

The high temperatures today will be in the low 60s with the low tonight in the upper 30s. Winds will be out of the northwest this morning at 5-15 mph and will take a turn to come out of the southwest by this evening. It will be mostly sunny today, setting the stage for a warming trend Thursday when temperatures are expected to reach the mid-70s.

100 wounded during Indian GATT protest

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police fired rubber bullets, water cannons and tear gas Tuesday at 150,000 protesters angry over India's decision to sign the GATT world trade accord. About 100 people were injured and 350 arrested.

Police blocked all roads leading to the capital's central district to keep the protesters from reaching Parliament.

Many marchers then dropped their flags and banners and began throwing stones and bricks at some 2,000 police on the manicured lawns at the cremation site of Mohandas K. Gandhi, known worldwide as a symbol of peace.

The three-hour protest was organized by India's two Communist parties and affiliated trade unions opposed to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Parents blame school problems on parents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Echoing a theme of President Clinton's, parents blame uninvolved parents for many of the problems facing public schools, a survey said Tuesday. Suggested solutions: homework hot lines and employer-donated time off work for school volunteers.

The survey, sponsored by the American Association of School Administrators, said parents generally give good grades to their local schools. But they say schools could improve if they crack down on troublemakers, reduce overcrowding, teach values and increase parental involvement.

Pollster Celinda Lake said parents cited lack of time as the No. 1 reason for not getting involved. More than a quarter said they believe they don't care enough.

"I am a working mom," a Dayton, Ohio, woman told the pollsters. "I think it is really tough. I think families are so squeezed for having time with their kids."

Judge orders doors open for dance troupe

AUSTIN (AP) — A judge has ruled that a ballet company should be allowed back into the studio. Roy Lozano's Ballet Folklorico de Tejas says it was locked out by the landlord after it became known that its founder had AIDS.

Justice of the Peace Jade Meeker on Monday issued a writ of re-entry order because she found no evidence of rent delinquency or that notice was given regarding the reason for eviction.

She also ruled that there was an appearance that the eviction may have violated the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Attorney Frank Hill, who is representing the landlord — Capitol Star Center owned by Sue and Joe Shell — said his clients had no idea about Lozano's illness at the time.

Women's sports expanding to include soccer

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech will add women's soccer to begin NCAA Division I competition this fall.

Adding the sport increases the number of women's intercollegiate sports at Tech to eight, the same number the men now have. Women's soccer is now a club sport at Tech.

According to Tech Athletic Director Bob Bockrath, the addition of women's soccer is a statement of Tech's commitment to evening the athletic opportunities between men and women in Division I competition.

"We are very pleased to be able to announce that we are adding women's soccer in response to our commitment to increase varsity sports opportunities for women at Texas Tech," Bockrath said.

Bockrath explained that the Title IX mandate of the federal government requires each university to allow for athletic scholarships which reflect the undergraduate population according to gender.

"We still have a ways to go to be in compliance," he said. "To be honest, the Title IX requirement accelerated our addition of women's soccer, but we were going to add it anyway."

Bockrath said that Tech is looking at adding other women's sports in the future.

Swimming, a sport that former Tech Athletic Director T. Jones dropped in 1986, may come back in the future, Bockrath said.

"Swimming is a big possibility," Bockrath said. "We're also considering softball, bowling and crew."

Currently, four Southwest Conference schools are involved in Division I NCAA women's soccer: Texas, Texas A&M, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian.

Tech will offer 11 athletic scholarships for the soccer team, the maximum allowed by the NCAA.

Bockrath stressed that the new scholarships in no way take away from the men's athletic teams, or any of the women's programs.

"The money for the additional scholarships comes from money the athletic department has already budgeted, along with help from (Tech President) Dr. (Robert) Lawless," Bockrath said.

The university is considering applications for the head coaching position, Bockrath said.

Bockrath said Tech is looking at utilizing existing facilities for practice and games, including City of Lubbock fields.

The regular season will begin in September and ends with postseason play in November.

Texas Tech has competed in 15 sports since 1986, the year the men's and women's swimming teams were eliminated. Men compete in football, basketball, baseball, cross country, indoor track, outdoor track, golf and tennis.

Women's sports include basketball, volleyball, cross country, indoor track, outdoor track, golf and tennis.

