HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Too many of us, too much of the time, take our schools for granted. Too much of the time, when we do think about the schools (when we pay our taxes or when the team is playing at home this week) they are inanimate objects, structures of brick and steel and concrete, just breaks in the landscapes of our towns and communities. When in reality, our schools are living and pulsing facts of life; centers around which our communities orbit and from which are obtained the life and brains and continuity of our system.

So it is refreshing to once in a while pull up short and take another good look at our schools, and the manner in which they are operated, and to realize the importance of their position.

The Lions Club recently has had an opportunity to take a refreshing look at our local school system—if not refreshing, then at least educational. Superintendent of Schools Carroll Tatom gave the organization's members a comprehensive report on the operation of the schools, their goals and their successes. It's very easy to just report that "our schools open and close each day at designated times, and we have so many students, and will graduate so many seniors this year." It takes some thought and work and study to wrap up all the small items and put the whole package across so that everyone has a pretty good understanding of just what is going on within those walls of concrete and brick and steel.

For instance, just what kind of product is being turned out? We think some of the following information will explain in a way just what is being done—and we should all take cognizance of the importance of this information:

Students in the Winters School periodically are given tests to determine their progress; the answers are compared with national averages. It is encouraging to note the standing.

In the latest National Educational Development Tests, 1968 seniors were graded as follows: (First figure is the local Standard Scores; figures in parenthesis are National Norms. Average Standard Scores, for the different subjects tested): English Usage 15.6 (14); Math Usage 14.9 (12.5); Social Studies Reading 15.5 (13); National Science Reading 15.5 (13.5); Word Usage 16.1 (14.5); Composite 15.5 (13.6).

In the latest Iowa Tests of Educational Development, the same comparison is made. Seniors 1969 were tested, and were graded with the following results: (The National Percentile Norm for all areas was listed at 50): Background Social Studies 54; Background Math Science 55; Correctness of Expression 68; Quantitative (Math) Thinking 68; Reading Social Studies 73; Reading Natural Science 62; Reading Literature 62; General Vocabulary 57; Composite of Eight Tests 67.

Seniors 1970 Percentile Norms (National Percentile Norms 50) Background Social Studies 54; Background Math Science 55; Correctness of Expression 68; Quantitative Thinking 63; Reading Social Studies 69; Reading Natural Science 69; Reading Literature 62; General Vocabulary 57; Composite 67.

These figures would indicate that our local students are progressing on a higher level than the national average. This is, of course, commendable; but our educators are constantly striving to reach even higher plateaus.

It could be said that these comparisons mean nothing, because so many less-progressive schools which are included in the figuring serve to lower the National Norm. This is true, to some extent. However, the finished product tells the story; and it has been stated for some time that the percentage of students finishing local schools and entering college and finishing is one of the highest in the state. We should be proud of that fact; but we cannot afford to rest; a short nap could wipe away an entire decade of progress.

Loraine Shores is one of the candidates for graduation from Howard Payne College. Mrs. Shores will receive her bachelor of arts degree in Speech with teaching certification in English and Reading. She is also one of the students who is recognized on the President's List for the fall semester. Students must obtain a 3.0 average with no grade lower than an A to achieve the President's List.

Mrs. Shores is now teaching Speech at Mary Hoge Junior High School in Weslaco, Texas. She is a member of Texas Educational Teacher's Association, National Educational Association, Kappa Delta Pi, Alpha Chi, Theta Alpha Phi, and is Young Woman's Auxiliary Director of the Heart of Texas Baptist Encampment.

The Rev. and Mrs. Shores are working in the Baptist Rio Grande Valley Missions. They have two sons, Dexter and Delfer.

Many Projects Were Organized Here, And March of Dimes Went Over Goal

When the annual March of Dimes campaign was being organized and planned last fall, a goal of $1500.00 was set for Winters.

Several projects were planned and committee workers assigned. Bad weather came along to slow down some of the special projects, but they were rescheduled and completed.

The campaign came to a close last week, and the contributions were totaled. Result, the goal people of Winters contributed was exceeded by $308.13—the $1808.13 in this drive to raise money for the fight against birth defects.

