RETIREMENT TEN YEARS AWAY

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—Even though you may not be planning to retire for another ten years, it is not too early to start preparing for it now. The majority of investors tend to postpone making plans for retirement until it is too late to do a really good job. One who waits until the last moment is usually under the pressure of time, and as a consequence, more apt to take imprudent risks in seeking to build up investment capital. This often leads to the loss of hard-earned money and defeats the investor's objective precisely when he can least afford it.

Home Improvements

EXPENSES SHOULD BE ESTIMATED

When planning a future retirement program, several basic income ingredients may or may not be included, depending on individual circumstances. These are such factors as social security, company pensions, annuities, retirement insurance programs, etc. This portion of the program probably began with the first job and has been adjusted upward occasionally as earning power increased.

The sooner you can honestly and fairly appraise your anticipated living costs after retirement the sooner you can determine the amount of invested capital that will be necessary to provide the funds to fill the gap between the aforementioned assured income and income from investments. Then it will be possible to consider whether the retirement goal is attainable without major adjustments.

CAPITAL GAINS IMPORTANT
Naturally, the challenge facing the decade-away retiree is the building up of sufficient capital to meet the needs of ten years hence. To accomplish this, the investor should have capital gains as his primary aim, with a long-term goal of increased income. Thus the advantageous placing of funds during the various phases of the securities markets over the coming ten years will be very important.

PLAYING THE CYCLES

In years past when high-grade

common stocks yielded 6 percent or more, a fine investment account could usually be built up through the plow-back of dividends each year. Today with low common stock yields and with current high personal-income tax rates, it is difficult to secure much growth via interest or dividend accumulation.

Consequently, capital gains are especially necessary for the investor who is already in a high tax bracket and who finds that it is almost impossible to increase his estate substantially by saving or investing current income. Building up a fund for retirement, therefore, requires considerable dependence on growth in the market value of the common stocks (or convertible issues) held, and careful timing of sales and purchases at different phases of the total market cycle and of the individual-stock cycles as well.

HEDGE YOUR POSITION
The securities maintained at any given time and in what proportion to reserve funds depends on economic conditions—current and foreseeable—that affect the securities markets. At present, the Research Department of Babson's Reports would surely not advise a 100 percent position in either reserves or common stocks. Rather, there should be a backlog of savings accounts or other very liquid reserves that could be relied upon in emergencies. There should also be a supplementary backlog of convertible bonds and preferred stocks. Such issues as Becton Dickinson Cv. Sub. Debs. 4½s 1988, Signal Cos. $2.20 Cv. Pfd. and Woolworth $2.20 Cv. Pfd. might be considered appropriate.

Finally, a list of good-quality growth stocks should be included as a hedge against further inflation. Although a large number of so-called growth issues are now well out of buying ranges, there are still some that are worth considering at present levels. We have in mind such stocks as Pfizer, General Electric, Pennwalt, Culligan, Franklin Life Insurance, and Pitney Bowes.

"Season of Antlers" Marks 1972 Deer Hunting Season

Austin — The 1972 hunting season may be the "season of the antlers" in West Texas.

H. G. Kothman, biologist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, says deer census work has turned up many large animals, all in good condition. And there are more trophy antlers than West Texans have seen in many years.

Kothman attributes the big racks to plentiful food of the right kind available to deer just as antlers were forming.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to everyone who in any way helped at the passing of our dear husband and father, for the sympathy expressed, for the floral tributes. Our appreciation to the Pastor, Rev. Probst, the choir, to Ted Meyer and Mildred Gardner and the staff at Spill Funeral Home, and the hospital staff, and to all our good neighbors and ladies at the church who prepared and served the food. Your kindness has made our grief so much easier to bear. May God bless all of you. — Mrs. Otto Turk and Family. Itp

West Texas Walleye Cleaning Up Carp

San Angelo—San Angelo Reservoir walleye have appetites to match their eyes.