Additional sports could be added in future

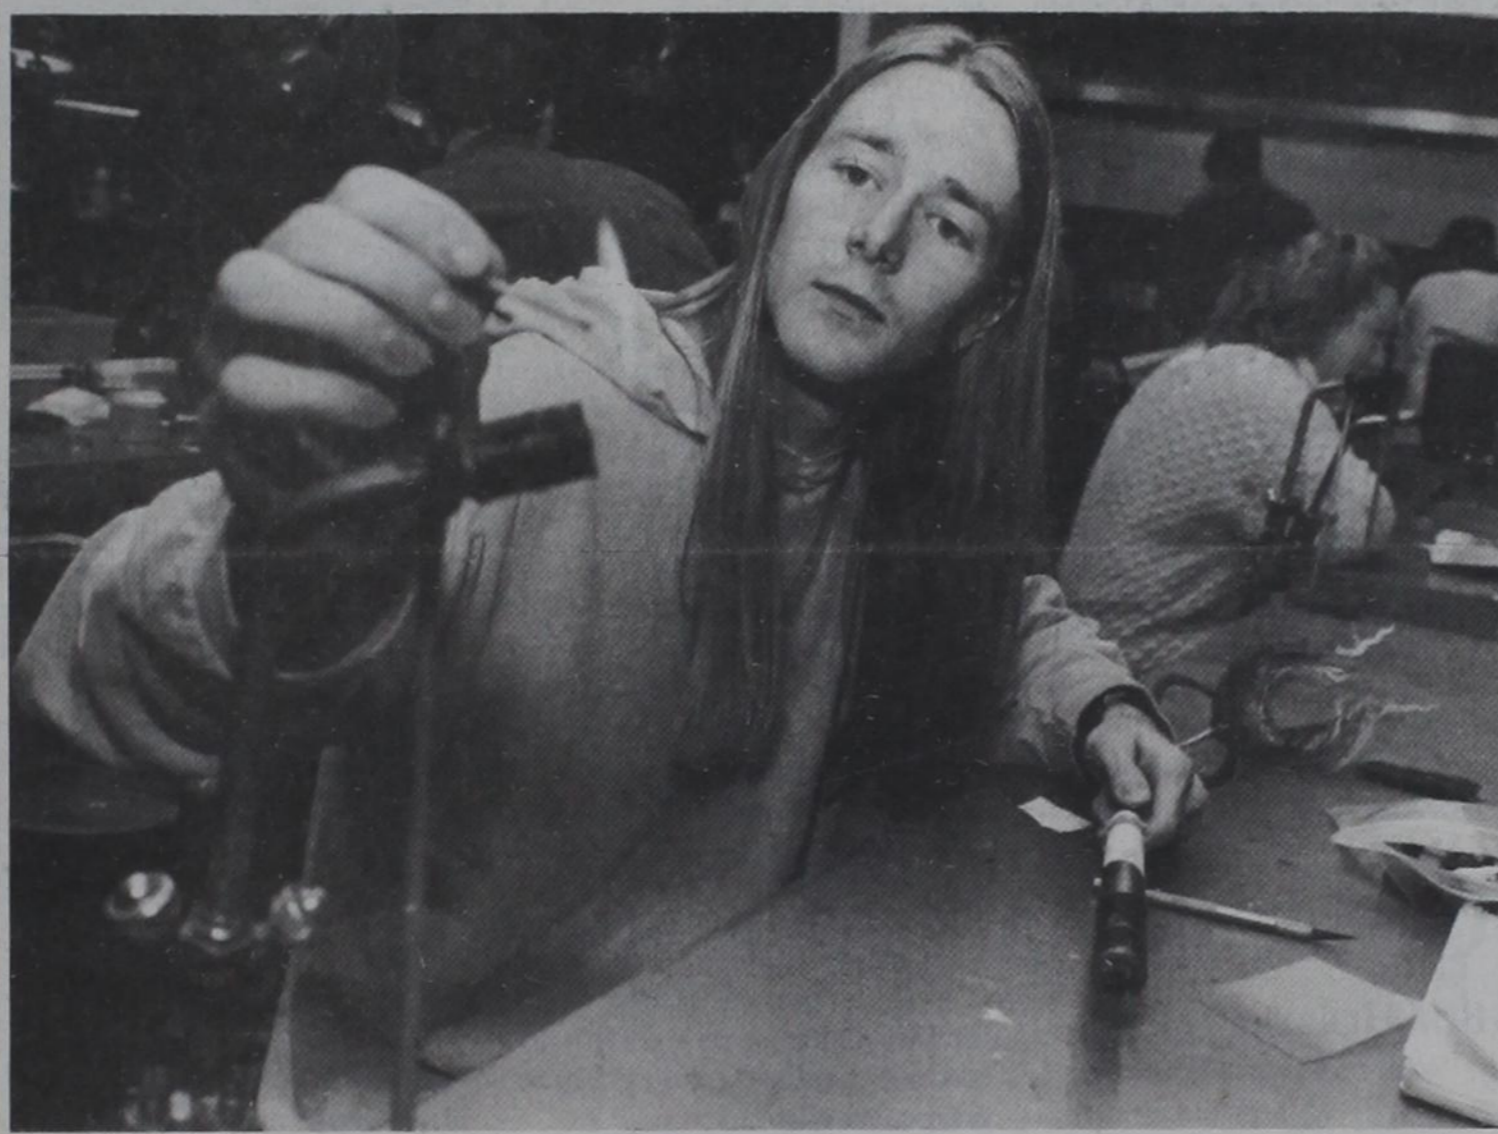

Tech athletes on scholarship by sport:

Football: 85
Men's basketball: 13
Women's basketball: 15
Baseball: 11.7 *
Women's volleyball: 12
Men's track: 12.6 *
Women's track: 16
Men's golf: 4.5
Women's golf: 6
Men's tennis: 4.5 *
Women's tennis: 8
Women's soccer: 11

* NCAA regulations require full scholarships for these sports. The rest of the programs can divide their allotment into partial scholarships if desired, explaining the decimal points.

Faculty honored for outstanding service

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Several Texas Tech faculty members were honored Tuesday for meritorious service and outstanding teaching.

Tech President Robert Lawless awarded recipients with medallions and monetary stipends during the annual Faculty Honors Convocation ceremony.

Lawless said Tech has continuously moved up in the ratings of U.S. News and World Report's America's best colleges.

"We're in the top 153 out of some 4,000 universities," Lawless said.

He said he takes great pride in Tech's faculty members and said that, because of the faculty, "we have moved up in successive years in recognition."

"We have gained great amounts of recognition for what you (faculty) do," Lawless said. "We appreciate the highest standards of professionalism."

Fourteen faculty members from the university and the Texas Tech University Health Science Center received the President's Excellence in Teaching Award, and four faculty members received the President's Academic Achievement Award.

Lawless said academic achievement awards are granted based on distinguished teaching, research and service.

Two faculty members received the El Paso Natural Gas Foundation Faculty Achievement Awards, and nine members received the Ex-Students Association New Faculty Awards.

"This year is the seventh year we have given this award," Lawless said. "These new faculty members have earned distinction in their time here."

Seven members received the Outstanding Researcher Award, and Larry Hovey from the department of continuing education received the Continuing Education Faculty Award.

Sankar Chatterjee and Rodney Preston were recognized for their appointments as Horn Professors.

Four faculty members received the 1993-94 Dads and Moms Association Awards, three members received recognition for the Gloria Lyerla Library Memorial Fund and nine faculty members were recognized as Emeritus Faculty.

Mattox hits Hub City before run-off

■ Candidate proposes student regents

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

U.S. Senate candidate Jim Mattox visited Lubbock Tuesday as part of his campaign across West Texas before the April 12 Democratic Party primary run-off election.

He is being challenged by Dallas businessman Richard Fisher.

Mattox said he is sensitive to the needs of college students and their rights.

In 1973, the Intercollegiate Student Association named him the outstanding legislator in Texas.

"Since that time, I've been very sensitive to student needs," he said. "I have found over the years students have been the conscience of the Democratic Party."

Having a student representative on each university board of regents is one of his proposals for students, Mattox said.

He said he also is focusing on crime and health care reform because of the effects it has on everyone, especially young people.

"Health care is a major concern for us," Mattox said. "The program must convey the health care needs of students."

Health care will be the major concern for the United States for the next six to eight years because of its effects on the national budget, he said.

Mattox said he is planning to fight crime by establishing a 14-point plan that includes stopping drug traffic from Mexico and rehabilitating people with alcohol and drug abuse problems.

His endorsements by law enforcement agencies, such as the Combined Law Enforcement Association of Texas, are because of his proven work against crime as the attorney general of Texas, Mattox said. Fisher has no real position on crime and does not represent Democratic beliefs, he said.

