HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Know what would happen if Congress should decide for some reason or another (do they have to have a reason?) to keep "Daylight Saving Time" as the "Standard Time" for the entire nation from now on? We would all lose one hour out of our lives—according to the clock. For a nation of almost 200 million—except for a few areas which refuse to go on the new time—that's a big bundle of hours!

As it is, next Saturday, April 29, we will lose an hour—Saturday will have only 23 hours. When 11 p. m. rolls around Saturday night, everyone will have to reset their clocks to 12 midnight—here goes that hour. But it will return next fall when we all go back on Standard Time—Congress willing.

A wag has suggested that everyone should be very careful and be in a safe place when the clock strikes 11 Saturday night. Otherwise, if they are planning for something to happen or planning to be traveling during the hour from regular 11 p. m. to 12 midnight, they just might be suspended and never reach their destination—that hour will vanish, completely.

Our old friend out on Bluff Creek has been planning on this time change for several weeks. He caught up his old Master Rooster and put him in a dark cage—trying to reset him to the new time. He says he thinks the rooster will conform—but he's afraid he'll have a mentally disturbed chicken on his hands come next fall when he tries to reset him again.

Hal Dry tries to keep on an even keel at all times, but the following item he clipped from a paper has him about ready to furl his sails and wait for a more promising breeze:

NBC newsman David Brinkley recently read the following letter-to-the-editor to his viewers: "Dear Sir: While the 'Great Society' is screaming about a steel price increase ruining the economy, look at what has happened in the last 14 months. Steel went up $2.50 a ton—much screaming and threats from the White House. Bacon went up $500 a ton—silence. Pork chops up $1.100 a ton—silence. Now, we don't eat much steel at our house, but we do like pork chops and bacon."

An annual income of $3,000 is supposed to be the dividing line between poverty and non-poverty, according to a rule of some official thumb. Therefore, one with an income of $3,000.01 per year is supposed to be living in fair to middling high cotton, while one with an income of $2,999.99 is experiencing abject poverty! A dividing line is a dividing line—there's no in-between.

There's even some talk of some sort of reverse income tax, to pay the person who does not make enough in a year to be classified as a non-poverty case enough to boost him over the line. This money would come out of the federal till and would be provided by those of us who work to try to make a little more than the $3,000 each year. Everybody's gotta be the same! It's a case of not only "all us chillun gotta have shoes," but all us chillun gotta have the same length shoe laces!

Now comes a proposed bill in Austin which would allow free tuition in state colleges for all students from families with a $4,800 minimum annual income.

Paul Harvey, the radio news commentator, suggested that all news media ignore the demonstrations by the vietniks, beatniks, Hairy Joes and Dirty Janes, and within a short time they would cease. He reasons that the limelight attracts vermin.

Crews Community Club Is Livewire Outfit, Refuses To Lose Identity

There are many small-community school buildings and gymnasiums over the country which have been vacated, and left alone to gather dust and cobwebs, dejected and forgotten in the middle of the mad race of the times. When remembered at all, they are classified as "eye sores" on the landscape. Not so for the school gymnasium in the dwindled Crews Community about 10 miles east of Winters on FM 53. The big native-stone building may appear to have been forgotten, but its walls and high ceiling still rebound the noise of activity—quite regularly.

It's all due to the interest of people living in the community, who refuse to consign the building to the dump-heap of the times. The people living in the area are tenacious in their efforts to prevent a loss of community identity. And they have an organization—the Crews Community Club—to prove it and to help in keeping the community alive.

To cap it all, the Crews Community Club received a $100 award from Farmer-Stockman magazine in 1959 for "civic improvement!" The club sponsors community drives of all types—to raise funds for different health drives, distribution of agricultural information, cemetery association meetings, and provides a place for group and family reunions. The organization worked hard to get phone service in the community, and got them in 1960.

Activities of the club are financed by voluntary contributions made during meetings on the first Saturday night of each month. No meetings are held during the three summer months.

In bygone days, the gymnasium was a popular site for area basketball tournaments—an occasional game is played there now. The Crews Community Club was organized in March, 1957. First president was Shirley Howard, and other officers were

Seniors to Present Play Friday Night In Auditorium

The Senior class of Winters High School will present "If A Man Answers," their class play, Friday evening, April 28, in the high school auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p. m. Admission will be 50 cents.

