HOME TOWN Talk

Hello, Burma Shave!
Although it has been some years since the fence posts along the highways over the country were decorated with Burma Shave rhyme-signs, the Highway Beautification Act has rung down a probable final curtain on such signs—and many others, for that matter.

The countryside will never be the same again! Advertising signs along the highways are on the way out . . . at least, the present manner and method of installing the signs will be discontinued. In the future, erection of signs will be permitted only under permit, and then certain specifications must be followed for them to be legal.

December 31 is the deadline for owners of advertising signs to apply for permits under the new Texas Highway Beautification Act, which will control all outdoor advertising along the right-of-way lines. This includes big billboards, as well as fence signs. Presumably, even politicians will not be permitted to hand their pictures on the fences. (We'll see!)

The new law specifies that no signs can be erected within 660 feet of an interstate or federal-aid highway without a special $25 outdoor advertising license. (Why the distance was set at exactly 660 feet, and not 655 or 665 feet is not known.) To get a permit, the outdoor advertiser must also post a $2500 bond for each county in which his signs are located. Presumably to protect someone or something?

So a way of life has been practically federal-controlled out of existence. An outdoor advertiser no longer will be allowed to erect a sign any place he pleases, and in any manner he pleases. First, he'll have to pay to be "permitted," shell out for a bond (perhaps to guarantee he'll be able to pay damages in case someone's eyeballs are offended by his sign), and then the sign he erects probably will have to be of bureaucrat-specified size and bureaucrat-specified wording. Either that, or he'll have to erect his signs more than the length of two football fields away from the road.

Perhaps it is for the best. Perhaps our countryside will look prettier without the many odd-shaped and odd-size signs scattered along the highways. Perhaps removal of some of the old, falling-down ones will make things prettier. However there's something comforting even in an old half-down, torn-up roadside sign, to travelers on the road. It's at least a sign that, especially in some parts (Continued on page 8)

Some highlights of the evening will include the Charleston-style flapper of 1924; Mae West at her best in 1935; "Pistol Packing Mama" of the World War II year 1943; and a progressive 1972 jazz number.

The program, presented for community entertainment, is free to the public. However, Mrs. Charles Kruse Jr., president of the club, said, a voluntary offering will be taken to help defray expenses incurred during the production.

Program On Lions Children's Camps Given Tuesday

A program on the Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children and the Lions Camp for Diabetic Children, was presented at the noon meeting of the Winters Lions Club Tuesday. Roscoe Smith of Brownwood spoke, and showed slides of the two camps.

The Texas Lions Camp for Crippled Children was opened in 1953 at Kerrville, and accommodated 236 blind, deaf, mute and crippled youth the first year. Since then, more than 14,000 children have participated in the two-week camp.

Since 1957 the Kerrville camp has been used as a rehabilitation center during the other nine months, helping more than 900 adult blind Texans become more useful citizens.

For the past two summers, the Texas Lions League has sponsored the Texas Lions Camp for Diabetic Children, using 1 e a s e d facilities at Friendswood, located between Galveston and Houston.

The camps are free to handicapped children of Texas, sponsored by the many Lions Clubs of the state. Children attending the camps range in age from 7 to 16.

The Winters Lions Club in the past has sponsored several children to the Kerrville camp, and is already seeking children for the two camps for next summer's sessions. Those knowing of children who would benefit from either of these programs may contact Ted Meyer, local Lions Club Crippled Children Camp chairman.

Tuesday's program was credited to Lions Club members Harry Herman and George Garrett.

City Will Pick up Leaves, If Boxed

If residents wish to have fallen leaves hauled away, city employees will pick them up if they are raked and put in boxes or bags, Mayor Wade White said Tuesday.

Boxes and bags of leaves should be left at the curb in front of the homes, or in the alleys. City employees of the sanitation department or street department, will not pick up loose leaves, but only those prepared for easy handling.

Residents are urged not to burn piles of leaves, especially in the gutters. Asphalt paving is ruined when leaves or trash is burned on the paved surface. Also, burning of leaves will lead to additional air pollution, in addition to creating fire hazards, it was pointed out.

Re-Count of Ballots Shows No Change In County Tax Assessor Election

A re-count of the ballots in the November 7 election for Runnels County Tax Assessor-Collector shows no change in the total number of votes received by candidates, and B. J. Farmer of Ballinger has been officially elected to the office, County Judge Elliott Kemp said Tuesday.

