HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

B. M. Talley, who farms north of Winters, brought in to Smith Drug Store Saturday, a big muskmelon he had raised. To make a permanent record, to be used after the melon had been eaten, he tagged it with a card giving the weight, date, etc., then had some pictures taken. The muskmelon weighed in at 13 pounds; he said there were others of comparable size.

You can't hardly get the old-time muskmelons any more—at least in this immediate area, commercially. At least we haven't spotted any on the shelves of stores and fruit-stands. The cantaloupe (a variety of muskmelon) is the highly commercialized melon, and seems to have kept the muskmelon down. The cantaloupe is almost perfectly round, ball-shaped, developed especially for the table trade these days. Some people still plant the regular muskmelon, though, as Mr. Talley did—and they may be commercialized in some localities, still. The regular muskmelon is a long-shaped melon, and to us has a different taste. Some of them have the lacy rind, but the ones we remember so well had a yellow-orange, smooth rind, and often grew to more than a foot long. We used to always pick them over the cantaloupe, because of the size and the juicier-sweeter taste.

Webster says the "muskmelon" is "any of several varieties of juicy, edible fruits of a trailing herb (Cucumis melo) of the gourd family," and the "Cantaloupe" as "a variety of muskmelon (Cucumis melo cantalupensis), having a ribbed, warty rind and sweet orange flesh. Named after Cantalupo, Italian castle where first grown in Europe."

Back years ago, before melon (cantaloupe) farming became a big industry, most farmers planted muskmelons along with the corn, maize, cane, and cotton, or just reserved a few rows in the field for the muskmelons and watermelons. Many times the cantaloupe—the round ones—and the muskmelon—the long ones—were mixed, seeds saved over from the previous year—and as we remember you might get just about any kind of melon from the same patch. We remember, though, that planters most all of the time were careful not to plant their muskmelons near areas where the wild gourds grew. It was said—and maybe with good reason—that if wild gourds came up with the muskmelons, the whole crop would revert to gourds. We do know that at times we'd run across what looked like a good muskmelon patch, where wild gourds also grew, only to cut into one and find the taste not to our liking.

The same warning was given when planting watermelons, as we remember—be careful not to plant the melons where the wild "piemelons" grew, or the whole crop would revert to piemelons. Others will remember the piemelon as we do; there probably are wild patches of this pest around the area now. Resembling the watermelon on the outside, they were good for nothing except perhaps hog feed, but you had to chop them up with an axe, they were so hard. Green inside, they did make pretty good preserves if handled right, though. Can't find "piemelon" in our Webster's, but they, too, are a member of the gourd family, and may be called something else in other localities.

Back to muskmelons—we planted what we thought were cantaloupes in our garden in the spring. The package of seeds was labeled cantaloupes, and the picture on the package was round, just like the cantaloupes we buy over the counter. But

Mrs. Lloyd Bentsen Here Wednesday A.M.

A vivacious, seemingly untiring "B. A." Bentsen—whose husband, Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., is Democratic nominee for U. S. Senator from Texas—paused in Winters Wednesday morning during her tour of Texas Forts Trails, winning more friends for herself and possible votes for her husband.

Accompanied by several other ladies, wives of State political office holders and friends, Mrs. Bentsen attended a coffee in her honor at Huffman House at 8:30 Wednesday, and met upwards of 50 Winters voters.

Obviously weary from a hectic round of coffees, teas and receptions during the past several days—she had attended a huge reception in Abilene the night before—Mrs. Bentsen expertly balanced a cup of coffee in one hand, shook hands with the other, and managed to chat a moment with just about every person who entered the dining room, displaying warmth and excitement even though she knew the pace would quicken as the day wore on. She exhibited a tireless drive and friendliness toward people, an interest in them, an obvious asset to her candidate husband who is fighting a close battle for the Senate seat against a strong Republican candidate.

Mrs. Floyd Sims and Mrs. J. W. Bahlman hosted the Wednesday morning coffee.

"Mrs. Bentsen said she was 'having a ball,' on her tour of this area of Texas, seeing sights she had never seen before and meeting the people. 'The campaign trail' seems to fit her personality. Never an all-out career woman, Mrs. Bentsen for two years was a high fashion Conover model whose photographs graced the covers of such publications as Vogue, Glamour and Mademoiselle. She became a "Washington wife" in 1948 when Bentsen was elected to the U. S. Congress. President of the 81st when Congressional Club in Washington, Mrs. Bentsen was active in Washington political and social circles throughout the three terms her husband was in office.

