At least 35 dead after massacre

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Gunmen believe to be leftist guerrillas fired automatic weapons at a gathering of political rivals early Sunday, killing at least 35 people, authorities said.

The massacre in the town of Apartado, 300 miles northwest of Bogota, was the bloodiest in Colombia in more than five years. Eight people were wounded.

After an emergency security council meeting, President Cesar Gaviria ordered a 7 p.m.-4 a.m. curfew in the Apartado region and prohibited the sale of alcohol and the carrying of weapons.

He promised to increase the military's presence and set a $625,000 reward for information leading to the arrests of guerrilla leaders.

Gunmen injure seven at roller rink

BOSTON (AP) — Several gunmen wearing hooded sweatshirts burst into a roller rink Sunday and shot seven youngsters, authorities said.

Two juveniles and a 17-year-old were arrested. Witnesses said there had been a fight inside the rink between two groups of youths before the shooting, but it was too soon to say that led to the shooting, acting Police Commissioner Paul Evans said.

None of the injuries was life-threatening, hospital officials said. Five boys and two girls ages 12 to 17 were shot.

There were about 200 people at the Chez Vous roller rink in the city's Dorchester section at the time of the attack, witnesses said. The rink is across the street from a police station.

Clinton health plan ignores border care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Illegal aliens and migrant farm workers are among the special populations that would receive less than their due under the White House's health care reform plan, advocates told a House health subcommittee Monday.

The Clinton plan and rival proposals circulating on Capitol Hill also fail to address the unique problems of a U.S.-Mexico border region marked by poverty, pollution and Third World diseases, the chairman of the Texas Medical Association's council on public health testified.

"The border is in crisis," said Dr. Laurance Nickey, director of the El Paso City-County Health and Environmental District.

More than 7 million Mexicans and Americans live within 100 miles of the border, sharing air and water. The border infrastructure has become increasingly overtaxed as more and more people have moved to the region.

"Local governments on both sides are under serious strain to provide potable water, sewage disposal, electricity and health facilities," Nickey said.

Tech getting affirmative action check-up

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's affirmative action plan is being audited by U.S. Department of Labor representatives, marking the university's first review in 10 years.

"When an institution receives over $50,000 in federal funds and employs 50 or more people, recipients should adopt an Equal Opportunity policy," said Julio Llanas, director of Tech's Affirmative Action Department and Personnel Relations. "This policy should not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, veteran status or disability."

Diagnosis may show small problems, Llanas says

Recipients also are required to have a formal affirmative action plan designed to make sure women, Hispanics and blacks are adequately represented in the work force.

"The Department of Labor will be here for the next three days auditing our compliance with our affirmative action plan," Llanas said.

Specific regulations require affirmative action plans to be written to include all job categories.

Administrative, management, academic administration, professional, technical, professional, paraprofessional, clerical, craft and trade and service positions are looked at in comparison with population studies conducted by the Census Bureau.

"Appropriate groups are recruited determined by census numbers," he said. "This department is primarily focused on recruitment. We make special efforts to recruit people that are under-represented in certain areas."

Job categories recruit employees based on the affirmative action plan when groups are not represented equally.

"Hiring goals are really what puts the plan into action," he said. "Often, it is misinterpreted into thinking the plan advocates hiring based on skin color or quotas."

Llanas said Tech's overall progress with its plan during the last year will meet expectations, but said some problems may surface in specific job categories.

"Some categories have not succeeded in diversifying employees," he said. "There are no minority employees in administrative and executive positions, and there is an overall problem in hiring black faculty. It's no secret we don't have representation in higher levels."

"In all fairness, efforts are made, but competition for black faculty in a very small black professional pool is difficult," Llanas said. "Some deans may not be trying hard enough, while others are assertive above and beyond in

WORKING ON THE STRENGTHS

Tech coach compares old job with Dunkin Donuts commercial

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Meg Ritchie decided she wanted a new setting feeling she had done as much as she could.

Ritchie became the head of Tech's strength program Jan. 17 after nine years as head strength coach at the University of Arizona. The Tech opening occurred after coach Joe Juraszek left for the University of Oklahoma in December.

"I had gone as far as I could with that program," Ritchie said of the UA position. "I felt like the Dunkin Donuts commercial. I felt like the guy there just going to work. I wanted a new challenge. I felt that in the last two years, my coaching wasn't as sharp as it should be."

The native of Kirkcaldy, Scotland, said her goal for Tech is to build better and more physical athletes.

"The bottom line is it is not just weight training," she said. "It is also strength and conditioning which includes increasing strength, speed and agility. The athletes will be able to perform on the fields for their coaches a lot better."

Tech Athletic Director Bob Bockrath, who was an associate athletic director at Arizona from 1980-1991, said he did not intend to hire Ritchie when the Tech job initially came open.

"It was kind of funny," Bockrath said. "Frankly, I had called her asking if she had any recommendations for the top strength coaches and jokingly I asked if she was interested and she said she might be. She was then recruited to come."

Bockrath said Ritchie brings a wealth of experience to Tech.

"She has great expertise with weight lifting which is a key to any sport," Bockrath said. "She understands the athletes' problems because she has been there before."