Experimental net surveys recently conducted by Parks and Wildlife Department biologists on the West Texas lake pointed out some important facts about the fish which were stocked back in 1971.

Biologists netted 15 walleye which were a hefty 3½ pounds, an exceptional growth rate.

The fish averaged 19 inches in length and autopsies showed that the exotics were developing into sexually mature fish capable of spawning.

The department men were on the lookout for stomach contents to get some idea of the diet which prompted such rapid growth.

The walleye were chock-full of carp.

Many of the a la carte carp were as much as six inches long, which indicates that the walleye can take advantage of a good portion of the rough fish population.

It's an uphill battle to control rough fish in most of Texas' lakes. The walleye and other introduced species have the potential of being such a control factor and offer excellent sport.

Money for such projects comes from the Parks and Wildlife Department's Fund Nine which is supported, for the most part, by hunting and fishing license revenue.

The future of the fund and many department projects such as walleye introduction depends on whether or not the income from increased license fees keeps pace with the accelerated programs and inflation.

Walleye have proven their worth in many West Texas lakes—the most notable of which is Lake Meredith.

Alice Peters of Amarillo can testify to the merits of the walleye stocking program.

Back in May, she reeled in the Texas State Record walleye from Lake Meredith. The 28½ inch fish weighed almost nine pounds.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Riding The Bike Boom

There's a bicycle boom in our pollution-conscious society. But booms always contain hazards.

Bike models are not being recalled the way autos are ordered back to Detroit. But it could happen. This fall, the Food and Drug Administration plans to issue, for the first time, strict standards for bicycles. The regulations should take effect by the end of the year.

Some of the safety requirements will be nonslip pedals, front and back reflectors, front and rear wheels of the same diameter, seat posts that cannot be raised so high they interfere with the rider's control, and possible elimination of the front-wheel caliper brake which can throw the rider forward on sudden stops.

One reason for the government's concern is the tremendous upsurge in bicycle sales. In 1960, 3.7 million bikes were sold. Forecasts for this year are 11 million. While sales have tripled during the last decade, deaths and accidents with bikes have doubled. The government now estimates there are one million injuries each year from bicycle-related accidents.

The FDA does not contend that high-risers — bikes with small wheels, a long banana seat, and high handlebars—cause more injuries than other bikes. But in a study of accidents, the agency found high-risers were involved in twice as many mishaps as standard bikes. Industry and government officials admit the high-riser is harder to steer than regular bikes, especially if the front wheel is smaller than the back one. The banana seat also encourages youngsters to ride double, a dangerous practice.

Careful riding on safe bikes is one way to cut down car exhaust and air pollution. Contributions to Christmas Seals help find other ways to fight air pollution, TB, and emphysema. Answer your Christmas Seal letter today. It's a matter of life and breath.

AROUND THE 6-AA FOOTBALL LOOP

It's all over around the Loop, for everybody but Hamlin. The Pied Pipers will play Lubbock Cooper Friday night in Snyder for the bi-district title.

The Ballinger Bearcats took second place in the district, their only loss going to Hamlin a while back. They closed out the season by stopping 35-20 at Haskell Friday night. Haskell is in third place with a 3-2 district record.

RICE

Rice is one of the most versatile, useful foods to have on your kitchen shelves. At times, it almost seems as if rice is like an extra pair of hands when it comes to getting a meal onto the table in a hurry.

There are so many things which can be done with rice. It can round out a meal as a side dish, or it can become the center of attraction in gourmet-like productions.

Rice is an age-old food, and has been a staple food item for centuries. Rice is the most important food crop of the world. Rice supplies the major food requirements for more than one-half of the world's population. This single food product makes up from 70 to 80 percent of the entire food intake in many countries.

Even though rice has been around for thousands of years, its uses today are as new and exciting as ever. Improved processing procedures have shortened the cooking period and therefore increased cooking time enjoyment.