What position should a Senator's wife take in her husband's career? Mrs. Bentsen was asked. "She should remain in the background," B. A. said, especially in regards to law-making decisions. "Campaign, but let the husband make and announce all decisions," she indicated.

Traveling the campaign trail—in this instance, Texas Forts Trails—in a motor-home, Mrs. Bentsen was accompanied by Mrs. Gus Mutscher, wife of the Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, Mrs. Frank Calhoun, wife of the State Representative from Abilene, Mrs. John Mobley of Austin, and Miss Kelle Snyder of Houston, her press secretary.

Wednesday was the second day of the Texas Forts Trails tour for Mrs. Bentsen. She was scheduled to attend a reception in San Angelo, luncheon in Ballinger, a reception in Coleman, a reception in Brady, and a reception in Brownwood before returning to Houston Wednesday night.

Hot Weather, Air Conditioners Drive Electric Power Usage Up-Up-Up-Up

New York City may be facing an electrical power shortage and a consequent "brown-out" due to the increasing demand for electricity, but there apparently is no danger of such misfortune visiting Winters, even in the face of skyrocketing demands for power during the hot weather.

In fact electricity sellers say there is an abundance of power in Texas and companies in this state may be lending a helping hand to New York before long.

Demand for additional electrical power continues to increase in Winters by leaps and bounds, especially during the summer months when air conditioners are put to work. Those in a position to observe such things say there are many refrigerated air conditioners in operation in Winters now, in addition to the evaporative coolers and just common fans. The number of refrigerated air conditioners in use here this year has increased "at least 10 percent" over last year, one source estimated. Kilowatt hour (measuring unit for electrical power) consumption figures for the two years bears them out, too.

The two companies furnishing electrical power for Winters customers—the City of Winters and West Texas Utilities—dug into their files and brought out some comparative figures. The City of Winters Electric Department, which records consumption on the fifteenth of each month, reports that usage from May 15 to June 15 this year reached 479,300 kilowatt hours, compared with 375,000 KWH for the same period in 1969. The June 15-July 15 consumption rate hiked to 617,900 KWH this year, against 607,400 KWH for the same period last year. The June 15-July 15, 1968, consumption through City of Winters lines was 473,300.

To indicate the increase in power consumption during the hot months, the City Electric Department pulled the Feb. 15-March 15, 1970, figures from the files. In that period meters showed 368,600 KWH used.

There is no breakdown between commercial and residential power supplied by either electric company.

West Texas Utilities reported KWH readings on even months. During the May 1-May 31 period, the company recorded 966,600 KWH consumption, and June 1-June 30, 1,701,000 KWH. This compared with 1969 readings, May 1-May 31, 1,000,000; June 1-June 30, 1,069,200.

In comparing electric power consumption for the two years, consideration must be made toward temperatures during the reported periods. Temperature figures were obtained from Roy Rice, official U. S. Weather Department observer for Winters. During the May 15-May 31 (Continued on page 8)

NEW CHURCH—Dedication of this Mexican-American United Methodist Church in Ballinger will be held Sunday, August 2, at 3 p. m. The new church is located on Strong Avenue directly behind the courthouse square.

Iglesia Metodista Asbury Dedication Service Sunday, August 2, in Ballinger

Dedication of the Mexican-American United Methodist Church in Ballinger will be held Sunday, August 2. Bishop Eugene Slater of San Antonio will lead the dedication service at 3 p. m., with other leaders of the United Methodist Church participating including the Rev. Raul Salazar, of Lubbock, District Superintendent of the Rio Grande Conference, Central District, the Rev. William M. Greenwald, superintendent of the Brownwood District, and the pastor of the church, the Rev. Miguel Ramirez.

The Mexican-American church was started several years ago in Ballinger, when Mr. and Mrs. Joe Martinez, seeing the need for a ministry to the Mexican-American community, asked for the assistance of the Anglo church in such a mission. Under the leadership of the Rev. Paul Wiseman, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Ballinger, the mission began as a store-front church on East Strong Avenue in Ballinger. The Rev. Ross Chavez was appointed pastor by the Rio Grande Conference in June, 1967.

