U.S. fighters down Serbian warplanes

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO struck for the first time in the Bosnian war Monday when two U.S. F-16 fighter jets downed four Serb warplanes that U.N. officials said bombed an arms plant run by Bosnia's Muslim-led government.

NATO said the planes ignored several warnings to leave a U.N.-imposed no-fly zone over Bosnia or face attack and then were observed dropping bombs on a Muslim-controlled area.

Bosnian Serbs first denied involvement. One Serb army official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed that four of their planes were shot down. Bosnian Serb leader Radovic said Serb pilots might have been making "training flights."

NATO has frequently threatened intervention to back U.N. resolutions during the 23-month war.

Jury sequestered in slaying case

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A dozen jurors and two alternates were seated and immediately sequestered Sunday in the trial of an activist accused of murdering an abortion doctor.

The trial of Michael F. Griffin was set to resume Monday and was expected to last an additional seven days. Circuit Judge John Parnham wants to keep the panel sequestered for the duration to shelter jurors from publicity about the case.

Defense lawyers and prosecutors had tentatively agreed on the jury of seven women and five men and the two alternates, both women, Saturday night. They were selected following four days of individual interviews.

Griffin, 32, an anti-abortion activist and former Pensacola chemical plant worker, is accused of shooting Dr. David Gunn, 47, of Eufaula, Ala., three times in the back last March 10.

A&M's compliance with law questioned

DALLAS (AP) — Officials at Texas A&M University asked the Texas attorney general for permission to withhold from the public an internal audit of one of the university's departments — apparently before they even knew whether the report existed.

The incident is the most recent in a legacy of battles over the public's access to the school, The Dallas Morning News reported Monday.

Attorney General Dan Morales' office on Feb. 15 ordered the audit of the university's food service division released.

Friday, 10 days after the attorney general's mandate, university officials said there was no audit to release. Later in the day, a spokesman concluded the audit does exist. However, contrary to provisions of state open government laws, he said he would not release it until A&M lawyers reviewed it.

Public schools source of celebration

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

More than 150 years after the first public school law in the Republic of Texas was enacted, more than 3 million students in the Lone Star State are celebrating Texas Public Schools Week.

The Lubbock Independent School District will celebrate Texas Public Schools Week through Friday with a Country Fair Tuesday and an Executive Leadership Forum Wednesday.

Marcie Johnston, a program specialist in the LISD public information office, said LISD celebrates Texas Public Schools Week each year.

"It's a real good opportunity for the community to see what our children are doing in our schools," Johnston said.

George W. Bush making Hub City stopover

The Country Fair will feature display booths, music, dancing and special programs representing all of the schools in LISD, she said.

The Country Fair will be from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Lubbock Civic Center, Johnston said.

Admission to the fair is free to the public, but donations will be taken to benefit the LISD Foundation for Excellence, she said.

The LISD Foundation for Excellence is a non-profit public education fund which benefits LISD students, Johnston said.

LISD's annual Executive Leadership Forum Wednesday will allow community and business leaders to visit local schools and to make recommendations and suggestions about how LISD is performing, she said.

"This is an event where we invite business and civic leaders to come to our schools," Johnston said.

Representatives at the Executive Leadership Forum also will attend a noon luncheon Wednesday featuring gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush, managing general partner for the Texas Rangers Baseball Organization.

Bush will discuss education in Texas, Johnston said.

While visiting Lubbock in November, Bush said the state government should make education its top priority.

Bush also said the Texas Education Agency should be regulated and said local government should be more involved in education decisions.

The Executive Leadership Forum is open by invitation only, Johnston said.

This is the fourth year for LISD to organize the Executive Leadership Forum and it has been successful thus far in generating ideas

Home rule offers districts more education control

by NY LYNN NICHOLS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Local school officials are praising Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush's Home Rule Education District proposal.

Bush's plan would allow school districts to elect Home Rule, which would free them from state education rules, except for student accountability standards and performance.

"I support the proposal because it gives the local school boards the autonomy they need to run the local school districts," said Roy Grimes, president of the Lubbock Independent School District School Board.

"We know better how to run our school systems than the Legislature does," he said.

The plan also would tackle state mandates, something considered a problem by some districts. Grimes said the LISD had to raise property taxes to meet the unfunded mandates.

He said the plan would help the district financially.

"If we're better able to rule, we'll have better financial stability," Grimes said.

"In the last four years, (the state) has prorated us. It's cost Lubbock $10 million dollars in the last four years."

"No business can operate that way, but we've had to," Grimes said.

According to the Bush plan, Home Rule would eliminate the cost of compliance with rules, regulations, forms and unfunded mandates handed down from Austin.

The home rule plan also would improve accountability, locally, for student performance by allowing educators and communities responsibility for the operation of their school systems, according to the plan.

The plan states that statewide educational entrepreneurship would be inspired with the experimentation and sharing of new technologies and that the people in the forefront of education would make

Health care takes student angle

■ New organization first in Texas

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A new organization is available for Texas Tech students interested in obtaining a job in a health care profession.

Tech is home to the first collegiate Health Occupational Students of America organization in Texas.

Rob Shive, director of admissions and student affairs for the Texas Tech University Health Sciences School of Allied Health and an adviser for HOSA, said the organization's purpose is to help students interested in different areas of the health care field learn through projects and contests.

