HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

The following short editorial, picked up from The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, is timely, because cold weather is upon us and more people will have heating units turned on:

"Last year, 49 Texans died of carbon monoxide poisoning, most of them in their homes. They were casualties of a not uncommon accident — leakage of the colorless and odorless deadly gas from defective heaters, furnaces or other household appliances.

"We are in the heater season, now, and bearing that in mind the State Department of Health has issued a warning to householders that they should have their gas-burning appliances checked.

"It is good advice. Also, besides the need for periodic checking of stoves and heaters, the homeowner should remember that a cardinal rule of wintertime safety is that never should a heated room be kept shut tight. In the family home, as in the family automobile, some ventilation should be provided both day and night, so that fresh air can enter and possible dangerous fumes be dissipated."

In that same vein of thought—safety—improperly erected and decorated Christmas trees can be a source of danger. Every Christmas season, many people are killed or seriously injured, property is destroyed, and the season made sad because of carelessness or neglect, or lack of knowledge on the part of some putting up trees.

In the first place, safety people say, electric tree lights never be strung on any kind of metal Christmas tree. Should a bare wire come in contact with one of the metal branches, it could cause a fire, or worse someone could be electrocuted. If metal trees are used, it has been suggested that they be placed well away from electric appliances or cords. The metal in the trees is excellent conductors of electrical current.

With natural or real trees, care should be taken if electric Christmas tree lights are used. In many instances, the sets of lights are taken down each year and stored away, without thought of inspection. When the season comes around again, they are brought out, hung on the tree, and plugged in. Because of their very nature—most of them—they are made of light wire, and the light sockets are delicate. They can become frayed, the bulbs can be broken out, and bare wire left to come in contact with the tree. The result could be fire, or even electrical shock. If you use a natural tree, safety experts recommend that a close examination be made of all electrical cords and light units which you plan to place on the tree. If there is any doubt at all, they suggest that they be repaired before the current is turned on—or better still, if the light strings are very old or show any wear, they be discarded. Even new strings of lights should be thoroughly checked and tested with currents before they are placed on the trees, it has been suggested. A little extra effort could mean a happier Christmas against a disaster.

Also, it has been suggested that real trees not be placed near space heaters or over floor furnaces. They dry out more quickly that way, in addition to becoming fire hazards. Many people also erect trees some time before Christmas, and let them remain up until well after the holidays. Real trees can become very dry that way, it has DIAMONDSCOPE — Bahlman Jewelers recently opened a new appointment room, where customers may examine and discuss purchases in private. A new "diamondscope" is available for customers who wish to examine diamonds, or other jewelry. The diamondscope is a powerful microscope-like magnifying instrument, which enables the viewer to examine the cut, brilliance, and other assets of diamonds. With the instrument, J. W. Bahlman says, it is much easier to explain the differences in stones which on the surface may appear to be of the same quality, size and value. The instrument should enable purchasers to learn more about the jewelry they buy, he said. In this picture, taken in the new private room, Bahlman holds a diamond while his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lannie Bahlman, focuses on another stone in the diamondscope.

Property Identification System Going Slowly, Says Police Chief

The personal property identification system, to help foil thieves and aid in recovery of stolen articles, which was initiated by the Winters Police Department some weeks ago, has been going slowly, according to Chief of Police Joe Stevens. Few people have registered their property with the department, although this is a voluntary, no-cost program, he said.

The hesitation perhaps stems from the disinclination on the part of much of the public to voluntarily enter into any type of "registration" project, however voluntary, the chief indicated. The public is daily faced with so much official and governmental paperwork, and requirements for so much information to be recorded some place, that the very word "register" has come to mean something distasteful to the American public, it has been said, and especially has all the publicity on registration of firearms caused a reverse attitude with many.

However, Chief Stevens said, the personal property registration system set up by the Winters Police Department is simply a method used to register personal property, which may be subject to theft, to make recovery easier. In the event property is stolen, he said, it can be more easily traced and identified, and returned to the proper owner if found.