When dealing with athletes, Ritchie said she not only takes the person's abilities into account, but also their sport.

"We look at specifics," she said. "Like a volleyball player needs to be able to swing their arm, we also want to work on their shoulder muscles to make them stronger for their particular sport."

During Ritchie's tenure as strength coach Arizona participated in five bowl games and won five Pac-10 titles in basketball. Tech's athletes seem to enjoy working with Ritchie.

"I have already gained a lot by just talking to her," said women's basketball player Nikki Heath. "Everyone seems to like her. She takes pride in her job and loves what she does which helps a coach be a better coach."

Ritchie, who graduated from Arizona in 1984, was a discus finalist in the 1980 and 1984 Olympic Games. She also is the current United Kingdom, collegiate and Arizona record holder in the shot put.

Davidian trial continues

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal agent who was shot six times on the roof of the Branch Davidian compound testified Monday he tumbled into a compound courtyard, where he remained 2 1/2 hours desperately radioing for help.

"It (the two-way radio) was sort of my lifeline," said agent Kenneth King. "I didn't want to die there laying on that ground. I was determined that I was not going to die. I was going to make it."

Under cross-examination from attorneys for some of the 11 Branch Davidian defendants, King acknowledged no one tried to harm him once he was in the compound and said federal agents had no plans to request a peaceful entry into the upstairs rooms of the compound.

King led one of two Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms teams assigned to climb by ladder to the compound roof during a Feb. 28, 1993, raid. King's mission: to reach the room of doomsday prophet David Koresh.

On the roof, as his team approached its assigned room, King said gunfire erupted from inside the room.

He was shot in the chest, arms and buttocks — a total of six wounds in all, said King, with the New Orleans ATF office at the time.

Anti-Semitism on rise in black community

A.M. ROSENTHAL

On Nov. 29, 1993, at state-run Kean College in New Jersey, a spokesman for the Nation of Islam, the country's largest black anti-Semitic organization, made a speech. It was the one about how the Jews had it coming to them in Nazi Germany.

For three hours he talked, adding the advice that blacks slaughter all white South Africans, dig them up and slaughter them again. He was paid about $2,650 in student funds and in enthusiasm from the audience of black teachers and students.

And from almost all of America's black political and intellectual leadership he received something even more valuable to him and other black peddlers of hatred: silence about the growth of black anti-Semitism.

From time to time some prominent black American says something critical about anti-Semitism in general or about a particular outburst.

But with few exceptions, black political and intellectual leadership have kept silent about one of the more dangerous realities in American life — the surge of anti-Semitism and anti-Semitic propaganda among blacks, particularly among young and more educated blacks.

The "root cause" talk about black anti-Semitism — profiteering Jewish merchants of Jewish influence — is garbage, the old excuse for pogroms. The third cause of hatred is hatred. The more it is sown, the more it grows.

Until recently, I never understood the silence about the phenomenon of black anti-Semitism. It seemed to me so obviously a danger not only to Jews but to blacks. Bigotry toward any part of society will eventually wind up as an ax handle to the skull of black hopes. Surely the black leadership understood that?

Then black politicians taught me better, they and the NAACP. In Washington, the Congressional Black Caucus entered into a political alliance, a "covenant" no less, with Louis Farrakhan and his Nation of Islam.

And the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People joined. Wasn't it once the hope for brotherhood against race hate? Didn't blacks and Jews die for that?

Jesse Jackson, who lectures against violence, said that on racial injustice he stood with Louis Farrakhan. Violence? The Nation of Islam's teachings would bring national bloodletting. It might start with Jews, but will not end with them this time.

Now I know why the silence. If it suits their interests the Caucus, Jackson and the NAACP are willing to ally themselves with the salesmen for a new Holocaust. That's what "the Jews had it coming" means: if in Germany, why not here?

To say that the alliance is only for black "racial" matters is insulting and evil, like trying to buy a half-price ticket out of hell.

No, not all black leaders and thinkers are parties to silence. Profs. Henry Gates and Cornel West put the issue and penalty most directly: The rise of black anti-Semitism puts at stake the moral credibility of the black struggle against racism.

Michael Meyers, executive director of the New York Civil Rights Coalition, spoke up at once against the "covenant" and the politicians who sullied themselves with it.

But the general silence of the leadership about rising black anti-Semitism helps make anti-Semitism respectable, pain-free and profitable. For American Jews to tolerate that is to tolerate their demise.

I have heard casual anti-Semitism from black achievers. Jews in the room look at each other in astonishment. Maybe it is a misunderstanding? Black radio and newspapers spew anti-Semitism. Jews have drinks with the spewers and their owners. Ah, don't be so sensitive.

So we wind up with this: Jews in America must continue to fight against anti-Semitism with every weapon of persuasion or power at their command, except one — to turn themselves into racists.

The Jews will not fight alone. But whether the black leadership will join is up to them and their constituencies, not Jews. Jews can say to them only what blacks say to their countrymen: no silence, no covenants with blood-seekers, and as the fight against race or religious hatred goes on, choose your side, whatever color.

