

HOME TOWN Talk

By E. C. THOMAS

According to most reports coming from the Winters schools, the cold and icy weather did not hinder to a great degree the observance of Public School Week. Even though the schools were closed because of icy roads Tuesday, the interest shown by patrons has not been cool. There has been considerable visiting in the schools, and Friday, the last day, is expected to see record-breaking crowds of visitors at the high school. It's interesting to note that, in this day of more and more centralized government, with more concentrated attempts by power seekers to take over every last item of heretofore people-controlled endeavor, there are still holdouts for the old democratic way of doing things. This is evidenced by the interest shown by local residents in their public schools. We believe that if the public schools ever do go down the drain of Federal control, it will not be with the blessings of the people, but the result of underhanded shenanigans of the power seekers.

March came skidding into West Texas on a sheet of ice Tuesday morning, and winter-weary and spring-hungry Wintersites keep watching the calendar and the skies for signs of slackening weather. Many farmers are anxious to be about their business, and the seed houses are beginning to knock on doors. But the weatherman says we're in for more of the same kind of weather, so we may as well get used to it for a few more days. Some of the most impatient waiters are the fishermen—crappie season will soon be here, and many a man is anxious to get out and wet a hook again.

It has been a long and depressing winter, not made any more bouncy by the charges and counter-charges concerning the missile gap, threats of reprisals by foreign countries if the state governments of the U. S. uphold their own laws, and political maneuvering by all parties to gain control of everything from apron strings to purse strings. The winter has been sort of cushioned, however, by a few tidings of less ulcer-making events. Such as the birth of England's new prince of wails, and the fact that Elvis is coming home.

Just been reading about a newspaper up in Alaska writing to newspapers here in the States to keep an eye open for a certain printer. Seems that when he left their place, he kept the key to the front door, and they'd like to get it back. Guess they want to get ready to open up for the "day" after the long six-months "night."

One of our newspaper reading friends opines that one reason some of those Presidential-nominee hopefuls are running so hard is that they're afraid if they slow down, some of the "not running" hopefuls will run into them.

Our farmer friend, who scratches for a living on a red dirt farm on Bluff Creek, thinks he might have been caught sleeping sometime and missed out on some of the finer things in life. Said he was watching tv the other day, and this character kept running down the farmers; said they were too "strong," and had too many airplanes for dusting and too many helicopters, and such. Our friend said he's going to write his congressman and try to get a helicopter; says he knows he don't need an airplane—the plot he is permitted to plant these days could be dusted with a powder puff. But he says he could use one of them helicopters to set out in the lot to keep his pigs cool in the summer.

He had very little money, but he thought he could afford to send a box of aspirin tablets. An Italian radio station heard about the boy's idea and spoke of it on a radio program, suggesting that other people might want to send contributions.

"The response was amazing. Gifts of medicine and money poured in until the amount reached almost half a million dollars. It reminds us of the New Testament story of the lad who brought his loaves and fishes to Jesus and fed a multitude. Gifts made to Christ have a miraculous power to multiply.

"God can always use help when ever there are people who are willing to volunteer. We do not even know the name of Paul's nephew in today's lesson, though the Scripture speaks of him twice. We do know that he boldly offered to do all that he could for Paul, and that with God's help he saved Paul's life."

Are You Buying A New Car?

New auto models are now on display. They represent a remarkable record of mechanical progress since the first autos came on the market in the late 1890's. Since that time over 2,000 makes have been offered to the public.

The day has passed when you could buy a new car for $500 or $600, but low-cost bank financing makes it easy to buy a model of today which costs more and is worth more. Many now prefer the bank plan for its economy, absence of red tape, time saving features and greater convenience.

Choose the plan for financing as carefully as you select your car. Try the bank way; our costs are low — with us you may insure with a home agency.

Texans In Year 2010 May Face Severe Water Problems If Drouth Comes

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

We may have a muddy spring this year . . . but will there be enough water for Texans in 2010? This is not a fantastic question, but one that Texas' state and local officials, engineers and water planners are grappling with now. Out of their efforts come these items of news and views:

1. Gov. Price Daniel told a farm convention in Austin that Texas has made great progress in state-wide water management in the past three years. But, he said, "much more remains to be done."

Water planning and development, said the governor, is essential to the state's growth and prosperity in the years ahead.

2. A series of three meetings will be held during March along the Colorado River and its tributaries to discuss water needs of those areas for the next 50 years. Meetings will be held in conjunction with the U. S. Commission studying Texas' major river basins. They will be in Wharton March 8; Big Spring March 15; and Austin, March 17. Colorado River Industrial Development Association (CRIDA) will sponsor the Austin and Wharton meetings, and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce the Big Spring Meeting.

