavoring. Beat yolks slightly and add sugar and salt. Pour on gradually the milk, which has been scalded, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and coats the spoon. Add the flavoring and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Remove from the fire and cool. Serves six.

Orange Snow Pudding:
3 tsp. gelatin, 4 tsp. cold water, 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup sugar (or more), one-sixteenth tsp. salt, ½ cup orange juice, 2 tsp. lemon juice. Grated rind of one orange may be used, 2 egg whites.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add boiling water and stir till dissolved. Add remaining ingredients. When jelly is soft and quivery, beat with a rotary beater until light and fluffy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites then, and pile into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. The two egg yolks may be used to make a soft custard to serve around the unmolded pudding or the pudding may be served alone. Serves six.

receipt nevertheless, you pay the bill. If we are to judge by the development made in education, agricultural, medical and others too numerous to mention, can we deny dentistry a part in the state program?

Medical progress and research have been responsible for much of the advancement in the industrial world, for example, the aid of medicine in building of the Panama Canal. "The Importance of Dentistry in Medicine" is quite well illustrated by the statement of Dr. Chas. Mayo at the Dallas meeting of the American Medical Association. He claims that 61 percent of the cases that come to their institution at Rochester, come as a result of mouth infection. When one stops to think of the hundreds of new patients coming to this institution every day, this is a momentous statement.

The fight against the danger that lies ahead calls for co-operation singly and collectively in efficiency and health education. See what education has done in decreasing the death rate in tuberculosis. We say that was an economic and tragic necessity. What is prevention today in dentistry and medicine but economic and tragic necessity, when 61 per cent of the cases coming to the Rochester Clinic are the results of Dental Infection?

What Dr. Chas. Mayo said in 1913 was not just an appeal but a challenge. It is evident that the next great step in medical progress in the line of preventive medicine should be made by the dentist. The question is will they do it?

In the years that lie ahead what might not be accomplished in prevention? The Runnels County Dentists, as a unit of the State Board of Health Dental Department, are endeavoring to do their part. They have the support of the State Department of Education and to date have been invited to visit with twenty schools of our county. It is our hope to place our program on a systematic basis with the County Superintendent lending his aid, the teachers doing their part, all remains is the support

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me."... If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

A Holiday for Two

by Luella B. Lyons

"This being with the family on Christmas is the bunk so I won't mind parking myself down there in Martinville, Mr. Howard," Paul Boyd told his employer. That's how he found himself spending the holidays in a lonely little room in a boarding and rooming house. His landlady had gone out to church services, he knew, but he determined to pass the lonely hours by reading, having prepared himself with a flock of new detective fiction before leaving the city.

Before another half hour had passed, Paul tossed the book aside and began pacing the floor. Here he was alone at last on one Christmas eve, far from too-concerned relatives and friends.

As the crowning insult, without a moment's warning, the little light that hung on a single cord from the ceiling, flickered and went out. "Great day, this is the end! I wonder what they do here when the lights go out—go to bed, I suppose!" he muttered disgruntledly. But just the same he began scratching matches to hunt for a possible kerosene lamp he might have overlooked. Five matches later, he found a candle and lost no time lighting that. "At least I can find my way about while getting ready to retire," he grumbled.

But as he jerked at his tie, the unmistakable sound of a smothered sob came to him through the hot air register. Paul wanted to be alone, but sobs did things to him and it took him just three minutes to locate the door from behind which was darkness and those sobs.

All because a thoughtless landlady had failed to provide the lovely and lonely girl with an extra bit of lighting in case of unreliable power company service discontinued without notice, wasn't the only reason for the sobs.

"Being in a noisy city where folks are celebrating, asking all kinds of favors of you at the holiday time, doing the same old parties, family dinners and all that—I thought it would be nice to escape it for a change," she explained. Jean Hathaway, she said was her name.

"Jean, I said the same thing and maybe we were both right only that—that," and suddenly he became embarrassed but struggled on, "that it is all okeh if

by Helen Waterman

The Christmas Spirit, if such a sprite there be, must have fled in dismay from old Silas Wentworth, for a crustier, harder, less Christmas-spirited man would be hard to imagine.

Yet Sally Blaine, his clerk and bookkeeper, had the temerity to bring Christmas into the store, stringing lines of tinsel.

Old Silas, coming to work, stopped and stared at his unusual addition to the colored globes and patent medicines with which his windows were adorned.

Sally Blaine, rather frightened now, looked up. "Merry Christmas Mr. Wentworth."

Silas surveyed the store grimly. "Take it down!"

But Sally hesitated. "I said take it down. More of your fool notions! What's this?"

"Dickens' Christmas Carol, sir."

He thrust the book on the back shelf. "Humph! Don't let me catch you reading on the job."