KUDOS TO PI BETA PHI

To the editor:

On behalf of the Littlefield Primary School, I want to express our deepest appreciation to the members of Pi Beta Phi sorority for the beautiful Christmas toys and gifts they brought to our students. Forty-seven children had a very special Christmas because of their generosity.

Kathy Langston was chairman of the project. She was accompanied to the school by Gustie Cushman, Cari Weinberg and Lisa Plummer.

All of those who were allowed to be a part of this effort are in their debt; and I wanted you at Texas Tech to know of their special contribution.

TECH DINING

NEEDS REVAMPING

To the editor:

Dittos to John H. Terry for his letter ("Cheeseburger and Sacrifice") in the Jan. 21 edition of The UD. Mr. Terry has hit on an issue of real concern for those of us living in the residence halls. I have lived in Gordon Hall for nearly three years now, and last semester I gave up trying to eat in the Bledsoe/Gordon/Sneed dining hall.

The B/G/S dining hall is known for its misnamed Ranchlander theme line featuring what Housing and Dining propaganda calls "gourmet hamburgers." Gourmet cardboard would be more appropriate. Also, it is unlikely that any self-respecting rancher would be caught dead in this theme line. I find most distressing that here in the heart of West Texas the almighty Housing and Dining Services cannot seem to find any cattle to serve up for supper. (I apologize if I offend any vegetarians.)

Like Mr. Terry, I tried to have my meal plan canceled. I was told that unless I lived in Gaston Apartments, I was required to have a meal plan. When I explained that I no longer visited the dining hall and that I prepare my own meals in the kitchen on my floor, I was told by the secretary that there was nothing she could do. I think it is a sad commentary that Housing and Dining must use this coercion tactic to finance their pathetic cafeterias.

Since I have to pay for the dining hall, I have some suggestions to improve it. Why not contract the dining halls out to someone who can deliver a quality product? Furr's and Luby's do it every day. Let's have these firms compete for one-year contracts to provide services for the dining halls. An added bonus would be to turn the dining halls over to Tech's RHIM department. It would be a good learning experience and a challenge for the students in the RHIM program to transform the dining halls into something pleasant. At the very least, Housing and Dining could nix the high caliber menu items that they have repeatedly shown themselves incapable of making appealing — items like Chicken Peanut, Zucchini Enchiladas, and Spinach Lasagna. Just stick to trying to serve the basic good food that sticks to the ribs. Whoever makes the menus should ask themselves for each item. "Would my mother serve this with a straight face?" If the answer is "no," then serve something else. Also, why is it so hard for these people to make a decent glass of iced tea? I know that Lubbock water is lacking, but most places in town can still make iced tea with it. Dining hall iced tea often tastes funny and looks like someone put half a teaspoon of skim milk in it.

If none of these changes can be made, then I want my money back. It's just not right to make people pay for something they don't want or never use. We are the customers here. It is high time we were treated to some decent customer service.

VALUES

UNDERMINED

To the editor:

I noticed in the Jan. 20 issue of The UD that the Dean of Students has not made a decision regarding the High Riders controversy. I find this indecision to be alarming. Should the Dean of Students decide against the High Riders, another blow will be struck against religious freedom in this country. The High Riders is an organization founded on a somewhat religious premise. One of their members decided to live her life in a manner overtly inconsistent with the principles of the organization and consequently made herself unable to publicly represent the High Riders. Now federal authorities and students of opposing ideology wish to revoke public money from the organization. Meanwhile, hard earned tax dollars continue to support various things Christians find utterly offensive, such as the sexual teachings of Jocelyn Elders. Religious organizations need to protect their religious liberties by getting themselves off of public funding! It gives the government too much control (money is power). Besides, since when has God needed a public hand-out? Religious people need to vote in a manner more consistent with their beliefs — or stop professing to hold those beliefs — if they wish to avoid government intervention such as this.

People, not guns should be accountable for crime

by Nathan Ziegler

Late last year after several shootings nationwide, including the incident in New York where a thug gunned down several subway passengers, left-wing politicians were all over the news claiming that the problem was guns. No fault is ever placed on the individuals responsible for the shootings, but rather society as a whole, access to guns and those who support the second amendment are placed with the blame.

Our Surgeon General, Jocelyn Elders, prescribed a sure remedy for the problem — that we make "safer guns and safer bullets." President Clinton called for a ban on the type of gun used by the subway murderer (also commonly used by law enforcement). Lloyd Bentsen proposed (along with many other absurd "fixes") taxes on ammunition that would increase its costs by 1,000 percent. All across the country toys, food stamps, money and tickets to sporting events are being given out in exchange for guns. The idea is that by disarming the general public, crime will somehow subside. This argument flies in the face of reality and undeniable evidence which proves just the opposite.

Across America, those states with the most restrictive gun laws, have proportionately more crime by far, than those states with lax gun laws. It makes perfect sense that criminals take far fewer risks in states where the average citizen is more likely to be armed. Since Florida broke national trends in 1987 and passed a concealed-carry law, the homicide rate has fallen 17 percent compared to a national rate that has increased by 18 percent. Rather than reporting this fact, the headlines tell of tourists getting shot. Case in point. Florida's criminals can bet on tourists being unarmed, easy targets.

