HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Harry Grantz, pastor of the First Baptist Church, says the spectacle of mobs of newsmen around an important person is not a 20th Century phenomenon, but has been with us for many centuries. He says such is mentioned in the Bible:

"And they came unto him, bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four.

"And when they could not come nigh unto him for the press, they uncovered the roof where he was; and when they had broken it up, they led down the bed wherein the sick of the palsy lay." —Mark 2:3-4.

Residents of Elm Creek watershed, in Rannels and South Taylor counties, on Tuesday, October 31, will make a decision on probably the most crucial question ever to confront this area, when they cast their ballots for or against the proposed $300,000 bond issue for Elm Creek Water Control District.

Few people can think of any question ever posed locally with the far-reaching effects this one has. The effects of the decisions made October 31 will be felt not only within the next few foreseeable years in this area, but for many decades to come.

Ultimately, it all has to do with water, a precious commodity in any locality, but of utmost value in this area: Control of floodwaters to conserve our most precious natural resource, the soil, and to protect man-installed property on the watershed; and finally, the entrapment of water to provide a water supply for not only Winters and Ballinger, but for the new rural water supply system which is expected to be under construction within a few months.

The effects will be felt not only by those who have land and property directly in line with threatening floodwaters on Elm Creek and its tributaries, but by those in the higher-elevation sections of the watershed, as well. Even if a section of land is not threatened by the soil-moving floodwaters of the streams, improvement of the lower-elevation lands also enhances the value of the uplands.

Much work has been done by many people to bring the project of Elm Creek Water Control District to this point, and the decision to continue now rests with the people. If the decision is made to go ahead—if the people say "Yes" to the question on the ballot October 31, we can expect more rapid progress within the next few months, and ultimately a system of flood-water retaining structures all along Elm Creek and its tributaries, and the probability of a larger water supply. If the answer is "No," then most of us now here probably will never again see the day when the question will be brought up, and work already accomplished, to begin anew. It's as simple as that.

We should all study this proposition with greatest of concern, because it will have an everlasting effect on our own individual success and progress.

First District Game

Blizzards Play Hamlin Friday

The Winters Blizzards will travel to Hamlin Friday night, to open the five-game District 6-AA conference series. All other teams of the district also will begin district play Friday night.

With no team in the district showing outstanding or unbeatable traits this season—all teams have lost at least two games each—the district title still is up for grabs, and this Friday's games will give a better indication of team strength.

Friday night's encounter at Hamlin will pit the Blizzards, listed at the top in season standings, against the Pied Pipers, who are trailing the district pack. Winters has a 3-2 record, while Hamlin has a record of 0-1 for the season.

The two teams have played only one common opponent, Clyde. Winters defeated Clyde 20-16 in the season opener, and Hamlin tied the Bulldogs 6-6 in their second game of the year.

Even though the Pipers have an unimpressive record for the season, they are credited with being a good football team. They have a lot of speed in the backfield, and have 9 returning starters on the offensive squad. Eight returning starters are listed for the Piper defense. They can be expected to give an account of themselves once they get into district play.

The Blizzards defeated Hamlin 21-16 last season. This year will be the first time since 1969 the two teams have met in conference play. Winters and Hamlin were in separate districts during 1970-71, but were returned to the same district in this year's realignment of districts throughout the state.

The Blizzards will go into district play with an extra week of rest behind them; they had an off week last week. Coach Chili Black said the team has been working extra hard during the past two weeks, preparing for the district competition. They have been hurt somewhat in previous games, and reshuffling of both offense and defense has been necessary, the coach said.

Wayne Schwartz, a defensive guard, was injured in the Eldorado game three weeks ago, and will be out for the season. Denny Heathcott, a guard, has been sidelined with a bad knee, and is not expected to see action for a couple or three weeks. However, Fred de la Cruz, who received injuries in the Eldorado game, and missed the Brady game, has been working out, and is expected to go against Hamlin this week.

The Blizzard defense will sport a "new look" this week, the coach said, which has been caused by lack of depth in some positions. But they are gaining momentum in workouts. This is expected to show up on the field Friday night.

To Help Catch Thieves

Police Dept. To Initiate Ident System For Personal Property

In an effort to foil thieves and to a big extent halt burglary and theft, and to assist in locating stolen property, the Winters Police Department has initiated an identification system for personal property, such as firearms, office machinery, television sets, radios, and the like.

Working with the cooperation of local citizens, the Police Department will maintain a cross-reference identification and locator filing system, listing articles of value, makes, models, and serial numbers or other identifying marks or numbers.

With the help of this identification system, Chief of Police Joe Stevens said, it is hoped that in the event property is stolen here, it can be identified and recovered, and the thieves apprehended, even if it is sold out of town or is found in possession of suspects.

