HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Last week we mentioned that back in 1910, The Winters State Bank had handed out some calendar plates (the kind you are supposed to hang on the wall), and that the whereabouts of only two were known—Estella Bredemeyer had one, and John W. Norman had one. Since that item was published, two more of the 62-year-old plates have turned up. Mrs. Lora Coupland called to say she had one of the plates, still in good condition, although it had served as a dinner plate long ago. Also, Floyd Allen has one of those plates, in good condition.

Officially supervised and conducted driver education pays off, not only in at least exposing young drivers to better driving habits, but also in the area where it is most noticeable—the pocketbook. According to insurance agents, rates for boys under 25, who have taken driver education courses, are refigured to give them a 10 percent reduction on premium charges. (Rates for girl drivers are calculated under a different formula, and are not affected, so it seems.)

Now it appears that the rest of us, who have never had driver instructions who have been driving — and paying insurance premiums through the years—may have an opportunity to get

Elm Creek Water Dist. Plans For State Hearing

Many reports of flood damage to fences, roads, and farmsteads, and loss of much top soil to floodwaters in the Elm Creek watershed, were recounted Tuesday night as the board of directors of Elm Creek Water Control District, sponsors and endorsers of the district, and landowners met in the Winters Community Center to lay plans for the official hearing before the State Soil and Water Conservation Board, scheduled for September 12.

The State Board will meet with landowners and the District board to hear evidence and to determine feasibility of a floodwater retarding program in the Elm Creek watershed, located in Runnels and South Taylor counties.

Following a tour of the watershed area on the afternoon of September 12, the State Board will hear evidence of loss and need for water retarding dams in the area. Evidence of destruction of floodwaters, and the cost of repair and loss of top soil will be weighed against the cost of construction of retarding dams, it was explained.

The purposes of Tuesday night's meeting was to explain to landowners, sponsoring organizations and endorsers, what information the State Board will be seeking. W. M. Hays, chairman of the board of Elm Creek District, said, and in what manner this information or evidence should be presented to the State Board. There are many such projects proposed in the state, and those which have the greatest need for immediate action will receive the highest priority, Hays said.

Hays reminded the group of about 100 that the hearing on September 12 "probably will be the last chance" the Elm Creek watershed landowners have to get assistance in flood prevention.

He also pointed out that a good turnout for the hearing,

Boll Weevil War Continues, Some Knotty Problems

The fight against the boll weevil continues, with hopes of preventing another big loss in cotton production in 1973, but some knotty problems have caused fight-planners to take another look at overall strategy.

C. T. Parker, Runnels County Agriculture agent, and LaDell Davis, Winters farmer working with the Runnels Area Boll Weevil Control Association, told the Winters Lions Club Tuesday noon that although 65,000 acres had been signed up in the kill-out program, there may not be enough matching State funds to apply the program over the entire area.

A meeting of the Association board was scheduled for Tuesday night of this week to try to work out a solution to the problem.

Parker and Davis said the State had agreed to provide only $50,000 for the kill-out program, and that amount, added to the amount assessed farmer-members of the Association, would not be enough to complete the program in the entire 65,000-acre area.

The boll weevil caused a great reduction in cotton production last year, and stands to be blamed for a like reduction this year, Parker said. Although it is too late for the kill-out program to have an effect on this year's crops, the plan is to begin after September 1 to spray to control the weevil in next year's cotton crop.

Therein lies one of the problems, although minor, Parker said. Although some sections of the region to be covered by the Association have experienced sign-ups as high as one hundred percent, there are other sections which have not completely signed. Some farmers, Parker said, are reluctant to pay out money for something in the future.

The problem concerning the inadequate amount to be provided by the State will be a difficult one to solve, Parker said. The Association—the farmers—must decide for themselves which areas are to be included in the kill-out, and which areas are to be skipped, he said. The association board and members were to decide Tuesday what course of action to take to make the program more effective.