"Yes, sir. I'm sorry about the decorations—"

At nine o'clock on Christmas eve Silas saw out his last customer, and began putting up the shutters. It was beastly cold, and his numb fingers were slow at their task. As he was about to lock up, he was confronted by two men, one carrying a revolver.

"Let us in and lock the door," said the man.

Silas, his teeth chattering from fear more than cold, complied.

"Now if you're quiet you won't get hurt," said the spokesman. "My pal here has had an accident. I need some medicines. You'll be paid all right."

"Of course; of course," Silas answered, and brought out a stock of supplies.

The wounded man spoke up. "Sorry to keep you on Christmas eve, buddy."

Silas grunted. "Tommyrot."

The other man had been rummaging about the store. "Here," he commanded. "I can't watch you don't have to escape alone. Just one for company and for celebrating is about the right number. What do you think, Jean?"

"Alone together! It doesn't make sense as for English, but it d-o-e-s Christmas-edly speaking!" and the light of the candle burned high and proud on that holiday for just two.

America's First Christmas

America's first Christmas day was spent by Columbus and his men salvaging what they could from the stranded wreckage of the Santa Maria which had run aground on the coast of Haiti. The Christmas feast was not held until the next day.

He was scarcely half way through when the men paid him and left. He threw the book down and started off, but at the door he turned, and sitting by the night light, read again. "So like me," he muttered, as he finished.

From the wastebasket he drew out the tinsel and strung it awkwardly around the store. He looked through his accounts marked

'Get the Drop' On Christmas Hints Before You Buy

Interests and need of development—not parental conveniences—should govern selection of Christmas toys, according to Mary Carter, Hardin-Simmons, specialist in Home Industry.

Selection of toys to please playful fathers and particular mothers is good material for the cartoonist's pen but thoughtless expression of affection, Miss Carter teaches students each holiday season.

Toys may be classified according to their general purpose. Woolly animals, bright wooden beads and rattles develop senses; takapart toys develop manipulation; paints, molding clay, blackboard and chalk develop creative ability; balls, stick horses, wagons and skates develop bodies; and parlor games, tricks, tea sets, and toy instruments develop sociability.

We seldom accuse another of lying as long as he compliments us.

It is a poor ambition that permits a man to desire pity.

Slamming the door never caused a man a kindly thought.

When you think America is pretty awful, try picking out the country you would rather be in.

Some people hop in front of the crowd that has already started and call themselves leaders.

People who don't like to alter their habits for any one should not accept week-end or longer invitations to private homes. They won't have a good time, and they will displease their host and hostess.

Never attempt to bear more than one kind of trouble at once. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now and all they expect to have.

before the child's mind has been set on something less beneficial.

Avoid mechanical toys to watch and not manipulate, too many toys that will likely lead to destructiveness, too difficult toys, and cheap breakable toys.

CLAMMY CLOTHES

Experience teaches us that one sure way to "catch cold" is to venture out of doors wearing damp clothing. You may have an equally unhealthy condition right in your own home if you are troubled with "sweating walls."

All air contains some moisture. If the air contained no water vapor it would be exceedingly unhealthy. On the other hand, there is an erroneous impression that the higher the moisture content, the more healthful the atmosphere. It is especially unhealthy to permit the humidity or moisture content to reach the point of dampness. No doubt you have noticed the damp, clammy condition that exists in the room atmosphere when "sweat" collects on doors, walls and windows when heated rooms are tightly closed during the winter season. Under this unhealthy condition the clothing of those remaining in the room becomes partly saturated with water vapor. As the persons go from a heated room into a cold one, the water vapor condenses into moisture. The chilling effect is the same as going out into cold weather with damp, clammy clothing. The possibility of serious results to health is obvious.

"Sweating" walls are most commonly experienced in homes that use open flame types of individual room heaters exclusively but fail to provide adequate ventilation. The unvented open flame heater is practical and can be used with great satisfaction if applied properly. Excess moisture in the air of the home can be reduced to a minimum. Simply provide adequate ventilation in the room through a slightly opened window. Keep connecting doors open so that a natural circulation of pure, warmed air prevails from one room to another.

For your health's sake, and to obtain the greatest value from the fuel you use, heat your entire house during the short winter season and provide adequate ventilation.

Make-Believe Bride

by Ruth Harley

FIFTH INSTALLMENT

Synopsis: Maris Trevor is discouraged because Rod O'Rourke spends all his money developing an invention which he hopes will provide an income so that they can marry. Maris thinks they should enjoy the present rather than deny themselves for the future. She becomes uncertain of her love for Rod. Perhaps there would be more happiness with someone else . . .

"Don't worry, Dad," Maris heard Stan answer. "They've got Rowene's picture and they'll have one of her in the outfit after the show. We don't want to give away all of our ideas, or no one will take the time to come to the exposition."

"It's a stunning looking gown," remarked Milly as they came alongside the office. "Still, I bet if you or I had the chance to wear it, we'd look just as well. But let me tell you, Stan's a hard baby. He hasn't any eyes now except for Rowene." And so, the office vamp acknowledged her defeat.