"He (Fisher) is what I would call a light Republican," Mattox said. "He walks, talks and lives like a Republican."

Mattox said Fisher worked against the Democratic Party by contributing $1,000 to the Bush/Quayle campaign in 1991 and by working for Ross Perot in his campaign for the presidency.

Fisher is running on the Democratic ticket because he believes his money will work better there, Mattox said.

Future scientists, engineers to visit Tech

Events slated for prospective minority students

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Science and engineering will be the topic of discussion this weekend as high school and junior high students from Lubbock and surrounding areas visit Texas Tech.

"TAME (Texas Alliance for Minorities in Engineering) is a statewide organization," said Cornelius Griffin, director of minority engineering programs. "Its goal is to increase minorities in engineering and science."

TAME Day, from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, will be sponsored by the Texas Tech Minority Engineering Programs in conjunction with TAME Lubbock, Griffin said.

"It is designed to bring high school and junior high students from Lubbock and the surrounding counties to Texas Tech, exposing them to the College of Engineering and the many opportunities available to them in the areas of engineering and science," he said.

"The individual departments within the college of engineering will be conducting experiments and demonstrations to students." Griffin said the high school and junior high students will be divided into manageable groups and rotated from session to session.

Speakers will address admissions processes, financial aid and obtaining scholarships, Griffin said.

"There will be people from financial aid and admissions," he said. "There will also be demonstrations of the various work being done in the different departments."