Mrs. David Dobbins was MOD chairman for the drive locally. Among those who assisted her were Mrs. Ted Meyer, Mothers' March chair-

17th District Congressman

Burleson Spoke Here Saturday

Omar Burleson of Anson, Congressman from the 17th Texas Congressional District, said Saturday afternoon that the actions of the overall Congress of the United States "has not reflected the true sentiments and judgments of the people in our part of the country."

But he added that there are "some hopeful signs" that the "headlong rush into greater spending and greater expansion of government" may be on the decline. He said that for the "past several years, there has been so much legislation passed that we really haven't been able to absorb it. It takes a certain public appetite to absorb some of this stuff." But, nevertheless, he said, there are some signs that there will be a lessening of expansion on the part of government.

Congressman Burleson spoke to a crowd of more than a hundred who attended an informal coffee in his honor at Huffman House in Winters Saturday afternoon. The coffee was sponsored by local businessmen and friends of the Congressman. Attending the affair were people from Winters, North Runnels County, Ballinger, and other parts of the 17th District. R. C. Thomas introduced the Congressman.

The Congressman said that it has been his intent to visit and speak with as many of the people as possible in his district, and that in his work in the nation's capitol he endeavored to reflect the wishes of these people. The 17th District encompasses 31 counties, about 30,000 square miles, populated by about 440,000 people.

When asked if he thought the President would get his "ten percent surcharge," Congressman Burleson replied, "It would be my guess that there will be a tax increase, months ahead. Right now—and it would be purely a guess—I would surmise an eight percent surcharge. And I think this will be coupled with several conditions... among them comparable cut in outlays and spending. I think that the Congress has already laid down the conditions that along with the tax increase, we must have a comparable reduction in expenditures."

Concerning the internal strife

in this country, the Congressman said "we've got to keep the thing in hand without taking any of our freedoms away from us." Then he said that he did not think that the Vietnam question, as serious as it is, is going to be nearly as demanding as the issue that "people want order in this country." The internal strife will be one of the biggest issues in this year's election, he indicated. He pointed out that the President had said there "is a restlessness in the land," and agreed that there is but that he thought that "our restlessness is because of that restlessness" (on the part of extreme elements). Supreme Court decisions within the past few years has been root of a lot of our domestic troubles, Cong. Burleson said. Also, he said, many of the riots and demonstrations witnessed in this country in the past few months have approached a state of anarchy. He said that something must be done about it; there has to be order in the streets.

On Vietnam, Burleson said he personally thought "we should have already seen it through... should have been hitting them where it hurts worse, and I don't think we could live with our own conscience if we don't do everything possible to protect every American man over there, and to do that is to hit the vital installations in North Vietnam. It's a calculated risk." He said he has thought all along that we should have had the harbor of Haiphong mined.

Walter Grubbs of Abilene and Dale King of Anson, members of the Congressman's district staff, accompanied him to Winters for the meeting.

Former Residents Spend Vacation In Guatemala Recently

Mr. and Mrs. Truett Nance, former residents of Winters, now living at San Rafael, California, spent their vacation recently in Guatemala visiting with friends. In a letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gooch, Mrs. Nance tells of interesting sights they saw while on vacation.

She describes the home of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll, "as one of the most functional, lovely, fun homes I've ever seen." Within minutes I counted 8 different, interesting places to eat—we just caught up on visiting, toured the house and grounds then went to bed for a good night's sleep.

"On Sunday 3 other couples joined us on a tour of some old Indian ruins over the worst road I have seen in a long time. At one spot we had to cross the river and finally found the ruins. They are built pyramid-style on top of a hill. It was hot and dusty and when we found a lovely green meadow, it was a perfect spot for a picnic. On the way back we stopped in a little village where the people were having a religious procession that was very interesting."