Revival Services Start Sunday At Wilmeth Baptist

A revival meeting will begin Sunday, August 20, at the Wilmeth Baptist Church, and will continue through August 27.

The public is invited to attend these services.

The presentation was made by Ralph Headley, zone service manager of the Dallas district. The citation is presented annually to a select group of Ford dealers. Only about 30 percent of the Texas dealers received the award. Headley said. (Staff Photo)

Social Security Payments In Runnels Amounted to $257,000 Monthly in '71

Social security benefits at the rate of $257,000 a month were being paid to residents of Runnels County at the end of 1971, J. M. Talbot, social security of San Angelo, has reported.

Of the social security beneficiaries living in Runnels County, 1,836 are retired workers and their dependents, Talbot said, and another 668 are receiving benefits as survivors of workers who have died. Another 182 are getting benefits as disabled workers or dependents of disabled workers, he said.

Talbot pointed out that although most social security beneficiaries are older people, about one out of every four is under age 60. In Texas, 355,662 people under age 60 are collecting social security payments each month. Nearly 201,773 are under age 18, receiving payments because a working father or mother has died or is getting social security disability or retirement benefits. Most of the 35,349 beneficiaries in Texas between 18 and 22 years of age are getting student's benefits under a provision in the social security law permitting the continuation of a child's benefits beyond his 18th birthday, and up to age 22, if the child is attending school full-time.

Also in this 18-22 age group, Mr. Talbot said, are some other types of beneficiaries, illustrating the broad family protection that the social security program provides workers of all ages. Some are children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers who became disabled before they reached 18 and who will probably never be able to work and become self-supporting. The monthly benefits of these young people, severely handicapped by physical or mental disabilities, will continue indefinitely. Benefits are also payable to the mother if the disabled son or daughter is in the mother's care.

Talbot said that another relatively small but significant group of youthful social security beneficiaries are those who are receiving benefits as disabled workers. Social security disability payments can be paid to a person who becomes disabled for work even if he has less than 5 years of work under social security. As little as 1-2 years of work is required in the case of a worker who becomes disabled before age 24, Talbot said.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

Rural Water Board Will Meet Tuesday

The board of directors of North Runnels Rural Water Corporation will meet at the Winters Chamber of Commerce office next Tuesday, August 22, at 8 p. m., for formal presentation of the corporate charter, and map plans for further action in development of a rural water distribution system in the area.

The corporate charter was applied for a few weeks ago, and has been granted.

LaDell Davis, chairman of the board, told the Winters Lions Club Tuesday noon that applications have already been made for a $490,000 long-term loan from the Farmers Home Administration, and for a Federal grant for $400,000, to build the distribution system.

Application for the loan and grant were forwarded through West Central Texas Council of Governments, and that body approved the plans and applications. WCT COG already had been working on a survey of the area to determine water needs in the area, Davis said.

The plan, which originated a little more than a year ago, provides for construction of a pipeline system which would serve practically every rural area of Runnels County north of the Colorado River. The organization was formed by farm and ranch landowners in the area, with each owner involved paying an initial sign-up fee of $100 for each meter or outlet. About 400 landowners already have signed up, Davis said, and it is expected that more will follow suit before a definite deadline is reached.

A preliminary survey of the region has been made by an engineer employed by the water corporation, Davis said, and both Winters and Ballinger have agreed to furnish either all or part of the water needed.

Two Men Charged With Murder Of Winters Man

Two men are confined in the Runnels County jail in Ballinger charged with murder with malice in the shooting death Saturday in Winters of James F. DeBerry. They were charged in Justice of the Peace Oliver Pettey's court in Ballinger, and bond was set at $40,000 each.

Domingo Pesina Jr., 22, of Winters, and Rodolfo Dominguez, 25, also of Winters, are charged in the shooting.

DeBerry died at 1:05 p. m. in Ballinger Memorial Hospital of gunshot wounds in the chest and stomach.

Runnels County Sheriff Don Atkins said witnesses reported that two men driving a white automobile pulled into the loading dock area of Alderman-Cave Milling & Grain Co. and apparently called DeBerry to their car.