The system will be on an individual, voluntary basis, Chief Stevens said. A local citizen may list with the Police Department all the information on personal property articles. This information will be entered on filing cards, and cross-referenced. In the event an article is stolen, the file will be searched for identifying numbers. This information will be forwarded to Washington, D. C., and to other cities throughout the country. If the article turns up even in some other town or state, there is a good chance it can be returned to the rightful owner, Stevens said.

Stevens said the identification system is being used in many places now, and some of the larger cities even use computers to record the information.

Soil Conservation Assn. For Passage Of Amendments

The Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts is supporting the passage of Constitutional Amendment No. 9, to be voted on November 7, which would remove the constitutional prohibition against dual office holding for district directors, Doyle Hutcheson, president of the association, has announced. The association also supports passage of Amendment No. 12, which would remove prohibition against State employees or certain other individuals, who are not State officers, to serve as members of other governing bodies.

Presently, many people are prohibited from holding offices on school boards, city councils, and other public positions, "thus making their leadership abilities unavailable to their fellow citizens," the association said.

Amendment No. 9 deals primarily with directors of soil and water conservation districts, it was pointed out. However, passage of Amendment No. 12 would release not only these people, but would release State employees, teachers, city employees, and any other employees working for public organizations for the prohibition, the association said.

The association pointed out that there is a great deal of leadership wealth lost to the public because of the present prohibitions. There are at least 350,000 Texans affected by these prohibitions, who could otherwise offer their services to their communities in many non-paying jobs, it was stated.

Bank, Post Office Will Be Closed Monday, Oct. 23

The Winters State Bank and the Post Office will be closed Monday, October 23, in the observance of "Veterans Day." At the Post Office, only box mail will be put up, with no rural or city mail delivery. The service counter will be closed. This observance will be in place of the traditional Veterans Day, or Armistice Day, November 11, and is in line with Congressional passed policy that many national holidays be observed on Monday to give government workers an extra long weekend.

Elm Creek Information Meeting Here Thursday

The final public information meeting, to explain plans of the Elm Creek Water Control District, and the bond issue election scheduled October 31, will be held in the Winters Community Center next Thursday, October 26, at 8 p. m.

Other public meetings have been held at Crews and Bradshaw, and one was scheduled for Thursday night of this week at Ballinger.

W. M. Hays, chairman of the board of Elm Creek Water Control District, said all residents of the area are invited and urged to attend the meeting, to gain information on the plans of the district and on the bond issue. He said films of flood damage on Elm Creek will be shown, and property and land damage resulting from flooding in the past will be explained. Hays also said results of other watershed projects, similar in nature to what is proposed on Elm Creek will be explained so that property owners may more readily understand what can be done on Elm Creek watershed.

The district chairman said that no tax rate has been set at the present time to pay off the proposed bond issue, or to underwrite maintenance costs for the proposed project, but that a tentative rate will be explained during the public meeting to clarify probable costs to the landowners of the district. He stressed that if the bond issue carries, the entire $300,000 issue probably will not be released at one time, but will be sold at intervals when the money is needed for specific phases of the project.

The board of directors and others working on the project have stressed the importance of all landowners within the district to attend the meeting, and to get first-hand information on all proposals.

"Homecoming Day" Will Wind Up Wingate Church's Anniversary Week

A "Homecoming Day" for all former members of the Wingate Baptist Church, Sunday, October 22, will be the final service in a week-long series celebrating the 80th anniversary of the church.

Dr. T. A. Patterson, Executive Secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will be the speaker for the morning service. Dinner will be served at the church following the morning services.

All former residents of the community and former members of the Wingate Baptist Church are especially invited to attend the Sunday services and take part in the anniversary observance.

The week-long series began Sunday with special services. Former pastors were guest speakers during the week, with the young people of the church recognized Wednesday night.

Bicycle Riders Must Obey Traffic Rules; Reflectors, Lights Needed

Traffic rules and regulations, as applied to moving motor vehicles also apply to bicycle riders, Chief of Police Joe Stevens reminded bicyclists this week.

Bicycles also must be equipped with lights and safety reflectors when operated at night, he said.

Chief Stevens said that recently there have been many near-accidents involving automobiles and bicycles, and that if bicycle riders do not obey ordinary traffic rules, "somebody is going to be badly injured, or even killed." He also pointed out that many bicycle riders—both young people and adults have been observed riding on the streets at night without proper lights and reflectors.

The police chief said that all bicycles which are operated after dark must be equipped with a front light and a reflector on the rear. He reminded bicycle riders that it is very difficult for motorists to see a bicycle at night, especially on some of the dark streets, if there are no lights or reflectors on the bicycle. The danger is multiplied, he said, if there are several riders in a group, without lights.