Christopher Martinez, a freshman pre-medicine major and historian/reporter for HOSA, said the purpose also is to provide a way for students interested in a health care profession to become active.

"It is a good opportunity to get involved in an organization and to meet other people from health care fields," Martinez said.

One event being planned is an wheelchair obstacle course to see how handicapped students cope with being in a wheelchair, Martinez said. Hundreds of students apply to health schools each year, and he said students involved in HOSA may have an advantage.

Shive said, "This type of organization is especially important in the West Texas area where there is a critical medical shortage."

"It gives them the added edge because they have already had the experience working with faculty members and visiting a health sciences center," Shive said.

He said he believes the group will be successful because there are about 1,000 students in pre-health majors who could become a part of HOSA.

Navy getting tuned up

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A musical variety of popular and classical favorites will be performed by the United States Navy Band today.

The free concert will be at 8 p.m. in the Texas Tech University Center's Allen Theatre.

Tickets can be picked up at the School of Music's ensembles office, room 102 of the music building.

Only six tickets per request will be given.

Unclaimed seats will be available to non-ticket holders just before the concert.

"They play a two-hour program that has great appeal to the public in terms of the variety of concert music played," said James Sudduth, director of Tech bands.

Music such as Broadway show tunes, classical pieces and Navy music will be performed, said Brad Cope, publicity director for the School of Music.

Founded in 1925, the Navy Band performs frequently at the White House, at Pentagon ceremonies and has performed in 17 presidential inaugurations.

"The audience is going to get to hear one of the best bands in the country," Cope said.

Capt. William J. Phillips directs the band, with featured performers including: Senior Chief Musician Robert M. Birch, trumpet instrumentalist; Senior Chief Musician Chuck Yates, tenor soloist and concert moderator; and Musician First Class Keith D. Hinton, flute instrumentalist.

Birch currently is the director of the Navy Band's brass quintet and

Haiti: An embargo in the dark

BOB HERBERT

The lights come on, sort of, around 2 o'clock each morning in the Port-au-Prince office of the National Coalition for Haitian Refugees. It's a dim and feeble effort and it doesn't last long. By 4 a.m. the electrical power to the coalition's office is exhausted and the lights go out for the remainder of the day.

Because of an international oil embargo, Haitians get only about two hours of electricity a day. It's almost as if an entire country of 7 million people were living in a permanent blackout. When the sun goes down, the increasingly demoralized population is consigned to a dreary and fearful darkness.

It's an old story, and not many are taking notice, but the Haitians are suffering. In addition to the international oil and weapons embargo, the Organization of American States has imposed a trade embargo and other sanctions on Haiti.

The collective impact has been devastating. Most public transportation has come to a halt. Hospitals have virtually shut down, businesses are failing, farmers cannot get to market and relief agencies are finding it virtually impossible to reach the masses of the poor who are in need.

"You can't do anything with two hours of electricity a day," said Jocelyn McCalla, the coalition's executive director. "And without transportation you can't get anywhere. You can't do anything to help people."

The point of the embargoes, supposedly, was to bring the gangster government of Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras to its knees, thus leading to the restoration of Haiti's legitimately elected president, the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

However much desired, this is not happening. The army's headquarters, which is opposite Haiti's gleaming white Presidential Palace in downtown Port-au-Prince, has plenty of electricity, plenty of lights and plenty of fuel.

Also plenty of champagne, which was imbibed in prodigious amounts when the American ship Harlan County, about to dock in Port-au-Prince, retreated in the face of an unruly mob last October.

From the beginning there were holes in the Haiti embargoes cavernous enough for the military to drive through. Contraband fuel, bound for the military, still passes unmolested across the border between Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

And then there are the exemptions in the trade embargo for the "assembly sector" - companies that ship component parts into Haiti, where they are assembled into commercial products by cheap labor and exported.

These exemptions are being used by many companies to order enormous amounts of goods under the guise of necessary supplies. These "supplies" then find their way to third parties in Haiti, often friends of the military, thus undermining the embargo.

Extensive documentation of instances in which companies abused the exemptions was submitted to the U.S. Treasury Department in 1992 by Antoine Izmerly, a prominent Haitian businessman. No action was taken.

Last Sept. 11, Izmerly, an outspoken supporter of Father Aristide, was dragged from a church in Port-au-Prince and assassinated.

As the suffering in Haiti increases, there are calls for an expanded embargo. But to what end? Without closing existing loopholes, what purpose would a more severe embargo serve?

Or rather, whose purpose? The paramount goal of the United States' Haitian policy apparently is to keep out the Haitian refugees. Despite protests to the contrary, it's not at all clear that the Clinton administration even wants Aristide to return to power.

The Haitian president has been bullied and belittled and harassed by administration officials, and President Clinton himself has described Aristide's future as "clouded."

Without complete support for Aristide, what is the point of any embargo? It will be very difficult to justify an expanded embargo if steps are not first taken to improve what's already in place, and to show specifically how the new and bigger version will lead to the ouster of Cedras and the reinstatement of Aristide.

When you impose additional suffering on people who are already in pain, you ought to have clear and exceptionally good reasons for doing so.

AROUND THE STATE...

Abilene Reporter-News on Harry Blackmun:

For more than 20 years, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun has voted to enforce the death penalty.

