Reporters may face legal action

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — As Egypt's battle with Muslim radicals intensifies, the Interior Ministry warned on Tuesday of possible legal action against foreign reporters over what it considers overblown coverage of extremist attacks.

The warning underscores Egypt's effort to reassure tourists about the country's safety following radical threats against foreign tourists and investors.

Tourism has been hard hit by the militants' fight to replace Egypt's secular government with strict Islamic rule. Nearly 300 people have died in extremist-related violence in the past two years.

A small bomb exploded in the Alexandria-Kuwait bank in Cairo Tuesday.

Jackson found innocent in 'Dangerous' case

DENVER (AP) — For the second time in as many months, Michael Jackson was exonerated Tuesday in a lawsuit that accused him of stealing someone else's song.

It took a U.S. District Court jury 3 1/2 hours to find Jackson innocent of copyright infringement for his hit "Dangerous," as the Denver songwriter, Crystal Cartier, alleged in a lawsuit.

Cartier said Jackson stole her song after hearing a demonstration tape. She said she wrote it in 1985, revised it a few years later, copyrighted it in fall 1991 and gave a tape of it to a Jackson aide in 1988.

Jackson took the stand Monday and testified that he wrote "Dangerous" in 1990 while listening to the bass track from another of his songs. He said no one helped him write it and denied ever hearing Cartier's song before she filed her lawsuit.

State touts video job hunting tools

AUSTIN (AP) — People around Texas will be able to get state employment information at shopping malls and grocery stores through touch-activated video screens in a pilot program that's being touted by Gov. Ann Richards.

The Texas Employment Commission and California-based North Communications plan to put in 50 kiosks with screens over the next three months. Fifteen will be placed in the next few days in Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, McAllen, Port Arthur and Tyler.

"Info-Texas will help connect Texans who are still looking for work to the jobs that can make a difference to them and to their families and to our economy," Richards said Tuesday.

The kiosks — which combine elements of the computer, television and automated teller machines — use video and graphics to provide TEC information and services. They can be used in Spanish or English.

Time to focus on campaign, not trial, senator says

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison spoke to supporters in Lubbock Wednesday and said she is ready to get past her trial and move forward with her Senate campaign.

Hutchison was acquitted of charges brought against her by Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle for using her position as state treasurer for personal gains and then attempting to cover her crimes.

"I'm your United States senator today and proud of it," Hutchison said. "And I want to start talking about the issues people care about."

Hutchison said she has been overwhelmed with support from her family and the public.

The criminal justice system should not be allowed to interfere with the political system, she said.

The indictment against her was part of the "worst political treachery" she has seen in her lifetime, Hutchison said.

"My family and I have had a rough eight months but I am better for it," she said. "I can take the worst the political system has to offer."

Ethical guidelines for state public officials need to be properly defined, Hutchison said.

"Right now we have a situation where the ethics laws are very vague," she said. "We want strong ethics laws but they must be reasonable."

Ethics will be a strong part of her campaign, Hutchison said.

One of her legislative priorities is getting Congress to cut its budget by 7.5 percent after she cut her own personal budget by more than 20 percent, Hutchison said.

Hutchison also said she co-sponsored a bill allowing homemakers and salary workers to set aside an equal amount of money for retirement.

Salary workers are allowed to set aside $2,000, while homemakers can only set aside $250 for each retirement savings opportunity, she said.

Hutchison also spoke against the United States involvement in Bosnia and against Clinton's health care program.