Traffic rules also apply to bicyclists, Chief Stevens reminded. Riders should ride with the flow of traffic on the proper side of the street, and should give proper and accepted turning signals. Young children who have a habit of riding back and forth across the streets should be cautioned that this practice is a dangerous one, and serious injury could be the result. All children should be taught traffic rules before they are allowed to ride on the public streets, he said, and their bicycles should be inspected periodically to make sure that lights and reflectors are in place and in operation before the youngsters are allowed to ride at night.

Council Looking At Plans For New Water Tower

The Winters City Council spent considerable time during the regular meeting Tuesday night studying plans and discussing replacement of the water storage tower which was removed when Main Street (US 83) was widened.

David Gattis, representative of a company which builds municipal water towers, showed films of construction and maintenance of towers, and explained details of installation.

The Council is aiming toward a 250,000-gallon storage tower, it was understood. The old tower had a 50,000-gallon capacity.

Part of the cost of installation of a new tower will be borne by the State Highway Department, it was stated, but it was not known how much that agency would provide.

City officials explained that in addition to the need for additional storage capacity to supply demand, basic insurance rates are keyed to the available water supply.

Apples
Greek and Roman myths abound in stories about the apple, symbol of love and beauty. Even today, we refer to something or someone we prize as "the apple of our eye." But be careful—because the "apple of your eye" can sometimes be a "thorn in your side."

Take for instance the myth about Atalanta—beautiful goddess and huntress. Atalanta was fleet of foot and challenged every man who sought her hand in marriage to a race. She promised that if he won, she would marry him. The only catch was that if he lost, he must die.

Because Atalanta was so beautiful, many men accepted the terms, and as many men died. And then along came Hippomenes and Hippomenes was not a betting man, but he couldn't resist Atalanta's temptations. However, he hedged his bet by praying Aphrodite, Goddess of Love, before the race. Aphrodite answered his prayers by giving him three golden apples. Following her instructions, Hippomenes dropped them, one by one, during the race. Each time, Atalanta was tempted beyond her strength and stopped to retrieve the apple, thus losing the race and at the same time winning a husband.

Now we can't promise that you'll win your race (or even a husband or wife for that matter) by dropping apples, but it's a sure bet that fresh delicious apples and apple products will

The Things
We Say

By RUBY SHANNON

Critics of our present day society frequently use the term "lotus eaters" to describe the lazy, day-dreaming youngsters it is accused of producing.

What does the expression mean? When the ancient Greeks visited Africa, they found a strange kind of people living there who ate the sweet pulpy fruit of the lotus tree. This diet tended to make them lazy and they dreamed away their days. Strangers who ate the fruit tended to forget their homeland, and they longed to remain in the country of the lotus tree.

Odysseus' men ate the fruit and he had to use force to have his men dragged to his ship so they could return home.

The expression has lingered so that today we call any person a lotus eater who is lazy and lacks ambition.

The lotus flower and bud were favorite designs used in both Egyptian and Hindu art and architecture.

be abundant during October. For the fourth consecutive year, the apple harvest is predicted to be about 150 million bushels, assuring consumers of ample supplies of fresh apples, canned applesauce and apple juice. Although a great many apples are eaten fresh out-of-hand, they also make superb pies, cakes, dumplings, baked apples, sauces, jellies, apple rings, desserts—and a hundred and one other fresh and cooked apple dishes.

Sausage With Sweetpotato and Apple

1-2 lb. link sausage
1-2 tsp. salt
1 T. flour
1-2 cup cold water
2 medium sized sweetpotatoes
3 medium sized apples
2 T. sugar
1 T. sausage drippings
Cut link sausage into 1-2 inch pieces. Fry until well done. (If you wish to use bulk sausage—shape it into small balls before frying or break it up as it cooks). Pare and slice potatoes and apples. Mix salt, flour and sugar together and blend with cold water. Arrange layers of potatoes, apples, and sausage in a baking dish, pouring some of the flour and sugar mixture over each layer. Top the dish with apples and sausage, and add drippings. Cover; bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) until apples and potatoes are tender—about 45 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Apple Bean Bake

1 lb. ground beef
1-2 cup chopped onion
1 can condensed tomato soup
1 tsp. salt
3 or 4 apples, sliced
1-3 cup chopped green pepper
1 T. prepared mustard.
1 can pork and beans
Fry ground beef, chopped onion and green pepper until brown. Drain excess fat from this mixture. Add tomato soup, prepared mustard, and salt. Spread beef mixture into 2 quart baking dish, cover with pork and beans. Top with sliced apples, cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

kept legislators guessing whether he would call them to work in another special session immediately after conclusion of the fourth called session.

Regardless of the outcome of deliberations on competitive rates for auto and home insurance, the session managed to pass a respectable number of the nearly 30 pieces of legislation submitted by the Governor. Nearly a week before adjournment deadline, lawmakers handed the Governor bills he sought to restore some of his fiscal-budgetary authority. They gave him an emergency fund, authority to use it to head off fiscal crises and provided for some gubernatorial power to review need for budgeted spending.