The re-count shows that Farmer received 1423 votes, while VaRue McWilliams received 1399, the 24-vote spread reported at the first count, Judge Kemp said.

The re-count was asked for by Mrs. McWilliams, who said she felt there may have been some discrepancy in the counting. She was a write-in candidate for the office. Following announcement of the result of the re-count, Mrs. McWilliams conceded the election, according to reports.

Serving on the re-count committee, appointed by the Commissioners Court, were Clifford Cook, of Ballinger, chairman; Karl Schoenfeld of Miles, and Arnold Allcorn, Talpa.

Mrs. McWilliams, who has been a clerk in the Tax Assessor-Collector's office for several years, has indicated she will resign her position at the end of the year.

Council Grants 8% Increase To Lone Star Gas

Winters City Council last week authorized Lone Star Gas Company to increase by a basic 8 percent gas rates charged local gas users. The increase will be reflected in the next billing, officials said.

The gas company had requested authority to increase rates by 10 percent, some time ago, but the council countered with a lesser increase. Last week, the company agreed to accept an increase of 8 percent.

Council also reserved the right of authorization for increase in gate rates, city officials said.

The 8 percent increase will be in effect for the first thousand cubic feet of gas used — the minimum rate—and from there the increase will be graduated, Buford Baldwin, city secretary, said.

Increase in gas rates will be effective for both residential and commercial users, it was stated.

Tax Man To Speak At Farmers Meet

Tom Hunt, of Coleman, income tax consultant and rancher, will present a program on income tax reporting for farmers and ranchers at the meeting of the Winters Young Farmers, Dec. 4, at 7:30 p. m., in the vo-ag building.

The annual Christmas Parade will be held Friday December 1, beginning at 4 p. m.

The parade, sponsored by the Winters Chamber of Commerce, will make up on the Methodist Church parking lot, enter Main Street at Parsonage Street, go south to Spill Street, north on Church Street to West Dale, then east to the Chamber of Commerce office.

Cash prizes of $50, $30 and $20 will be awarded to the first three places in the float division. Prizes of $15, $10, and $5 will be awarded to the first three places in the kiddies' division.

Four Winters school bands, under the direction of Kirke McKenzie, will march in the parade. The High School Blizzards Marching Band will lead the parade. Other bands in the parade will be the Junior High Band, the Sixth Grade (Cadet) Band, and the Fifth Grade Band.

Classes in Winters Public Schools will be dismissed at 3 p. m. in order for the bands and other students to prepare for the parade.

Organizations, clubs, school classes, and church groups still have time to prepare and enter floats in the parade. Mrs. Emma Marks, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said, A Christmas theme will be required for competition for prize money.

In the kiddie division, children may enter as groups, singles, with bicycles, tricycles, wagons, walking or riding. All will be judged in a single division.

Mrs. Marks urged early registration for entry in the parade. Registration may be accomplished at the chamber office.

"Jory"

"Jory," the story of a boy who hung up his guns at the age of 15, is a picture for those who love adventure, and it comes from the producer of "Love Story," Howard G. Minsky.

Unlike that world-famous film, "Jory," which will show Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre, deals with the relationship of a man and a boy, both alone in a man's world where growing up is neither easy nor uneventful.

For this story of love, murder and compassion, producer Minsky has collected a superior and chemistry-provoking cast. The man is played by John Marley who performed for him so well in "Love Story" that it gathered Mr. Marley an Academy Award nomination and firmly established him as a star of international importance.

To play the boy, Minsky introduces 15-year old Robby Benson who most recently received rave notices for his performance in "The Rothschilds" on the New York stage. For the third star he selected singer B. J. Thomas who became the world's leading recording artist with his hit "Raindrops Are Falling On My Head." B. J. is also making his film debut in "Jory."

TREAT LOGS FOR COLORFUL FIRES IN FIREPLACE

A little work done now can make the fireplace the center of attraction during the Christmas season. Why not do some log treating or paper log making now for that special occasion. You can have flames that are red, green, blue, orange or purple depending upon the chemicals used to treat the material to be burned in the fireplace. Calcium chloride can be used to produce orange colored flames, copper chloride, blue; potassium chloride, purple; strontium nitrate, red; lithium chloride, carmine; and copper sulfate, emerald green. Dry pine cones, small blocks or chips of wood can be soaked in solutions of these chemicals to produce the multi-colored flames when burned. Most of the chemicals can be purchased from chemical suppliers or local drug stores.