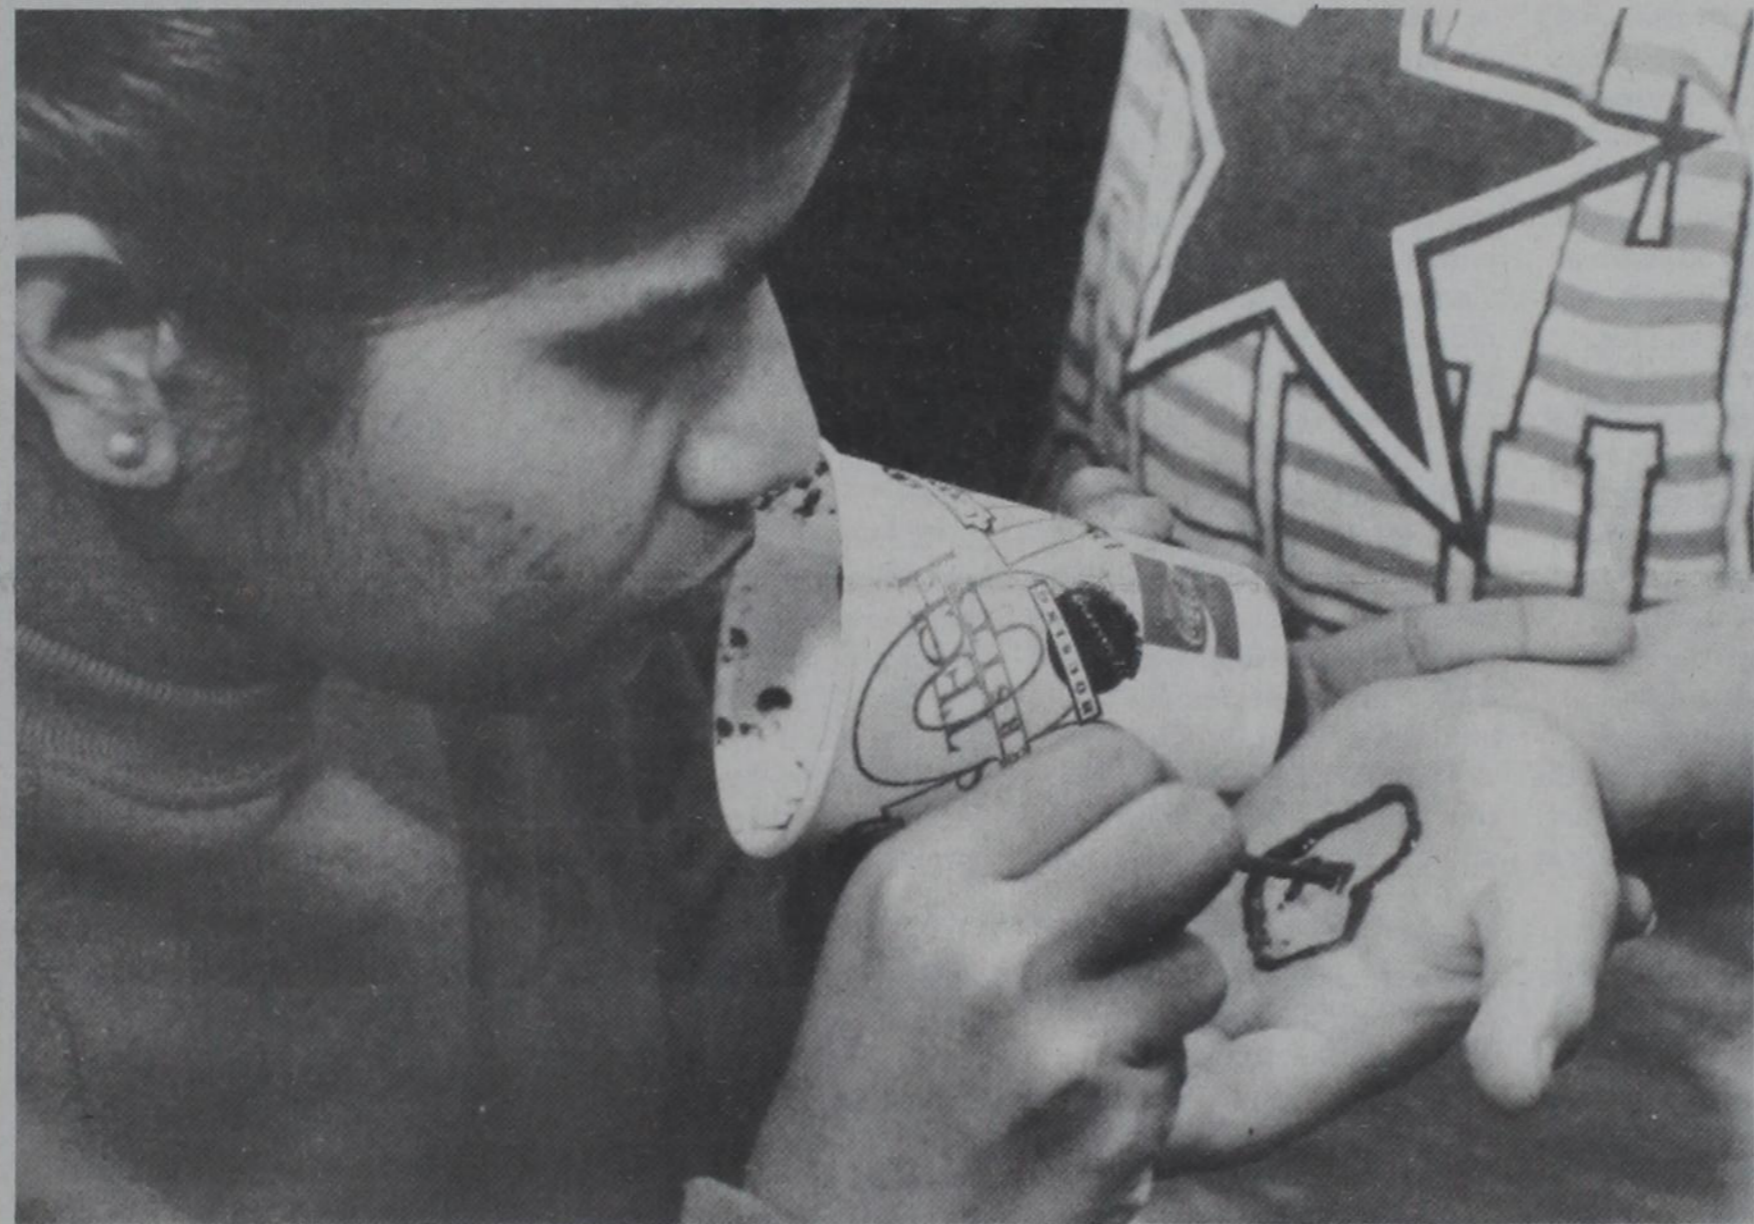

"I fail to see any compelling national security interest in Bosnia that would justify jeopardizing a single American life," she said.

Search ends

Four candidates named for dean of Texas Tech's College of Education

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Four candidates for the dean of Texas Tech's College of Education have been named, ending a nationwide search that began last year.

"We have a short list of four people that we have invited to campus for interviews," said Martin Harms, dean of the College of Architecture and search committee coordinator. "However, we have not contacted the applicants we have chosen and confirmed their acceptance for an interview yet."

Various members of the search committee solicited names through education faculty members and made contacts across the country. Advertisements also were placed in the Chronicle for Higher Education, Harms said.

"We sent letters to about 700 schools," he said. "It was a nationwide search. I don't think there were many schools east or west that didn't receive an inquiry."

Search committee members include College of Education and College of Arts and Sciences faculty members.

"There were certain criteria listed for what type of person we were looking for to fill this position," Harms said. "There were specific qualifications but no tight requirements."

Applicants are expected to be experienced in undergraduate and graduate levels of education, in providing leadership in the form of development in teacher education programs in field-based situations and in professional schools and in understanding the role of research in the college.

Individuals also are expected to meet the demands of constant changes and reform in the education field, to build support and external funding for endowment and to be able to work with others of diverse backgrounds.

Harms said the committee received about 46 applicants.

"We've been very pleased with the quality of the applications," he said. "The four people we have

Task force members delving into diversity

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

While the discussion about a multiculturalism course requirement remains a hot topic for Texas Tech students, faculty members and administrators, a task force is waging a war against discrimination and misunderstanding on campus.

The Human Relations Task Force, formed last year after racial tensions were sparked on campus because of a fraternity party, is inviting representatives from every campus organization to attend a roundtable discussion on the state of diversity at Tech.

The discussion is at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the electrical engineering building's Bullen Room.

"We would really like to help the organizations to work together and solve problems together," said task force member Michael Turner.

"I think the focus of the roundtable should be on how alike we are, not how different."

Task force member Jeremy Fielder said the roundtable is a chance for organizations that represent all the cultures on campus to express their views to Tech leaders.

"(A representative) can express their views or what needs to be done and maybe another representative can add a different perspective," he said. "They can also give us direction on where we can go with (diversity) programs at Tech."

Fielder said the roundtable will give groups with few members a chance to

Mickey Mouse gets human canvas on Tech student

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Look up Mickey Mouse in the Lubbock phone book and you'll get the phone number of Texas Tech student Kirk DeVore.

With 25 Mickey Mouse tattoos on his body, the name apparently is well deserved.

"When I was young, my granddad took me to Disney World and I remember having a good time and seeing Mickey," DeVore said.

"I've always had Mickey Mouse stuff."

At 18, he got his first tattoo — of Mickey Mouse juggling peace symbols — on his upper right arm.

Two weeks later, he got his second tattoo, a 1938 version of Mickey in a tuxedo.

"The feeling you get after you get a tattoo is like no other feeling," DeVore said. "The rush from the adrenaline is so high."

DeVore said his favorite tattoo is one of Walt Disney. The tattoo is just under his right shoulder blade and is a portrait of the Disney founder.

"I have respect for Walt Disney. He made Mickey Mouse," DeVore said. "He didn't create all the other characters. He had help with them, but he didn't create them. Plus, he made a lot of money."

On his left thigh, he has what he calls a Mickey Mouse abstract, which took seven and a half hours to draw and ink.

Dan Long, a body piercer at Tigger's Body Art in Dallas, has watched DeVore get several of his tattoos.

"His tattoos are cool, if you like Mickey Mouse," Long said.