One of the men fired two shots from a .22 caliber revolver, wounding DeBerry in the chest and stomach. Both men fled in the car, the sheriff said.

Roadblocks were set up on all highways leading out of Winters. Bill Timms, deputy sheriff of Coleman, and Boyd Duncan, chief of police of Coleman, apprehended Pesina and Dominguez about five miles west of Coleman on FM 53, the sheriff said, shortly after the incident. They were taken to Ballinger where murder with malice charges were filed.

DeBerry was taken to the Winters hospital, then by Spill ambulance to Ballinger, where he died shortly thereafter.

FB President To State Conference In Austin Aug. 9

M. L. Dobbins of Winters, president of the Runnels County Farm Bureau, attended the statewide conference of county FB presidents in Austin August 9-11.

Issues facing agriculture and new programs in Farm Bureau were discussed by the more than 125 county leaders at the conference. The presidents also heard a report on the farmer-rancher image study conducted recently in Dallas. According to the report, there is a "reservoir of good will" in metropolitan areas for agriculture in general.

Speakers included J. T. (Red) Woodson of Fannin County, president of the 130,000 member state farm organization; TFB Executive Director Warren Newberry of Waco; and Jack Angell, of Chicago, American Farm Bureau Federation labor specialist.

State and national issues discussed at the conference included farm labor, transportation, environmental pollution, financing public education, taxes, property rights, and control of fire ants, predatory animals and screwworms.

Farm Bureau programs under discussion included public relations, policy development, income tax service, and Farm Bureau's community approach to farm problems.

The county leaders also heard a report on how agriculture fared in the recent special sessions of the 62nd Legislature as well as an analysis of the "characteristics" of the upcoming 63rd Legislature.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C.—Now that Hop Sing (of the Ponderosa) has recovered from the shotgun wound received in the recent West Coast plane hijacking, he says that he will not make another trip by air unless he is assured of security from high-jackers. The trouble is there is thus far no such thing. Real efforts are being made by both the Government and the airlines, but there is nothing yet to give guaranteed certainty against airplane holdups.

Consider some of the basic facts involved. In the United States alone there are approximately 14,000 scheduled flights a day, carrying an average of 500,000 daily passengers and countless millions of pieces of luggage and baggage. More than 500 airports receive regular scheduled air flights. Though 25 airports account for 70 percent of all passengers, many of the smaller ports are served by modern jets and become a target for high-jackers and extortionists. Air travel and air freight are constantly expanding and the predictions are that during the 70's travel will increase by at least 10 percent a year.

Efforts are now under way to provide carrier protection against this type of robbery. A real test is shaping up within the next few months. There seems to be new determination on the part of Government and airlines to halt these air crimes.

It is a frustrating business and an expensive one. Detection systems cost money and there is already an argument between the Government and the airlines as to who will foot the bill. The biggest problem, however, is how to exercise the greatest possible precaution and at the same time avoid delay and inconvenience. Human frailties being what they are, airlines will receive all sorts of complaints by their passengers if they are greatly inconvenienced. Competing airlines want to give the best possible service and delays such as the search of individuals and their baggage would certainly slow down schedules. The fact that airlines are both promoters and cops has been an obstacle to highjacking efforts. It is understandable that both Federal Marshals and airline security agents will not want to needlessly harass travelers if they can avoid it. It is understandable that carelessness will result, since the chances of a passenger being highjacked is one in 3 1/2 to 4 million.

In the next few months tighter controls will be put into effect. The airlines are buying hundreds of magnetometers with plans to use them at all gates of major airports. By Presidential order hand baggage is now being inspected in three of the Nation's most heavily traveled air routes. These are Los Angeles to San Francisco, New York to Boston and New York to Washington. On other routes a screening system is being used but the effectiveness has not been proved.

The Federal Aviation Administration is pressuring the airlines to do more. One approach is to give passengers the choice of either surrendering all baggage or requiring a search of anything carried on a plane.