In a party of 10, they took a flight in the Air Attache plane to the town of Quesaltenango for lunch. "We got a very close look at the volcanoes as John flew very near to make sure we saw them. Quesaltenango is the second largest city in Guatemala and quite small." "On Wednesday the four of us packed a few clothes and drove to another town called Chichicastenango, another one of those beautiful little Indian villages high in the mountains of Guatemala. All along the way we passed Indians carrying heavy big bundles of their wares, they were on their way to Chi-Chi as their market day is Thursday.

"In this dirty little town we found the most beautiful Inn, called the Mayan Inn, very Indian in style and design, clean as a pin and beautiful grounds around. We shopped all morning and bought many goodies, shirts for the boys and all sorts of things. That afternoon we drove to Lake Atitlan, which one could compare with Lake Tahoe. The little hotel was just a dream, grounds just bursting with blooming poinsettias and the water just as blue as could be, with volcanoes rising on the other side of the lake which is 16 miles across.

"On Friday after a good breakfast we boarded a small boat, crowded with passengers for a trip across the lake to an Indian village called Santiago. Here we watched the women weaving the different types of clothing they wear. We went inside the church, took pictures of the area, watched the women down at the edge of the water washing their clothes on the rocks. It had been a wonderful three days.

"Our hostess gave a party for us on Saturday. It was a lovely party and we met all sorts of people, from the Guatemalan Colonel, head of their air force,

Landowners Sign For Conservation Plans On 9,200 Acres In SCS District

Jake Presley, chairman of the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, said conservation work carried out for the past six months has been good. He said the wet weather has slowed down work on some practices such as terraces, diversion terraces, and farm ponds. However, with the good underground moisture, this should be offset this spring by some work that cooperators of the district are planning to do, such as reseeding grass on worn out rangeland and cropland, planting tame pastures, and brush control.

Woodrow Hoffman, Work Unit Conservationist, of the Soil Conservation Service, said the local SCS records for the past six months show that 18 landowners signed agreements with the district to develop a conservation plan on 9,200 acres. And, 19 developed a complete plan with technical help from the SCS on 9,000 acres. Then there were 19 who revised their conservation plans on 11,800 acres.

Hoffman said for the same period, eleven district cooperators on 5,000 acres, signed contracts with the SCS to carry out their conservation program under the Great Plains Conservation Program. He said funds for the GPCP have been used up and it will probably be July 1, or later, before any more money is available for this program.

As for individual conservation practices applied for this period, Hoffman said, a conservation cropping system was carried out for the first time on 16,000 acres, management of crop stubble on 10,000 acres and contour farming on 11,000 acres. For the more permanent type practices, he said, 1 and 1-2 miles of diversion terraces were constructed, 41 miles of parallel terraces, 9 farm ponds and 56 acres of waterways were established to grass.

Around and around goes the Texas Liquor Control Board inquiry—and where it stops nobody knows.

Threatened with disclosures that would "blow the top off" irregularities in operations of the board heard just enough to rattle its windows at a one-day public hearing here.

Widely-heralded fact-finding proceedings before the three-member board developed little evidence.

But the probe, according to LCB Chairman W. D. Noel of Odessa and First Assistant Atty. Gen. Nola White, Coordinator, will continue behind the scenes.

Gov. John Connally said the fact that only five witnesses showed up for the hearing (when 500 had been invited) was "very disappointing."

Ex-inspector William Groce and Raymond Valenta, among seven Dallas LCB employees fired on December 13, provided most of the testimony. They denied any wrongdoing and demanded exoneration of any part in alleged rigged sale of a confiscated $78 truck and the reported trading of 11 bottles of confiscated liquor to an auto painter.

Dallas Assistant Dist. Atty. William F. Alexander repeatedly questioned Groce and Valenta about their association with a 417-pound private investigator named Smokey Joe Smith. Smith is under indictment on charges growing out of alleged efforts to "fix" liquor license suspensions.

That some partiality was shown in enforcing liquor laws in the Dallas area, was hinted by the ousted inspectors. But they denied pressure to put anybody out of business or any knowledge of license suspension reductions by the board's state headquarters.

White commented after the hearing that no real evidence of wrongdoing developed. Further hearings in Jasper, Dallas, Odessa and Tyler have been suggested.