On March 19, 1969, the Brownwood District Board of Missions approved plans for the construction of a $20,000 church plant. The new building is located on Strong Avenue directly behind the courthouse square in Ballinger. The brick building has a sanctuary 26 by 56, four classrooms with folding doors which open to form a fellowship hall, a pastor's study, kitchen and restrooms. It has central air conditioning and heating.

Financing of construction was made possible by a grant from the National Board of Missions of the United Methodist Church and the churches in the Brownwood District and others in the Cisco District.

Serving on the building committee from Winters is the Rev. Glenn Bowman, Rankin Pace, Gattis Neely, F. R. Anderson and M. L. Dobbins, and Jim King, from Wingate.

Pan American Under New Ownership Since July 7th

Pan American Industries of Winters has been acquired by Oscar T. Hinds of Denver, and the name of the company has been changed to Wintex Industries, Inc., it was formally announced this week. The changeover was effective July 7.

The Winters company manufactures display shelving, evaporative coolers and other metal products.

Darrell Compton, who has been general manager and controller of Pan American, remains in the same position with the new company.

Officers of the new corporation are Hinds, president; Tom Massey of San Angelo, vice president; and Compton, secretary-treasurer.

Compton said Monday that the entire plant is being realigned, machinery "rejuvenated" and departments changed to accommodate new production plans. He said the company will continue manufacture of evaporative coolers, but emphasis will be directed toward manufacture of metal display shelving. Plans also are in the mill for manufacture of other metal products, he said.

In addition to metal products, Compton said, the company is investigating a possible entry into the injection-plastic field.

At the present time there are 26 full-time employees with the company, the general manager said. It is anticipated that within a year this will grow to at least 85.

Hinds has been in investments in Denver, but plans to move to Winters in the near future, it was stated.

Compton has been with Pan American for several years.

First Graders Must Have Birth Certificates

For thousands of Texas youngsters, summer vacation will soon be over. And many thousands more will be enrolling in school for the first time. Last fall more than a quarter-million children entered Texas schools for the first time, and most needed a certified copy of his or her birth certificate, and proof of vaccination against smallpox and other diseases.

In earlier times the fact that you were alive and breathing was enough to satisfy and inquiry about your birth. But now most schools require a birth certificate for children entering the first grade. One of the biggest demands each year on the Texas Bureau of Vital Statistics is from parents wishing certified copies of their children's birth certificates to meet the school enrollment requirements.

With over 250,000 children entering the first grade each year, the demand for certification is great. Many times these records can be obtained in the counties or cities of birth, or they may be obtained from the Austin office of the State Health Department for a $1.50 fee. Searching for records—on request—can be a time consuming process. The quantity alone makes the task a tremendous one. The "searching" branch of the Vital Statistics division last year conducted 307,000 searches of the files upon request. A total of 200,000 certifications and verifications were made.

Parents are urged to obtain copies of birth certificates now before the volume of requests causes delay.

Trans-Pecos Antelope Survey Shows Decline

Marfa—Data from the 1970 pre-season antelope survey in the Trans-Pecos area shows an expected decline when compared to the 1969 head count, according to Tom Hailey, project leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The 1969 and 1970 aerial and vehicle censuses indicate a decrease of 17 per cent in the adult pronghorn count. Jack Parsons, wildlife supervisor of Region I, attributes the majority of the loss to the extremely dry range conditions through the fall and winter months. The census reveals the heaviest loss was in the adult buck population. Parsons said this is normal for losses during dry weather conditions.

The 1968 adult buck population was set at 7,523 animals compared to the 1970 count of 6,380. Hunter harvest for 1969 was approximately 800 animals, about the same as the 1968 harvest.

CARD OF THANKS

Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended sympathy and help in our recent sorrow. A special thanks to Dr. Rives, Dr. McCreight and nurses at the hospital for being so attentive and kind to our mother, Mrs. J. D. Sowell. NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN

by VERN SANFORD

Wouldn't this world be in a terrible turmoil if every man loved the same woman? Of every woman loved the same man? While we're thinking out loud, just imagine what would happen if every fisherman liked the same boat. There'd be only one style, one brand, one maker.

Thank goodness, we have a choice. It is keen competition for trade that makes business good, businessmen hustle and products improve.

Take Giddings Manufacturing Corporation, for example. This Giddings, Texas, concern has had its ups and downs. But, the downs were due mostly to a fire several years ago.

Today, this smalltown boat-making firm has grown to where it will manufacture and market in 1970 an estimated 2,500 Invader boats. This from 1,200 last year and 800 two years ago.