3. State Board of Water Engineers called for a "time out" until March 8 on the longest-ever water hearing. At issue in the hearings which began Nov. 2 is whether the Trinity River Authority and City of Houston shall be granted permits to build two downstream reservoirs on the Trinity.

Water Board, apparently getting short on patience, advised opponents to get together and solve their problems cooperatively. The hearing has been given to long, bitter arguments and frequent flare-ups among participants.

San Jacinto River Authority has been chief objector to granting of the permits. SJRA contends that Houston will shortly need more water for domestic use but that Trinity water, because it contains sewage from Dallas and Fort Worth, is not suitable. San Jacinto officials say Houston should work with SJRA to meet the city's domestic water needs.

In the far-ranging testimony, water engineers discussed the probable water needs of Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth in 2010, and the possibility that Texas might be subjected before 2010 to a drought worse than that of 1950-57.

4. Texas is losing the battle for industry because of inadequate water supply, the director of UT's Balcones Research Center told an Austin meeting.

"Central Texas is in good shape," said Dr. J. Neils Thompson, "but the rest of the state is in sorry shape."

Texas has an average annual rainfall of 27 inches compared to an average of 30 inches for the U. S. as a whole, said Dr. Walter Moore, also a UT engineer. But he said Texas has a special problem—an evaporation rate 50 to 100 percent higher than for the U. S. as a whole.

AUTO DEATHS DROP

Texas had an "almost sensational" 28 percent drop in traffic deaths in the first seven weeks of the year, Governor Daniel announced.

This is the period since the new Safe Driving Auto Insurance Plan went into effect.

There were 69 fewer deaths during the first seven weeks of this year than during the same period in 1959. Drop was from 243 deaths in 1959 to 174 this year.

Board of Insurance Chairman Penn J. Jackson said he felt the new insurance rates, which are higher for careless drivers, were due at least a portion of the credit for the improved safety record.

Conclusive evidence, both the governor and insurance board chairman agreed, would have to await more time and statistics.

INDUSTRY SEEKERS NAMED

Nine men have been named by Governor Daniel to the new, enlarged Texas Industrial Commission.

He also gave them as their 1960 assignment the gaining of 254 new industries for Texas—one for each county.

Members of the old three-member Industrial Commission were appointed to the new board. They are E. B. Germany, Dallas; Houston Harte, San Angelo; and Chester C. Wine, Laredo.

New members are Robert F. Haynsworth, El Paso; Ray H. Horton, Houston; Morris Higley, Childress; Richard H. LeTourneau, Longview; James A. Redmond, Beaumont; and Al H. Chesser, Austin.

FISH FOR FARMERS QUESTIONED

A House of Representatives committee looking for ways to save tax money quizzed spokesmen of the Game and Fish Commission on its fish and quail restocking programs.

Committee members questioned whether the Commission should give out free young fish raised in the state hatcheries. They go to farmers and others to stock tanks.

A Commission official said the little fish cost the state about 1.5 cents each to raise.

Legislators also considered at length the Commission's quail hatching operation near Tyler. Quail, it was brought out, cost about 69 cents each to raise, are sold to landowners for game restocking at 50 cents apiece.

POLIO OUTBREAKS

State Health Department predicts a rise in the number of polio cases in the spring months ahead.

Most of the victims, said the Department, will be among those who have not taken advantage of polio shots.

Last year's record shows that three out of four polio victims had not had any vaccine and 9 out of 10 had not had all the recommended series.

Texas had 526 cases of polio last year, approximately 13 percent of the 3,984 cases recorded in 1952 before Salk vaccine.

A Health Department official deplored parents who, "in the face of almost daily urgings, ignore the chance of giving their youngsters an infinitely better chance to escape polio."

Also our deepest thanks for the beautiful floral tributes, cards and letters and for the food that was brought and served. Mrs. S. Alexander and family.

Population of Water Fowl Depends On Conservation

By Vern Sanford

Now that the waterfowl season has come and gone, here I am reading about ducks and geese. Wish I had done so earlier.

If I had read Albert M. Day's book on the North American Waterfowl, before the hunting season opened, I would have had a better understanding of the waterfowl problem.

Albert M. Day is a former director of the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service. He is a top conservationist. In fact, I suspect he is better informed on the entire waterfowl problem in North America than any other living man.

It is interesting, because Albert Day grew up on a Wyoming ranch. That state is in the Central Flyway, which means that when he was a boy, he shook hands with most of the ducks before they left for Texas.

A very long paragraph, on the first page of his book, pinpoints the main problem with our wildlife restoration program today.