These additional bills were among those finally passed and sent the Governor: —A $13.5 million appropriation for medical school building at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, and the University of Texas medical school at Houston.

—An $8 million appropriation for a new school for the mentally retarded at Fort Worth.

—A $317,000 appropriation to pay leftover costs of May-June primary elections.

—Exemption of aviation schools regulated by the Federal Aviation Agency from control by the Texas Education Agency under the new proprietary (private trade) school act.

—Authority for Midland to disannex from the Odessa junior college district.

—Establishment of Texas Film Commission as a statutory permanent agency.

COURTS SPEAK

The State Supreme Court refused to order a Houston judge to approve fees of court-appointed attorneys for poor defendants in a criminal case.

The High Court also refused to hear appeals of contests involving League City's tax system.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals found H. D. Nicholson was qualified as a candidate for district judge in Navarro County though he had not had a law office for the last six years.

AG OPINIONS

Third parties except the state and its agencies, whether individuals, associations, or corporations, may legally contract for dental care of citizens only by complying with the non-profit corporation act, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin held. Martin's opinion said the Department of Public Welfare and other agencies can so contract under the medical assistance act.

In other recent opinions, Martin held: —House members cannot buy their old desk chairs, since state property must be disposed of according to statute.

—A Fort Worth ordinance regulating a and licensing bail bondsmen in municipal courts does not conflict with the constitution or statutes.

—Nepotism law exemptions (for those with two years' state service prior to election of relatives) apply to year-round legislative employees but not to those who work only during legislative sessions.

—A new law authorizing Midland to disannex itself from the Odessa junior college district is constitutional.

—A local salary bill for assistant school superintendents is unconstitutional because it applies only to one county.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Cullen Luttrell of Sonora, maintenance supervisor for Sutton and Schleicher counties, received the third annual Lady Bird Johnson award for Highway beautification.

Luttrell's prize was $1,000—presented by the former first lady. Television personality Arthur Godfrey participated in the awards ceremony.

Finalists included Luttrell, Milton C. Campbell of Ralls, Herbert H. Smith of Rusk, Melvin E. Bayless of La Grange and Rinaldo Rivera of Falfurrias.

AUTO TEST LOCATIONS PICKED

McAllen and Austin have been designated additional Texas test locations for the first official nationwide four-part General Automobile Mechanic test to be given November 21.

Other Texas test locations already approved by Education Testing Service of Princeton, N. J., are San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Amarillo, Beaumont, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston and Odessa.

Recertification tests every three years will assure mechanics they are keeping up with vehicle changes and servicing developments. The exams are available to nearly 800,000 mechanics in the U. S. on a voluntary basis.

APPOINTMENTS

H. G. (Pete) Andrews Jr. was named by Governor Smith as a member of the State Board of Public Welfare. He succeeds Will W. Bond of Hillsboro.

J. S. Martinez of Raymondville, Bertrand Adams of Austin and Frank Hutchinson Jr. of Austin were appointed to positions with Texas Industrial Commission's new state office of minority business enterprise.

TEACHERS COMMISSION NAMED

Twenty-four persons were named to the new State Commission for Professional Competencies.

The Commission will serve through Sept. 30, 1974, and will include the presidents of six professional organizations to be named later.

It will recommend statewide guidelines for teacher competency to the State Board of Examiners during a two-year period. The Commission will try to identify skills, personality, and qualifications which will make school teachers effective in the classroom.

YOUNG OFFENDERS MAY BE FREED

An Austin district judge's ruling may lead to freedom for several hundred reform school inmates who had no attorneys when they were committed.

Judge Charles Mathews told the attorney general's office to find out by November 8 which of the juvenile offenders waived right to counsel.

Mathews said a 1967 U. S. Supreme Court decision would require release of juveniles who had no lawyers and did not waive right to counsel. A Travis County legal aid official seeks release of 514 youngsters.

FIRE ANT PROGRAM STARTS A joint federal, state, local program designed to control imported fire ants in Fort Bend County is set to begin this month, Agriculture Commissioner John White said.

About 495,000 acres will be treated with Mirex ant bait which has approval of the Environmental Protection Agency. Mirex is a slow-acting comound and takes 10 to 14 days to kill the ants. It is not toxic to fish, fowl, animal or humans, White said. The program is expected to last about three weeks.

SHORT SNORTS

Texas Civil Judicial Council announced approval of a constitutional amendment to abolish the fee system for Justices of the Peace and require payment of salaries to J. P.'s. The House told Texas Highway Department by resolution it shouldn't build the controversial new departmental headquarters across the street from the governor's mansion and capitol.

The Legislature called on Congress to order Veterans Administration hospitals to treat drug addiction among servicemen returning from southeast Asia.

