

Animals

Volunteers serve as backbone of wildlife rehabilitation center continued from page 1 Mitchell said the schedules of the center's workers are too demanding to pick animals up, so people are required to deliver the injured. "It is just too difficult to drop everything and go across town for something," she said. Severely injured animals are taken to Larry Farley of the Animal Medical Center, Mitchell said. "They are the backbone of our operation," she said. "They do all of our wildlife care for free."

Peek-a-boo SHARON M. STEINMAN; THE UNIVERSITY DAILY Buster the squirrel was the first animal Carol Mitchell rehabilitated in 1989. The squirrel has been released several times, but he has become tame and is unable to survive away from the center.

The center is funded by donations, help from the community and fund raisers such as an annual garage sale. Food, such as chicken necks, is sometimes donated to the center for the wildlife. Donated food, beef purchased by the center, rats and mice bred solely as a food source and small mammals such as squirrels and rabbits whose injuries result in death are the main food supplements.

"We have all kinds of animals that require lots of food," Mitchell said. "We can't raise or keep enough rats to feed them all." "Anything that dies and is not shot, sick or poisoned, we use for food," she said. "If we are going to do our job right, we have to do what nature does."

Mitchell said she had to get over many of her personal "hang ups." "I was taking care of wildlife for three or four years before I could kill a mouse or a rat," she said. "When I had to cut up my first mouse, I didn't think there was any way I could do what I am doing today," Mitchell said. "You just have to do some of this stuff."

However, she said the feeling she gets from healing makes all of the bad experiences less troublesome, and cited the time she released a hawk for which she had been caring. "We had a hawk last summer that had been with us for a year," Mitchell said. "We just watched him soar. It was awesome, just fantastic. It makes you feel like you are putting something back."

Students interested in volunteering at the center can call Mitchell or Tennyson at 799-2142.

Candidate visits Hub City

by NY LYNN NICHOLS THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Richard Fisher toured University Medical Center Friday in preparation for his April 12 runoff election against Jim Mattox.

Fisher said that, upon defeating Mattox, the race between him and Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison will be decided by Democrats.

"The decision for the voters is really a decision for the Democratic voters," Fisher said.

He used polls conducted by the Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle to show his position with Democratic voters.

"(The poll) showed me only 14 points behind Kay Bailey Hutchison and showed Mr. Mattox over 25 points behind," he said. "I believe if Mr. Mattox is at the top of the ticket that what will happen is that there will be such a negative vote that he will lose worse than Mr. Bob Krueger did."

Fisher said one of his major concerns is health care reform. He said he wants to see that "we do eventually accomplish universal coverage."

"I want a health care system that provides portability," he said. "That is that you can move and take your insurance with you — take access to health care with you."

"I want to make sure that we have access regardless of pre-condition," Fisher said.

He said that, if elected, whatever health care system is chosen will be tested.

"(When) we decide what the right health care system will be, before we apply it universally to the public at large we're going to test market it first," Fisher said. "And, we'll test market it on congresswomen, congressmen, senators and their staffs."

"They are public servants, they are not public masters," he said. "I go to serve, not to become empowered."

Fisher said other issues he plans to confront include championing small business, getting the criminal justice system in order and solving the welfare crisis.

"The welfare system does not work," he said.

Auto fatalities decrease in 1993

Alcohol, reckless driving major contributors to traffic accidents

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Traffic accidents in Texas increased in 1993, but the number of deaths resulting from those accidents declined for the eighth time in the last nine years.

According to figures released from the Texas Department of Public Safety, there were 390,417 reported traffic accidents in 1993, an increase of more than 2 percent from 1992.

"The overall number of traffic accidents in the state was up, and the number of persons injured in traffic accidents increased by 6 percent," DPS Director Col. James Wilson said.

Although there was an increase in traffic accidents, there was a decrease in traffic fatalities for 1993.

Last year, 3,037 people died in traffic accidents in Texas, a decrease of .7 percent from the death toll of 3,057 in 1992.

"You have to go back 28 years, to 1965 when 3,028 died in traffic accidents, to find fewer fatalities than we had in 1993," Wilson said.

Texas' traffic death rate, the number of fatalities per 100 million miles driven, is the lowest in state history at 1.8 for 1993.

Laureen Chernow, a spokeswoman for the DPS, said the DPS has not researched figures on why there have been more traffic accidents but less fatalities resulting from those accidents.

"That, we just don't know," Chernow said. "It may be that there are more vehicles on the road."

The major contributing factor for traffic accident fatalities in 1993 was alcohol, she said.

"Between 40 and 50 percent of all traffic fatalities involve alcohol on someone's part," Chernow said.

Along with alcohol, excessive speed during bad weather conditions and driving faster than the speed limit are contributing factors to traffic accidents, she said.

There is no specific region in the state where more traffic accidents occur other than in urban areas, Chernow said.

Along with enforcing the law, DPS officials participate in several public awareness campaigns to help prevent traffic accidents and fatalities, she said.

Watercolor workshop to offer tips from nationally recognized artist

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Students interested in learning more about watercolor will have the opportunity this week.

