NATO jets flying again after attack

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A NATO jet swooped over a besieged northern town Sunday after Bosnian state radio claimed Serb warplanes destroyed a bridge in an attack similar to the one that provoked NATO retaliation.

With Serb troops barring access to Maglaj, there was no way for NATO or U.N. officials to visit the site to check the claim that planes attacked the Muslim-held town about 40 miles north of Sarajevo. But NATO officers raised questions about the report.

Squadron Leader John Jeffries, a NATO spokesman in Naples, Italy, said early warning aircraft did not detect any air attack on Maglaj. "If we had, we would have taken action," he said.

Victim of bridge shooting dies

NEW YORK (AP) — A Hasidic Jew who was left brain-dead after a man opened fire on a van full of rabbinical students died Saturday.

Aaron Halberstam, 16, was one of four students wounded Tuesday on the Brooklyn Bridge when a lone gunman opened fire on a van carrying the students. A Lebanese man was charged in the shootings; police say he is not linked to any terrorist group.

Halberstam was pronounced brain dead on Wednesday. He was pronounced dead Saturday night at St. Vincent's Hospital, spokeswoman Dina Gabriel said.

Halberstam was among hundreds of ultra-Orthodox Lubavitcher Hasidic Jews who traveled from the borough of Brooklyn Tuesday to pray for the sect's 91-year-old spiritual leader, Menachem Schneerson, who had undergone cataract surgery at a hospital in Manhattan.

Rival klans rally against each other

WACO (AP) — The head of an offshoot group of the Ku Klux Klan railed Saturday against the leaders of a rival white supremacist organization, warning them to "resign or die."

Robert Spence of Boyd, who identified himself as imperial wizard of the True Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, led a group of 14 in a protest on the McLennan County Courthouse steps against Michael Lowe, grand dragon of the Waco-based Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Spence said his amalgam of longtime klansmen, skinheads and neo-Nazis began an attempt to oust two leaders of the True Knights of the Ku Klux Klan — the only national Klan organization left in the United States — about six weeks ago after a year of disagreement. Spence said Lowe stole from members of the Knights and did not pay taxes on goods sold by the Klan.

Lady Raiders sweep title away from Aggies

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For part of the first half Saturday, the game between Texas Tech and Texas A&M lived up to its billing.

But in the end, only the Lady Raiders held up their share of the pre-game hype.

The Lady Raiders used a 25-3 run in the middle of the first half to propel them to a 109-75 win over the Lady Aggies in front of 8,574 at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The win gives No. 6 Tech a 12-2 Southwest Conference record, and its third consecutive SWC title.

"This was one of the neatest wins of my career," Tech head coach Marsha Sharp said after the game. "We had a great team last year, and we needed to come back this year and prove we have a great program. I am just thrilled that they got to be SWC champs."

The Lady Raiders will focus their sights on this week's Dr Pepper SWC Post-Season Classic which begins Wednesday in Moody Coliseum in Dallas. Tech will be the No. 1 seed and will play at 6 p.m. against No. 8 seeded Texas Christian.

"Our attack has gotten steadily better the past month," Sharp said. "We were a lot more aggressive with the basketball today. We were taking much better shots and getting the ball to the open person."

Tech shot 59.2 percent from the field against the Lady Aggies, but one of the differences was the three-point shooting of Noel Johnson and LeKisha Wiley.

The Tech duo combined for nine three-pointers in 12 attempts, hitting seven in the first half.

"I think they were expecting us to throw the ball to Michi (Atkins) and Connie (Robinson)," Johnson said. "I think that gave us an opportunity to shoot out there."

Johnson hit five of seven shots from the field, while Wiley hit four of five attempts. Both finished the game in double figures with Johnson scoring a game-high 21 points and Wiley 16.

Also in double figures for Tech was Robinson with 19, Atkins with 16 and Janice Farris with 13.

Texas A&M took the lead after being down by six points in the early part of the first half when Beth Burkett hit a jumper with 12:53 left to give the Lady Aggies a 22-19 advantage.