He tells of attending a waterfowl conference in a western state, and quotes one of the old-timers present as saying:

"I represent the Pioneer Association, the oldest organization in the state. My father was one of the first children born in this territory and I have lived here all my life. I know from my own experience and stories that have come to me from many of the old pioneers that something is wrong with the present system of managing waterfowl. When the Federal Fish & Wildlife Service cut the season to 30 days, and the daily bag limit to four ducks... they admitted their inability to manage migratory waterfowl. When we could use feed and have live decoys there were plenty of ducks in this area. The birds were fat, they remained for a long period. Since feeding and live decoys were prohibited, the duck life has steadily decreased. I condemn the Fish & Wildlife Service for prohibiting these fine sporting practices. They have completely ruined our duck hunting."

There exists in Texas today the same kind of arm-chair biologist, who can tell us what the trouble is, just as this man did.

Many of you can remember when the limit of ducks was 25 daily. You killed your limit day on end, with shotgun shells that cost 75 cents a box.

Chances are you also kept live decoys and you shed a bitter tear when they were outlawed. You were positive that this action had ruined duck hunting.

It took hunters a long time to realize that the reverse was true. If controls had not been put on waterfowl hunting, ducks and geese would be gone today, just like the wild pigeon.

This Albert Day book is recommended reading for anyone who has hunted or ever will hunt waterfowl.

There's another book worthy of your attention too. It's the 1960 issue of the Gun Digest, edited by John Amber. This is the 14th annual edition.

Not only is the Gun Digest interesting but it packs a tremendous amount of information about all the guns on the market today. In fact, it is one of the most important reference for shooters and dealers.

If you don't believe this, just walk into any gun store and you'll find a well-worn copy of the Gun Digest right by the gun case.

This particular issue was most interesting because of the articles concerning various developments in guns and ammunition. One article which especially appealed to me was on the passing of the double-barreled shotguns. I had been watching this trend for some time, as more and more manufacturers dropped out of the picture.

There was a time when the double gun was THE gun. It came from many famous makers. Remember the Parker and the L. C. Smith? Both are collector's items today. Another famous old double was the Ithaca. It too has been dropped from the list.

Several years ago Remington quit the double-barrel market.

March Plentifuls Involve Sixteen Diet Foods

Then Winchester discontinued its doubles, one by one, until today only the model 21 is made by that firm. And it is a custom job with the price starting at $1,000.

Today, we still have a double gun made by Savage, in both the Fox and the Stevens line. And there is a new one on the market by Noble.

But that's it, with the exception of the over-under by Marlin. It is the only o-u gun now made in the United States. However, we do have some outstanding imports.

A ready-made shopping list for March appetites is implied in the 16 diet-important foods listed as plentiful this month by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, reports the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, College Station. Pork and eggs are two high-protein foods expected to be in abundance. These will be featured in Texas during March as production continues high. Both were plentiful in February, too. Shrimp, especially frozen shrimp, will be plentiful. Peanuts and peanut products continue on the list. And milk and dairy products join the plentifuls this month as production increases seasonally.

Plentiful fresh vegetables include cabbage, carrots and celery, as warm-winter garden areas provided heavy harvests. Oranges and orange products, canned peaches and cranberry products will be in sufficient supply to encourage frequent use of these fruits.

Rice is the versatile cereal grain that takes plentiful honors this month. Almonds, filberts and raisins are on the list, to provide added flavor and intrigue to March menus. And lard, right along with pork, will be in good supply all month.

Results of 1959 Corn Tests Available

Texas 30, Harper 3 and Texas 28 produced average yields of about 70 bushels per acre to lead all hybrids in the 1959 Texas corn performance tests conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

These hybrids showed a wide range of adaptation by ranking at and the food trade in determining the monthly plentiful foods list for each state. Food markets in many areas feature special sales on these foods as the industry tries to bring demand and supplies into balance. Economy and wide selection are in favor of consumers who serve plentiful foods often.

or near the tip in each of the individual tests.

The highest yielding white hybrid was Texas 17W. Among the yellow hybrids, Texas 34 and 30 were more resistant to insects and diseases and are therefore, recommended particularly for areas where insects and diseases cause serious damage to corn.

In the tests corn was planted at 20 locations under irrigation. Four of the dryland tests were lost because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Growers should consider the performance of the hybrids at the nearest test location, and also the average yield for their area. Recommendations for the various areas are based on previous years results as well as those during 1959.

Progress Report 2117 contains a complete summary of the tests and is available free of charge from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. The report contains charts showing the performance of the varieties tested at various locations and gives recommendations for each area of Texas, based on the tests.

Without reunions to celebrate the inevitable facts of life, such as births, graduation, marriage and Christmas, the lives of most of us would be lonely and pointless.