The West Texas Watercolor Society will sponsor a week-long watercolor workshop with nationally known artist Joseph Fettingis.

"New and prior students will both benefit from these painting sessions because I always bring new projects and new ways to see and understand watercolor paintings," Fettingis said. "With every year, it seems I learn something new. I would like to pass this knowledge on to my students."

Cost for the workshop, which will run six days, is $225.

The workshop will be in conjunction with the society's annual membership show, which will feature paintings by members of WTWS and will be displayed at the Godbold Cultural Center.

The show will run through April 17, while the workshops will run through April 13.

A demonstration will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday costing $5 for those not attending the workshop.

"There will be about 80 to 85 entries in this non-juried show," said WTWS member Lawanda Murfee. "The West Texas Watercolor Society sponsors workshops and exhibits of all types paintings and many styles are represented."

Murfee is a long-time watercolor painter and this year had one of her paintings chosen for the poster used at the 1994 Lubbock Arts Festival.

The WTWS is an outgrowth of the South Plains Art Guild, and has been in the area more than 25 years. The society is not limited to artists.

"We have about 110 members from all around West Texas and they're not just artists, some just appreciate watercolor," Murfee said.

For more information about the show, workshops or the society itself, call Eleanor Woodson at 795-4277 or Renee Simpson at 794-5959.

Architectural displays, disco party highlight Design Week

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Get out your bell-bottoms and disco shoes because the American Institute of Architecture Students chapter at Texas Tech will host a disco party this weekend.

AIAS, for the second year, begins Design Week today, a week devoted to displays of architectural work, lectures and a "let your hair down" NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) disco party.

"We based the week on models from other universities who devote a week for Architecture Beaux Arts," said Marcus Hopper, member of AIAS and a senior architecture major from El Paso. "It bridges the gap between architecture and the public."

Architecture students from AIAS are showcasing their projects in the University Center's Main Ballroom until Friday.

"We have asked students to submit anything from architecture renderings, construction drawings with details, process work, open art work like furniture design and photography," said Hopper.

The week is coordinated by students and members of the local AIAS chapter with prizes awarded for the best project.

In addition to the displays of projects, coordinators have invited architect and American Institute of Architecture member Rob Wellington Quigley to speak at 7 p.m. April 12.

"He is from San Diego and has been named by Time magazine as one of the best designers of 1992," said Grant Warner, a thesis architecture major from Houston.

He has also been awarded by Esquire and Architectural Digest, and for his work on social houses for the poor, Warner said.

Another architect, Stanley Saitowitz, will speak at 7 p.m. April 13.

Both lectures will be in the Main

Gallery of the architecture building.

Saitowitz, who designed a Holocaust memorial in Boston, is from San Francisco.

Attendance to the displays, lectures and party is free and organized by the student organizations at the Tech College of Architecture.

Design Week will wrap up with the AIAS Beaux Arts Ball at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Godbold Cultural Center.

The theme is "NAFTA Disco" with a live performance by the Horsies, an Austin-based band making its debut in Lubbock.

Activities include a hustle contest, which will look like the last scene in "Saturday Night Fever." Prizes will be awarded.

The connection to NAFTA is an all-night free trade in which coordinators ask attendants to bring something to trade.

All Beaux Arts Ball proceeds will benefit the student-sponsored lectures at the Tech College of Architecture.

Fashion design students take top honors at competition

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Three students in Texas Tech's College of Human Sciences received overall awards at the International Apparel Mart competition at the World Trade Center in Dallas last month.

Emily Bode, a junior fashion design major, received an honorable mention in the special occasion category, and Julie Allen, a senior fashion design major from Lubbock, won fourth place in the weekend wear category.

Keena Powell, a senior fashion design major from Lubbock, received a first place and Best of Show award for her career capsule wardrobe for resort convention meetings. She was offered an internship at the Paris Fashion Design Institute and is the fifth Texas Tech student to receive the award. Powell also received a cash prize, totaling her award to $8,000.

She plans to spend one month in Paris.

"I am really thrilled with the students' performance at the competition," said Elizabeth Haley, dean of the College of Human Sciences. "They've worked really hard and deserve the recognition."

Thirty-two colleges from across the nation participated in the annual competition.

"Twenty-six students were selected in the first round of competition and were included in the runway competition," Haley said.

All garments were modeled by professional models.

"We have developed an ongoing reputation to win the major awards at this competition," she said. "It really gets our name out there and lets people know we have a good program."

Raiders lose in ninth 10-8 to Shockers

WICHITA, Kan. (Special) — The Texas Tech baseball team stayed close to No. 8 Wichita State Monday, but lost 10-8 after an error by third baseman Clint Bryant helped to score the winning runs.

Tech fell to 28-11 while the Shockers raised their record to 19-7.

In the eighth inning, the two teams were tied at 8-8 before Bryant made an error, bringing in a pair of unearned runs.

Wichita State chiselled away at a 6-1 third inning Tech lead, scoring two runs in the third, fourth, fifth and eighth innings. Tech fell behind in the first inning, but the Raiders came back in the second by scoring four runs to go ahead 4-1.