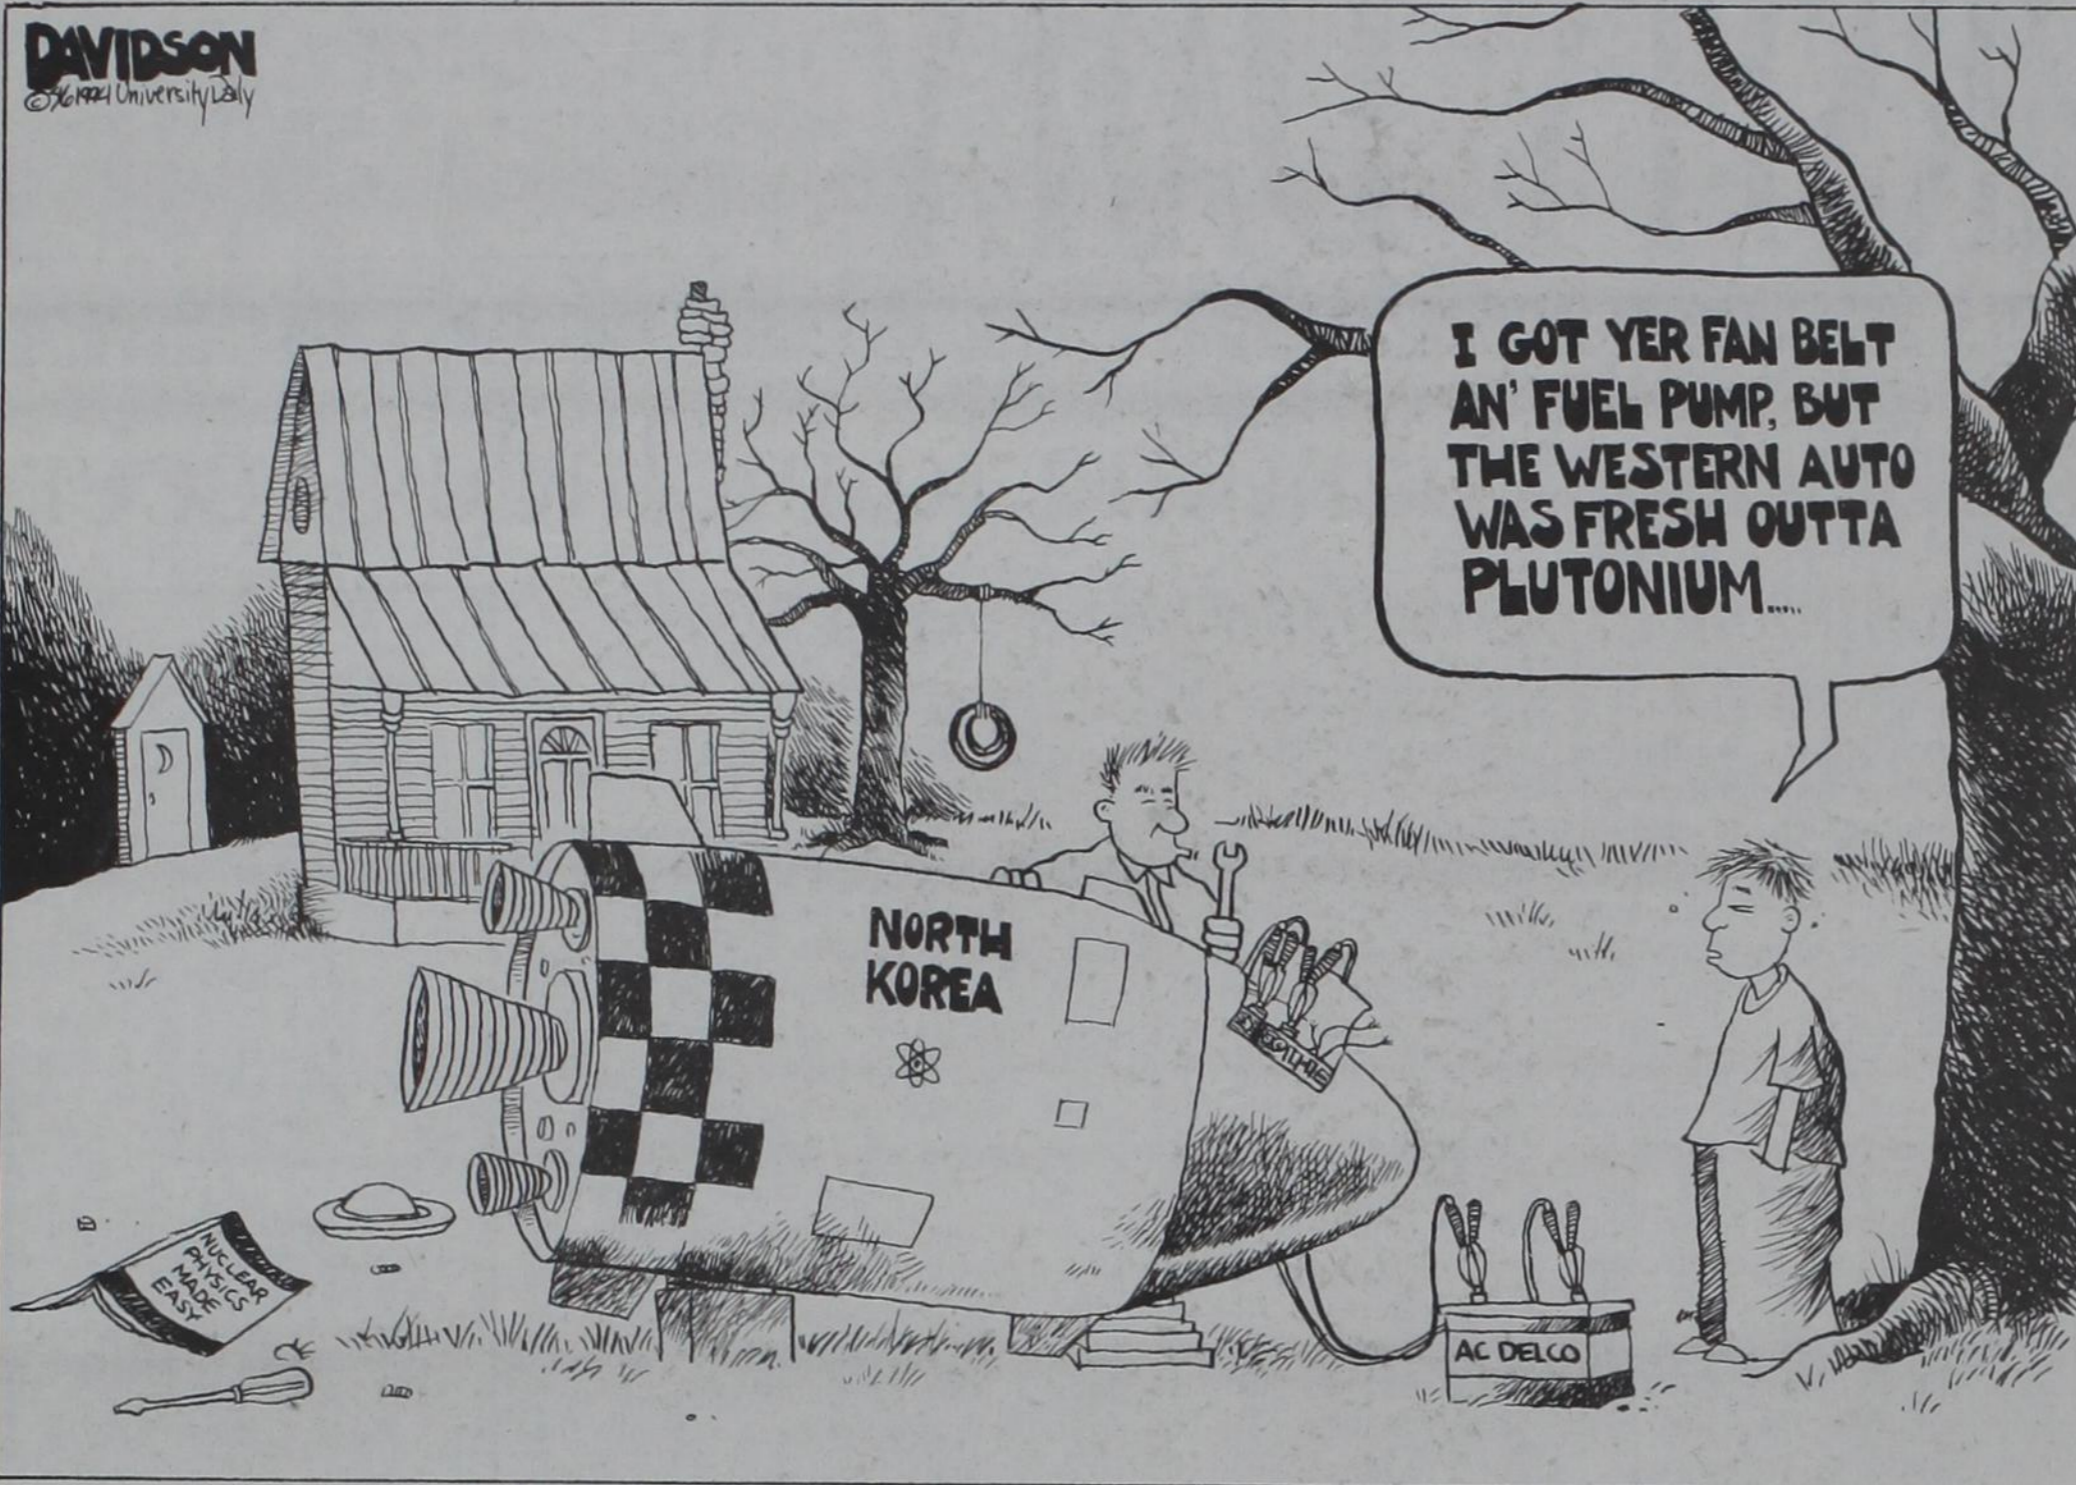

Griffin said he expects about 200 students, and said lunch will be provided.

Students from the Tech chapters of the National Society of Black Engineers and from the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers will act as guides and will assist students whenever possible, Griffin said.

Griffin said the purpose of TAME Day is to improve recruitment.

"Our purpose is to encourage them to pursue math and science in high school and thus pursue it in college," he said.

THE SECOND AMENDMENT'S RIGHT TO BEAR ARMS IS AMBIGUOUS

To the editor:

There have been many letters to the editor lately in the wake of the Brady Bill, often concerning the Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms. A recent article in Rolling Stone helps to clarify some of the misconceptions regarding the Second Amendment. The cases which follow were quoted from that article.

The Second Amendment states, "A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed." State Courts as well as the Supreme Court have consistently held that the Second Amendment serves as a check on the power of the federal government to interfere with a state's ability to maintain a militia.

Some states do have constitutions that guarantee the individual right to keep and bear arms. One of those states is Illinois. Even in such states, local communities that wish to ban handguns have done so constitutionally. Morton Grove, Illinois banned the sale and possession of handguns in 1981. A federal appeals court held that "because the Second Amendment is not applicable to Morton Grove and the possession of handguns by individuals is not part of the right to keep and bear arms, (the Morton Grove Ordinance) does not violate the Second Amendment." The Supreme Court, refusing to hear the case, let the ruling stand in 1983.

In 1939 the Supreme Court refused to strike down a federal law making it a crime to ship sawed-off shotguns in interstate commerce. Significantly, in regard to the Second Amendment, the Supreme Court found no evidence that sawed-off shotguns had "some reasonable relationship to the preservation...of a well-regulated militia."