The personality of 19-year-old Chantal is split right down the middle due to her having a proper Bostonian and a former Parisian dancer as parents. When Chantal becomes engaged to three young Bostonians at the same time, her father, hopefully embarrassed, picks up his family and moves to New York. Suzanne Parks as Chantal experiences various trials and tribulations throughout the play as she and Maria Shaw, Walter Morrow, and Davey Brock assume the principle roles. Others in the play include George Mockett, Byron Anderson, Jackie Bean, Donna Gehrels, Marsha Hays, Brenda Cooper, Beverly Briley, Jan Merck, Theresa Emmert and Roselyn Kraatz.

All parents of children who will enter first grade in September are urged to bring their children to the school Monday. Supt. Williams also said the Wingate school would operate on Daylight Saving Time, beginning Monday, May 1.

Vietnam Veteran's Opinion

Vietniks, Dissenters, Draft Card Burners Give Enemy "Aid, Comfort"

An immediate and impulsive desire to "punch 'em in the nose" is the attitude of U. S. servicemen fighting in Vietnam toward the so-called vietniks, peaceniks, draft card burners and other dissenters who pull their wild demonstrations periodically in the United States.

But upon returning to the United States after their tours of duty in Vietnam, these soldiers, sailors and marines look upon these "loud-mouthed" dissenters as misfits, not worth the effort required for recognition. They have just been "raised wrong," the fighting men say.

This, too, is the opinion of a Winters man who has just returned from a tour of fighting duty in Vietnam, bringing with him a Purple Heart and an Army Commendation Medal for Heroism.

Army Private First Class Dick V. Bellis arrived in Winters late Sunday night after having been flown from Southeast Asia to Oakland, Calif., and then to Abilene.

PFC Bellis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bellis of Winters. He has been in South Vietnam since April, 1966. Prior to that he spent 11 months from March 1965, on duty with the U. S. Army in Germany, from where he volunteered for service in Vietnam.

In Vietnam, PFC Bellis was a gunner on an armored personnel carrier with the 3rd Squadron of the 4th Cavalry, 25th Infantry Division. A graduate of Winters High School, he entered the Army Dec. 10, 1964.

In Vietnam, PFC Bellis' cavalry squadron had the assignment of guarding about 40 miles of Highway No. 1 from Saigon north to Tay Ninh. The highway connects Saigon, South Vietnam, with Hanoi in North Vietnam. They were stationed about 20 miles north of Saigon at Cu Chi.

It was during a "search and destroy" mission that PFC Bellis received the wound which entitled him to the Purple Heart. His squadron, taking part in much-publicized "Operation Fort Smith," was ambushed by Viet Cong snipers on June 11, 1966. A heavy fire fight resulted, but relatively few men were hurt, Bellis said. He was hit in the chest by a .30 caliber bullet—the most serious wound received by the men of his unit in this particular action. Evacuated by helicopter to Bien Hoa hospital where he spent seven days, Bellis then was transferred to the 3rd Field Hospital at Saigon where he spent three weeks. He then was released to duty, and returned to his cavalry unit.

Bellis' troop was described as the "most mobile unit" in the cavalry organization and participated in "Operation Junction City," "Operation Cedar Falls," and many others.

Participating in one of these actions, PFC Bellis was cited for heroism in one instance. Date of the action was January 11, 1967; he received the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device. General Orders N. 541, Headquarters, 25th Infantry Division, gave these reasons for the citation:

"For heroism in connection with military operations against a hostile force: Private First Class Bellis distinguished himself by heroic actions on 11 January 1967 in the Republic of Vietnam. On that date, the third platoon, Troop B, 3d Squadron, 4th Cavalry was on a search and destroy operation in the vicinity of Hobo Woods, Republic of Vietnam, when an (Continued on page 8)

Daylight Saving Time In Effect Monday, May 1st

Most businesses and offices in Winters will observe Daylight Saving Time beginning Monday, May 1, along with the rest of Texas. This is in accordance with Congressional action which set DST but gave individual states the right to remain on Standard Time if they so desired. Legislation to keep Texas on Standard Time failed to pass, thus moving the state into the ranks of most states to observe DST.

Superintendent of Schools Robert Christian announced this week that the Winters schools will be on the new time effective Monday. This same action was taken by the Wingate schools.

Crews Community Club Is Livewire Outfit, Refuses To Lose Identity

There are many small-community school buildings and gymnasiums over the country which have been vacated, and left alone to gather dust and cobwebs, dejected and forgotten in the middle of the mad race of the times. When remembered at all, they are classified as "eye sores" on the landscape.