How did all this come about? Mainly by studying people's needs, their wants, their likes and dislikes . . . then combining these desires into a tremendously popular product that is now distributed over Southwest in a 21-state area which includes Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and New Mexico.

They make Invader runabouts, both outboards and I-O's, all beautifully styled and in distinctive colors. One secret of Invader's rapid success is use of the same hull throughout their series of eight boats . . . and making only two sizes, 15 and 17 footers.

Newest product is their FISHERMAN. It's called the FRISKI, and it looks like it. It's a 15-footer built sturdy enough to carry an 85hp outboard motor.

Its trihedral hull with polyurethane foam flotation makes it a soft rider, quiet and safe. For added safety there is flotation in the sides, below the gunwales. This is to help prevent the boat from turning over. In toto, there is ample buoyancy to keep Old Friski upright even under severe conditions.

There are many "handies" too, like the storage compartment in the bow . . . and the two that are aft. One is a little plastic built-in utility box made especially for small instruction books and your boat license (which title must accompany your boat). Also, there are two mounting pads . . . one fore, the other aft . . . for attaching the trolling motor. Then there are side panels for storing your rods and reels out of the way or for attaching your rod holders. Naturally there are bow and stern eyes, and four cleats, as well as safety lights fore and aft.

Extras available? Oh boy — bow rails, stern rails, canopy, 30 or 48 qt. ice chest. Also, live bait chest with aerator; a battery box with charger; a port, starboard or center console with a bug-screen windshield; and attractive, comfortable, swivel armchairs . . . just to mention a few.

Colorful? You bet! Yet simplified to cut costs. Every Invader boat has a white hull with a deck choice of gold, green or blue.

And bless their hearts, every Invader—including Friski—has a spillover panel, splash pan, transom drain well, or watever you want to call it . . . along the transom. That's a safety feature which, one day, will be a must on every outboard motorboat. This regardless of its size or make.

By the way, Plant Manager Lee Mangrum says that Friski is a composite of the preferences of a number of Texas outdoor writers who were surveyed by Invader last year to determine what the ideal bass fishing boat would be like. We were not asked, but we must say we sure do LIKE.

Worm and jig fishing have grown in popularity during the last several years, but there are many anglers who still like to use top-water lures for bass.

Today there is a lake especially built for topwater users. It is Amistad—created by a dam across the Rio Grande 18 miles north of Del Rio. There you can fish either in Texas or Old Mexico.

This is one of the fine new lakes which is a product of the International Boundary Commission.

Loss Lots of Lures
Much of the area cannot be fished with lures that run very deep. That is if you expect to get the lures back.

This lake covers thousands of acres of mesquite, catsclaw, huisache and black brush, to say nothing of yucca, prickly pear and other tough vegetation. When you hang a lure in stuff like that it stays and you might as well forget it.

Amistad has come along fast as a bass lake. This mainly because at the lower end where Devil's River flows into it, there already were two older lakes—Walk Lake and Devil's Lake.

Both had been stocked with bass for years. When the new overlapping Lake Amistad formed, encompassing both of them, those bass were already man-size.

In addition, the Parks and Wildlife Department has been stocking Amistad ever since the dam was completed and those bass are now catchable size.

Buoys Aid Boaters
Amistad also has other unusual features for a Texas impoundment. It is a lake where the previous stream beds all are marked with buoys. This makes it possible for a boater to keep on course either in going upstream on the main body of water or going downstream.

Also, they help in locating and pinpointing good coves and inlets. Not only do these buoys mark the stream, but they also serve as boundary markers between the United States and Mexico.

Another feature of Amistad is its beautiful high-walled canyons in the upper reaches.

Amistad now is only about two-thirds filled, but when it reaches conservation level, it will have some 300 feet of water around those canyon walls.

Since these walls have been standing for a million years or more, they have become weathered, split and eroded resulting in many chasms where fish can hide.

Pictographs Visible

On some of these walls, Indian pictographs can still be seen. Many other landmarks of its ancient history, however, have been covered. Fortunately, these areas were fully explored by archeologists before the dam was completed and the artifacts were removed.

There are two main access points on the Texas side of the lake—Diablo East and Rough Canyon. Both of these have quality concessions, but they are very crowded. To get down to a launching spot it is necessary to wait in line of most any day.

National Park Service, which is administering the area, says it is without funds to complete other launching sites at this time. Unless new money is forthcoming, it will be several years before more can be built.