A smile hovered around Maris' lips, as she said, "Surely you haven't given up hope?"

Milly did not reply, for the star salesman was just a few steps ahead of them. He had already proved receptive to Milly's wiles, so Maris entered the cloak-room alone.

As she stood before the mirror and touched up her lips, then set her hat at the correct angle, another girl entered.

"Gee, if I didn't think it was society's latest bud, Miss Rowene Quirk, standing before the mirror! Gosh! Young Stan will need to look out or he may be mistaking you for his best girl."

The color mounted in Maris' cheeks. She cried, "Quit your kidding!" But a glow of happiness swept through her. Did she really look like Rowene? She'd never given that a thought, for she'd only seen the girl once before.

"It's no kidding. I bet if you had on that bridal gown, you'd look like her twin. Honest, when you were fixing your hat you quirked your eyes up just the way she does."

"Fat chance of me wearing the Fayson gown. Guess I should be glad I get a chance to address the invitations for this bit of humbug."

"Huh, so that's what you call the exposition. Thought you'd have had a word of praise for young Stan, trying to put the firm on its feet after all this depression."

"Oh, I guess it's a good idea all right, but gosh, what do ideas do for us? Only give us more work and keep us slaving at our desks longer!"

"Haven't you finished with the addressing yet?" asked the girl as she opened her locker.

"No we'll be at it all this afternoon and may have to stay late."

"Well, I won't. The boy friend's taking me to the shore and you bet I don't want to swelter in the office a moment longer than I have to."

"Someone will have to stay," declared Maris.

"Tell Miss Riggs to count me out," cried the girl as she left the room. She knew that only the girls who had been with the concern a short time would be asked to do this work.

Hurrying from the room, Maris realized she would surely have to stay overtime. If she did, then there wouldn't likely be any chance of furthering her acquaintance with Stan. But as she ate some shrimp salad and drank a cup of coffee, a smile curved her lips. So the girls thought she looked like Rowene? Did they really mean it?

Pulling out her compact, she studied her face in the mirror with a critical eye. Then when she snapped it shut and slipped it into her bag and had taken out the change to pay for her lunch, she whispered to herself, "I guess they're right."

She stepped through the revolving door. A little frown creased her forehead. What good would that do her anyway, was her thought, especially if what Milly had said—that Stan was engaged to Rowene—was true?

Back at her machine once more Maris addressed the envelopes in feverish haste. She did not want to stay late. If only she could reach the sidewalk when Stan entered his smart roadster! If only something would happen so he would recognize her, and . . . But there, she thought, what was the good of wishing?

Five o'clock and the sound of scraping chairs and tramping feet told her of her fellow workers' release. A stack of envelopes still rested on her desk. Miss Riggs had told her they must be finished. She was thrusting one after another into her machine with impatient fingers, when she suddenly realized someone had stopped at her desk.

Maris raised her startled, dark eyes and met the smiling gaze of Stan Fayson.

"I'm sorry if I frightened you," he said in his drawling voice.

"Oh, it's all right," Maris answered. "I was so busy I didn't hear you coming." She waited expectantly to hear what he wanted.

"Well, I wonder if I might interrupt you," he continued. "You know there's more to the work connected to this exposition than I reckoned on and I'd like to get the feminine viewpoint on some of our announcements. Would you mind coming into my office for a few minutes. I shan't keep you long."

Again Maris smiled, suddenly glad she had had to work late. And as she walked with Stan along the corridor, her eyes were sparkling. He was—well, "charming" was the only word that described him. No wonder Rowene was quite set up about her engagement. No wonder she liked to show him off to her friends.

"Won't you sit here?" he asked as they entered his office, and he indicated a chair beside his desk. "Now, I'm going to read this announcement. It's only a short one, and I want you to tell me exactly what you think of it. Remember, in this business we are catering to the women of the country and I'm afraid we men don't always get our ideas across."

For a moment or two Maris listened as Stan read what he had written. He had a pleasant voice, the slight drawl acquired doubtless from his mother, who was a Southerner, and it fascinated her. Then, suddenly, as he stopped, she realized she'd never given a thought to what he had read. So when he said,

"Now let me have your opinion," the color flamed into her cheeks.

"Would you mind reading it again before I give my—my verdict?" she stammered.

"Of course not, but I hope it will be favorable." Maris surprised a look of real interest in his eyes.

Intent on the message, Maris got all the import of his announcement, and instantly saw a weak point. However, when he looked at her, she wondered if although he had asked her, she dared criticize it.

As though he read the turmoil in her mind he said quickly, "What's wrong?"

"Oh, I think it's splendid, except don't you think it would be better to change the last paragraph to something like this." And picking up a sheet of paper from the desk, she wrote her suggestion.