In "U.S. v. Warin," the defendant attempted to argue that the federal law prohibiting possession of an unregistered machine gun violated his Second Amendment rights. The 6th Circuit found that all of the defendant's arguments were "based on the erroneous supposition that the Second Amendment is concerned with the rights of individuals rather than those of the states." Warin's conviction was upheld.

What all of this boils down to is that there is no constitutionally protected right for an individual to keep and bear arms. The Second Amendment applies to states and their right to keep well-regulated militias. Had the framers of the constitution intended for the individual to have the right to keep and bear arms, they might have left off the first part of the amendment and stated simply "The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." But the framers did include the reference to a well-regulated militia for each state and as such the amendment applies to states - not individuals. State Courts as well as the Supreme Court have consistently held this view.

Things are looking bleak for the Billarys

JAKE RIGDON

What can be said about the presidential duo of Bill and Hillary Clinton? They swept the liberal-minded media right into the hearts of the populace, and in turn, landed in the White House.

Keynotes such as "economic reform" and "family values" were thought of as gospel.

But those mean, no-good conservative Republicans are starting to ruin everything and unearth several White House worms.

Shake the Democratic dust out of your heads and think about it.

The Billary affair includes a suicide (was it really a suicide?), sex scandals, illegal money laundering and illegal governmental campaign funding.

One of the buzzwords floating around "Slick Willy" is the beast known as sexual harassment. Another woman (besides Gennifer Flowers) has charged that Mr. Clinton made three sexual advancements toward her one night.

Has the liberal media paid much attention to their precious Democratic playboy's sexual (mis)conduct? Of course not.

Remember the Anita Hill allegations? Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas was conservative.

"I have heard nothing of the sort," said Texas Tech Associate Professor Mark Harmon when asked about Clinton's latest sexual harassment charges. Harmon is also the Lubbock Democratic Chairman elect.

Yet Scott Mann, the Lubbock Republican Democratic Chairman was right when he said the public needs to be wary of these allegations. After all, no sexual misconduct has been proven - yet.

Instead, the media would rather talk about Clinton's wonderfully thought-out economic reform plan. You know, the one some economists say is roughly the equivalent of an eighth graders' B+ term paper.

His plan actually led to a 6.5 percent unemployment rate for March (unchanged from February) and the creation of 450,000 new jobs. Sounds great, right?

"My interpretation of (that figure) is that, yes, a large number of jobs were created," Texas Tech economics professor Rasheed Al-Hmoud said. "But if the unemployment rate has remained constant, then that tells me that 450,000 jobs were also lost."

Things aren't as rosy as Billary would have you believe.

Don't worry! If things are looking bleak, then obviously we should allow Hillary to prepare her own economic plan. Heck, if she can turn a $1,000 future investment in the cattle commodities trade into a $100,000 profit, just think of what she could do for this economy! Not so fast.

"The likelihood of that occurring is about one in a million," Austin independent financial consultant Douglas Thornblum said. "Even experts are fooled by the market sometimes, and for an amateur to (accomplish) that is practically non-existent unless she had inside information or was given favorable treatment."

Thornblum contends that Mrs. Clinton could have been given both favorable treatment and inside information because, at the time, she was the governor's wife.

And this is what you call "New Democrats?" But this isn't the big White House issue right now. The real coverup, er issue, is the Whitewater scandal.

"They have done all the right things to clear the air," Harmon said. "This is not particularly interesting."

Harmon said he felt the Whitewater scandal does not compare to the Iran-Contra controversy (under Reagan) and the selling of arms to Iraq (under Bush).

Come on people! If Reagan and Bush actually broke the law, then should we let the Clintons off the hook because the amount of money this scandal entails is less?

"But my guess is that nothing is to be found," Harmon said of the Clinton's involvement in Whitewater.

At first, many conservatives were a bit weary of these allegations. To jump on the Rush Limbaugh Clinton-bashing bandwagon would parallel the phrase "sore losers."

"I am not in favor of any programs that are detrimental to the presidency of this country," Mann said. "This is all unsubstantiated evidence right now - nothing has been proven yet - but there are many questions."

Yet incriminating evidence upon incriminating evidence has started to pile up and it is hard to ignore the facts.

"This has to be investigated," Mann said.

Fact: "Slick Willy" has been accused - by more than one person - of sexual misconduct.

Fact: Hillary Clinton's 100 percent increase in her trade commodity is, at best, nearly impossible if done legally.

Fact: The Billarys are being investigated for the alleged Whitewater scandal.

Remains to be seen: The fabulous economic reform that was so eagerly promised. Whatever happened to the campaign promise of immediately cutting middle-class taxes by 10 percent?

The American people have given this administration time to shape up. But now, or in the immediate future, it might be time to ship out.

Clinton's talk of Haiti conflict just that — talk

BOB HERBERT

With most people, and especially with politicians, it is more instructive to watch the things they do than listen to what they say. And so it is with President Clinton and the extreme split between his high-toned rhetoric and his administration's shameful behavior regarding Haiti.

Clinton has been unwavering in his spoken support for the restoration of democracy in Haiti and the return to power of its ousted president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

In a radio address to the Haitian people in January of 1993, Clinton, then president-elect, said: "Several years ago, I saw personally the beauty of your land. I felt the warmth of your people and ever since then I have wanted you to have freedom and democracy and economic opportunity."

As a presidential candidate, Clinton repeatedly attacked the Bush administration's Haitian refugee policy, saying at one point, "I am appalled by the decision of the Bush administration to pick up fleeing Haitians on the high seas and forcibly return them to Haiti before considering their claim to political asylum."

Clinton is a master of the correct thing to say in any given situation. But all you need is a glimpse of the net thrown around Haiti by the Coast Guard to capture — and return — fleeing refugees to realize that the President's actions can be something else again.

This lesson has been hammered repeatedly into the head of Aristide. The treatment he has received from his "friends" in the United States seems very peculiar when you consider that he and the democracy that he represents are the clear victims in this saga, and that the murderers thugs who ousted him in a coup in September 1991 are villains devoid of any redeeming value.

The Clinton administration has tried to impose on Aristide a series of proposed "settlements" that, if carried out, would have meant at best that he would return to Haiti as president in name only, unable to govern effectively, and at worst that he would be placed in imminent danger of being murdered.

The latest of these is a ludicrous plan, dreamed up by the State Department, that would virtually assure the coup leaders amnesty and a strong voice in the formation of a new government, and doesn't even bother to set a target date for Aristide's return.