Dr. Roger D. McGrath is a professor of history at UCLA and has written, among other works, Gun-fighters, Highwaymen & Vigilantes. He shows that in the old West there was far less crime, and even in rough mining towns where most citizens carried guns there were proportionately far fewer innocent victims than in America today. Dr. McGrath studied, in depth, two frontier towns with widespread reputations for violence — Aurora, Nev. and Bodie, Calif. During the mid to late 1800s these towns were filled with transient, adventurous, entrepreneurial, brave, young, unmarried and armed men, which outnumbered women 10 to one. The towns were filled with saloons and brothels and were alive 24 hours a day. It would seem that these towns had all the ingredients for an epidemic of crime, but virtually none occurred.

McGrath points out that an examination of robbery, burglary, theft, rape and homicide in these towns with populations each exceeding 5,000 reveals not how far we have come but how far we have sunk. When statistically compared with these rowdy mining camps, modern cities such as Detroit and New York have 20 times as much robbery per capita. Most cities today average 30 to 40 times as much burglary and theft. Most women were armed as well, and not one case of rape shows up in any letters, diaries, newspapers or public records of either town from that period.

The L.A. riots of 1992 showed that those who counted on the government for protection from hoodlums lost big. Only those shopkeepers who were armed were able to protect themselves and their livelihoods.

The examples are endless and the evidence overwhelming, disarming the public and discouraging gun ownership not only fails to repel crime, it encourages criminal activity.

The left's irrational position on gun control and crime should be no shocker.

After all, it is consistent with many of its "solutions" to problems which only exacerbate the situation (i.e. condom distribution for teen-age pregnancy or hand-outs for poverty).

Mentors can help make a difference

College students needed to devote time to area youth

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech students interested in becoming a volunteer mentor for at-risk Lubbock County youth can attend an orientation meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the University Center's Green Room.

"At-risk youth are teen-agers who have gotten in trouble probably because they do not have parental attention or have gotten caught up in peer pressure," said Ceci Lou, UC Activities adviser and coordinator for the Community Action Network.

Students Mentoring At-Risk Teens is a program sponsored by CAN and the Lubbock County Youth Center.

Tech students and their teen partners, ages 13 to 17, work together under supervision by doing community service or other activities that will help the teens adjust to being a contributing member of society.

"(Student mentors) can give (at-risk teens) the feeling that they are important and that they are not just getting blown off again," Lou said.

"We are looking for students who know that they can be good role models and students that can relate with a teenager that is going to test them."

Volunteers are asked to devote at least one to two hours a week in interactions with their teen partner for a three-month period.

"The mentors can individualize the program and schedule time that fits their needs and the needs of the youth," Lou said.

"This program is not grouped and is not structured like many other community service programs," she said.

Lou said interaction between mentors and teens should involve community service, but is not mandatory.

"Any kind of interaction with the teenager is encouraged," she said.

Helping the community in any way, such as volunteering at the South Plains Food Bank or at the Ronald McDonald House, is encouraged, Lou said.

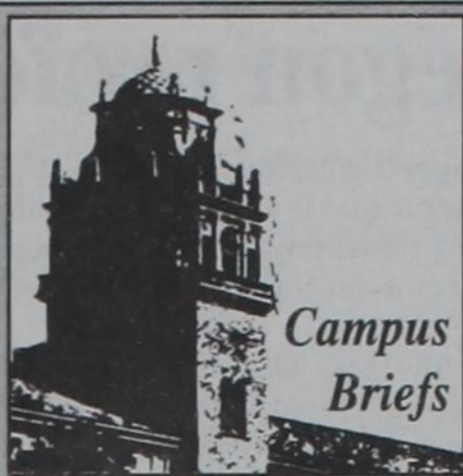

"Some of the youths are good at art so we try to do something that will encourage them to do something good with the talents they have, such as art murals or graffiti removal," she said.

Lou said a student mentor can help the youth's self-esteem.

"It lets them know that they are worth paying attention to and that they matter," she said. "Working with college students also lets them know that they can also attend college one day."

"You can make the experience what you want it to be, and make a difference in someone's life," Lou said.

Student mentors need to be at least 21 years old.

logues to represent school mascots of colleges and universities across the country. One-hundred thousand two-ounce bottles were sold last year, representing 30 colleges. The University of Michigan, Michigan State University and the University of Miami are among the colleges sold for $24 in college souvenir shops.

Federal agencies found the University of California-San Francisco at fault for discriminating against women in hiring and promotional practices in the psychology department. The United States Equal Opportunity Commission learned the university had discriminated against Lynn Ponton when she was removed from her position from the department and given a reduced her salary. Ponton filed a complaint in 1990 after she was fired and is seeking reinstatement and back pay from the university.

Five graduate engineering students at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute serve as volunteer fireman in the community in exchange for free housing. A shortage of volunteers during the past few years encouraged the students to apply for the jobs. The fire station was remodeled last year to accommodate them.

Members of the Black Student Association at the University of Oklahoma protested the school's decision not to recognize Martin Luther King Day by holding a walkout Jan. 17. The group claimed that OU did not officially recognize the holiday, and asked students not participate in classes.