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Social security beneficiaries are responsible for reporting events that affect their entitlement to monthly cash benefits, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

Beneficiaries should promptly report events. These include reporting marriage, divorce or annulment, adoption of a child beneficiary, change of address, a mother under age 62 no longer having in her care a child under 18 or disabled, a child nearing age 18 who is a full-time student or is disabled, or a child between age 18 and 22 who has a change in school attendance. Social security beneficiaries under age 72 should report when their earned income will be more than $1680 in a year. Another reminder is that someone should report when beneficiaries have become unable to manage their own funds, or when they die.

Mr. Talbot also stated that disabled workers entitled to social security benefits are responsible for reporting if they go to work or if their condition improves to the extent they become able to do substantial gainful work, even though they may not be working.

Anyone needing assistance in making a report should contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

★ MOVIES ★

"The Cowboys" William Dale Jennings' curiosity about a word led him to write a book. When producer-director Mark Rydell read that book he showed it to John Wayne. After he had read it, he jumped at the chance of starring in it and when Warner Bros. got behind the whole deal, "The Cowboys," showing Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights at the State Theatre, became a motion picture.

The word that piqued Jennings was "cowboy."

"I ran across a statement that the men who drive cattle from the range to railroad would have been incensed at being called 'cowboys.'"

DPS Seeking New Applicants For Uniform Service

The Texas Department of Public Safety is seeking applicants to fill the ranks of its uniform services. A training school for cadet patrolmen will begin November 28, 1972. This announcement was made by Major E. K. Browning, Jr., Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety for this area.

Qualifications

Applicants must be males between the ages of 20 and 35; a height of not less than 68 inches nor more than 76 inches; a weight of not less than two pounds nor more than three and one-half pounds per inch of height; visual acuity no less than 20-40 correctable to 20-20; have at least thirty college hours; in excellent physical condition; good moral character; and a citizen of the United States.

The Texas Department of Public Safety is an Equal Opportunity employer. Interested young men are urged to contact any Texas Department of Public Safety office or patrolman for an application. After completing the application take it to the nearest regional, district or sub-district Texas Department of Public Safety office for verification and certification. If all is in order then the written test will be administered which will qualify or disqualify the applicant for further consideration. Successful applicants will be given an agility test, a character investigation and a physical examination. Those accepted for employment will be notified prior to the beginning date of the next training school.

Cadet patrolmen will be assigned to the Texas Department of Public Safety Law Enforcement Academy in Austin, Texas for a 17-week training period. The cadet will receive some 800 hours of intensive classroom work and supervised study. The training is designed to equip the cadet to handle any of the various situations he may encounter as a patrolman. The training of a patrolman is a test of an individual's intellectual, emotional and physical stamina. It is also an educational process which prepares him for a rewarding career in law enforcement.

In addition to classroom work the cadet is taught self-protection by means of judo, boxing, wrestling, and other police-protection methods.

The salary during training is $600 per month. Room and board while at the academy will cost the cadet approximately $55 per month.

Upon being commissioned a patrolman, the salary is automatically raised to $743 per month. Patrolmen receive additional longevity pay for each five years of service to a maximum of 25 years. Uniforms, vehicles, weapons, ammunition and necessary equipment are furnished. They are also granted a monthly uniform cleaning allowance, and receive travel expenses when away from their assigned station. Group life and hospitalization insurance is provided for the employee. The patrolmen become members of the Texas Employees Retirement System and the Social Security System. Vacation, holidays, and sick leave are also provided for the patrolmen.

Rangeland Care Cropland Care Are Similar

In range proper-use-management, about one-half of the better grass forage produced in a growing season is used for grazing livestock. If more than half the forage produced annually is consumed by livestock, the grass plant begins to suffer. The other half of the forage produced must remain on the ground to accumulate litter and mulch, maintain vigor, and restore the food reserves in the root system.

Rangeland use in a sense is no different than cropland. Cropland without fertilizer, without a cover crop, residue management and a continuous taking from the land without putting anything back will soon end in poor condition from a depleted soil.

Since it is impractical to fertilize rangeland commercially, we have to depend on Nature's Way to give nutrients back to the soil. This will take place by leaving part of the forage produced to decay and add litter, mulch and organic matter. Leaving half the forage produced does more than provide its own fertilizer; it also serves as a good protective cover for the soil against water and wind erosion.

Under proper range use, there is also plenty of cover to keep the soil cool and productive. On bare and improper use ranges summer temperatures soar, soil bacteria die, and further growth of the grasses is almost completely halted. Maintaining proper cover on the range will greatly help the amount of infiltration of moisture received by rainfall. It is known that some soil under a good cover of grass will take in as much as 8 inches of rain per hour; poor or no cover allows the soil to take in only one half inch per hour. For this reason many ranges are in need of rain again very shortly after good amounts of precipitation have fallen.