Area Developing Fast

Del Rio has gone ahead with its development program. There are already a number of fine motels.

Numerous boat barns have been constructed along the highway enroute to the lake. Here boats and motors of all sizes can be stored. Also, there are efficient boat and motor shops and plenty of places to buy tackle.

Since Del Rio is an old established town, its prices are in line with what you'd pay anywhere else. There are also several good guides available and good bass fishing boats.

Del Rio offers tourists more than just fishing in Amistad. There's also that international flavor. You can fish either in Texas or Old Mexico and go across the border for your night out. Ciudad Acuna is on the other side of the Rio Grande from Del Rio and it provides some of the best night spots along the entire Mexican border.

Information on Amistad and the other attractions can be had from the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce, which offers free maps and motel lists.

Lone Star Gas Aids In Fisheries Study At Texas A. & M.

Lone Star Gas Company and its subsidiary, Nipak, Inc., are jointly sponsoring a Fisheries Management Studies Program, with the Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M.

Vice Presidents, Glen Covington and Neal Hall, and Nipak's director of marketing, Jim Duntton, recently presented a $5,000 check to Dr. John Hutchison, Director of Texas A&M Extension Service and Wallace Klussman, Extension Wildlife Specialist, in Dr. Hutchison's office at Texas A&M.

Aside from the $5,000 check, the company will give up to $5,000 of fertilizer and fertilizer related products, as needed.

The study involves the testing of anhydrous ammonia as a toxicant to kill rough fish in ponds. Since ammonia dissipates it is believed to be superior to certain insecticides which are currently used to clear ponds of rough fish. Ammonia, when blended with other fertilizer products, also has the added advantage of contributing to plankton growth (a basis element in the underwater food chain).

Commission Sets Seasons, Bag Limits

Austin—An any sex deer season in certain counties, an extended whitewing season and an archery season to include all regulatory counties were approved at the recent meeting of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

The any sex deer season was approved in Bosque, Palo Pinto, Grimes and Victoria Counties. Antlerless deer permits will no longer be required to kill an antlerless deer in those counties. However, a special antlerless deer tag issued by the Parks and Wildlife Department to the landowner or agent with a tag from the hunting license will be required to possess an antlerless deer.

The white-wing dove season in 21 counties was expanded from two to four half-days—September 12 and 13. The extra two days were approved due to a 48 per cent increase in nesting whitewings this year.

Standard regulations prohibiting hunting on roads, highways and rights of way.

2. Expand the definition of trotlines to include sail lines and rubberband lines.

3. Outlaw all rimfire ammunition, and 22 cal. jet guns and rocket guns in the taking of big game.

4. Prohibit the shooting of fur-bearing animals from a boat on public waters.

5. Prohibit trotlines in waters of 500 acres or less which lie totally within any State park or that portion of any stream bordering a State park.

6. Establish a no closed season on bullfrogs, crayfish and other wildlife forms which do not appear to be in need of regulating at this time.

7. Establish a no open season on porpoises, dolphins (mammals) and whales.

8. Require hunters who have wounded a game bird or animal to kill it and include it in his daily bag.

9. To begin the deer season in most regulatory districts, not including the Panhandle, Trans-Pecos and Northeast Districts, on Saturday nearest Nov. 15 and to end the season the first Sunday in January unless that Sunday falls after Jan. 4, in which case the season would then close on Jan. 1.

This season will eliminate such an early beginning and long season as occurred the last two years, yet still provide maximum hunter opportunity.

Principal changes in district proclamations include a change in the dates of the deer, turkey and quail seasons in the Panhandle District. The deer and turkey seasons will remain the same length in the number of days, but the starting date will be the Saturday preceding Thanksgiving in order that hunters in the area would be afforded the opportunity to hunt during the Thanksgiving holiday.

The quail season has been increased in length by two days and has been set ahead by almost two months to Nov. 14 through Nov. 20. This earlier date was proposed in the hopes of avoiding the bitter cold experienced by hunters for the past year or so.

Four counties were added to the prairie chicken season in the State. These are Cochran, Hockley, Terry and Yoakum Counties in the Permian Basin Regulatory District. Check stations will be maintained in cities of Plains and Lehman for prairie chicken hunters.