But Tech pulled back even at 22-22 on the next possession when Wiley hit her third three-pointer with 12:33 remaining.

The Lady Aggies did not score again until the 8:36 mark, and their next bucket came at the 6:49 mark.

By that time Tech had built a 12-point lead that stretched to 27 points by the end of the half. The Lady Raiders went into the locker room with a 60-33 halftime advantage.

Tech outrebounded the Lady Aggies 37-32, but Tech had 14 offensive rebounds to A&M's nine.

"We were better today than we have been anytime this season," Sharp said. "The key for us is to not have any type of letdown."

Smart Cookies... Scouting taking on math, science fields

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Math and science courses are stereotypically dominated by male students but, according to officials from the "Expanding your Horizons" conference this weekend, opportunities for women in those careers are growing.

Keynote speaker Vicki Cowart said encouraging junior high and high school girls in math and science fields will give female students a good educational opportunity.

"It's very important to take as much math and science as possible while you're in high school," she said. "There are good careers for women in science."

According to the conference's itinerary, the purpose of the conference was to "increase awareness of math and science careers, meet and talk with women working in non-traditional careers and to increase confidence in math and science skills."

Cowart said even if girls are interested in other fields, taking those courses still can be beneficial.

"Taking math and science courses in high school will not preclude you from getting into other things," she said.

Cowart said being more technically literate "will enable you to have a better understanding of how the world works."

"Technical literacy is at least as important as reading literacy," Cowart said.

Cowart was appointed June 1 as a Colorado State geologist and the director of the Colorado Geological Survey. She earned her bachelor's from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and her master's from the Colorado School of Mines.

Women's Studies Coordinator Gwen Sorell said sometimes junior high and high school girls are influenced by societal norms and are not encouraged in fields that predominately employ men.

Sorell also said young women sometimes suffer serious losses in self-esteem.

"Research supports that there is more influence from peers than from parents and teachers," Sorell said.

"I think it's sometimes deeply ingrained within them by the time they reach high school," she said. "Surveys have also shown that the most important thing to junior high and high school girls is good looks and popularity."

Sorell said educating teachers to educate students is important for young girls' personal development.

Geosciences research associate Melanie Barnes said last year's conference hosted about 60 girls, but said this year's hosted more than 190.

"We invited junior high and high school girls from seven Girl Scout councils," she said.

"There are about 35 faculty and graduate student volunteers presenting workshops," Barnes said.

"The Girl Scouts organized this, and Texas Tech did presentations and provided the facilities."

Garza endorses make Hub City stop as primary nears

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Former Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance and Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry stopped in Lubbock Sunday to endorse Republican Attorney General candidate Tony Garza.

Hance and Perry are traveling across Texas on Garza's behalf as Garza finishes up his campaign before Tuesday's Republican Party primary election.

Garza, a county judge in Cameron County, is running in the GOP primary election against John Marshall, Pat Lykos and Don Wittig.

"I am here to endorse Tony Garza," Hance said. "He will do a good job as attorney general."

Hance said crime should be the number one issue for the attorney general's office, and said Garza will address crime.

Perry said Garza will be an attorney general with conservative values who will work against crime and against prison overcrowding problems in Texas.

Garza said he would focus on criminal justice, tort reform, juvenile justice and prison overcrowding if elected attorney general.

Attorney General Dan Morales, the unopposed incumbent running in the Democratic Party primary, hurt prison overcrowding problems by settling the David Reese decision, Garza said.

The David Reese decision, which allowed state prisons only to be filled to a capacity of 95 percent, transferred the state's prison overcrowding problems to county prisons, he said.

"He thought he would solve a state problem by creating a county problem all across Texas," Garza said. "Our prisons are deemed full before they are full."

Federal prisons and prisons in 36 other states operate at higher levels than Texas prisons, he said.

Tort reform also is important for the attorney general's office, Garza said.

Placing reasonable limits on punitive damages and cost sharing for court cases is part of Garza's plan for tort reform, he said.