Now, though, he says he'll never do it again.

"I feel morally and intellectually obligated simply to concede that the death penalty experiment has failed," Blackmun, the court's oldest member, declared in a public change of mind that is rare for a Supreme Court justice.

Fortunately, Blackmun's declaration that the death penalty cannot be constitutionally carried out will not change the law or the outcome of death row appeals to the Supreme Court. The court remains dominated by appointees of Presidents Reagan and Bush who regularly vote to enforce the capital punishment statutes in 36 states, including Texas.

Blackmun has served on the Supreme Court since 1970. A conservative early on, he now is considered the court's most liberal member.

At 85, well past the age at which almost everyone else in professional life retires, it's time for Blackmun to step down and be replaced by a jurist who isn't too weak to uphold the law.

El Paso Herald-Post on health care reform:

Anyone eager to see government tighten its control over the giant health-care sector of the U.S.

economy should take a sobering look at Washington's attempt to run the cable industry. It's not a pretty sight.

Congress' original aim was to appease constituents who thought those places, the local cable franchise is a monopoly, so the legislators justified federal intervention with the spurious theory that cable TV is a utility.

They then proceeded to impose rates and regulations as if this entertainment mode were vital.

STAR TREK — IT'S ONLY FICTION

To the editor:

This letter is in response to Carl Tepper's editorial on Star Trek: TNG [The Next Generation]. After reading the editorial I figured either The University Daily is desperate for some sort of controversy to fill their editorial pages or Carl Tepper is in need of serious psychological help. In either case, Mr. Tepper's comments scream for a response. I offer one in three parts.

1) The people on the TV screen are just actors, Carl, not real people.

Star Trek, just like any other fictional TV series is make believe. Somehow, you don't seem to understand that, Carl. Star Trek is the realization of Gene Roddenberry's vision of the future. It does not claim to hold the key to our future system of government nor does it advocate a liberal, self-righteous Democratic party. It's TV. If you don't like it, change the channel and watch American Gladiators or something.

2) You first have to be familiar with a subject before you can write about it.

Didn't they teach you that in journalists' school, Carl? You must have overslept that day because you don't have any earthly idea what you're talking about. The main points of your argument aren't even close. As far as Star Trek is concerned, you don't know dog poop from a dog house. No, Star Trek does not advocate Communism. In fact, the system of government has never really been explained. Psychologists are not automatically given command positions: All officers must graduate from Star Fleet Academy (which is much like West Point). There is no gender equity problem on Star Trek: 75 percent of the Star Fleet Admirals shown on the series are women, and they all outrank Captain Picard. I could go on and on, but I will mercifully cut it short.

3) You should never, ever smoke crack before writing an editorial.

Now of course, I'm not suggesting that Carl Tepper smokes crack, but to me it would seem there are few other possible explanations. Maybe Carl's dog died when he was watching a Star Trek episode. Or, is it perhaps that he's trying to pull one of those Dan Quayle-Murphy Brown things? Whatever the reason, next time make sure you try and pay attention and write about something you know about, like Full House.

WHAT ABOUT CARPENTER?

To the editor:

I am writing to voice my concern for the future of Carpenter Hall and the residents thereof. After reading for weeks about the Doak Hall "crisis" (the problem with noisy renovations), as it were, I feel something should be said for Carpenter. For those of you that don't know, Carpenter Hall is quietly being closed down next fall semester.

This is due to a sinister claim that there is an alarming high number of males coming to Tech now as opposed to females, and these males are demanding air-conditioned space. So, to solve this "problem," Housing has the idea to place these males in Gates Hall and reserve more space in Coleman Hall for males. That's right, next fall semester, Gates will house males.

For some reason, I feel that there is a conspiracy in the midst. How can Housing and Dining possibly predict that more males than ever will be enrolling next fall semester, and that they will demand air-conditioned space? Hasn't Tech for a number of years had a high amount of female enrollment compared with universities nationwide? The closing of Carpenter Hall, quietly and unadvertised, unlike the Doak Hall crisis, is an attempt to split up the gentlemen of Carpenter.

This may sound bizarre, and you may ask why? That's exactly what I'd like to know. Why?

I don't buy the hogwash about the influx of males and their demand for air-conditioned space.

I want to know the real reasons behind all of this malarkey.

A recent incident reported in The UD (police blotter), the one about the student struck in the head with a frozen orange; it happened in the hallways of Carpenter. The victim suffered a concussion.

It was an assault. What about countless things that go unreported? So, why the cover-up?

Really. Ask any Carpenter resident if they would return to their beloved hall if it were to be opened next semester. It is my educated guess that the answer would be "yes." At least my answer is "yes." I wouldn't feel at home any place else.

I don't think anyone else would either.

STUDENT ASSOCIATION CANDIDATE PLATFORMS

Presidential Candidate:
Zach Brady

I am a candidate for Student Association President for three reasons: my experience, outlined below, my platform issues and my dedication to Texas Tech University.

I. The Platform

The important issues all have one common element: excellence. The idea that "good enough to get by" really isn't good enough is the basis for all my actions. You deserve a Student Association president who is willing to put forth the effort required to attain excellence.

My platform centers around Student Association awareness, which I feel is sorely lacking. Students must be informed about what the Student Association has done in the past and can do in the future. This demands attention to a large number of mainstream issues, not blind concentration on a narrow, personal agenda.