Not so for the school gymnasium in the dwindled Crews Community about 10 miles east of Winters on FM 53. The big native-stone building may appear to have been forgotten, but its walls and high ceiling still rebound the noise of activity—quite regularly.

It's all due to the interest of people living in the community, who refuse to consign the building to the dump-heap of the times. The people living in the area are tenacious in their efforts to prevent a loss of community identity. And they have an organization—the Crews Community Club—to prove it and to help in keeping the community alive.

To cap it all, the Crews Community Club received a $100 award from Farmer-Stockman magazine in 1959 for "civic improvement."

The club sponsors community drives of all types—to raise funds for different health drives, distribution of agricultural information, cemetery association meetings, and provides a place for group and family reunions. The organization worked hard to get phone service in the community, and got them in 1960.

Activities of the club are financed by voluntary contributions made during meetings on the first Saturday night of each month. No meetings are held during the three summer months.

In bygone days, the gymnasium was a popular site for area basketball tournaments—an occasional game is played there now.

The Crews Community Club was organized in March, 1957. First president was Shirley Howard, and other officers were

Seniors to Present Play Friday Night In Auditorium

The Senior class of Winters High School will present "If A Man Answers," their class play, Friday evening, April 28, in the high school auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p. m. Admission will be 50 cents.

The personality of 19-year-old Chantal is split right down the middle due to her having a proper Bostonian and a former Parisian dancer as parents. When Chantal becomes engaged to three young Bostonians at the same time, her father, hopelessly embarrassed, picks up his family and moves to New York.

Suzanne Parks as Chantal experiences various trials and tribulations throughout the play as she and Maria Shaw, Walter Morrow, and Davey Brock assume the principle roles. Others in the play include George Mostad, Byron Anderson, Jackie Bean, Donna Gehrels, Marsha Hays, Brenda Cooper, Beverly Briley, Jan Merck, Theresa Emmert and Roselyn Kraatz.

Pre-School Meet For All Wingate First Graders

A meeting of all children who will be in the first grade in the Wingate School for the first time next September will be held at the school Monday, May 1, Superintendent James Williams announced this week.

The children will spend the entire school day at school, from 8 a. m. until 3 p. m., and will have lunch in the cafeteria.

The county school nurse, Mrs. Watley of Ballinger, will be at the school to give preliminary eye and ear examinations, and check on smallpox vaccinations, the superintendent said.

All parents of children who will enter first grade in September are urged to bring their children to the school Monday.

Supt. Williams also said the Wingate school would operate on Daylight Saving Time, beginning Monday, May 1.

Bellis' troop was described as the "most mobile unit" in the cavalry organization and participated in "Operation Junction City," "Operation Cedar Falls," and many others.

Participating in one of these actions, PFC Bellis was cited for heroism in one instance. Date of the action was January 11, 1967; he received the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device, General Orders No. 541, Headquarters, 25th Infantry Division, gave these reasons for the citation:

Vietnam Veteran's Opinion

Vietniks, Dissenters, Draft Card Burners Give Enemy "Aid, Comfort"

An immediate and impulsive desire to "punch 'em in the nose" is the attitude of U. S. servicemen fighting in Vietnam toward the so-called vietniks, peaceniks, draft card burners and other dissenters who pull their wild demonstrations periodically in the United States.

But upon returning to the United States after their tours of duty in Vietnam, these soldiers, sailors and marines look upon these "loud-mouthed" dissenters as misfits, not worth the effort required for recognition. They have just been "raised wrong," the fighting men say.

This, too, is the opinion of a Winters man who has just returned from a tour of fighting duty in Vietnam, bringing with him a Purple Heart and an Army Commendation Medal for Heroism.

Army Private First Class Dick V. Bellis arrived in Winters late Sunday night after having been flown from Southeast Asia to Oakland, Calif., and then to Abilene.

PFC Bellis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bellis of Winters. He has been in South Vietnam since April, 1966. Prior to that he spent 11 months, from March 1965, on duty with the U. S. Army in Germany, from where he volunteered for service in Vietnam.

In Vietnam, PFC Bellis was a gunner on an armored personnel carrier with the 3rd Squadron of the 4th Cavalry, 25th Infantry Division. A graduate of Winters High School, he entered the Army Dec. 10, 1964.