In the third inning, designated hitter Brandon Welch hit a lead-off home run, which was followed by a double from shortstop Saul Bustos. Bryant laid down a sacrifice bunt and Marshall Bennett brought in Bustos with a triple.

First baseman Randy DuRoss added another run for the Raiders with a solo home run in the fourth inning.

The Raiders' final run was in the sixth when DuRoss scored on a error by second baseman Richie Taylor.

Jeff Peck recorded the loss after relieving Travis Smith. Peck went one and 2/3 innings, giving up three hits. Smith pitched six innings, giving up 10 hits.

The Raiders had 11 hits in the game, led by Bustos' 3-for-5 effort.

Tech will finish the two-game series with the Shockers today at 7 p.m. Eric Newman is expected to start for Tech on the mound.

In a two-game series against Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., this past weekend, Tech won 6-3 on Friday with starter Ryan Nye raising his record to 8-2. He finished the game striking out 10 batters and giving up seven hits.

The Raiders had 14 hits in the game with Bryant and DuRoss hitting home runs.

On Saturday, the Raiders fell to the Sooners 10-8.

Jason Whittle, now 7-3 on the year, picked up the loss. He went six and 1/3 innings, giving up 12 hits and eight runs, while striking out eight batters.

Tech's Polk takes second, third at Rice Invitational

The Texas Tech track teams traveled to two separate meets this past weekend.

The men's squad competed in the Texas-El Paso Spring Invitational at El Paso, while the women traveled to Houston to compete in the Rice Invitational.

For the men, the distance running trio of Bill Bush, Gabe Ruiz and Joe Perez finished third, fourth and fifth, respectively in the 5,000-meter run.

Pole vaulter Tim James captured a third-place finish with a vault of 16-11 3/4, and middle distance runner Ralph Ayyad garnered third in the 1,500-meter run with a 4:00.87.

Nebraska finished first in the team standings with 96 points, while Tech was fifth out of five teams with 29.

On the women's side, freshman Tabitha Polk paced Tech with a second-place showing in the shot put and a third-place finish in the discus. Polk threw a 47-3 in the shot, along with a 147-5 effort in the discus. Liz Gilliam finished fourth in the discus with a 145-6 throw, while Michelle Tobola finished fifth in the javelin with a 36.46 meters.

The 5,000-meter duo of Luisa Tam and Mandy Malouf finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the event.

Tam ran a 18:04 and Malouf was six seconds behind at 18:10. Tech finished ninth out of 12 teams.

Men netters split weekend matches

The Texas Tech men's tennis team started off Saturday with a 6-0 shutout against Texas-San Antonio, but fell to last year's Junior College National Champions McLennan Community College 4-2 in the late match at the Lubbock Municipal Tennis Center.

Tech's only loss to UTSA came in No. 1 doubles where Clint Graf and Ru Guerrero lost 8-5 to Ryan Reber and Ralph Budenbender. The Raiders still won the doubles point with the No. 2 and No. 3 pairs winning.

Only five singles matches occurred with the Raiders winning every match without using their No. 1 seed Juan Gutierrez.

The Raiders lost the doubles point against McLennan, but came back to win the Nos. 5 and 6 seeds.

SEE RESULTS PAGE 7

McLennan took control of the match, however, winning the first three seeds.

Gutierrez was defeated by Javier Ruiz 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. At No. 3, Erick Guzman lost to Matias Sansosti 6-2, 6-2 and in the No. 4 spot Ash Ayers lost to Dan Sonesson.

Razorbacks defeat Duke for first national title

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Arkansas won its first national championship Monday night, keeping a president happy and placing its coach where he always felt he belonged.

Scotty Thurman's 3-pointer, in traffic, with 50 seconds left as the shot clock expired gave the Razorbacks a 76-72 victory and deprived Duke, the dominant team of the decade, from a third title in four years.

With President Clinton once again watching his beloved Razorbacks in person, Arkansas came up with a gutsy performance to give coach Nolan Richardson a championship ring to wave in front of his critics whom he openly challenged throughout Final Four weekend.

It also offset an unbelievable final college game by Grant Hill, one of three Duke seniors looking for a third title.

He engineered an early second-half run that gave the Blue Devils a 10-point lead, but it wasn't enough as the Razorbacks fought back and took the lead for good on Thurman's long jumper.

Rangers lose opener to Yankees, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Key kept his perfect opening day record intact Monday, pitching the New York Yankees to a 5-3 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Key, 5-0 in openers, allowed five hits in seven innings before doubles by David Hulse and Will Clark chased him in the eighth. Bob Wickman relieved and Xavier Hernandez got three outs for the save.

Wade Boggs had four straight singles for the Yankees, and Danny Tartabull and Mike Stanley homered.

Kevin Brown, 11-2 against New York coming in — the best among pitchers with 10 decisions against the Yankees — gave up five runs and 10 hits in five innings.

After Joe DiMaggio opened the season with the ceremonial first pitch, the Yankees nicked Brown for a run in the first. Luis Polonia and Boggs singled and pulled off a double steal.