The problem is by no means a simple one and defies complete and total solutions. The problem exists throughout the world, which has brought on international consultations. An amendment to the Foreign Aid Bill passed last week provides that any aid to a foreign country will be cut off if they do not either prosecute or extradite to this Country any skyjacker who has sought asylum, as in the last case of those who went to Algeria. This will not reach many countries such as Cuba but it does point up a part of the dilemma and an effort to eliminate safe harbors for the criminals.

Passengers, airlines and government may eventually be left with the worst of two choices: Stricter and more time-consuming inspections of passengers and baggage or face the constant threat of sky crime.

Funeral Tuesday In Spill Chapel For John Stehle

John Stehle, 84, retired farmer, died at 11:25 a. m. Sunday in the Merrill Nursing Home after a long illness.

Funeral services were held in Spill Memorial Chapel at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday. The Rev. Chester Wilkerson, retired Methodist minister, officiated. Burial was in Northview Cemetery.

Mr. Stehle was born Aug. 11, 1888, in Hungary. He came with his parents to the United States when he was four years old. The family settled at Goliad and later moved to Refugio County.

In 1917 the family moved to a farm south of Winters, where he lived until his retirement in 1965. He then moved to Winters. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church.

Conditions Good For Turkey, Quail

WACO — Quail and turkey are responding to good range conditions in the Edwards Plateau.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists report that the upland game birds are making up for lost time this year throughout the 16-million-acre regulatory area.

Wild turkey populations, although traditionally high in the area, were not supplemented last year with young birds because of the severe Spring 1971 drought.

This year's nesting activity started early and continued thru early summer with many young birds seen throughout the project area.

If rains continue, hunters will have every reason to be optimistic about next season's population.

White-Winged Dove Refuge Changes

AUSTIN — Saturday, Sept. 2 is the big day for whitewing hunters.

The season on the South Texas birds is open for three days from Sept. 2 through Sept. 4. Hunting hours are from 12 noon to sunset.

Daily bag limit is 10 and the possession limit is 20. The most important difference between this season and last year's is the area off limits to hunters.

An area south of a line extending along U. S. Highway 281 between the city limits of Hidalgo and Brownsville is closed to hunting during the concurrent whitewing and mourning dove season.

Hunters must retain on fully feathered wing on dressed doves in counties having a whitewing and mourning dove season. This requirement also applies when doves are imported from Mexico or any foreign country.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Summer Tree Pruning Has Benefits

Light pruning during the summer will benefit young shade trees and will shape them for the future.

County Agricultural Agent C. T. Parker, Jr., points out that many home-owners delay pruning until winter's dormant season simply out of habit. But by "pinching back" or other light pruning now, there will be less pruning to do this winter. Also, summer pruning will have less of a dwarfing effect on the tree.

With good soil and plenty of water, young shade trees make lush growth by midsummer. Through proper pruning, some structural weaknesses can be corrected. Likewise, pruning can direct growth to the desired direction.

Summer pruning should be confined mainly to temporary branches and shoots, points out Parker. After the first permanent branch has been selected, head back most growth below it. However, just pinch back the growing ends of short horizontal branches. These branches will help increase the trunk's growth and protect it from injury. As soon as the tree develops a good top growth and a sturdy trunk, these side branches can be removed over a period of two or three years.

To create a sturdy framework, Parker recommends leaving five to seven wide-angled branches, which should be of less diameter than the trunk. He also stressed the importance of vertical spacing or having limbs at different levels on the trunk. Serious structural weaknesses occur when too many permanent limbs are on the same level. Side branches on small trees should be eight inches apart while large trees should have at least two feet between lateral limbs.