In Vietnam, PFC Bellis' cavalry squadron had the assignment of guarding about 40 miles of Highway No. 1 from Saigon north to Tay Ninh. The highway connects Saigon, South Vietnam, with Hanoi in North Vietnam. They were stationed about 20 miles north of Saigon at Cu Chi.

It was during a "search and destroy" mission that PFC Bellis received the wound which entitled him to the Purple Heart. His squadron, taking part in much-publicized "Operation Fort Smith," was ambushed by Viet Cong snipers on June 11, 1966. A heavy fire fight resulted, but relatively few men were hurt, Bellis said. He was hit in the chest by a .30 caliber bullet—the most serious wound received by the men of his unit in this particular action. Evacuated by helicopter to Bien Hoa hospital where he spent seven days, Bellis then was transferred to the 3rd Field Hospital at Saigon where he spent three weeks. He then was released to duty, and returned to his cavalry unit.

Bellis' troop was described as the "most mobile unit" in the cavalry organization and participated in "Operation Junction City," "Operation Cedar Falls," and many others.

Participating in one of these actions, PFC Bellis was cited for heroism in one instance. Date of the action was January 11, 1967; he received the Army Commendation Medal with "V" Device, General Orders No. 541, Headquarters, 25th Infantry Division, gave these reasons for the citation:

Daylight Saving Time In Effect Monday, May 1st

Most businesses and offices in Winters will observe Daylight Saving Time beginning Monday, May 1, along with the rest of Texas. This is in accordance with Congressional action which set DST but gave individual states the right to remain on Standard Time if they so desired. Legislation to keep Texas on Standard Time failed to pass, thus moving the state into the ranks of most states to observe DST.

Superintendent of Schools Robert Christian announced this week that the Winters schools will be on the new time effective Monday. This same action was taken by the Wingate schools.

Gas is as modern as the supersonic SST it may one day propel.

It's still a little early to reserve a seat, but the Mach 3 transport is just around the corner. And when you're winging off to Calcutta at over 2000 mph, liquid natural gas may be the fuel. It's superior to kerosene type JP fuels in many ways, and reduces operating costs about 30%. One more reason why gas is today's energy source for tomorrow's energy needs. Right for the SST... safe, clean gas energy is right for your home. Lone Star Gas belief that every American should be able to speak in a foreign tongue. Due to increased communication between nations, a mutual understanding conducted by means of a common language is essential.

As long as a century ago, Americans had no need to communicate with foreign countries in the foreign tongue. The United States was comparatively isolated from the rest of the world in the field of communication. The only people who really needed the ability to speak in a foreign language were ambassadors, and perhaps those who traveled extensively. In fact, Latin was the main foreign language taught in schools. This may have helped the student to read and write better, but it certainly did not contribute to international understanding.

When such great strides in communication as the Transatlantic Cable, faster ships, and later radio, airplanes, and satellites, were taken, the United States realized the importance of conducting relations with other countries in the foreign language. Thus, the necessity of increased understanding among nations is the basis upon which I present my opinion.

This is why all Americans, and not just ambassadors and other government officials, should strive to learn at least one foreign language. The Peace Corps, for example, is an organization in which people from all walks of life volunteer to help those in underprivileged countries. This organization requires that its members have an extensive knowledge of the language, as well as the history and culture, of the land where they will serve. The average individual does not know when he may be required, for some reason or another, to perform some duty in a foreign country. A knowledge of one or more foreign tongues may thus be very useful.

The ability of an American to speak in another language creates respect in the eyes of the natives of the particular country. Many nations, such as France and Germany, have simply met us on our own terms and teach English in their schools. Many smaller and less developed countries, however, do not have the facilities for such education. Consequently, they resent Americans who come into their land, introduce English into the land's schools, and cause the English language to replace their own tongue. In a world in which Communist and free lands alike are literally bidding upon non-aligned countries, it is very important that we, as Americans, gain these nations' complete respect and understanding by conducting relations in their own, familiar language.

Study of another language necessarily includes some study of the particular country's background, custom, and other aspects of its culture. The country's outlook and its condition are reflected in the type of literature it produces. If each American could gain a perception knowledge of these factors, as well as of the language itself, then mutual understanding between our country and others could be greatly increased.