Roger Babson Says

Steel Strike Settlement Inevitably Means Upward Turn In Wages-Prices

Babson Park, Mass.—My Associate John Henry, editor of our Washington Forecast, feels strongly that the American people are fooling themselves by overconfidence in the Federal Reserve Board—they believe that by some magic our nation can avoid further depressions.

Is the Money Market All-Powerful?

Let me relay Mr. Henry's thoughts. The notion has become widespread that the easing and tightening of money and credit by the FRB can eliminate the dangerous hills and valleys in our economic progress... thereby keeping inflation reasonably in hand and barring anything more serious than occasional mild recessions. This conclusion is supported by recent history.

Since World War II, we have had three business recessions—1949, 1954, and 1957. In each case, the FRB hastened to curb the decline by making money and credit more plentiful and cheaper. Conversely, the Fed restricted money and credit whenever spiraling inflation became a threat.

Another Depression In The Offing

Although there has been a tendency for each business decline since the war to be a little more severe than its predecessor, none has been even remotely comparable to those of 1937 and earlier.

However, the Federal Reserve has been given most of the credit for keeping these recessions mild... and for turning them into periods of recovery.

Now that the steel strike has been settled in a manner which will inevitably mean another upward turn of the wage-price spiral, the time may not be too distant when the results will bring on another recession. Business can develop immunity to these Fed "pills," just as the doctor's pills lose potency after we depend upon them too long.

When the Next Slump Comes

When the next slump comes, we may well find that changed world financial conditions will have sapped the FRB's recession-fighting power. In previous recessions, our money managers did not have to worry about the gold reserves behind our credit structure. We held gold in excess of any possible foreign claims against it. Today, however, for many reasons—swollen costs and prices here in the U. S., declining exports and rising imports, liberal foreign aid, sizable exports of capital for plants abroad—we have been running a deficit in the balance of payments between our country and other countries. This is a condition we have not faced for many years.

Foreigners have built up heavy dollar balances which—at their discretion—may be converted into gold and taken out of this country. Hence... our money managers must weigh any future action in the light of its possible effect on the heavy foreign balances held here. If money is suddenly made easy, lower interest rates will be paid on foreign balances. This, of course, could induce foreigners to withdraw those balances... especially if interest rates in some other country should be attractively higher. Thus, the FRB would lose its erstwhile independence of action in combatting business declines.

Loss of Confidence Caused By Steel Settlement

There's an even more important danger to our economy than the possible attractiveness of higher interest rates in other nations. Should a new easy-money policy be adopted at a time when our government is running heavy international deficits, owners of dollars in other nations could lose confidence in the ability of the U. S. to manage its financial affairs, and rush to convert their dollars to gold.

Whatever the cause, heavy gold withdrawals from the U. S. would drain off the gold backing for our banking system... a situation which is the normal forerunner of a money panic. For the first time since World War II, therefore, the beginning of the next business recession may find our money managers powerless to take effective anti-slump action!

During my recent trip to Europe I was impressed by the fear which European bankers feel about the control that labor leaders possess in the U. S. and South America. These business leaders believe we are headed for a Labor Government... and Socialism. This also undermines confidence in the American dollar. Since the steel corporations "gave in" to political pressure from both the White House and Congress, other nations no longer respect us. When the next depression comes, will the money managers or the labor managers win? Unless we wake up, the fear of Russia, inflation, taxes and labor may lick us.

Must A Man Be A 'Liberal' To Be President?

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Just how liberal must a man be these days to get elected President? This year, more than ever, that question is being bandied around.

In the Democratic camp, there is Kennedy, Symington, Stevenson, Humphrey—all described by observers as ultra-liberals—and Lyndon Johnson, a middle-of-the-roader.

As a general rule a liberal is a free spender. And the more he spends, or promises to spend, the more liberal he becomes. These liberals are not to be confused with the authentic liberal who is progressive but keeps his feet on the ground.

The radical liberals are organized. They make a lot of noise. Scores of their organizations plug for welfare, "human" rights "civil" rights, socialism and more spending.

There's the Conference on Economic Progress, whose spokesman, Leon Keyserling (who headed the Council of Economic Advisors to President Truman when he was in the White House), recently demanded a minimum budget of $89.5 billion—$8 billion above the Eisenhower budget.

Then, there's CIO's COPE, a political action arm of the unions, which forever plugs for spending a la Keyserling, more welfare, civil rights, Big Government.

And Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), made up of prominent radical-liberals, agitates for the usual liberal program, only more of it. ADA's counterpart in Texas is Democrats of Texas (DOT), whose news organ is Texas Observer.

Now, it is disturbing to see so many of our prominent politicians catering to these extremists, courting their favors. At least it appears they think they must have this type of support in order to be elected.