First, we'll concentrate on what we've done. The Grade Replacement Policy is a great example of what cooperation at all levels—administration, faculty and student—can accomplish. This policy was initially met with reservations from all sides. However, with honest dialogue and hard work from all involved, a workable solution was reached.

I am proud to have been a part of that solution as the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Academics and as the student member of the Academic Council.

The Tech Taxi program is yet another example of knee-jerk resistance being worked through to a compromise. The program, which will provide a safe, reduced-price ride home to students who've had maybe one too many, is in the final planning stages and is slated to begin a six-week trial period immediately after spring break.

Next, we'll look at what we can do in the future. I believe the key is leadership development. Fortunately, a $2,500 line item specifically for leadership development has been included in next year's Student Association budget. I plan to use this money for 12 to 15 workshops, which can focus on ways to get involved on campus, time management, motivational skills and other important areas.

The workshops would be primarily targeted at freshmen and sophomores, but open to all students, free of charge. This program, in conjunction with the Freshman Year Experience orientation from the Dean of Students office and the campus-wide emphasis on student leadership, can make Texas Tech a better place, and a better university; one moving ever closer to excellence.

Finally, I want to restate that a broad platform, complemented with experience, decision-making ability, and, most of all, integrity, are the elements that will guarantee a successful year as Student Association President. After all, it's all about excellence.

II. The Experience

Student Association External Vice President

Chair, Senate Academics Committee

President's Chief of Staff

Student Member, Academic Council

Legislative Affairs Committee

Vice-Chair, President's Cabinet

Senator, College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources

Freshman Council President

Outstanding Freshman Council Member

Ex-Officio Member, Senate Budget and Finance Committee

Internal V.P. Candidate:
Curt Bourne

I am a junior civil engineering major from Durant, Okla. I am running for the office of Internal Vice President because of my knowledge of the Student Senate and devotion to the students at Texas Tech. The following is my platform, philosophy and experience.

I. Senator Accountability

Due to the lack of knowledge of the Student Association I would like to see each senator become more accountable to the college they represent. One solution would be the establishment of a president's roundtable in each college that all senators would attend. This would give the senators a chance to report on the dealings of the Student Senate and get input on possible issues facing the senate. It would also be beneficial too if a column in The University Daily was established to inform the student body of what happened in the past senate meeting. This column would be a cut-and-dry recap of all the legislation passed and pending and would be a complement to the current reports given after each senate meeting.

II. Student Association Funding

The Budget and Finance committee of the Student Senate allocates money to over 100 organizations every year. This is a long and tedious process for them as well as for all the organizations involved. I would like to see each organization receive their funding in one lump sum. It is my opinion that anyone elected to an executive position in a respective organization is responsible enough to see that the money is spent properly. This would also be a lesson in how to run a business that would not only be useful now but later in life.

III. Campus Involvement

One final thing that I would like to see the senators accomplish this next year is increased visibility to the alumni and prospective students. The position of being one of the 61 senators to represent the student body is an honor and should take up more time than an hour every other week.

BOURNE

IV. I am a firm believer in "you get out what you put in."

Student Senate is no different. I have proven myself to be a leader and I have the ability to effectively preside over the senate. At Texas Tech, we have one of the strongest student senates in the state and it is my goal to continue this tradition and surpass all expectations.

V. Experience

Student Senator, College of Engineering; Sergeant at Arms, Student Senate; Member, Rules and Administration Committee; Internal Vice President, Stangel/Murdough Complex Council; Vice President, Kappa Mu Epsilon

Internal V.P. Candidate:
Lupita Gonzalez

Russell Laird is now in Washington, D.C., working for a Lubbock congressman. He served as president of the Student Association a couple of years ago. It was then when I became aware and interested in the Student Association and its functions. The Budget and Finance Committee had showed inconsistencies in its allocation of funds to several organizations. I helped a few organizations appeal to the committee. Some were successful in obtaining a re-evaluation and adequate funding.

Although I have not served on the Student Association, I have followed them closely. Many important decisions are made by the Student Senate that truly influence us as Tech students. Techsans' awareness level of the SA's activities must be considerably raised. Perhaps a weekly published report of Student Senate meetings could be a start. The Student Association must be made easily assessable to Tech students. I plan to formulate this idea by establishing a committee on Techsans' concerns. Many times students lose the will to address their issues because they simply don't want to mess with having to tediously search for the corresponding person or department. The Student Association must offer easy access and be approachable.

The dropout rate is another concern I have. After visiting the Institutional Research Center, I learned of the astonishing statistics. Many freshmen drop out. The most drastic statistic was that of black freshmen. It showed that out of all the black students that enroll in their freshman year, nearly half dropped out by the end of the same year. There is a lot of concentration on recruitment, but there is a greater need for retention. I would like to improve the concept of the Pass Center and support research done on the determinants of a student's success at college.

Interaction between organizations (including the Student Association) is something I would like to see. This can be derived, for example, via joint service projects. In so doing, synergy and shared expertise can result in accomplishments of completed projects and shared interaction.