A library employee at Southwest Texas State University was beaten in a library restroom as she opened the door to leave. She was hit on the head four to five times with the attacker's fists. The victim suffered cuts to the eye and nose. The suspect's photograph will be shown to the victim and other library employees.

Texas A&M University's Faculty Senate approved "Women's Week" for the spring semester. "Celebrating Women in Texas" will include seminars, speakers, art displays and cultural presentations. The week will coincide with National Women's History Month in March.

Garth doesn't want to share Doherty's image

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Jennie Garth hopes "Beverly Hills, 90210" co-star Shannen Doherty's bad-girl image doesn't rub off on her.

"I don't live Shannen's lifestyle," Garth said.

"Luke (Perry) and I were talking about it and it's scary," she said. "We want to make sure people won't think of us that way."

After reports she'd been fired, Doherty said she and producer Aaron Spelling agreed she should leave the show. But a Fox official said, "The door is open to Shannen's return."

Spotted owl topic of Oregon professor's ecology lecture

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Bob Lokey Lectureship Series in Range and Wildlife Conservation is another example of the interaction between Texas Tech and the Lubbock business world.

Lokey, a local businessman, established the lectureship through a grant to Tech's department of range and wildlife management, according to Nancy Mathews, assistant unit leader for the Texas

Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit.

The first lecture in the series will feature Oregon State University wildlife ecology professor Charles Meslow.

Mathews said Meslow was chosen after an intensive review process because he is an outstanding scientist.

"He will be talking about the biology and ecology of spotted owls, their habitat needs and the political conditions in conserving important habitats," she said. "It is a topic that is known nationwide and something we feel is important for our students to know better."

Mathews said she believes resolving the competing needs of the forest — economical versus ecological — will be a landmark issue.

"It is an issue that involves people, and it is just the first of many problems like this that are going to arise."

Meslow will present the free lecture at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the business administration building, room 67.

Mathews said Lokey's grant allows the range and wildlife department to bring three well-known speakers to the department and to the university.

"It was set aside so that we could invite renowned scientists and researchers in the area of natural resources to Texas Tech," said Fred Bryant, assistant vice provost in research services. "It is an opportunity for us to invite noted speakers to Texas Tech to give speeches on topical issues."

Mathews said Lokey established the fund because he wanted to help the department.

"When he was aware we did not have a series like this, he chose that as his cause," she said. "He created it because he is a strong believer in the types of things we do in our department and the university."

Giuliani explains difference between opera stars

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's new mayor dived into the Great Diva Debate — and, like a good politician, landed dead center.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, interviewed Saturday on the "Opera Fanatic" show on WKCR-FM, disputed host Stefan Zucker's assertion that an opera fan cannot like both Maria Callas and Renata Tebaldi.

"It's very easy to like both," Giuliani said.

Callas' voice wasn't beautiful but she was an unmatched dramatic actress, the mayor explained, while Tebaldi had a voice that was "lyrical, lovely, luscious."

John Bobbitt scheduled for paternity test under court orders

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — John Bobbitt, whose wife was recently acquitted of criminal charges after cutting off his penis, will take a blood test Monday to see if he is the father of another woman's child, his lawyer said.

Bobbitt, 26, skipped the test twice last week because the scheduling conflicted with his wife's trial in Virginia, his lawyer, Michael Iacono, said Sunday.

Lorena Bobbitt was acquitted of malicious wounding Friday and sent to a mental hospital for evaluation. Bobbitt has said he had sex with other women during his four-year marriage.

Beatrice L. Williams, 21, of Niagara Falls filed a paternity suit in October naming Bobbitt as the father of her 1-year-old son and asking for child support.

Bobbitt's lawyers have said she is lying.

Bobbitt has held a series of odd jobs since leaving the Marines. He has filed for bankruptcy and all his income goes towards his medical and legal expenses, Iacono said.

Bobbitt is under court order to submit to the tests.

The blood and DNA test results should be available in three to four weeks.

KAPLAN RULES

Both of these cost about $30 a month, but ours comes with programs you can actually use.

Cable TV. 65 channels of reruns, game shows and soap operas.

The Apple® Macintosh LC 520 now comes with seven incredibly useful programs. What a package.

Now, when you choose a qualifying Macintosh® or PowerBook® computer, you'll not only get Apple's new, lower prices. You'll also get seven popular software programs included for the same low price. These programs will help you manage your finances, schedule your time and entertain your friends (the software alone has a combined SRP of $596*). And, when you qualify for the new Apple Computer Loan, the entire package shown here costs about $30+ a month. So, for high-quality programming, turn on a Macintosh or PowerBook. It does more. It costs less. It's that simple.

Tech's Brunjes gets nod from Richards

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Gov. Ann Richards appointed Jim Brunjes, Texas Tech's vice president for administration, to the Texas Department of Information and Resources Board of Directors.

"It's a state agency that's basically responsible for computer information and acquisitions in the state," Brunjes said.

He said the board also monitors funds and makes sure Texas is using its money appropriately.