Reading it carefully, he looked up suddenly and his brown eyes flickered with amusement. "You win," he said. "I felt there was something wrong here, but I couldn't place it. Now maybe you will."

But the continued ringing of the telephone made him stop in the middle of his sentence. Then as Maris glanced across at him she saw a sudden change in his face.

He said to the person on the wire, "Perfectly all right, Rowene. Yes, you know I'd love to do that for you. I may be a little late; still working over the exposition stuff. Yes, darling, good-by."

Slightly flustered, he turned again to the folder on his desk. "This is what I'd like you to look over, but it's a shame to keep you here. Suppose you take it with you, and let me know about it in the morning." He handed a paper to her.

A change seemed to have come over him; the gay spirit of camaraderie was forgotten. Once more he was a business man, his interest solely on future profits, and feeling as though a shower of cold water had suddenly splashed her, Maris left the room. She'd been silly to think he'd been interested in her. Probably he'd forgotten he'd spoken to her the other evening. Maybe Patsy was right. Maybe there was a dividing line between such men as Stan and girls like her, and she'd been foolish enough to think that was just talk.

Nevertheless, as she left the room, Stan's friendliness won her again. He exclaimed, "It's been ever so good of you to help me. I certainly appreciate it. You'll let me know about the other tomorrow."

Maybe Rowene had said something to him that had made him seem to freeze up after he spoke with her, thought Maris. She shrugged her shoulders as she closed her desk. Stan was still in his office. It looked as though he was going to stay all night. Slipping the sheet he had given her into a folder, she put it in the drawer of her desk. Tomorrow she would come down early. Tomorrow she would give him the criticism he had requested.

Going towards the subway, she had a queer, cut-off sort of feeling, as though she didn't belong anywhere, or to anyone. A loneliness she had never known before swept over her. If she only could meet Rod he'd drive away her blues.

Then she remembered that she had practically driven Rod from her side. Well, maybe she'd call him. And as she was jostled by the crowds and realized how insignificant a speck she was in Manhattan, she longed for the comfort of Rod's strong arm. But like a flash she realized he was already on his way to Cleveland. Somehow, when he had talked with her about this chance that had come to him, she had not paid much attention to what he was saying, for her thoughts were with Stan.

Even as she rocked back and forth in the subway as the express took the curves at high speed, Maris was wondering whether she had made a mistake about Rod, whether she should have followed the dictates of her heart instead of building gay air castles in which a dark-eyed, debonair young man had played a leading role.

But when she got uptown and left the subway, things seemed to take on a different complexion. Stan had been quite nice to her. Of course he was engaged to Rowene and would hardly be the thing to be making a big fuss over any other girl. Especially as Rowene was going to wear the Fayson crepe wedding gown at the exposition. She'd have a chance to talk with him tomorrow. A smile curved her lips and her big brown eyes sparkled mischievously. Wouldn't Milly feel left out when she saw her enter Stan's office and talk with him as though they'd been college pals!

Now she was glad that he had a glass-encased office instead of solid oak or mahogany. This would give the girls something to think about. Milly always acted as though she were the whole show. Yes, this would surely knock some of the brag out of her.

As she neared the apartment, her steps took on greater speed. She hadn't seen Patsy since last night or this morning, but she'd be in now. This was her time off. Not even stopping to get out her key, Maris rapped out a light tattoo with her knuckles on the door.

But there was no response. The smile vanished from her face as she rummaged in her bag for the key. Surely nothing had happened to Pat! When she opened the door she went straight to the dining room table, for a sheet of paper was lying in the middle of it, held down by a bowl of chrysanthemums. Picking it up, she read, "Jimmy and I have gone to the movies—the early show—so call up Rod and we'll have a little party when we get in. Don't look in the ice-box. It's a surprise. Pat."

Maris gave a short, mirthless laugh. Then Patsy must have decided that they had made up. Well, maybe just as well to leave her in ignorance. She was glad she was out of town. It might save some embarrassing moments. Pat was a dear, but sometimes—well, sometimes Maris wished she would not be so concerned with what she felt was her welfare.

PUMPHREY

(Delayed)

We have been having another one of those slow steady rains that have fallen so nicely this fall.

Mrs. Fannie Hamilton is a patient in the sanitarium at Abilene. We are hoping she will soon be able to return to her home.

The farmers in this section are through picking cotton and are now breaking land for the 1937 crop. With the fine season everything looks encouraging for good crops next year.

Rev. Cole of Abilene, pastor of the Baptist church, visited our Sunday school Sunday in behalf of a new church for Pumphrey.

Rev. Thomas, pastor of the Methodist church, filled his appointment Sunday.

Quite a number of our folks attended the football game at Winters Thanksgiving day.

In the afternoon, Mrs. W. P. Lloyd, Mrs. J. L. Pumphrey, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Harrison and daughter of Winters; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Will Pumphrey and daughters. We hope to celebrate many more Thanksgiving dinners together.