Since the leaves on the grass plant act as factories to make plant food, a short overgrazed plant cannot efficiently take the proper elements from the air, water and soil to further produce the forage that it would if properly used. In brief we see then that short tops on the grasses mean short roots. Could spell trouble in brief or prolonged drought such as we in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District often experience.

The key to successful Conservation ranching is a range properly used with good cover to prevent runoff and erosion, to allow greater water intake and storage, to prevent excessive evaporation, to give a sustained higher forage production, and to grow more Vigorous Plants more abundantly.

Remember that even Mother Nature does not give us "something for Nothing."

AROUND THE 6-AA FOOTBALL LOOP

District 6-AA got snakebit again Friday night! Four teams played non-district games (Winters and Anson had off nights) and four teams were defeated by outsiders!

Haskell held the top edge in the district for a spell—the Indians still are considered the team to beat for district honors this year—then fell by the wayside a couple of weeks ago to Olney (3-0) and then lost to Clyde last Friday night. The stats show that Clyde out-did the Indians throughout most of the contest. What's interesting, Clyde has played five 6-AA members, lost to one (Winters), tied one (Hamlin) and then defeated the other three!

Winters and Anson had off nights last week, so will go into district contests with a week's rest.

Ballinger had another bad night, losing to Coahoma 48-21. Coahoma had defeated Hamlin, the cellar team in 6-AA, the previous week by only 40-18. Although the Bearcats have a 1-3-1 record for the season, they have done pretty good in holding opponents to only 77 points while racking up 61 for themselves.

Stamford, luckless this season with a 1-3 for non-district play, was edged 12-7 by Quanah Friday night, for a final 1-4 record before going into district play.

Hamlin added another to their loss column Friday night, as Childress beat them 43-12. Childress had previously defeated Stamford 16-0. The Pied Pipers now have a 0-4-1 record for the season, their only good mark a tie against Clyde.

Now all non-district games are on the boards, and whatever is done from now through the next five weeks will be for the district marbles. Although Haskell is said to be the team to beat for the district crown, there is really no manner in which picking can be done. The pre-district contests have been so varied there is no base from which to work—for instance, Ballinger's only win was against Brady—and Brady beat Winters. One of Winters' wins was against Clyde, and Clyde has shown strength when pitted against the other 6-AA teams.

It may be two or three weeks before a trend is recognizable in 6-AA, and the decision may go to the wire.

County Agent's Column

Manage Residue For Next Year's Crop

Start your 1973 crop now. Give careful attention to present field conditions and crop residues as these will have a big influence on your crop yields next year, advises County Extension Agent Parker.

A high percentage of our annual rainfall comes during the fall and winter months, so it is important to begin refilling the soil's water storage capacity. Proper residue management aids this process. Some of the deep, fine-textured soils will hold two or more inches of available water per foot of depth. In most Texas areas, this deep moisture is what sustains the crop when the going gets rough next July and August.

Good crop residue management requires that stubble be shredded right behind the harvester while it still has a high moisture content. Root systems should be destroyed to prevent regrowth and subsequent drain upon soil moisture.

What type of tillage equipment should be used? A sweep, disk, chisel or plow, singly or in combination or any one of a number of other methods, will do a good job, says the agent. Partial or complete covering of the residues will start the decomposition processes and will supply soil organisms with food and energy. Fresh green residue decomposes more rapidly than aged, air dry residue.

Nitrogen may be applied but probably will not be needed, points out Parker. However, if a crop is to follow shortly (30-60 days), nitrogen fertilizer applied to the residue will be a paying proposition. Otherwise, hold off until later so that the fertilizer will be more fully utilized by the following crop, suggests the agent.

Sometimes the temptation is strong to use crop residues for grazing, baling or burning. Think carefully before turning residues to such use! In the final analysis, residues will be of greatest value when used in a sound soil management program to prevent soil erosion, to improve moisture intake and storage and to enhance the fertility status.

THE WINTERS ENTERPRISE
Winters, Texas

Get your land ready to take the water when it comes. An inch of moisture stored deep in the root zone this fall will go much farther toward high yields in the form of short, summer showers next July or August.

Remember! What doesn't run in—runs off!

And run-off carries soil and plant nutrients with it. This is a matter of much public concern today in the battle against pollution.

Hold the maximum amount of water where it falls and make the excess "walk" to the bottom of the slope, suggests the agent.

Watch For Insects

Mites in—Small Grains
Insects and mites are a threat to the small grain crops from planting to harvest. Soil insects such as the white grub and wireworm can reduce stands by destroying the seed and seedlings soon after planting. Damage is generally heaviest in fields where sod, weeds or a crop such as grain sorghum was previously grown.

Fall armyworms and yellow-striped armyworms can cause extensive damage to seedling stands. These foliage feeders cause extensive damage to seedling stands. These foliage feeders cause most of their damage to small grains planted in August or September for grazing and threaten stand and grazing loss from emergence until frost.