But where does the public—the great unorganized, non-vocal, public come in? By and large, it is believed the general public is more moderate than the politicians give them credit for being. It is believed the general public opposes reckless spending, ruinous inflation, gratuitous hand-outs and what-have-you.

Be that as it may, most of the candidates for President seem to think they must make their pitch for the favors of the liberals as a primary objective, then try to convince the people they are for 'em and have a remedy for their every need.

Soil Organic Matter Should Be Plowed Under Says SCS

What benefits do you receive from turning organic matter back to the soil? To answer this question, we must first determine what soil organic matter is.

Soil organic matter is plant and animal residue in all stages of the decaying process, according to James Barnhill of the local Soil Conservation Service. Most soil organic matter is residue left by the decay of plant materials, either plowed under or left on the surface of the soil, and of the roots formed beneath the surface soil.

Benefits received from organic matter are one of the constant decaying processes which converts plant residues to the simple end products such as nitrogen and phosphate. These end products are then usable by new plants. Other benefits are derived from the enzymes and hormones given off in the decay process. These by-products help dissolve rocks, thus forming more soil and minerals. Because this is a never ending process, the plant residue is used up from year to year, making it necessary to add more residue to keep the process active.

Although soil organic matter adds fertility to the soil, probably its most important function is improving the physical properties of the soil.

The proper amount of organic matter will improve any type soil. A clay type soil may have a slow water intake rate and a slow movement of air and roots within the soil. Organic matter will improve the structure of this soil, making it easier to work and improving its air and water intake qualities.

On a sandy type soil that cannot store enough plant nutrients and water, organic matter will increase the water holding capacity and add to the supply of plant nutrients which will be less susceptible to leaching.

Amusements Coming to Local Theatres

AT THE STATE THEATRE
 "The Black Orchid" It was inevitable that one day Sophia Loren and Anthony Quinn would be co-starred in a made-in-Hollywood motion picture about modern Italian-Americans. That day, fortunately for film fans, arrived with production of "The Black Orchid" for Paramount release. "The Black Orchid," which is set to show Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre, was produced by Carlo Ponti and Marcello Girosi in VistaVision. It features stage and screen star Mark Richman and introduces the talented young stage personality, Ina Balin.

Intensely dramatic with warm comedy overtones, "The Black Orchid" stars the many-faceted Miss Loren in the role of a widow who reproaches herself for her murdered gangster husband's involvement in the life of crime that led to his death. Quinn plays a well-to-do businessman, a widower, falls in love with her and wants to marry her and help bring up her twelve-year-old son. The boy seems headed for the same kind of life as his father and Sophia

Quinn so that together they can make the right kind of home for him. But Quinn's grown daughter (Ina Balin) throws a monkey wrench into their happy plans with exciting and suspenseful re-sults.

"4D Man"
 Ever wonder how it would feel to walk through a solid brick wall or plunge your fist through a thick block of steel?

Have you ever thought how life would be in the world of the fourth dimension where no barriers exist?

If you're curious about such things, you would do well to talk to Robert Lansing, who experienced such an incredible life during filming of "4D Man," a Fairview screen chiller for Universal-International release. Co-starring with the former Miss America, Lee Merriwether, Lansing portrayed a scientist who unraveled the mystery of the fourth dimension and put it to his own evil uses. His adventures will be on view at the State Theatre when "4D Man"

Thomas E. McAdoo, Pioneer Resident, Died Saturday

Thomas E. McAdoo, 83, pioneer resident of Runnels County and a retired Winters grocer, died Saturday at 5:45 a. m. at his home. He suffered a broken hip in January and had been bedfast since that time.

A native Texan, Mr. McAdoo was born May 20, 1876 in Bosque County and moved to Gorman with his parents when he was a child. He moved to Winters in 1920 and was married to Viola Fisher on November 11, 1924 in Ballinger. Mr. McAdoo retired in 1950. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Funeral services were held Sunday at 1:30 p. m. in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. B. T. Shoemaker, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Fairview Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife; one son, John Edward McAdoo of Winters; one grandson; and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Robbins of Odessa and Mrs. Amos Pence of California.

Pallbearers were J. S. Bourne, A. T. Williams, Travis Downing, M. L. Dobbins, Bill Mayo, J. B. Guy, L. R. Hoppe and B. T. Gardner.

CARD OF THANKS

With deepest gratitude we extend this word of thanks for the many kind acts of sympathy expressed by thoughtful friends during the long illness of our loved one and during our bereavement at his death. These kindnesses have meant so much to us.

We wish especially to thank those who sent the beautiful flowers, the food, the cards and letters of sympathy. May we be a comfort to you in your time of sorrow, is the wish of Mrs. T. E. McAdoo, Mr. and Mrs. John Edward McAdoo and little son. It opens there Friday and Saturday.