Meanwhile, new fuel was thrown on the fire by the firing or resignation of the board's supervisor of investigation, John W. Crank. Crank said he quit because he was "fed up." The board said he was relieved of his duties.

BUDGET

State agencies now are in the process of presenting their 1968-69 budget requests to the Legislative Budget Board and the Governor's Budget Office.

Staffers in these offices have indicated they can be ready for a special legislative session by the end of February if that time should strike the fancy of Governor Connally.

Budget office personnel are confining their attention to agencies offering major changes in their proposals over funds allocated for fiscal 1968.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

House Speaker Ben Barnes and California Speaker Jesse Unruh have been named co-chairmen of a new Council of State Government Committee on Legislative Modernization.

Committee is to develop a series of new techniques to cope with growing problems facing state legislative bodies.

Danny Burger of La Marque has been appointed manager of the $400,000,000 Texas Water Development Fund, succeeding Howard B. Boswell, who has moved up to executive director of the Water Development Board.

Howard Rose, Austin attorney, has been elected chairman of the Texas Water Quality Board.

Miss Katherine Ard. Conroe, will serve as a field consultant for Texas State Library in a 33-county Southwest Texas area.

Governor Connally appointed former Congressman Ed Gossett of Dallas judge of County Criminal District Court No. 5. He succeeds the late Judge A. D. Bowie.

SHORT SNORTS

Republican leadership has agreed on Wichita Falls attorney Paul W. Eggers, 48, a political unknown, as its preferred GOP candidate for governor. Two other Republicans, John Trice of Dallas, and Wallace Sisk of Houston already had filed.

Texas State Teachers Association is polling legislative candidates on how they stand on others pay raise for teachers.—State Public Safety Commission announced a far-reaching new statewide crackdown on crime, with state officers moving in where local law enforcement efforts bog down. Last year Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin and his staff of 100 attorneys won 98.5 per cent of the department's lawsuits, which it tried.—Score: 4,095 cases won, 65 lost.—Water Development Board sold a $15,000,000 bond issue to a syndicate headed by a Chicago bank —Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon has filed for reelection to that post.

MEDICAL — DENTAL SCHOOLS NEEDED

At least one and maybe two new medical and dental schools should be authorized by the Legislature next year, according to the Legislative Budget Board.

Higher Education Commissioner Jack K. Williams reported need for one new institution in each category.

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith said at least two each should be authorized.

Higher Education Coordinating Board has favored putting a medical school in Houston and a dental school in Dallas. Texas Dental Association favors San Antonio for the dental school since a medical school already is there.

The Feast of Lanterns is part of the Chinese celebration of the New Year.

Bridal Shower
To Honor Miss
Shelby Shedd

A bridal shower to honor Miss Shelby Ann Shedd has been planned at the Shep Community Center at 7:30 p. m. Saturday, February 24.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mardell Shedd. Her fiancé is Ronnie Bolls, now serving with the U. S. Marine Corps in California.

Most counties in Texas now have a special deer-hunting season for archers. But no sport is less understood and free of prejudice than bow hunting.

Far too many people do not understand the sport. They do not comprehend what it is all about. Tendency is to overrate the bow-and-arrow as a weapon of destruction.

Make no mistake about it, the modern bow-and-arrow is lethal. Any resemblance between the bow that the hunter carries today and the one employed by Indians is mere coincidence. The modern bow is capable of driving an arrow through any animal that walks.

Yet it is overrated because many people, not familiar with the weapon, think all a person must do is aim it at a deer, let fly and he's got a dead animal on the ground.

Oh, if it were only that simple!

An outdoorsman once told me that he was against the bow-and-arrow because it would be the ideal weapon for the poacher. A man can drive down the road, spot a deer, let fly with the noiseless weapon, and soon be gone with his dead deer without anyone knowing about it.

Hogwash. No poacher is going to bother with the bow-and-arrow. It is too complex, too difficult, and too unsure. Very few of the deer shot at with arrows are hit.

Let's examine some of the bow-hunters' problems:

First, he must be close to his quarry, preferably within 25 yards or less. This immediately eliminates most hunters. Few have the patience, tenacity and skill to approach this close to a deer. It is much easier to stand off at 100-plus yards and down the animal with a long range rifle equipped with a scope.