Aristide has quite sensibly rejected such proposals. For that he has been labeled intransigent and treated increasingly shabbily by the administration.

No matter that he upheld his end of last year's Governors Island accord, and that the coup leaders treated the accord the way a scowflaw treats a parking ticket. Aristide may have won a free and fair election in Haiti, but to the political sophisticates in the upper echelons of the government in Washington he is a boor and a nuisance.

The administration, in conjunction with the United Nations, has also imposed an embargo on Haiti that has substantially increased the suffering of the Haitian people and is so riddled with loopholes it has not come close to bringing the junta to its knees.

And a commercial embargo imposed by the United States was carefully crafted to exclude assembly plants, which are used by companies outside Haiti to assemble goods in Haiti (with cheap Haitian labor) for export elsewhere. U.S. trade with Haiti increased in 1993.

Meanwhile, the atrocities committed by the police and the military against the Haitian population continue. Thousands of civilians have been killed, tens of thousands are in hiding.

Human rights organizations report that the Haitian police — and armed civilians allied with them — are raping women with impunity as part of their countrywide campaign of terror.

Eventually even the prettiest of words can lose their meaning in the cold light of reality. While President Clinton says nice things about them, the Haitians are being destroyed.

Advisers needed to ease Tech transition

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech students are needed to help ease the culture shock many international students experience when coming to Tech from their home country.

The Office of International Affairs is looking for orientation advisers to help with fall orientation and to help international students feel less dazed and confused.

"We need people who have a week's time in August to help the international students just getting here to get used to the culture and give information," international student counselor Lucy Dawson said.

There are about 765 international students at Tech this semester representing more than 70 countries.

"We need people interested in other cultures and who want to help people," Dawson said.

The advisers will need to give tours of Tech and the Lubbock area and should be available to answer questions international students may have.

"They can answer questions on how to register, how to get a social security card or maybe just take them to the mall," she said.

The experience is beneficial to the adviser and to the international students, Dawson said.

"It's a wonderful experience," she said. "You learn a lot about yourself and your culture just by being around people with other cultures."

Dawson said being an adviser also is worthy of being included on a resume.

"Because more and more in the business world you will encounter people of a different culture," she said.

Applications are due by the first of May and can be picked up in the OIA office in West Hall, room 242. Orientation will be Aug. 16-26.

The position is not paid, Dawson said.

"You are paid by the friends you make and the experience you get," she said.

Less rain means decreased ground water levels

by NY LYNN NICHOLS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbock County ground water levels decreased an average of 1.04 feet in 1993, according to the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

"We had an unusual decline as a result of a decrease in precipitation," said Don McReynolds, High Plains Water District technical division director.

The water level decline in Lubbock County represents a decrease of 90,620 acre-feet of water in storage in the Ogallala Aquifer last year.

"This really isn't a panic-type situation because (the ground level) does fluctuate from year to year," said Carmon McCain, High Plains Water District information specialist.

Ground water levels increased 0.19 feet during the 10-year period from 1984 to 1994 within the Water District's Lubbock County service area. From 1989 to 1994, there was an annual decline of 0.29 of a foot.

"We go out every year to a network of 1,174 observation wells," McCain said. "We actually physically measure the unit's level."

He said the measurement is conducted in January and February of each year with steel tape that is coated in blue chalk. The tape is lowered into the unit with a 5- to 10-foot variance from the previous year. When the water comes in contact with the tape, it turns blue.

Of the 15 surrounding counties in the High Plains Water District, only Cochran County recorded an average rise in ground water levels in 1993.

McCain said irrigators today are doing a good job as far as using and conserving ground water levels is concerned.

"It's very important that the agricultural producers have done a very good job in how they implement water systems," he said. "Our agricultural producers just are not wasting."

Producers have a 90 percent conservation rate with the Lepa system, McCain said.

"(The Lepa system) is a center-pivot leakage system," he said. "The water losses are almost eliminated."

McCain said another system also is instrumental in obtaining ground water levels.

"(The producers have been using) surge valves," McCain said. "(A surge valve) helps as far as eliminating water waste known as tail water — that's the water that runs out of the field. These valves allow a more uniform application of water."

Ground levels for this year depend upon the amount of precipitation the area gets, McCain said.

Ex-marine found dead

Movie based on real-life attack

MEDFIELD, Mass. (AP)—An ex-Marine whose court-martial case was the true story behind the movie "A Few Good Men" was found shot to death three months after he disappeared.

David V. Cox, 27, was reported missing by his girlfriend Jan. 4. He left behind an uncashed paycheck and the keys to his truck.

His decomposed corpse was found Saturday about a mile from the nearest road, after a canoeer spotted a white sneaker on a remote riverbank.

Cox had been shot once in the back of the neck and three times in the torso, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt said.

"A Few Good Men," starring Jack Nicholson, Tom Cruise and Demi Moore, was based on an attack in which Cox and several other Marines were accused of beating another Marine to death.

Seven Marines accepted plea bargains, but Cox and two others opted for courts-martial. Cox was acquitted and later received an honorable discharge.

Farrakhan welcome at church

HOUSTON (AP) — A Baptist Church has offered sanctuary to Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan and his men-only speech. Both the controversial speaker and his agenda were driven off Texas Southern University a week ago.

Farrakhan will speak at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Pleasant Grove Missionary Baptist Church, in northeast Houston.