The Tech Board of Regents concurred the appointment Dec. 17 and recognized that Brunjes' two positions would not be a conflict of interest. According to the regents Dec. 17 agenda, "He will serve without compensation, but will be reimbursed for necessary travel and per diem in the performance of his duties as a member of the body to which he is appointed."

The agenda also states that Brunjes' two positions are beneficial to the state and to Tech.

According to Bullock's proposal, "Jim Brunjes will bring a breadth of theoretic knowledge and even more importantly, extensive practical experience in developing, installing and operating numerous kinds of computing and telecommunication information systems." Bullock's proposal also states, "His background in creating such systems for both state and government institutions and private industries should make him an effective member of the Board."

Bullock said he is convinced Brunjes' experience and background will assist the board in its efforts to move state government into the 21st century.

Brunjes' position at Tech includes responsibilities of strategic planning and administrative policies, as well as dispersing vice presidents' various obligations.

Action

Affirmative action audit slated

using affirmative action."

Tech's affirmative action plan is revised continuously throughout the year to accommodate changes in university employment.

Texas A&M University was audited three years ago and was found at fault by not keeping adequate employment flow.

"There was only one thing wrong with our affirmative action plan," said George Wharton, assistant executive director of Human Resources at Texas A&M. "Hires made in executive positions did not have a system to support the plan."

Immediate steps were taken to implement a revised plan for Texas A&M employees.

The University of Texas received its last review eight months ago and was found in compliance with federal regulations.

"We've had an affirmative action plan in place since 1974," said Linda Millstone, acting director of the equal employment opportunity department. "We were one of the first universities in the country to adopt such a program. I think we've been successful because we've been doing this for so long."

Tritt to host new weekly country music program

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cable channel VH-1 is launching a weekly country music program, spiced with a bit of Tritt.

Country singer Travis Tritt will be host of "VH-1 Country Countdown," starting Feb. 12. The show will be taped in cities along Tritt's national tour.

Tritt, whose most recent hit is a remake of the Eagles' "Take It Easy," will introduce videos from clubs and other sights in each city. He sometimes will be joined by other country artists.

'Simpsons' Springfield Elementary receives overwhelming votes from youngsters

Students, parents in dispute over elementary school name

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP) — Springfield Elementary seemed like a nice name for a new school. But wait a minute. Isn't that the name of Bart and

Lisa Simpson's school on "The Simpsons?" Don't have a cow, man! Given 10 choices, students who will attend the new school voted overwhelmingly last week to name the school after the Simpsons'.

School officials said they didn't realize the connection with the television show. "Quite frankly, none of us look at 'The Simpsons,' including me," said Furman Miller, spokesman for Greenwood County School District 50.

But then parents caught on, and they say Bart is a bad role model.

"He has no respect for authority, especially not school authority," said the Rev. Jonathan Payne, president of the School District 50 Joint Parent Teacher Association-Parent Teacher Organization Council.

Nonsense, it's just a nice name, argued some students. "Spring is a happy season. A school that would be a happy place to be would be Springfield Elementary school," one written suggestion said.

The parents aren't buying that. They voted

He (Bart Simpson) has no respect for authority, especially not school authority.

Rev. Jonathan Payne

Thursday to ask the district board to drop the name. The district has tentatively approved the name, but says it will accept public comments for several weeks before a final decision is made.

"We realize we run the risk of being petty," Payne said. "The name has a lot of negative connotations we feel we just don't need in our district."

Jackson to settle in sexual molestation law suit

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Michael Jackson will pay at least $10 million to settle a teen-age boy's sexual molestation lawsuit, a source said Monday.

The settlement, expected to be announced Tuesday during a hearing before Superior Court Judge David Rothman, includes a eight-figure settlement, the source told The Associated Press.

An exact amount wasn't disclosed. Recent media reports have put the amount between $5 million and $50 million.

Jackson's attorney Howard Weitzman wouldn't discuss the case.

The boy's lawyer, Larry Feldman, also declined comment.

The lawsuit claims that beginning last February Jackson plied the boy, then 13, with lavish gifts and vacations, then seduced him.

Jackson, 35, has denied the allegations. His lawyers say they were the result of a failed $20 million extortion attempt by the boy's father and lawyer.

The Los Angeles County District Attorney announced Monday that an investigation into the extortion claim was complete and no charges would be filed against boy's father or his lawyer.

There are two ongoing criminal investigations into the boy's allegations. Jackson hasn't been charged.

Prosecutors refused to comment Monday on the investigation.

An out-of-court settlement would severely damage any criminal case because under state law, a sexual abuse victim can't be forced to testify.

The civil molestation trial was scheduled to begin March 21, and Jackson faced mounting pressure to answer questions during pre-trial depositions.

Jackson abandoned his "Dangerous" world concert tour in November, saying he was addicted to prescription painkillers that he started taking after scalp surgery to repair damage caused when his hair caught on fire while filming a Pepsi commercial several years ago.

He sought treatment in Europe before returning to the United States in December.

Feldman's office filed court documents Monday which said the teen-ager's divorced parents resigned as guardians over the boy's affairs.

Retired appellate court Justice Jack Goertzen was designated to serve as the boy's guardian, the document said.

Attorney Peter Arenella of the University of California at Los Angeles Law School said the appointment of a guardian is standard in many legal proceedings.