Keep a check on the tree and its growth patterns, advises the agent. If a side branch threatens to choke out the central leader, pinch out its growing tip at once. On the other hand, should the leader fail to produce a side branch, cut it back to the height where a side branch is desired. Two or more shoots will usually develop near the cut, of which one will be more vigorous than the others. That one should be trained into a new leader, with the remainder becoming lateral branches. Wildlife Conditions in County Have Improved in Past Few Years, Says SCS

Nearly a million people, many from out of state, buy hunting licenses in Texas every year, and even more buy fishing licenses. Add up everything these sportsmen spend in search of game and fish and it comes to quite a figure—probably in excess of $500 million, according to officials of departments regulating hunting and fishing.

However, up until several years ago, wildlife has not been very abundant in Runnels County, and very little of this $500 million was spent in this area. But now, according to Soil Conservation Service specialists, more and more ranchers and land owners in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District have been carrying out management practices, such as deferred grazing and proper grazing use, conducive to better wildlife conditions. Wildlife has readily increased in quality and numbers, they said. With changes in habitat resulting from these practices, together with the control of natural predators, strict game laws, game law enforcement and the recent successes in control of the screw-worm, have favored the increase in all wildlife, especially in deer. Deer are more numerous now in this area than at any time during recent history, specialists said. In some parts of the county, deer numbers have increased to a point where they are helping to bring in some additional income to the land owner.

Wildlife biologists have found that deer and other forms of wildlife are found in greater numbers along the edge between wooded and open areas. Lush growth in the open provides an abundance of food while the woods or brush offer protective cover.

The basic requirements for most wildlife species are year-round supply of food and water, plus a safe place to hide, rest, roost, nest and raise their young. Neither adequate cover nor adequate food alone provide all their needs.

Deer, for example, are very selective in their food habits but they browse on many different kinds of plants when available. All parts of some plants are eaten; only fruits, leaves or tender twigs and shoots of others are taken. Some plants are relished during certain periods of the year but are hardly touched at other times. Other plants, such as annual forbs, are available only for short periods.

Deer do not fare well on a diet entirely of browse, even though quality and availability may be good. They also require succulent forbs and grasses, especially in the spring and early summer when does are nursing fawns.

Not all plants are desirable forage. Many kinds of brush and trees are not eaten even though deer may be near starvation. Some of these plants do furnish cover, however.

Most fruits, acorns, nuts and seeds of trees and shrubs are a welcome part of the deer's diet. In northeast corner of Runnels County for example, acorns may make up most of the deer's food for a few weeks of the year. During good acorn years hunters harvest fat deer. But acorns and other kinds of mast are not always dependable sources of food.

Patches and strips of brush or trees, especially along the draws, creeks, bottomlands, canyons and steep slopes, furnish ideal cover as well as forage for deer. Deer often bed down in tall grass or weed cover or under rock ledges. For the most part, however, trees and brush furnish the most desirable and available cover.

For assistance in determining your needs in creating a better habitat for wildlife, contact Gerald Merz of the Local Soil Conservation Service assisting the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District.

Austin. — Rep. Price Daniel, Jr., of Liberty apparently will take over the House of Representatives speakership without opposition next January.

Withdrawal of Rep. Frank Calhoun of Abilene from the speaker's race last week, after concluding that Daniel was too far out front to catch, left the 31-year-old attorney from Liberty free of a major challenger.

Rep. James E. Nugent, of Kerrville, who had planned to enter the contest earlier, endorsed Daniel.

Before Calhoun's withdrawal, Daniel claimed more than 100 commitments from House members or nominees.

"So many of the old and new members had committed to my opponent before I got into the race, that my continuance in the campaign would place a burden on my supporters that I do not feel justified in causing," said Calhoun.

Daniel, son of former Governor Price Daniel, came from a long way back to emerge as the shoo-in candidate for speaker.

When Rep. Rayford Price of Palestine won the post in special session last spring after resignation of former Speaker Gus Mutscher, he was considered a cinch to keep the job during the 63rd Legislature.

But Price was defeated for re-election to his House seat in the June 3 Democratic runoff primary by Rep. Fred Head of Troup.