"We need to inject some common sense back into our courts," Garza said.

Tort reform can help economic growth in Texas, he said.

Events on every main street in every Texas town or city should be important to government in Austin, Garza said.

NCAA tickets on sale today

Students who want to purchase tickets for possible NCAA women's first- and second-round basketball games can do so today at the Texas Tech Ticket Office located at the north end Jones Stadium.

Tech students can sign up today from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and purchase tickets for a possible first-round game March 16 or a possible second-round game March 19. There are 1,000 student tickets to each game, and tickets will be sold on a first come-first served basis. Students can only purchase two tickets with a valid student ID. A social security number and payment for the tickets will be required during today's sign-up period. Tickets for both games will be $10 each.

BIASED AGAINST CONSERVATIVES

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Kenneth Bobo's editorial "AIDS Education Needs New Attitude."

I would like to point out that maybe more could be accomplished if hypocritical name-callers, such as Mr. Bobo, would take on a new attitude themselves. His reference to the "Bible-thumping, right-wing wackos in Texas..." and his perception of the conservative, Christian view on homosexuality and the AIDS phenomenon led me to believe that his purpose in writing the article was not to help find a common ground where AIDS research could be maximized, but was simply to take a swing at the conservatives.

Mr. Bobo refers to the "...bigoted approach..." taken by opponents of AIDS research funding (i.e. the conservatives), while his entire article is a bigoted approach toward the conservative, Christian community.

Mr. Bobo admits that "...radical, homosexual groups like the ones that marched in Washington last year do not represent the gay community well...."

I do not believe that Mr. Bobo's references to "...Boy George fans and quiche-eaters..." and "...pink cleats..." serve as tasteful representations of the gay community either.

As a Christian who considers myself conservative, I know that Mr. Bobo's examples of his colleague and his buddy do not represent my views on homosexuality and AIDS research, and I do not appreciate his stereotypical attitude that is based on two personal experiences.

I believe homosexuality is wrong, but as a sinner myself, I do not have the right to pass judgment on the homosexual community. I have a genuine love in my heart and genuine compassion for homosexuals and for those who have contracted AIDS. I believe we should fund AIDS research as we would cancer research or research for any community of dying people. I can assure you that Troy Aikman, John Wayne, Roger Staubach and Sylvester Stallone are not responsible for my stand on this issue. The one responsible for my stand is Jesus Christ, who died on the cross so that each sinner, like myself, can choose to live for him and have eternal life. If Mr. Bobo considers this to be the attitude of a "Bible-thumping, right-wing wacko..." then so be it. However, he needs to take a look at his own attitudes and prejudices before he tries to change the attitude of others. Mr. Bobo — you are in my prayers.

VALUES DON'T CHANGE WITH TIME

To the editor:

I write in response to guest columnist Kenneth Bobo's article

"Aids Education Needs New Attitude."

Mr. Bobo insinuates that we "Bible-thumping, right-wing wackos in Texas," would approve of homosexuality if someone we admired publicly admitted his homosexuality; he used Troy Aikman as an example. However, I disagree.

Throughout history men have achieved great things. Benjamin Franklin excelled as an inventor and a diplomat. For several years Mr. Franklin resided in Paris while he attempted to persuade the French to fund the American Revolutionary War. While in Paris he often enjoyed non "Bible-thumping" activities. He successfully served his country as a negotiator and satisfied his desires under the covers. Mr. Franklin abandoned over 60 illegitimate children when he left France; Benjamin Franklin died of an incurable social disease.

Shakespeare, better known to his "friends" as William "Wigglestick," enjoyed an eclectic sexual preference. Yet, historians dub him as the greatest playwright ever. All children study in public schools the works of Shakespeare. Many books have been written on Shakespeare. People have devoted their entire life studying and analyzing his works.