There is no cost for registering property, Stevens said. Residents merely write down a description of the property, including name of article, serial number, model, etc. This information is cross-indexed in the police department file, and if the property should be stolen, the local department would notify other law enforcement agencies. If the property is found, either in Winters or in some other locality, identification is easier and thieves can be more easily apprehended and convicted, and property recovered.

Similar systems are being used in other localities, and in some cities, owners registering property are issued window cards or stickers which give warning to burglars and thieves that the property on the premises is listed with the police, and their chances of getting away with theft are slim. It has been reported that even the presence of the cards or stickers, and the publicity regarding registration has reduced theft in many instances.

Stevens said the system is even more valuable during this season of the year, when thieves break into homes and cars to

Housing Project Renters Needed

Although there is a definite need for rental housing in Winters, renting of units in the low-cost housing project recently opened by the Winters Housing Authority has been slow, it was stated this week.

Of the 46 units, designed for the elderly and for low-income families, only 17 had been rented the first of the week, Oliver Wood, executive secretary of the Authority and manager of the project, said. Most of the vacancies are in the section designated for elderly persons, Wood said.

Of the entire project, 30 of the units were designated for the elderly and 16 for low-income families.

J. S. Joyce, chairman of the Housing Authority board, said more applications are needed from the Winters area, which will receive first consideration.

Members of the board of the Housing Authority are not alarmed at the seemingly slow pace of renting the units, it was indicated, because the project has not been open for many weeks. However, the board would like to see more applications come in.

Reason for the slowness in renting of the units may be because many people who might be qualified do not understand the requirements for obtaining one of the houses, it was pointed out. Renting of the units, and the amount of rent charged, is governed by regulations set up by Federal agencies. Renters must meet certain minimum income requirements, among other things. Some of those who would like to rent one of the units may think their annual income is above the required minimum level, and have not bothered to make application, it was said. Many of these would probably qualify, because the regulations are quite flexible, and an "adjusted" income formula is used in approving applications, it was stated.

Those persons who would be interested in renting the units in the new project should contact the Authority office and make application, regardless of their annual income, it was said.

Construction of the housing was completed some weeks ago, and the Housing Authority accepted the project. There still remains much landscaping work to be done, but this will be accomplished during the next few weeks.

March of Dimes Drives Are Being Planned Here

"Birth defects are forever—unless you help."

This is the message that Mrs. Patricia Ventrone will bring home to Rannels countians in the weeks ahead, as campaign director for the annual March of Dimes campaign.

Her appointment was announced this week by Don Jones chapter chairman for the voluntary organization.

"Birth defects are everyone's concern," she said, "because they strike nearly a quarter of a million infants every year. Although science has taken manifold steps in recent years to control and even prevent lifelong damage to newborns, we still face a stiff fight against congenital handicaps."

Funds raised for the March of Dimes provide for more than 100 medical service programs across the country. Throughout the year, the March of Dimes supports research, care, education and community service projects.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

The Sixth Grade Class of Winters Elementary School would like to express appreciation to those who made it possible for us to have a float in the Christmas parade. We would like to thank the Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the parade, Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton for letting us use their building for three weeks, Mr. Evans for his trailer, Pool Company for donating the lumber and chicken wire, Mr. Alderman for pulling the float, and all our Mothers and Daddys for allowing us to have those fun "flower-making parties," and for cleaning up our clothes when the work got dirty. A very special Thank You to Mr. and Mrs. Loudermilk for their inspiration and guidance all those nights we worked and to those parents who gave their time to be out there with us and for doing the carpentry work. And oh, yes, Merry Christmas, Snoopy, we love you.

—The Sixth Grade Class.

FUTURE IN DOUBT in the wake of the election, Jean Westwood is reported a likely candidate for replacement as Democratic national chairman. She was the personal selection of Sen. George McGovern for the post.

HEALTH LETTER

GRAVY AT CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a gravy train for overeaters. A plum pudding paradise.

Holidays and social get-togethers are terrible trouble spots for overeaters, according to Dr. Robert J. Westlake, psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. "There are other things besides eating that families can do together on holidays," he says. But togetherness too often takes place chiefly at the dinner table.