Aikman expected to play

Dallas quarterback suffers mild concussion

IRVING (AP) — Troy Aikman, who suffered a memory-erasing concussion in Sunday's 38-21 NFC Championship victory over the San Francisco 49ers, is expected to be healthy for the Super Bowl.

"Our doctors feel good about his prospects of playing in the game on Sunday," Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple said Monday.

The Cowboys were to fly to Atlanta Monday to begin preparations for Sunday's rematch against the Buffalo Bills. The defending champions will spend Tuesday in media interviews, and their first practice was set for Wednesday at the Atlanta Falcons' practice field.

Aikman was released from Baylor Medical Center Monday morning, after spending the night as a precautionary measure.

"He suffered a mild concussion and had no neurological damage," said Dr. J.R. Zamorano, the team physician. "He had no dizziness, no headaches and no double vision. However, he couldn't remember the past. It's just a matter of time and everything will come back."

Magnetic resonance and other scans were normal, said Baylor physicians Robert Vandermeer and John Coon.

Aikman was knocked dizzy on the second play of the third quarter when he caught a knee to the helmet from 49ers defensive end Dennis Brown. Aikman spent time on the sidelines with smelling salts before the Cowboys decided to take him to the hospital. He finished the day with 14 of 18 completions for 177 yards and two touchdowns.

Aikman drove himself to Valley Ranch Monday afternoon to join the team buses leaving for the airport. He wasn't talkative with reporters and when asked how he was, Aikman smiled and said only: "Yeah, everything's fine."

When teammate Daryl Johnston asked him how he was feeling, Aikman responded: "I'm OK."

Dalrymple said Aikman is "feeling very good."

"He remembers very little from the game and had a good rest in the hospital," Dalrymple said. "He will be on our plane at 3 o'clock when it takes off and is fully prepared to participate in the week's events."

"I'm concerned about Troy, we need him," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "We started putting this team together in 1989 and anytime you have a piece of the puzzle missing it's not the same team." Bernie Kosar finished up for Aikman Sunday. Kosar took over with the score 28-14 and hit Alvin Harper with a 43-yard touchdown pass.

"Bernie came in and played super," Johnson said. "He doesn't get a lot of snaps in practice and works mostly with the scout team."

They blitzed him right away, but he made a big third down pass to Michael Irvin then hit Harper.

"We were flat after Troy went out, but Bernie held us together," he said.

Kosar was 5 of 9 for 83 yards and a touchdown.

The Cowboys beat Buffalo 52-17 in the Super Bowl at Pasadena but fell 13-10 to the Bills in the second game of the season when Emmitt Smith was involved in a contract holdout.

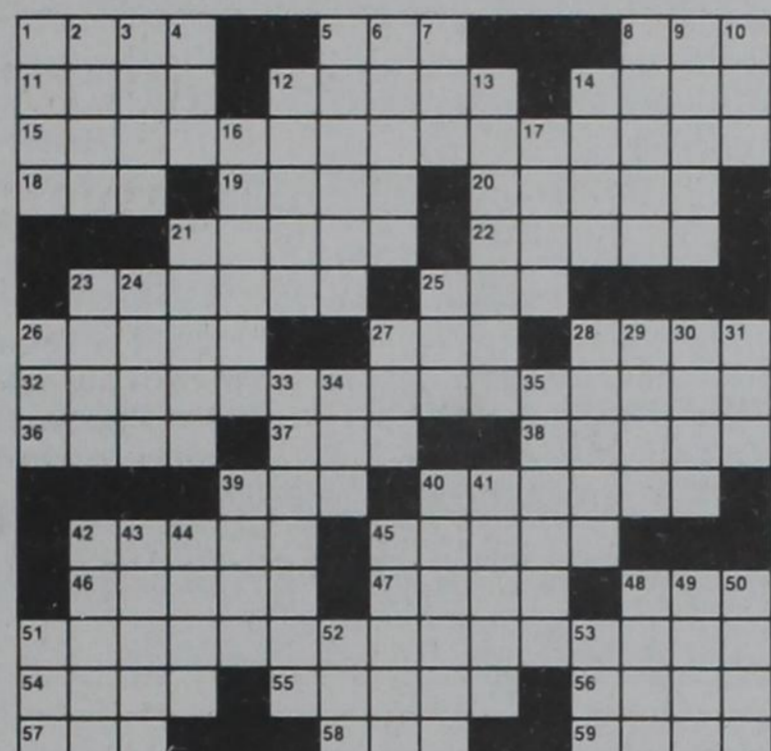

It's the first back-to-back rematch in Super Bowl history.

Dallas will be in the Super Bowl a record seventh time. The Cowboys are 3-3.

"This has been a difficult year starting out 0-2 without Emmitt Smith and with Troy's injury in the middle of the season," Johnson said. "But our team has responded. They deserve everything they receive. Going to the Super Bowl two years in a row is a result of a lot of hard work."

Raiders looking for confidence builder

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For the Texas Tech men's basketball team, tonight's game against Missouri-Kansas City may be a turning point in its season.