Mr. Franklin served a key role in establishing the United States. Mr. Shakespeare's works are universally studied and considered to be the very best. I think it could be successfully argued that the accomplishments of Benjamin Franklin and William Shakespeare surpass, individually, the accomplishments of Troy Aikman. My point is that I admire the genius of Benjamin Franklin, am intrigued by Shakespeare's tragedies and disapprove of some of the choices these men made.

Mr. Bobo's shallow analysis of my "Bible-thumping" values demonstrates that he is uninformed. I would not approve of homosexuality if Troy Aikman, William Shakespeare or anyone else endorsed it. My value judgments aren't based on men's past accomplishments or a contemporary man's fleeting flame. My values are based on something more enduring. What are your values based upon, Mr. Bobo? Do you base your values on social values? Do your values change when society changes?

I base my values on unchanging Biblical values.

The simple truth is that God made a division between right and wrong; and he didn't ask any man's opinion when he made that distinction. Just because the idea or practice of homosexuality does not offend your conscience doesn't make the practice okay.

I think you should make a decision to live by your standards or those standards demanded by God. Furthermore, I think you should stop calling names and criticizing people who have made a decision that does not currently reflect your own.

Senators should be made accountable for actions

JENNIFER GOOCH

Now that the Student Association elections are over, and a whole new executive office and senate will soon be in place, I think it's time to take a look at just what the SA does for us.

Many Techsans do not know that our student government, the organization that lets administrators know what we, the students, want and need from them, is called the Student Association.

Many Techsans also do not know that we have a Student Senate, which is responsible for writing and voting in legislation that affects us. We vote for these senators to represent us in our respective colleges.

With the help of last year's Student Senate, a new grade replacement policy was passed and implemented.

That means if you get a failing (or just an unsatisfactory) grade, you can retake the class, and if you improve your grade, it will be replaced and your grade point average will be adjusted.

This year, the Student Senate wrote legislation letting the administration know how students feel concerning phone registration. Most of the other state universities in Texas already register by phone and have done so for years.

Now, it is estimated that by the spring of 1995, Techsans also will be registering by phone. Finally, some of the advanced technology that we have available will be put to use. Also this year, legislation was written and passed, which told administrators that juniors and seniors should not be required to get advised before registering.

This legislation has its pros and cons, because some majors really do need full advisement, from freshman year to senior year. But for other majors, advisement is just a formality and is not necessary.

Just last week, the Student Senate passed legislation that states that students do not want a multiculturalism course requirement. This is a really hot issue right now, one that is being talked about all over the country.

If you agreed or disagreed with any of this legislation—that was passed, you need to let your senators know about it.

Because 60 senators are elected, and even more run for a senator position, it is impossible for students to know how each one of these people feel about multiculturalism or even whether or not a multipurpose arena should be put in our parking lot.

Although we would love to do so, The University Daily doesn't have the space to print platforms of all the candidates running for senate. Only 10 percent of this student body voted in Wednesday's election, which is sad considering we have about 24,000 students roaming around campus who probably each have an opinion on this multipurpose arena issue.

Even more Techsans don't know that our Student Senate allocates about $140,000 to student organizations, probably one that you are a member of.

The point is, find out who your senators are and let them know what you think, even if it's just a note, a phone call or a formal letter. They are elected so that they can represent you.

All I learned about childrearing I learned in the '94 Olympics

ANNA QUINDLEN

The In-Home All-Kid Winter Olympics began here on the second snow day of the year. The opening ceremonies consisted of eating Honey Nut Cheerios out of the box and singing along loudly to the Royal Canadian Kilted Yakmen anthem from the Ren and Stimpy show.

"You be Nancy," said the representative of the third grade to the representative of the kindergarten. "I'll be Tonya's bodyguard."

The kindergarten representative fled upstairs to don her purple leotard and practice throwing her arms above her head and acknowledging the cheers of a nonexistent crowd. Her opponent was benched for unsportsmanlike conduct and given a long lecture about using "Inside Edition" as a barometer of behavior.

Could there have been a more fortuitous convergence of events than that of the Olympics in Lillehammer and the cursed American winter of 1994? The people of Norway, so snowbound yet so redolent always of good cheer, good complexion and great sweaters, made it seem bad form to carp about our storms, our mud slides, our earthquakes, our buried cars and icy sidewalks.