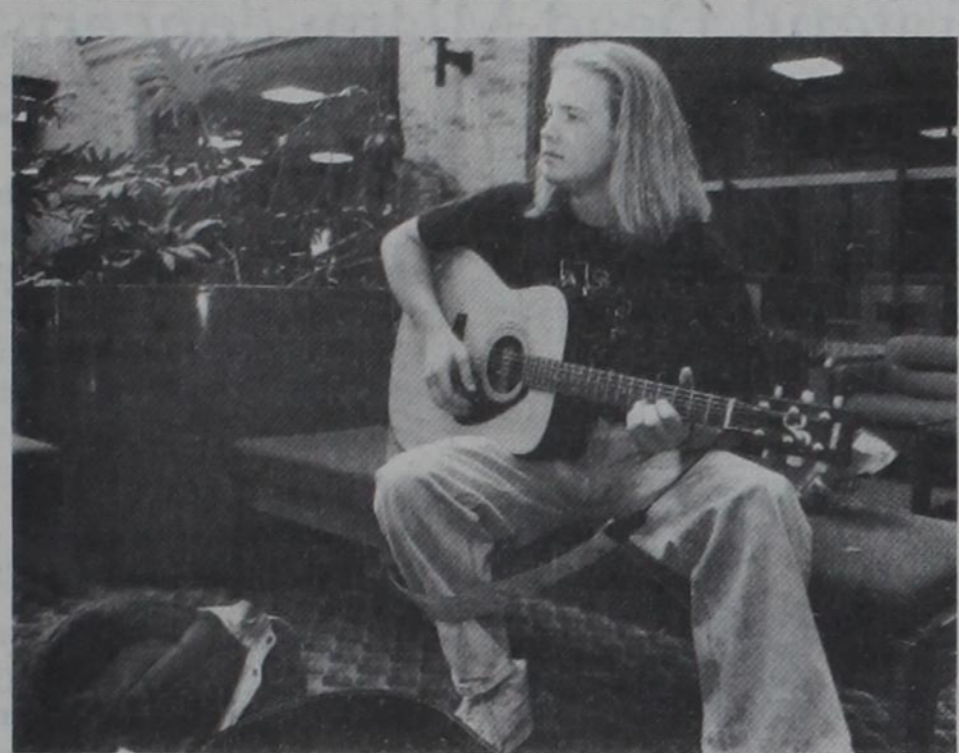

In a surprise announcement Monday, Robert Muhammed, leader of the Nation of Islam Mosque No. 45 in Houston, said Farrakhan also plans to give an all-women address in Houston in the "near future." No date or location for Farrakhan's all-women address has been set.

Last week, Farrakhan canceled a speech at TSU after school officials expressed concern that women would be excluded.

Farrakhan decided on the all-male format to address problems facing black males in America, a Nation of Islam spokesman said.

Muhammed said a disproportionate number of black youths are in trouble with the law, become victims of homicide and generally have lower life expectancies than their white counterparts.

Traveling classical pianist to give free performance

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A van, an artist, a piano and a technician have been traveling across the country to provide music recitals to various audiences.

Pianist Laura Spitzer will perform at 8:15 p.m. today in Texas Tech University's Hemmle Recital Hall.

Admission is free.

The pianist has traveled more than 60,000 miles by van with her Steinway piano.

She will play selections from Mozart, Chopin, Gershwin and Joplin, said Bradley Cope, School of Music publicity director.

"She will be playing a varied program," he said. "She is very highly acclaimed."

While in Lubbock, Spitzer will perform at several schools.

Her touring schedule also includes performances in Wisconsin, Michigan, and British Columbia, said Ruth Holmes, a professor of keyboard studies at Lubbock Christian University.

"She is a wonderful artist, and her warmth captivates the audience," Holmes said. "She goes many places where there isn't even a recital hall. She sometimes performs at the general store or at school gymnasiums."

Spitzer studied as an undergraduate at the Mozarteum in

She is a consummate artist and an incredible performer.

Ruth Holmes
LCU keyboard studies professor

She is pursuing a doctorate at the University of Southern California.

"She is great at performing for kids and audiences who may not have heard classical musicians before," Holmes said. "She is a consummate artist and an incredible performer."

The performance will be sponsored by Tech's School of Music, Llano Estacado Friends of Piano, SPELLS Foundation and the Piano Manufacturers Association International.

Deadline approaching for UC Recyclable Sculpture Contest

For those who have a knack for making art out of recyclable material, the University Center is conducting a sculpture contest.

Applications for the third annual Recyclable Sculpture Contest are due by 4:30 p.m. Friday at the UC Ticket Booth. Actual sculptures are due April 16.

The UC began the contest during a focus week, "Impact Earth," which aimed to increase awareness of environmental issues and what can be done to help the environment, said coordinator and activities specialist Ceci Lou.

Sculptures will be displayed April 18 in the UC Courtyard, and prizes will be awarded at 7 p.m. April 21 in the UC Courtyard.

Prizes include a $50 cash award for first prize and gift certificates related to the environment, such as plants and used CDs.

"Anyone can enter as a group, or alone," Lou said. "We encourage everyone to get involved in the environment in a fun way."

Tech graduate to address Friends of the Library

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

One of Texas Tech's own will be the guest speaker at the Friends of the Library Annual Membership Meeting Friday.

Byron Price, a Lubbock native who received his master's degree in museum science from Tech, will speak about "The Great Panhandle Indian Scare of 1891."

"We (Friends of the Library) try to get people who are from the Lubbock community and who are writers," said Eileen Goggin, public relations director. "We try to make people aware of the joys of reading and writing."

Price is the executive director of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City.

A 1970 graduate of West Point, Price has authored several books and numerous articles on western subjects.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. at the Lubbock Women's Club, located at 2020 Broadway.

Tickets cost $25 for couples or $12.50 per person and should be purchased in advance. For more information, call Alyson Vordermark at 794-7064 or Synda Wilson at 795-7286.

No extra security planned for Grateful Dead Miami concerts

MIAMI (AP) — Miami police plan no extra security for three Grateful Dead shows this week, despite a melee at a Dead concert in Orlando that forced officers to use tear gas and pepper gas.

"We have many, many shows that come through here without any trouble in the course of the year, and I don't think this will be any different," police spokesman Angelo Bitsis said Tuesday. "We don't anticipate any trouble."

On Monday, hundreds of people, some throwing rocks and bottles, tried to push their way into the Dead's sold-out show in Orlando, rushing past barricades and pressing against the Orlando Arena's glass doors.

No one was seriously injured and no arrests were made. There were no problems inside the 15,000-seat arena.

The Dead has scheduled shows Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in Miami.

Fans angry about Sinatra's stage changes

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Fans of Ol' Blue Eyes are seeing red after Frank Sinatra played a game of musical chairs with an upcoming concert.

Sinatra changed the seating arrangement at his April 16 concert from in-the-round to the "end-stage" configuration, which puts the band behind him.

That means that ticket holders, some of whom stood in line for hours, must go back and exchange their seats. They'll be placed as close to their original seats as possible, but there will be only three front-row sections now, instead of six or seven.

"That's ridiculous, it really is," said Lisa Pasho, who bought 22 tickets.

Carlson negotiates new contract

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers and Cody Carlson's agent Tuesday were negotiating a new contract that would cut the quarterback's 1994 pay by $1 million but put him in the starting lineup and extend his stay with the team.

Finalization of the deal was expected to send 10-year veteran Warren Moon packing for Minnesota.

The Oilers and Vikings have been discussing a deal that would give Houston a fourth-round draft choice this year and a third-round pick in 1995 in exchange for Moon, the Houston Chronicle reported in Tuesday editions.

Carlson's agent, Vic Vines, resumed negotiations for a three-year deal with general manager Floyd Reese and general counsel Steve Underwood, last week. Carlson is on a three-week vacation in Africa.