Although I favor multiculturalism, I don't like the idea of making such a class mandatory. People that may "need" the class might begin to resent it and its principles if it is "stuffed down their throats." Therefore, I would like to see the class offered. Before any further decisions could be made about the class, I would like to have the reactions of student in the class monitored and the results evaluated.

Equity, not necessarily equality, is paramount with me. I am an effective leader who can only improve the Student Association's functions. The most beneficial factors of any group are its leaders. I have witnessed the progressive directions which organizations have taken because of its leaders.

I have coordinated service projects and have participated in its legislative, decision-making. I also co-founded MEChA and served as its co-president for a year. We recruited a candidate for the U.S. Senate to speak at Tech in our first year of existence and participated in Hispanic Awareness Week. I also served in the Human Relations Task Force in 1993. Presently, I am a member of PRSSA and the Multicultural Committee. I believe that we must foster communication and understanding of our expectations of each other as individuals and organizations.

I possess the leadership skills to fulfill responsibilities that will be vested to me as Internal Vice President of the Student Association.

GONZALEZ

Presidential Candidate:
Scott Castaneda

I am running for Student Association President because I feel that I could accomplish a lot for the Tech student body. I know that there are issues and concerns that affect the student body in our day-to-day life here at Tech, and I feel that I could deal with issues fairly and unbiased.

As President of the Student Association I would like to achieve these goals:

I would like to make the student body aware of what the Student Association is doing.

I would like to address the issue of over-crowding in our parking lots (especially the commuter lots).

I would establish a committee that would brainstorm for ideas on how we can try to encourage more students to take more active roles in student government and student organizations.

I would establish a committee with representatives from student organizations that are interested in multicultural awareness and see if we can come up with events and functions for students on our campus.

I would also like to improve the allocation of funds for student organizations.

As Student Association President I will try to serve you the best way I can and try to make sure that the concerns of Tech's student body are given the proper attention. I will always be open to any suggestion or ideas that you, the student body may have. I would appreciate your support and vote for Student Association President.

CASTANEDA

Presidential Candidate:
Shawna Dawes

As an SA Presidential candidate, I feel I offer students the unique combination of a fresh approach to leadership as well as valuable experience with the Student Association.

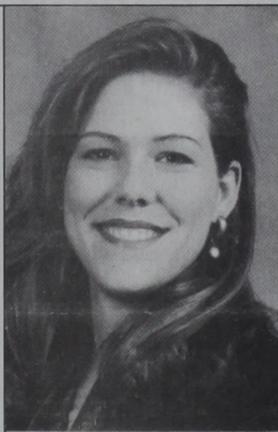

As a senator on the intergovernmental relations committee, I helped in the organization of the Freshman Council's school-wide voter registration drive. I also served on the Budget and Finance committee, aiding in the funding of over 100 organizations on campus.

As SA President, I plan to serve Tech students as a strong and well-rounded representative, rather than just an ineffective figurehead. To carry out this plan requires an improvement in the Student Association's visibility and accessibility. I want to make the SA reach out to the student body with increased communication through The University Daily and other campus media.

I would also like to increase pride and enthusiasm for Texas Tech by focusing on freshmen. I want to implement the proposed modification of freshman orientation to a program called "The Freshman Year Experience." This year-long program would encompass: 1) more emphasis on Tech traditions and history, 2) more involved youth leadership programs to promote excellence and involvement in young students, and 3) more thorough information that showcases to young students all that is available to them on campus.

Moreover, I want to address students' concerns which affect day-to-day life at Tech. For example, as President I will have the ability to renegotiate the contract with Citibus to end the nightmare of waiting 20 minutes in the freezing cold for a jam-packed bus. I plan to be a strong advocate for students against the reduction of our parking lots and for the addition of new ones.

For our Student Association to do what it is designed to do—to work for the students—we need an SA President with a full-time commitment to the job. I have the commitment necessary, as well as dedication, experience, and an energetic and unique attitude for the office.

If I am elected, I feel that these qualities will translate into changes for the better at this university and a more successful Student Association.

External V.P. Candidate:
Shawn Lepard

Experience:

Student Association President's Chief of Staff, SA Artists and Speakers Committee, SA Academic Affairs Chairman, Double T Bookstore Board of Advisors, Baptist Student Union State Council, Texas Tech BSU President, BSU Freshman Council President

The position of External Vice President of the Student Association handles all public relations for the Student Association as opposed to the Internal Vice President who presides over the Student Senate. In being a senior Agricultural Communications major, I feel that I have the experience and know-how needed to represent the students of Texas Tech as their External Vice President.

The position contains two aspects of public relations: 1) student publications and 2) representing the needs and desires of the students to the administration, community, state and nation. My theme, "Spreading the Word," entails the message that I will stand behind in representing the duties of External VP.

I. Student Publications

The first way that I would spread the word is by literally spreading the Word. One of the responsibilities of the External VP is to publish the Word magazine. The Word includes many useful coupons, but also includes helpful information.

If given the opportunity, I would enhance the Word in two ways: 1) Include an academic schedule that would provide information about adding and dropping courses and final exam times and 2) list the programs and their activities that are allocated money from student service fees. My hope is that by including such a list, students would know where their money was being spent and more inclined to become involved in the programs.

II. Community Relations

Beyond being responsible for other student publications, the External VP must spread the word about the desires and needs of the students.