A special spring season on turkey gobblers was approved for April 24 through May 2 in the Possum Kingdom Regulatory District except in Bosque, Erath, Palo Pinto and Hamilton Counties and in the counties of Bandera, Crockett, Edwards, Kimble, McCulloch, Menard, Real, Schleicher, Sutton and Val Verde in the Edwards Plateau District.

Fishery changes were minor with the most significant being removal of the possession limit on largemouth, smallmouth and spotted black bass in the Panhandle Possum Kingdom and Permian Basin Regulatory Districts.

The daily limit on largemouth, smallmouth and spotted black bass was set at 10 in the aggregate on Lake Texoma. A limit on 100 hooks was also approved for Lake Texoma for pole and line, rod and reel, artificial and natural baits, hand lines, set lines, thrown lines and not more than two non-metallic trotlines, including rubberband lines and sail lines with more than 50 hooks each, or any combination of these methods.

One change in the Southeast Regulatory District would make it unlawful to use net for taking fish in the Neches River from the Jasper-Angelina County line to the State Highway 87 bridge over the Neches River and in Sam Rayburn Reservoir.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of Subsection (b) of this Section, bonds may be issued by any county in an amount not to exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property in the county, for the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled, or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, upon a vote of a majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon who are qualified electors of the county; and without the necessity of further or amendatory legislation. The county may levy and collect taxes to pay the interest on the bonds as it becomes due and to provide a sinking fund for redemption of the bonds.

Section 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1970, at which election the ballots shall be printed to provide for voting for or against the proposition: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to provide for consolidation of governmental offices and functions and allowing political subdivisions to contract for performance of governmental functions in any county."

Section 52. (a) Except as otherwise provided by this section, the Legislature shall have no power to authorize any county, city, town or other political corporation or subdivision of the State to lend its credit or to grant public money or thing of value in aid of, or to any individual, association or corporation whatsoever, or to become a stockholder in such corporation, association or company.

(b) Under Legislative provision, any county, any political subdivision of a county, any number of adjoining counties, or any political subdivision of the State, or any defined district now or hereafter to be described and defined within the State of Texas, and which may or may not include, towns, villages or municipal corporations, upon a vote of two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon who are qualified electors of such district or territory to be affected thereby, in addition to all other debts, may issue bonds or otherwise lend its credit in any amount not to exceed one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of such district or territory, except that the total bonded indebtedness of any city or town shall never exceed the limits imposed by other provisions of this Constitution, and levy and collect taxes to pay the interest thereon and provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof, as the Legislature may authorize, and in such manner as it may authorize the same, for the following purposes to wit:

(1) The improvement of rivers, creeks, and streams to prevent overflows, and to permit of navigation thereof, or irrigation thereof, or in aid of such purposes.

(2) The construction and maintenance of pools, lakes, reservoirs, dams, canals and waterways for the purposes of irrigation, drainage or navigation, or in aid thereof.

the people who produce, rather than through the formal negotiations of diplomacy.

New Zealand and Australia have been on our side since World War I. They fought with the Allies in World War II and have contributed more than any other Nation to our side in Vietnam.

There are many American investments in these two countries. As a matter of fact, we have a considerable American interest in ranching in both

Washington, D. C. — Only a very few times in the years of writing this column has the first person "I" ever been used. This one is an exception. It is necessary to explain a trip Ruth and I plan to take during the week of August 3rd.

American Airlines is inaugurating a new flight to New Zealand and Australia and we are invited, along with my colleague from Ft. Worth, Jim Wright. The Ambassadors of New Zealand and Australia are to be guests on the trip. Mayors of several cities and other officials will be along.

The flight will leave from New York City on August 1st, stop in San Francisco and then to Hawaii. From Hawaii the next stop scheduled is Pago Pago and from there to Auckland, New Zealand. After two days in New Zealand the flight to Sydney, Australia, will be the end of the line.

On the return to Hawaii, another stop will be made in American Samoa. After a layover of a day or so in Hawaii, the trip will end back in New Zealand.

It is entirely possible that important matters in the Congress may prevent our making the trip but as of now we plan to go. On crucial votes an attempt will be made to have what is known as a "live pair." This simply means that a Member who is going to vote opposite of the way I vote, would announce his vote, withdraw his vote and vote present. This cancels each against the other. A "general pair" is a record only and does not count in a tally of the total of "for" or "against."