To treat cones or wood, a plastic pail and onion sack are needed. The cones or chips are placed in the sack and immersed in a solution containing one pound of the desired chemical dissolved thoroughly in one gallon of water. The bag must be weighted down so the material is completely covered by the solution. Allow the cones or wood to soak for at least 10 minutes.

After soaking, the treated material may be placed on newspapers to dry. After drying overnight, they will be ready to use in the fireplace.

"Logs" can be made of loosely-rolled newspapers tied with a heavy twine and soaked in a solution of four pounds of copper sulfate and three pounds of rock salt in a gallon of water. They will require several days to dry out. Once dry, a paper log will burn all evening and produce a rainbow of colors.

WATER CRITICAL FOR HOUSE PLANTS

Improper watering causes more container plants to fail than any other factor. Too often homeowners get impatient and apply too much water and fertilizer to make house plants grow large and healthy. However, often the opposite results — the plant drowns.

To overcome the tendency to water and fertilize excessively, we suggest selection of plants for interior landscaping that are of a size that will be immediately effective. Don't start with a small plant and expect it to grow to proper size under indoor conditions.

Plant characteristics and environmental conditions also govern the amount of water a plant needs. Flowering plants and those with much foliage require more water than those without blooms or with little foliage. And plants in a cool room need less water than those in a warm dry atmosphere. Over-watering during the plant's slow growth period is the worst thing a person can do. These periods occur when light intensity is low and the plant is producing little food as during the winter months.

In addition to moisture, plant roots must also have air. But if the soil is saturated with water, little or no oxygen can reach the roots. This leads to the loss of small feeder roots and eventually the plant dies.

When watering, apply enough water so that it runs through the potting soil and into the saucer below. Then discard the water in the saucer. This prevents the accumulation of soluble salts in the soil.

Remember, check your house plant and the soil in which it is growing before watering. It probably will not require watering as often as you think.

Statewide Quail Prospects Good

Austin—"It's a good year to buy a bird dog." Horace Gore of the Parks and Wildlife Department is optimistic about quail season throughout Texas this year.

"With the exception of a few counties scattered over the state quail populations look the best in several years," said Gore. Drought hit some areas of the state last year and department biologists feel that it may have robbed quail of food and cover during critical breeding periods.

Timely rains in most of the state, however, have increased quail numbers by over 100 percent.

According to George Litton, department project leader in the Permian Basin, bobwhites are up a whopping 188 percent and blue or scaled quail have increased at least 94 percent.

One problem with all this abundance is that heavy stands of weeds could hide the increase in birds until the first killing frost improves hunting conditions.

Late summer "whistle counts" in Northeast Texas indicate the highest populations since 1969. Hunters can also expect to find most birds fully developed because of little late nesting this year.

Blue quail numbers in the Trans-Pecos area are the largest in several years. Project Leader Tom Hailey of Marfa says that a portion of the present quail crop can be attributed to a mild winter with a high survival of birds from last year. Throughout most of the state, the quail season opens Dec. 1 with bag and possession limits of 12 and 36 respectively.

The Parks and Wildlife Department has three wildlife management areas open to quail hunters with no restrictions on the number allowed on the area. The Pat Mayse Area in Lamar County is open to quail hunting Dec. 1, 1972-Feb. 15, 1973.

The Chaparral in Dimmit and LaSalle Counties is open Nov. 18-19, Dec. 2-3, Jan. 6-7 and Jan. 27-28.

Those interested in blue quail hunting will find the Black Gap Area in Brewster County open from Nov. 15-22.

Reddy Bargain Time

Every minute of every day, your electric clock indicates with visible proof, the precision and dependability of electric service.

It's dependable, because electricity operates the clock faithfully — 24 hours a day. It's precise, because our electric system operates in time with a master clock at the U.S. Naval Observatory, keeping your clock in step, down to the second.

Your clock operates a whole year on about 43 cents worth of electricity...one of the bargains you get with your electric service.

Today, the average residential customer uses nearly twice as much electricity as he did in 1962. But the average cost of a kilowatt hour is 15% less now than it was ten years ago.