Winter storm warnings existed always in the shadow of news flashes on whether Jeff Gillooly, Tonya Harding's former husband, had sold yet another video of his ex-wife playing peek-a-boo with the top of her clothing, a 3.0 in the artistic impression category.

But more important, as school snow day gave way to school snow day, the Olympics provided not only an exhibition of athletic prowess, sportsmanship and garish one-piece latex actionwear, but also an opportunity to play along right here at home.

Which is how the All-Kid Olympic team came to be participating in the luge competition on the staircase while, in the kitchen below, the team sponsor read Majesty magazine, ate chocolate chips out of a bag and prayed for the snow to stop.

The luge was followed by bobsled in a box, speed skating in socks on the hardwood floor and team hockey using Tupperware as a puck. "Reebok," the competitors wrote on their foreheads with indelible pens, which will have to be explained to their grandmother.

The gold medal for whining was won by the representative of the third grade, who made the sentence "No marshmallows?" stretch for nearly a full minute with two tremolos and a conspicuous quaver in his voice. This broke the world record for a food complaint, which was previously held by a Russian boy who did not like root vegetables. It was the third grader's third medal of the day: He had taken the silver in teasing the dog and the bronze in dawdling while he was supposed to be changing from his pajamas into his clothes.

He and the fifth-grade representative, who appeared in recent months to have become the Torvill and Dean of bickering by aging out of Olympic-level competition, nevertheless staged a spirited display of accusations related to taking things that belonged to the other. The contest was a draw and they will meet again at breakfast to break the tie by bickering about who makes the more annoying chewing noises.

The representative of the kindergarten, peeled down to the leotard and the flimsy skirt she now wears for practice sessions, attempted a triple axel off the coffee table and, true to the spirit of the games, took a resounding fall. She was mollified only by false assurances that she would someday be permitted to own clothing with sequins on the bodice.

Her attempts to persuade the other competitors to join her in ice dancing were ridiculed, and she was awarded a gold medal in the cooties category.

The team then sang its anthem, "Great Green Gobs of Greasy Grimy Gopher Guts," and attempted to retire for the night without putting away the Tupperware, the cocoa mugs or the practice skirt.

They were recalled to the arena and then left discussing the biathlon, which consists of both cross-country skiing and guns. It was agreed that this was the ideal sport. The sponsor of the team sent them to their rooms with the promise that if they were not good, Jeff Gillooly would be by to tuck them all in.

Safety Week helps kick off spring break

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Whether hitting the ski slopes or hitting the beach, students will have the opportunity to obtain spring break safety tips before leaving.

Safety Week will be hosted today through Wednesday by Student Health Services and Impact Tech. In addition to receiving information, door prizes will be given away during sessions.

"It is a three-day educational awareness campaign on campus," said Robin Brewton, health education coordinator for Student Health Services. "There will be a variety of activities on campus to provide information on how students can have a safe spring break."

Programs will be conducted about safer sex, sun and fun, travel and alcohol safety.

"We hope these will help students because it is being held right before they leave for spring break," she said. "We will be providing information about things they will be encountering in only a few days."

Other programs will address acquaintance rape, sexually transmitted diseases, tobacco, AIDS and drug abuse. Relationships made over the break and about the dangers that can be caused by sunburns also will be presented.

"We will be making sure that they think about how what they do over spring break will affect their lives," she said.

Brewton said this is the first year Safety Week has been presented, and a bigger week is planned for next year.

Roger Smith, a junior molecular biology major from El Paso and a member of Impact Tech, said he believes the sessions will be conducted in a manner that will appeal to students.

"The information will not be given in a preachy manner," he said. "Students will have the chance to decide whether or not they want to act in a manner that is safe."

Committee trying to raise safety awareness among students

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

With spring break festivities beginning next week, the Texas Tech Personal Safety Committee is offering special programs to help students become aware of safety precautions during vacation.