"Li'l Abner"

Hearty laughter and spontaneous applause will rock the State Theatre Sunday and Monday when Paramount's great, big, Technicolor musical comedy, "Li'l Abner," begins what should be a very successful engagement. The live-wire film was fashioned from the Broadway smash hit that ran for over two years, rolling up the same kind of laughter and applause along the way. The screen production, like the play, was produced by Norman Panama and Melvin Frank, who also wrote the original story using the famous Al Capp cartoon characters in their natural habitat, Dogpatch.

Many of the same stars who brought the cartoon people to life on the stage were imported by Hollywood to repeat their sensational performances for the movie version. Handsome, six-foot-four singing Peter Palmer, the personification of Li'l Abner, plays the title role, as he did on the stage. Appearing opposite him as the luscious, "well-put-together" Daisy Mae is the beautiful discovery, Leslie Parrish, who sure is a knockout. Rotund, song and dance comedian, Stubby Kaye, repeats his stage delineation of Marryin' Sam, and lights up the screen with his warm, winning personality and his knack of hilarious delivery of the lines and the songs he is responsible for.

Bethany SS Class Honored Husbands With A Dinner

Those present were Messrs and Mesdames George Briley Joe Reese, Jack Martin, J. N. Clark Sr., Wilma C. Davis, C. W. Armstrong, Erwin Schroeder, Miss Marie Maughan, Betty Virden, Linda Schroeder and Rodney Reese.

Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended comforting sympathy and help in our recent sorrow. For the food, floral offerings and other kindnesses, we are deeply grateful. Mrs. Bill Snow and family. Itp

March 5-17 4-H Club Week In Texas

Governor Price Daniel has by official proclamation designated the week of March 5-12 as 4-H Club week in Texas and has asked all citizens to participate in the observances being planned by 4-H members in the communities and counties of Texas.

The Governor in his proclamation said, "Learn, live and serve through 4-H is the 1960 challenge to Texas 4-H Club members. Since the 4-H program was inaugurated by the United States Government in 1914 more than a million young Texans have received its benefits.

"An expanding 4-H program not only teaches the latest practices in agriculture and home economics, but emphasizes character, development and good citizenship. Club members learn by conducting result demonstrations and participating in 4-H activities. By putting into practice in their homes and communities what they learn, club members live and serve through 4-H.

"County extension agents work with voluntary 4-H adult leaders, 4-H members, their parents, and friends of 4-H in developing a program which provides education and leadership opportunities for the youth of Texas. The 4-H program is under the direction of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A and M College System.

"Any boy or girl from the ages of 9 to 21 can take part in 4-H Club work. The opportunities offered to 4-H Club members to grow in citizenship and in practical skills are especially valuable to them, the State of Texas and the Nation."

In a letter to all Texas 4-H Club members the Governor said, "Please accept my best wishes for 1960 and the years ahead. May you continue to build yourselves, your homes and communities, and thus help build our State and Nation. The future holds bright promise for our land, and you as 4-H Club members have a vital share of this future. I join the people of Texas in saluting you and the parents, adult leaders and friends of 4-H who make this program possible."

Many Innovations, Products Make Fishing More Fun and Profitable

By VERN SANFORD

Like to fish with worms? Tired digging to the bottom of the box every time you have to re-bait?

Worms can't hide on the bottom of the bait box make by Van Associates of Atlanta, Ga., because they put a door on both top and bottom.

You merely turn the box over and open the other cover.

This is just one of many new gadgets that are on the market and designed specifically for the outdoorsmen.

For instance there's a "do-dad." Ever hear of it?

Well, you know how the spring wound clothesline works — when you jerk on the line it recoils into the spool.

Okay, there an automatic fish lander that operates on the same principle. It's called the do-dad. You can use it for pole fishing, or hang it from a tree limb, dock or pier, or from a boat.

Bait up with worms, minnows, shrimp, etc. — then when the fish strikes, the line recoils onto the spool, sets the hook — and brings them in automatically. Line gives a bit with each pull of the fish too, but promptly returns the catch to netting position.

Most fishermen put "do-dads" to work in several locations, then run them like trolleys.

Manufacturer is the Arkansas Die and Stamping Co. of North Little Rock.

A Hot Seat You'll Like

No matter how cold the weather gets, the Seater Heater keeps you warm. So says Excel, Inc., manufacturer of the latest in comforting warmth for the outdoorsman.

True to its name, you sit on it to keep warm, safely and comfortably. The 6.5 lb. Seater Heater uses a jumbo size reusable wick to distribute its heat evenly — and lets you control the degree by adjustment — just like a thermostat at home. Handy for spectator sports, hunting, fishing, camping.