The versatile and creative capabilities of rice make it a joy to use anytime. Both the creative and thrifty-conscious cook will be glad to see abundant stocks of rice on their grocers' shelves this fall.

Rice can be served in real American style, or with a bit of culinary magic it can be given a European, an Oriental, a Mexican, South American, or even an original note of intrigue. Treat your family to rice and treat yourself to an "extra pair of hands" when it comes meal-time.

Here's a way to stretch a small amount of ham to feed

six:

- 2 cups cooked white rice
- 1-4 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 T. chopped onion
- 1-2 cup water
- 1 can pineapple slices
- 1 T prepared mustard
- 1-2 tsp. salt
- 1 1-2 cup diced cooked ham
- 3-4 cup milk
- Butter or margarine

Cook chopped green pepper and chopped onion in water until tender. Add prepared mustard, salt, cooked white rice, ham and milk. Cook, stirring, until most of milk is absorbed. Pour into a well greased shallow baking-serving dish. Arrange pineapple slices over the top. Pour melted margarine or butter over the pineapple slices. Broil until the pineapple slices are browned.

Paprika Short Ribs with Rice

Short ribs with rice utilizes a relatively economical cut of meat, but yields a rich and spicy main course treat.

- 3 pounds short ribs
- 1-4 cup flour
- 2 T. shortening
- 3 cups canned tomatoes
- 1 cup sliced green pepper
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 2 ts. paprika
- 1-4 tsp. pepper
- 1-4 tsp. thyme
- 1-4 tsp. marjoram
- 3 cups hot cooked rice
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tsp. salt

Cut short ribs into serving-size pieces. Roll in flour. Brown in shortening. Place short ribs in dutch oven. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer about 1 hour. Uncover and cook 30-60 minutes longer, or until ribs are very tender and sauce is thickened. Remove ribs from

Hunters Should Keep Safety In Mind

Austin—The "in" color for the hunting season is hunter's fluorescent orange, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

A matching orange cap and vest is more than just fashionable. It will help hunter's prevent what is considered a sartorial faux pas in the hunting game—bullet holes.

Parks and Wildlife officials point out that fluorescent orange is probably one of the most unnatural colors one could bring into a forest and that's a big plus in its favor.

There is no mistaking an orange vest coming through the woods for anything but man, so there is less chance of getting shot by someone who is a little too anxious to bring home a trophy.

Here are a few more safety tips from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department which should help hunters enjoy open seasons for years to come.

—Make sure of your target. Never shoot at something you can't see. Know where your bullet is going if you miss.

—Carry only unloaded firearms in a vehicle. Keep the actions open and the firearms in a carrying case.

—Take a little time when crossing fences. Lay your firearm flat on the ground on the other side of the fence and then crawl through.

—A firearm should never be used as a club. Wounded game sauce and skim off as much of the excess fat as possible from sauce. Thicken with a little flour if necessary. Serve sauce over the short ribs and the hot cooked rice. Yield: six servings.

Blizzards End 1972 Football Season With 14-7 Loss To Stamford Bulldogs

The Winters Blizzards closed out the 1972 football season with a disappointing 14-7 loss to the Stamford Bulldogs at Blizzards Field Friday night.

The night showed early promise for the Blizzards as half-back Lee Choate scored on a seventy-yard run on the second play of the game. Choate's kick was good for a quick 7-0 lead for the Blizzards. The Bulldogs took the kick following this touchdown and moved the ball well, putting together four first downs before having to relinquish the ball on downs on the Blizzards 29. Throughout the remainder of the half the Blizzards were hampered by penalties. Despite carries of 33, 12, and nine yards by Choate, Winters couldn't score. The half ended on an apparent touchdown run of about 50 yards by Choate, only to be nullified by a clipping penalty. Stamford scored in the fourth quarter and successfully ran for two points. This made the score 8-7, Stamford. Later in the same period the Bulldogs recovered their own fumble in the end zone for their second touchdown. The two-point attempt was no good. The final score was 14-7.