But just getting close to the animal doesn't assure a kill. Far from it. Main thing is that the archer must get off his shot undetected. Not only must he get close to the deer, he must shoot without the animal knowing he is anywhere around.

A spooky deer is apt to see the movement when the bow is raised for a shot and the arrow drawn, or it will "jump the string" on the shot. Because sound travels faster than the arrow, a deer often hears the audible twang of the bow string a split-second before the projectile arrives, and jumps instantly. Result: the arrow passes by harmlessly.

But suppose everything falls into place. The archer gets close and remains undetected. A sure thing. Nope. Many a deer has been missed under such circumstances.

A bow-and-arrow is much more difficult to master than a rifle. It requires "balanced tackle" and hours and hours of practice. Even so, the slightest mistake at the moment of the shot will result in a miss.

Unlike a rifle which simply is aimed and the trigger squeezed, shooting the bow-and-arrow involves many intricate steps. The arrow must be nulled full length every time. The archer must anchor the arrow somewhere against his face. The release must be smooth. If he violates any of these fundamentals, no two shots will then be alike. A poor release, for example, might jerk the arrow one way or the other, or a poor anchor (the spot where the arrow is placed against the face for aiming) might result in a poor sight pattern and consequently a miss.

Bowhunting is an involved sport, but a fascinating and challenging one. In bowhunting the accent is on the stalk rather than the kill. It is hunting as hunting was meant to be. That is one reason, no doubt, why its popularity is growing phenomenally.

There is only one thing in the world of which everyone thinks he has enough, and that is intelligence.

Remember that what you believe will depend very much on what you are.

Keep your words soft and sweet: you never know when you will have to eat them.

LCB-DPS MERGER PROPOSED
Former Attorney General Waggoner Carr, now a candidate for governor, suggests merging the Texas Liquor Control Board with the State Department of Public Safety.

In speaking at a Junior Chamber of Commerce banquet here Carr said he learned to respect the LCB and its agents when he was an assistant county attorney in Lubbock with the job of helping to enforce liquor laws. Carr says LCB agents are the "step-child" of other law enforcement agencies, and are paid less than other officers. He contends they need higher pay and better state transportation and this could be accomplished by merging the two agencies.

1809 Abraham Lincoln 1865

An outstanding trait in the character of Lincoln was his self-reliance. He knew hardships and many disappointments, but these only better fitted him for the later and greater work he was destined to perform.

More than any other American he symbolizes the freedom, equality and justice which are inherent in our democracy. His birthday anniversary gives us another opportunity to give careful thought for those basic elements in our way of life for which he stood—and which we should ever endeavor to preserve.

Everyone is for peace—at all times—in all places. American people inherently make for a peaceful nation. We have never fought for or sought after territorial gain.

Because we are of this nature, we lean over backwards to attain peaceful solutions.

With all the risk involved in Vietnam and other places where a confrontation with adversaries has occurred, a greater danger begins when the time for peace talks approaches.

The time of peacemaking is probably approaching in Vietnam and may have come sooner except for the incident to the Ship Pueblo off the coast of North Korea. Even with this, there are indications that negotiations may, in the not too distant future, be brought about.

The risks involved are real and certain. Captured documents from the North Vietnamese give the strongest clues.

These documents indicate that when talks begin and military action subsides, is the time for them to recoup their positions and recover from damages inflicted.

Captured documents show that the Viet Cong troops in the south and the Viet Cong political organization are now being promised settlement by "coalition" at some moment in 1968. These promises are given credit for the recent sharp drop-off in numbers of defectors from the Viet Cong. When they are promised early peace by "coalition," and the coalition is that which promises communist domination, defections could not be expected.

As desirable as peace is, and as diligently as the Administration is seeking it, it gives encouragement to the other side that we may be willing to negotiate away the gains we have made.

Seemingly, too many people have a completely wrong idea of negotiation as conceived by the Communists and as conceived by us.

