The Tongue-in-Cheek Awards
By RALPH NOVAK

This is the time of the year when people pass out all those Most, Best, Top, All-Star, Super and Annual awards for doing everything this side of making peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Let us, then, take a look at some of the lesser-known awards, representing the Least, Worst Bottom, All-Mediocre, Dismal and Eternal awards in politics and government.

The Election Bowl Political Football Award to California's governor, Ronald Reagan, who said in a speech to the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame that, on America's gridirons, "It's a hot, clean hatred for an opponent during a game. It's not a mean hatred." Those of you interested in seeing a cold, dirty, mean hatred will have to watch California politics, or perhaps "Death Valley Days."

The Greta Garbo Reluctant Dragon Award to Sen. Edward Kennedy, who has said he will not run for president in 1972 so many times even he may believe it by this time.

The Wayne Morse Chameleon Award to Mayor John Lindsay of New York, who conceded at this late date that he was not too big to admit he had been wrong all this time, and not even too big to give up running New York and take over the United States.

The Whatever Happened to Harold Stassan Award to Spiro Agnew, who has established himself as the contemporary master of the here today, gone tomorrow, here today syndrome. At last report, Mr. Agnew was said to be in line for an important promotion just before next year's election. Usually reliable sources (Jill St. John says Henry Kissinger told her he heard this from David Eisenhower) say Agnew will be appointed to head a special presidential commission on the blacksmith shortage.

The George Romney I Wish I Hadn't Said That Award to Edmund Muskie, who pointed out in all candor that he didn't think people would vote for a black vice-presidential candidate and got taught a lesson about how much honesty counts in politics.

The Johnny Unitas Flooding the Zone Award to President Nixon, for adding two more of his very own appointees to the Supreme Court, indicating that it is only a matter of time before Ronald Ziegler, Tricia and Pat join his other choices on the bench.

The Norman Mailer Modesty Forbids Me Award to former President Lyndon Johnson, who restrained himself from taking credit for creating the world in his memoir, "Vantage Point."

The Ralph Nader Sky Is Falling Award to all those political experts who predicted the advent of the 18-year-old vote would bring chaos to the electoral scene.

What's Troubling The Utility Industry?

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., January 1972. When President Nixon announced his new game plan in August, stock market reaction was mixed, with least enthusiasm emanating from the utility sector. As events unfolded—Phase 2, dollar devaluation, lifting of the 10 percent import surcharge—most of the industry groups responded with good price advances, but the utility sector continued to lag.

Reasons for this were apparently twofold. First was the price-wage freeze, which locked out rate boosts that were implemented within the span covered retroactively as well as pending utility rate increases. And although the life of Phase 1 was slated to be only 90 days, this hiatus on rate increases served to compound the squeeze that pressured the industry. The other force in play was the worry "What will happen to interest rates?"

Help On The Way

As Phase 2 developed, there was growing skepticism as to the degree of authority the Wage Board and the Price Commission could muster. Wage increases well above guidelines were granted to several groups, and in the case of coal a price increase was allowed, although not large enough to compensate for increased labor costs. Even so, after a formal settlement, some coal miners continued a wildcat strike.

The implications of any coal price increase on utility performance can be drastic. For example, Duke Power reported coal prices up 50 percent in 1970. Generally, increases may be passed on by utilities; but with Phase 2 now in effect, the rate application process, already tortuous, may be delay-has been the increasingly restrictive air pollution regulations. While desirable and necessary, they have created massive and expensive problems in the industry. Low sulfur fuels are now generally required for use in power generation. These "sweet" fuels are more expensive than the "sour" fuels, and are in less plentiful supply.

To meet the demand for "clean energy" in the future, oil companies will have to develop new sources of oil and gas reserves. To date incentive has been lacking to achieve new fuel sources, primarily because of low prices for oil and gas. As this price imbalance improves, increased production may be expected, but again the utilities may be faced with higher fuel costs.

Nuclear Power Holdback

The great promise of the seventies—nuclear power generation—has not yet developed as rapidly as anticipated. And in recent months this segment of the utility industry has come under severe scrutiny by environmentalists. In September of this year the Atomic Energy Commission issued regulations for a study of thermal effects of atomic power plants on the environment. Affected are plants in 26 states issued construction permits or operating licenses after January 1, 1970. Effectively these rules delay or impede construction to an unknown degree and place a further burden on the industry.