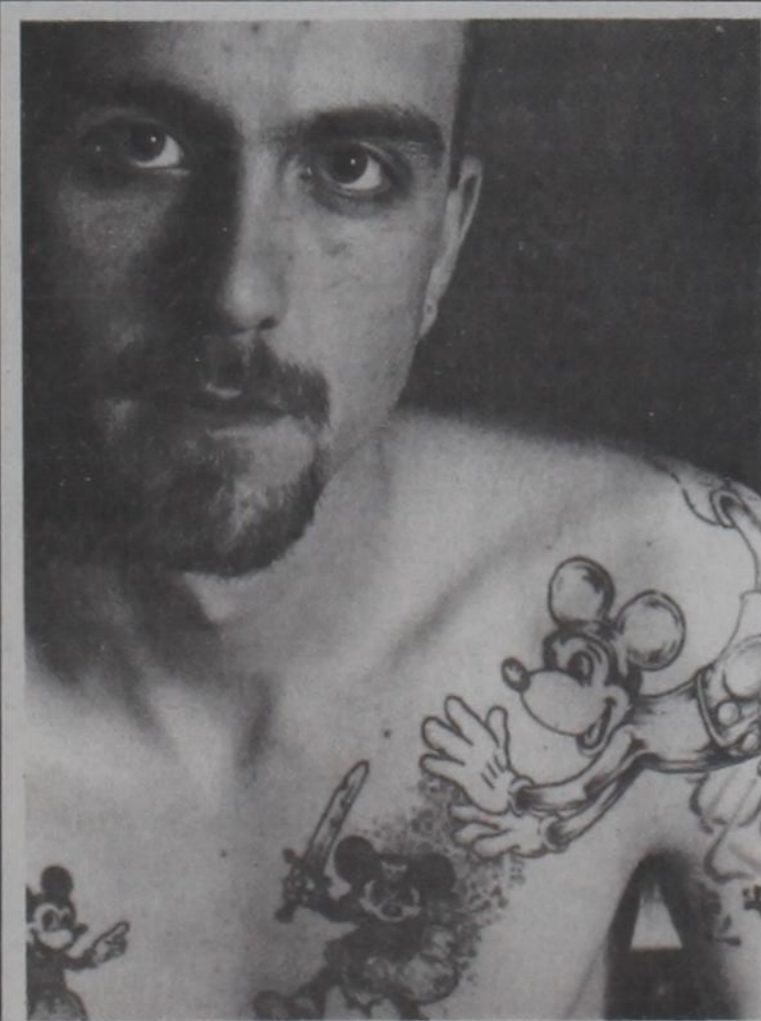

Other designs DeVore has on his body include a Mickey Mouse drawn in the style of artist M.C. Escher, comic and tragic Mickeys, a dancing Mickey and a Mickey raking leaves.

"I can't (get a tattoo that isn't Mickey), it'd be sacrilegious in a way," DeVore said.

When DeVore goes in to get a tattoo, he said he talks about his ideas with the artists.

"Let the artists take control. Give him the basics, your ideas and the colors you want," DeVore said. "If you

AROUND THE STATE...

The Dallas Morning News on Hutchison trial:

As it turned out, the trial of Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison was over as soon as it began. In an abrupt turn of events, state Judge John Onion issued a directed verdict that not only ended the current trial on ethics charges, but meant the Texas senator could not be retried on the same charges.

Although the tangle of legal procedures may be difficult to sort out, several political realities were clear. For Sen. Hutchison, it was the political equivalent of winning the Super Bowl before taking the field. She has earned admiration for standing firm. It should dramatically boost her political fortunes.

For Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, the dismissal was a major disappointment. His competence as a prosecuting attorney is now in question, as it should be. How could an experienced prosecutor bungle the acquisition of evidence in such a high-profile case?

Mr. Earle, of course, says he had no choice but to drop his case. Technicalities were against him, he says.

But after dragging Sen. Hutchison's reputation through the mud, and allowing Texas' Washington reputation to suffer, he couldn't deliver. ...

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Hutchison trial:

Justice was savaged in the stark denouement that shocked a Tarrant County courtroom yesterday in the abrupt conclusion of the trial of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

A directed verdict of acquittal on charges of state ethics violations smashed the last feeble, tottering underpinnings of a bungled prosecution that squandered time, money and diminished public faith in a system of justice free of the corrupting infestation of rank politics.

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle and his team of prosecutors were unceremoniously vanquished by their own errors. Now Earle has before him a solemn duty to make an accounting to the people of Texas. ...

Earle's record of securing convictions for official misconduct under his Public Integrity Unit is spotty. In high-profile cases, he failed to indict former Comptroller Bob Bullock and lost at trial against former Attorney General Jim Mattox. Former Speaker Gib Lewis pleaded to a misdemeanor.

If ethics laws are so difficult to enforce, the Legislature should draft new ones that are clear and tough and have sufficient teeth to allow effective prosecution of offenders. ...

The News Messenger (Marshall) on Hutchison trial:

The bizarre ending last week to the trial of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison serves only to keep her career in limbo.

She was accused by fellow Republicans in the Texas treasurer's office she held at the time of using her staff and equipment, especially telephones and computers, for the benefit of her election campaign.

Due to some fantastic legal maneuvering, Judge John F. Onion Jr. ordered a jury to find Hutchison innocent of the ethics violations charges. District Attorney Ronnie Earle decided against pursuing the prosecution when it became apparent that he couldn't get Onion to rule before the trial on whether evidence — computer records — would be found admissible.

The evidence has been seized from the treasurer's office without a search warrant.

Hutchison's supporters are claiming exoneration on the verge of the party primary election.

They sweep aside the fact that Earle wasn't making up these allegations up from thin air, that two grand juries felt there was sufficient reason to indict the senator, and that the "innocent" verdict comes not from an objective trial involving the evidence, but from sharp legal maneuvering.

The allegations will continue to cling to Sen. Hutchison like hair spray. ...

Music shooting star Jackson falls with fans

Frank Rich

During the brief vogue for the movie "Indecent Proposal" last year, couples nationwide argued about whether it was right for a woman to sleep with Robert Redford in exchange for a million bucks.

My wife and I never resolved this issue — we wouldn't mind a house in the country, actually — but since the offer wasn't on our table, we pressed on.

Yet until the nasty whispers started spreading, few debated the wisdom of real-life parents who turned over their children to Michael Jackson in exchange for shopping sprees at Toys 'R' Us, special Disneyland tours and overnights at Neverland Ranch, a sort of Playboy Mansion for tots.

Jackson, by far a bigger star than Robert Redford, couldn't possibly be up to no good.

Star worship is the real story in the Jackson case. Americans of all stations are infatuated with the rich and famous, and the most rabid fans will surrender almost anything — from their money to their dignity, principles and children — to brush vicariously against their idols.

The weirder Jackson's public persona, the more famous he became and the larger the rewards he received.