West Texas Utilities Co. Is Observing Its Silver Anniversary This Week

Ablene, December 10.—The West Texas Utilities Company, soon after declaring preferred stock dividends totaling over $109,000, announced it will observe its Silver Anniversary this week, choosing the Christmas season for the event.

This pioneer utility organization had its origin 25 years ago—1911—at Abilene. It has expanded to include 160 communities in 49 counties, stretching across Central West Texas from Kimble county on the south to Dallam county in the Panhandle. General offices are in Abilene; district offices are located in McCamey, San Angelo, Ballinger, Cisco, Stamford, Quanah, Childress and Dalhart, as well as in Abilene.

It has provided Winters with electric power for many years. Publication of an anniversary souvenir in the form of a newspaper magazine section is one of the main features planned by the company to celebrate the birthyear. Over 50,000 copies were sent out to customers and stockholders in the 45,000 square-mile territory.

President Price Campbell announced that intensified efforts will be made during the forthcoming years to multiply the uses of electricity, and spread the benefits to more users, declaring that "the greater the benefits, the greater the consumption, and in turn the lower the steps in unit costs of electric service thereby all four interested parties profit (1) this 'Land of Opportunity' West Texas territory, (2) the customers, (3) the employees, and (4) the stockholders."

He reminded the quarter million people served by the company that "average rates have been lowered 70 per cent during the last 15 years—never raised." The recent dividend, he said, was declared in the face of government interference and increased taxes, amounting the last three years 1.7 times—near twice as much for government tax expenditures as has been paid to all shareholders—owners of the company. This preferred stock dividend was made possible by unusual operating economies and intensive new business efforts of the organization. No earnings are yet possible for the common stockholders and none have been for five years.

While gross revenue remains 30 per cent below 1929's peak figures due to rate reductions and sale of gas property, kilowatt-hour sales have reached a new all time peak during the last 12 months, he announced. Large increased industrial power usage together with some increased domestic service usage was credited with the hike. This dividend, equivalent to quarterly requirements of $1.50 a share, is the first full dividend basis since July, 1933, partly paid them from reserves, and the stock is now $9.50 per share in arrears. Seventy per cent of preferred stockholders are West Texans.

F. F. A. Items Projects

One hundred and twenty lambs being fed by the Winters chapter made an average daily gain of 1-3 pound per lamb. These lambs have been on feed only forty-five days and average 84 pounds per head. The ration consists of maize, corn or barley, oats, wheat bran, and roughness. One-third pound of cottonseed meal per day is supplied each lamb.

An average daily gain of 2 7-9 pounds has been made by a Hereford calf being fed by Gerald Proctor, Winters V. A. student, as a part of his project work. This gain compares favorably with that of two other calves, all of which were purchased from J. M. Brooks of Brady. They will be exhibited at the Winters Project show and the San Angelo Fat Stock show. The pigs were starved for eight hours and drenched with a mixture containing castor oil, 2 ounces, and Oil of Chenopodium, 1 gram. Two ounces of the mixture should be given to each hundred pounds of weight.

Thirty pigs were treated for intestinal worms by members of the chapter the past week.

The Guilty Gift

Sam Lincoln walked slowly along the street gazing into store windows. An icy wind caught him at the corners but he hurried across to the next curb intent on his mental shopping.

He was thinking hard of Cora, too. Though not a word had been spoken between them on the subject, it was quite understood that he should buy her warm gloves, a warm sweater and stockings for Christmas. He'd saved a fair amount for this very purpose. When you gave up your city living for the country, you thought in terms of wool. Cora needed all these things. Her gloves were worn down to thin spots. Her sweater had been mended a good many times and her stockings—well, Cora just laughed about them. Cora would. She had made fun of every hard thing about changing their home, from the dreadful wheezy pump in the kitchen, to the way the floors slanted in the bed rooms, so that no pencil would stay on a table, and books continually slid off on the floor. Cora was a thoroughbred and a good sport.

Sam looked at a green sweater. That would be becoming to Cora's light curls. Or that cheerful red one. Nice on snowy winter mornings. The very chickadees would sing with pleasure at sight of her in that sweater. He took a few steps toward the shop door when his eye fell on a black-and-yellow silk kimono.

Of course he would not get it; just inquire the price so that he might look at it.

The moment Sam touched a reverent hand to the exquisite silk he was lost. Thrifty, hard-working Sam! How could he have done such a thing? And so calmly, too. "Please wrap it up," he had said. The price had been reduced in order to sell it quickly. He walked out of the shop with the light bundle under his arm, and slunk by windows filled with warm woolen clothes . . . the kind Cora so sorely needed.

All the way home on the train his heart sank lower and lower. He felt so chilled and miserable at the thought of his weak behavior, that Cora rushed at him as he opened the door, exclaiming, "My dear, what dreadful thing has happened to you?"