Daniel, meanwhile, had been busy rounding up commitments from incumbent lawmakers and nominees. He tries to dodge being labeled a liberal and prefers the term "progressive." He has emphasized need for legislative reform and is pledged to hold the speakership only one term.

SAFETY COURSE OFFERED
Texans who complete a new defensive driving course after September 1 can become eligible for a 10 per cent reduction in their annual auto insurance policies.

Texas Safety Association has accepted responsibility for coordinating the National Safety Council course.

The course will cost about $10 or less per person, and the resulting credit is good for three years.

Individual savings over the three-year period are estimated at about $45 — or $43 million statewide. Duplications are not allowed for the new course in addition to the driver training course.

In families with two or more cars, the principal drivers of each car will have to take the course to qualify for credit on all vehicles. After the three-year period, the course must be repeated by drivers to continue qualification for the 10 per cent credit.

SPECIAL SESSION COOLING?
Governor Preston Smith may be cooling a little on the idea of a September special session on insurance reform, but he insists the idea is still alive.

"I'm pretty flexible," said Smith. "If somebody can bring me in some facts that would show me there would be no purpose served in calling a session, I would not even pretend to be in a mood to waste $33,000 a day (estimated session cost) of the taxpayers' money."

On the other hand, Smith said, if he could be shown that legislation to reduce insurance rates could be passed, he would not hesitate to summon lawmakers back to work.

Main business of the session, he indicated, would be a proposal for competitive insurance rates, which he said are in effect in 49 states. He seemed to be backing off his proposal to abolish the present insurance regulatory board.

"I don't know that we will attempt to abolish the board," he said. "If we come to the

DDT BANNED
DDT registrations in Texas will be cancelled August 31 with few exceptions, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White announced.

White had banned DDT registration for household use earlier under Pesticide Advisory Committee recommendations. The committee said the action would have little impact on Texas agriculture.

Exceptions will permit registration for DDT to use on stored sweet potatoes, disease control programs by public health officials, and in the military in health quarantine programs.

APPOINTMENTS
Aubrey Edwards of Big Lake was named district attorney of the 83rd judicial district, to replace William H. Earney of Marfa who resigned.

Free and Reduced Price Lunch Policy In Force In Winters Public School

A free and reduced price lunch policy for school children unable to pay the full price for school lunches is in force in the Winters Public School, Carroll Tatom, superintendent of schools, has announced.

* Free lunches will be provided children in certain family-size and income categories, and reduced-price lunches will be provided in other specific categories, or in special cases.

For instance, in a family of five, with three children in school, and in the income level $4720 annually and below, lunches will be provided free. In a family of six, income level from $5331 to $5880, and with four children in school, lunches will be free.

The reduced price—20 cents—will be charged for lunches in families of three, income level of $3451 to $4110.

The "free lunch" scale goes from a family size of 1, with income of $2130, one child in school, to family size of 12, $8,430, with 11 in school.

Eligibility determinations are made on a family basis; that is, all the children in the same family attending school under the jurisdiction of the same school food authority, are to receive the same benefits, a free lunch or a reduced price lunch.

Letters of explanation of the program, along with a family-size and income level scale, have been sent to parents of all children enrolled in the Winters Public School. Families within the income and family-size scales qualifying them for free lunches or reduced-price lunches are urged to apply for those benefits. They may do so by filling in the applications sent to them, and returning to the office of the principal of the school involved, or to the school business office. Additional copies of the application may be obtained, and applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

The form itself is simple to complete, and requests information needed to determine economic need based on the income and number of persons in the family, and any unusual circumstances which may affect the family's ability to pay for school lunches. Regular lunch cost is 40 cents for children in grades Day Care through the sixth, and 45 cents for grades seven through twelve.

Under the provisions of the policy, the school business manager will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the local official he may make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision. Superintendent Carroll Tatom has been designated as the hearing official.

The information on the application remains confidential, and there will be no identification or discrimination against any student unable to pay the full cost of a lunch, Supt. Tatom said.

A complete copy of the policy governing free and reduced price lunches is on file in each school and in the office of the school business manager where it may be reviewed by any interested person.