AUSTIN—December 31 is the deadline for owners of advertising signs along major interstate, U. S. and state-numbered highways to apply for permits under the new Texas Highway Beautification Act.

The act is designed to control all outdoor advertising from big billboards to fence signs along the right-of-way line.

It requires that no sign can be erected within 660 feet of an interstate or federal-aid primary highway without a special $25 outdoor advertising license. An additional $5 permit is also required for each sign.

On-premises signs—those advertising activities on the land or offering the property for sale—are exempt.

The law, passed and made effective last June 29 to avoid loss of federal road-building aid, will be implemented in stages.

License applications, first stage in the process, must be accompanied by a $2,500 bond for each county in which signs are located up to a $10,000 maximum for owners with signs in more than three counties.

Permits will be issued for signs in place prior to June 29 whether they conform to the law or not, and these will be allowed to stay in place until programmed for acquisition or removal. New signs must conform to the law before permits are issued.

The Highway Department also has begun removal of abandoned and illegal signs on controlled highways.

Those planning to erect new signs on controlled highways are advised to check with Highway Department district offices to determine if the location conform to the law. Property owners have also been advised to contact the department's district offices concerning signs located on their land without permission.

LEGISLATORS BRIEFED

State legislators received briefings last week on three major issues to confront them in January.

A pre-session legislative conference at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs of the University System here provided details on:

—Need for judicial reorganization. The court system was termed a hodgepodge of independent operations with "nobody minding the whole store."

—Federal revenue sharing and its impact on state and local finance. Legislators were advised Congress and taxpayers will be looking over their shoulders to see that new federal windfalls are wisely spent.

—Property taxation and school finance. Major overhauls in the system of financing public education and in property tax administration are needed, tax authorities said.

AG OPINIONS

A recent opinion by Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin warned that closed meetings of governmental agencies with attorneys and staffs can be held only for limited purposes.

Martin's opinion, requested by Beaumont Criminal District Attorney Tom Hanna, said agencies can meet privately with attorneys only to discuss pending or contemplated litigation. It concluded the agencies can meet with staff members only to discuss matters of internal administration. Martin delivered a detailed interpretation of the state open meetings law in response to Hanna, who inquired whether county commissioners can meet in private to discuss legal matters with their attorney.

In other recent opinions, Martin found:

—The state may sell or rent property in delinquent tax sales before expiration of the two-year redemption period.

—A law making it a penal offense for any bond seller to make a financial contribution to a State Board of Education candidate is unconstitutional.

—Parks and Wildlife Commission has no authority to issue licenses for hunting from aircraft.

Christmas in Kentucky, though. The first ecology court in the country was set up in Louisville and Jefferson County. Anyone who violates the strict anti-pollution laws established there in the last few years can be hauled before the court's full-time justice. The court, which meets every Friday afternoon, has prosecuted more than 800 cases so far. It has levied more than $5,000 in air pollution fines alone.

"Everybody's cooperating, including industry," says Tom Summers, who is director of the Kentucky TD-RD Association and a member of the air pollution control board that help set standards for cleaner air. "The standards we've adopted here are among the highest in the country," he says, "and the court is a natural outgrowth of efforts to enforce these standards."

Local officials in agencies and government are responsible for most of the court cases. One citizen group calls itself "Watchdogs on Environment" and takes offenders to the ecology court. And although there is special provision for small citizen rewards for spotting polluters, few people have tried to collect the rewards.

The court has spurred international publicity and more than 200 towns around the world have already requested detailed information about how it all works. More courts may be in the making soon.

BROILER-FRYERS

Perhaps you've seen the television commercial where a disgruntled chicken is weeping and moaning to the "good chicken fairy" that she is being overworked and belittled by a package of bacon. No doubt it is true—because chicken and eggs have always been family favorites. The phrase "what a price for popularity" doesn't seem to console many chickens, however.

But take heart, chickens of the world—things are not as bad as they used to be. People are nicer today than they were a few thousand years ago, when the first poultryman captured a wild hen in the jungles of Malaya and brought her home to save him the trouble of hunting for eggs when he got hungry. Poultry scientists and historians say the people of Malaya brought the chicken out of the jungle and into civilization (or as a chicken would put it, out of the frying pan and into the fire).