"We heard of some kids last year that were killed coming back from New Mexico at the end of the vacation," said Jack Becker, a reference librarian and a member of the Personal Safety Committee. "What we're trying to do is make people consciously aware of what they can do to remain safe during the holiday."

Becker said a few ideas were generated last semester during meetings that prompted the safety committee members to provide programs for spring break safety.

"We had a change of chairperson and we really seemed to begin driving.

"Two Tech kids were killed in an accident in this car," Becker said. "The parents of those kids believe that by putting the vehicle on display, others will refrain from getting into a drinking and driving situation."

Becker said there were 1,222 alcohol-related traffic deaths and 478 driving while intoxicated arrests in Lubbock County last year.

"We want everybody to have a good time during their vacation, but we want everyone to come back safe and sound," he said. "It is a terrible thing to go and have fun and never come back because someone wasn't safe."

In conjunction with the spring holiday, the library will provide a continuous video at the University Center that will provide safety tips and encourage personal safety.

Spielberg wins Directors Guild award

NEW YORK (AP) — Steven Spielberg, director of the Holocaust drama "Schindler's List," won the top award from the Directors Guild of America Saturday.

He was not present to accept the award for directing the outstanding feature film of 1993.

The vote is closely watched because the winner often repeats at the Academy Awards. Since 1949, only three directors have won the director's guild award and not gone on to win the best director Oscar.

The ceremony was held the same night as another event in Los Angeles that Spielberg and other nominees were expected to attend.

The other nominees for best director were Jane Campion for "The Piano," Andrew Davis for "The Fugitive," James Ivory for "The Remains of the Day" and Martin Scorsese for "The Age of Innocence."

You can earn more than $16,750 during a standard Army Reserve enlistment ...
 And another $6,840 if you qualify for the Montgomery GI Bill ...

Plus if you have or obtain a qualified student loan, you could get help paying it off—up to $20,000—if you train in certain specialties in certain units.

And that's for part-time service—usually one week-end a month plus two weeks' Annual Training.

Tech's Smith, Whittle stop NMSU

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Behind sound pitching, the Texas Tech baseball team won two of three games against New Mexico State this past weekend.

The Red Raiders won 8-1 Saturday and 13-1 Friday at Dan Law Field.

Reliever Travis Smith switched from being primarily a reliever Saturday and started. Smith did well in his new role, pitching a complete game and raising his record to 3-0.

"I didn't know I was starting until (Saturday) morning," Smith said. "I really didn't get tired. I got lazy with my fastball and that's when they got hits."

Smith collected 10 strikeouts and gave up five hits. The Aggies went through four pitchers.

"Our key was Smith on the mound," Tech head coach Larry Hays said. "We gave him the opportunity to start and he came through."

The Raiders took control in the first inning when designated hitter Brandon Welch hit a two-run triple scoring Brody Gregg and Randy DuRoss. But Tech was not done as shortstop Saul Bustos brought in Welch to give the Raiders a 3-0 advantage.

In the third inning, Tech scored a run when third baseman Clint Bryant sacrificed to left center field scoring Welch.

Right fielder Dax Holmstead brought Bustos home in the fifth inning.

The Raiders scored three runs in the seventh inning when Marshall Bennett hit a two-run homer to left field followed by Homer doubling home Robin Harriss.

New Mexico State scored its only run in the eighth inning when shortstop Carlos Licon singled to bring in Joseph Elias.

On Friday, the Raiders were led by Jason Whittle (4-1) on the mound who pitched eight innings and struck out 11.

Tech took a 6-0 lead in the second inning with 11 hitters coming to the plate. Dave Lindstrom singled in two runs before Holmstead doubled in two more while Randy DuRoss singled in one. Welch hit a single to bring in the final run of the inning.

Bryant sacrificed to score Gregg in the fourth inning. In the next inning, Mitch King singled to bring in Bustos. Holmstead then made it to first scoring King. An error was committed by shortstop Licon, which scored Lindstrom to give Tech a 10-0 lead.