I'm sure that one concern of everyone is the need for more parking. The need will only become worse if the current plan for a multipurpose arena being built on the Jones Stadium parking lot is carried out.

With the recent step forward into a new conference, Tech and Lubbock will need such a complex. My main concern is that the needs of the students are not forgotten. We need that parking lot and will be faced with a dire situation if current plans are carried out.

Without the students of Texas Tech, the city of Lubbock and the Tech Administration would not have a national Championship team to draw large crowds. It is the students who have brought such pride to Lubbock—that would be hurt if the multipurpose arena was built at that location.

These are the strong feelings that I have for the students of Texas Tech and would express if given the opportunity to serve as your External Vice President. It is because of both my passion for Texas Tech and my experience in the Student Association office that makes me a sensible choice.

LEPARD

Presidential Candidate: Mad Hatter

Experience and Qualifications:

Seven-year Tech student, currently a master's degree candidate, Student Senator, Campus Libertarians, Legion West, 88.1 KTX-FM disc jockey

Platform:

No matter who gets elected, nothing of any real significance can truly be accomplished from this position.

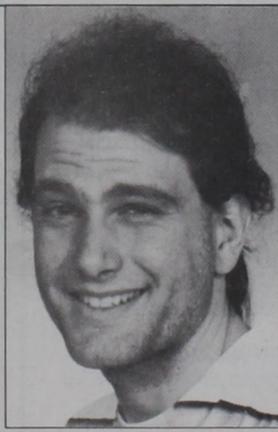

I want it because I believe that it would be a nifty part-time job (yes, it is paid) and if for no other reason than this university would be better off if all the candidates had the candor to tell the students everything this blatantly.

In response to the multipurpose arena the Mad Hatter said, "Anything government-initiated for the people should be taken with a pillar of salt."

I would not mind seeing the multicultural class enter the curriculum so long as students are given one class, not from their major or minor, that they could exempt themselves from in the core curriculum.

Since there are so many core curriculum classes a student could say "I don't want to take this one (class)" and be exempt from it. Everybody's bad at something and if you don't like multiculturalism, then you're exempt from that.

MAD HATTER

External V.P. Candidate:
Jake West

I am a senior Political Science major from Spring, Texas. I am seeking the office of External Vice President on the strength of my experience, my platform and my dedication to Texas Tech.

I. Lubbock City Zoning

The current SA administration has begun to address the city zoning restriction that prevents more than two unrelated individuals from living in the same dwelling. This restriction has prevented many Tech students from living in the areas immediately around our campus. It is my intention to take these efforts to the next level by creating a standing partnership between the neighborhood associations, Lubbock City Codes Administration Department and the SA. By using a cooperative effort it may finally be possible to change this portion of the zoning code in a manner that is acceptable to all parties. It is my intention to use the office of External Vice President as a means of achieving this goal in the interest of all Tech students.

II. Lubbock businesses and Tech

In recent years the SA has become actively involved in the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. This is a valuable means for both local businesses and Tech to understand one another's importance in the local economy. In the past two years, I have represented the Interfraternity Council to the chamber and developed a positive relationship between the businesses that surround our campus and the members of the Greek system. I now wish to do the same for the entire student body with businesses across the city. Tech students are the single largest group in the community and thus represent a large part of the local economy. I intend to draw businesses closer to the students in a relationship that is favorable to both.

III. Student Publications

The Tech SA has been recognized as having one of the finest publications programs among Texas schools. Such publications are a valuable source of information to students. I will further this tradition by creating a by-students-for-students rating column in the Housing Guide so that students will have an idea of those complexes avored by fellow students.

IV. Personal Philosophy

The SA is a tool of the student body, not vice-versa. Your student government should represent your interest to the administration and the community. I seek to enhance the understanding between the students' needs and the community we are a part of. My previous experience working with the city, community, local businesses and within the SA will be the kind of experience that counts.

V. Past Experience

Student Senator, College of Arts and Sciences Chairman, Senate Rules and Administration Committee Member, Student Recreation Advisory Board Executive VP, TTU Interfraternity Council VP for Chapter Development, TTU Interfraternity Council, Co-Chair Bush for President 1988, Houston Area Youth Division Junior of the Year 1992-1993, TTU Greek Affairs and Interfraternity Council.

Life-saving course offered

For the 1 million people who will suffer from a heart attack this year, proper use of cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques may save lives.

The administration of CPR and other techniques can be learned through a variety of health and safety classes offered in March by the American Red Cross.

The purpose of the classes is to help people learn to deal with emergency situations, said Doug Bingman, health services director for the American Red Cross South Plains Regional Chapter.

"The purpose of the American Red Cross is to help people prepare to cope with emergency situations," he said. "We try and make sure that people are trained to handle these problems."

Courses in first aid, CPR, swimming and water safety are available, and each of the courses is targeted at different age groups.

CPR classes are taught to be administered for adults, children and infants, Bingman said.

Individuals need to register for the courses at least three working days in advance. Registration and information about the times available can be obtained by calling the American Red Cross at 765-8534.

The cost of each course depends on the age group, Bingman said. The cost for the CPR course varies.

Lifeguard courses also are available through the American Red Cross at the Texas Tech Aquatic Center.

Inspector discusses neighborhood code enforcement

by NY LYNN NICHOLS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Code enforcements and handling code problems were addressed during the Heart of Lubbock's neighborhood association meeting Monday.