Armyworm damage is usually heaviest during cool, wet weather in Sept. and Oct. when plants are making rapid growth. Furthermore, the cool weather keeps down beneficial insect numbers.

Greenbugs, the most prominent small grain pests, can become a problem in the fall, but damage is generally more severe during the winter and early spring. Temperatures in the 55-65 degree range are favorable for greenbug development but natural enemies of this aphid reproduce slowly at such temperature levels. Thus, greenbug populations build up rapidly when temperatures remain in this range for several weeks.

According to Parker, winter grain mites may damage oats, wheat and barley in North Central and Central Texas during Winter and early spring. This mite is primarily a night feeder. Damaged plants become stunted, have a silvery-gray appearance and the tips of the leaves turn brown.

Prior to planting, producers should inspect fields for white grubs and wireworms. Inspection is especially important in fields which have been in sod, grain sorghum or weeds during the summer months. Where these pests are present, control measures must be applied prior to planting so the insecticide can be incorporated by disking into the soil.

Parker advised the use of cultural controls and naturally occurring predator and parasite populations along with pesticides to reduce damage from small grain pests.

Your Social Security

People getting a social security number for the first time should apply at least a month before they'll need it, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

"Applications from people who don't recall having had a social security number before generally are screened to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person," Mr. Talbot said. "Screening takes time; so apply for your social security number early, and you'll have it when you need it—when you get a job covered by social security," he said.

A worker builds retirement, disability, and survivors protection for himself and his family by work and earnings credited to his 9-digit social security number. "Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life," Mr. Talbot said. "Using more than one number can mean you're not getting full credit for your work and earnings."

"When you get a job covered by social security, you should make sure your employer copies your name and number correctly from your social security card to his records," he said.

Under the "carry-over" rule of the medical insurance part of Medicare, doctor bills for October, November, and December may in some cases count toward the $50 annual deductible for both 1972 and 1973, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager. The medical insurance part of Medicare helps pay for doctor bills and a variety of other medical expenses of almost everyone 65 and over. Before payments from Medicare begin, the patient must meet the annual deductible — the first $50 of covered medical expenses accumulated in a calendar year.

"The carry-over rule helps the Medicare patient who might otherwise have to pay the $50 deductible twice in a short period of time," Mr. Talbot said. "once at the end of one year, again at the beginning of the next year. Under the carry-over rule, doctor bills for October, November, and December which can be counted toward your $50 deductible for 1972 can apply to the deductible for both 1972 and 1973."

Even if a Medicare patient hasn't met the 1972 deductible before October, he should send in all of his medical bills for covered services for the last 3 months of 1972, according to Mr. Talbot. "The carry-over amount will be credited to your deductible for 1973," he said.

Medicare like Ecology has become a household word, but how much does the average person know about it? Who is eligible? How much does it cost? When does it become effective after application? What medical services and supplies are covered? These are just a few of the questions asked daily of social security representatives in the country.

J. M. Talbot, social security manager, suggests that anyone who is interested in the answers to these questions should pick up a copy of "Your Medicare Handbook," a very helpful booklet available free of charge from any social security office. This handbook explains the basic benefits offered by Medicare. Complicated circumstances involved in illness or injury should be discussed with a social security representative. ## NOTICE TO VOTERS

I ask you to forgive me for repeating myself in this article, but I have had several inquiries as to the deputies I would employ if I am allowed to serve as your County Tax Assessor - Collector. It makes good sense to me to continue with the four experienced girls presently employed as Deputies in the tax office, as long as they perform their job adequately. And I insist on 'near perfect' performance of myself and others. Of course, Pannell's job in the tax office will terminate as of Jan. 1st, 1973, and he will not be employed in this office after that date. All of us who have worked with him and for him these many years, wish him the very best in whatever job he chooses in the future.

To insure a valid ballot, you may ask the election officers to assist you with your WRITE-IN vote.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C.—The following is from a speech made by Congressman Burleson on the floor of the U. S. House of Representatives on the subject of Revenue Sharing passed by the Congress last week. — The Staff.

Mr. Speaker, in the debate on this bill when originally approved by this House, along with others, I attempted to convince its supporters that it was the worst piece of legislation ever before this body. In principle and philosophy it is no better as presented in the conference report now before us. This report should be voted down. Should this report be disapproved at least our Ways and Means Committee and the Finance Committee of the other body, could then fix the effective date as January 1, 1973, rather than make the handouts provided in this measure, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year. The savings would amount to approximately $6 billion, an amount near that estimated to be cut from expenditures by the President to bring spending down to $250 billion in this fiscal year as authorized in the legislation passed 2 days ago.

Mr. Speaker, I continue to believe there is virtue in consistency. Those of us who supported the spending limitation a few days ago will be consistent in voting against this proposal. Turn down this monstrosity, this Frankenstein, and the problem of keeping expenditures at $250 billion or less will be solved.