They had an excellent if frugal dinner. Cora chatted happily of this and that, looking unusually pretty and gay. Sam tried to meet her laughter, but actually shivered along his spine. Idiot! Fool! Wretched unspeakable lunatic that he was! Would a yellow-and-black Chinese kimono keep Cora warm? It would not.

Justice demanded that he confess. Cora would be kind and that would hurt more than anything. Cora would be kind . . . and keep right on feeling cold on the crisp mornings after Christmas. But he must do it . . . muddle through it somehow.

After dinner he came close to Cora muttering something about a gift, and how darned sorry he was . . . and please, not to look at him so sweetly.

Cora unwrapped the bundle. Sam waited. The lovely shining thing fell to the floor with the lights gleaming on it.

"Oh . . . oh . . . ! I never in all my life saw anything so magnificent! For me? Surely, surely not for me, Sam? But how I'd adore it! I'm sure I wouldn't mind anything if I knew such a gorgeous garment were hanging in my closet. But of course you're teasing me . . ."

"No," said Sam heavily, "it's your Christmas present. I feel like a cad. I know you need the warm things. . . . don't be so darned sweet about it!" he commanded crossly.

Cora flung on the robe, and threw her arms around Sam's neck. "I don't know why you're acting this silly way . . . but if you're so dead set on warm things . . . a whole box came this afternoon from Uncle Horace!"

Sam sank weakly into a chair. "You're so lovely I want to kiss you very hard."

"Why not?" inquired Cora, resplendent in the yellow-and-black kimono. "This is simply the most wonderful thing you ever did for me."

When Christmas Grew
The Franco Grinstead

He was a small boy named Tim who had never been more than ten miles from his home in the Ozark hills. His teacher said he couldn't even bound Arkansas, his own state, but what his teacher didn't know was how well he knew the mountain "crick" and the hill slopes circled with green-gold pine trees that bounded his father's tiny farm. He also knew what it took to keep a family of six children and that for as long as he could remember his father's farm had scarcely been able to produce enough to stretch over every need.

It was just before Christmas time that he heard his father tell his mother that if there was to be anything "extra" to give the day its meaning for the children, he'd have to get the ax and hack out a few ties. Her face went white, for she knew what that meant. So often had they been forced to remain on the hacking of a few ties to be sold to the railroad for dire necessities that practically all their timber available for that purpose was gone. And trees don't grow overnight. She could tell by the look on her husband's face that he was taking a desperate and back-breaking chance of finding a few logs tough enough for the commission man to buy.

As she looked out of the window and saw the passing cars of winter "tourists" on the new scenic road the government had built through their hills, she wondered by what magic folks could come to own automobiles and take time off like that to go traveling. But she hadn't many moments to spare on such thoughts, for her husband had returned to say that the ax was gone. Could one of the children have taken it? Or what with the new road so near and strangers riding through the hills, had someone made off with it?

The father had borrowed an ax from a willing neighbor but on the day before Christmas he was silent as he unhitched his team in the wagon lot. Christmas tomorrow and he had been forced to bring back the load from town. The commission man had been truly sorry, for he did need ties; yet none of these were large enough.

He crept up to a window, lost in the sense of failure that made him ashamed to walk to his own door. There an odd sight straightened him. Inside were Tim and his mother joyously trimming a Christmas tree. Tim raced to the door to keep the younger children from bursting gleefully into the room and learning its great secret.

When the father entered the house, no one asked him about the ties. "Dad, dad!" Tim shouted. "Do you know those red berry trees that grow way up the crick? Awful hard to get to, but when I found 'em I thought they were so purty I took some to school. The teacher said, 'that's holly' and then I read about the holly and learned that folks will pay for it to have it for Christmas. So I gathered a lot of it and made me a holly stand up on the new road just hopin' they would. And dad, they did buy it! Stopped their cars and said: 'Why it's holly; who would have thought we'd find it here!' They wanted so much I had to work awful hard getting it, but gee, it was fun! I wanted to surprise mom and you, and now I'll tell you both that I made $27.82. There's $20 right now in that bureau drawer left after buying our Christmas. Gee dad, I love this old farm! It's got lots of surprises on it yet. This one ain't the last one."

The father brushed a tear from his eye and kissed his wife. Then he shook hands with Tim. "You're the kind of a son a man can be right proud to own," he choked. "But dad, will you forgive me?" the boy suddenly implored. "Why Tim, forgive you what?" the father asked in surprise.

The boy led the way to the kitchen. "You see dad, I just had to have it."

The father pretended to frown as Tim pointed and then he winked.

"Well, being as it's just about Christmas for us, as well as the rest of the world, I guess I'll have to overlook it." For there in a far corner of the room stood the ax. It was Tim who had borrowed it.

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

WASHINGTON . . . city beauty

I never go to Washington without getting a new thrill out of the development of our Capital City, from the malarial swamp it was when I first knew it, 54 years ago, into what is, I am convinced, the most beautiful city in the world.