As a young pop performer who looked like any other wholesome child star, he was merely another show-biz celebrity. As a man in his 30s with a crotch-clutching MTV pose, a cosmetically rearranged face, unnaturally chalky skin and a personality so androgynous that even Ru Paul might find it a bit much, he was our Sun King.

From the president on down, few could resist sharing his spotlight. Only a year ago Clinton beamed into the television cameras at an inaugural gala with Jackson on one side and his daughter, Chelsea, on the other. It was also a year ago that Jackson was given center stage at an American institution even more popular than the presidency, the Super Bowl, where he cavorted for 91 million viewers at halftime.

Jackson is a talented performer, but it's hard to imagine that either Bill Clinton or a typical football fan sits around listening to "Dangerous."

The reflected glory of fame, even when reflected on the already celebrated, is the drawing card, and no one seems immune to it.

After Jackson was embroiled in scandal, he spent New Year's hanging around with Michael Milken, the star felon of the 1980s, at the Treasure Island resort in Las Vegas; the fallen junk bond prince, looking as always for public-relations redemption, had allied himself with Jackson to create an educational cable network for the nation's kids.

A week later, and less than three weeks before Jackson bought his way out of the civil case, the NAACP Image Awards gave him a prestigious platform from which to declare his innocence.

Once Jackson settled out of court and threw his innocence into question, his fame reached new heights. Instead of just sharing the spotlight with the president, he upstaged him.

As startled news junkies discovered Tuesday night, "Nightline" bumped the State of the Union address for a dissection of the Jackson case.

An apologetic Ted Koppel, not previously known as a devotee of pop culture, exclaimed: "After you strip away the sleaze, there are still a couple of issues worth talking about."

Maybe. But, those issues, legal and psychological, are secondary to the apparently irresistible pull of Jackson's fame. Watching his story unfold, I couldn't help but think of John Guare's "Six Degrees of Separation," in which wealthy Manhattanites are so enamored of celebrity that they turn over their homes to a con man who purports to be Sidney Poitier's son and promises them a role in the movie of "Cats."

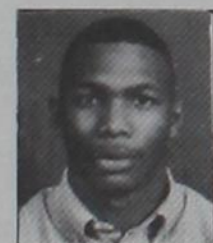

Now that the 14-year-old son of a "Beverly Hills dentist and part-time screenwriter" has hit a jackpot large enough to finance his own "Cats" after allegedly sharing a bed with Jackson, Guare's satire seems tame.

As Susan Estrich, a USC law professor, put it in one of the countless discussions I guiltily devoured on CNN, the Jackson story "leaves everyone wanting to take a shower, quite frankly."

But what leaves everyone feeling soiled may not be just the ambiguous relationship between Jackson and his young playmate but the unambiguously titillating relationship between this fallen star and ourselves.

Dependency on government subsidies halting minority advancement

KENNETH BOBO

The Clinton Administration has floated the idea of placing taxes on welfare entitlements including food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). Wow! That takes guts. This is a reform that is very interesting in its seemingly cruel nature. But it is necessary to review our current system. Welfare and like entitlements have created a dependent class that has ballooned since LBJ's Great Society.

There is a whole segment of the American population that feels the government should be the source of supplemental income. Granted, there should be some safety net for people. And, children do deserve special consideration.

But no one should be born with the trait of governmental dependence.

Thirty years ago, Malcolm X warned that the biggest evil being perpetuated on the "American Negro" is the attempt by white liberals to make blacks dependent on the "establishment."

His words have proven prophetic. Democrats proposed the idea of our modern welfare system in the '60s as their fulfilling of the "40 Acres and A Mule" doctrine of Reconstruction days.

This "generosity" has become a malignancy that has spread rampantly during the past 25 years.

Republican elitism has not allowed the GOP to court the citizens who are below the poverty line. They seem to just want to cut welfare immediately and be done with it. They hold on to the notion that "McDonald's is always hiring" and walk away from the problem.

A 10-year incremented reform process would be effective. Every two years of the plan there should be a 10 percent cut of welfare payouts. By fiscal year 2005, the welfare system would be cut by 50 percent of today's cost.

This is of course a simplified version of my plan that would be weakened with our current American bureaucracy.

Radical? Yes, this system will really hurt for a while, and it would adversely affect American minorities in the short term. But what is the cycle of dependency doing to us hyphenated Americans now?

The Clinton Administration's idea of taxing the poor really wouldn't make sense considering that it's an attempt to tax the money that you've raised from taxes, so a good constitutional lawyer could kill the bill before it reached the House of Representatives. Symbolic speech and utopian ideas are not applicable in this system. There will always be the poor in a capitalistic society.

True resolution of the problem of welfare rests in the hands of the poor themselves.

The inborn trait of dependence mentioned earlier can only be overcome by a moral and philosophical enlightenment within the American lower class. This includes inner cities and rural areas that feel they are entitled by their birth to be taken care of by the state. It's a matter of values that should remain separate from politics. There must be a stronger sense of responsibility and a larger sense of individualism in order to break the ties of government dependency. They need to adapt or learn Darwinistic theory.

I believe the first party to actively deliver the message of self sufficiency will be surprised by the numbers of impoverished that will listen. History tells us that the poor don't stand for being poor for long.

Changes may be in store for Hub City's H<sub>2</sub>O

by CHRISTY EVERETT
AND MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The taste of Lubbock's drinking water could be improved with the help of two new desalinization projects in the West Texas area.

"The problem with the water in this area of Texas stems from the salt formations that originate in New Mexico and run through the Logan Dam and into Lake Meredith," said Terry Ellerbrook, interim director of Lubbock's Water Utilities. "Water seeps from the river into the lake and brings the salt with it into water sources."

Ellerbrook said officials have been working for years to correct the problem.

"We can't remove the salt from the water, but we can conceivably improve the treatment process and improve the taste," he said. "We can't remove anything that's already been dissolved in the water."

Lubbock's Water Utilities treats water by adding chlorine, by adding aluminum sulfate to help dirt and other particles settle to the bottom and by adding chlorine again.

"The water we produce meets all state and federal regulations," he said. "It's safe to drink. It's just a little salty."

The first desalinization project will control salinity by drilling wells to lower pressure in river aquifers which will reduce the flow of salt into water sources.

The second project proposed will blend groundwater with river water.

"We will drill several wells in the area and then drill a pipeline back to the main source that originates about 15 miles north of Pampa," said Kent Satterwhite, assistant general manager of the Canadian River Water Authority.

Although two test wells already have been drilled, the project still needs approval from 11 cities of the Canadian River Water Authority.

"We're working very hard to get high quality water for this area," he said.

If the project receives funding, wells should be in place next year. Computer models already are being used to determine where the wells should be drilled.

"Desalinization projects have been in Congress for many years and it's something that the 11 cities of the South Plains can be proud of giving their support to," said Keith Williams, press secretary for U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock. "It's been a partnership in planning and working together from the very beginning."