Nowadays, modern poultrymen are really nice to their chickens—providing them with carefully planned houses, scientifically balanced feeds, and automated food and water supplies so the birds don't have to forage for part of their meals as they did in the jungles of Malaya.

CRUSTY FRIED CHICKEN

3 lbs. ready-to-cook chicken breasts, thighs and legs.
2 pkgs. dry salad dressing mix, garlic flavor
3 T. flour
2 tsp. salt
1½ cups prepared pancake mix
½ cup lemon juice

1 cup milk
2 T. soft butter or margarine
Fat or oil for frying
Wipe chicken pieces (use damp paper toweling). Combine salad dressing mix, flour and salt in small bowl. Add lemon juice and butter; mix to a smooth paste. Brush all sides of chicken with paste. Stack in bowl; cover. Store in refrigerator overnight. About 1½ hours before supper, place ½ to ¾ inch of fat in bottom of large skillet or dutch oven. Heat. Dip chicken parts in milk, then in dry pancake mix. Coat well. Dust off excess. Lightly brown in hot fat. Turn with tongs, not fork. Place browned chicken one layer deep, in shallow baking pan. Spoon about half of the rest of dipping milk over pieces. Cover with lid or aluminum foil. Bake in moderate oven at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove lid. Baste with remaining milk. Cook uncovered 20 to 30 minutes, or until tender. Makes 8 servings.

Federal Policies Causing Higher Lumber Prices

"The Federal Government's policies and price control regulations are the major cause of high lumber prices," said Joe Butler, Executive Vice President of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas. The 87 year old Austin based organization represents over a thousand Texas retail lumber dealer firms.

"The demand for lumber and forest products caused by the record breaking number of housing starts, and the federal government's inequitable controls, timber selling policies and lack of restraint on log exports, has compounded the problem rather than alleviate the present conditions," Butler continued.

In addition to the increased number of housing starts, the industry spokesman cited the following reasons for the continued rising lumber prices. (1) The lack of export controls have increased the volume of log exports from 430.6 million feet through September of last year to 512.7 million board feet through September of this year, and (2) The lack of price controls on federal timber and the federal government's policy of selling logs to the highest bidder are consistently raising the log prices which are passed on in the finished product. It is esti-ated that the Federal government owns over 65 percent of the nation's forests. "If the government's policies and regulations are continued, the American people can expect their future housing to be stamped, 'Made in Japan' at the expense of the American public," Butler said.

STRONGER ECONOMY AIDS CONTAINER MAKERS

Betterment is showing up this year in the earnings of companies manufacturing containers and packaging materials, after the relatively depressed conditions seen during 1971. The most impressive gains are being chalked up in the paper-based packaging area, which is more closely tied to variations in the national economy than are other forms of packaging. Although makers of glass containers and metal cans are not enjoying the healthy earnings increases of certain producers of paper containers, they are registering better results than those of last year, and the outlook for further advances is optimistic.

Considering the reasonable price-earnings ratios of many issues in this group, the Research Department of Babson's Reports, Inc., feels that most container stocks are well worth holding. For purchases at this time, we recommend Diamond International and National Can, both traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

THINGS STILL LOOKING UP

According to Department of Commerce figures, shipments of containers and packaging materials for 1971 were valued at $21.5 billion, 5 percent above the 1970 level and 60 percent over the $13.2 billion attained during 1963. A continuing expansion of the overall container and packaging industry is looked for, with the annual rate perhaps 3 percent. Appraising the years ahead, it is probable that output will reach a total value

Mrs. Meadows, 75, Died Monday in Galveston

Mrs. Allen Meadows, 75, died in a Galveston hospital at 2:50 a. m. Monday.

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Spill Memorial Chapel, with the Rev. Harry Granz, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial was in Northview Cemetery.

Born Addie Meadows, Dec. 4, 1896, at Winters, she married Thomas Allen Meadows May 18, 1920, at the home of her parents in Winters.

In 1924 the couple moved to Kingsville and later to Aransas Pass, where they lived for nine years.