Only two other great cities have ever been planned deliberately before a single house was built, a single street cut through. More than two hundred years ago Peter the Great, Czar of all the Russias, decreed a great capital city on the banks of Neva, and the magnificent palaces erected for the royal family and the nobility at St. Petersburg still make it one of the most magnificent cities in the world.

The other pre-planned capital is Canberra, in the Commonwealth of Australia. I've never seen it; it isn't yet completed as it will be in time, but those who have been there say it bids fair to rival Washington in another century.

In Washington dozens of splendid buildings that were planned and begun right after the war are now finished or nearly so, and the whole city has been transformed.

TEMPLE . . . fitting

I drove around Washington in the clear moonlight of a pleasant April evening, ending my journey in front of the great new Temple of Justice, the splendid marble structure in the pure Greek tradition which is to house the Supreme Court of the United States in the Fall. It is such a temple as the Parthenon of ancient Athens must have been, though only fragments remain to tell us of the "glory that was Greece."

What impressed me most was the feeling of dignity and permanence, which by rights ought to characterize the seat of the world's greatest tribunal. For seventy years the Supreme Court has been huddled into the rather small room in the Capitol in which the Senate originally sat.

Presidents come and go; Senators and Representatives change with the changing political tides. But the Supreme Court of the United States is a continuing body, charged more than all the rest with the preservation of the Constitution and of the rights of everybody under it. And now its house is out in the open, opposite the Capitol, where

Keep a Good Laxative always in your home . . .

Among the necessities of home is a good, reliable laxative. Don't be without one! Do your best to prevent constipation. Don't neglect it when you feel any of its disagreeable symptoms coming on. . . "We have used Theford's Black-Draught for 21 years and have found it a very useful medicine that every family ought to have in their home," writes Mrs. Perry Hicks, of Belton, Texas. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness, constipation and other ills where a good laxative or purgative is needed. I have always found Black-Draught gives good results." Sold in 25-cent packages.

BLACK-DRAUGHT

all the lawmakers can see it and be reminded of their obligations.

CAPITOL . . . proposed change

There is a proposal to move the East front of the Capitol itself 60 feet out from the present position. The architects who propose this say the dome isn't in the center of the building. That is because the West front of the Capitol was rebuilt and extended thirty years ago. Many architects are up in arms against the proposed change.

I hope they do nothing to the old building, which has stood close to a century and a half as the symbol of American liberty. It is true that the wings which house the Senate and House were not added until after the Civil War, when the present dome was also erected to replace the rather flat dome of the original building. But in three quarters of a century the Capitol, as it now stands, has become such a familiar figure to all Americans that I am sure many would feel as I would, that to change the ancient symbol for something else would be almost like announcing to the world that we had changed our whole scheme and ideal of government.

OFFICES . . . miles of them
Driving along Constitution Avenue—which used to be "B" street—and back along Pennsylvania Avenue, one passes literally miles of the most magnificent office buildings ever constructed. The great Commerce building, the new Post Office and Interior buildings, are finer, more beautiful outside and more commodious inside than anything Washington has ever known.

The new additions to the Senate and House office buildings give the legislators more ample accommodations than any other parliament in the world enjoys.

There is no objection to that, that I can see; this is a great country and the men who run it ought to be well provided for. I couldn't escape the feeling, though, as I looked over these palaces the other day—anywhere in Europe that is what they would call them, "palaces"—that some of their occupants must rattle around inside of them like a dried-up peanut in its shell.

BEAUTY . . . nation's heart

For sheer beauty, so far as the work of man can produce beauty, I know of nothing more satisfying and inspiring than the vista by moonlight as one comes into Washington from the South over the Memorial Bridge.

I parked my car for a minute on the exact axis that runs from the Capitol through the Washington monument to the center of the Lincoln Memorial. On my left was the great marble colonnade of the Memorial, with the heroic figure of Lincoln glowing in the floodlights. On my right was the long reflecting pool of still water in which the great spire of the Washington monument was mirrored in the moonlight. The mass of the monument itself blotted out the view of the Capitol, but as I drove a few feet farther on, the glittering white dome appeared from behind the marble shaft.

I looked from Lincoln to the Monument to the Capitol and felt a great emotional surge. This was the heart of my country, these the symbols of its greatness, the memorials of the men who had made it great. I do not see how any man can have that experience and not come away feeling, somehow, that he has received a benediction of

Selection of Something Wearable Is Sure to Bring Happiness to Feminine Hearts; Local Stores Have Many Items

The rush is on! Through large and small doors, crowds of shoppers pour in to look over the assortments of Christmas loot. Despite all the puns made over Christmas gift selection of something wearable, much has been done to keep lingerie, house slippers, scarfs, and dressing gowns out of the strictly practical gift sections. Local stores have more good finds in these items this year than ever before.