Tech finished the eighth inning scoring three runs when NMSU pitcher Lyle Rittman walked in a run and Holmstead doubled to bring in the last two runs.

The Aggies scored in the ninth inning when pinch hitter Jorge Martinez singled in Eric Dalton.

Dalton was called out in the seventh inning after hitting a double. He did not report to the umpire and was considered an out of turn batter.

"New Mexico State is a good ball club," Hays said. "They came in here expecting to win. Our guys tried to get something going. It was a tough, but clean series."

The Raiders took a day off, but they will host Wyoming in a three-game series beginning at 7 p.m. today at Dan Law Field.

Tech avenges loss to Aggies, 89-80

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

COLLEGE STATION — Texas Tech vanquished some of its frustrations of a month ago by soundly defeating Texas A&M 89-80 Saturday at G. Rollie White Coliseum.

The Red Raiders seemed to take away the home court advantage from the rowdy Aggie crowd in the second half.

"We've finally learned how to protect a lead on the road," said Tech head coach James Dickey.

The win is the sixth in a row for the Raiders, who finished regular season play at 16-10 and 10-4 in the Southwest Conference to tie Texas A&M (17-9, 10-4) for second place in the final conference standings.

Due to the rules of the tie-breaker for SWC tournament seedings, the Aggies will receive the second seed and the Raiders third for the postseason tournament that gets under way later this week in Dallas.

The Raiders found themselves behind for most of the first half, down by as many as eight points with 12 minutes left in the half. A Darvin Ham dunk with five minutes in the half tied the score for the first time in the game.

Lance Hughes hit a jumpshot just before the intermission to cut the deficit to 40-39 going into the intermission.

"They had a great crowd and we couldn't hear ourselves calling the plays," said sophomore forward Jason Sasser.

The second half began with Tech winning the tip and Sasser gave the Raiders their first lead of the contest with 19:04 remaining.

Tech then took control at the 16:34 mark and led for the rest of the game after another Sasser layup.

The Raiders opened up the lead to as many as 13 points. A&M could only come to within four with 2:55 left before seeing the game slip away.

"Their first five starters are as good as any athletes I've ever seen in college basketball," A&M head coach Tony Barone said.

It was another big day for Sasser, who led all scorers with 30 points along with 14 rebounds.

"We came out in the second half and shot the ball better," Sasser said. "We picked up our defensive intensity in the second half and everybody performed like they needed to," he said.

Junior guard Mark Davis ended up with 20 points on the day and said the emotion and crowd advantage was with the Aggies early, but that the Raiders knew what they had to do to come back.

"They were playing with a lot of emotion," Davis said of the Aggies. "It was senior night and the crowd gave them a big boost early, but in the second half we came out and increased our defensive pressure."

Davis said the team was thinking back to last month's loss to the Aggies in Lubbock.