Dr. Westlake holds group sessions to help patients unlearn old eating habits and try better ways. Part of the program involves a two-hour session every other week called family night. Overeaters bring at least one relative or friend, hopefully someone they eat with. "The problem is behavioral and may involve them all," he says. Patients are also encouraged to pre-plan what they will eat at holiday dinners and at restaurant outings. Group members learn to reprogram their usual activities so they will use up more energy during the day.

Whatever the reasons for overeating, many people—particularly women—say they smoke to avoid eating more. But studies of ex-smokers don't bear out this line of logic. One out of every four ex-smokers in an extensive national survey, for example, actually lost weight; some lost large amounts. It seems that once people master one aspect of their behavior, such as quitting smoking, they often take control of other aspects, such as eating properly and exercising enough.

Overeating is a definite problem for many people. But smoking to solve that problem is no solution. In fact, a woman of average weight would have to gain an extra 60 to 100 pounds to tax her heart as much as she does by smoking a pack or two a day. Not to mention the toll smoking takes on her lungs.

To find out more about the hazards of smoking, contact your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Screwworms Still A Problem

Screwworm infestations continue to be a serious problem over much of the state, and livestock owners are urged to inspect and treat all animal wounds, says County Extension Agent Parker.

Although colder temperatures are beginning to slow down screwworm activities in the Panhandle and certain other areas of the state, many sections of the state have not yet recorded sufficient prolonged cold to hamper the troublesome livestock pest, he adds.

A short cold snap will cause the flies to become inactive for a time, but as the temperatures rise the flies again become a problem. Several successive days and nights of sub-freezing or near-freezing temperatures are necessary to deal a crippling blow to the screwworm flies.

Livestock owners therefore will need to continue their vigilance against new screwworm outbreaks. It's still important to collect samples of all cases and send them to the Mission Screwworm Eradication Laboratory for identification.

Locations of all known cases are needed for the future planning and treatment by eradication program officials. They need a permanent record of hard-hit counties and areas.

The current screwworm outbreak began reaching epidemic proportions in the spring and has continued through the summer and fall. Texas recorded 1,832 cases during the week ending November 11. At mid-November, total screwworm confirmations in the southwestern states reached the 94,173 mark, an all-time record. Texas had 89,587 cases by that date, with only 3,186 non-screwworm samples being processed at the Mission Lab this year. Of course these numbers do not include the many cases we had and I know were not sent into the laboratory.

Clean Up Pesticide Application Equipment

A clean-up of pesticide application equipment will add to the useful life of the equipment and eliminate a potential hazard to the farm family, farm employees, livestock and pets.

The following are methods to clean the spray rig:

1. Use either a strong household detergent or an ounce of household ammonia per gallon of water. Fill the spray tank to capacity and run the sprayer about five minutes with the cut-off valve to nozzles closed. Then open the cut-off valve and drain as much as possible. Next, rinse the tank with clean water. Avoid splashing rinse water on the skin or eyes.
 2. Use at least one-third of a tank of water adding 1-4 pound of activated charcoal and 1-8 pound of laundry detergent per 10 gallons of water. Wash the equipment for two minutes by swirling the liquid so that it reaches all parts of the tank. Pump some of the mixture through hoses and nozzles. Drain the tank and rinse the equipment with clean water. Avoid splashing rinse water on the skin or eyes.
- Other parts of the spray rig also need a thorough cleaning, notes Parker. Scrub the outside surfaces of the spray rig with one of the above mixes. Use a stiff bristle brush. Remove nozzle to clean screens and tips. Remove caps from the ends of booms and stand them on end to remove sediment. Check all hoses and filters.

Coat all iron parts exposed to the chemical with a rust inhibitor of light oil. If the sprayer is powered with a gasoline engine, drain the fuel tank and carburetor and pour a tablespoon of engine oil through the spark plug hole. Turn the motor by hand to distribute oil on the cylinder walls.

Dispose of all rinse water safely as if it were waste or AUSTIN — Most homeowners are expected to get a big break on insurance rates next year.

Exceptions will be those who live in the 27-county Gulf Coast area.