Neither Ruth nor I are enthusiastic travelers. We have been invited a number of times to make foreign "junkets" of one kind or another but have been too busy to take advantage of the invitation. Just recently friends invited us on a fishing trip to Norway where salmon fishing in lakes below Bergen is supposed to be the best in the World. No strings attached, but we simply felt we could not be away at the time and besides, it was to be a pretty fast pace. So is the schedule to New Zealand and Australia but there are opportunities on this trip as well as pleasure.

Our country has a great deal in common with these English speaking Nations. We have some competition in trade matters, mainly in meats. Imports of beef from both these countries are an issue of importance to our cattle raisers. Voluntary agreements are now in effect but imports are a question involved in the Reciprocal Trade Bill now pending in the Ways and Means Committee of which I am a member. It would be highly preferable to have agreement on the amount of beef and lamb imports without legislation but it may not be possible and protect our own producers. Something might be accomplished by some direct contact with

IRS Tries To Help Older Americans Understand Tax

The Internal Revenue Service has been criticized recently for failing to get the tax forms simple enough for some older Americans to understand. IRS Commissioner Thrower, in a recent speech says that this is not so, and that Internal Revenue has made a special effort to help older Americans get the full benefit that Congress has provided for retired taxpayers. Commissioner Thrower pointed out that Internal Revenue has issued a special publication to help these taxpayers claim all of the available benefits. Publication 554, "Tax Benefits for Older Americans," is distributed to retired groups and is available at all IRS offices.

Thrower also pointed out that the tax forms cannot be made simple for older Americans, since a good part of our older Americans are subject to many complex provisions of the law. He says the Internal Revenue works with retired employee groups and other organizations to train taxpayers to take advantage of the Retirement Income Credit, the over 65 age exemption, and other important provisions.

W'melons Without Seeds? Ag Dept. Introduces Two

All the work has been taken out of eating watermelon this summer with the introduction of two new seedless varieties recently announced by Texas Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White.

Seedless watermelons are rapidly gaining favor with consumers because of the extra-sweet and flavorful quality of the melons. The fruit is medium sized, with a good textured, sweet meat. As in other "seedless" fruits, the undeveloped seeds are there but are edible, actually tasteless. An added advantage of this melon is an extended shelf life.

The chemical "Colchicine," discovered in 1937 by Dr. O. J. Eigsti, is responsible for the genetic change that produces a seedless melon such as the two new varieties, "Tri-X 313" and "Supersweet." It has only been until recently that seedless melons have been developed which are consistent in quality and which can be commercially produced and marketed.

The seedless melons are found in food stores and cafeterias promoted in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Products (TAP) program of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Commissioner White said Department of Agriculture marketing specialists anticipate a strong consumer reception.

MRS. ROBERT BARTLETT MARKS

Janice Kay Pierce, Robert B. Marks Wed At First Baptist Church Saturday

Janice Kay Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie W. Pierce, became the bride of Robert Bartlett Marks, when they repeated their marriage vows Saturday at the First Baptist Church. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Marks.

The Rev. Harry Grantz, pastor of the church, officiated. Randy Stevens was organist and Betty Knight, soloist.

Two sets of candelabra entwined with greenery, holding lighted tapers formed the background for the wedding party.

Mrs. Billy Hicks, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Danny Killough, Brenda Byrns and Becky Mathis.

Renee Pierce, sister of the bride, and Vanessa Dendy of Mesquite lighted candles.

Jerry Marks served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Kay Whitlow of Dallas, Douglas Hart of Abilene and Van Ray Whittenberg. Guests were seated by Alton Pierce, brother of the bride, and Billy Hicks.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a peau de soie gown fashioned with empire waist and long tapered lace sleeves. Lace re-embroidered with seed pearls was applied on the A-line skirt and the chapel train of matching lace was attached to the waist with a matching bow. Her veil of illusion fell from a matching bow headpiece. She carried an orchid bouquet surrounded by white carnations atop a white Bible.

The attendants wore gowns of yellow dotted swiss designed with A-line skirts and carried long stemmed daisies tied with yellow net and ribbon bow with streamers.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The table was laid with yellow net over white and centered with an arrangement of crystal candle holders with yellow candles. The three-tiered cake was served by Holly Middleton, Connie Dunnam, Phyllis Smith, Troylene McKnight, and Mrs. Johnnie Allen.

Others in the house party were Mrs. Kenneth Sneed, Mrs. Ray Laughon and Mrs. Chester Campbell. Debra Carroll registered the guests.