Rick Derr, local codes inspector, presented the program and said that, as far as housing goes, there are items that can qualify the housing structure as hazardous.

"If it is unoccupied and open and accessible, it is a hazard," Derr said.

An example of an "open and accessible" house includes one that has broken windows or kicked-in doors.

Back-yard apartments, storage sheds and garages are susceptible to the same "hazardous" labeling if the structure is deemed "open and accessible," he said.

Junk vehicles also pose a problem in neighborhoods, Derr said.

To be labeled a junk vehicle, the auto must be inoperative with an expired inspection sticker or expired license plate.

"If a vehicle just has an expired inspection sticker or license plate, that doesn't mean it's inoperable," Derr said.

"(The vehicle) can be in any place on the property, (but) not in the street," Derr said. "Then we refer it to the police department."

The vehicle also must be visible to pose a problem.

"The vehicle has to be seen from a public right-of-way street, alley or sidewalk," he said.

Another ordinance residents should be aware of concerns weeds

Rick Derr
local codes inspector and rubbish, Derr said.

"The property owner has the responsibility to maintain (the property) to the center of the alley," he said. "If the Dumpster is behind your house, you are the party responsible for that."

A weed violation exists when there is uncultivated growth taller than 12 inches that covers 50 percent or more of the alley.

Residents also tend to be largely concerned with zoning laws and violations, Derr said.

Zoning violations include public nuisance and illegal land use.

"A public nuisance is anything that you feel is unsightly," Derr said.

Perhaps one of the biggest questions surrounding the public nuisance issue is the number of vehicles at one residence, he said.

"I can't tell you how many cars to have," Derr said.

Complaints concerning housing, junk vehicles and zoning can be taken from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 767-2123. Weed complaints should be made to 763-9000.

Bobbitt wedding plans refuted
ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—John Bobbitt is not engaged to marry a woman he met in Las Vegas, contrary to a report in a London newspaper, his agent said Sunday.
"He knows this girl, she's an acquaintance ... but there are no wedding plans," Paul A. Erickson said.
The newspaper reported that Bobbitt, 26, and Kristina Goulet, 21, planned to live together in Las Vegas and get married.
"We're getting married this summer and we're not having sex until then," Goulet was quoted as telling the tabloid.
The newspaper said the couple met at the Las Vegas airport while Bobbitt was on a promotional tour to raise money for his legal and medical bills.
Bobbitt and his wife, Lorena, are seeking a divorce.

has worked in Indiana State University's music department.

Birch also was awarded the Navy Achievement Medal in 1992 and has been in the Navy Band for 15 years.

Yates has sung for Pope John Paul II and in several leading theater productions.

In 1985, he received the Navy Achievement Award for his work in the children's "Lollipops" concert.

Hinton graduated from the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., and toured with the renowned Eastman Wind Ensemble.

Appearing in the band are Texas

Tech alumni Patrick L. Johnson, clarinet, and Betty R. McGee, piccolo, both graduating with music degrees.

Sudduth said the Tech

Symphonic Band has recorded a compact disk with Navy Band saxophonist Dale Underwood.

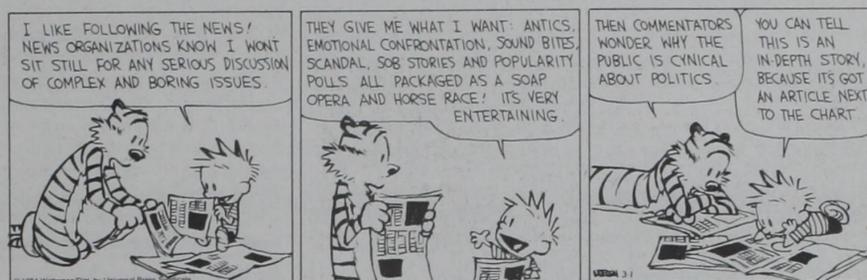

Because the band has done well in the past, the music department is expecting a capacity crowd.

"This group is the highest caliber of concert music," Sudduth said. "We are very fortunate to have them in Lubbock."

Home Rule

Plan proposes school board autonomy

decisions pertinent to their districts.

Under the plan, the state would have control over setting student standards. State officials would measure results, administer the state's school finance system, provide technical and administrative support for local districts, make sure eligible school children are educated and monitor and assist non-performing school districts.

School districts not electing the Home Rule system would continue to follow rules in the Texas Education Code.

"If you have great financial stability, you have a greater chance for educational stability," Grimes said. "Stability would ensure that youngsters are getting a better education."

Sting leads in Grammy nominations

(AP) — Eric Clapton, Natalie Cole and Bonnie Raitt have all cashed in with big Grammy Award nights. Is Whitney Houston next?

Houston, nominated for four Grammy Awards, has the chance to make it an even dozen trophies in a month at today's awards show. The 36th annual ceremony will be held at New York City's Radio City Music Hall.

She warmed up three weeks ago by capturing eight honors at the American Music Awards for her single "I Will Always Love You" and the soundtrack to "The Bodyguard," in which she starred with Kevin Costner.

Sting received six Grammy nominations, and Billy Joel and R.E.M. joined Houston with four each.