The family then moved to Galveston where they lived for 12 years, returning to Winters in 1950.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors are a son, William, of Galveston; two daughters, Mrs. George Kirschner and Mrs. Allene Curtis, both of LaMarque; five sisters, Mrs. Dovie Stokely of Westmoreland, Calif., Mrs. Bill Gambill of Lafayette, La., Mrs. Cora Powers of Abilene, Mrs. Cora White of Westmoreland, Calif., and Mrs. Mittie Mathis of Lamesa; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Pallbearers were R. P. Penny, Pete Davidson, Bud Davis, Oliver Wood, M. E. Mathis, Marvin Bedford, Ellis Zane Moore and Coy McNeil.

PLASTICS AND PAPER

Plastic packaging, with dollar volume increasing 10-15 percent yearly, should continue to be the most dynamic part of the packaging industry. Plastic containers are already widely used for liquid detergents, bleaches, cosmetics, and dairy products. Plastic bottles are now being developed for the huge beer and soft-drink markets.

Paper and paperboard packaging accounts for about 50 percent of the industry's total sales. Because of its low cost and versatility, paperboard is widely used as carton material. However, flexible paper packaging (specialty bags, liners, converted wraps) has been losing ground to competing materials, and this trend is likely to continue. Fiber boxes, especially water-resistant types, have been finding wider use in food and beverage markets. While the paper container industry was previously plagued with overcapacity, a gradual phasing out of inefficient mills and a stronger economy have resulted in an improved supply-demand relationship, with consequent price firming.

GLASS CONTAINERS

Better general business is also helping the producers of glass containers, but overcapacity problems and rising labor and materials costs are affecting profit margins. For the longer term, a slowdown in the growth rate of nonreturnable bottles and the competition from metal and plastic containers may prove to be negative factors than the current ecological controversy. But glass container producers are fighting to protect their share of the market.

PROSPECTS FOR METAL CONTAINERS

Manufacturers of metal cans have been hard hit by higher costs and a poor price structure stemming from overcapacity. The trend toward manufacture of cans by users themselves has also presented problems. The can companies however, have been working hard to improve performance through new methods and developments such as on-site production lines, easy-open cans, and cost-cutting measures.

Although can makers' efforts to improve profit margins were blunted earlier this year when the Price Commission rescinded a previously approved 4.3 percent price hike in favor of an interim 2.0 percent lift, the latter was upped to a permanent 2.9 percent increase effective August first. This price relief combined with an anticipated step-up in shipments of metal cans should help lift profit margins.

IN DORSETT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Dorsett and daughters, Jane and Jill, of Gering, Nebr., spent the Thanksgiving holidays in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dorsett, A. N. Crownover of Corpus Christi also were guests in the Dorsett home.

New Techniques Suggested For Arc Welding

Welders working with materials such as old oil well pipe, sucker rods, and car springs will soon discover cracking in their welds unless a few different techniques are used on these high carbon metals, according to Charles Alcorn and Stanley Blackwell vocational agriculture teachers at Winters High School.

One of the biggest problems in the welding of pipe and sucker rods to build corrals and other farm structures has been selection of electrodes, according to Bill Hollenback, Farm Arc Welding Specialist with the Agricultural Education Specialist Program headquartered at Texas A&M University. Mr. Hollenback states that most welders use 1/8 inch E6011 electrodes, but this class of electrode is designed for mild steel welding instead of high carbon steel welding. This problem can be solved by substituting an 1/8 inch E7018, or any other 1/8 inch low hydrogen electrode when an A. C. welding machine is used.

However, shifting to low hydrogen electrodes make it difficult to weld with 180-amp welding machines. At least a 225-amp A. C. machine is needed for satisfactory work. With machines that have high and low outlets, use the low side for providing more open circuit voltage.

The ideal procedure for welding high carbon steels is to begin with running a hot stringer bead or root pass to hold the assembled parts in place. A 1/8 inch E6011 electrode should be used with the machine set between 130-160 amps for this operation. This assures ease in starting the arc and faster movement, saving time on the job.

After running the stringer, make the final welds with a 1/8 inch E7018 or any other 1/8 inch low hydrogen electrode with a setting of 130-160 amps. The welder must hold a close arc and avoid whipping the electrode. If any movement is used, it should be a slight weaving motion.

If porous welds result, chances are they are caused by moist electrodes, insufficient amperage, too long arc length or welding downhill vertically.

of this wide country, civilization is not so far away. But those generations who learned their ABCs from signs along the roads, may hate to see them go. And how can kids play the sign-games, using the all-alike signs which are bound to come about.