The bride is a graduate of Winters High School and is attending Commercial Business College in Abilene.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Winters High School and attended Angelo State University and is presently employed in Abilene by Mid-Western Sign Company.

Following a wedding trip to Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Marks are living in Abilene.

Parents of the bridegroom hosted the rehearsal dinner at Fireside Restaurant.

GP Conservation Plan Extended To December '81

The Great Plains Conservation Program, which was scheduled to end Dec. 31, 1971, has been extended by the U. S. Congress to Dec. 31, 1981, Woodrow Hoffman, district conservation for the Runnels County Soil Conservation Service, has announced.

Hoffman said the GPCP was launched in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District and the Great Plains region of the United States in 1957. The program was tailored to fit this region because it had long been recognized for its high agricultural risk due to the hazardous climatic conditions in this area of the U. S. so the main purpose of the GPCP is to help landusers build a greater resource and economic stability in their farming and ranching business.

As with a lot of programs, Hoffman said, the GPCP is more popular than money is available to fund it. However, since the program began in Runnels, 148 landusers on 61,850 acres have signed contracts with the Soil Conservation Service. Of this total 67 have completed their contracts on 21,693 acres. This leaves 81 active contracts on 39,152 acres.

For these 148 contracts, $583,400 was set aside for the producers to earn as they carried out cost-share conservation practices on their individual places. To date they have earned more than $370,000.

The 148 farms and ranches under contract had 30,691 acres of cropland prior to entering into a contract. To date, 9,800 acres of the sub-marginal cropland has or will be planted to grass as part of the individual conservation programs, Hoffman said.

Hoffman told the Lions Club that it is important that strong community backing be emphasized by a large turnout at the hearing. State Board members, he indicated, would be reluctant to set a high priority for the proposed Elm Creek project if only a handful of area residents turned out for the meeting.

Hoffman showed slides showing flooding conditions on Bluff Creek near Winters in the spring of 1969. He also showed slides of water retarding structures on Valley Creek, in the western half of Runnels County, taken during the same rainy season. The pictures graphically illustrated the value of such projects.

There is more water lost from the watershed of Elm Creek and its tributaries in Runnels and Taylor counties than flows past Ballinger in the Colorado River, Hoffman said. It is important, he said, work on the Elm Creek Water Control District project be continued, and retardation structures be built in the district. The proposed projects would not only trap floodwaters and reduce damage to farmland in the area, he pointed out, but would pave the way for a larger multiple-use water storage facility, providing municipal water for both Winters and Ballinger, and possibly rural areas, and also providing much-needed additional recreational facilities.

He explained that the board of directors of Elm Creek Water Control District is working hard to have everything ready for the State Soil Conservation Board hearing so that a high priority can be obtained. From that point, it was explained, further work can be done on applying for federal funds to build up 16 water retarding structures in the Elm Creek watershed, the number anticipated by a field exam crew of the State Board more than a year ago.

The Winters Lions Club is one of the several sponsors of the Elm Creek Water Control District project.

Palbearers were Marvin Hoelscher, Alvin Niehues, Michael Franke, Steven Franke, Dorlei Hirt, Bennie Franke, Nolan Niehues and Denis Niehues.

period, there were only three days in 1970 when the temperature was above that for the same time in 1969. However, from June 1-June 15, 1970's temperature exceeded that of 1969 for 10 days.

It was a different story for the June 16-July 14 period, however. 1969 was officially hotter, according to the figures. Only 12 days during the 1970 period were hotter than the same dates in 1969, and the hottest day in 1970—104 on July 6—did not equal the 106 recorded on June 20, 1969. Seven days during this reported period in 1969 the temperature reached 100 or above; this "seven" was duplicated in 1970.

Spokesmen for the power companies say that the increase in number of air conditioners—refrigerated or otherwise—does not account for all of the increase in demand for electricity. More and more people are adding more and more electric-powered appliances, —which helps to drive the demand up. Companies are continually adding to generating and line equipment to meet the demand. The City Electric Department in the spring added several transformers to distribution lines in anticipation of the demand increase. Peak loads are experienced during the daylight and evening hours, until about midnight.

Then, too, there is a prolific wild gourd just on the other side of the fence from our "cantaloupes." We're going to just let everything alone and find out what will happen.

Even in the face of this ever-climbing demand, electric companies are quick to point out there is no danger of a power shortage, barring some type of mishap—and then it would be only temporary.