It burns any brand of wood alcohol and it doesn't smoke. Safe to use in a boat or duck blind and even on dry grass.

Oh yes, it's guaranteed explosion-proof, fire-proof, wind-proof, water-proof, spill-proof, and fool-proof.

Pressure-Pak For Lanterns

It won't be long until you'll be using that Coleman lantern again for some cool, summer-night fishing. Or maybe you're cooking right now on a Coleman cook-stove?

Anyway, you'd like to get out of that tank-priming business, I betcha. If so, you'll be interested in the amazing little Pressure-Pak.

It's a gadget that screws on the gas tank of your lantern or stove. You merely insert a CO-2 cartridge in the Pressure-Pak, tighten the cap and light up in the usual way.

Biggest advantage is a hotter flame and a 35 percent brighter light, says Lake Line Mfg. Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, makers of this handy little item.

Its steady pressure on all burners assures faster cooking and 10 to 15 hours of white, bright, steady light, Lake Line advises.

Portable Pelgun Target Kit

There's plenty of fun in store for those who like target shooting with a pelgun, especially with one of Crosman's portable shooting kits.

This relatively new product by Crosman Arms Co. is a compact unit that serves as a target as well as a carrying case for pistol, ammunition, C-2 gas cartridges, and target paper.

The all-steel carrying case has a built-in reinforced target backdrop. Pistol is their .22 caliber Series-150 Pelgun.

With this outfit you can shoot when you please and almost anywhere you please, with dependable accuracy, at ranges from 15 to 40 feet.

Trailering Made Easy

If you're tired of huffing and puffing over a hand winch, you can make cranking your boat onto a trailer a thing of the past.

Big boat trailering is made easy and effortless with the 1960 Ultra-Matic Powerwinch.

You just pull a string to turn on the power and Powerwinch does the rest. The "start-stop" control, letting you guide your boat from any point.

Manufacturer says the unit can be mounted easily on any trailer. It uses juice from a 12-volt auto battery and comes equipped with 25 feet of aircraft cable.

Storing The Ski Rope

Water ski enthusiasts should be interested in the new Ski-Reel, now being marketed by Haston Marine Inc. of Anderson, Indiana.

In a way it resembles the ladder-shaped boards on which small fishing line often is wrapped. However, this handy device is molded of polyethylene and although it's many times larger than a fishing line holder it weighs only eight ounces, and floats.

It is designed for reeling in the ski rope and storing it neatly until the next time out.

Experiment Station Released Bulletin

Grain production and utilization are important aspects of the Texas farm economy. The farm value of grain grown in Texas after 1930 has varied from 275 to 550 million dollars annually. Cash sales of grain have amounted to about 15 percent of total receipts from crops and livestock in the State. Considerable amounts of grain also are fed to livestock on the farm where it is produced.

Clarence Moore and Howard Whitney, Texas, Agricultural Experiment Station, point out in their new bulletin, "Changing Supply of Grain in Texas," that wheat production was about three-fourths of total food grain production in Texas in the 1940's. It declined in relative importance, while rice increased, in the food grain group in the 1950's.

Wheat production in Texas increased from an average of 27 million bushels annually in the 1930's to 75 million bushels in the late 1940's. Acreage controls and drought conditions caused a cut-back in production in the 1950's. Production averaged 36 million bushels annually from 1954-58.

Grain sorghum underwent the biggest change, increasing from 21 percent of total feed grain production in 1935-39 to 72 percent in 1955-58, while corn decreased from 52 to 14 percent. Average annual grain sorghum production was only 30 million bushels in the late 1930's, compared with 184 million in the 1954-58 period, with an estimated 273 million bushels crop grown in 1958. Yields doubled in the 25-year period, increasing from an average of 14.2 bushels per acre in the late 1930's to 28.8 bushels in 1954-58. Acreage increased from two million in the late 1930's to over six million in 1954-58. However, a large portion of the increased production was a result of increased yields rather than increased acreage.

This new bulletin also discusses oats, rice, corn, rye and barley in detail. Copies can be obtained by writing the Agricultural Information Office, College Station. Ask for B-939.

Mrs. W. C. Hodges In Accident In Abilene Friday

Mrs. W. C. Hodges, who received multiple facial cuts in an accident in Abilene Friday, is a patient in Hendrick Memorial Hospital. Her condition was reported satisfactory Thursday morning.

Mrs. Hodges, who was driving a 1956 Chevrolet west on North Second Street in Abilene, collided with a 1959 Chevrolet going north on Victoria Street, driven by Cheryl Lynn Davis of Abilene.

Mrs. C. V. McElyea of Abilene who was riding with Mrs. Hodges was treated at Hendrick Hospital and released. None of the girls riding in the Davis car were injured.