TO LUBBOCK
Mr. and Mrs. Sid Anderson visited last week with her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Robertson of Lubbock, and also with Dr. and Mrs. Bill Crawford of Clovis, N. M. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson of Dallas, who returned home this week.

ATTENDED FUNERAL
Mrs. Ida Bates attended the funeral of her nephew, D. H. Bagley of Brownwood, Tuesday of last week. He died in the Veterans Hospital at Temple.

A Senate committee probing health care costs was told hospitalization in Texas isn't quite as high as the national average —if that's any consolation.

as a whole, is known as optoelectronics and it promises to open whole new vistas for visual displays. At present, the components known as LEDs, related to the transistor, hold the lead in the applications for miniature electronic calculators and electronic wrist watches that flash the time in numbers. Marketing analysts foresee total worldwide sales of all optoelectronic equipment around $460 million within a few years, compared with about $40 million's worth now believed to be in use.

LEDs Vs. Liquid Crystals
LEDs or light-emitting diodes resemble semiconductors, crystalline substances which when mixed with other chemical substances cause different arrangements of electrons so that an electrical current will work in only one direction. They emit light, and when properly assembled in an electronic display they form numbers. Such optical devices last at least five years. Other virtues include low power consumption, good shock-absorbing qualities, a relatively cheap price, easy assemblage, and adaptability to most environments.

Liquid crystals, which occur in nature, have been known for about eighty years. Displays using these crystals are expected to be on the market before 1972 is ended. Although their lifetime is not reputed to be as long as that of LEDs, liquid crystals use even less power and proponents claim they will be even less expensive. Unlike LEDs, liquid crystals do not wash out when viewed in bright light, although they are somewhat more difficult to read in displays.

MARKETING POSSIBILITIES
The largest market for displays is in calculators, digital electronic watches, engineering test and measurement equipment, and medical instrumentation. Also figuring importantly in this sector are computer peripherals, aircraft instruments, and point-of-sale retail machines. Of prime consequence is the huge potential market for the consumer pocket calculator and the solid-state digital watch with no moving parts. Some 1.5 million calculators are expected to be sold in the U. S. this year, of which from 500,000 to 700,000 will be consumer machines. As for timepieces, electronic watches with visual displays should reap a real bonanza here once the price drops to attract demand.

THE COMPANIES
There are several major companies with considerable depth in optoelectronics, plus some smaller aspirants achieving a significant position in the field. It is fairly well established that the companies that will dominate the market by 1975 will be those self sufficient in the compounds making up the LEDs and those involved in the liquid-crystal technology. Along with Monsanto, principally a chemical concern, those firms with solid experience in semiconductors—such as Motorola, Texas Instruments, and Fairchild Camera & Instrument—should be among the leaders. According to the Research Department of Babson's Reports, the stocks of these companies should be held. Among diversified multimillion-dollar corporations is North American Philips, recommended at lower prices and now suggested as a "Hold" issue. Babson's chief purchase recommendation in this group is North American Rockwell, which just won the bid on the space shuttle program. It is a major produc-

Leftover Turkey
Even though turkeys are now marketed in sizes to suit just about every type of occasion or family gathering, many homemakers still like to prepare a large bird.

This leaves lots of leftover turkey for special dishes to highlight the dinner table later in the week.

Leftover turkey is ideal for casseroles, salads and other high-protein main dishes providing cool summer eating pleasure.

Any leftover turkey should be removed from the bones and refrigerated. You can also freeze the turkey for later use. Cover with gravy and juices. Small meal-size units of turkey, properly wrapped, can be frozen and held up to one month. When ready to re-use gravies and broths, reheat rapidly to boiling before serving. Never freeze uncooked or cooked stuffed turkey in the household freezer.

If you're wondering whether or not to stuff the turkey, remember that unstuffed birds take less time in preparation, cooking, carving and serving—and minimize the possibility of food poisoning due to partially cooked dressing.