The industry-oriented Texas Insurance Advisory Association recommended the State Board of Insurance reduce by 17.7 percent extended coverage (hail, windstorm, vandalism, etc.) rates and by 16.2 percent homeowners' rates in the North-Northwest area. That includes most of the Panhandle and South Plains. Association recommendations for the big central Inland territory (Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, El Paso, Austin areas) included a 12.1 percent decrease in extended coverage and 10.9 percent reduction in homeowners' premiums.

The Seacoast territory (Beaumont-Port Arthur, Houston, Galveston, Corpus Christi and Brownsville areas) would get a 17.5 percent hike in extended coverage premiums and an 8.3 percent increase in homeowners' policy rates.

All territories would benefit from an Association proposal to reduce fire insurance rates statewide by 7.7 percent.

An Association spokesman estimated savings of $6 million for extended coverage and $9.8 million for homeowners' insurance in the Central Inland territory. He calculated increases of $8 million for extended coverage and $5.9 million for homeowners' rates in the Seacoast territory. About 500 insurance agents who attended the Board hearing on the proposals expressed approval but loudly protested another recommendation by the Association to standardize their commissions.

The Board staff is awaiting directions as to whether to calculate new rates on its own formula or the new recommendations.

COURTS SPEAK

Texas Supreme Court agreed a re-trial is in order for a lawsuit against Union Carbide Co. as a result of an explosion which killed two and injured two.

The Court of Criminal Appeals held a San Antonio man cannot complain about exclusion of blacks from his murder trial jury since he agreed to the exclusion himself.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals held property owners in Wylie County School District should have the right to join the Abilene School District.

The Supreme Court threw out a district court injunction preventing a State Bar grievance committee investigation of complaints against a former Hill County attorney.

A Houston Court of Civil Appeals decision that heirs of a man who died in a Waller County Hospital after an auto accident should get a full trial of a malpractice suit against a doctor who treated the wreck victim was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

HORSE RACING REVIVAL?

A Senate committee is conducting a survey, results of which admittedly may be used to bolster a new drive for pari-mutuel horse race betting.

The Senate Horse Racing Committee sent out 5,000 questionnaires to assess the horse industry and its economic impact on Texas.

Among questions asked of the horse owners and riding equipment suppliers is whether pari-mutuel wagering would expand their operations and how local lawmakers would vote on the issue.

The Committee vice-chairman said results of the survey "could be used to build an economic case" for wagering on horse races. A meeting of the panel is slated here December 14 to hear opponents of racing and pari-mutuel gambling and to receive a report on potential state revenue from legalized wagering. Committee heads said a constitutional amendment would be necessary to revive pari-mutuel betting on the races.

HOW TO PICK UP $5 MILLION

Texas could gain $5 million a year in delinquent sales taxes by changing collection procedures in the comptroller's office, a Senate interim study committee has been told.

Actually an Illinois tax expert estimated, the state could collect $8 million more each year, but hiring of an additional 200 state sales tax auditors would take about $3 million of the gain.

An attorney general's representative said Attorney General Martin wants to require Texas businesses to post bond to insure payment of the sales taxes they collect.

POLLUTION MONEY MAY BE LOST

Texas may get only half the federal funds it counted on to help build new sewage plants, State Water Quality Board Chairman Gordon Fulcher stated.

A new federal act, said Fulcher, would cut Texas' allocation to $55.4 million for fiscal 1973 for treatment plant aid, as compared with $106.3 million for fiscal 1972.

Attorney General Martin underwent cataract surgery at John Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., last week.

Forts Trail Assn. Met In Abilene Thursday Morning

The Texas Forts Trail Association met Thursday, December 7, at the Abilene Civic Center at 9 a. m. The Texas Travel Trails Committee, which originally set up the 10 travel trails for Texas, met with the association to explain the roles of the various agencies involved in the committee and how the committee can aid the Texas Forts Trail Association.

The Texas Forts Trail Association was formed in 1971, as the first travel trail association in the state. Its purpose is to complement the efforts of the state in promoting travel on the Texas Forts Trail.

Because of its proximity to old Fort Chadbourne, Winters was included on the route of the Forts Trail. All persons interested in furthering the goals of the Forts Trail Association are welcome into the membership. The Trail includes a 38 county area of West Central Texas, centering upon the 691 mile trail designated by the state.