Patrolman George T. Hooker, investigating officer, estimated that the damage to the Davis car was near $600 and that the Hodges car was a total loss.

C. of C. Directors Met Tuesday

The board of directors of the Winters Chamber of Commerce approved the list of suggested holidays for 1960 during their regular session Tuesday. The meeting was held in the afternoon because of the weather.

Holidays suggested by the chamber of commerce include Monday, May 30, Memorial Day; Monday, July 4, Independence Day; Monday, September 5, Labor Day; Thursday, November 24, Thanksgiving Day; Monday, December 26.

John Norman reported on Public School Week activities and the post office dedication service, which was held Saturday. The chamber of commerce distributed handbills urging participation in Public School Week.

The membership drive was discussed, and the business territory was divided and directors, as members of the membership committee, were assigned areas to canvass. Plans are to complete the membership drive within two weeks.

The board of directors discussed a suggested farmers' day barbecue. This is being studied.

Members also discussed the local airport facilities.

New Method For Boll Weevil Control

A late-season chemical and cultural control program at College Station in 1959 showed promise in reducing the overwintered population of boll weevils. This reduction appears to be great enough to delay the start of boll weevil control programs the following year to effect substantial savings in insecticide costs.

The program consists of chemical treatments just prior to and during the harvest period to prevent the weevil from going into diapause, the physiological condition in which they survive the winter. These insecticide treatments are followed by stalk destruction if harvest is completed before frost kills the cotton.

Results obtained to date indicate this practice may be an effective eradication measure, according to Dr. J. R. Brazzel, associate professor, Texas A and M Department of Entomology, who worked on the project. He said the chemical and cultural control program was used in an isolated 18-acre cotton field, about four miles from a cotton field of five acres and more than 10 miles from large acreages of cotton.

Insecticides used were methyl parathion, toxaphene, DDT and pentachlorophenol. They were applied over a two-month period, at five day intervals during the growing season and every seven-nine days during the late-season before defoliation.

This experiment will be continued in 1960 and if the final results are as favorable as the data obtained to date indicate, this chemical and cultural control program late in the season may offer a means for eradication or greatly reducing the boll weevil populations.

Complete results of the program are contained in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's new report, "A New Method For The Control of Boll Weevils." Write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station for a copy. Ask for PR-2110.

Specialist Discusses Food Value of Eggs Farmers, Ranchers Have Found Need For Waterways

Are fertile eggs more nutritious than infertile ones? No, says F. Z. Beanblossom, extension poultry marketing specialist, as he discusses facts relating to eggs. Since nothing of nutritional value is added by fertility, there would be no difference in the nutritional value of fertile and infertile eggs. Nutrients in the feed are largely responsible for nutritional value in the egg, he adds.

"Egg albumen doesn't contain any food value." That is not true, says the specialist. Research shows that the albumen (egg white) contains over 50 percent of the protein in the egg and about 75 percent of the riboflavin. Don't waste the albumen.

"A prominent chalaza (thick twisted portion of albumen) indicates poor quality." Not true, says Beanblossom for prominent chalazas usually are associated with eggs of highest quality. They are composed of high quality protein and they help keep the egg yolk centered in the shell and anchor the yolk to the remainder of the thick albumen. All eggs have chalaza and they are no indicator of either fertility or infertility.

Beanblossom says he often hears the comment that all eggs of AA quality are extra large in size. Most eggs in retail outlets marked AA quality are large — 24 ounces to the dozen — but some will weigh 26, 28 or even 30 ounces per dozen. This does not mean, he points out, that extra large eggs are the only AA quality eggs. It's a fact that there is a much higher percentage of AA quality in eggs from small, medium and large size eggs than from extra large and jumbo sizes.

And finally, the specialist says he is often asked if eggs are not an expensive food item. Here's his answer. Large eggs weigh a minimum of one and a half pounds per dozen. Thus a dozen of large eggs selling for 60 cents would figure only 40 cents per pound. Compare this with the cost per pound of such foods as beef, pork, chicken or turkey since they are also high protein foods. Eggs, concludes the specialist, are a best food buy under present selling prices.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

Internal cork is a virus disease and is probably the most common of all sweetpotato diseases. It causes brown to black, hard corky spots of various size in the flesh of susceptible varieties of sweetpotatoes. The spots are readily detected when the potatoes are cut into thin slices. The spots are not usually found in infected roots at harvest time but make their appearance after the potatoes have been in storage. This often causes the disease to go unnoticed.

After several months in storage, roots of susceptible varieties stored above 65 degrees F. frequently are unmarketable. Those stored at 55 to 60 degrees F. show few symptoms of the disease. Proper storage, however, does not cure the diseased roots and slips produced from such seed stock will transmit the disease.