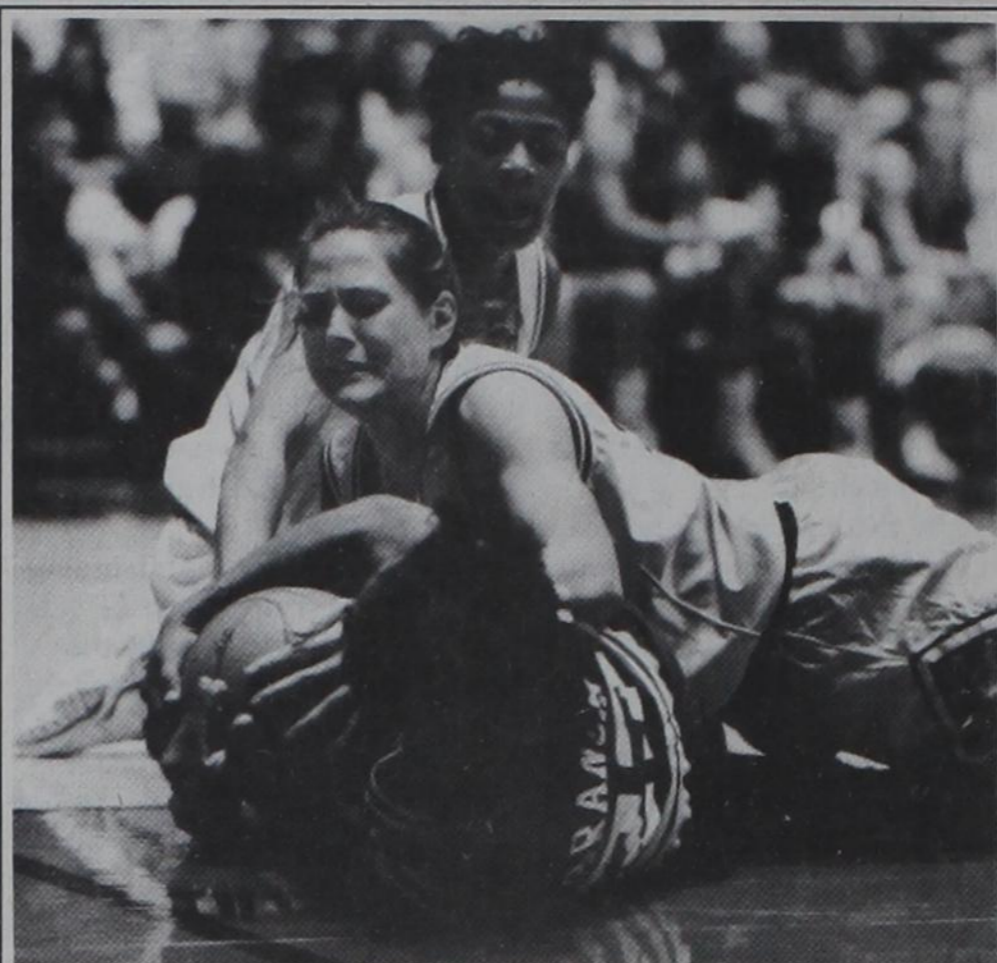

"It was a close hard-fought contest and so was tonight," Davis said. "We were on a winning streak and just came out ready to play."

Men netters drop 6-1 decision to UT

The Texas Tech men's tennis team dropped its second Southwest Conference match Saturday, falling to No. 4 Texas 6-1 at the Athletic Training Center.

The Red Raiders' record fell to 6-5 and 0-2 in the SWC, while Texas improved to 6-1 and 1-0.

The only win for the Raiders came in the No. 5 spot when Tal Roma defeated Ernesto Ponce 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Tech's lineup was shifted because the Raiders' No. 1 seed, Juan Gutierrez, was suspended because of a violation of team rules.

Klint Graf moved into the first spot and was defeated by Chad Clark, the fifth-ranked player in the nation, 7-5, 6-2. Eric Guzman lost to Ian Williams 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

The Raiders were unable to win in doubles when the first-seeded team of Graf and Guerrero lost to the No. 13 team in the country of Trey Phillips and Clark 9-7.

Men's golf team prepares for Louisiana Classic

The Texas Tech men's golf team will try to improve on its seventh-place finish at the Crown Colony Invitational today and Tuesday at the Louisiana Classic in Lafayette, La.

The 54-hole tournament will begin today at the Oakbourned Country Club.

"This field is a little stronger than our two previous two tournaments," coach Tommy Wilson said.

"Each tournament this spring seems to get tougher." Other Southwest Conference teams competing at the tournament include Baylor, Rice, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M and Texas Christian.

Michael Ashy, Bryant Novoa, Michael Schrade, Chris Mathis and Scott Friggle will play for Tech.

PRINCIPLES of SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

UNFORTUNATELY, THIS IS WHERE PEOPLE ARE PUTTING TOO MANY RETIREMENT DOLLARS.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don't take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that's a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax-bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the "extras" that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don't send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF's variable annuity—all backed by the nation's number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1 800-842-2733, ext. 8016.