Problems Not Immense

While the electric utility companies do face problems, it appears likely that, overall, they will fare well under Phase 2. Electric power is essential to the economy, and with a more liberal attitude toward rates and an easing in interest costs, the power companies should prosper over the long term. Many companies currently offer attractive yields with dividends well protected.

Big Increase In
Vets In Training
Under GI Bill

Veterans Administration records reveal a 46 percent increase in the last fiscal year in veterans training under the GI Bill for policemen, firemen or related "protective services" occupations, Jack Coker, VA Regional Director, said today.

Coker reported 38,000 veterans took such training last fiscal year, compared to 26,000 a year earlier.

Of the 38,000 veterans who pursued protective services training in the last fiscal year, Coker noted, 17,500 took policemen-firemen on-the-job training (OJT). Another 8,500 enrolled in college level police science, criminology or fire protection courses, and 10,000 others trained below college level.

Also included in the 38,000 protective service trainees were approximately 2,000 veterans who sought skills in other than policemen-firemen fields, such as game warden, bailiff, etc.

Coker said the VA encourages veterans to enter OJT in areas of public service as recommended early last year by the President's Committee on the Vietnam veteran.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Yards and gardens are all too often neglected during the winter months, says County Agricultural agent C. T. Parker, Jr. Long dry periods without supplemental irrigation may cause severe dying back on the growing tips of plants.

Drying is especially serious on evergreens and late winter or early spring flowering plants, he points out, since they have rapidly developing flower buds and require a steady supply of moisture.

It's a good idea to water thoroughly at four-to-six week intervals throughout the dormant period.

Shallow rooted plants and plants in containers are especially vulnerable to moisture stress during the winter. If such plants are exposed to prevailing winter wind, they will require close attention to assure adequate moisture. Plants located beneath the roof overhang are often damaged by lack of moisture during cold weather.

During the cold weather, Parker recommends that irrigation should begin early in the day so that foliage may dry before nightfall. The most efficient time to apply irrigation water is when air is calm. This will reduce evaporation losses.

Plant damage including lawn failure is generally blamed on insects, diseases or cold injury. But such damage is often due to excessively dry soil during the winter months, contends Parker. Mulch applications and proper watering practices are just as important in the winter as in the summer. Even though the grass is brown and trees have shed their leaves, plants still need moisture.

Cattle producers in Runnels County should be alerted to the fact that an outbreak of cattle scab has occurred in the High Plains of Texas. A state and federal quarantine has been placed on 34 counties effective December 11 and 14, respectively.

Scabies is caused by tiny parasitic mites which live on the skin and cause scab formation. It is highly contagious and spreads easily from animal to animal by direct contact or infested brushes or grooming equipment. It is not transmissible to other species of animals. The mites cause an intense itching and scab formation with a loss of hair in affected areas. Animals become weak and may succumb if not properly treated, Parker points out.

Officially approved treatment consists of the use of toxaphene or limesulfur dips at 10 to 14 days intervals. Toxaphene is cheaper than the limesulfur which must be heated. Treated animals must be held from slaughter for 28 days following treatment with toxaphene to avoid residuals in the meat.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By BILL BOYKIN, Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex. — A three-judge federal court in San Antonio stunned Texas public officials with a Christmas Eve decision that the state's system of financing public schools is unconstitutional.

The ruling, which Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes called one of the most far-reaching in recent history, triggered a round of new studies and re-directed attention to prior studies of alternative finance formulas.

To make education "a function of the local property tax base" violates constitutional guarantees of equal protection under the laws, the three judges held. Parents and children of Edgewood Independent School District (Bexar County) filed the suit on July 30, 1968.

Allowing each district to set property taxes to raise a portion of instructional costs discriminates against poor districts with low property values and frequently high minority group populations, the court contended.

Judges gave state legislators two years to work out a new system. If lawmakers fail, they warned, the court "will take such further steps as may be necessary to implement both the purpose and the spirit of this order."

Some observers feared the ruling would undermine local control of school districts. Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin asked the court to clarify whether the decision meant districts could not continue to pay off their bonds from property taxes.

Gov. Preston Smith said it would be premature to speculate on ultimate effect of the ruling on taxes and educational programs. Some predicted state corporate and personal income taxes will be necessary to pick up a new state cost load estimated to range at least as high as $500 million a biennium.