Further, we won't say it's probable, but it will be possible that all commercial name-signs on buildings along highway rights-of-way will eventually come under the regulation, and all will have to meet certain bureaucratic — specifications. Can you imagine what it would be like if every business on Main Street had to apply for a permit, and put up a bond, to erect a business sign? Control extends all the way, and there seems to be no way of controlling it. It's entirely possible... the foot is in the door.

Most of us would enjoy seeing the man who invented the budget system on a vacation trip.

A man is never a failure until he delights in naming men who made their mark after sixty.

A man sued for divorce because his wife spent all their money playing the horses—that must be a new kind of nagging.

HEALTH FOR ALL

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

A lot has changed since Granny's day. Polluted air. Cigarettes. Crammed superhighways. But Christmas is still beautiful. And so are Christmas Seals.

This year's Seals sport Granny's double-decker house, glassy skyscrapers, funny old-fashioned trains, and sleighs, split-level homes, snowball fights, and lamplight carolers. The mix is both modern and traditional.

One of the chances since Granny's day is a people explosion. Just 65 years ago, when the first Christmas Seal was printed to fight tuberculosis, there were only 87 million Americans. Today the figure has sped past 200 million and is headed skyward. In the old days, TB was a killer called the White Plague which spread like brushfires from person to person. Out of every 100,000 people, 174 died from TB in a single year. Today, only two out of the same number die from the disease. Modern drugs can treat and prevent the disease if it is detected in time.

Christmas Seals still fight TB because the disease itself hasn't died yet. Last year nearly 40,000 new active cases were found in this country. An unknown number of people have TB without knowing it. Coughing, fatigue, and weight loss can be suspicious symptoms. And today there's a new killer that wipes out the lives of 300,000 Americans every year—cigarettes. Granny never heard of emphysema because cigarettes were not a deadly national pastime in her day. A little chewing tobacco didn't create lung crinkles. Today Christmas Seals fight emphysema, TB, and air pollution because they're there.

Vet Education Law Includes Women's "Bill of Rights"

A women veterans "bill of rights" is included in the new veterans' education law, signed by the President last month.

Jack Coker, director of the Waco VA Regional Office, said, "To receive the additional amounts of VA education allowance, compensation, and pension money that men veterans are allowed for their wives, women veterans no longer will have to prove their husbands are disabled and permanently incapable of self-support."

Coker pointed out that this provision applies to GI Bill, vocational rehabilitation, pension, compensation, and dependency and indemnity compensation, which is paid for service-connected deaths.

The new law also liberalizes the criteria for paying additional amounts for children who are in the custody of a veteran and also awaiting adoption, Coker said.

Where the child has been placed for adoption with the veteran under an agreement with an authorized adoption agency, additional benefits may be paid for the child during the time the child remains in custody and prior to the court decree of adoption.

"Until this liberalization," Coker said, "unless there was an interlocutory decree of adoption, no payments could be made while the child was in custody of the veteran until a final decree of adoption was issued."

Women veterans already have been receiving the same additional amounts of VA educational allowance and compensation money payable for children that have been paid to male veterans.

The new law says that for all VA benefit purposes, a "wife" shall include the husband of a female veteran and the term "widow" shall include the widower of a female veteran.

WCS Covered Dish Luncheon Tuesday

A covered dish luncheon was given by the Women's Society of Christian Service Tuesday at the First United Methodist Church.

For the program the featured speaker was Mrs. Norman Mann of Abilene. She is a speaker for the Volunteer Services of the Abilene State School, and presented statistics on the number of retarded children born, and explained the difference between a state hospital and a state school. She related some of the experiences of Volunteers at the State School, and gave some information on half-way houses for the ones who can be employed and who do not live on the campus of the school.

Volunteers are preparing for Christmas by wrapping gifts for State School inmates, and helping with parties and other activities.

Accompanying Mrs. Mann to Winters was her mother, Mrs. Willie Mae Glenn, also of Abilene.

Twenty-five were present for the luncheon.

Classroom Teachers Saw Film Strip

Members of the Winters Classroom Teachers Association met in the school cafeteria recently, and Mrs. Marthel Russell presented a film strip from Texas Classroom Teachers Association.

Miss Nancy Grundy, president of the organization, president, and several items of business were discussed.