The Raiders (6-8, 2-2 in the SWC) need a confidence builder after Friday's 108-79 drubbing at the hands of Texas in Austin.

"We need to regroup after Friday's game and play well in order to restore some of our confidence," Tech head coach James Dickey said.

The UMKC Kangaroos (6-11) defeated the Raiders 78-70 in their last meeting Jan. 8 in Kansas City. Tipoff for today's game is slated for 7 p.m. in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Dickey's Raiders to rid themselves of the mistakes that have been hurting them in the young season. Turnovers have continued to be the major source of irritation for Dickey's Raiders thus far, hampering their efforts in several ball games.

Tech gave up a season-high 26 turnovers in Friday's game against Texas.

"Texas scored 30 points on us as a result of the turnovers," Dickey said. "I really think Texas is the best team in the league right now."

Another problem for the Raiders this season has been the inconsistency in their performance at the free-throw line. The Raiders are shooting just 61.6 percent overall as a team.

Good spots thus far for the Raiders have been the play of sophomore forward Jason Sasser. The Dallas Kimball product has scored more than 22 points per game in each of his last four outings.

Game: Missouri-KC Kangaroos vs. Texas Tech
Time: 7 p.m. Date: Tonight
Place: Lubbock Municipal Coliseum
1993-94 records: Tech 6-8 (2-2) Missouri-KC 6-11
Last Meeting: Missouri-KC won 78-70 in Kansas City on Jan. 8
Series record: Missouri-KC leads 1-0
TV/Radio: KFYO-AM 790

Sasser sports a scoring average of 25 points per game in Southwest Conference action, and is averaging 19 points a game for the rest of the season. Sasser also leads the team in rebounding, averaging 9.8 boards.

"Jason Sasser is one of the best small forwards in the country," Dickey said.

Returning as a threat for the Roos is their leading scorer, Tony Dumas.

The senior guard scored 44 points against the Raiders in their last meeting. Stopping Dumas will be a key to the Raider defensive posture tonight, according to Dickey.

"We will get to him this time and have a better awareness of where he will be," Dickey said.

After a season that has started out in a somewhat topsy turvy fashion, Dickey says the Raiders have forced themselves into a must-win situation.

"Nothing against Missouri-Kansas City and their program, but this is a game you just have to win at home," he said.

Tech falls to No. 6 in coaches' poll

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's 66-65 loss to Texas on Saturday did not drastically hamper its status in this week's Associated Press coaches poll.

The Lady Raiders only fell two spots — from No. 4 to No. 6 in the poll voted on by women's basketball coaches. Tech ranks behind Penn State, Tennessee, Colorado, Iowa and North Carolina.

"This team has done a pretty good job of answering the challenges at this point," Tech head coach Marsha Sharp said Monday. "I don't think we answered the challenge on Saturday."

Tech has a 15-2 record, with a 3-1 mark in the Southwest Conference play, and now has a week off before their game against the Rice Owls Saturday in Houston.

"We seem to be a lot closer team this year," Sharp said.

"Our chemistry is not near as good as it was last year at this time. We have six new players and they are so much a part of what we are doing. It's been a little frustrating, but we are not near where it needs to be yet."

The Lady Raiders led most of Saturday's game against the Lady Longhorns, but free throws down the stretch hampered Tech.

"The thing that concerns me is how we will respond," Sharp said. "The key now is to use it in a positive matter. We have a week to get things back into perspective."

Tech shot 43.3 percent from the field against UT, but hit just 5 of 11 shots from the charity stripe with some key free throw misses in the last 1:18 of Saturday's game.

The 45.5 percent shooting performance from the free-throw line was Tech's lowest of the season.

"We still had an opportunity at the end, but missed three front ends of one-and-ones," Sharp said of Noel Johnson, Janice Farris and Connie Robinson missing free throws at the end of Saturday's game. "I would still put those three at the line anytime and have the ball in their hands."

Lady Raider notes

• LeKisha Wiley had back-to-back double figure games for the first time in her Lady Raider career last week and captured the Whataburger/Texas Tech Player of the Week honor.

Wiley, who has hit nine of her last 16 three-point tries, had 11 points against SMU and 12 against Texas. Wiley has converted on 7-of-15 shots from the field and dished out nine assists.

• Tech's streak of 96 consecutive games of shooting 50 percent or better from the foul line ended in the Frank Erwin Center Saturday.

The Lady Raiders misfired on their final three attempts. Tech, which missed five of its last seven bonus tries, was last held under 50 percent by Houston on Jan. 19, 1991. Tech won 69-68.

Family builds Lego football stadium

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Travis Griggs, a big fan of the Super Bowl-bound Dallas Cowboys, and his sons, Dakota, 5, and Dalton, 3, spent 10 hours and used 1,800 Legos to build a 25-by-30-inch football stadium.

The stadium is adorned in the blue and gray of Griggs' team, the Cowboys, and the red and brownish gold of San Francisco, the team Dallas beat 38-21 Sunday to advance to the Super Bowl.

"I am a die-hard Cowboys fan," he said. "I'm doing everything I can to cheer them on."

Griggs and his wife, Cheryl, bought the Legos for their sons for Christmas. Since then, the whole family has been hooked.
