Carbon Community Gets Beneficial Rains

Carbon and community has received very nice rains the past two nights which is expected to be beneficial to farmers, especially those raising peanuts. The county has received much moisture the past several months, however the top soil was getting very dry preventing the planting of peanuts. Now with the underground season we already had and the top moisture received recently, farmers have bright prospects for a good peanut crop which is the basic farm product of the county.

Vacation Bible School In Progress At Baptist Church

The Bible School consists of singing, scripture memory verses, character stories and handwork. Of the forty-nine enrolled to date, over half of them are boys. Defends Farm Plan

YOUR Home Town Reporter cannot help but feel that at least some farm leaders are not being realistic in their opposition to the proposed new agricultural program.

That is, they are not being realistic from the standpoint of their announced reasons for opposition, namely it regiments the farmers.

They are receiving a subsidy today under price support and will not only get price support but direct subsidies in incentive payments under the Hope-Aiken law.

There is no other end No Other End THERE was, of course, "historical reasons" why Jesus was killed. If we used the words "murdered" or "lynched" it would be nearer the truth.

It is just as essential that we have government protection and government help, and a guaranteed floor under his prices, as it is for labor to have bargaining power and a guaranteed floor under his wages.

One thing is certain, unless the administration can in some way, not now apparent, get a moderate labor law through this congress, Taft-Hartley repeal will again be an issue in the 1950 bye-elections.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By Dr. Kenneth J. Foreman

Why Jesus Died

Lesson for June 12, 1949

THE FACTS of Jesus' death were simple. They are told in the four Gospels without dramatics and without tears.

There is a deeper question that what happened. Why did it happen? The first Christians were asked to think about the crucifixion. They all knew it was no legend. It was so. But they were hunted, as we are, with the question: Why? Here was a person whose teaching was truth.

He was a man whose health, whose life was love. You would have thought the world would welcome such a man, and give him the highest honors in its power. But instead, all it had for him was a cross. Why? If God, who sees all things, knew that even his Son would come to no better end than a death of shame, why did he allow Jesus to be born, much less send him into the world, the world where the cross was waiting?

He died because Judas was a traitor, because his friends were cowards and even the Jews dared to show their faces only after he was dead. He died because the Jewish people had their minds set on one sort of Messiah, and when Jesus turned out to be quite another sort, they would have none of him.

THE Plan of God THEN was Jesus simply a victim of circumstances? Was he not better than a fly caught in fate's dark web? Far from it. The Christian church has always believed, even before these stories of the death of Christ was in the plan of God. In fact, it is at the heart of God's plan for mankind.

"That The World... Might Be Saved" MEN had long thought of God as lying in far-off heaven, seated on a throne, high and lifted up. A just and mighty God, one who cannot be touched with any human weakness, a holy and infinite Lord of the universe—such a God men knew. But on earth there walks and suffers a race of men who are slaves of sin, slaves to evil. How can such a God help such men? No, by staying on his throne and hurling down more curses. Only by doing what men would never have guessed. God would dare to come into this world, himself as a man, translating himself into the life of man; putting his shoulder under the human load, and being bearing "our sins in his own body on the tree" (1 Peter 2:24).

Guilt Causes Renunciation

By Lawrence Gould

Will a man "renounce" a girl he really loves?

Answer: Yes, if he has an exaggerated sense of guilt which drives him to deprive himself of happiness. Under such conditions, the stronger his love, the surer he will be to find some plausible excuse for giving her up, since what he fears most of all is what he thinks will make him happy. But the average man who tells his sweetheart that he cannot marry her because he is "unworthy of her" is more often trying to deceive her—or himself. He really is afraid she represents a standard which he is unwilling to try to live up to.

instincts into useful and effective patterns of behavior. "The development of an ethical code that will be strong enough to govern the individual's future actions is dependent on the existence of family life," and nothing else can replace it.

Does seeking "perfection" prove his standards?

Answer: No, it shows that you are morbidly afraid of being criticized, either by others or by yourself. What makes your standards so high—and so rigid—is that you don't dare to leave the tightest loophole in your defense against largely imaginary accusations. The woman who cannot bear to see a speck of dust in her house does not really love cleanliness; she's afraid of being called a "bad housekeeper." And the man who cannot finish a job because he "can never get it done to satisfy him" is the victim of a similar fear.

Could children grow up without homes?

Answer: No, writes Kate Friedlander, British welfare worker, in the Journal of Mental Science. For a child's conscience develops out of his relations with his mother, and he must have constant contact with her during the first six years of his life if he is to learn to transform his primitive

KEEPING HEALTHY Today's Most Amazing Medicine

By Dr. James W. Barton

AS YOUR PHYSICIAN thinks over the past 10 years, you would naturally believe he would have in mind the wonderful work of saving lives now being done by penicillin and the drugs. Diseases that were practically all fatal and others in which but a small percentage recovered, are now successfully battled by these antibiotics, they are called, because they kill the organisms which formerly caused death. Two other antibiotics, streptomycin and aureomycin, have been recently added to these diseases.
It may come as a surprise to many to learn that your physician is thinking more about the blood coursing through your blood vessels than he realizes—as he did not realize just 10 years ago—that blood is today's most amazing medicine. "It has become more a miracle worker than penicillin."
In a pamphlet, Blood's Magic For All, issued by the Public Affairs Committee Inc., a non-profit, educational organization in New York City, Alton L. Blakeslee states that blood already does more lifesaving jobs than any one of our wonderful drugs. If, on a single day, you looked in upon the hospitals in one large city, you might see the following:

A surgeon, in a brain operation, packs a soft, white spongy mass into a wound. It quickly stops the bleeding and he leaves it there. The body will gradually absorb this spongy-fibrin foam—because it is made from human blood. He covers the exposed brain with transparent plastic film. This film, made from blood, stays safely till the body manufactures a new covering.
In the accident ward, a quick injection of a clear liquid, human serum albumin, made from blood, saves a baby from shock.
In the delivery room a newborn baby is being given a complete new blood supply to halt a possibly fatal battle caused by Rh antibodies in his veins.
A boy who is a "bleeder" is given an injection of a blood product that enables him to have diseased teeth removed.