Smith called for a team effort by state officials and agencies, local school authorities and the courts to reach a satisfactory solution. The Senate Committee on Occupational Education immediately took up the problem. Texas Research League already is studying the foundation school program, and plans to offer some choices by the end of next year.

Governor said he is considering naming an education task force which will cooperate with other study groups.

State Education Commissioner Dr. J. W. Edgar viewed the present crisis "as another opportunity for the people to design a better public educational opportunity for the children and youth of Texas." He expressed confidence such a plan can be developed which will preserve local school control.

State Board of Education will review the decision at a January 8 meeting. Meanwhile, Martin asked the court whether the ruling permits an appeal.

WELFARE PROBLEMS GROWING

Warning that Texas faces its most-difficult welfare problems during the next two years, Governor Smith said drastic assistance cuts may be necessary after next September.

At the same time, the Governor announced appointment of former U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Wilbur Cohen as a special advisor to help him formulate plans in the areas of welfare and child development.

Smith said he will go before the U. S. Senate finance committee next month to renew a plea for complete federalization of welfare program financing. Current assistance levels can be maintained within the state's $30 million constitutional ceiling for major categorical welfare programs the rest of this fiscal year. After next September, however, he said average aid to families with dependent children grants may have to be slashed from $116.66 a month to $77.

Smith assigned top priority to attacking the growing welfare problem, which he estimated will cost $325 million next year. He said findings of a new commission on children and youth will be among cornerstones of his message to the 1972 special legislative session.

REDISTRICT SUIT ADVANCES

A three-judge federal court was due to begin trial Monday (January 3) of suits attacking 1971 legislative redistricting.

The consolidated cases were filed in Dallas, Houston, Tyler and San Antonio and transferred to Austin for hearing.

Judges originally named University of Texas law partner George Schatzki a special master to collect evidence and draw conclusions in the cases. However, the order naming Schatzki was rescinded after Attorney General Martin and State Democratic Chairman Roy Orr complained of the professor's former close professional relationship with attorneys and plaintiffs in the cases.

Houston attorney Leon Jaworski will direct the state's defense as a special attorney.

AG OPINIONS

Private clubs in dry areas may buy beer from a general distributor and transport it in under proper permits and written agreements, Attorney General Martin held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded: Microfilms of student loan applications are not legal documents.

The Texas International Trade Office in Mexico City may use state funds to buy Mexican postage stamps.

Counties can buy two-way radios for sheriffs' personally-owned cars.

Only two types of lifesavers equipment meet requirements of a new law requiring children 12 and under to wear life preservers in motorboats.

State employees can travel first class on airlines, even if cheaper tourist seats are available.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

James F. Warren of Navasota was named by the governor as 12th district judge succeeding Judge Reginald Bracewell of Navasota who resigned effective January 1.

Other recent appointments or reappointments by Smith included the following: Mrs. Marie H. Winters of Austin (reappointment) as firemen's pension commissioner.

Dan Hemphill of Odessa and Don L. Scarborough of Georgetown to the Texas Library and Historical Commission. Walter E. Long of Austin was reappointed.

Ernest A. Emerson of Dallas to the Commission on Fire Protection, Personnel Standards and Education. The reappointments of Hugh V. Keepers of Dallas and Richard Russell of Richardson were announced.

DDT BAN ANNOUNCED

DDT will not be allowed for household use in Texas after August 31, under an order issued by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

White's order follows recommendations of the Pesticide Advisory Committee created by the legislature.

White emphasized it has no bearing on DDT for agriculture and public health uses. About half DDT now used in the state is utilized around the home. After August, registration of DDT for household purposes will not be permitted.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS EXTENDED

Extended unemployment — compensation benefits will go into effect early in January.

January 10 is the first date claims may be filed for them in Texas. Benefits are payable only to claimants who have exhausted regular benefits. Claimants may receive as much as 50 per cent of total regular unemployment benefits, payable at the same weekly rate as regular benefits. Those covered must not be eligible for regular benefits in any state or territory and must have a benefit year that ends on or after January 2.

SHORT SNORTS

Top Texas officials are still pushing for retroactive pay raises for all Texas state employees, including school teachers.

More than half the drug offenders in Texas prisons have been involved in other crimes. About 12.4 per cent of the total prison population is made up of these drug users.