Bottled, flavored water matter of taste

Minerals in tap water may serve as good dietary source, prof says

by MEGAN CLARK
AND CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Although many consider bottled water to be healthier than regular tap water, the difference may be only in the taste.

Katherine Chauncey, a registered dietitian and an assistant professor in Texas Tech's department of family medicine, said she believes it is important for students to drink at least eight glasses of water a day.

"It is important for weight loss and for the body to excrete metabolic waste through the kidneys," she said. "It also helps to keep the body's temperature at actual rate."

Chauncey said she believes most public water supplies are safe and said there is some fraudulent activity occurring in the bottled water industry concerning safety.

"I believe the public water supply is safe," she said. "They can find bottled water that tastes better, but as far as being healthier, I don't think it really is."

A high mineral content in the water supply may benefit the body as a good dietary source.

"In Europe, it is common for people to buy bottled water for minerals," Chauncey said. "In America, we buy it to get away from having minerals in the water."

Lisa Prats, vice president of the International Bottled Water Association, said she believes there are three major factors involved in the increase in bottled water sales.

"Many consumers have concerns over the safety of their tap water," she said. "When buying bottled water, they are assured of a high quality product."

Taste and lifestyle changes, including healthier eating habits and more exercise, have helped bottled water become one of the fastest growing beverages.

Prats said bottled water is tested at the site of the source and throughout the bottling process.

"There are stringent regulations for the processing of bottled water," she said. "Anyone concerned with the quality of their tap water and looking for a beverage with no calories should purchase bottled water."

said that in this part of the country, bottled water is a staple of most grocery lists.

"We have many different kinds of bottled water and flavored waters available in our stores," he said. "The drinking water is too hard here and people that were not raised in this area buy a lot of bottled water."

Paul Parks, a senior math major from Lubbock, said he prefers buying bottled water.

"I don't like the taste of Lubbock water," he said. "When I buy bottled water, I don't have to worry about the minerals and it cleanses my body."

Katrina Wilson, a junior math major from Amarillo, said she prefers water from the tap.

"I think it's pretty safe and the taste doesn't really bother me," she said.

Alcohol leads to increase in AIDS, study says

CHICAGO (AP) — Heterosexual problem drinkers had a much higher rate of HIV infection than other heterosexuals, suggesting the need for AIDS prevention as part of alcohol abuse programs, a new study said.

Among 860 heterosexuals tested at five public alcohol treatment centers in San Francisco, 3 percent of men and 4 percent of women who had not injected drugs had HIV, researchers said Tuesday.

"These rates may not appear to be particularly high, but when one considers that the HIV prevalence among heterosexual men and women in general in San Francisco is only a small fraction of 1 percent, they are disturbing figures," said the lead researcher, Dr. Andrew L. Avins.

"Interventions to prevent HIV spread should become a standard part of alcohol treatment programs," Avins said.

Photos offer glimpse of early Turkish civilization

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Photos of fairy chimneys, monasteries and underground cities are part of an exhibit complementing Texas Tech's International Week.

The exhibit, titled "Living with History: The Architectural Heritage of Anatolia," will be open to the public for the next two weeks in the architecture building's gallery.

The photographs feature the region of Anatolia in Turkey, which forms a natural bridge between Asia and Europe.

"It is an exhibit on the architectural heritage of Anatolia," said Zafer Erturk, photographer and principal organizer of the exhibit. "Anatolia has one of the richest architectural heritages of the world.

"All of these (photographs) are from that region," he said. "This area is, in a sense, the cradle of civilization."

Erturk, an architect and professor at Karadeniz Technical University in Turkey, said he began taking photographs as a hobby about 15 years ago.

He said he wanted people to know what kind of historical environment in which the people of Anatolia live.

"I'm very interested in the history of architecture, especially historical monuments and reconstructions," Erturk said. "Another interest of mine is how we use design principles of the past in new architecture and new creations."

Jimmy Davis, chairman of the Special Programs Committee and associate professor of architecture, said, "There is a really rich mix of cultural background and heritage and that is reflected through the architecture.

"By observing the architecture, you can see the historical progress," he said.

Davis said the exhibit was arranged in conjunction with International Week.

"It is for students interested in both architectural history and history in general," he said. "The exhibit gives students a much broader view of that region—how it has been influenced by all the different cultures throughout history and how it can be an influence to contemporary architecture."

Davis said the exhibit should be of interest to a broad spectrum.

"It is not just for architecture students or art students," he said. "You can appreciate this on many different levels."

make a difference.

"By doing this, we can let organizations that think they have no say or no vehicle to get their points across a chance to do so," he said. "And also give them opportunity and enthusiasm to get their two cents worth in."

Task force member Donna Anderson said the task force serves as a liaison between students and Tech's Dean of Students Office.

Anyone is invited to attend the roundtable, Turner said.

The task force is looking for a few more members.

"They need to be dedicated, open-minded and willing to give a lot of time and effort," he said.

Interested students can call Associate Dean of Students Joshua Mora at 742-2192.

Computers available at Tech for graduate school test

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech students planning to attend graduate school soon will have the option to take the Graduate Record Exam on a computer because of a proposed restructuring of the testing process.

Graduate School Associate Dean Monty Strauss attended the Council of Graduate Schools' Deember meeting in Washington, D.C., and said a GRE reconstruction should be completed by 1997.

"It is being redone so that it may be a better indicator of the individual's probable success in graduate school," Strauss said.

"They have a testing center here," he said. "Students now have the option to take the test on the computer with an extra $40."

Strauss said the new computer system is able to eliminate the waiting period and the registration process, and said that, while the exam normally is given six times a year, it could be given three times a week on computer.

"Students can call a 1-800 number in New Jersey with their credit card number and register to take the test next week," Strauss said.

Other computerized testing benefits include getting a score instantly and having scores sent to recipients within 10 to 15 days after the test.

Graduate School Associate Dean Thomas Langford also attended the meeting and said he believes students only will be able to take the computerized GRE once a year.

Langford also said a writing sample section was proposed to be included in the test's restructuring.

"The student's writing ability could be judged more," he said.

The three parts of the GRE will be replaced with six to eight parts in which students will choose only three.

"There is a myth abroad that the graduate school uses the GRE to exclude applicants," Langford said. "This is only one thing used for admission purposes."

"We don't and never have used the GRE as a sole criteria for admission," he said.

chosen are of exceptionally high quality."

The prospective deans will be making a trip to Tech to tour the campus and to meet with the education faculty members and with administrators. Candidates also will meet with deans from Tech's other colleges.

"There has been no set itinerary yet and we are not sure when the candidates will be making their visit," Harms said. "That's really the big question, busy schedules pose the biggest problem."

The goal for the search committee includes having a dean chosen and working by next semester.

"We are on a fairly good schedule right now," Harms said. "I think we've done a good job."

ZZ Top tour to kick off in spring

SCOTT SPARKS

Janet Jackson's tour troubles keep cropping up and are making her cancel concerts. This tour has taken a toll on Jackson.