Sweeps of major Grammy Awards have boosted album sales for past stars like Clapton, who took home six trophies last year for his "Unplugged" album. That may be tougher for Houston — more than 10 million people have already bought "The Bodyguard."

"A lot of people are saying to me, 'Oh, Whitney, you got it in the bag,'" she told TV Guide recently. "But I'm like, hey, I'm just going to wait and see. I don't build myself up for the big letdown."

She is nominated for album and record of the year, best pop vocal performance by a female and best rhythm and blues vocal performance by a female.

The televised portion of the ceremony, which begins at 8 p.m. on CBS-TV, will feature performances by Houston, Joel, Neil Young, Aerosmith, Garth Brooks, Sting, Natalie Cole, Gloria Estafan, Itzhak Perlman and Digable Planets. Garry Shandling will be the host.

Tech's Totman getting used to new position

JUCO transfer thrives on pressure

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Pressure does not bother Texas Tech's Jason Totman, actually he said he thrives on it.

"Every play there is pressure on you," Totman said Monday. "When a ball comes to you, you are the only one out there and you've got to make the play. Baseball is unlike any other sport. It is individual and a team effort."

Totman is a junior college transfer from Butler County Community College in Kansas and had never played second base before this season.

"When I first played at second I hated it," he said.

"It took a while to get used to second. I had always played third and short. It saves my arm now. It never hurts anymore."

Before the season began, Tech head coach Larry Hays said he was unsure about who would be where on the infield.

After losing shortstop George Kilford and second baseman Trey Forkerway, the middle positions were wide open.

Totman said he was still unsure about where he would end up when spring practice began in January.

"I go out there and play hard every day, so I guess coach liked that," he said.

Fielding is not his favorite part of the game, even though he has a .969 fielding percentage.

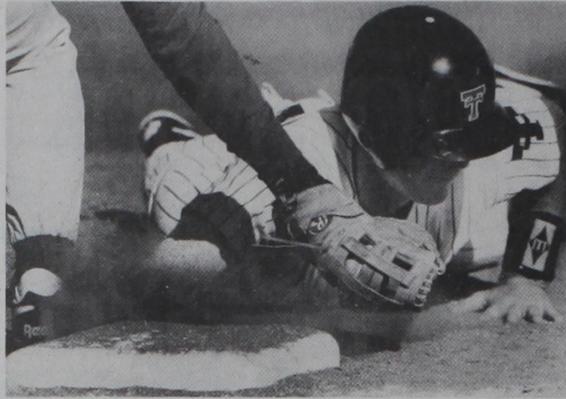

"I like hitting better," he said. "When I go to the plate, I can't feel a lot of pressure, but you have to be confident. Hitting is one of the hardest things in sports."

It might be difficult, but he doesn't seem to have a problem at the plate. Totman is hitting .439 with five doubles and two home runs.

"I have to tell myself to be relaxed," he said. "I can't let playing Division I get to my head. I have to bring myself up to the level of play and I can't be scared, but not arrogant either."

When deciding to transfer, Tech was not the only school Totman considered.

Kansas State, Northeastern

Getting dirty

Texas Tech's Jason Totman slides back safely into first base against New Mexico this weekend.

SHARON M. STEINMAN: THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Louisiana and Kentucky were interested in him.

"I visited Kansas State and this place is a lot nicer," he said. "There are great facilities here. The people are friendly and I was impressed with coach Hays and coach (Frank) Anderson."

The Tech fans impress the McPherson, Kan., native the most. "We would get maybe seven to eight people in the stands at the junior college games and they were usually parents," Totman said. "We have had great crowds especially with the cold weather."

A slight tear in his right hamstring is slowing Totman this weekend, but he said he expects to play Thursday in the first game of a three-game series with New Mexico State.

Women's tennis team striving for second straight SWC win

The Texas Tech women's tennis team will try to extend its unbeaten streak in Southwest Conference play today against Rice in the Athletic Training Center.

Today's match is open to the public and will start at 1:30 p.m. The Red Raiders (13-2, 1-0) defeated TCU Saturday 5-4 in the ATC.

Senior Jennifer Brennan leads Tech in singles and will go against Antonette Veloso, an All-SWC player last season.

Brennan will team with singles second seed Lynne Jackson in doubles play.

Christy Davis takes the third place in singles and is followed by Sheri Gilreath, Debbie Biswell and Erika Fisher.

Davis and Renna Rhodes are No. 2 in doubles with Gilreath and Fisher at No. 3.

Rice (4-3, 0-1) defeated Tech 7-2 last season in Houston.

Men's golf team takes seventh at tourney

Led by the 14th-place finish of Michael Ashy, the Texas Tech men's golf team took seventh at the Stephen F. Austin-Crown Colony Intercollegiate in Lufkin this past weekend.

Ashy shot a 224 over the three rounds, with his best round being a 73 in the third round.

The Red Raiders finished the tournament with a 911, finishing nine strokes behind sixth place Baylor. The Bears shot a 902 over the two-day 54-hole tournament. Southwest Conference rival Texas A&M won the tournament.

Also finishing in the top 25 for Tech was Bryan Novoa, with a 226 with best round a 73 on Friday. Michael Schrade took 24th with a 227 over the three rounds. His best round was a 71 after the second round. Chris Mathis took 54th with a 234, while Scott Friggle took 84 shooting a 246 during the tournament.