The State Board of Education will hold no more hearings on 1971 textbook adoptions at its January meeting.

FLU WONDERLAND

Winter is a flu wonderland. Like the common cold, flu is an infection of the upper respiratory tract. But it is much more severe. Flu viruses can work their way into the breathing passageways and damage the linings, then spread to the air sacs where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged. The workings of the entire body can be disrupted.

Antimicrobial drugs do not attack flu viruses but they can work to fend off other complications. With bed rest and medical attention, most people recover within days or weeks from the flu. But if the infection is not properly tended, complications like pneumonia can set in.

There are several different types of pneumonia, some more serious than others. But about half of them are caused by viruses, and antibiotics are ineffective in treating viral pneumonia. Antibiotics can be useful, though, in treating types of pneumonia caused by bacteria. "Walking pneumonia," whose symptom is usually a violent cough, is still another kind of infection caused by the smallest free-living agent of disease called mycoplasmas. This agent cannot be called a virus or a bacterium, but it has characteristics of both. Antibiotics can help combat this infection.

Household Help Covered By SS

People working for wages in private homes are covered by social security. J. M. Talbot, social security manager, says coverage of domestic workers is a little different than coverage of regular industrial or business employees. Close family relatives are generally excluded, and the wages paid must be $50 or more a quarter from each employer to be covered.

Just as in business, the employer must report to Internal Revenue Service covered wages of each employee at the end of each calendar quarter. We are just finishing up the fourth calendar quarter with December. Wages paid in October, November, and December are to be reported in January.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

By Vern Sanford

Some of the best fishermen in Texas have caught their biggest bass by casting in their own backyard. "Practice" casting, I mean.

Learning to drop the lure exactly where they want it... in the center of the favorite hide-away of the fish... comes from practice, practice, practice.

There are numerous inventive, successful fishermen, who spend hours just dry-casting practice-plugs into flower pots, dishpans, water buckets, inflated inner tubes, old tires, and what have you.

Naturally, they get lots of kidding comments from the neighbors who always want to know "how's fishing?" Nevertheless they keep on casting, year after year... striving for perfection. This dry casting makes them better fishermen and there's no doubt about that.

In the first place, they learn distance, how to control their casts, various methods of casting, and how to use their equipment properly. This is a most important feature, because if you don't know your equipment, you are likely to lose the best fish you ever hooked.

Dry casting in the back yard (or front) is very simple. There are casting rings which can be bought from most sporting goods stores. Lacking these some anglers use hula hoops or plastic laundry baskets. Still others try their hand at tossing a practice plug into empty flower pots or gallon cans. All these make good targets.

Hours of practice are well worth the time of any fisherman who wants to return from an outing with a string of fish instead of a long list of alibis.

For practice casting, your needs are simple, especially if you have available as much as 50 feet of open range. Use the same rod you use in fishing so you may become thoroughly familiar with it and what it will do.

Type of equipment and the weight of the line will determine how heavy a plastic plug you should use. It should be either a 3-8 or 5-8 oz. In fact it is well to have both and to learn the effect of their different weights. But, stick with one until you have mastered it, then acquaint yourself with the other.

Your back yard is not the place to try for distance. So work on accuracy. Learn first of all to drop the lure into a two-foot circle, some 15 to 20 feet away. When you've done this long enough, try flipping the plug into gallon cans. When you've learned that don't stop, just keep on practicing, improving your form and gradually increasing distance.

Perhaps the major mistake of all beginners is "thrusting" the casting arm, swinging it like a baseball bat. Correct casting with proper equipment calls for wrist motion.

An old standby formula is to put a book under the casting arm, holding the upper arm firm against the book and casting with forearm and wrist only. If you start this way, casting will come easy and you will be doing it correctly. On the other hand, if you learn to cast by "throwing" the entire arm, it's not only a very difficult habit to break but dangerous to those in the boat or around you.

Another very effective method is flip casting. Here you point the rod tip straight out, instead of up. Use the same motion, except in reverse, for releasing the plug. In conventional casting the lure is released on the downward motion. In flip casting it is released on the upward motion. This permits you to shoot the plug pretty much on a line and only slightly above the water, back up under low hanging limbs and branches.

Save this for last, for it's tricky. But, don't let anyone tell you that flip casting is for exhibition purposes only. It can be most effective in brushy water and many times will account for more fish in the boat than the one-method-caster can deliver.