In December, she had to cancel shows, including stops in Texas, because of the flu. Two dates at the end of January were scrapped after back pain became too intense for her to do her show.

Keep in mind that a Janet Jackson show consists of 90 minutes of highly choreographed dances and, of course, singing. Her physician has prescribed rest, but that will have to wait until the end of the tour. For now, it's a day-to-day proposition.

Miscellaneous: Everybody seems to be doing a cover album and you can put Duran Duran into this category as well. The difference here is that the band will take a few risks with song choices. Rumored to be on the CD are Elvis Costello's "Watching the Detectives" and Public Enemy's "911 is a Joke".... Even without his mustache, Alan Jackson is one of the hottest country acts on the road. He pulls in an average of $200,000 a show.... "The Dirty Dancing" soundtrack from 1987 has just gone over the 11 million mark in sales.... ZZ Top's tour will start this spring. The line forms behind me for tickets.... "With Honors," the new movie with Joe Pesci, will have a pretty good soundtrack with the Pretenders, Belly, and the like.... Slayer has a new drummer and a new record in the works. Expect the CD and accompanying tour this summer or fall.... The backing vocalists for Peter Gabriel's "In Your Eyes," Youssou N'Dour, will have a new album in April and Neneh Cherry makes a guest appearance on it.... April will bring Crowded House back to Texas for three dates: Houston, Austin and Dallas.... Robert Smith, leader of the Cure, loves to pick weeds out of his garden in his time off. Whatever... Pearl Jam will get back out on stage at Denver's Paramount on March 6. No Texas shows have been scheduled as of yet.... Be sure to register so you'll be able to vote in the primaries.... If I was a betting man, I would bet on Bruce Springsteen to win the Oscar for "Streets of Philadelphia".... You should have the new Smithereens in time for summer at the beach or pool.... This week back in 1978, A & M Records signed The Police.

Ticket sales slow for Jackson concert

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Jackson Five used to croon "I'll Be There," but these days, the fans might not be.

Prices for mid-level ticket to Saturday's "Jackson Family Honors" concert at the 15,200-seat MGM Grand Hotel arena are being cut because of lagging sales.

All the Jacksons are expected to appear except for La Toya Jackson, who is estranged from the family. Michael Jackson is not scheduled to perform solo, but will present awards to actress Elizabeth Taylor and Motown records founder Berry Gordy.

Tickets that were originally $350 and $200 have been reduced to $150, $100 and $50. Anyone who has paid the higher price may receive a partial refund.

John George, a spokesman for Jackson Communications Inc., said Tuesday that tickets originally priced at $150 and less have sold out.

Tickets for $1,000 and $500 will benefit charities, including Los Angeles earthquake relief funds.

The concert will air live on television in 28 countries and in an edited form on NBC Tuesday.

Musical retells life of Christ

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech University Theatre's debut of 'Cotton Patch Gospel' aims to give audience members a chance to re-examine Jesus as a real man.

Set in rural Georgia, this toe-tapping musical is a retelling of the Gospel according to Matthew and John.

Performances are every night today through Saturday at 8 p.m., with a 2 p.m. Sunday matinee. The play also will be performed Feb. 24-27.

Participants in the play say they hope that featuring the blue grass quartet from South Plains College in the production will lend a uniqueness to the musical comedy.

'The show has also been called the 'greatest story ever re-told,'" said Eric Smith, a senior theater arts major from Wake Village. 'They (audience) are going to see this version of Christ in a way that they are going to be touched.'

The cast believes the audience will not be offended by the show, but instead will gain knowledge of the Bible.

'I hope the audience will get a renewed interest in the life of Christ,' said Ginny Davis, a graduate theater major from Huntsville.

The show is not performed in a preaching manner, but is upbeat and a real people-pleaser for the community, said Traci Brown, a senior theater arts major from Denver City. Cast members say the play brings a new light to the Gospel.

The play has 45 characters, and 14 actors play three or more characters.

'I hope those who see it have as much fun with it as we have,' Brown said.

The cast has discussed the possibility that some audience members may get offended.

'It first entertains,' said Adam Beckworth, a freshman theater major from Memphis. 'If you choose to pull a message out of it then do so, but we are not trying to push things on people.'

Last week, the theater department invited clergy members from the community to view the play and give some input.

'We received an overwhelming approval of the play from them,' said Director Don Hebert, a doctoral student in theater arts.

let the artist go with it, you'll get a better tattoo and a lot better artwork.'

He said he never gets tattoos below his mid-thigh or mid-upper arm, or above his collar line.

'I'll never get anything on my face, if you do you'll never get a job again,' DeVore said. 'One day I'll have to work somewhere.'

'Not knowing what I'll have to do later in life is the reason I've kept them (above the mid-thighs and arms),' Long said. 'The last place I'd tattoo is my lower arms. Plus, when I go over to Grandma's house, I don't want her to have a heart attack.'

Tattoos aren't the only way DeVore has chosen to express himself. He has four earrings in his right ear, two in his left ear and one in his tongue.

He first pierced his right ear when he was 16, and in 1992 he pierced his tongue.

'It hurts less than getting your ears pierced,' DeVore said.

Long and DeVore have both done body piercing, including nipples, cheeks, lips, noses, genitals and belly buttons.

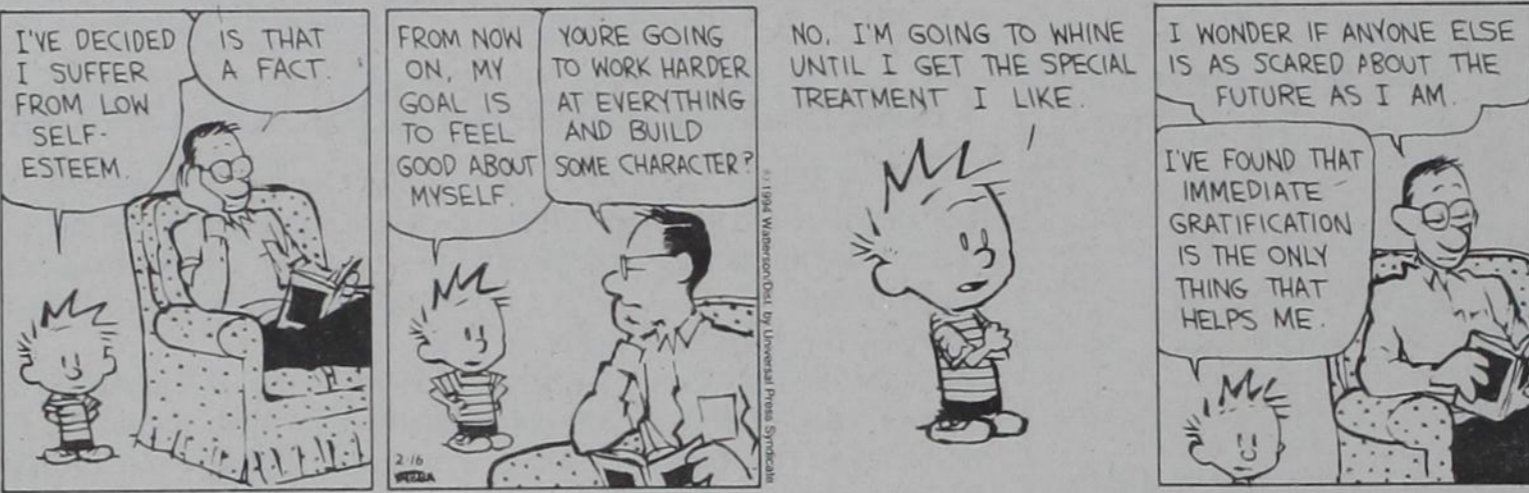

'Belly buttons are the most popular right now, thanks to the Aerosmith video,' Long said.