With the United States, negotiation means that both parties want to reach solutions, but naturally, each seeks an advantage which might be the case in a horse trade, the end of a war, or anything else.

From past observations we should know that the Communists look to negotiations with the hope of not particularly bringing about peace, but to

Hard Winter For WHS Blizzards, Another Loss

The long hard winter for the Blizzards continued Friday evening at Blizzard gym as the Winters basketballers dropped their seventh District 5AA contest to the Stamford Bulldogs by the score of 63-57.

The last three quarters of the contest were played on even terms with each team scoring 44 points. The difference in the game was in the first quarter as the Bulldogs outscored the Blizzards 19-13. The Blizzards had four boys hitting in double figures with Ronny Reel scoring 14, Don Killough 13, Larry Cook 12, and Dan Killough 10.

The Blizzard B team took their 18th win against 6 losses by cooling the Bulldog B team 65 to 52. It was the Blizzards all the way as Johnny Cathey hit for 16 points, Gary Antille scored 15, Reese McCuiston 10, Bill Grantz 8, Stan Wilson and Tommy Jones 6 each, and Robert Moore 4. It would mean that our men in the line will then have a new war on their hands. Those who are demanding a peaceful negotiation loudest without better assurances from the Communists of a desire for peace, could have the blood of our fighting men on their hands.

Mrs. Juanita O'Connor's Weekly Home Demonstration Agent's Column

Extension clothing specialists at Texas A&M University report that homemakers have problems with bonded fabric. Bonded fabric is made by taking two face fabrics and binding them together with an adhesive.

This built-in-facing should not substitute for lining a garment. The bonded fabric acts as backing but not a lining. A popular misconception is that separated bonded fabrics can be re-bonded by pressing with a warm iron. However, once separation occurs, the bonded fabric cannot be re-sealed by pressing, says Mrs. O'Connor.

They often cause trouble because one of the fabrics gives more. Take care when purchasing bonded fabric or ready-made garments of the material. Know how to care for the garment. In most cases, you run the risk of separation when you have your garment drycleaned. One study showed that often separation of bonded fabrics will occur in the second or third cleaning. A news story related a woman's experience with a high-styled coat which she sent to be drycleaned. Upon its return it looked unpressed and she sent it back to the cleaners. They discovered the drycleaning solvent caused partial separation of the bonded fabric. The ruined coat was returned to the store, the money refunded and the manufacturer held responsible. But it is easier not to make the poor choice in the first place, the woman learned.

Oranged:

Oranges play an important part in the family health as one of the best sources of vitamin C. Since the body cannot store this nutrient, oranges served regularly can help provide daily requirement. For the most satisfaction, buy the orange variety that is tailored to your needs, says Mrs. O'Connor. The Navel variety is orange to deep orange in color, smooth, thick-skinned, seedless, easy to peel and section. You can easily identify this variety by the small navel formation on one end. Its main use is for sections and out-of-hand eating.

The Temple orange is fire-red orange in color, its skin is like that of a tangerine and it has a sweet distinctive flavor. It divides easily into sections and is a good choice for salad and dessert dishes.

The Pineapple orange is medium to large in size, deep orange in color with a reddish tinge and has large and numerous seeds and a definite pineapple aromas. Use this orange for juice.

The Valencia orange has thin rather smooth skin and fewer seeds than the other juice oranges. It is medium to large in size, deep golden orange in color and juicy, solid and heavy for its size. The Valencia is of special value because it ripens late in the season and is available after the other varieties are off the market. It is a multipurpose orange and can be used for slices and sections as well as for juice.

An orange can be served whole, or peeled and sectioned for any easy dessert. Broiled orange halves make a different meat garnish. Appetizers and salads containing fresh oranges and other fruits are very tasty.

Quality oranges are firm and heavy for their size, with smooth, thin skin. Skin color does not indicate ripeness or inner color of fruit. Most surface scars and russet spots do not affect flavor or juiciness unless the oranges have soft spots or are wet. Larger oranges usually are better buys because they have more juice and more sections. But size does not affect quality.

The best place to find a helping hand is at the end of your arm.