The new deal involves a $1 million payout for Carlson, who is under a two-year, $8.85 million contract he signed last year.

But Carlson's new contract would add another year for Carlson.

"They are still working on it,"

Oilers spokesman Chip Namias said Tuesday. "We're definitely getting closer."

Houston needs to figure out something because it will have trouble fitting both quarterbacks' salaries under the $34.2 million cap. Each has contracts of at least $3 million for 1994.

Moon is scheduled to make $3.25 million this year and $3 million next year.

Moon's agent Leigh Steinberg, of Los Angeles, told The Associated Press Tuesday neither he nor his client have been approached by the Oilers regarding a trade.

"Warren has been very happy as a Houston Oiler," said Steinberg. "No one from the Houston Oiler organization has ever mentioned any trade involving Warren."

Steinberg said a restructured contract for Moon was discussed at last month's NFL owners' meeting in Orlando, Fla., but nothing was agreed upon.

He declined to discuss the details of those discussions.

"The Oilers had a proposal and we had a proposal," Steinberg said. "And there's no final resolution yet."

Owner Bud Adams turned down an offer from the Los Angeles Rams for Moon last month. Detroit was interested in Moon, but they ended up signing free agent Scott Mitchell.

Moon, 37, wants to play two more years and the Vikings have an opening after placing Jim McMahon on waivers. Minnesota coach Dennis Green is interested in Moon first and San Francisco's Steve Bono second.

The Oilers' third quarterback, Bucky Richardson, is being pursued by Hamilton of the Canadian Football League.

No matter what happens with Richardson, the Oilers say they'll try signing a veteran quarterback for about $500,000 a year if Moon is gone.

Carlson has been his understudy since 1987.

Men netters seek first conference win

The Texas Tech men's tennis team is looking for its first Southwest Conference win as the host Baylor at 1:30 p.m. in the Athletic Training Center.

Tech is No. 47 in the country with an 11-5 record and are 0-3 in league play. The Bears hold an 11-5 overall mark and 1-3 SWC record.

"Baylor is having a very good year," Tech head coach Tim Siegel said, "and we will need to pick up the intensity to win. We need to get back on the right track and this match would do it."

The Raiders lineup returns to normal with everyone healthy. Juan Gutierrez stays in the No. 1 seed with Klint Graf in the No. 2 spot.

Ru Guerrero, Erick Guzman, Tal Roma and Gerard Orriols round out the singles lineup.

Tech assistant football coach takes position at Alabama

Texas Tech receivers' coach Ivy Williams resigned his position Tuesday, to take a job at Alabama.

Williams has coached at Tech for five years, and will now be the running backs coach for the Crimson Tide.

Williams coached a receiving corps that helped to break many Tech offensive records last season.

Tech head coach Spike Dykes said he hoped to have a replacement within a month.

Siegel will be changing the doubles lineup which will be decided before the match.

"This is a very critical part of our schedule and we need everyone healthy to be competitive," Siegel said.

Graf and Guerrero are ranked No. 29 in doubles and need two more wins to make the NCAA tournament.

Cold weather ends Raiders, Shockers series

Cold weather brought the Texas Tech baseball team home early from Wichita, Kan., canceling the second game of a two-game series.

The Raiders were scheduled for a 7 p.m. game Tuesday which will not be made up.

The Shockers defeated Tech 10-8 Monday after two unearned runs scored in the eighth inning.

Friday the Raiders will continue play at Dan Law Field with a three-game Southwest Conference series against Houston.

The alternate trip is essentially the same as the scheduled trip with the cost, dates and equipment all being the same. The only major difference is the final destination. The Outdoor Shop is taking sign ups for this trip during the regular hours, Monday 12-6 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday 1-5 p.m. and Friday 12-6 p.m. The number of participants allowed to go on the trip is limited so act now and reserve your spot.

Bryce Canyon National Park is north of Grand Canyon National Park is located in southern Utah. It is part of the same string of canyonlands that stretch throughout southern Utah and northern Arizona. It is a beautiful area with rock formations that will take your breath away. Treat yourself to an end of the semester trip and join the Outdoor Program on their excursion.

New Weight Rooms Now Open

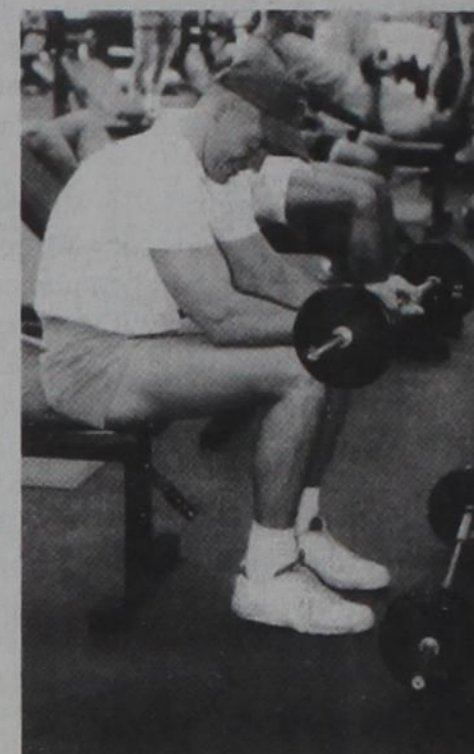

The Student Recreation Center has embarked on a new era with the opening of two new weight rooms for use by students, faculty, staff and guests.

The new expansion (along the corridor from the Rec to the Aquatic Center) features 5,100 square feet of Olympic free weights, selectorized machines and multi-station modulars. The "old" weight room has been converted to a circuit training room consisting of 16 selectorized machines on which individuals can achieve their workout needs (a second circuit is due late in the summer). Both rooms are available for use whenever the Student Recreation Center is open.

The circuit room contains 16 pieces of new selectorized equipment that is easy to use and is set up to provide a total body workout. The room is set up to work large to small muscle groups alternating upper and lower body. Ordinarily you will start with the leg press (moving clockwise) and do 10-12 reps at each station moving quickly between each station. When you have finished, you will have worked all the major muscle groups of the body. As strength and endurance improve, you will be able to add additional circuits.

The new free weight room contains six bench press stations, two incline press stations, one decline press station, one power cage, two Smith press machines, two leg presses, one hack squat, two squat racks, one seated calf and one donkey calf machine, a deadlift platform and deadlift training station, two Scott curl stations, a 45-degree back extension, two bent leg abdominal boards, one did/chin station, one T-bar rowing station,