DeVore has some advice for those considering getting a tattoo.

'Make sure it fits you because it's going to be there forever,' he said.

Tech netters face Arkansas in four match road trip

After suffering its first conference loss Saturday to Texas Christian, the Texas Tech men's tennis team now must face Arkansas, the 20th-ranked team in the nation, during a four-game road trip.

Tech plays Tulsa today, Oklahoma on Friday and Oklahoma State on Saturday.

The Arkansas match is slated for Sunday.

Tech's top singles netter Juan Gutierrez will face Arkansas' top singles player Marcus Hilpert during Sunday's competition. Hilpert is ranked No. 8 in the nation.

Hilpert and Bounce Williams also make up the nation's fourth-ranked doubles team.

"This will be a great challenge for our team and a very good learning experience for the squad," Tech head coach Mark Siegel said. "The competition will be excellent and I am especially looking forward to playing Arkansas."

Saturday's matchup against Oklahoma State may also pose a challenge for the Raiders. The Cowboys top singles player, Tom Janda, is ranked No. 35 nationally. Janda also teams up with teammate Andy Carswell to form the No. 20 doubles team.

"We are really struggling in our mental game so we need to keep the matches close and hopefully we can put ourselves in position to win," Siegel said. "It would be tough on us if we got shut out again."

Harding's Olympic arrival brings circus of media

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — The Tonya Harding five-ring Olympic circus arrived in Norway, where Tonya ran into fellow skater Nancy Kerrigan.

The pair said hello during a meeting in the athletes' village, and posed together for the team picture.

KATU-TV in Portland reported Tuesday night that Harding has taken three polygraph tests and failed two of them.

Citing unidentified sources, KATU said she "failed miserably" one test that asked if she knew about the attack prior to Jan. 10, when she returned to Portland from the U.S. Figure Skating Championships, and if she participated in any part of the attack. Harding replied "no" to those questions, the station said.

Harding declined to comment on the polygraph exams.

"I'm not going to answer any questions about that," she told KATU before leaving for Norway. "That's about the case and I'm not going to answer any questions about the case."

Polygraph test results are not admissible in court in Oregon.

Earlier in New York, Harding's mother collapsed on the set of "The Montel Williams Show" and was taken to a hospital.

LaVona "Sandy" Golden fainted just after taping Williams' syndicated talk show, said Jennifer Geisser, publicist for the show.

Golden was taken to a St. Clare's Hospital, which issued a statement saying she had been admitted for observation and was in stable condition.

During the show, scheduled to be shown Friday, Golden "broke down in tears as she talked freely about her relationship with Tonya," Geisser said.

How the U.S. Fared

• The U.S. hockey team (0-0-2) is back in action Thursday against Canada.

• American luger Cammy Myler finished her disappointing Games with an 11th-place finish Wednesday.

"My performance today was definitely a lot better than yesterday, so I can be satisfied with that, anyway," said Myler, who lost her shot at a medal with a skid on Tuesday's second run.

Whittle tosses shutout in 5-0 victory

The Texas Tech baseball team's defense and offense meshed Tuesday when the Red Raiders shut out New Mexico State 5-0 in El Paso.

The Raiders (2-4) won the series against the Aggies 2-1.

Junior Jason Whittle became the first pitcher to complete a full game for the Raiders this season.

Whittle struck out 10 batters, gave up six hits and walked three batters for his first victory of the season.

Offensively, third baseman Clint Bryant went four for five with two RBI while second baseman Jason Totman continued his six-game hitting streak with a triple in the third inning.

First baseman Randy DuRoss singled in Totman for the Raiders' first run. DuRoss was two for four with two RBI.

In the fifth inning, center fielder Matt DuBuc scored one of Tech's two runs after a DuRoss sacrifice bunt. DuBuc walked and advanced to second after Totman hit a sacrifice bunt. DuBuc then stole third base.

NMSU's pitcher Jason Rakers (1-2) helped the Raiders cause by walking Brandon Welch. A wild pitch then allowed Welch to move to second and Bryant singled to score Welch.

Rakers pitched seven innings for NMSU, giving up eight hits and four runs. He walked four Tech batters and struck out six.

Chris Pappas relieved Rakers and gave up three hits and one run.

The Raiders stranded 13 batters while New Mexico left eight on base.

Tech returns to Lubbock for an 18-game homestand beginning Friday when the Raiders take on Howard Payne in a doubleheader.

Tech loses 18-point lead, hangs on for 78-76 win

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech men squeaked by a second half charge by Southern Methodist to hold on to a 78-76 victory Wednesday.

The announced crowd of 5,870 in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum was quieted in the second half as the Mustangs battled back from an 18-point deficit to come within one point at 77-76 on a Chris Boyd dunk with 55 seconds left in the game.

Boyd would be a factor again. With three seconds left, the Ponies were in Raider territory trying to set up the winning shot when Tech junior guard Mark Davis stole the ball away from Boyd, who immediately fouled Davis in retaliation. The foul put Davis at the free-throw line to shoot the one and one.