CLOUDS ON LABOR
HORIZON

Labor relations have been relatively placid during the year now drawing toward its close, with a substantial number of quiet settlements in many small industrial firms but no big-scale negotiations dominating the scene. As 1973 unfolds, however, the situation promises to be quite different from 1972, since more than 4,000,000 workers in several outstanding industries face contract expiration or renewal in the course of the new year. There will be significant union bargaining sessions in electrical manufacturing, rubber, cement, building, autos, trucking, clothing, services, transportation equipment, food, and retail trade. Although wage controls are expected to continue for an indefinite period—certainly well into 1973—labor has no intention of adhering to the rules. If the current ceiling of 5.5 percent in annual raises and the 0.7 percent in fringe concessions are kept in force, union negotiators will not hesitate to press for considerably more sizable pay and fringe benefits than the Pay Board yardsticks will permit.

PATTERN OF WAGE INCREASES

It should be noted that the guidelines of the Pay Board were bypassed quite frequently in the current year. Wage rate increases won in the first six months of 1972 averaged 7.5 percent for the first year of the contract's life. While this represented a sharp reduction from the first-year average raise of 11.7 percent racked up during the first half of 1971, it is still well above the supposed ceiling of 5.5 percent allowed on an annual basis. And demands being made against companies in upcoming bargaining sessions are even less moderate.

Petrochemical workers, for example, have asked for a 50c-an-hour hike in their new contract, plus another 50c in the second year. This means that the first-year gain alone would amount to 10%, while additional gains sought — including paid hospital and medical care, better pensions, more liberal shift differentials, and research in connection with a health and safety fund to be administered by the union and management.

IMPORTANT 1973 NEGOTIATIONS

A 40-month agreement will be running out for electrical workers by the first of May next year, so bargaining will doubtless be under way sixty to ninety days before that time. Here, again, demands will probably be of broad scope and expensive for management. The pact approaching expiration in the early months of the new year was agreed upon only after a strike lasting more than three months at a number of plants during 1969 and 1970.

The Teamsters Union, a particularly aggressive organization, is heading into bargaining sessions around midyear. Trucking concerns may hold out against exaggerated demands from the union, but chances are they will not be tough enough to breed a critical strike that could tie up many industries throughout the country. It could be that employers will give in somewhat, granting larger raises than those permitted in the hope that the Pay Board will shave them back later on when the pay structure is reviewed . . . assuming, of course, that the Board is still in operation by that time.

RUBBER AND AUTOMOBILES

Rubber and auto unions have long been pace setters, and next year they are not likely to play a different role. Look for both to demand exceptionally large pay increases as well as some expensive fringe benefits. Auto giants will be reluctant to take on heavy new labor costs unless they feel that they can pass at least a good part through to consumers in the form of price boosts. However, no matter how this works out, the Research Department of Babson's Reports is of the opinion that auto prices will be increased once more on 1973 models even if the companies do absorb part of the hike in labor costs.

Many a young man who writes political speeches for a living finds it a "promising" career.

COLOR OF ORANGE

Would an orange by another color taste just as good? Some do, but most of us insist that our oranges live up to their name. However, don't ignore the fact that oranges that have green color skins, also. The U. S. Department of Agriculture says that oranges often have some green color even when they are fully mature.

Fruit bins will be glowing with a bright orange hue this December, for supplies are plentiful. And what can compare with the rich, fruity flavor of a freshly squeezed orange? Or, for that matter, with sliced or sectioned oranges with a light frost of powdered sugar for breakfast or dessert?

GOLDEN FRUIT AMBROSIA

- 3 seedless oranges
 - 2 seedless grapefruit
 - 2 T. lemon juice
 - 1 pkg. (12 oz.) frozen sliced peaches
 - 1 can (14-oz.) frozen pineapple chunks.
- Thaw frozen peaches and pineapple. Drain well and pour slices into bowl. Add lemon juice to other juices and mix well. Pare and section oranges and grapefruit. Place all fruits in serving bowl and pour combined fruit juices over all.