Dressing can be baked separately in the last hour, utilizing the pan drippings as well as the cooked neck and giblets. Canned turkey for chicken soup or bouillon cubes may be used for added flavoring.

Turkey Pop-O-Puff
3 cups chopped cooked turkey
1-4 cup butter
1 cup diced celery
1-4 cup chopped onion
1 cup broth
1 tsp. salt
1-2 tsp. poultry seasoning
1-2 tsp. ground pepper
Dash of mace

FOR THE TOPPING:
3 eggs, well beaten
1-2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
3-4 tsp. salt
1 cup milk
2 T. melted butter
Cook turkey in butter or margarine until heated. Add celery and onion and cook until vegetables are softened. Add broth and seasonings and cook until moisture is evaporated. Pour into greased shallow two-quart casserole. Keep hot. For the topping, beat eggs with dry ingredients, then add milk and melted butter. Pour over hot turkey mixture. Bake in a 425 degree oven for about 25 minutes, or until top is golden brown. Makes nine servings.

Ring-Around-the-Turkey
3 pkgs. apple-flavored gelatin
4 cups boiling water
9 T. lemon juice (About 3 lemons)
1 tsp. "seasoning" salt
10 thin small slices of white turkey
1 1-2 cup finely chopped cooked turkey

"Song of the South"

"Song of the South," Walt Disney's picturization of the folk tales by Joel Chandler Harris, returns to entertain a new generation of film goers.

Academy Award recipient James Baskett plays Uncle Remus, the beloved fablest who always ended his stories about Brer Rabbit, Fox and Bear with a moral.

Uncle Remus's creator, Joel Chandler Harris, was born in Georgia in 1848. He knew the black people of his day intimately; Harris was the first Southerner to proclaim their importance as philosophers and artists. He portrayed Uncle Remus as a man of dignity, humor, wisdom and understanding. His animal characters possess human qualities common to everyone who lives over.

Harris reportedly modeled Uncle Remus after an old storyteller named Uncle Bob Capers, who introduced him to the antics of Brer Rabbit, Brer Fox and Brer Bear. Their escapades, including the famous "Brer Rabbit and the Tar Baby," highlight "Song of the South."

Combining live-action and animation, the Buena Vista release is presented in color by Technicolor with a cast led by Baskett, Bobby Driscoll, Luana Patten, Ruth Warrick, Lucile Watson and Hattie McDaniel.

a reduction in our insurance costs.

As a direct result of a suggestion made by the Texas Association of Insurance Agents, Texas automobile owners may, beginning September 1, save 10 percent on the cost of their auto insurance. All that is required, according to Josh R. Morris Jr., the association president, is for an automobile owner to complete the new Defensive Driving Course that will soon be offered statewide.

The State Board of Insurance recently ruled that Texas automobile owners could receive a 10 percent reduction in bodily injury, property damage and collision coverage by completing the DDC as outlined by the National Safety Council.

While the saving from this credit could amount to as much as $43 million a year in Texas, and is a substantial financial benefit, the savings in life and injury that can result from DDC is expected by the insurance agents. The DDC, properly taught, will reduce traffic accidents significantly, the National Safety Council says.

The Texas Association of Insurance Agents is working in cooperation with the Texas Safety Association in implementing the new program. The biggest headache, the agents say, in getting the program off the ground is a lack of trained instructors. Efforts are being made to recruit enough qualified instructors to meet the anticipated demand for the program come September 1. The Texas Safety Association will conduct the actual training of instructors. (Interested persons should contact the Texas Safety Association, 1623 South Lamar Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78804, for information).

The course should cost $10 or less per person and the resulting credit will be good for three years. This means, according to Morris, a motorist can spend $10 in learning to drive defensively and save $45 or more on his auto insurance over a three year period. After the three year period, the DDC must be repeated by an individual in order for him to again qualify for the 10 percent premium credit.

Car owners will have no luck rushing to see their insurance agents about the reduction of the DDC course right away, however. Just when this program