However, regardless of the method, cast, cast and cast some more until you have achieved perfection.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"TURNED ON" WEDDING

"I do," solemnly spoken by bride and groom, is usually enough to make a legally valid marriage. But suppose one or both of the parties is "turned on" either be drugs or alcohol. This may create a situation once described as follows by Euripides:

"The tongue hath sworn, but the mind is unsworn."

Marriage is a contract—a special kind, to be sure, but a contract nonetheless. The key to a contract is mutual assent, a meeting of the minds. And a mind not competent to assent is not competent to make a contract, no matter what the tongue says.

How clear must the mind be? The law's test is whether the person is able to understand the nature of a marriage contract at the moment he says "I do." If he is not, the marriage may be annulled.

But intoxication short of that will usually be overlooked. Since the law gives matrimony the benefit of the doubt, courts generally will not grant an annulment merely because the bride or the groom was a little high.

Furthermore, even if one of the parties was indeed "out of it" at the time of the wedding, the marriage may become valid because of what happens afterward. Take this case:

A man married a girl he scarcely knew, as the climax of a protracted drinking party. Seeking an annulment later, he pleaded in court that he had been in an alcoholic stupor at the time of the wedding.

But the girl pointed out that he had continued to cohabit with her for several days after he had sobered up. Result: annulment denied, because the marriage had been "ratified" by subsequent events.

What if one of the parties, although in good shape at the wedding itself, had concealed the fact that he was an alcoholic or a dope addict? Under these circumstances, most courts will grant an annulment to the spouse who has been deceived.

Thus, a bride won an annulment when she discovered after the nuptials that her bridegroom was a heroin addict.

Dates Set For ACT Tests For Local Students

Three Saturday mornings during the next several months could be especially important to many Winters High School students who are undecided about their future or are interested in vocational-technical education after graduation.

The dates of Feb. 26, April 22 and July 15 are the three times during the remainder of the present academic year that students will have an opportunity to take the new ACT Career Planning Profile on a "national date," Mrs. Lee Harrison, Winters High School Counselor, has announced.

The ACT Career Planning Profile, which takes about three and a half hours to complete, is a three-part examination and questionnaire that assesses a broad range of vocational interests and abilities. It forms the basis of the new national guidance program, ACT Career Planning Program, which is designed for use by persons interested in some form of career education beyond high school.

Registration periods for the 1971-72 dates on which the assessment profile will be administered on a nationwide basis are: Feb. 26 (Nov. 29 Jan. 31), April 22 (Feb. 14 March 27) and July 15 (April 10 June 19). The tests will be administered at Angelo State University.

As part of the overall ACT Career Planning Program, persons who take the new assessment profile will receive a report relating their characteristics to major "clusters" of occupations. In addition, forecasts of performance in vocational, technical, and two-year college programs are provided. A booklet on career planning also accompanies each of the resulting reports.

Winters High School students interested in the new program can obtain additional information and registration materials from Mrs. Harrison.

MRS. JOHN WESLEY MCGALLIAN

Karen Elaine Osborne, John Wesley McGallian Married December 20th

In a candlelight service December 20 at Hopewell Baptist Church, Karen Elaine Osborne became the bride of John Wesley McGallian.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Therin Sidney Osborne of the Crews Community. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Sue Cagle of Winters.

The Rev. Bob Scott of Brownwood performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white and pink candles accented with white roses and a single pink rose, placed back of an open Bible.

Brenda Brown and Pat Bishop provided wedding music.

Candlelighters were Laura Parks, cousin of the bride and Glenn Campbell, brother of the bridegroom. Paula Scott of Brownwood was flower girl.

Best man was Bill Williams of Fort Worth, and ushers were Don and Jesse McGallian, brothers of the bridegroom.

Doris Sudduth was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of white velveteen, featuring a hot pink velvet ribbon tied at the empire waist to form a bow in back. Her headpiece was a large pink velvet bow encircled with a veil of pink net. She carried a bright pink spider mum on a pink velvet ribbon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length empire gown of white, accented with lace and matching chapel length veil. Her bouquet was of large carnations, forget-me-nots, sweetpeas, and Lilies of the Valley carried atop a white Bible.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Church. The table was laid with a white lace cloth over pink, centered with a milkglass bud vase holding an arrangement of pink roses. The three-tiered wedding cake and punch were served by alternating members of the house party.