Those of you who opposed setting an expenditure ceiling will be consistent in voting against what is now before us because your principal argument was that this Congress should set the limitation instead of the Executive. Now is an opportunity to exercise that prerogative. I am in fullest agreement that this should be the prerogative and responsibility of the Congress but those of us who support legislation placing an expenditure ceiling on the President, do so out of conviction and yes, frustration, that this Congress is failing and has failed to discipline ourselves in holding down needless spending. Now is a time of truth and proof.

I say particularly to my Republican friends that when you support this huge spending called for in this bill, you are hardly consistent with your strong support for the request of the President for a spending ceiling.

Over the period of time provided for in this bill, $32 billion is added to the 72 percent of any budget already committed by long-term appropriations and over which the Congress has no control. This is only the beginning of this program which is bound to grow and grow.

Allow me one final point. Money provided in this bill is automatically allocated to State and local governments. They need to do nothing but go to the mail box. They must spend the money handed them to qualify for more funds in following years. Now what kind of a system is this? It is wrong and an innovation which I predict will be regretted by you who support it.

Washington, D. C.—A cartoon has a wife saying to her husband, "Don't try so hard not to worry, Harry, or you'll get an ulcer." Maybe there is something in this advice. If so, with so many calamities and tragedies constantly occurring over the world we should be free of ulcers. We need a special capacity to worry about all of them at one time.

A member of Congress recently boasted that he had the ability to worry about 8 things at a time. This seems to be an exceptional rate. Professor Charles Marshall of John Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies considers 6 worries sustained over a period of time highly exceptional and that 5 is a decent number. Some advance the theory that a number of worries at a time places less concentration on any one of them and, therefore, less trying than if there was just one personal problem. It is not easy to be selective on which worry to carry around.

A passage from "Jabberwocky" illuminates one aspect of the problem. "The horror of that moment," the King went on, "I shall never forget." "You will though," the Queen said, "if you don't make a memorandum of it."

Floods, storms, war, holdups, unprovoked and irrational assassinations, such as occurred at the Olympics, are brought to us immediately by instant communication. The notion of these being uniquely bad times may not be entirely true.

Imagine, for example, a 16th Century existence with television and the daily papers across our Nation offering global coverage of news.

On a typical day in that time one might have had breakfast to reports and commentaries on witchcraft in the Carpathians, a hari-kari wave in Yeddo, ambushes in Rome, a massacre in Paris, treason charges against English Jesuits, carnage among Araucanians and a Mogul penetration in India. In the 16th Century there were abductions, conspiracies, piracy, plague and atrocities. In the period of the Islamic Empire, cruel rule was imposed on two-thirds of the then civilized population of the world.

With instant coverage, knowledge of such adversities would have reached those comparative few affected. Even then, it was probably a considerable time after such happenings before there was much known about them. It can be reasonably supposed that the shock of the act was dulled to the point that today's exclamations — "Something must be done!" or "We can't let that continue!" — were not used.

Professor Marshall comments on a number of ways NOT to meet the problem. He says that to wish for an end to newspapers and TV is futile. The negative approach—that of swearing off news altogether — is hardly satisfying and only one of complete indifference could resort to total apathy although some probably make the attempt.

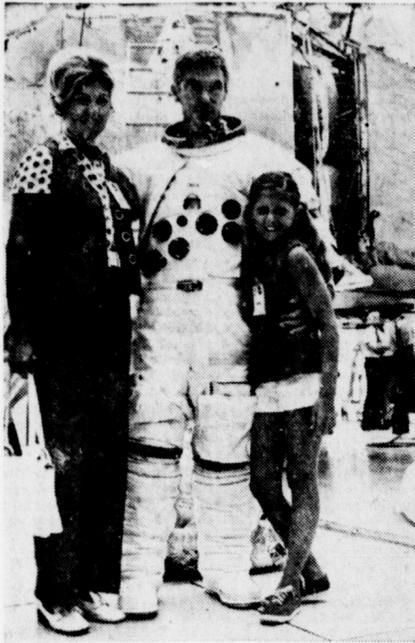

The writer referred to says he has a neighbor who has developed a worry resistance by an indirect method. He gets about a dozen solicitations a day. He takes his mail into the back yard, sits in his lawn chair, folds them into planes and sails them against a stone wall.

Another placates his worry while listening to newscasts by simply saying, "Tut, tut." If an editorial in the morning paper irritates him, he chants the phrase over and over and says it starts him on the day feeling better. Theorists in some of the sciences (someone else can furnish the name of the science) say that every sound ever produced can some day be recaptured for modern ears. When this is done, we can add the worry of past centuries to all these we have today. To do so we would just have to develop a much greater capacity to worry about more things.

If science can some day produce sounds made in the past—for instance, our own words—then we would really have something to worry about. Instead of "I wish I had said that," our worry would be "I wish I had not."