COUNTY AGENT PARKER'S COLUMN

Pesticide Safety Stressed Around Home

To complete the safe use of pesticides around the home this year, leftover quantities of pesticides and "empty" containers must be properly handled, according to County Extension Agent C. T. Parker, Jr.

Check all possible locations in and around the home for pesticides and "empty" containers, including the most unlikely places. Closets, cupboards, medicine cabinets, the laundry room, under the kitchen sink, the garage and other outdoor storage areas should all be included on your checklist.

Check the conditions of containers and labels of those pesticides that are to be retained in proper storage. Deteriorating containers and containers without a legible label should be disposed of along with any "empty" containers.

Dispose of leftover pesticides at a sanitary landfill, first contacting the operating authority for permission and instructions. Do not dispose of leftover pesticides in household plumbing, by pouring on the surface of the ground, or by burning, cautions Parker.

"Empty" containers can be disposed of by wrapping them in several thick layers of newspaper and then crushing or breaking them. Then place the containers in the garbage for disposal.

Aerosol cans should never be punctured or burned. Simply wrap the aerosol container and place it in the garbage can. Remember, purchasing only the amount of pesticide needed is a major step toward reducing the number of containers or leftover pesticides to be disposed.

Pesticides to be retained should be stored in a dry place under lock and key and protected from extremes in temperature. Be sure to check the label for any special instructions regarding storage. Accidental ingestion of pesticides or other chemicals cannot occur if the chemicals are properly stored. Avoid tomorrow's accident today—carry out a fall pesticide up campaign, Parker urges.

Check Soil of Proposed Home Site

A little investigation and study beforehand can prevent costly mistakes at your new home site. Parker advises all future homeowners to obtain a soil survey of the land where the house might be built—before buying the property. By studying the natural conditions of the prospective site, much can be learned that could prove valuable. Information about the soil and ecology at the site can indicate potential problems before large investments are made, says Parker.

A soil survey is actually an inventory of the soil and some other related factors, notes the agent. It should indicate several things to those concerned with building on the site. Planners, builders, developers, contractors and real estate brokers certainly are among those who should use the survey. As such, they should keep in mind the welfare of the entire community or area as well as the individuals which they serve.

In addition, determine whether drainage, the soil's shrink-swell potential and the depth to rock or other restricting layers. The prospective buyer should also find out about the water table—is it high and is it temporary or permanent?

Several other basic questions affecting the actual building and upkeep of the facilities are answered by a soil survey. Will soil erosion be a problem? Are soil conditions or chemicals such that pipes will corrode or need replacement often? A soil

Trans-Pecos Hunters Bag Pronghorns

San Angelo—Seven Trans-Pecos counties recently played host to 769 pronghorn antelope hunters and sent them home with 740 bucks and two does.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game biologists label the hunt as one of the most successful in the past four years. The 1971 Trans-Pecos harvest was a mere 634 bucks.

This year's pronghorns were fat and healthy with good horns. Department biologists say that the pronghorn is really not a true "antelope."

The pronghorn is the swiftest of North American mammals and the sole survivor of the Family Antilocapridae. The Antilocapridae, relatives of the true antelopes, were one of the most abundant hoofed mammals in North America during the Miocene and Pliocene periods.

The basic difference between antilocaprids and true antelopes is the horn structure. Antilocaprids have hollow horns with bony cores and outer sheaths of true antelope but are distinct in that the horns are branched, hence the name pronghorn.

The pronghorn also sheds its outer sheath and true antelopes do not.

The evolution of the pronghorn is confined to North America and is probably the only group of hoofed mammals so restricted.

True antelope history is centered in Africa and India. The blackbuck of India and the African eland are true antelopes.

Hunted to near extinction at the turn of the century, the pronghorn antelope has made a comeback and is an important game animal today because of determined management and controlled hunting.

Make people laugh and they will pay you money for your efforts.