The bridegroom's mother hosted the rehearsal dinner in Winters.

The bride attended Winters High School, and will continue her education in a Fort Worth School, where she is classified as a senior.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Winters High School, and is presently employed by a food store chain in Haltom City.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple is at home in Haltom City, Fort Worth.

"LITTLE BIG MAN"
Custer died laughing, and the on-the-spot observation was made by none other than Sitting Bull. The famous Indian chief told a reporter for the New York Herald shortly after the famous battle that Custer, mortally wounded, shot and killed an Indian as he fell, then rose up on his knees and tried to shoot again, but the empty pistol only clicked. He laughed and died.

Custer won't be laughing much a f t e r Cinema Center Films' "Little Big Man," which Richard Mulligan as General Custer calls "a second look at how the West was won." "There is evidence that Custer was really a cruel megalomaniac bent on sending the Indians the way of the buffalo," Mulligan explains, "winking at the murder of their women, and ordering the slaughter of their ponies. Historians have claimed that he led his troops to certain death, ignoring all advice of a potential massacre." National General Pictures' release of "Little Big Man," which shows Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre, will set the record straight, with director Arthur Penn satirizing the legend with the help of Dustin Hoffman and a special appearance by Faye Dunaway.

Use of DDT In Texas Homes Will Be Discontinued

AUSTIN — Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White announced that registration of DDT for use in and around the home will not be continued in Texas. This means that use of DDT for households in Texas will not be allowed under the Texas pesticide law.

White made his decision based on recommendations of the Pesticide Advisory Committee of Texas. The committee was created by the Texas Legislature to study use of pesticides in Texas and to make recommendations.

White emphasized that the regulation has no bearing on use of DDT for agriculture and in matters relating to public health. "DDT is still a very valuable chemical for agricultural producers and public health officials. But because of the concern of everyone about the quality of our environment, I am announcing that registration of DDT for household use will not be continued in Texas," he said.

About half of the DDT now used in Texas is used in and around the home.

White noted that use of DDT has declined drastically in the past decade. Nationwide, it has been cut by more than a half. The effective date of White's decision is August 31, 1972.

"The need of a quality environment is uppermost in everyone's mind. The Texas Department of Agriculture is committed to providing as best we can through our programs as they relate to the overall economy procedures which will not only maintain but improve our surroundings."

"I believe with the discontinuance of registration of DDT for household use, we will meet our goal of a quality environment. This decision should cut the use of DDT by about one-half in the state. At the same time, we will allow the use of DDT in those formulations approved for agriculture production and will also allow the use of DDT in public health programs."

"DDT is a chemical causing much controversy. Too much of it is based on emotion, not fact. In following the recommendations of the Pesticide Advisory Committee of Texas, I believe this decision is based on factual information. The committee has studied this problem at great length, particularly as it affects all Texans. I, therefore, concur in their recommendation which will curtail the use of DDT around the home but still provides that agriculture and public health can use it in accordance with already-prescribed regulations and limitations."

White said. The PACT based its conclusions on the fact that the Environmental Protection Agency does not recommend DDT for household use. The Texas A&M University Extension Service in its recommendations for control of household pests does not recommend DDT in its lists of approved pesticides.

Household use of DDT can continue until August 31, 1972. After that date, formulators will have to change their labels to show that DDT is not registered for household use.

1971 Was Wettest Year Since 1959, 32.90 In. Received In Seven Months

In the beginning, the year 1971 was a repetition of 1970—dry—but wound up to be the wettest year since 1959.

1970 had been one of the driest years in many, with only 20.11 inches of rainfall recorded. For the first four months, 1971 was the same, with only 4.26 inches of rain for the period. Lands and pastures were parched; creeks ceased running in many areas; water holes dried up; and lakes became dangerously low. There was little hope for crops under those conditions.

Then the rains came in June, 1971, and lingered, until the year wound up with 37.16 inches officially recorded in Winters, the wettest since 1959 when 38.40 inches of rainfall was received.

Last June, with 8.33 inches of rainfall recorded, was the wettest June since 1959, when 9.70 inches fell. August, usually a hot, dry month, saw 7.44 inches of rain, and September was almost as wet, with 7.21 inches. Another 4.87 inches fell in October.