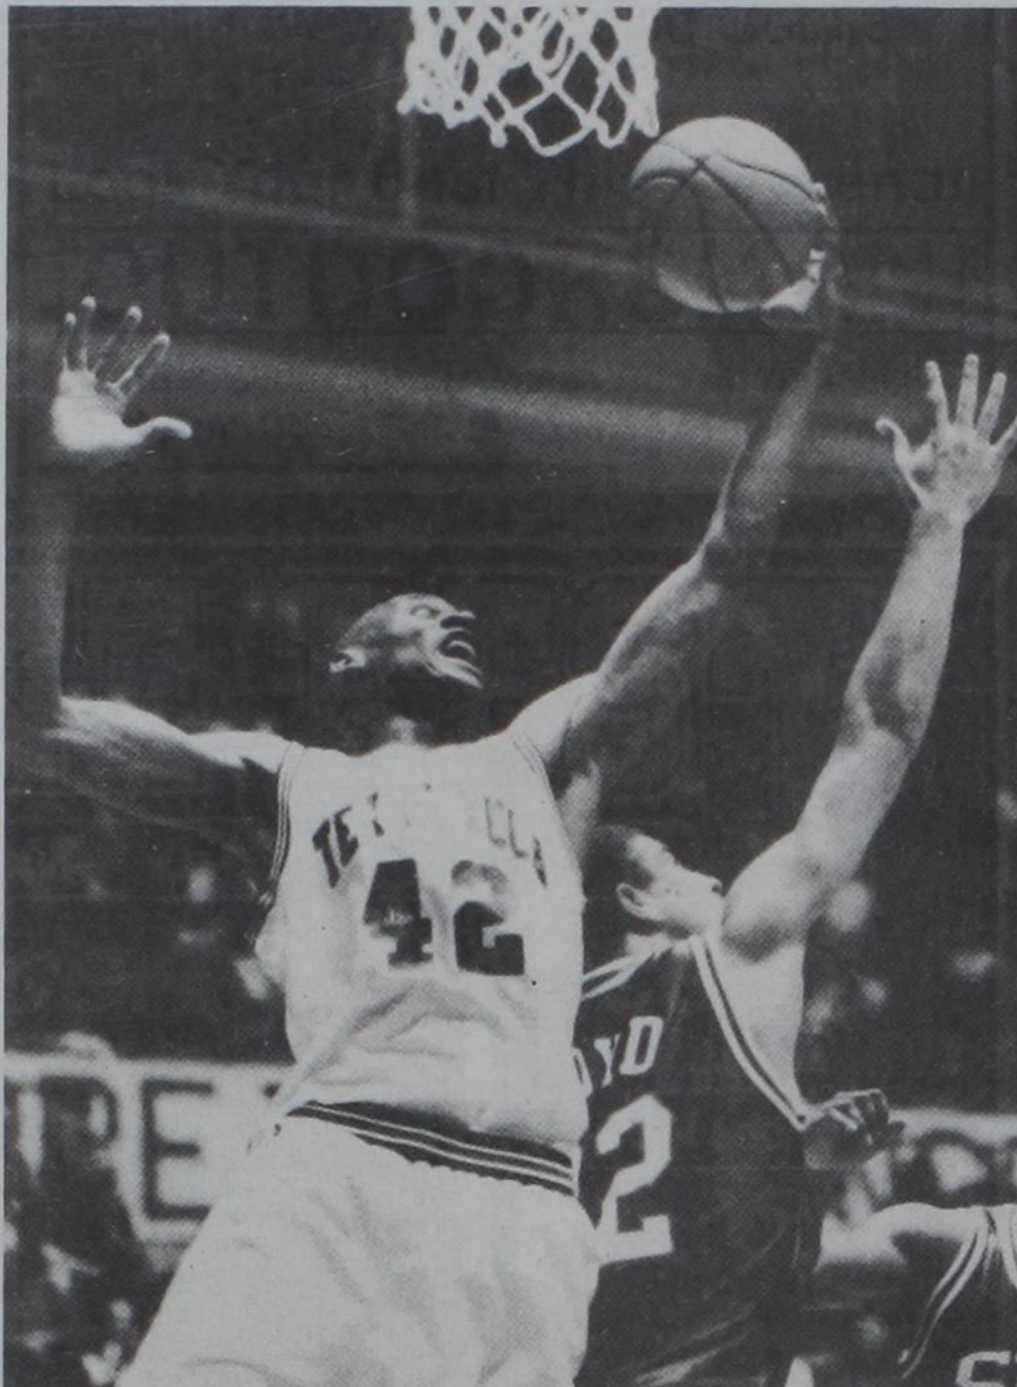

Davis missed his second shot and the game ended with a near miss from three-point range by SMU guard Troy Matthews.

"They tried to make a pass to Boyd for the shot, I just made a move on it," Davis said of his timely steal.

Davis said the key to the game was being aggressive on defense and not letting the Mustangs make a move on the basket.

Tech head coach James Dickey said Jason Sasser's two steals and Davis' steal at the end of the contest saved the day for the Raiders.

"We've got to put this one behind us and get ready for Texas," Dickey said. "I thought we'd win it easier than this, but I'll take a win when we played poorly over a loss when we played well anytime," he said.

Leading in scoring for the Raiders was Davis, who scored 24 points and snared six rebounds.

Sasser, whose one game suspension was overturned by the SWC, turned in 16 points and pulled down six rebounds.

The shooting percentages were the key for the Raiders again. Tech shot 50 percent to the Mustangs 46 percent, but SMU outscored the Raiders in the second half by 13 points.

The win keeps the Raiders in third place in the SWC (11-10, 6-4 in SWC) and maintains SMU's position in the cellar as the Mustangs fall to 3-18, 1-9 in SWC.

SMU head coach John Shumate said his team is showing some improvement.

"We've got a lot of young players," Shumate said. "The difference in the game was we didn't get the rebounds down the last stretch."

Dickey said the Raiders will take tomorrow off and enjoy the victory, but will then shift their focus to Sunday's rematch with SWC leader Texas.

"We were flat tonight," Dickey said. "I'm surprised we shot 50 percent. We got outscored in the second half and we were lucky to win the ballgame."

Sunday's tipoff against Texas has been rescheduled to 5:30 p.m. to accommodate ESPN 2.

Lady Raiders tied for first after SMU win

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

DALLAS — Pressure defense at the right time can give a team that extra edge late in a game.

Texas Tech's Lady Raiders used pressure defense to come back in the second half to defeat Southern Methodist 85-68 Wednesday at Moody Coliseum in Dallas.

With the win, No. 8 Tech upped its record to 20-3 and 8-2 in the Southwest Conference. The Lady Mustangs fell to 14-6 and 5-5 in league play.

Both Texas and Texas A&M lost Wednesday night, which puts the Lady Raiders in a tie for first place in the SWC.

The Lady Longhorns lost to Baylor 81-75, while the Lady Aggies lost to Houston 74-63. Tech is now tied with A&M and both teams have two conference losses.

After both teams traded the lead with more than five minutes gone in the second half, the Lady Raiders went on a 6-0 run to take a 54-49 lead in front of a crowd of 2,295 fans.

Lady Mustang coach Rhonda Rompola called a timeout to stop the run, but after the timeout Tech went on a 6-2 run to take a 60-51 lead.

"My first impression is that we were a much better team in second half than in the first half," coach Marsha Sharp said. "Sometimes you have to do the little things to be a championship basketball team. I think we did those things."

Nineteen of Tabitha Truesdale's career-high 20 points came in the second half. The junior from Rosebud has been battling a cold the past week, but it didn't seem to affect her in the second stanza.

"I don't feel it when I run up and down the court," she said. Truesdale also grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds.

"Truesdale had some great boards for us tonight," Sharp said. "We really hit the offensive boards in the second half."

Tech outrebounded SMU 48-35 and the Lady Raiders grabbed 20 offensive boards.

Four other Tech players finished in double figures, with Michi Atkins scoring 15 points, Connie Robinson 13, LaKisha Wiley and Janice Farris each with 12 and Noel Johnson with 10.