SWEATERS START AT HOME

Home sewers tempted to try their hands at sweater creation are finding the new venture fun.

Vivian Warminski, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service completed a 10 point guide for sewing the fashion. They are:

1. Launder fabric to remove finishing solution.
2. Place fabric on hard, flat surface to cut. Avoid letting fabric hang off table to prevent stretching.
3. Use a polyester or polyester core thread.
4. Use a ball point needle.
5. Adjust stitch length to 12-14 stitches per inch.
6. Stay-stitch each piece on neckline immediately after cutting to prevent stretching.
7. Reinforce stress areas, such as shoulder seams, crotch and armholes.
8. Trim seal allowances to one-eighth inch and zigzag seam edges together to prevent fraying and eliminate bulk.
9. In sweaters without seam down the center back, stitch a narrow "V" down the center back, the length of the zipper. Cut down the center of the stitching. Sew bias seam tape to the edges. Insert invisible zipper in usual manner. After zipper is installed, stitch from zipper, tapering to nothing and forming a slight dart.
10. Take care not to stretch knit when pressing. After pressing area with steam, allow garment to dry before picking it up.

Home sewers are cautioned to hand wash most sweater knits and place on flat surface to dry as dry cleaning may cause acrylic to shrink. Be sure to check the end of the fabric bolt for care instructions and ask sales personnel for permanent care label. Mrs. O'Connor stated.

"The Biscuit Eater"

Since the dawn of motion pictures, films dealing with dogs and children have been sure-fire box office magic, but never so appealingly or sensitively combined as in the films of Walt Disney. As the patron saint of the celluloid screen's canine stars, he gave us such classics as "Big Red," "Old Yeller," "Savage Sam," "The Shaggy Dog" and "Nikki, Wild Dog of the North."

It is in this tradition that Walt Disney Productions now presents "The Biscuit Eater," a poignant rural drama about two 13-year-old boys, one white and black, and their efforts to train a misfit hound into a champion bird dog.

"The Biscuit Eater," shows Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at the State Theatre.

Set in the lush green hills and sprawling meadows of Tennessee in 1946, this film brings to life James Street's gripping Saturday Evening Post story. It boasts an impressive all-star cast: Earl Holliman, Patricia Crowley, Lew Ayres, Godfrey Cambridge, Leah Richards, and Johnny Whitaker and George Spell as the two boys.

In color by Technicolor, Walt Disney Productions' "The Biscuit Eater" was adapted for the screen by Lawrence Edward Watkin, and directed by Vince McEveety for producer Bill Anderson. A Buena Vista release.

Happy Homemaking

By BARBARA BAKER

It will be easier to remove watercolor paint from a child's clothes if you put liquid detergent on the spots as soon as possible. Some fabrics do require a few washings before it all comes out.

Transform old clay pots, buckets and cans into beautiful "planters" by covering them with aluminum foil. This helps the plants retain moisture.

When broiling just one steak or two or three chops, it is easier to take a nine-inch aluminum pie plate, turn a seven-inch pie plate (with a few holes punched in it) upside down in the larger one. Put your steak on top and the fat runs down into the nine-inch pan and is trapped, thus eliminating the splatter of grease in the oven.

Have at least three of every washable item of clothing and bedding for the newborn baby. An old saying goes: "One on the baby, one in the wash and one in the drawer."

been shown and even the heat from electric lights can cause fires in some instances, to say nothing of the untidiness when the needles or leaves begin to fall. Some people set their real trees in cans of water, and keep the cans filled at all times. They say the moisture will prevent extreme dryness, and make the trees last longer.

Electric Christmas tree lights strung on the outside of homes can also cause trouble, safety experts warn. If you do string outside lights, the wiring and sockets should be weather-resistant, and should have no breaks or bare wires. An exposed electric wire can cause a fire if it comes in contact with the wood of a house, or could cause death if it comes in contact with a television antenna or metal screen.

The best bet, the experts say, is to be very careful in decorating for Christmas. A couple of dollars saved by using old light strings, or carelessness in putting up the lights could ruin your Christmas, as well as your life.