Knowledge of the language of various important countries, such as Russia and China, is vitally important in this critical period of world affairs. In fact, proficiency in these tongues may create many job opportunities in the fields of government relations, communication, and trade. The importance of a common means of conducting affairs cannot be denied when applied to cold war strategy. Interested citizens should be aware of this fact.

In a world which is steadily growing smaller, the idea of the importance of continual communication cannot be emphasized enough. I feel that the means of accomplishing this goal is through the study of foreign language. An impressive structure in the recent New York World's Fair was the Unisphere, a huge globe representing man's dream of world peace and understanding. A knowledge of at least one foreign language, possessed by every American, could make this age-old dream come true.

knowing. But his expression is an indication that his answer is restrained and tempered by his upbringing and training.

When the suggestion which has been put forward by some that these dissenters should be given a rifle and put on the Vietnam firing line, is mentioned, PFC Bellis definitely disagrees. "everybody who is on the firing line is afraid," he said, "and none of the boys would want to have one of these beatniks and dissenters assigned to protect his flank in a fire fight."

After a 45-day leave at home, PFC Bellis, who has about eight months to serve in the Army, will report for duty at Fort Hood. After he is discharged he will go to college, he said. He plans to study chiropractic, following in the footsteps of his father.

One of the last questions which could have been asked of Bellis: With only a few months left to serve before discharge, would he complain loudly if suddenly ordered to return to Vietnam? The question was unasked, but the answer was on his face and in his reactions as he talked about his Vietnam duty. Some of his buddies still are fighting it out in the jungles, in the mud of the rice paddies, and across the tunnel-pocked terrain of South Vietnam. His training and background are evident. . . .

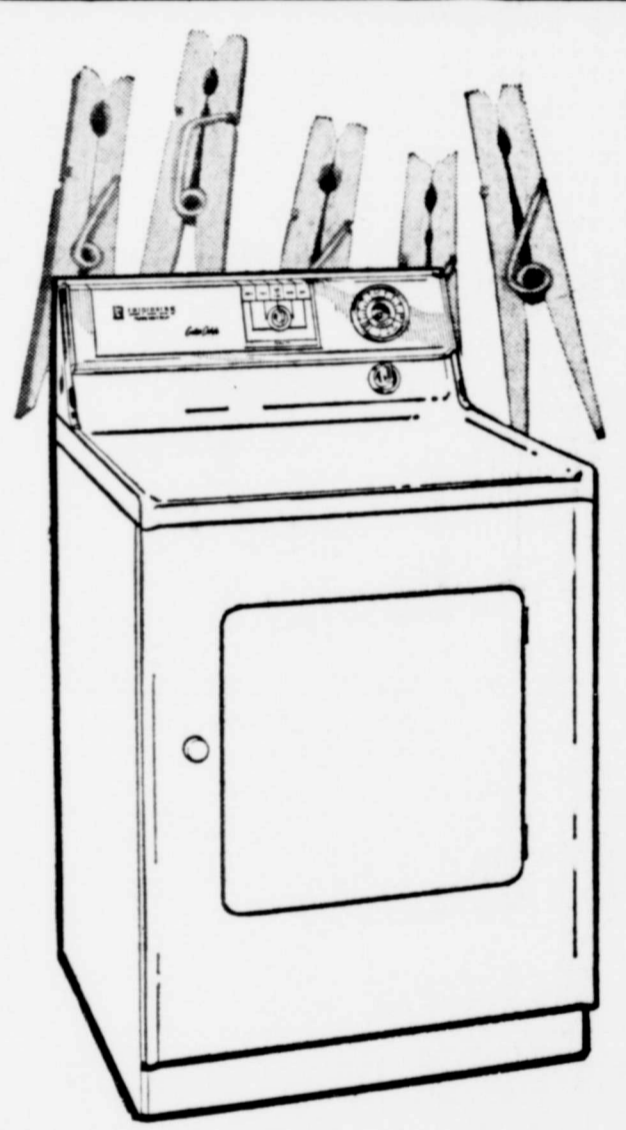

What about the vietniks, draft card burners and dissenters? Bellis, in concert with other returning fighting men, says the words and actions of these "misfits" does give "aid and comfort to the enemy." Although the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are being militarily beaten in the overall operation, "their morale is high and they think they can win because they think the United States is divided." The dissenters do a great disservice to the fighting men of the United States, and Bellis indicated that the U. S. servicemen think something should be done about it. When asked what he thinks should be done, he shrugs an admission of not