For instance, let's look over the slipper assortment. If you like super warmth that looks and is warm, buy the fuzzy wool velvet slippers, and dressing gowns out of the strictly practical gift sections. Local stores have more good finds in these items this year than ever before.

Frivolous and feminine boudoir mules are fashioned of moire silk in lovely pastels trimmed with either silver or gold kidskin. Stunning metallic brocades, exotic printed shiny satins, and luscious velvets trimmed with wide contrasting bands of fur are also seen in the shops. High colored smooth kidskins in peacock, vermilion, jade green, and citron yellow are some of the latest arrivals for the impractical miss.

Boots of pale colored quilted satin to match the satin cover on heating pads, and soft woolly knitted things with huge wool pompoms make nice gifts for the temporary invalid or shut in.

Without lingerie the Christmas shopper would be lost, for many of these necessary items find their way into gaily wrapped packages under the Christmas tree. And never breathed the woman whose heart didn't skip a beat when something luxurious and lavish emerged from tissue paper, so we're making a great to-do over these things for Christmas. Smooth silks and satins, riotous with color are fashioned into sophisticated lounging pajamas and house coats. Velvet and satin models are the latest offerings, and interesting combinations can be made of black with jade or red, and fuchsia with blue.

Nightgowns and sleeping pajamas have gone completely feminine with trimmings of exquisite lace and pastel velvet ribbons. The tailored gown, slip and pantie combinations, showing the finest of detail work, are especially popular.

Hose are more than "last resort" Christmas ideas. They give beauty, clarity, and color perfection any day, and when chosen properly they are the most welcomed of gifts. Sheer chiffons can now be purchased to fit legs in width and length.

Scarfs and ties make excellent gifts for the casual friend you want to remember. The new fringed wool scarfs of plaid are warm as well as attractive when worn with dull ensembles, and silk ties with novelty initials on them go far in "making" a dress.

Paupers Oath Is Not Required By New Pension Law

Austin, Dec. 10.—The new pension law is not a 'pauper's law' nor can it be so construed as to mean that an applicant must take a pauper's oath to receive aid, declared Orville S. Carpenter, acting director of the Texas Old Age Assistance Commission, today.

"The entire criteria of eligibility is 'need,' and there is no legal formality whereby an aged person must embarrass himself by declaring to the world that he is a pauper. Such a method of administration would be wrong and unfair," the Director said.

"Our workers have been instructed to be courteous. Each of our investigators knows that immediate discharge will result if he is discourteous or harsh in his dealings with the aged of his county.

"Investigations by employees of this Commission will be conducted in a dignified and quiet manner. If we find an old person in necessitous circumstances, we will see that he receives help from the state, provided, of course, he meets constitutional requirements. The fact that he

The appointment of Miss Eleanor Carroll as assistant professor in the Columbia School of Journalism will interest newspaper men and women all over the country. Miss Carroll, formerly associate editor of the Delineator, is a graduate of Wellesley and received her master of science degree from the Columbia School of Journalism. She started her newspaper career on the Staten Island Advance, New York, and later joined the staff of the New York Evening Post.

Mrs. Margaret Sander, a doctor of philosophy and the wife of a railway official in the Malay States, has translated some of Grimm's fairy tales into the Malay language. Her translations were first published in a native newspaper and since then have appeared in book form under the title, "Cerita Cherita Grimm." Mrs. Sanders is now planning to translate some of La Fontaine's fables.

The only woman chancellor in diplomatic circles is Miss Mary Conway, Chancellor of the Spanish Legation in Dublin, Ireland. Miss Conway has been in the United States visiting her brother, Mr. John Conway, who is a Vice Consul of the Irish Free State.

A recent art exhibition held in New York and which accepted entries only from persons past seventy, brought out Miss Catherine Croxall, 95, who exhibited a set of pewter 350 years old. Some of the guests at the exhibit wore costumes of 1865.

Miss Croxall once was nurse for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Painting in sand, using the various colors to make her pictures, is a fad with Mrs. Anna W. Brown of Vero Beach, Florida. She has found thirty different shades of sand. Her pictures have been exhibited at the International Exposition in Toronto, the Century of Progress in Chicago, at Rockefeller Center and at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland.

There are enough women in New York City holding positions with railroads, airlines, steamship and trucking concerns to have their own club of more than 200 members. The Women's Traffic Club's president is Miss Beatrice Sadowsky.

Miss Abbie Putnam Dill, an airplane pilot of Ohio, has been appointed field representative of the National Aeronautical Association. She will visit Ohio towns and cities spreading the message

As a man grows older and wiser, he talks less and says more.

Wanting less is sometimes greater riches than having more.

It probably doesn't add to a rich taxpayer's peace of mind to be told that he isn't supporting the government.

Nature isn't wasteful. If she gives a man ability to be a big shot, she seldom goes to the trouble of making him look like one.
